about the author

"Ever since I was a kid, I always had in mind to come to this country," says Grammy Award-nominated record producer Didier C. Deutsch. "My initial goal was to become a movie director. Instead, I became a record producer and musicologist. Makes sense: music was always an integral part of my life."

Deutsch, who cites Paris-based American deejay Sim Copans as being a major influence on his musical development, was nominated for a Grammy in 1994 for his production of the 12-CD set, "Frank Sinatra: The Columbia Years (1943-1952) – The Complete Recordings," the most ambitious project ever initiated by Columbia Records until then.

While putting the finishing touches to that set, the producer also worked on a four-CD career retrospective of Johnny Mathis for the label, "The Music of Johnny Mathis: A Personal Collection," which was released at the same time.

"Altogether, in my years with Legacy, the Sony label that was created to mine the Columbia and the Epic catalogues, I have produced about 450 reissue albums and compilations in various fields of music, including pop, jazz, soundtracks, Broadway shows, big bands, you name it."

Born in Arcachon, France, in 1937, Deutsch lived the war years in hiding, barely escaping being arrested by the German authorities. After the war, while pursuing his studies, he began writing articles about American music for a number of French publications, and lectured at the United States Information Services in Bordeaux and at the American Cultural Center in Paris.

Shortly after his arrival in New York in 1962, he began a career in journalism, writing for a wide range of magazines and newspapers about the arts, with a special emphasis on the theatre, movies, and music. As a reviewer, he has been covering the Broadway musical scene for more than 30 years.

In 1973, after spending some time in public relations in the private sector, Deutsch became publicity director at CTI Records, the jazz label created by producer Creed Taylor, working with artists like George Benson, Bob James, Grover Washington, Jr., Freddie Hubbard, Paul Desmond, and Chet Baker, among many others.

In a career that has since entirely focused on the music side of the business, Deutsch held various publicity and managerial positions at Tappan Zee, RCA, WEA International, and Atlantic. While at that label, he produced the boxed set "MJQ 40," marking the Modern Jazz Quartet's 40 years in the music business.

In 1986, he began working as a reissue producer for Legacy Records. As part of his activities with that label, he supervised the reissue on compact disc of many of the titles initially released on CTI, as well as some of the soundtracks and Broadway cast albums recorded for Columbia.

Among his most notable achievements, in addition to the Frank Sinatra and Johnny Mathis boxed sets, he also produced a four-CD boxed set of Tony Bennett, marking the singer's 40 years in the industry, as well as numerous recordings by the many artists signed to both Columbia and Epic. On many of those, he also authored the liner notes that put the recordings into their proper historical perspective.

Currently, Deutsch is preparing the CD reissues of the Broadway cast albums of "A Chorus Line," "A Little Night Music" and "Threepenny Opera," as well as an expanded version of Jerry Goldsmith's score for Star Trek – The Motion Picture.

Film music today is where jazz was maybe 30-40 years ago, that is to say, as an art form only beginning to be recognized. It's pretty interesting, or at least that's what I tell myself to get through another issue of Film Score Monthly. Consider the following:

The music has made the movies. Films like Lawrence of Arabia and The Magnificent Seven would be successful no matter what, but their respective scores by Maurice Jarre and Elmer Bernstein have made them that much more memorable. It's hard to pin down exactly what the music is doing in a movie like Sam Peckinpah's masterpiece, The Wild Bunch, but trust me that it would be a much lesser experience without Jerry Fielding's score. Federico Fellini without music would still be great, but who can forget Nino Rota's unmistakable circus-like atmospheres?

There's been some darn fine music. Many of the classically influenced film composers, like Erich Wolfgang Korngold, Franz Waxman and Aaron Copland, wrote music for cinema that stands on equal footing with their concert music. Bernard Herrmann, the single most influential dramatic film composer of all time, developed a unique style of repeating orchestral cells and colors that predates minimalism by a good two decades. Jerry Goldsmith, in his amazing four decades as a first-rate film composer, has explored and juxtaposed a variety of genres to stunning dramatic effect. Many of John Williams' film themes have become veritable pop hits, and some of the most beautiful music I've ever heard was written for movies by Georges Delerue.

Film music is a legitimate form of post-modern art. Without taking the time to define post-modernism, film music is one of those things that has crept up in the present-day technological world. There have been countless thousands hours of visual programming over the past 50 years for television, 70 years for sound film, and 100 years for film overall. A good percentage of that has had music—pre-recorded music, original music, whatever the case. The juxtaposition of music and image has ranged from banal to utilitarian to brilliant. We are only beginning to catalog all of this film music—its origins, influences and impact.

Consider these cool facts: bone-crunching, atonal music of the style of Schoenberg, Berg and Webern has been around for three-quarters of a century, but it has been only through movies that the general public has embraced it, or even heard of it. They would run screaming from a concert of 12-tone music, but find it perfectly acceptable and even likeable in movies scored by composers like Leonard Rosenman, Alex North and Jerry Goldsmith—like Planet of the Apes. Also, listen to any urban thriller Lalo Schifrin score from the 1970s (they all rock, by the way) and it immediately engenders the reaction, "Oh, '70s music." And yet, you'd have to look long and hard to find this particular style of orchestra, pop, funk and drama in anything but movies from that era.

See, the thing I love about film music is that it is not a single "type" of music. It's this weird subset that affects movies in fascinating and profound ways, and often stands on its own as a unique listening experience. The Third Man was scored with a zither. Martin Scorsese "scored" Mean Streets with his record collection. Composers like John Barry, the irreplaceable Ennio Morricone, and the sadly missed Henry Mancini have fused symphonic literature with pop trends to form their own, highly personal respective styles. Their work was cutting-edge at the time and has become standards of pop culture ever since—or maybe you can't remember the James Bond theme, the sound of Clint Eastwood/Sergio Leone spaghetti westerns, and the Pink Panther theme?

And finally, you could scour the world over and never find a piece of orchestral literature that is as crazy, as post-modern, prescient and beautiful as a Carl Stalling score for a Warner Bros. cartoon of the 1930s, '40s or '50s.

Enjoy this book, folks.

Lukas Kendall

• introduction

As anyone who's been in a record store lately will attest, soundtracks are "in." It depends, of course, what we call soundtracks, but that's a point we'll deal with in a short while. Bins overflow with new titles. Film music sections, that once seemed relegated to a darkened corner area next to classical, have expanded dramatically. More significantly, many labels, independents as well as majors, seem intent on cashing in on the trend, and actively release new albums of current scores as well as reconstructions and reissues of past glories.

Which brings us back to the definition of soundtrack albums. To some, it means music from a score that was specifically written for a motion picture. To others, it is a compilation of pop songs, some of which served as source material in a scene from the film, usually in abbreviated form, or which have been "inspired" by a film when the concept is stretched to its utmost limits, as is frequently the case nowadays.

Dispensing rapidly with the latter, purists will tell you that pop compilations are not soundtrack albums but pop compilations, and that labels—usually the majors which have ready access to the vast pop catalogue in their vaults—use this euphemism to peddle the same golden oldies they have recycled in a number of other ways in the past. There are, of course, notable exceptions to the concept. Sometimes the songs are new and specifically created for the film, which was the case, for instance, of the songs for the original Batman, written by Prince, or those for Dick Tracy, penned by Stephen Sondheim. And sometimes, the pop compilations are indeed an important part of the film (i.e. Forrest Gump, in which the many songs were used to give the time period a specific authenticity). But unless a film is a musical, a song compilation is not really a soundtrack album. Which brings us back to the other kind of soundtrack albums, the instrumental ones.

Again, as collectors and fans will point out, soundtracks existed long before song compilations—a phenomenon that started in the 1960s—came into being. Soundtrack albums can be traced back to 1943 and composer Miklos Rozsa who was the first to record a musical suite from his score for the Alexander Korda production of The Jungle Book, with Sabu, who had starred in the film, as narrator. It marked the first time a major film score received an accompanying record release and its success paved the way to soundtrack albums as we know them today.

For those interested in a little history, while film music existed almost from the moment a locomotive entered (silently) into the station of La Ciotat, in France, in the first film made by the brothers Lumiere, most of the "scores" performed in the days of the silents consisted of classical themes used for stock situations. If there was a scene of action, Rossini's William Tell Overture was promptly dusted off. A tearjerker immediately invoked Tchaikovsky's Pathetique Symphony; and what marriage scene could have existed without Mendelssohn's triumphant nuptial march.

When movies began to talk, the studio heads brought to Hollywood the most respected composers from Europe to serve as advisors and orchestrators, since the longer classical themes needed to be pruned down for the screen time during which they were actually needed. The first to break with tradition was Max Steiner, then a young composer in charge of the music department at RKO Studios, who convinced David O. Selznick to let him write an original series of cues for a single reel of Symphony of Six Million. The effect on audiences was electrifying, something that didn't get lost on Selznick who agreed to let Steiner score an entire film, Bird of Paradise, in 1932. Soon, every movie studio had to have its own music department, with its own contingent of composers.

All along, however, the studio heads kept music in an artistic netherland of sorts. To them, it seemed like a necessary evil, something they realized the audiences expected, but something for which they themselves had little taste and certainly no respect. In their opinion, composers were hacks who could (and sometimes were asked to) replace an original theme with a classical piece if a producer demanded it, even if the piece didn't fit the format of the film itself.

Miklos Rozsa recounts how upset he was when scoring Ben-Hur, after he was asked to include "Adeste Fideles" for the Nativity scene, with total disregard for the fact that it was a medieval Latin hymn which had been composed several centuries later. Only when he threatened to leave the picture was the idea dropped.

The advent of long-playing in the 1950s didn't provoke an intense interest in film music, but a western did. When the first previews of Fred Zinneman's High Noon proved catastrophic, composer Dimitri Tiomkin felt that if the song he had written with Ned Washington, "Do Not Forsake Me, Oh, My Darling," sung in the film by Tex Ritter, were heard more frequently on the radio it might actually help publicize the film. Capitol Records, which had Ritter under contract, refused to let him cut a single for airplay. Tiomkin then approached Columbia Records, which had just signed Frankie Laine, and a deal was made. The song from High Noon became a million-seller and, as a result, the film became a huge box office hit. Suddenly, every major motion picture had to have a title song, whether or not it was really called for.

Throughout the 1950s, however, soundtrack albums remained scant and the works of some of the best composers in Hollywood went unrecorded, except for an occasional title that was immediately snatched by fans of film music. There were collectors at the time who already thought that film music should be considered the modern equivalent of classical music, but they were a minority and their silent plea for a particular soundtrack album often went unanswered. Classical fans, for their part, often felt that film music was nothing more than rubbish, and frequently dismissed it as such.

During these lean years, when a soundtrack album was released by the majors, usually it seemed as an afterthought. They seldom received the kind of promotional push and attention usually afforded their pop counterparts. Some of them remained in the catalogues (Bridge on the River Kwai and The Alamo at Columbia, or Giant at Capitol, for instance), but many were deleted almost as quickly as they had been released, leaving some lucky fans with obscure titles whose value steadily increased in the collectors' market, and others paying tantalizingly stiff prices for albums that could have been bought at one time for a few dollars.

Then came 1967 and The Graduate, which rang the death toll for film music. The immense success of the songs written for that film by Simon and Garfunkel, which translated itself into a million-selling album, convinced every producer in Hollywood that ancillary benefits could help their film, any film. All at once, every movie that came out of the Hollywood studios began to feature rock scores and pop songs, to such extent that legitimate composers found themselves out of work. Some, like Bernard Herrmann and Miklos Rozsa, went to Europe where their works, at least, were treated with greater respect. Others, like Elmer Bernstein, chose to remain until things got better by contributing inane little scores for insipid films in which the basic musical element did not intrude on the pop songs that now prevailed on the soundtracks.

This was also the era of mega-selling albums like Saturday Night Fever, Grease, Thank God It' s Friday, and Footloose, all of them consisting of pop songs created for or heard in the films that spawned them.

The 1970s brought another change, a beneficial one this time. In 1972, record producer George Korngold, son of the film composer, teamed with conductor Charles Gerhardt, who had quietly championed film music for many years, and together they created a tribute album to the music of Erich-Wolfgang Korngold. The Sea Hawk, the first title in the now celebrated Classic Film Scores series, released by RCA Victor, became a huge instrumental success that spawned many additional volumes throughout the 1970s, documenting the works of Hollywood Golden Age composers like Rozsa, Steiner, Tiomkin, Herrmann, Franz Waxman, and Alfred Newman.

Then, in 1977 came Star Wars. The epic film by George Lucas would have sounded ridiculous with a pop score. What it needed was a huge, explosive symphonic score like the ones Korngold, Newman and Rozsa wrote so well. John Williams understood it perfectly well and the score he created for the film borrowed every musical trick from the books laid out by his predecessors. The success of the film led to that of the soundtrack album, an unusual two-LP set which sold millions of copies, taking everyone by surprise, including the executives at 20th Century-Fox Records who had not foreseen its tremendous appeal. Instrumental albums were back in grand style.

The trend subsisted until the CD revolution in 1986 which enabled many collectors to finally hear the instrumental scores in state-of-the-art digital sound, grander-than-life, the way they had always wanted to hear them. The digital era also saw the start or expansion of several independent labels (Varese-Sarabande, Intrada, Silva Screen, Rhino), all of them catering specifically to the collectors, and all of them digging back into the history of film music to reissue long-deleted soundtrack albums or release new recordings of classic scores.

Today, the situation has amplified with many other labels, including the majors, suddenly aware of the appeal of film music, joining the fray and, perhaps for the first time, treating it the way classical music is treated. It may only be a passing fancy, but when Sony Classical records an album of music by Bernard Herrmann conducted by Esa-Pekka Salonen, or when Angel Records and Philips release soundtrack albums by James Horner or Philippe Sarde, you know that something new is happening.

In another significant development, this renewal of interest in instrumental film music has also facilitated the arrival of a new generation of composers, nurtured on the precepts left by their predecessors, but ready to innovate and to create their own musical language—James Horner, Alan Silvestri, Danny Elfman, Randy Edelman, Rachel Portman, Marc Shaiman, Basil Poledouris, Joel McNeely, all of them superb exponents of an art some thought was dying or even dead.

To be sure, film music continues to attract a lot of less gifted people, but the composers who actually thrive on it and rewrite the books can easily be singled out, leaving the others behind.

Film music, past and present, has also brought together a motley group of young writers who enjoy it, recognize its virtues, and help publicize it. In preparing this volume, I was fortunate to work with some of these talented young people—Lukas Kendall, editor and publisher of Film Score Monthly, a publication dedicated to film music, who also introduced me to some of his regular contributors, Jeff Bond, Andy Dursin and Paul MacLean; and David Hirsch and Randall Larson, recommended to me by my friend, record producer Ford A. Thaxton.

All of them have their own specialty, all of them view music in a different, personal optic, and all of them have very strong likes and dislikes. But even when they express conflicting opinions, their intentions are solidly honest, and what ties them all is their abiding love of film music. They made this book much more interesting and lively and I am indebted to all of them for their impeccable contributions.

Finally, there is you, the buyers and readers, attracted by the topics raised in this book, and no doubt interested to some degree in what we all have to say about some of your favorite film soundtracks. You may not always share our conclusions and that's your unalienable right. But ultimately you are also part of our community, because if you bought this book in the first place, it's certainly because you are interested in film music as a whole. So welcome to our world, welcome to your world.

• using VideoHound's soundtracks

Videohound's Soundtracks has got to be the most comprehensive source on soundtracks out there, and even better, it's easy to use. The book is divided into four sections covering motion picture soundtracks, Broadway and screen musicals, television soundtracks, and compilation soundtracks.

Though the first three sections are pretty self-explanatory, the last section is a little more tricky. The compilation section lists those CDs that encompass the works of a certain composer, or the works of a genre, or the works included in an actor's films. For instance, here you can find not only The Best of John Barry, but you can also find the Elvis soundtracks from Blue Hawaii to Viva Las Vegas. You can also find Great Epic Film Scores and The Best of James Bond. So this section covers everything else that didn't fit in the first three.

Here's what you'll find in the entries and how each part can be helpful in selecting the best music for your collection:

The information following the title and bone rating (we'll talk about that later) contains many important pieces of information which may include the CD release year, the label, the source of the music (i.e. the film title or Broadway play), the film production studio and the film release year or year the Broadway play was performed.

The Album Notes contain the credits. This may include the music composer, editor, conductor, orchestrator, album or CD producer, song producers, engineers and any other credits you would find on the CD cover. And in Broadway shows, it may even list the cast.

Selections lists the tracks on the CD. Here you will find track numbers, track titles, running time, writers and performers if not performed by the orchestra.

The Review is the meat of the entry. Here you'll read fun and informative expert advice on the soundtracks listed in this volume. As with any opinions, all of what you'll read is subjective and personal. Of course, we think the Hound will ultimately point you in the right direction. However, if you have a bone to pick, we'd like to hear about it, because after all, this book is for you, the fans.

A byline will appear if the entry was reviewed by anyone except our trusty leader Didier C. Deutsch. So, if you don't see one, you know who wrote it, too.

As for the bone rating—it's not too tough to figure out. 🦴🦴🦴🦴🦴 CDs are the cat's meow, er, um, I mean, the top dog and a Woof is dog chow. So, enjoy the book and be sure to let us know what you think. Really—it's important to us!

Jeff Bond owes his knowledge of film music to years of watching television reruns and movies in the '60s and '70s, when he could often be found holding the microphone of his cassette recorder up to the speaker of his TV set to record the themes from "Star Trek," "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau" and "The Man from U.N.C.L.E." In 1992, he began writing reviews for Film Score Monthly and has been regularly featured in that magazine ever since. He has also contributed regular features and reviews to SciFi Universe magazine, and has written articles on music in the "Star Trek" television series and feature films for Star Trek Communicator magazine. He and his wife, Brooke, currently reside in Los Angeles.

Andy Dursin has profiled film composers and filmmakers for Film Score Monthly, Home Movies and Movie Collector magazines, where he has also written extensively about films, soundtrack albums and laserdiscs. A recent graduate of Boston College, Andy is a proud native Rhode Islander, who you'll find at the beach if he's not at the local movie theatre.

Gary Graff is an award-winning journalist and supervising editor of Visible Ink Press' MusicHound series. His work appears regularly in Replay, Guitar World, ICE, San Francisco Chronicle, Detroit Sunday Journal/Detroit Journal and other publications.

Chuck Granata, record producer, is an authority on Frank Sinatra, whose work can be seen on a variety of CD titles released by Sony/Legacy, Capitol and Reprise. He is also very knowledgeable about and a fan of Broadway and film music, and often writes about both.

David Hirsch, an avid soundtrack collector for the past 30 years, learned to appreciate film music when, before video tape, the only way to relive one's favorite film or TV show was through its soundtrack album. Formerly an associate editor of Starlog magazine, David has co-authored eight books, including the Space: 1999 Official Alpha Moonbase Technical Manual and TV Episode Guides, Volumes 1 & 2. Currently, he is a music columnist for both Starlog and Soundtrack! magazines, and has either written liner, consulted on or produced over 50 soundtrack albums, including Supergirl (Silva Screen), Flight of the Navigator (Super Tracks) and Star Trek: Volume Two (GNP Crescendo).

Lukas Kendall is the editor and publisher of Film Score Monthly, the magazine of motion picture and television music (www.filmscoremonthly.com). He has produced soundtrack CDs on his Retrograde Records label (such as The Taking of Pelham One Two Three and Deadfall), and contributed liner notes for such releases as Star Wars Trilogy: The Original Soundtrack Anthology and Raiders of the Lost Ark. Lukas is building a soundtrack fighting force of extraordinary magnitude.

Marc Kirkeby, a former editor of Rolling Stone, writes frequently about music, theater and film. His essays have appeared in The New Yorker, The New York Times, The Village Voice and American Film.

Randall D. Larson is the former editor and publisher of CinemaScore: The Film Music Journal (1981-1987), and a long-time contributing editor to Soundtrack! A frequent film music writer for Cinefantastique, Larson is also the author of Musique Fantastique: A Survey of Film Music in the Fantastic Cinema (Scarecrow, 1984), and Music for the House of Hammer (Scarecrow, 1986).

Paul Andrew MacLean contributes reviews and interviews to Film Score Monthly, Soundtrack!, Music from the Movies and also serves as film reviewer for Renaissance magazine.

Jerry Thomas, a collector and fan of Broadway and screen musicals, writes frequently about both, and has also contributed liner notes for a number of Broadway cast album and film soundtrack reissues.

Absolute Power

1997, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Absolute Power, Castle Rock Entertainment, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Lennie Niehaus; Music Editor: Donald K. Harris; Orchestra conducted by Lennie Niehaus; Album Producer: Lennie Niehaus; Engineer: Bobby Fernandez.

Selections: 1 Kate's Theme (C. Eastwood)(2:05); 2 The Mansion (1:31); 3 Christy Dies (2:27); 4 The Mansion Chase (4:33); 5 Christy's Dance (3:40); 6 Waiting For Luther/Wait For My Signal (6:56); 7 Dr. Kevorkian I Presume (1:43); 8 Sullivan's Revenge (2:16); 9 Kate's Theme (C. Eastwood)/End Credits (4:43).

Review: The dour, oppressive themes developed by Lennie Niehaus for this contemporary political drama are frequently too derivative and too unmelodic to satisfy a casual listener. The story is about a retired detective investigating a covered-up murder possibly involving the President of the United States. Meandering musical lines, occasionally punctuated by synthesized pulses, may work very well on the screen behind the action, but don't make much of an impact when isolated from their primary function. Exceptions include a jazz-tinged "Christy's Dance," and the lovely, melodic "Kate's Theme," played in concertante style with the "End Credits."

The Abyss

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Abyss, 20th Century-Fox, 1989

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Orchestrations: James B. Campbell; Orchestra conducted by Alan Silvestri; Album Producer: Alan Silvestri; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:31); 2 Search The Montana (1:56); 3 The Crane (2:01); 4 The Manta Ship (6:24); 5 The Pseudopod (5:37); 6 The Fight (1:46); 7 Sub Battle (3:19); 8 Lindsey Drowns (4:43); 9 Resurrection (1:59); 10 Bud's Big Dive (6:10); 11 Bud On The Ledge (3:14); 12 Back On The Air (1:41); 13 Finale (6:47).

Review: This score for director James Cameron's underwater epic is as eclectic as the film itself. Composer Alan Silvestri deftly mixes three distinct styles, each to represent the film's three protagonists. Standard scoring techniques, in particular the composer's own trademarked bombastic horn punches, are used to represent the human element of the film. As the protagonists penetrate deeper into the undersea trench, a New Age-style electronic theme is used to express the overall mystery that builds throughout the film. Finally, a choir personifies the delicate translucent alien life form hiding below. As the film builds to its climax, all three motifs merge into one chorus, a hymn for an uncertain future. The music tells us there's still a mystery, but perhaps a better world will come of it all.

The Accidental Tourist

1989, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie The Accidental Tourist, Warner Bros., 1989.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Orchestrations: Ken Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Dan Wallin; Assistant Engineers: Sue McLean, John Rotundi.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:31); 2 Macon Alone (4:41); 3 Trip To London (1:53); 4 The Healing Process (5:09); 5 Fixing The Plumbing On A Rainy Afternoon (3:13); 6 A Second Chance (3:10); 7 Wedding Scene (2:49); 8 Back With Sara (4:03); 9 Bedroom Conversation (4:36); 10 Rose And Julian (2:08); 11 A New Beginning (3:26); 12 End Credits (A Second Chance)(3:10).

Review: For this contemporary story of a man's slow emotional rebirth following the breakup of a long-term relationship, John Williams wrote an unabashedly romantic and gorgeously understated score, in which the piano, the oboe and the clarinet play an important solo role to create the appropriate reflective moods. The recurring main theme binds the various cues together, in a display of thoughtful music that holds its own on a purely listening basis. The faster-paced "A Second Chance" contrasts happily with the more sullen expression in the other tracks, and exudes a warm, glorious feeling.

Ace Ventura: When Nature Calls

1995, MCA Records; from the movie Ace Ventura: When Nature Calls, Warner Bros., 1995.

Album Notes: Album Producers: Danny Bramson, Kathy Nelson.

Selections: 1 Spirits In The Material World (Sting)(4:40) Pato Banton, Sting; 2 Secret Agent Man (P.F. Sloan/S. Barri)(2:16) Blues Traveler; 3 Don't Change (INXS)(3:41) The Goo Goo Dolls; 4 Burnin' Rubber (Mr. Mirainga) (3:18) Mr. Mirainga; 5 Boll Weevil (C. Ballew)(3:16) The Presidents of the United States of America; 6 Blur The Technicolor (W. Zombie/ R. Zombie)(4:09) White Zombie; 7 Watusi Rodeo (Attaway/Walls/ Kordecki)(2:34) Reverend Horton Heat; 8 Here Comes The Night (B. Burns) (3:27) Native; 9 Jungle Groove (M. Jordan)(5:13) Montell Jordan; 10 Ife (A. Kidjo/J. Hebrail)(4:23) Angelique Kidjo; 11 My Pet (M. Sweet)(2:46) Matthew Sweet; 12 It's Alright (E. Sloan/J. Pence/Emosia)(4:54) Blessid Union of Souls; 12 Ace In Africa (R. Folk)(2:39) Robert Folk.

Review: It's hard to come up with a soundtrack that adequately conveys the energy Jim Carrey brings to the screen. This one does in spots—on the Goo Goo Dolls' firey cover of Inxs' "Don't Change," on the Presidents of the United States of America's "Boll Weevil," and on Reverend Horton Heat's "Watusi Rodeo." Sting teams up with Pato Banton for a fluid rendition of the Police's "Spirits in the Material World," while White Zombie's "Blur the Technicolor" is appropriately frenetic. The breakthrough from this album was almost Mr. Mirainga, whose "Burnin' Rubber" was a minor radio hit, but the band never came through on its own.

Aces: Iron Eagle III

1991, Intrada Records; from the movie Aces: Iron Eagle III, Carolco Pictures, 1991.

Selections: 1 The Aces Theme (1:53); 2 Escape From Peru (4:36); 3 Chappy's Surprise (2:39); 4 Trouble In Brownsville (1:53); 5 Chappy Survives (1:47); 6 Anna's Theme (2:03); 7 The Aces Agree (1:35); 8 Horikoshi Confesses (1:41); 9 Anna In Action (5:38); 10 Aces In Action (3:13); 11 Getting The Message (:32); 12 Too Much Seasoning (3:12); 13 Action In The Andes (4:21); 14 Tee-Vee Does The Right Thing (2:43); 15 The Messerschmidt 163/Hero In A Zero (1:29); 16 Chappy Saves The Day (3:34); 17 Kleiss Is Diced; 18 Final Credits (4:47).

Review: Harry Manfredini has come up with a heroic score built around a trio of themes for this aerial adventure film. The dominant motif is the "Aces Theme," an old-fashioned militaristic march that carries the heroism of the vintage fighter pilots throughout the score. A secondary theme, associated with the heroine, is played by French horns and strings counterpointed by piping trumpets and winds; the counterpointed measures lend a forceful drive to the slow-moving theme. The third major motif is that of the Nazi drug lord—a fast-paced polyrhythmic riff for percussion and electric bass counterpointed against marimba and flute that captures the cold, relentless violence of the villain. Manfredini has concocted a cohesive score which works well in the film and on the CD, although the orchestra occasionally sounds a little thin. The 50-minute disc is nicely sequenced and packaged, including detailed notes by the composer who describes each cue and his use of the various themes.

1995, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Across the Sea of Time, Columbia Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; The English Chamber Orchestra, conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: John Barry; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 The Wonder Of America (1:36); 2 Into New York (3:14); 3 Ellis Island (2:21); 4 Never Have I Felt So Free (2:12); 5 The Lower East Side (1:17); 6 The Automobile, The Telephone, The Skyscraper (3:15); 7 The Subway (1:00); 8 The Subway Ride (:59); 9 Coney Island (2:47); 10 Up To The Sky (1:26); 11 Flight Over New York (5:40); 12 Central Park (1:49); 13 Times Square and Broadway (1:56); 14 Scary Night In The Park (1:07); 15 A New Day Will Come (1:57); 16 Searching (1:36); 17 Welcome To America, Welcome To New York (3:31); 18 Across The Sea Of Time (5:20).

Review: The American experience (or more pointedly the New York experience) elicited this unusual score from composer John Barry for a documentary made in cooperation with Sony New Technologies to promote the IMAX system. Typical of Barry's scores of late, it is a lyrical effort, marked by long lovely melodic lines in which the music effortlessly soars and captures the imagination. The catchy recurring main theme "The Wonder Of America" binds together the various selections, often in a dialogue between a solitary reed and the string section. An occasional pulsating tune ("The Subway Ride," or the blues-tinged "Times Square and Broadway") adds an extra dimension to the score, and keeps reminding the listener that John Barry, who was a master at it, used to write more frequently in that vein earlier in his career.

Act of Piracy/ The Great White

1991, Prometheus Records/Belgium; from the movies Act of Piracy and The Great White, Laurelwood Productions, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Morton Stevens; Orchestra conducted by Ken Thorne; Album Producer: Ford A. Thaxton.

Selections: ACT OF PIRACY: 1 Main Title/The Barracuda At Sea (2:20); 2 Wartime Memories (2:27); 3 Attack On The Barracuda (2:55); 4 Ted Survives (:44); 5 Ted Takes The Blame (2:27); 6 O'Connor's Escapade (1:00); 7 Railroad Yard (2:30); 8 Arrival At Skiathos (5:28); 9 Alto Sax Blues (1:34); 10 Sally Seduces Stevens (2:08); 11 Ted Runs Into Trouble (3:05); 12 Ted Unties The Family (1:25); 13 The Ramming (1:41); 14 In The Water (1:26); 15 The End Of Wilcox/Ted Swims To The Boat/End Title (6:42);

THE GREAT WHITE: 16 Main Title (2:37); 17 Shark Scare (2:40); 18 Teen Folly No. 1 (2:10); 19 Dazed Trauma (1:04); 20 Divers Trapped (2:10); 21 Shark Attack (2:06); 22 Coma (2:27); 23 Divers Set Trap (1:24); 24 Teen Folly No. 2 (:58); 25 The Final Shark Attack (2:52); 26 Aftermath (1:08).

Review: Pleasant enough music is mostly notable as Morton Stevens' last score before his untimely passing in 1988. Conducted by Ken Thorne, this is a more melodic work than the average action film score (the main title theme is particularly indelible) and the influence of Jerry Goldsmith is certainly evident. Stevens worked with Goldsmith for many years, both as an orchestrator and co-composer (he did the final two installments of the mini-series Masada and the finale fight cue for Outland). Since much of his music has gone unreleased, one can forgive the desire to include the flatter sounding recording of The Great White, a 1982 Jaws wannabe also included on this CD. Oddly, track titles on the package are laid out in LP fashion with numbering restarting at "1" after track "13."

The Addams Family

1991, Capitol Records; from the movie The Addams Family, Paramount Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Mark McKenzie, Steve Bartek, Ralph Burns, Dennis Dreith, Jack Eskew, Thom Sharp; Music Editor: George Martin; Orchestra conducted by Hummie Mann; Album Producers: Marc Shaiman, Hummie Mann; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Deck The Halls/Main Title (2:19); 2 Morning (2:54); 3 Seances And Swordfights (1:38); 4 Playmates (S. Dowell)(:25) The Kipper Kids; 5 Family Plotz (3:54); 6 The Mooche (D. Ellington/I. Mills)(3:31); 7 Evening (3:12); 8 A Party... For Me? (5:21); 9 Mamushka (M. Shaiman/B. Comden/ A. Green)(3:30) Raul Julia, Christopher Lloyd; 10 Thing Gets Work (:56); 11 Fester Exposed (2:05); 12 The Rescue (8:04); 13 Finale (2:59).

Review: This broadly comedic score by Marc Shaiman is partly inspired by Vic Mizzy's oddball music for the 1960s TV series and Danny Elfman's "Beetlejuice," but owes much to the classic 1930s Universal horror films which both movie and underscore occasionally parody. Surprisingly romantic in places, the ample orchestral endeavor exhibits a delightful lunatic charm. Several tunes by Duke Ellington and Eddie Cantor are interpolated into the score, which includes the song "Mamushka," cowritten by Shaiman with legendary Broadway lyricists Betty Comden and Adolph Green.

Addams Family Values

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Addams Family Values, Paramount Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Hummie Mann, Jeff Atmajian, Brad Dechter, Michael Starobin; Music Editors: Nancy Fogarty, Scott Stambler; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Featured Musicians: Bruce Dukov, Ralph Morrison (violin); Album Producer: Marc Shaiman; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 It's An Addams (2:06); 2 Sibling Rivalry (3:01); 3 Love On A Tombstone (1:02); 4 Debbie Meets The Family (2:17); 5 Camp Chippewa/Camp Chippewa Song (M. Shaiman/ P. Rudnick/S. Wittman)(1:37); 6 Fester's In Love (:33); 7 The Big Date (2:28); 8 The Tango (2:45); 9 Fester And Debbie's Courtship (2:43); 10 Wednesday And Joel's Courtship (1:18); 11 The Honeymoon Is Over (1:27); 12 Escape From Debbie (3:27); 13 Eat Us (M. Shaiman/P. Rudnick)(1:02); 14 Wednesday's Revolt (2:27); 15 Debbie's Big Scene (6:59); 16 Some Time Later (3:10).

Review: With the same flamboyant style with which he scored the original Addams Family feature, Marc Shaiman brings a similar mix of Beetlejuice and Frankenstein to the podium and lets it fly in all directions. The score is rampantly farcical—quotations from various sources abound—to keep up with the film's hysterical visuals. From riotous bombast to compelling violin virtuosities and moody tangos, everything from Stravinsky to Hans Salter to Astor Piazzola is fair brew in Shaiman's musical stew. With plenty of borrowings from Vic Mizzy's original Addams Family TV theme, the score is firmly tongue-in-cheek, but is held together by a straight-faced main theme for the Addams family, which stands powerful and proud, albeit encrusted with a few moldering skeletons in the closet. The orchestral movement on the CD is interrupted by a couple of songs (one of which wasn't used in the film) which are better off programmed out, but the sequel score is a likable mix of musical mayhem. Not quite as fresh or as dynamic as the original score, but likable enough.

1997, TVT Records; from the movie Addicted to Love, Warner Bros., 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Rachel Portman; Orchestra conducted by David Snell; Engineer: Chris Dibble.

Selections: 1 Walk Away Renee (M. Lookofsky/B. Calilli/T. Sansone)(2:42) The Left Banke; 2 Ma fiancee, elle est partie (D. Brillant)(2:15) Dany Brillant; 3 Zoom (MC Solaar/Zdar)(4:00) MC Solaar; 4 Je t'aime, moi non plus (S. Gainsbourg)(4:27) Serge Gainsbourh, Jane Birkin; 5 Comme toujours (I. Mellino/M. Kosma/J. Prevert)(5:31) Stephane Grappelli; 9 Observatory (2:24); 10 Water Pistol Attack (2:31); 11 Sam's Chart (2:31); 12 Painting The Wall (2:39); 13 Maggie Enters Loft (1:34); 14 Rotten Strawberries (1:46); 15 Sam And Maggie Make Love (2:10); 16 Back To The Plan (:58); 17 Cockroaches (2:28); 18 Back From Hospital (1:44); 19 Common Interests (1:19); 20 Fight (1:44); 21 We're Even (2:30); 22 Walk Across The Street (1:49); 23 Sam Comes Home (3:15).

Review: The folks at TVT can be forgiven for overloading this soundtrack album with selections that apparently were not even in the film (but who can complain when those selections include the classic "Walk Away Renee," Serge Gainsbourg and Jane Birkin whispering the sensuous "Je t'aime, moi non plus," and Stephane Grappelli fiddling his way through "Autumn Leaves"). They also had the good sense of presenting a dozen cues composed by Rachel Portman for the romantic comedy starring Matthew Broderick and Meg Ryan. Portman, one of the best new film composers today, reveals a quirky, whimsical style that's very engaging. She displays an uncanny feel for catchy, melodic material that has an unusual quality to it, and finds a life of its own outside of its primary function. The jaunty theme and variations that find their way in the various cues, occasionally interrupted by more romantic moments ("Sam and Maggie Make Love," "Painting the Wall") make this soundtrack album a real joy to listen to. Don't miss it!

The Adventures of Baron Munchausen

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Kurzwiel, Oboes and Orchestrations: Michael Kamen; Additional Orchestrations: Fiachra Trench, Rick Wentowrth, Alan Arnold, Ed Shearmer, John Fiddy; Music Editor: Chris Brooks; The Graunke Orchestra of Munich and The National Philharmonic Orchestra of London, conducted by Michael Kamen; Album Producers: Michael Kamen, Stephen P. McLaughlin; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 The Town: The Statue In The Square, The Land Of Cheese, What Will Become Of The Baron?, Beautiful Ladies (3:30); 2 The Sultan: The Torturer's Apprentice, A Eunuch's Life Is Hard, Play Up And Win The Game (M. Kamen/E. Idle)(4:29); 3 The War Begins: The Gang Gets The Treasure, The Baron Starts The War, Sally Runs (5:56); 4 Wednesday: Cannonball Ride, Twinkling Of An Eye (2:37); 5 The Balloon: Escape In The Balloon/ Tattletale, Ascending On Bloomers, On The Way To The Moon, Storm (7:35); 6 On The Moon: The Sea Of Tranquility, Moon King Chase, Leaving The Moon (7:33); 7 Vulcan And Venus: A Little Fodder?, Venus Rising, The Munchausen Waltz (7:58); 8 In The Belly Of The Whale (The Gang Together Again): What Will Become Of The Baron?, Death And Bucephalus (3:39); 9 The Final Battle: To The Sultan's Tent, The Battle Begins/Gustavus Blows, The Rt. Ordinary Horatio Jackson Takes Tail, Berthold Chases The Bullet, Albrecht And The Boats, Elephants (4:26); 10 The Baron Dies And Lives Again: The Baron Shot, Requiem (3:16); 11 Victory: Forward The Players, Open The Gates, Baron Rides Off Into The Sunset (2:55).

Review: Terry Gilliam's epic film of the legendary European liar is blessed with a lavish and innovative orchestral score by Michael Kamen. The opportunity is here to cover just about every kind of mood from dire peril to pompous farce, and Kamen handles it all with an amazing dexterity. From the adventurous flight of "The Balloon" suite, to the choral requiem "What Will Become of the Baron," and finally to the balmy songs for "The Sultan" suite (co-written with ex-"Monty Python" member Eric Idle), the score transcends each diverse level as if they truly belonged together. Kamen even manages to musically capture comedian Robin Williams' inspired zaniness in "On the Moon," a deft mix of orchestral instruments, electronics and natural sounds.

The Adventures of Huck Finn

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Adventures of Huck Finn, Walt Disney Films, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Bill Conti; Orchestrations: Jack Eskew; Music Editor: Steve Livingston; Orchestra conducted by Bill Conti; Album Producer: Bill Conti; Engineer: Lee DeCarlo.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:43); 2 Missy Finn Goes Shoppin' (2:42); 3 Next Of Kin (2:01); 4 Do The Right Thang (2:48); 5 Once A Slave... (3:26); 6 We're Still Friends (2:43); 7 Billy Gets Killed (2:19); 8 The Barge (2:43); 9 Huck Springs Jim (3:15); 10 All's Well (4:25).

Review: Bill Conti wrote an uplifting, jubilant score for this 1993 Disney adaptation of Mark Twain's classic novel. While the film took some liberties with Twain's text, Conti's score perfectly captures the innocence of childhood with a lyrical soundtrack dominated by strong melodic, often boisterous themes. Not surprisingly, this down-home score has been used as underscore on countless televised sports programs since, most notably the Kentucky Derby. Since Rocky, Conti has often had the rotten luck of writing music for either bad movies or films that never had soundtrack albums. Huck Finn is not only one of the best albums to originate from the composer since his success with that 1976 Sylvester Stallone milestone, but is also one of his more enjoyable efforts to date.

The Adventures of Pinocchio

1996, London Records; from the movie The Adventures of Pinocchio, New Line Cinema, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian, Lawrence Ashmore; Music Editor: Graham Sutton; Producer: Rachel Portman; Engineer: Chris Dibble; Songs: Brian May; Orchestral Arranger: Lee Holdridge; Producers: Brian May, Spencer Proffer; Songs: Stevie Wonder; Orchestral Arrangers: Lee Holdridge, Spencer Proffer, Steve Cross; Producers: Stevie Wonder, Spencer Proffer; Engineer: Francis Buckley; Album Producer: Spencer Proffer.

Selections: 1 Il Colosso (B. May/L. Holdridge)(7:37) Just William, Sissel, Jerry Hadley, Gary Martin, Brian May, Jim Beach, Julie Glower, Peter Locke, Robert Lee, Suzanne DuBarry; 2 Luigi's Welcome (adapted from "Funiculi Funicula")(S. Wonder)(4:23) Stevie Wonder; 6 Theme From Pinocchio (7:19); 7 Lorenzini (3:23); 8 Terra Magica (3:57); 9 Pinocchio Becomes A Real Boy (5:08); 10 Kiss Lonely Good-Bye (instrumnetal version) (S. Wonder)(4:39) Stevie Wonder (harmonica); 11 Pinocchio's Evolution (S. Wonder)(3:47) Gepetto's Workshop; 12 What Are We Made Of (B. May)(3:45) Brian May, Sissel; 13 Hold On To Your Dream (S. Wonder)(5:57) Stevie Wonder; 14 Kiss Lonely Good-Bye (S. Wonder)(5:03) Stevie Wonder.

Review: Rachel Portman's lovely score for this retelling of the Pinocchio story is almost dwarfed by the pseudo operatic selections created by Lee Holdridge, Brian May, David Goldsmith and album producer Spencer Proffer, among others, which are heard at the beginning of the set, and shamelessly call the listener's attention to them. At times recalling the manic style in Danny Elfman's music, Portman's score is wonderfully imaginative, diversified, and eclectic, moving effortlessly from wild displays of fiery orchestral outbursts to evocative chamber-like expressions, sometimes all within the same cue, as in "Lorenzini". In fact, it's almost a shame the CD didn't give her music more playing time. Unfortunately, the only tracks that don't fit within the context here are the vocals by Stevie Wonder, who also contributed some exquisite instrumentals in "Kiss Lonely Goodbye" and "Pinocchio's Evolution," simply because his style of singing does not match the "period" moods established in the other numbers, and the derivative "What We Are Made Of," performed by Brian May and Sissel, which also sounds too contemporary.

The Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert

1994, Mother Records; from the movie The Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert, Gramercy Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Ron Miller, Jacques Morali, Steve Buckingham, Dino Fekaris, Freddie Perren, Ettore Stratta, Felipe Delgado, Benny Anderson, Bjorn Ulvaeus, Keith Thomas.

Selections: 1 I've Never Been To Me (K. Kirsch/R. Miller) (3:53) Charlene; 2 Go West (J. Morali/H. Belolo/V. Willis) (3:33) The Village People; 3 Billy Don't Be A Hero (M. Murray/P. Perren) (6:38) Peaches & Herb; 19 I Love The Nightlife (S. Hutcheson/A. Bridges) (6:20) Alicia Bridges.

Review: The misadventures of three transvestites on a car trip across Australia became the occasion for this soundtrack album in which some of disco's greatest hits have been compiled together in a festive, joyous display. Oddly enough, the lone track that seems utterly out of place in this unbridled dance party is Lena Horne's rendition of the classic "A Fine Romance," which sounds, er... too polite! But don't let that misstep keep you away from this delightful album, honey: you'll love it.

The Adventures of Robin Hood

1983, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Adventures of Robin Hood, Warner Bros., 1938.

Album Notes: Music: Erich-Wolfgang Korngold; The Utah Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Varujan Kojian; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: Bruce Leek.

Selections: 1 Prologue (Main Title)(1:34); 2 Banquet at Nottingham Castle (1:52); 3 Robin Enters The Great Hall (:56); 4 Escape From The Castle (5:09); 5 Robin Meets Little John (1:38); 6 The Oath and The Black Arrow (1:54); 7 Robin And Friar Tuck (1:24); 8 Ambush In Sherwood (3:01); 9 Feast In The Forest (2:52); 10 Robin And Marian (3:09); 11 The Archery Tournament (3:04); 12 Escape From The Gallows (2:13); 13 Love Scene (5:40); 14 Dagger Fight: King Richard In Sherwood (2:07); 15 Coronation Procession (3:05); 16 Duel, Victory and Epilogue (3:22).

Review: Over the years, there have been tantalizing snippets of Korngold's thrilling score for The Adventures of Robin Hood in various compilations, but none as complete or as exciting as this brilliant recording produced by George Korngold, son of the composer. Here is all the pageantry, color and gorgeous melodies from the original, faithfully reproduced in spacious stereo, in a recording that has long been a trendsetter in its field, and is an essential title in any collection.

Excerpts from the score can also be found in Music by Erich Wolfgang Korngold, conducted by Lionel Newman, a recording initially released by Warner Bros. in the early '60s, and for many years a much sought-after collector's item; and in Captain Blood: Classic Film Scores for Errol Flynn and The Sea Hawk: Classic Film Scores of Erich-Wolfgang Korngold, both conducted by Charles Gerhardt.

Manchester)(3:01) Melissa Manchester; 12 Ratigan's Plan (2:00); 13 Goodbye So Soon (H. Mancini/ L. Grossman/E. Fitzhugh)(2:55) Vincent Price; 14 Cat Nip (1:44); 15 Big Ben Chase (5:34); 16 Wrap-Up (3:08); 17 End Title/Goodbye So Soon (1:50) Chorus.

Review: There often is a cartoon-like quality to Henry Mancini's most inspired musical scores, and it evidently all came together in this delightful series of cues for an animated feature distributed by the Disney company. Without going into too many details about how a mouse becomes the equal of the great Sherlock Holmes, suffice it to say that the villain here, a nasty rat, is none other than Vincent Price, doing a sensational job in two songs (including the revealing "The World's Greatest Criminal," delivered with the right amount of sneers and nasty posturing), and that Mancini's music is constantly amusing and thoroughly entertaining. For added pleasure, Melissa Manchester contributes "Let Me Be Good To You," which she wrote for the occasion. Delicious through and through.

1993, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie An Affair to Remember, 20th Century-Fox, 1957.

Album Notes: Music: Hugo Friedhofer; The 20th Century-Fox Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Lionel Newman; Featured Soloist: Marnie Nixon; Engineer CD Reissue: Kevin Boutote.

Selections: 1 Main Title—An Affair To Remember ("Our Love Affair")(H. Warren/H. Adamson/L. McCarey)(1:52) Vic Damone; 2 Continue (3:02); 3 Villefranche and In The Chapel (3:35); 4 Tomorrowland (2:18) Marni Nixon; 5 Pink Champagne (1:52); 6 Revelation (3:13); 7 You Make It Easy To Be True (1:11); 8 Proposal (2:34); 9 Continue (1:42) Marni Nixon; 10 Night Club Affair (2:17) Marni Nixon; 11 Empire State Montage (2:51); 12 Return To Villefranche (3:57) Marni Nixon; 13 The Tiny Scout (He Knows You Inside Out)(3:21) Children's Chorus; 14 Ballet (1:03); 15 End Title—An Affair To Remember ("Our Love Affair")(3:54).

Review: This stylish 1957 soap opera starring Cary Grant, as an eligible bachelor engaged to a socialite, and Deborah Kerr, as the painter he meets during a trans-Atlantic voyage and with whom he falls in love only to lose track of her after she has a car accident, is best remembered today for the fact that it played an important role in the recent Sleepless in Seattle. The score, composed by Hugo Friedhofer, imaginatively played its role behind the scenes, but stands out on its own as a pleasant listening experience. Several vocals by Marni Nixon, and Vic Damone's rendition of the title tune add an extra touch of their own to the enjoyment. The only drawback here is the EQ that gives the recording a slightly unpleasant nasal sound.

After Dark My Sweet

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie After Dark My Sweet, Avenue Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Performers: Michael Boddicker, Ralph Grierson, Michael Fisher; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineers: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1-3 Suite I: After Dark, My Sweet (1:56/1:35/1:18); 4-7 Suite II: Collie And Fay (4:11/1:10/2:05/:48); 8-12 Suite III: Uncle Bud (3:59/ 1:22/2:53/2:27/:55); 13-16 Suite IV: The Kidnapping (1:09/:52/2:40/3:25).

Review: Written just prior to his popular score for Ghost, After Dark My Sweet is one of the last completely electronic scores Maurice Jarre composed. An excellent film noir about a vagrant ex-prizefighter seduced by an older women into a kidnapping scheme, the film benefits greatly from its moody, atmospheric score. A mournful solo EVI opens the album with a lonely theme for the protagonist. A pleasant, airy love theme also figures into the score, set most memorably in track 4, with clever electronic percussion writing. The album also features much music which was not included in the film and is among Jarre's most engaging electronic work. Some of the suspense cues are perhaps a bit programmatic-sounding on disc and dominate the last half of the album. After Dark My Sweet nevertheless holds some of Jarre's most inviting melodic invention, ranging from pleasant nostalgia to chilling terror.

The Age of Innocence

1993, Epic Soundtrax/Sony Music; from the movie The Age of Innocence, Columbia Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Emilie A. Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: Elmer Bernstein.

Selections: 1 The Age Of Innocence (4:38); 2 At The Opera ("Faust" Opera)(3:11); 3 Radetzky March (J. Strauss)(2:16) the Berlin Radio Symphony Orchestra; 4 Emperor Waltz, op. 437/ Tales From The Vienna Woods (excerpts) (2:27) the London Philharmonic; 5 Mrs. Mingott (1:43); 6 Dangerous Conversation (2:14); 7 Slighted (:58); 8 Van der Luydens (2:17); 9 First Visit (2:29); 10 Roses Montage (1:20); 11 Ellen's Letter (2:05); 12 Archer's Book (2:08); 13 Mrs. Mingott's Help (3:50); 14 Archer Pleads (1:49); 15 Passage Of Time (2:44); 16 Archery (1:28); 17 Ellen At The Shore (2:15); 18 Blenker Farm (2:38); 19 Boston Common (:54); 20 Parker House (1:17); 21 Pick Up Ellen

(2:12); 22 Conversation With Letterblair (2:33); 23 Archer Leaves (1:04); 24 Farewell Dinner (2:05); 25 Ellen Leaves (2:43); 26 In Paris (1:12); 27 Ellen's House (:48); 28 Madame Olenska (2:18); 29 End Credits (5:04).

Review: This is a surprisingly different effort from Elmer Bernstein, an unexpectedly delightful symphonic waltz that captures the flavor of director Martin Scorsese's period romance where a man had to marry the right kind of woman, not his true love, the one with a past. The album is marvelously sequenced, playing like a rich melodic concert. You can close your eyes and allow the music to effortlessly transport you back a century. Although it will probably never rank with The Magnificent Seven as a pillar of his career, this score is nonetheless one of the finest works by Bernstein. Several classical pieces, excerpted in the film, lead off the album, preceding the main theme which serves as the album's overture.

Agnes of God

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Agnes of God, Columbia Pictures, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Georges Delerue; The Toronto Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Georges Delerue; Featured Soloists: The Elmer Isler Singers; Album Producer: Georges Delerue; CD Producer: Robert Townson.

Selections: Agnes of God: Symphonic Suite for Chorus and Orchestra: 1 Part 1 (1:47); 2 Part 2 (3:29); 3 Part 3 (1:53); 4 Part 4 (2:54); 5 Part 5 (3:40); 6 Part 6 (:33); 7 Part 7 (2:25); 8 Part 8 (1:38); 9 Part 9 (1:15); 10 Part 10 (1:45); 11 Part 11 (5:57); 12 Part 12 (3:30).

Review: A dramatic film with a religious background provided Georges Delerue with the opportunity to write a deeply moving score in which his natural flair for long romantic lines effectively combined with the mystical moods suggested by the locale, an isolated convent where a naive nun, Agnes, apparently gave birth to a baby whom she subsequently murdered, a mystery investigated by a psychiatrist (Jane Fonda) assigned to the case. Throughout, the moods are quietly evoked in a captivating series of cues (unfortunately untitled) that subtly underscore the more poignant moments in the story and also make for an intelligent, if at times eerie, audio experience.

The Agony and the Ecstasy/ The Pride and the Passion

1991, Cloud Nine Records; from the movies The Agony and the Ecstasy, 20th Century-Fox, 1965, and The Pride and the Passion, United Artists, 1957.

Album Notes: The Pride and the Passion: Music: George Antheil; Orchestra conducted by Ernest Gold; The Agony and the Ecstasy: Music: Alex North; Orchestra conducted by Alex North.

Selections: THE PRIDE AND THE PASSION: 1 Main Title (2:30); 2 Juana's Flamenco (2:18); 3 The British Captain (2:28); 4 Windmill Camp At Night (2:20); 5 The Knife Fight (2:42); 6 Juana's Love Theme (4:04); 7 Rescue Of The Gun (4:06); 8 Juana's Choice (3:49); 9 The Pride And The Passion (bolero) (5:59); 10 Miguel's Theme (2:41); 11 The Procession (3:53); 12 Fulfillment and End Title (2:47);

THE AGONY AND THE ECSTASY: 13 Prelude/The Mountains of Carrara (2:57); 14 The Warrior Pope (2:43); 15 The Medici (2:35); 16 The Sketch Of The Apostles (3:13); 17 Genesis (3:36); 18 The Sistine Chapel (3:04); 19 The Contessina (2:50); 20 The Agony (4:01); 21 Michelangelo's Recovery (2:13); 22 Festivity In St. Peter's Square (2:07); 23 The War (2:06); 24 Michelangelo's Magnificent Achievement and Finale (2:41).

Review: While best remembered as one of Frank Sinatra's colossal film flops, The Pride and the Passion merits attention primarily because of Sinatra's pairing with his celebrated co-stars, Cary Grant and Sophia Loren. Despite the fairly thin story line, composer George Antheil's score survives as a thoughtful work of art, and magnificent staging aside, the film's single appealing quality.

Antheil effectively captures the spirit of the Spanish setting, beginning with a bold, rhythmic "Main Title" that is rooted in the elements of Latin American music, particularly the bolero. What follows is an array of romantic and dramatic themes, based on authentic Hispanic motifs, and Iberian folk music. The CD issue utilizes the original 1957 Capitol Records masters, and other than a bit of analog tape hiss, the monophonic sound is enjoyable.

The Agony and the Ecstasy tells the story of the intense artistic and personal conflict between artist Michaelangelo and Pope Julius II, after the Papal command for the artist to paint the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel. Utilizing both modern and ancient instrumental voicings, composer Alex North stunningly paints a portrait that is at once majestic, religious, and reflective of the tension of the relationship between the artist, his work, and the Pope.

With the original masters culled from the film's soundstage recordings, the stereo recording displays its age, and could use a dose of modern sonic restoration. Nonetheless, this is a splendid score, and a most enjoyable recording.

Air America

1990, MCA Records; from the movie Air America, Carolco Pictures, 1990.

Selections: 1 Love Me Two Times (J. Densmore/R. Kreiger/R. Manzarek/J. Morrison)(3:22) Aerosmith; 2 Right Place Wrong Time (M. Rebennack)(3:37) B.B. King, Bonnie Raiit; 3 Long Cool Woman In A Black Dress (R. Crook/ A. Clarke/R. Greenaway)(4:15) Charlie Sexton; 4 Do It Again (D. Fagen/W. Becker)(5:01) Steely Dan; 5 Free Ride (D. Hartman)(3:23) Edgar Winter, Rick Derringer; 6 California Dreamin' (J. Phillips/M. Gilliam)(2:38) The Mamas & The Papas; 7 Baby, I Need Your Lovin' (E. Holland/L. Dozier/B. Holland)(2:44) The Four Tops; 8 Get Ready (W. Robinson)(2:38) The Temptations; 9 Rescue Me (C.W. Smith/R. Miner)(2:53) Fontella Bass; 10 Pushin' Too Hard (S. Saxon)(2:35) The Seeds.

Review: A bright, intelligent pop collection, this compilation represents the soundtrack for the film based on Christopher Robbins' 1979 book, about two pilots flying the CIA's "dope airline," the agency's privately owned Air America, which was used to deal in drugs in order to finance the war effort in Southeast Asia. The songs, representative of the era, contain several interesting selections, and unlike some compilations that become quite redundant when they are tagged as "soundtrack" albums, this one makes sense and is quite enjoyable.

Airport

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Airport, Universal Pictures, 1970.

Selections: 1 Airport (Main Title)(3:11); 2 Airport Love Theme (3:30); 3 Inez' Theme (1:29); 4 (Guerreo's Goodbye (2:37); 5 Ada Quonsett Stowaway (1:26); 6 Mel And Tanya (2:27); 7 Airport Love Theme #2 (2:40); 8 Joe Patroni Plane Or Plows? (2:22); 9 Triangle! (3:50); 10 Inez—Lost Forever (1:45); 11 Emergency Landing! (1:38); 12 Airport (End Title).

Review: Alfred Newman received a posthumous Oscar nomination for this score, in which he deftly created a set of contemporary cues to evoke the passion and drama on board a jet taken over by a terrorist who wants the plane to land at an airport during a snow blizzard. To say that they don't write scores like this anymore is an understatement. Melodic to a fault, and thoroughly attractive, the various cues stand out on their own, making this CD as enjoyable a listening experience as it is a memento of the film itself. The popular "Love Theme" ranks high among the best selections here, along with tracks like "Inez' Theme," "Ada Quonsett Stowaway," "Triangle!," or the action-packed "Emergency Landing!."

The Alamo

1995, Sony Legacy; from the movie The Alamo, Batjac/M-G-M, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Dimitri Tiomkin; Orchestra conducted by Dimitri Tiomkin; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Chris Herles.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:06); 2 (a) Main Title (2:09), (b) Legend Of The Alamo (R. Mellin/B. Russell/D. Johnston)(:38), (c) Sam Houston (:28); 3 Davy Crockett And The Tenesseans (:57); 4 Cantina Music (2:10); 5 Davy Crockett's Speech (2:10) John Wayne; 6 Love Scene (6:32); 7 Crockette And The Tennesseans Enter The Alamo (2:34); 8 The Mexicans Arrive (2:37); 9 Intermission (1:01); 10 Entr'acte (3:44); 11 Tennessee Babe (D. Tiomkin/ P.F. Webster)(2:30); 12 Here's To The Ladies (D. Tiomkin/P.F. Webster) (1:10); 13 Raid For Cattle (4:36); 14 Santa Anna (1:09); 15 Crossing The Line (2:49); 16 The Green Leaves Of Summer (D. Tiomkin/P.F. Webster)(3:19); 17 Charge Of Santa Anna/Death Of Davy Crockett/The Final Assault (7:00); 18 Finale (1:50); 19 Exit Music (1:09); 20 Davy Crockett And Flaca (3:46) John Wayne; 21 Alternate Ending: The Eyes Of Texas Are Upon You (1:10); 22 Ballad Of The Alamo (D. Tiomkin/ P.F. Webster)(3:38) Marty Robbins; 23 The Green Leaves Of Summer (D. Tiomkin/P.F. Webster)(2:54) The Brothers Four.

Review: Christopher Palmer, in his book The Composer in Hollywood, cites The Alamo as "the best of the great Tiomkin westerns." Few would dispute this, despite the fact that some might argue in favor of some of the composer's other classic film scores, including High Noon, Gunfight at O.K. Corral, The Guns of Navarone and Rio Bravo.

Opinions aside, one thing is certain: The Alamo is an absolute treasure! Bursting with color and drama, Tiomkin's score contributes mightily to the successful realization of the story, as envisioned by producer, director and star John Wayne. All of the excitement that sparked the magic of the film and its music are vividly preserved in this newly remastered edition, which restores eight musical cues that were left off the original Columbia soundtrack LP.

Albino Alligator 🦴🦴🦴

1997, 4.A.D. Records; from the movie Albino Alligator, Miramax Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Brook; Featured Musicians: Michael Brook (guitar, keyboards), Anton Schwartz (saxophone), Bob Adams (string bass, organ), Jason Lewis (drums), James Pinker (percussion), Hafez Modirzaden (ney, saxophone); Album Producer: Michael Brook; Engineer: Michael Brook, Tuti, James Pinker.

Selections: 1 Arrival (5:02); 2 Doggie Dog (1:52); 3 Slow Town (2:35); 4 Preparation (3:18); 5 Miscalculation (1:45); 6 Aftermath (4:40); 7 Tunnel (5:01); 8 Albo Gator (4:18); 9 The Promise (4:37); 10 The City (5:46); 11 The Kicker (1:29); 12 Exit (4:16); 13 Ill Wind (You're Blowing Me No Good (H. Arlen/T. Koehler)(3:34) Jimmy Scott, Michael Stipe.

Review: Newcomer Michael Brook fashioned a satisfying moody score for this story, set in New Orleans, about a trio of misfits involved in a robbery, who seek refuge in an old bar below street level with no windows and no backdoor exit, where they are soon trapped by police and federal agents (the title of the film apparently refers to a pool-playing ruse in which a player misses a shot on purpose in order to better defeat his opponent later). The jazz, in turns jazzy and disquieting, is particularly effective at enhancing the claustrophobic atmosphere that permeates much of the film, an impression further reinforced in the gloomy rendition of the Harold Arlen-Ted Koehler song, "Ill Wind."

Alexander the Great/ Barabbas 🦴🦴🦴

1996, DRG Records; from the movies Alexander the Great, United Artists, 1956, and Barabbas, Columbia Pictures, 1962.

Album Notes: Music: Mario Nascimbene; Orchestrations: Mario Nascimbene; Orchestra conducted by Mario Nascimbene; Album Producers: Mario Nascimbene, Claudio Fuiano; Engineer: Gianni Mazzarini.

Selections: ALEXANDER THE GREAT: 1 Main Titles (1:53); 2 Philip's Return (1:27); 3 Olympia's Party/Burning Of Alexandropolis (1:20); 4 Eurydice And Alexander (3:37); 5 The Battle Of Cheronea (2:59); 6 Barsina And Alexander (:51); 7 Battle Of Granicus (2:34); 8 Hemnon's Death and Storming Of Mileto (1:24); 9 Battle Of Gaugamela (5:58); 10 Chase and Death Of Darius (1:25); 11 Alexander's Death (:55);

BARABBAS: 12 Main Titles (2:03); 13 Oriental Dance (2:36); 14 Eclipse (3:18); 15 The Empty Tomb (2:45); 16 The Mines (4:10); 17 Intermezzo (1:52); 18 Arrival In Rome (1:46); 19 Rome Afire (3:28); 20 The Death Of Barabbas (2:39).

Review: Following the success of his score for The Barefoot Contessa (q.v.), Mario Nascimbene wrote the music for Alexander the Great, a big screen epic starring Richard Burton as the famed conqueror and military genius. In it, he essentially developed two sets of cues, one played by a large brass ensemble to evoke Alexander's armies on the move, the other using acoustic Oriental instruments for the more intimate scenes. Both play off each other in this recording to create a vivid musical tapestry befitting the subject matter.

Equally original and impressive is the composer's score for Barabbas, a retelling of the Crucifixion, starring Anthony Quinn as the thief and murderer whose life was traded for Jesus Christ. Using a sound-mixing console to create a wide range of unusual sonorities, Nascimbene wrote a score which is evocative and strangely attractive.

The only drawback here is the overall sound quality of the recording, very dry in both scores, with some notable distortion and poor editing in Alexander, and a generally muffled tone in Barabbas, made all the more striking in these digital transfers.

Alfie 🦴🦴🦴🦴🦴

1997, MCA Records; from the movie Alfie, Paramount Pictures, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: Sonny Rollins; Orchestrations: Oliver Nelson; conducted by Olivier Nelson; Featured Musicians: Sonny Rollins, Oliver Nelson, Bob Ashton (tenor sax), Jimmy Cleveland, J.J. Johnson (trombone), Phil Woods (alto sax), Danny Bank (baritone sax), Kenny Burrell (guitar), Roger Kellaway (piano), Walter Booker (bass), Frankie Dunlop (drums); Album Producer: Bob Thiele; Engineer: Rudy Van Gelder.

Selections: 1 Alfie's Theme (9:41); 2 He's Younger Than You Are (5:09); 3 Street Runner With Child (3:59); 4 Transition Theme For Minor Blues or Little Malcolm Loves His Dad (5:49); 5 On Impulse (4:28); 6 Alfie's Theme Differently (3:44).

Review: Everybody, it seems, remembers the song "What's it all about, Alfie?," warbled by Dionne Warwick, so this soundtrack album, which does not even include it, may come as a refreshing surprise. Actually, the song itself, by Burt Bacharach and Hal David, never made it into the final version of the film, but the jazzy score, written and performed by Sonny Rollins, is an essential element that contributes enormously to the success of this modern-day story of a charming, if somewhat glib and at times cynical Cockney romeo, whose sole pursuit in life is to bed down any woman crossing his path. The album, long a favorite among jazz collectors, finds the tenor saxophonist at the top of his creativity, surrounded by many familiar jazz aces, including J.J. Johnson, Phil Woods, Kenny Burrell, Roger Kellaway, and arranger Oliver Nelson. The long selections enable everyone to "stretch" and make some excellent music in the process.

Alien

Alien

1988, Silva Screen; from the movie Alien, 20th Century-Fox, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:30); 2 Face Hugger (2:32); 3 Breakaway (3:00); 4 Acid Test (4:35); 5 The Landing (4:29); 6 The Droid (4:40); 7 The Recovery (2:44); 8 The Alien Planet (2:28); 9 The Shaft (3:57); 10 End Title (3:02).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith not only set the tone for the series with his dark melodies, but he once again developed a style that would be often mimicked throughout the genre. Brooding, sometimes romantically melodic, the score for the first film is peppered with various shrill and innovative percussion effects that set the heart racing. The monster, vaguely seen through most of the film, is represented both on and offscreen through Goldsmith's music. What is most surprising about the soundtrack album is that it reflects the composer's original intent for the film, the final score having been alerted with "tracked" cues by director Ridley Scott who used Howard Hanson's Symphony #2 "Romantic" as the finale and end title, and cues from Goldsmith's own score to Freud.

> "We like to think of soundtracks as the reliving of the celluloid dream. People walk out of the movie having been moved, and having been moved, they want to re-live and extend that emotional experience."
> Tobias Pieniek
> Milan COO (Billboard, 4-27-96)

Selections: 1 Agnus Dei (4:30) Nick Nackley; 2 Bait And Chase (4:42); 3 The Beast Within (3:09); 4 Lento (5:49); 5 Candles In The Wind (3:21); 6 Wreckage And Rape (2:44); 7 The First Attack (4:20); 8 Lullaby Elegy (3:41); 9 Death Dance (2:18); 10 Visit To The Wreckage (2:05); 11 Explosion And Aftermath (2:21); 12 The Dragon (3:08); 13 The Entrapment (3:42); 14 Adagio (4:15).

Review: For the third film in the series, Elliot Goldenthal created an intricately orchestrated symphony that is overwhelmingly sad, sometimes frightening but not without beauty, and curiously closer in tone to another Goldsmith score, The Omen, particularly in its use of a boy soprano soloist on "Agnus Dei." This motif not only reflects the religious zeal of the prison inmates, but also prefaces Ripley's own pseudo-crucifixion at the end of the film. Goldenthal is most effective when he represents the spider-like Face Hugger with rattling sounds, in the track "Bait and Chase," in which he breaks from his usual style in an innovative technique that shocks the listener. This is also the case in the attempted rape of Ripley ("Wreckage and Rape"), in which a violent flurry of percussion and screaming vocal effect is used to reflect the vileness of the attack. A score far superior to the film.

David Hirsch

Aliens

1986, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Aliens, 20th Century-Fox, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Music Editors: Robin Clark, Michael Clifford; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by James Horner; CD Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (5:10); 2 Going After Newt (3:08); 3 Sub-Level 3 (6:11); 4 Ripley's Rescue (3:13); 5 Atmosphere Station (3:05); 6 Futile Escape (8:13); 7 Dark Discovery (2:00); 8 Bishop's Countdown (2:47); 9 Resolution and Hyperspace (6:10).

Review: Although James Horner created a military motif and a bolder sound to represent director James Cameron's tale of U.S. Space Marines versus an entire horde of creatures, the basis of his score, particularly the plodding "creeping" figure, is derived from Goldsmith's work. Where Horner deviates the most is on bold action cues such as "Going After Newt" or "Resolution" (a cue tracked into the finale of Die Hard and countless film trailers). Standard percussion effects are used to establish tension while electronics represent the aliens. Aram Khachaturian's adagio from his "Gayne Ballet Suite" is incorporated into the main and closing titles, the first of several adaptations of this piece. In all, an average effort for Horner not without its moments.

Alive

1993, Hollywood Records; from the movie Alive, Touchstone Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: James Newton Howard, Brad Dechter, Mark McKenzie, Chris Boardman; Orchestra conducted by Marty Paich; Album Producer: James Newton Howard; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 The First Night (4:10); 2 Home (:58); 3 Nando Awakes (2:18); 4 Finding The Tail (3:27); 5 Alberto (1:48); 6 Eating (5:00); 7 Are You Ready? (1:13); 8 Frozen Climbers (1:51); 9 It's God (2:40); 10 The Final Climb (3:28); 11 End Title (3:04).

Review: A gruesome tale of survival in the subfreezing Andes following a plane crash (resulting in cannibalism, no less!), Alive, based on a true story, received an atmospheric score from James Newton Howard, who wrote appropriately sullen (one might be tempted to say frigid) cues reflective of the intense action and its desolate locale. The evocation of other situations ("Home"), enhanced by the current situation of the survivors, is hinted at in an attractive fashion, but the piece de resistance, so to speak, is the five-minute "Eating," in which the composer turns the ultimate act of survival into... an almost palatable morsel. The film's topic might not have been to everyone's taste, but this score should.

All Dogs Go to Heaven

Selections: 1 Main Title/Heavenly Ceremony (2:52); 2 It's Too Heavenly Here (3:26) Jesse Corti; 3 Count Me Out (2:40) Sheena Easton; 4 My Afghan Hairless (2:00) Jim Cummings; 5 It Feels So Good To Be Bad (3:31) George Hearn, Ernest Borgnine; 6 On Easy Street (3:18) Adam Wiley, Jesse Corti, Dom De Luise; 7 I Will Always Be With You (2:22) Sheena Easton, Jesse Corti; 8 Gabriel's Horn/New Arrivals (2:22); 9 Carface Steals The Horn/Charlie Volunteers (5:26); 10 Police Chase (3:34); 11 Red's Transformation (1:39); 12 We Meet David (4:07); 13 Battle For Gabriel's Horn (5:47); 14 Family Reunion/It's Too Heavenly Here (reprise) (1:28); 15 I Will Always Be With You (End Title)(3:17) Danny Frazier, Helen Darling.

Review: The incredible success of the Disney animated features was bound to compel other animators to try and tap the same market of youngsters and their captive parents, while providing songwriters with another opportunity to create catchy songs to beef up the inevitable soundtrack albums. Created by Don Bluth, the two All Dogs Go to Heaven movies rank among the best efforts in the genre, though the two CDs here differ wildly in impact and appeal. The first, with a lively score by Ralph Burns, and diversified songs by Charles Strouse (of Bye Bye Birdie and Annie fame) and Al Kasha and Joel Hirschhorn, has a definite Caribbean flair (check out the infectious calypso instrumental, "Mardi Gras," or the colorful "What's Mine Is Yours"), and is a melodic, bouncy affair, superbly pulled off by some of the performers who lent their talents—Burt Reynolds, Dom DeLuise, Melba Moore, Irene Cara, and Freddie Jackson, among them.

The sequel, All Dogs Go to Heaven 2, has equally catchy songs by Barry Mann and Cynthia Weil, and a portentous score by Mark Watters that dwarfs the simplicity of Burns' contribution. Sheena Easton heads the cast of singers who perform the songs here, including Jesse Corti and Jim Cummings, and Broadway veteran George Hearn teams up with Ernest Borgnine for a devastating "It Feels So Good To Be Bad," the CD's highlight. But somehow the element of fun that made the first album so enjoyable seems to be sorely missing here.

All the Brothers Were Valiant

1991, Prometheus Records/Belgium; from the movie All the Brothers Were Valiant, M-G-M, 1953.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The M-G-M Studio Orchestra, conducted by Miklos Rozsa; Album Producer: Mordecai Jacobs; Engineer: R. Earl Day.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:39); 2 The House Of Shore (2:32); 3 Proposal (2:31); 4 The Boat (2:33); 5 Full Sail (1:19); 6 High Sea (1:05); 7 Love And Pride (1:32); 8 Fighting/Pursuit/Capsized (6:58); 9 The Girl (1:15); 10 The Island (1:41); 11 Abduction (1:32); 12 Fright (1:04); 13 Murder/The Pearls (5:45); 14 Disillusion (:58); 15 Ashamed (2:48); 16 Showdown/Mutiny/ Fight (10:34); 17 Finale (2:45).

Review: A seafaring adventure film starring Robert Taylor, Stewart Granger and Ann Blyth, All the Brothers Were Valiant received a commanding, rousing Miklos Rozsa score, which ended up in shambles in the final version of the film. This recording restores it the way the composer created it, and it is a fitting companion to the many titles currently on CD under his name. For this story of two brothers with contrasting characters aboard a New England whaler, their love for the same woman, and their search for an elusive treasure, Rozsa wrote a series of cues that captures the drama and action in this colorful production. Sonically, the recording could have used a little reverb, but the stereo imaging and the close miking belie the age of the original session tapes.

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Almost an Angel, Paramount Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestra conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Some Wings (M. Jarre/R. Underwood)(3:08) Vanessa Williams; 2 Almost An Angel (4:06); 3 Fly (5:41); 4 Rose And Terry (3:29); 5 The Mafia Bluff (3:40); 6 Steve's Run (3:12); 7 Let There Be Light (10:04).

Review: Spearheaded by the song "Some Wings," attractively performed by Vanessa Williams, the score for this romantic fantasy unfolds in atypical fashion, with exquisite melodies lining this story of a con man and electronics expert who has a revelation following an accident and dedicates the rest of his life doing some good around himself. The mixture of bold orchestral chords, synth counterpoints, heavenly choir and organ obbligato (for the out-of-body experience by the con man who "dreams" he meets with God) provides a diversified texture that enhances the appeal of this concoction, presented without a break, as a continuous suite. The 10-minute-plus "Let There Be Light" brings all these elements into sharp focus for a last musical exploration that reveals the fluidity in Jarre's style and his knack for striking melodic concepts.

Altered States

1981, RCA Victor; from the movie Altered States, Warner Bros., 1981.

Album Notes: Music: John Corigliano; Orchestra conducted by Christopher Keene; Album Producer: John Corigliano; Engineer: Larry Franke.

Selections: 1 Main Title and First Hallucination (Ritual Sacrifice and Religious Memories)(4:40); 2 Love Theme (3:37); 3 Second Hallucination (Hinchi Mushroom Rite and Love Theme Trio)(5:14); 4 First Transformation (Primordial Regression)(3:40); 5 Primeval Landscape (In The Isolation Chamber)(2:15); 6 Second Transformation (The Ape Man Sequence)(Escape From The Laboratory, Stalking The Dogs and The Fight, The Zoo and Final Hunt) (8:02); 7 Religious Memories and Father's Death (2:08); 8 The Laboratory Experiment: Jessup's Transformation, Collapse Of The Laboratory, The Whirlpool and Journey To Another Dimension, Return To Reality (6:12); 9 The Final Transformation (4:17).

Review: Looking back from the jaundiced perspective of the '90s it's hard to believe that a single year, 1981, could produce three scores as memorable as John Williams' Raiders of the Lost Ark, Alex North's Dragonslayer, and Alterered States, concert hall composer John Corigliano's mind-blowing score for director Ken Russell's trippy sci-fi tale of one man's exploration of racial memory and its terrible consequences. Corigliano wrote a primarily acoustic work that is powerful, frightening, disorienting and as mind-expanding as the peyote that William Hurt's obsessed anthropologist ingests in order to facilitate his archetypal, hallucinogenic sense memories in the film. The composer produced wild, colorful passages to underscore the film's spectacular hallucination sequences and coiling, rumbling low string and brass clusters to illustrate Dick Smith's remarkable makeup transformations as Hurt's body is physically altered by his experiences. There are also stunning evocations of primitivism as Hurt experiences memories of ancient rituals and is himself transformed into a loping man-beast late in the film. But Corigliano is just as adept at characterizing the film's dramatic and psychological elements: there's a deeply disturbing distortion of a religious chorale associated with Hurt's father in the film, as well as a rich and moving love theme that resolves this score's incredibly agitated final passage. It's a wild, virtuoso effort that won't be to everyone's taste, but a must for anyone interested in late 20th-century composition.

Always

1990, MCA Records; from the movie Always, Universal Pictures, 1990.

Selections: 1 Smoke Gets In Your Eyes (J. Kern/O. Hammerstein II)(2:51) J.D. Souther; 2 Boomerang Love (5:19) Jimmy Buffett; 3 Cowboy Man (2:51) Lyle Lovett; 4 Give Me Your Heart (3:54) Denette Hoover, Sherwood Ball; 5 A Fool In Love (4:09) Michael Smotherman; 6 Smoke Gets In Your Eyes (J. Kern/O. Hammerstein II)(2:38) The Platters; 7 Among The Clouds (8:34); 8 Follow Me (1:14); 9 Pete In Heaven (6:41); 10 Saying Goodbye (3:13); 11 Pete And Dorinda (3:18); 12 The Return (2:29); 13 The Rescue Operation (5:14); 14 Seeing Dorinda (3:33); 15 Intimate Conversation (1:26); 16 Promise To Hap (2:29); 17 The Old Timer's Shack (4:52); 18 Dorinda Solo Flight (3:16).

Review: Although the main characters in the film fight forest fires from the air, this is really an intimate story of three people. Pete, a pilot who has been killed, has unfinished business keeping him earthbound and he must guide his love, Dorinda, and old friend Hap through the pain. Despite the fact that Steven Spielberg's camera work captures the scope of the wide American vistas, this John Williams' score is remarkably restrained, delicate, as if it all existed on glass. Even the action cue "The Rescue Operation" is overwhelmed with a gentleness that contrasts with the action. An appropriately dreamy New Age style cue "Pete in Heaven," is used in a scene set in a fire ravaged forest where Pete talks to an angel. The album features 47 minutes of instrumental music with five country/western tunes heard in the bar hangout, and two versions of the film's apropos signature song, "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."

Don Juan, Act II (6:57) John Tomlinson, Richard Stilwell, Willard White; 5 Ruhe Sanft, from Zaide, K.344 (6:23) Felicy Lott; Requiem, K.626: 6 Introitus (:58); 7 Dies Irae (1:51); 8 Rex tremendae majestatis (2:03); 9 Confutatis (2:17); 10 Lacrymosa (3:44) The Academy of St. Martin-in-the-Fields Chorus, Laszlo Heltay; 12 Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 20 in d, K.466 (2nd movement)(9:51) Imogen Cooper.

Review: From beginning to end, this album is a real treat! One of the most outstanding elements in this outrageous film is the use of music. As a result, each track brings to mind a specific dramatic moment in the film in which it is heard. Of course, there is more music on this album than in the film because only fragments were utilized at key moments by the director. However, the longer excerpts give the listener the joy of hearing more of this wonderful music. The performances are all excellent and fully up to the standards expected by the classical crowd. While the selections include many familiar works, there are also enough unfamiliar or unusual excerpts to interest and challenge even the most reticent connoisseur. For those who are knowledgeable about Mozart and classical music, and for those who aren't but are interested, this album is a must.

1991, CAM Records/Italy; from the movie Amarcord, Warner Bros., 1973.

Selections: 1 Amarcord (2:02); 2 La "Fogaraccia" (2:11); 3 Le "manine" di primavera (3:07); 4 Lo "Struscio" (3:52); 5 L'emiro e le sue odalische (2:26); 6 Gary Cooper (1:18); 7 La gradisca e il principe (2:25); 8 Ti ricordi di "Siboney" (2:04); 9 Danzando nella nebia (1:46); 10 Tutti a vedere il Rex (2:24); 11 Quanto mi piace la gradisca (3:05); 12 La gradisca si sposa e se ne va (2:14).

Review: Nino Rota's vibrant musical cues are forever linked to the best films made by Federico Fellini, but this "recollection" from the director's youth evidently inspired the composer to write a score that teems with bouncy, zestful selections. Whether illustrating some of the wild denizens in Fellini's memories (a saucy hairdresser, a crazy man called Giudizio, the fascists who take over the town), or the myriad incidents that provided fodder in their everyday lives and contributed to the film's disjointed narrative, Rota's score is beautifully illustrative and melodically striking. Released on the Italian CAM label (distributed in this country), it is well worth hunting down even if you have never seen the film.

Amazing Grace and Chuck

1987, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Amazing Grace and Chuck, Tri-Star Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Christopher Palmer; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Featured Musicians: Klaus Koenig (oboe), Cynthia Millar (Ondes Martenot); Album Producer: Elmer Bernstein.

Selections: 1 Home Town (5:15); 2 Nukes (5:20); 3 Amazing (2:33); 4 Fun And Games (2:33); 5 The Movement (3:02); 6 Chuck And Dad (1:15); 7 Good And Bad Guys (2:30); 8 Decisions (2:05); 9 Remembering Amazing (2:20); 10 Dad And Sis (2:55); 11 Steamroom (2:50); 12 Final Victory (4:30); 13 End Credits (2:33).

Review: The anti-nuclear message in the film, about a Little League pitcher, Chuck, whose refusal to play after he is shown a missile under the field where he is practicing and eventually provokes the near cancellation of the baseball season when the pro athletes join in his protest, may be hokey, but it prompted Elmer Bernstein to write a delightful score, oozing with emotion and lyricism. Contrasting the innocence and simple-life pleasures of Chuck, expressed by the oboe, the ominous tone of the low strings and the Ondes Martenot and the composer's signature syncopations signal the threat posed by the "other side," those who endanger civilization with their nuclear arsenal. The conflict between the two, and the more personal relationship that develops between the kid and Amazing Grace Smith, star of the Boston Celtics and Chuck's first supporter, eventually lead to the rousing "Final Victory," a track that resolves everything, at least where the film is concerned. A brilliant score you shouldn't miss.

American Buffalo/ Threesome

1996, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movies American Buffalo, Samuel Goldwyn, 1996; and Threesome, TriStar Pictures, 1994.

Selections: AMERICAN BUFFALO: 1 Buffalo Head (2:43); 2 Classical Money (1:33); 3 Bobby (:54); 4 What Kind Of This (2:10); 5

Jaw (1:11); 6 Bobby Bobby Bobby Bobby (1:22); 7 King High Flush (1:01); 8 Nothing Out There (T. Newman/R. Cox)(1:25); 9 Chump Change (1:17); 10 The Guy (1:20); 11 Tails You Lose (2:43);

THREESOME: 12 Different Species (:33); 13 Stranded (B. Bernstein)(1:08); 14 Threesome (2:24); 15 Post-Modern Eve (:46); 16 Doomed Relationships (1:29); 17 Sacred Vows (1:36); 18 Concupiscence (:49); 19 Leprechaun (2:03); 20 Drive Away (1:09).

Review: Two scores by the vastly talented Thomas Newman, the first for a claustrophobic character study based on David Mamet's play about an attempted robbery which never happens; the second for a smart coming-of-age comedy with all the trappings the genre itself invokes. The contrasting moods in both films are fully explored, with American Buffalo conjuring up several tracks that are dominated by heavy percussive effects, and booming bass guitar lines, reflective of the confined, one-set environment in which the mostly psychological action takes place. On a purely audio basis, it has its moments, but it is not the kind of music one might want to listen to on a bad day. Conversely, Threesome features some light and airy cues, pleasant to the ear and quite attractive, with repetitive lines building up in layers to create a melodic texture.

American Graffiti

Review: The first, and by far the best, rock'n'roll compilation you're likely to find anywhere, this soundtrack album to this film by George Lucas sums up everything that was and still is so exciting about the early years of pop-rock music. Even if Elvis is sorely missing from this double CD of oldies/goodies, there is enough here to satisfy the most demanding customer, including all the glorious hits you might ever want to hear from these exciting years when rock songs didn't last more than two minutes, performed by the stars who made them famous, Bill Haley & The Comets, Buddy Holly, The Beach Boys, Chuck Berry, The Platters, Fats Domino, The Big Bopper, and on and on. An eye-popping, ear-blasting collection that'll keep you bopping for days on end.

The American President

1995, MCA Records; from the movie The American President, Castle Rock Entertainment, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian; Music Editor: Scott Stambler; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producer: Marc Shaiman; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (2:23); 2 Call Me Andy (1:36); 3 I Like Her (1:48); 4 It's Meatloaf Night (:40); 5 The First Kiss (2:21); 6 The Slow Down Plan (1:13); 7 The Morning After/Meet The Press (2:11); 8 Politics As Usual (:57); 9 Never Have An Airline Strike At Christmas (:35); 10 "I Have Dreamed" (The State Dinner)(R. Rodgers/O. Hammerstein II)(2:57); 11 Camp David (1:30); 12 Gathering Votes (2:36); 13 Make The Deal (3:42); 14 Decisions (1:45); 15 President Shepherd (7:28); 16 End Titles (5:05).

Review: It's a tribute to composer Marc Shaiman that his music for The American President is every bit as romantic, sweeping, and yes, even perhaps as sappy as you would imagine this score to be, yet it's nevertheless memorable and works well—both as an album and as an underscore to Rob Reiner's formulaic film. Shaiman, who's had the fortune (or misfortune, in the case of the director's more recent movies) to score all of Reiner's films since Misery, utilizes his usual orchestral approach for The American President, which is ideal since the film requires a specific, straightforward musical statement, namely an uplifting, "feel-good" score to back-up the on-screen romance of Michael Douglas and Annette Bening. And, just as he did on City Slickers, Shaiman has risen to the occasion by creating a pleasant, distinguished score that once again highlights his penchant for composing distinct, well-developed themes, the likes of which should bring listeners, particularly those who enjoy sugary scores with heavy dramatic passages, back for more on repeat listenings.

An American Tail

1986, MCA Records; from the animated feature An American Tail, Universal Pictures, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Music Editor: Michael Clifford; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (5:07); 2 The Cossack Cats (2:15); 3 There Are No Cats In America (J. Horner/B. Mann/C. Weil) (3:00) Nehemiah Persoff, John Guarnieri, Warren Hays; 4 The Storm (3:59); 5 Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor (2:44); 6 Never Say Never (J. Horner/B. Mann/C. Weil)(2:25) Christopher Plummer, Phillip Glasser; 7 The Market Place (3:02); 8 Somewhere Out There (J. Horner/B. Mann/C. Weil)(2:40) Phillip Glasser, Betsy Cathcart; 9 Somewhere Out There (J. Horner/B. Mann/C. Weil)(3:59) Linda Ronstadt, James Ingram; 10 Releasing The Secret Weapon (3:38); 11 A Duo (J. Horner/B. Mann/C. Weil)(2:38) Dom DeLuise, Phillip Glasser; 12 The Great Fire (2:54); 13 Reunited (4:44); 15 Flying Away and End Credits (5:59).

An American Tail: Fievel Goes West

1991, MCA Records; from the animated feature An American Tail: Fievel Goes West, Universal Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: John Neufeld, Greig McRitchie; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Song Producer: David Foster; Engineer: Dave Reitzas; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Dreams To Dream (Finale Version)(J. Horner/W. Jennings) (4:43) Linda Ronstadt; 2 American Tail Overture (Main Title) (7:09); 3 Cat Rumble (7:29); 4 Headin' Out West (2:37); 5 Way Out West (J. Horner/W. Jennings) (1:48); 6 Green River/Trek Through The Desert (5:44); 7 Dreams To Dream (Tanya's Version) (J. Horner/W. Jennings) (2:34) Cathy Cavadini; 8 Building A New Town (2:44); 9 Sacred Mountain (2:22); 10 Reminiscing (2:13); 11 The Girl You Left Behind (J. Horner/W. Jennings) (1:42) Cathy Cavadini; 12 In Training (1:50); 13 The Shoot-Out (5:29); 14 A New Land/The Future (8:17).

Review: James Horner struck a particularly rich vein with these two scores for Steven Spielberg's animated features about a cute little Russian mouse, Fievel, seeking personal safety and a chance to live in peace away from the Cossack cats, and finding instead adventure and emotion galore first in New York City and, in an even more imaginative sequel, in the American wild West. The instrumental cues, both action and romantic, emphasize Horner's particular gift for melodic material, with the songs adding an extra shade to his creativity. Highlights in the first set include the rollicking "There Are No Cats in America," performed by Nehemiah Persoff, John Guarnieri and Warren Hays, which gives Horner an opportunity to deal successfully with various ethnic styles; "A Duo," shared by Dom DeLuise and Phillip Glasser (the voice of Fievel); and the exhilarating "Flying Away and End Credits," which neatly sums up the pains and joys of the film's charming hero and his friends.

New Town," "The Shoot-Out") that deftly recall some of the best scores in the genre while retaining a winning edge of originality.

In both, Linda Ronstadt contributes a vocal which neither adds to nor detracts from the general happy moods in the other tracks.

Anaconda

1997, edel America Records; from the movie Anaconda, Columbia Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Music Editor: Joanie Diener; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Engineers: Elton Ahi, Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Anaconda (Main Title)(4:46); 2 Watching And Waiting (4:44); 3 Night Attack (2:47); 4 This Must Be Heaven (1:39); 5 Down River (2:44); 6 Seduction (3:28); 7 Travelogue (2:45); 8 Baiting The Line (2:47); 9 My Beautiful Anna... (conda)(2:54); 10 The Totem's Sacred Ground (2:27); 11 Sarone's Last Stand (3:00).

Review: Randy Edelman was supposed to write a score at least partially integrating Brazilian jungle music for this sleeper hit, but what ended up in the finished product sounded an awful lot like the typical Edelman soundtrack—that distinct combination of synthesizers and orchestra with a strong percussive sound. In Louis Llosa's film, Edelman's music is all over the action, often undermining the suspense and tension of the situations at hand. As a soundtrack album, the score is much easier to digest, with the composer's penchant for composing easily accessible melodic ideas on full display. Given Edelman's musical capabilities, Anaconda, then, is not the great, interesting ethnic score it might have been, but it's still a step up from the traditionally cliched horror soundtrack.

Anastasia

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Anastasia, 20th Century-Fox, 1956.

Album Notes: Music: Alfred Newman; The 20th Century-Fox Studio Orchestra, conducted by Alfred Newman; Choral Director: Ken Darby; CD Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: Len Engel.

Selections: 1 Fox Fanfare: Anastasia/Paris/Russian Easter (5:27); 2 Valese (3:51); 3 Self-Destruction (2:43); 4 Who Am I/ The Troika (2:12); 5 The Beginning (1:53); 6 The Tivoli/The Sleeping Princess (3:32); 7 Anastasia Waltz (4:11); 8 The Meeting (3:39); 9 The Wildfeuer Polka (2:04); 10 Recognition (2:54); 11 Riberhaus Marsch/Marche de bataille (2:23); 12 Frustration (2:31); 13 End Title/Anastasia (2:13); 14 Anastasia (1:41) Alfred Newman.

Review: Typical of Alfred Newman, the music for this passionate drama about a destitute woman who may be the sole heir to the Romanoff throne and fortune, spearheaded by the familiar main theme, teems with broadly romantic and expansive themes. The various European settings of the action suggested to the composer a series of colorful images that evoke these locales ("Paris," "Russian Easter," "The Tivoli"); but it is in the underscoring to some of the film's more powerful scenes that Newman let his lyricism take over, delivering cues that match in intensity Anna's search for her own identity and recognition from those around her ("Who Am I," "The Meeting," "Recognition"). Adding a different color to the Oscar-nominated score, some brilliant setpieces ("Valse," "Anastasia Waltz," "Marche de bataille") reveal yet another side to Newman's creativity and composing genius. As a bonus, a previously unreleased track finds the composer playing the main theme on the piano.

1987, Rykodisc; from the movie Anatomy of a Murder, 1959.

Album Notes: Music: Edward Kennedy "Duke" Ellington; The Duke Ellington Orchestra, conducted by Duke Ellington; Featured Soloists: Clark Terry, Cat Anderson, Shorty Baker, Ray Nance (trumpet), Paul Gonsalves, Jimmy Hamilton, Russell Procope, Johnny Hodges, Harry Carney (saxophone); Album Producer: Duke Ellington.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Anatomy of a Murder (3:53); 2 Flirtbird (2:11); 3 Way Early Subtone (3:59); 4 Hero To Zero (2:12); 5 Low Key Lightly (3:38); 6 Happy Anatomy (2:29); 7 Midnight Indigo (2:42); 8 Almost Cried (2:26); 9 Sunswept Sunday (1:53); 10 Grace Valse (2:30); 11 Happy Anatomy (1:27); 12 Haupe (2:38); 13 Upper And Outest (2:22).

Review: During his lifetime, Duke Ellington wrote for almost every possible media, including the stage and the screen. Even though his forays in the latter were somewhat limited, he left two outstanding film scores, Paris Blues, which has yet to be reissued on compact disc, and Anatomy of a Murder, written for a film directed by Otto Preminger. A gripping murder mystery, involving an Army officer, his wife, and the tenacious lawyer who defends them, the film called for a score with contemporary overtones that would give the action a solid musical support, yet would also achieve a life of its own. Ellington delivered just the right thing—setpieces that add a necessary dramatic flair to the action, but that can also provide great listening pleasure. With many long-time members of his band taking solo turns, the soundtrack album is a great, festive Ellington party, sometimes gently low-keyed, sometimes brilliantly effervescent.

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie And the Band Played On, HBO Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Carter Burwell; Orchestrations: Carter Burwell; Music Editor: Adam Smalley; Orchestra conducted by Carter Burwell; Featured Musician: John Moses (clarinet); Album Producer: Carter Burwell; Engineer: Gary Chester.

Selections: 1 Africa (2:17); 2 Burning Bodies (1:34); 3 Dead Doctors (:50); 4 The Party's Over (1:06); 5 Lymph (2:22); 6 Three Sixes (2:01); 7 They're Scared (:51); 8 The French Fail (1:00); 9 His Other Life (1:41); 10 One Of Your Donors (3:02); 11 The French Succeed (3:30); 12 How Long To Sink In (2:00); 13 Tell That To Gallo (1:30); 14 Gallo Press Conference (1:45); 15 Rain (1:28); 16 Krause Collapses (1:41); 17 Blood Meeting (1:12); 18 He's Gone Too Far (2:08); 19 Tongues (4:22); 20 Sexual Transmission (:37); 21 Paris Meeting (:55); 22 And The Band Played On (4:34).

Review: This is a dark and brooding effort by Carter Burwell which deftly captures the pathos of the incipient advance of one of the most terrible diseases of our time. The film recounts the story of how early detection and investigation into AIDS is hindered not only by a clash of egos within the medical community, but a serious lack of general concern (especially since the affliction was initially thought to be restricted only to homosexuals). Burwell's music, perhaps one of his most inspired mainstream efforts, best personifies the advance of the disorder with slow string and woeful brass motifs, connecting with discomforting clarity the image of souls slowly wasting away from the effects. He counterpoints with a a demented waltz motif, played by plucking the string instruments, representing scientists as they dance around each other. Surely anyone who has grieved for the loss of a loved one can connect with the bleak atmosphere Burwell conjures up.

Andre

1994, Milan Records; from the movie Andre, Paramount Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Rowland; Arrangements: Bruce Rowland; The Victorian Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Bruce Rowland; Album Producers: Bruce Rowland, Spencer Proffer; Engineer: Robin Gray.

Selections: 1 Sea Ballet (Opening Montage)(2:47); 2 An Orphan Pup (2:01); 3 Toni Meets Andre (2:40); 4 Let's Call Him Andre (2:17); 5 Andre's First Swim (1:09); 6 The Coat Button/Thanks To You (2:33); 7 Winter In The Barn (2:12); 8 The Storm (6:19); 9 Off To The Aquarium (1:41); 10 T.N.T. (1:19); 11 Halloween (1:13); 12 Let Nature Take Its Course (1:37); 13 Robinson's Rock (2:18); 14 Butterflies Are Free (:54); 15 Back To The Wild (1:08); 16 "16, Dad, 16" (1:24); 17 Frogman Dad (:22); 18 How Can I Make It Up To You? (1:22); 19 An Attempt On Andre's Life (1:25); 20 He's On His Way (2:40); 21 Welcome Home (:53); 22 Thanks To You (3:20).

Review: For this Free Willy-clone, about the friendship between a young girl and a seal, Bruce Rowland plays the sentimental chords with cues that tug at all the right heart strings. But this highly charged score is also chockful of delightful little moments that make it much more important and interesting than it would appear to be in the first place. At its most inspired, string instruments (harp, guitar) and wind instruments combine to create an amalgam of vivid little vignettes that are endearing and quite attractive. At other times, a lovely piano melody is strikingly set off by a lute or a harp to evoke images that may work very well within the context of the screen action but that also have a magic of their own as music. Many of the tracks, however, could have taken a longer exposition, and while several manage to grab one's attention, only the six minute-plus "The Storm" succeeds in creating a strong momentum.

Angel

1993, Intrada Records; from the movie Angel, New World Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Craig Safan; Orchestrations: Craig Safan; Orchestra conducted by Craig Safan; Album Producer: Craig Safan; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Angel (2:45); 2 Hollywood Boulevard (3:31); 3 He Kills (3:11); 4 Drag Fight (3:50); 5 Yo-Yo Man (1:29); 6 Killer's Haircut (1:48); 7 Reflecting Angel (2:07); 8 Back On The Street (4:00); 9 Angel's Triump (6:09); 10 Honor Student (3:54).

Review: This modest little score by Craig Safan is, regretfully, very much like the film in that it really should have been more fun than it turned out to be. Despite some pleasant themes ("Angel," "Yo-Yo Man"), the bulk of the score comes across as a surprisingly uninspired effort when compared to his other work, like the sensational The Last Starfighter, for example. The orchestra is dressed with some tired, standard electronic overlays that inspire very little as musical entertainment. This film score most likely suffers because Safan admittedly was only given a week in which to compose it. That's a ridiculously short period of time. Angel is certainly not a poor album, but Safan deserves to be judged by other works that better reflect his talents.

Angels in the Outfield 🦴🦴🦴🦴

1994, Hollywood Records; from the movie Angels in the Outfield, Walt Disney Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Music Editor: Joanie Diener; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineers: Elton Ahi, Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Opening (2:42); 2 The Wave (2:36); 3 Torn Apart (2:23); 4 Skyburst (2:20); 5 Rock And Roll Angels (1:18); 6 Nighttime (2:05); 7 Al Pops Up (1:31); 8 A Warm Conversation (1:55); 9 Sandlot Shuffle (2:40); 10 Press Conference (2:19); 11 A Place For Mel (1:59); 12 Magical Moments (1:56); 13 Man Of The Hour (3:52); 14 Black Clouds (2:14); 15 Finale (1:55).

Review: The opening of this score recalls the stately grace of Edelman's magnificent score for Gettysburg, recorded the previous year; at least until a pop beat is added. The beat gives the score a catchy, up-tempo feel, associated with the contemporary milieu and the kids around whom the story revolves, while the initial theme returns to capture the mysterious glory of the angelic sportsmen who offer invisible aid to a failing baseball team. Between the two styles of music is an engaging score. It's mostly lighthearted and breezy, but with enough passion to make it genuinely moving in spots. Edelman's theme for the angels becomes just as much a theme for the boy who can see them, whose story becomes the focus of the picture.

Another baseball fantasy with angelic overtones, Angels In The Outfield must have particularly inspired Randy Edelman. His score is wonderfully whimsical ("Al Pops Up"), exhilaratingly melodic ("Magical Moments"), and just plain beautiful. The themes, lightly sketched but attractive, convey the moods in the film, from the despair felt by the players whose team has not had a win in many moons in "Torn Apart" to the sudden arrival of saviours from above in "Rock and Roll Angels," and on to the final inning. It helps, of course, that this is a Disney film, and that the players get some encouragement from two kids who truly believe in their eventual victory, but Edelman knows how to write melodic material that sticks in the ear and demonstrates it effortlessly in this totally engaging score.

Angie 🦴🦴

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Angie, Hollywood Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Angie's Theme (3:32); 2 Shopping (1:21); 3 Family Life (1:20); 4 The Museum (2:32); 5 Two Bells (2:34); 6 Thais (J. Massenet) (4:21); 7 We're Having A Baby (1:07); 8 The Prognosis (3:28); 9 The Journey Begins (2:27); 10 Something Better (3:52); 11 It Ain't Easy (3:02); 12 He's Alive (3:07); 13 Angie's Theme (reprise)(1:22).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's status as a legendary film composer just about guarantees that any film he scores will have a soundtrack album released. Case in point: this slight effort for the Geena Davis "dramedy" Angie, which Goldsmith scored with a low-key, subtly pop-influenced approach that's like a very subdued version of some of his tender dramatic scores of the '60s like Patch of Blue and The Trouble with Angels. Unfortunately audience intolerance for the kind of rhythmic and orchestrational development Goldsmith brought to his '60s scores makes Angie so subtle you'll barely notice you're listening to it. It's pleasant but rarely interesting, with one traveling cue that's similar to chase material from Goldsmith's Basic Instinct and a piece of classical source music that eats up a large chunk of this album's brief running time.

Animal House 🦴🦴

1978, MCA Records; from the movie National Lampoon's Animal House, Universal Pictures, 1978.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producers: Kenny Vance, Mark Davis; Engineers: Joe Feria, Mike Moran, Jim Reeves.

Selections: 1 Faber College Theme (E. Bernstein)(:24); 2 Louie, Louie (R. Berry)(2:55) John Belushi; 3 Twistin' The Night Away (S. Cooke)(2:38) Sam Cooke; 4 Tossin' And Turnin' (R. Adams/M. Rene)(2:15) Bobby Lewis; 5 Shama Lama Ding Dong (M. Davis)(2:55) Lloyd Williams; 6 Hey Paula (R. Hildebrand)(2:37) Paul & Paula; 7 Animal House (S. Bishop)(4:05) Stephen Bishop; 8 Intro (E. Bernstein)(:48); 9 Money (That's What I Want) (2:28) John Belushi; 10 Let's Dance (J. Lee)(2:15) Chris Montez; 11 Dream Girl (S. Bishop)(4:39) Stephen Bishop; 12 (What) A Wonderful World (S. Cooke/H. Alpert/L. Adler)(2:06)

Sam Cooke; 13 Shout (R. Isley/R. Isley/O. Isley)(4:23) Lloyd Williams; 14 Faber College Theme (E. Bernstein)(1:55).

Review: At a time when most Hollywood composers were looking for an instrumental gig anywhere, this film and its soundtrack album gave veteran Elmer Bernstein a reputation as the best man in town to score comedies in the Saturday Night Live vein. Unfortunately the album shortchanges the composer, sadly represented by only a couple of tracks, the "Faber College Theme" used at the top of the set and again as the closing number, and the "Intro" strangely positioned somewhere in the middle. However, that theme captures the zany moods of the film starring John Belushi better than the many vocal selections assembled here, with the possible exception of Belushi singing "Louie, Louie," which also qualifies as a genuine film track.

Another Dawn

1996, Marco Polo; from the movie Another Dawn, Warner Bros., 1937.

Album Notes: Music: Erich-Wolfgang Korngold; Orchestrations: John Morgan; The Moscow Symphony Orchestra, conducted by William T. Stromberg; Engineers: Edvard Shakhnazarian, Vitaly Ivanov.

Selections: 1 Escape Me Never (ballet fantasy)(7:41); 2 Main Title/The Outpost (3:45); 3 On The Ocean Liner (3:36); 4 The Golf Course (1:36); 5 Evening Scene (2:29); 6 Afternoon Tea (1:33); 7 The Cable (2:24); 8 The Arrival/The Meeting (2:47); 9 Talk In The Bedroom (2:00); 10 The Ride-Out (3:19); 11 The Stars (1:35); 12 The Arabian Love Song (2:50); 13 The Cricket Game/The Bow Tie (1:02); 14 Garden Love Scene (3:24); 15 The Ride-Out (continued)(:50); 16 The Desert/The Battle/Radio Station (4:39); 17 The Battlefield (2:42); 18 The Sandstorm Starts (2:23); 19 The Kiss (2:23); 20 The Next Morning/The Order (4:38); 21 Another Dawn Finale (3:43).

Review: Known more for his "swashbuckler" scores, this CD showcases the tender side of Erich Wolfgang Korngold with the score to yet another Errol Flynn film, the 1937 soap opera Another Dawn. There's plenty of action, to be sure, but the film was intended to be a romantic endeavor for its two stars. Efforts by the producers to save the poorly plotted film resulted in some heavy editing of Korngold's score, but John Morgan has wisely chosen to go back and lovingly reconstruct what Korngold originally wrote, including the initial finale, changed when an alternate ending was used so that Flynn's character would survive. Another unusual selection, the "Ballet/Fantasy" from Escape Me Never, leads off the album.

1990, Scotti Bros.; from the movie Another 48 Hrs., Paramount Pictures, 1990

Album Notes: Music: James Horner.

Selections: 1 (The Boys Are) Back In Town (B. O'Neal)(4:02) Jesse Johnson; 2 Give It All You Got (M. Williams)(4:38) Curio; 3 I Just Can't Let It End (L. Dozier)(3:52) Curio; 4 I've Got My Eye On You (L. Dozier) (3:42) Curio; 5 The Courthouse (3:18); 6 Main Title From "Another 48 Hrs." (4:12); 7 King Mei Shootout (7:36); 8 Birdcage Battle (4:44); 9 I'll Never Get You Out Of This World Alive (H. Williams/F. Rose)(2:24) Michael Stanton.

Review: Listeners may want to dispense with the vocal selections that are totally interchangeable (In addition to getting strictly one-dimensional performances by Curio, "Give It All You Got," "I Just Can't Let It End" and "I've Got My Eye on You" evidence the same one-two rhythmic beat and trite lyrics.) and concentrate instead on the four instrumental cues composed and conducted by James Horner, but chances are you will also be disappointed. Writing in a contemporary vein, the composer relies on synth accents to play off a wailing clarinet that at times evokes Kenny G, with pulse-pounding effects to suggest that this is an action film. It may be quite effective behind the scenes, but taken on its own musical terms, it is ultimately less than endearing.

Anthony Adverse

1991, Varese-Sarabande, from the movie Anthony Adverse, Warner Bros., 1936.

Album Notes: Music: Erich-Wolfgang Korngold; The Berlin Radio Symphony Orchestra, conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: Hansjorg Saladin; Assistant Engineer: Oliver Reinhardt.

Selections: 1 The Lovers (11:01); 2 Anthony Is Born (10:30); 3 Casa Da Bonnyfeather (8:38); 4 Anthony and Angela (7:47); 5 From Leghorn To Cuba (7:09); 6 Adventures In Africa (11:18); 7 Anthony Returns To Europe (16:44).

Review: In comparison to his most flamboyant efforts (The Adventures of Robin Hood and Sea Hawk, for instance), the music Korngold wrote for this screen adaptation of the Harvey Allen bestseller sounds more pleasant than epic. But his lyricism is present everywhere in these seven long suites that regroup together all the principal themes and settings heard in the film as shorter cues. Though the script provided plenty of action scenes and unexpected developments in this romantic tale set during the Napoleonic era, the composer seemed to have been primarily attracted to the challenge presented by the varying moods in the main characters, and set out to write

> "Even as a child, I found myself paying attention to the music in movies. I didn't really have an interest in doing it; I was really terrified of it."
>
> James Newton Howard
> on film composing (The Hollywood Reporter, 1-16-96)

what is essentially an operatic score without the words. As a result, the leitmotifs that recur throughout may not have the immediacy and vibrancy of pure action cues, but the thematic material unfolds in breathtaking fashion to create a score that has great impact and strength.

Possibly also as a result, The Berlin Radio Symphony Orchestra, conducted by John Scott, does not display the flashy style exhibited by the Utah Symphony in both Robin Hood and Sea Hawk for the same label. The production values, though, are still first-rate.

Antony and Cleopatra

1992, JOS Records; from the movie Antony and Cleopatra, Rank Films, 1972.

Album Notes: Music: John Scott; Music Editor: John Strother; The Berlin Radio Symphony Orchestra and Choir conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineer: Robert Vosgien.

Selections: 1 Overture (9:17); 2 Main Titles (3:36); 3 Undying Love (3:38); 4 Give Me To Drink Mandragora (2:02); 5 Pompey (1:58); 6 Cleopatra Deserted (1:38); 7 Rome And Octavia (1:47); 8 The Barge She Sat In (4:19); 9 Battle Of Actium (6:16); 10 Anthony's Army Deserts (1:44); 11 Whither Hast Thou Led Me Egypt (2:26); 12 Death Of Enobarbus (2:05); 13 One Last Night Of Love (3:02); 14 He Goes Forth Gallantly (3:52); 15 Sometimes We See A Cloud That's Dragonish (2:42); 16 Death Of Antony (3:57); 17 Pretty Worm Of Nilus (1:50); 18 Epilogue: Eternal Rest (2:10).

Review: This 1972 filmed adaptation of Shakespeare's play (not to be confused with another 1963 extravaganza with a somewhat similar title) was directed by and starred Charlton Heston in one of his most felicitous screen portrayals as Antony, opposite Hildegard Neil as Cleopatra. Deftly using the medium's wide possibilities, Heston opened up the stage play and beefed it up with often impressive panoramic battle scenes shot on location in Spain. Matching his vision almost frame for frame, John Scott provides a score that shares its best moments between sweeping romantic themes ("Undying Love," "One Last Night Of Love") and throbbing action cues ("Battle of Actium"). The Berlin Radio Symphony Orchestra, conducted by the composer, plays it with all the fire and passion necessary, making this CD a highly desirable addition to any collection, though, like the hard-to-get film, you probably will have to do some digging to find it.

Apocalypse Now

1979, Elektra Records; from the movie Apocalypse Now, United Artists, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: Carmine Coppola, Francis Coppola; Album Producer: David Rubinson.

Selections: CD 1: 1 The End (The Doors)(4:15) The Doors; 2 Saigon (narration and dialogue)(1:38); 3 The End, Part 2 (1:37) The Doors; 4 Terminate (narration and dialogue)(5:44); 5 The Delta (2:38); 6 P.B.R. (narration and dialogue)(2:02); 7 Dossier #1 (1:51); 8 Colonel Kilgore (narration and dialogue)(5:43); 9 Orange Light (2:15); 10 The Ride Of The Valkyries (R. Wagner)(2:00) The Vienna Philharmonic, Sir Georg Solti; 11 Napalm In The Morning (dialogue)(:55); 12 Pre-Tiger (4:50); 13 Dossier #2 (3:30); 14 Susie Q (D. Hawkins/S. Lewis/E. Broadwater)(4:26); 15 Dossier #3 (3:09); 16 75 Klicks (dialogue)(1:09); 17 The Nung River (3:10).

CD 2: 1 Do Lung Bridge (9:37); 2 Letters From Home (2:39); 3 Clean's Death (3:10); 4 Chief's Death/Strange Voyage (6:47); 5 Strange Voyage (4:16); 6 Kurtz' Compound (dialogue)(2:18); 7 Willard's Capture (1:18); 8 Errand Boy (dialogue)(2:04); 9 Chef's Head (2:04); 10 The Hollow Men (T.S. Eliot) (1:09); 11 Horror (dialogue)(5:42) 12 Even The Jungle Wanted Him Dead (dialogue)(1:01); 13 The End (3:14) The Doors.

Review: This is really a two-disc, abridged, audio presentation of the film that mixes music and dialogue. When it was first released in 1979, it may have been something unique, but today it has become something of a relic. After all, since you can now buy the film on video for less money and with better sound, why not just watch it? The set pretty much covers all the best sequences and features The Doors title track. As with most albums of this kind, the dialogue is mixed much lower than the music, creating a jarring parade of sound levels.

(3:36), dialogue spoken by Tom Hanks and Gary Sinise; 10 Into The Lem/Out Of Time (4:18), dialogue spoken by Tom Hanks, Ed Harris and Kevin Bacon; 11 Darkside Of The Moon/Failure Is Not An Option (4:49), dialogue spoken by Ed Harris; 12 Honky Tonkin' (H. Williams) (2:42) Hank Williams; 13 Blue Moon (R. Rodgers/L. Hart)/Waiting For Disaster/A Privilege (4:01), dialogue spoken by Ed Harris and Gary Sinise/dialogue spoken by Tom Hanks, The Mavericks; 14 Re-Entry And Splashdown (8:53); 15 End Titles (6:59).

Review: One of James Horner's most effective works is marred by a hodgepodge album presentation that, for all intents and purposes, is nothing more than an audio dramatization of the film. Eight pop songs of the period, dialogue sequences and sound effects weave in and out of the score. One might as well just watch the film on home video for all the enjoyment it gives. The fact that portions of the music are obviously lifted verbatim from Horner's own score for Sneakers doesn't help either. Add a rating point if none of this matters to you. The soundtrack album is also available in a Dolby Surround 24k gold CD with additional dialogue.

Arabian Knight

1995, Milan Records; from the animated feature Arabian Knight, Miramax Films, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Robert Folk; Orchestrations: Robert Folk, Peter Tomashek, John Kull, Randy Miller; Music Editor: Doug Lackey; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Robert Folk; Songs: Norman Gimbel, Robert Folk; Album Producer: David Franco; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Am I Feeling Love? (2:12) Bobby Page, Steve Lively; 2 Opening Title (2:29); 3 Tack And Thief (2:18); 4 Polo Game (1:46); 5 She Is More (2:28) Bobby Page; 6 The Courtroom (4:09); 7 The Brigands (2:21); 8 Pole Vault (2:44); 9 Club Sahara (2:50); 10 So Incredible (3:29); 11 Bom, Bom, Bom, Beem, Bom (2:18) The Beem Bom Singers; 12 Thief Gets The Ball (2:59); 13 One Eyes Advance (2:06); 14 It's So Amazing (3:25) Andrea Robinson, Arnold McCuller; 15 Climactic End (2:12); 16 Witch Riddle (1:22); 17 Thief After The Balls (3:09).

Review: Not to be confused with Disney's Aladdin, Robert Folk's large orchestral music for Arabian Knight makes for an exciting soundtrack album whose style is reminiscent of a typical James Horner fantasy score (think Willow or Krull). The film, originally titled The Thief and the Cobbler and released on video under that name, was an ambitious effort from Oscar-winning animator Richard Williams that sat on the shelf for nearly two decades before it was taken out of his hands and completed by other filmmakers. Some of the new elements added to the director's original vision include songs written by Folk and lyricist Norman Gimbel in a pseudo-Alan Menken style, but what should be of interest to most listeners ought to be the score, which is derivative but entertaining, marked by lush themes performed to perfection by the London Symphony Orchestra. It has fun toiling around in the vein of Korngold and Williams, and sounds just as much of a homage to those sources as the Aladdin-"inspired" songs appear modeled right after their superior Disney counterparts.

Arachnophobia

1990, Hollywood Records; from the movie Arachnophobia, Hollywood Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Trevor Jones; Orchestrations: Lawrence Ashmore, Shirley Walker, Guy Dagul; Music Editor: Thomas A. Review: A quirky combination of often goofy songs and a fun score by Trevor Jones comprise this soundtrack album for one of 1990s surprise box-office hits. With the album's running time split virtually halfway between Jones' music and the pop songs, there ought to be something here for every listener. Sara Hickman's catchy "Blue Eyes are Sensitive to the Light" and Jimmy Buffett's silly "Don't Bug Me" are indicative of the tongue-in-cheek tone of the songs, which also include forgettable rock tracks by Brent Hutchins, The Party, Pleasure Thieves and The Poorboys, along with an alternate version of Russell Hitchcock's ballad "Swear to Your Heart" called "Caught in Your Web." Jones' music fares better, with a terrific main title theme supporting itself quite well through a number of theme and variations. Purists may object to the inclusion of dialogue on some tracks (a hard-to-find German import of the soundtrack features more score, less songs, and no dialogue by comparison), but given the tone of this album, they seem to fit right in.

1989, MCA Records; from the movie Around the World in 80 Days, Universal Pictures, 1956.

Album Notes: Music: Victor Young; The Universal-International Orchestra, conducted by Victor Young.

Selections: 1 Around The World, Part 1 (3:01); 2 Passepartout (3:21); 3 Paris Arrival (2:47); 4 Sky Symphony (4:30); 5 (a) Invitation To A Bull Fight, (b) Entrance Of The Bull March (2:34); 6 India Country Side (3:53); 7 Around The World, Part 2 (4:00); 8 The Pagoda Of Pillagi (4:00); 9 Temple Of Dawn (2:15); 10 Prairie Sail Car (1:47); 11 Land Ho (6:56); 12 Epilogue (6:22).

Review: At a time when big screen all-star superproductions were still something relatively new, Michael Todd's treatment of Jules Verne's Around the World in 80 Days was as big as they came. Wasting little time for character studies, it relies on a breathless pace to recount in three hours the many adventures of round-the-world travellers Phineas Fogg (David Niven) and his astute manservant Passepartout (Cantinflas), from their English homebase to such exotic locales as Spain, India, Japan, and America. Along the way, they encounter and match wits with a literal who's who of 1950s filmdom, including John Carradine, Frank Sinatra, Marlene Dietrich, George Raft, Red Skelton, Charles Boyer, Noel Coward, Buster Keaton, Peter Lorre, Cesar Romero, and, as a lovely Indian princess they rescue from a funeral pyre, Shirley MacLaine.

Superbly filmed using the Todd-AO Process, the film also benefits from a sensational Academy Award-winning score composed by Victor Young, spearheaded by the evocative "Main Title," a tune that has since become a particular favorite. While the soundtrack album only contains about 45 minutes from that score, the selections cover enough to provide a fair sampling of Young's contribution, including such memorable cues as "Passepartout," the jaunty "Paris Arrival," the Spanish-flavored "Invitation to a Bull Fight" and "Entrance of the Bull March," the exotic "India Country Side" and "The Pagoda of Pillagi," and the western-inspired "Prairie Sail Car."

On a purely technical basis, the CD was evidently mastered using the original 1958 two-track stereo tapes, and its overall sound quality no longer meets the stringent requirements of the digital era. The recording evidences a somewhat brittle sound, some distortion, and a lot of noticeable hiss on the tracks. This is one clear instance when an important score deserves to be completely redone from the multi-track session tapes.

The Arrival

Album Notes: Music: Arthur Kempel; Music Editor: Chris Ledesma; The Northwest Sinfonia, conducted by Arthur Kempel; Album Producers: Arthur Kempel, Ford A. Thaxton; Engineer: Rick Winquest.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:34); 2 Day Of The Dead (2:13); 3 The Elevator (2:52); 4 The Clone (1:41); 5 Mexico (2:14); 6 Satellite Man (1:32); 7 Planting The Imploder (2:10); 8 Perhaps They're Talking? (2:25); 9 Zane Sneaks In (2:32); 10 Gordian's Arrival (3:55); 11 Stranger Than You Can Imagine (:40); 12 The Conspiracy (2:33); 13 The Underground World (4:06); 14 Finale (5:06); 15 The Arrival (2:34).

Review: Atypical sci-fi action score makes good use of synthesized effects to create an air of unease as radio astronomer Charlie Sheen investigates alien infestation. To further suggest the gulf between the invaders' covert operation and humanity's ignorance, composer Arthur Kempel paints each world with distinct musical colors, juxtaposing the idyllic "New Age" sounds of Sheen's lackadaisical life against the back street percussion of a hostile south of the border town.

Selections: 1 Love Is My Decision (B. Bacharach/C. Bayer Sager/C. De Burgh) (4:06) Chris De Burgh; 2 Gravity (B. Russell/G. Cole)(3:32) Brenda Russell; 3 Secret (OMD)(3:56) Orchestral Manoeuvres in the Dark; 4 Speed Of Light (D. Gibson)(3:49) Reimy; 5 Boys Night Out (E. Monk) (6:21) Steve Khan, Donald Fagen; 9 Devotion (L. Story)(3:02) Liz Story; 10 Love Theme From Arthur (B. Bacharach)(4:46) Burt Bacharach.

Review: You know how the saying goes: if you liked the original, you'll love the sequel... Well, not in this case! While the soundtrack of the first Arthur still awaits a first release on compact disc, this sorry hodgepodge only hints at the elements that made the original so enjoyable. The pop selections, while relatively pleasant, seem more manufactured than in the first album, and even Burt Bacharach's themes ("The Best of Times," and "Love Theme") don't have the freshness that characterized his earlier contributions. The film, too, was not on the same comedic level as the original, so that might also explain why its soundtrack sounds less inspired.

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Article 99, Orion Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek; Music Editor: Bob Badami; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker; Album Producer: Danny Elfman; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:00); 2 Death (4:23); 3 Mayday (2:47); 4 Montage (1:35); 5 Shooter (2:57); 6 Revelation (1:11); 7 Rebellion (3:10); 8 Salute (1:29); 9 Love Theme (1:00); 10 Confrontation (5:01); 11 End Credits (6:46).

Review: Danny Elfman nearly buries his traditional, dark-tinged self in an uplifting, noble musical score for an earnest but fatally flawed comedy-drama about Veterans' Administration hospital abuses by the U.S. government. Elfman's score is atypical for the composer in a number of ways, from the lack of dark, dissonant sections of music to the stable, soaring main theme, which represents the heart of the score. It's interesting to see how the composer, along with his usual collaborators (orchestrator Steve Bartek and conductor Shirley Walker), treats the music for this well-intentioned movie. The tone is inspiring, it's nice to listen to, but it all tends to evaporate right after you hear it, a fact further compounded by the scant running time and notable lack of thematic development (the love theme, for example, barely runs a minute). Best recommended for Elfman completists.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (2:39); 2 Meet Laurel And Sally (2:07); 3 The Big Whammy (1:18); 4 Creating Cutty (1:50); 5 Laurel's Woes (3:00); 6 The Glass Ceiling (1:52); 7 The "Other" Partner (2:03); 8 Sally "Meets" Cutty (1:59); 9 The New Man In The City (2:09); 10 The Look Of Cutty (1:16); 11 Laurel's Theme (2:19); 12 Aesop's Secret (1:40); 13 Frank Gets His/Laurel (3:07); 14 Plaza Chase/Sunk Cutty (2:59); 15 Laurel Has Her Day/ATI (4:27); 16 Finale (3:33).

Review: Freshman Christopher Tyng just flies in the face of modern (i.e. nondescript) film scoring to create a delightfully bright and energetic score for this Whoopi Goldberg comedy in which she plays a financial analyst facing the legendary glass ceiling. Blatantly comedic, Tyng's music is primary like that for an animated film, highlighting (a.k.a. "Mickey Mousing") each moment. Although it's nothing original, Tyng's use of gospel singers, doing everything from excerpts from "Joy to the World" to scats, keeps the energy level constantly up. You'll never know, however, where the music is going to go next, into a pleasant theme or a flurry of brass. Superb performances by both the Seattle Symphony Orchestra and the Tri-City Singers Gospel Choir.

Review: Three composers were used to incorporate indigenous tribal music into Zbigniew Preisner's orchestral score. This mixing of diverse styles works brilliantly on film and probably would have on the CD, but unfortunately, the album fails to allow the haunting underscore to fully develop the mood it tries so very hard to create. While the score cues move effortlessly between the sustained harmonics of its orchestral themes and the powerful rhythms of the Niaruna tribe, the haphazard placement of several "Jukebox" recordings completely sabotage what could have been a mystical musical journey.

Atlantic City

1981, DRG Records; from the movie Atlantic City, Paramount Pictures, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Michel Legrand; Orchestra conducted by Michel Legrand.

Selections: 1 Costa Diva (from Norma)(V. Bellini)(6:45) Elizabeth Harwood, The London Philharmonic Orchestra; 2 Slot Machine Baby (3:37); 3 Bellini Rock (2:45); 4 Atlantic City, My Old Friend (P. Anka) (2:35) Robert Goulet; 5 Balcon (1:25); 6 Piano Blackjack (4:33); 7 Steel Pier (2:32); 8 Song Of India (N. Rimsky-Korsakov)(2:50); 9 Road Map For A Free Jazz Group (5:14); 10 No Gambling Allowed (1:05); 11 AC/DC (1:59); 12 Trio Jazz (5:18).

Review: Burt Lancaster portrayed a small-time mafioso in this film by Louis Malle, set in the New Jersey gambling mecca, for which Michel Legrand provides a gritty, diversified score far removed from his most recognizable screen contributions. At its liveliest and most genuinely interesting, the score offers jazz selections ("Piano Blackjack," "Road Map for a Free Jazz Group," "Trio Jazz") in which the composer plays the piano, surrounded by an assortment of uncredited sidemen (including, probably, Ron Carter on bass). On the other side of the scale, a strident "Bellini Rock" proves a real turn-off, while the meandering "No Gambling Allowed" and "Slot Machine Baby" are not sufficiently developed to really attract. Somewhere in-between, Robert Goulet is remarkably bland but okay in the Paul Anka song, "Atlantic City, My Old Friend," making this album a little bit of undefined everything for everybody.

Review: The soundtrack to this amiable send-up of the spy thrillers of the 1960s will no doubt bring a smile to anyone listening to it. The film, about a nerd who imagines he is the world's greatest spy, is rife with references to that benign period when our man Flint was cool as a cucumber and even smarter and when the funniest flick of its kind was another spoof, Casino Royale. There is more than a passing reference to that last film, as a matter of fact, with Susanna Hoffs singing "The Book of Love" (too bad they couldn't get the actual recording by Dusty Springfield!), and composer Burt Bacharach (who scored it), contributing a new version of "What the World Needs Now" to this mildly zany album. There are also other genuinely engaging tracks, including Sergio Mendes' "Mas Que Nada," and Quincy Jones' "Soul Bossa Nova," but the palm must go to George S. Clinton's whimsical "Shag-adelic" medley, filled with amusing quotes from the James Bond and other spy films of the period. Not a great album, but quite delightful.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Newman; Orchestrations: Jack Hayes; Featured Musicians: Stuart Canin (violin), Michael Lang (piano), Malcolm McNab (trumpet), Randy Newman (piano); Album Producers: James Flamberg, Frank Wolf; Engineer: Frank Wolf.

Selections: 1 1914 (3:42); 2 Weekend Musicians (1:35); 3 Avalon/Moving Day (2:35); 4 Jules and Michael (2:39); 5 Television, Television, Television (:46); 6 Circus (3:44); 7 Wedding (1:53); 8 The Family (5:00); 9 The Fire (3:36); 10 No More Television (:45); 11 Funeral (3:21); 12 End Titles (7:19).

Review: This delightful score by Randy Newman is tinged with melancholy. Director Barry Levinson's critically acclaimed story tells of the loss of faith felt by an immigrant as he watches his family grow up not with the values of his homeland, but those of America. Newman's music takes us along through the years of hopes and shattered dreams in a moving symphony.

Selections: 1 Leonard (4:32); 2 Dr. Sayer (1:40); 3 Lucy (3:11); 4 Catch (1:11); 5 Rilke's Panther (3:11); 6 L Dopa (3:10); 7 Awakenings (5:42); 8 Time Of The Season (3:14) The Zombies; 9 Outside (1:06); 10 Escape Attempt (:50); 11 Ward Five (3:29); 12 Dexter's Tune (2:40) Randy Newman; 13 The Reality Of Miracles (2:30); 14 End Title (6:01).

Review: This moving Randy Newman score captures very well the parallels in the two existences that are at the core of this film—a shy doctor who avoids dealing with his own life, and that of a former comatose patient, awakened to find he has to deal with being a middle-aged adult. Though it starts off on a very poignant note, as the two men learn from each other how to cope with their lives, the score evolves to become brighter and more optimistic. The album also includes the song "Time of the Season" by The Zombies.

Review: Delightful concept album that mixes music and dialogue from the hit fantasy film about a farm populated by talking animals. Though live-action, composer Nigel Westlake chose well to paint this film with a broad cartoon-like score. While most soundtrack purists find the notion detestable, the dialogue sound bites are well interpolated here with the film's underscore, which is based primarily on various classical and contemporary compositions. Most notable is the adaption of Saint-Saens Symphony No. 3 which, with lyrics by Johnathon Hodge, became the signature tune for the film's singing mice trio. The result is just plain fun and a good way to introduce the classics to young children.

Review: The Babe, of course, was Babe Ruth, whose picturesque life story is the basis for this screen biography starring John Goodman. An important part of the film's flair is due to Elmer Bernstein's broad score, whose more rambunctious cues echo the exuberant lifestyle of one of baseball's most colorful folk heroes. Obviously sharing director Arthur Hiller's evident fondness for the character, Bernstein wrote one of his most rewarding middle-of-the-road efforts here, drawing his inspiration from the period (the 1920s and '30s), the locales where the action unfolds, and the natural vitality in the sport itself. Among the many remarkable highlights, "Kids Ride," the inventive "Proposal," "Claire and the Dream," and "Helen Leaves" strike a more felicitous note, but the whole score is unusually lively and enjoyable.

Review: An endearing, charmingly offbeat big screen take on the familiar book and cable series by Ann M. Martin, The Baby-Sitters Club is the occasion for a group of seven young girls to create a pool so that someone would always be available should a sitter be otherwise engaged (usually with a boyfriend). Modest and somewhat untheatrical, the film boasts a soundtrack consisting of nicely scrubbed pop songs without a single offensive lyric (which may explain, in a way, why it was issued on Sony Wonder, Sony's kiddie label. The performances are also appropriately harmless.

THE CARETAKERS: 10 Black Straight Jacket (2:03); 11 Blues For A Four String Guitar (2:37); 12 Take Care (2:00); 13 Birdito (2:19); 14 Party In The Ward (1:58); 15 Main Title (2:15); 16 The Cage (1:59); 17 Electrotherapy (2:01); 18 Day Hospital (1:39); 19 Seclusion (1:40); 20 Finale (2:14).

Review: Two early Elmer Bernstein scores, unfortunately marred by poor mastering and heavy reverb which harkens back to the 1960s. Starring Steve McQueen as a rockabilly singer who takes a walk on the wild side, Baby the Rain Must Fall elicited a rock-based score from Bernstein, with folk vocals by The We Three Trio that also reflect the film's time period. Shorty Rogers' explosive arrangements are a big plus.

Robert Stack and Joan Crawford share billing in The Caretakers, a shallow drama set in a West Coast mental institution. Belying the serious subject matter, Bernstein's score turns out to be for the most part a bouncy, jazzy affair, with only two tracks ("The Cage" and "Electrotherapy") making direct references to the film's background.

Sonically, the CD sounds very hissy, with distortion on some of the tracks, and particularly noticeable hum in The Caretakers.

Review: The time travel paradox format of this trilogy has allowed series composer Alan Silvestri to rework his themes in several ways. The first album is nothing more than a song compilation, though all the songs actually are heard in the film, especially during the big dance sequence. The theme is included as well as a nine minute suite of the finale credited as the "Back to the Future Overture."

The second album is all underscore, but because of the darker aspects of the film, Silvestri does tend to paint a gloomy picture by stretching things out a bit. The themes crawl along before they are resolved, and while the need exists to make the danger more severe, the comedic aspect of the series is only sporadically present.

For the third chapter, Silvestri backtracks even further away from the naivete of the 1950s to adopt a whimsical tone for this child-like, innocent adventure and romance of the old, wild West. He even successfully spoofs the genre by interpolating classic (if not cliched) western motifs like the harmonica. He also develops a delightfully romantic new theme presented here for Doc Brown's love interest, Clara, the schoolmarm. Some film series tend to abandon the overuse of thematic material to keep things from getting boring (i.e. the James Bond films), but the need was never so vital to keep audiences clued in as in this trilogy's vast plate of reoccurring time travel gags.

Backdraft

1991, Milan Records; from the movie Backdraft, Universal Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Orchestrations: Shirley Walker, Bruce Fowler, Larry Rench; Music Editor: Laura Perlman; Orchestra and choir conducted by Shirley Walker; Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Jay Rifkin; Engineer: Jay Rifkin.

Selections: 1 Set Me In Motion (B. Hornsby/J. Hornsby)(7:32) Bruce Hornsby & The Range.

Review: A memorable and powerful score by Hans Zimmer, Backdraft represents one of the composer's earliest but most successful cinematic endeavors, one which continues to be used in countless movie trailers and television spots. With his trademark collection of heavy percussion, pounding synthesizers and blaring orchestra, Zimmer uses strong melodic themes to underscore Ron Howard's entertaining firefighting melodrama, and it fits this particular film like a glove; from the bombastic and triumphant opening fanfare to its dissonant sections with chorus, Backdraft is a larger-than-life dramatic score that makes for an ideal listening experience, and certainly remains one of Zimmer's most satisfying efforts to date. The album also contains a pair of good songs by Bruce Hornsby & the Range, one of which ("Set Me in Motion") was written specifically for the movie.

Review: It is always preferable to listen to a recording of a piece of music that has been orchestrated and conducted by the composer himself, because theoretically, the listener is guaranteed that every musical texture, dynamic and nuance that the composer had in mind when creating the music will survive through their own, personal interpretation for the recording. Such is the case with Rhino's comprehensive release of David Raksin's score for The Bad and the Beautiful, which is a long-awaited, eagerly anticipated CD issue.

In creating this complete soundtrack recording, the producer has included 44 musical cues (some far greater in length than those edited for the final cut of the film), and three supplemental versions of the main and end titles, which were revised by the composer for the edited film. Such completeness and the inclusion of the bonus tracks allows film music buffs and historians alike to analyze the creative process and understand exactly how the scoring and editing process works. In this case, this enjoyable task is made even easier, because of the wonderfully personal recollections of Raksin himself, who has penned a concise history of the film and his music for the accompanying 28 page booklet. While the original stereo master recordings were destroyed in the 1960s, 1/4 mono tape copies survived and are the primary source for this release, which has very pleasing sonic characteristics.

Bad Girls

1994, Fox Records; from the movie Bad Girls, 20th Century-Fox, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 The John (2:18); 2 The Hanging (3:17); 3 Bank Job (4:54); 4 Jail Break (3:36); 5 No Money (2:08); 6 Ambush (5:45); 7 I Shot Him (2:35); 8 Josh's Death (3:42); 9 No Bullets (3:51); 10 My Land (6:50).

Review: Although the film itself was wretched, Goldsmith wrote a rousing action score for this all-female western that's one of the composers best works of the '90s. After a pastoral opening of keyboard and guitar, the score takes off with some breakneck cues for chases, a bank robbery, and an ambush, as well as a good-natured, bucolic "Jail Break," all done in the composer's indelible western style of the '60s and '70s. It's percussive and highly inventive rhythmically, with a big, broad John Wayne-style brass theme blasting over many of the action highlights; the "Ambush" cue is a particularly exciting and sustained piece featuring a thrilling brass fugue.

Review: Still too young to be jaded, composer Daniel Licht seems to have ignored the quality of this film and put his best foot forward. He shows real potential by pulling off this surprisingly well-composed and entertaining orchestral score. It manages to inject a surprising amount of emotional drama into a strictly cliched "Lassie vs. The Werewolf" horror film that really didn't deserve this much effort. He's definitely a promising talent.

Review: Some films (and some soundtracks) are like rare wines—they need to be tasted to be fully appreciated, but the rewards are enormous. Such is the case with this delightful score by David Mansfield, who also created the music for the revisionist western Heaven's Gate. The film's setting, the post-Civil War American West, inspired the composer to write a series of charmingly expressive cues that find their roots in the traditional music of the frontier. The film, which starred Bo Hopkins, Ian McKellen and Carrie Snodgress, was not a tremendous success and quickly disappeared. Its soundtrack album is well worth hunting for.

Balto

1995, MCA Records; from the animated feature Balto, Universal Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Steve Bramson, Don Davis; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Reach For The Light (J. Horner/B. Mann/C. Weil)(4:25) Steve Winwood; 2 Main Title/Balto's Story Unfolds (4:41); 3 The Dogsled Race (1:41); 4 Rosy Goes To The Doctor (4:06); 5 Boris And Balto (1:30); 6 The Journey Begins (5:07); 7 Grizzly Bear (5:23); 8 Jenna/Telegraphing The News (2:23); 9 Steele's Treachery (4:38); 10 The Epidemic's Toll (3:30); 11 Heritage Of The Wolf (5:54); 12 Balto Brings The Medicine (4:54); 13 Reach For The Light (long version)(J. Horner/B. Mann/C. Weil)(5:27) Steve Winwood.

Review: Another animated feature from Steven Spielberg's Amblin Entertainment, sporting another winning score by James Horner. Who could complain about it! Avoiding the obvious cute approach the medium might have suggested, the composer decided instead to write a set of epic cues to accompany this inspiring story of a stray half-dog, half-wolf on a rescue mission to a remote Alaskan outpost filled with sick kids. In the course of the action, Balto gets to win the heart of an attractive female, Jenna, whose owner, Rosy, is one of the sick children, and shares some light-hearted moments in the company of his friends, Boris, a Russian goose, and Muk and Luk, two polar bears. Most of Horner's cues are often more exciting than the action would seem to require, but the bombast is offset by a couple of introspective selections, like "Rosy Goes To The Doctor," that give the whole score greater scope and impact.

Bandolero!

1990, Cinema Show/edel Records; from the movie Bandolero!, 20th Century-Fox, 1968.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; The 20th Century-Fox Orchestra conducted by Lionel Newman.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:56); 2 The Trap (2:23); 3 El Jefe (:50); 4 The Bait (2:08); 5 Ambushed (3:57); 6 Sabinas (2:51); 7 Dee's Proposal (5:29); 8 Across The River (1:01); 9 A Bad Day For Hanging (3:02); 10 A Better Way (3:34).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's picaresque score for this 1968 Jimmy Stewart western features a classically direct, folksy title theme that's whistled over shots of Stewart riding the range. The rest of the score offers a fascinating contrast between the traditional elements of the title music and the kind of hard-edged, experimental writing Goldsmith produced for his legendary Planet of the Apes score released the same year. There are several exciting action cues marked by powerful staccato rhythms and striking use of a grinding bass harmonica, as well as a moody love theme for marimba. It's an unusual score very much recommended to fans of Goldsmith's '60s style, its comic elements working almost as a satire of the standard western sound.

Review: Once you get past those seven mediocre rap and pop music tunes intended to appeal to the kids, you'll be pleasantly surprised to find an impressively well-written orchestral score. Hidden at the end, Stanley Clarke's music is filled with a lot of emotion, supported by a charming main theme. It's quite a contrast from the tone set by the album's first half and certainly more practical entertainment. That may not be enough of a reason, for Clarke's music only amounts to about 17 minutes on this album. That translates to spending $1.00 per minute on it. Considering this score was written for a mediocre comedy film, who would go out of their way to purchase this album? Perhaps only Stanley Clarke fans, for few others might feel the investment worthwhile.

Review: Quoting the liner notes, "Baraka is an ancient Sufi word [...] simply translated as a blessing, or the breath or essence of life from which the evolutionary process unfolds." Taking a cue from this concept, director Ron Fricke took his cameras to such diverse locations as Brazil, Nepal, Cambodia, Kuwait, India, Tanzania and Iran, to create a "non-verbal" film that tells the story of our planet's evolution, man's diversity and the impact we have had on the environment. To illustrate musically this "journey of rediscovery that plunges into nature, history, the human spirit, and finally into the realm of the infinite," the soundtrack gathers together performances recorded around the world, with composer Michael Stearns contributing the instrumental cues that link these selections into a seamless entity. Call this the ultimate world music soundtrack.

The Barbarians

1990, Intrada Records; from the movie The Barbarians, Cannon International, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Pino Donaggio; Synthesizer Sequencing: Maurizio Guarini, Paolo Steffan; The Unione Musicisti di Roma, conducted by Natale Massara; Album Producer: Pino Donaggio; Engineer: Gaetano Ria; Digital Engineer: Bob Stone.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (4:38); 2 Attack To Ragnick Caravan (6:00); 3 Canary's Promise (1:39); 4 Kara And The Twins In Talchet/China's Magic (2:22); 5 Encounter Twins And Canary (2:37); 6 Kadar In Harem (1:42); 7 Crown Room (1:00); 8 Surrounding Of The Caravan (2:52); 9 Casual Encounter With Ibar (1:27); 10 China's Arrival At Harem (1:50); 11 Sepulcre (2:17); 12 Kara And The Twins In The Forest (:51); 13 China Takes Ruby (2:16); 14 Kadar And Canary At Morass (4:15); 15 Duel Between Kadar And The Twins (4:12); 16 Ruby Dawn (P. Donaggio/P. Steffan)(3:45) Ronnie Jackson.

Review: This big score by Pino Donaggio with spectacular ambient sound is a blend of heavily pulsating synth sounds framed by the orchestral support provided by Rome's Unione Musicisti, one of Italy's grandest film orchestras. The film, a pseudo epic starring two beefy musclemen, David and Peter Paul, is more cartoonish in approach than Conan or Xena, and, for that matter, so is Donaggio's music. However, in the midst of the pounding "action" cues, the composer reveals a tender side with lovely melodic tunes like "Encounter Twins And Canary," or "Kadar in Harem," which soften the music and make it sound more attractive than it really is. One serious drawback in the gorgeously layered sound is the fact that some cues don't seem to be totally realized and end up in a quick fade without actually making much of an impact. "Ruby Dawn," a vocal tune with an anachronistic Eurobeat, closes the set.

The Barefoot Contessa/ The Quiet American/ Room at the Top

THE QUIET AMERICAN: 18 Main Titles (1:22); 19 City Streets (2:14); 20 The Cathedral (1:30); 21 The Morgue (3:40); 22 Psychological And Passionate (1:58); 23 The Search For Tuong (2:25); 24 Finale (:47).

Review: Italian film composer Mario Nascimbene made quite an impression with his score for The Barefoot Contessa, which gave Ava Gardner one of her most sensual screen roles as a cabaret dancer whose rise to international fame and subsequent marriage to an Italian count ends after he murders her in a jealous fit. Writing in a remarkably subdued and melodic vein, Nascimbene delivered a series of eloquent cues that set off the film's most important scenes.

As a result of the film's success, the composer was asked to work on such illustrious projects as Alexander the Great and David O. Selznick's A Farewell to Arms (q.v.), before scoring The Quiet American, a pre-Vietnam War old-fashioned thriller set in Saigon, starring Audie Murphy, for which he used a blend of ethnic instruments to give his music the right tonal color.

For the British working-class drama, Room at the Top, created a year after The Quiet American, Nascimbene again devised a score that set off the screen action and enhanced it with a series of musical cues that drew much of their dramatic strength from the judicious use of brass instruments over the orchestral texture.

All three scores, presented here in a recording supervised by the composer, show their age, with the CD containing many technical flaws (image shifting, hiss, distortion, bad editing) that do little to enhance their presentation.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Main Title (Theme From Basic Instinct)(2:15); 2 Crossed Legs (4:50); 3 Night Life (6:03); 4 Kitchen Help (3:59); 5 Pillow Talk (5:00); 6 Morning After (2:29); 7 The Games Are Over (5:36); 8 Catherine's Sorrow (2:41); 9 Roxy Loses (3:17); 10 An Unending Story (7:56).

Review: Goldsmith's most recent Oscar-nominated score for director Paul Verhoven's erotic thriller has become a staple of movie previews with its insinuating, atmospheric title music and hammering, ostinato-driven chase cues. Goldsmith achieves some evocative "sex music" with an undulating string figure and a minor mode woodwind melody that functions as a moody siren song beckoning Michael Douglas' detective character to his ruin; his scoring of the movie's graphic sex scenes employs a moaning wind instrument effect similar to his use of the medieval serpent in Alien. The pulsating car chase cues "Night Life" and "Roxy Loses" are vintage Goldsmith action pieces that the composer honed to perfection here and in Verhoven's earlier Total Recall. The brooding low-key piano theme that emerges out of the center of the score sometimes recalls John Barry's work on Body Heat, but Goldsmith carves out his own territory here for a consistently involving album.

Review: Early mainstream breakout score for Christopher Young that is driven by the intensity of his passion to create unusual sound clusters. In fact, Young set a whole new standard, that was repeatedly copied thereafter, for scoring Vietnam era war films. By utilizing Far Eastern instruments, like the shakuhachi, for solo performances, as opposed to relegating them for mere effects, this formula effectively brings an intense anxiety to the film's isolated jungle settings. A simple, but highly charged, emotional theme (something Young is reluctant to admit he does exceptionally well) counterpoints the action cues. This theme represents the growing bond between the downed officer and his would-be rescuer, circling above.

Review: Danny Elfman's music for the first two Batman films proves a splendid complement to director Tim Burton's vision of the world of Gotham City. Much of the flavor harkens back to the film-noir genre of the 1940s, set in large, dark metropolitan vistas where evil grows and the good must fight back in any way possible. Costumed superheroes are only believable if the worlds they inhabit are realistic and in the first one, Elfman used his lush palette to develop this nightmarish vision. He musically portrayed the constant struggle of good versus evil and beauty against ugliness by twisting an alluring lullaby into something uncomfortable, thus representing the duality of Batman/Bruce Wayne and the Joker's twisted psyche.

For the second film Batman Returns, Elfman centered his score around the two new villains, the Penguin and Catwoman. Since the former is initially represented on screen only by his deformed hands, Elfman musically painted the Penguin with a darker version of his Edward Scissorhands score, with sweeping strings and chorus. Less subtle, perhaps, are the screeching string passages used as Catwoman goes on the prowl. Although Batman set the standard for the series, it is with the second film that Elfman really created his most entertaining and intriguing work.

With Batman Forever, came a new look as director Joel Schumacher abandoned Burton's ghostly lighting for the bright colors of the Sunday comics. Elliot Goldenthal, already having scored Alien and Demolition Man with his unique orchestrations, was set to reveal a whole new music voice for the world of the Caped Crusader. Once again, the film's schizophrenia is reflected in the music's ever changing style. Though suited perfectly for the screen action, Goldenthal's score is less enjoyable on CD. Very few themes ever complete themselves before they become overwhelmed with something newer and busier. Even the new theme for Batman (really just a fanfare) never reaches a satisfying climax. The listener is sadly left wanting. Points do go to the most clever cues titles ever, though.

Prince's contributions to the first film, a series of percolating vocal and instrumental numbers, are exactly what you might expect from the artist-with-the-most-complicated-identifying-logo-in-the-whole-history-of-the-music-industry (why didn't he call himself the Artist-With-No-Name, instead?). This is certainly not meant as a put-down, but your overall acceptance of the set will hinge entirely on how you feel about Prince himself, whose brilliance and creativity is not always to everyone's taste.

Such is not the case with the pop song compilation for the third film which brings together various performers, in selections that have a much more limited appeal. In the film, these songs were mercifully heard as snippets in the background and did not interfere with the action, but brought upfront in the CD, they reveal their apparent lack of creativity, and do not stand well under close scrutiny.

Batman And Robin

1997, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Batman And Robin, Warner Bros. Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Elliot Goldenthal; Song Producers: Nellee Hooper & Billy Corgan, D.J. U-Neek, R. Kelly, Arkarna, Scott Litt & R.E.M., Peter Collins, Sean Slade, Gary Clark, Soul Coughing, Roisin Murphy & Mark Brydon, David Gamson, Eric Benet, George Nash, Jr., & Demonte, Matthais Gohl, Rick Smith; Album Executive Producers: Danny Bramson, Gary LeMel; Engineers: Chris Shepard, R. 11 Poison Ivy (J. Leiber/M. Stoller)(3:33) Me' Shell NedgeOcello; 12 True To Myself (E. Benet/G. Nash, Jr.)(4:41) Eric Benet; 13 A Batman Overture (E. Goldenthal)(3:36); 14 Moaner (Underworld) (10:17) Moaner; 15 The Beginning Is The End Is The Beginning (B. Corgan) (5:01) The Smashing Pumpkins.

Review: The jukebox approach of "Batman Forever" worked so well that there was no question what approach would be taken for the fourth edition of the caped crusader's series. Like its predecessor, this aims squarely at pop radio, bringing together top artists from the modern rock and R&B worlds. Smashing Pumpkins bookend the set with the same song performed two different ways—"The End is the Beginning is the End" and "The Beginning is the End is the Beginning." R. Kelly's gospel-tinged "Gotham City" is gentle ear candy, while Me'shell Ndegeocello offers a clever re-invention of the classic "Poison Ivy."

Batman: Mask of the Phantasm

1993, Reprise Records; from the animated feature Batman: Mask of the Phantasm, Warner Bros., 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Shirley Walker; Orchestrations: Ian Walker, Lolita Ritmanis, Peter Tomashek, Harvey R. Cohen, Michael McCuistion, Larry Rench; Music Editor: Thomas Milano; Featured Musician: Hans Zimmer (synthesizer); Album Producer: Shirley Walker; Engineer: Robert Fernandez.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:35); 2 The Promise (:43); 3 Ski Mask Vigilante (3:00); 4 Phantasm's Graveyard Murder (3:35); 5 First Love (1:32); 6 The Big Chase (5:28); 7 A Plea For Help (1:51); 8 The Birth Of Batman (4:15); 9 Phantasm And Joker Fight (4:03); 10 Batman's Destiny (3:42); 11 I Never Even Told You (S. Garrett/G. Ballard)(4:21) Tia Carrere.

Review: Shirley Walker, who developed quite a following through her work on some of Hans Zimmer's most intelligent soundtracks, began striking out on her own, notably with this score, written for an animated feature based on the Batman comic strip, which evidences her solid qualities as a film composer. In contrast to the bombastic action cues one might expect to find in a film of this kind, "First Love" reveals a romantic side that's most endearing, with chimes mingling around a melodic line to create an attractive cue; and "A Plea For Help" evolves around another lovely melody, played on the organ with orchestral backing, and limned by the soft accompaniment of a choir (a recurring device in Walker's score). An obligatory vocal by Tia Carrere, however, proves jarring amid all the great orchestral sounds devised by the composer, while it fails to add anything to the recording itself.

1987, MCA Records; from the movie batteries not included*, Universal Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie, Billy May; Music Editors: Jim Flamberg, Else Blangsted; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:55); 2 Night Visitors (8:47); 3 Hamburger Rhumba (3:39); 4 New Babies (3:45); 5 Cafe Swing (3:32); 6 Times Square and Farewell (6:06); 7 Arson (6:08); 8 A New Family/End Credits (8:28).

Review: The "Main Title," a great big band number, sets the tone for this attractive soundtrack album. Horner's score, for this "space"-related story about alien visitors presented under the aegis of Steven Spielberg, is a deft mixture of ominous-sounding instrumental chords and thoroughly enjoyable 1940s dance numbers. Two exhilarating selections stand out in the mix, "Hamburger Rhumba" and "Cafe Swing," both of which evoke specific corresponding scenes in the film.

Creating a different, though equally attractive aura of their own, the long cues marked "Night Visitors," "Time Square and Farewell," "Arson," and "A New Family/End Credits" enable the composer to fully develop his musical ideas and present them in ways that emphasize the intricacies and the solidity in the writing.

Battle of Neretva

1987, Southern Cross Records; from the movie Battle of Neretva, American International Pictures, 1970.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Bernard Herrmann; Album Producer: John Lasher; Engineers: Bob Auger, Bill Giolando, Fred Mitchell.

Selections: 1 Prelude (2:33); 2 The Retreat (3:41); 3 Separation (4:01); 4 From Italy (3:16); 5 Chetnik's March (1:46); 6 Farewell (1:50); 7 Partisan March (1:29); 8 Pastorale (1:58); 9 The Turning Point (5:15); 10 The Death Of Danica (2:12); 11 Victory! (Finale)(2:33).

Review: Even though it boasts an international cast that includes Yul Brynner, Curt Jurgens, Franco Nero, Hardy Kruger, Silva Koscina, and Orson Welles, portraying an unlikely royalist senator, the epic Battle of Neretva, made in 1971, is not particularly remembered, nor is, for that matter, Bernard Herrmann's score mentioned among his best known achievements. One of the many decisive battles fought during World War II, Neretva was the scene of an intense, brutal confrontation between Tito's ragged, small partisan army and Hitler's well-appointed Panzer divisions. Though he had only scored one war film before that, The Naked and the Dead, in 1958, Herrmann proved his skills in this score, drawing descriptive motifs from Ukrainian folk-type melodies, brass figures, and string ostinato to portray the scene of the action and the unequal forces at play. Characteristically flavorful, it is an unusual score, with strongly evocative themes, which deserves to be discovered, though the recording itself would gain at sounding a bit warmer than it does.

Beaches

1988, Atlantic Records; from the movie Beaches, Touchstone Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Arrangers: Marc Shaiman, Arif Mardin, Robbie Buchanan, Robbie Kondor; Featured Vocalists: Bette Midler, David Pack, David Lasley, Marcy Levy, Arnold McCuller, Rachele Cappelli, Angela Cappelli, Ula Hedwig, Gene Merlino, Gail Farrell, Angie Jaree, Melissa MacKay, Robert Tibow, Joe Pazulo; Album Producer: Arif Mardin; Engineers: Jack Joseph Puig, Joey Wolpert.

Selections: 1 Under The Boardwalk (A. Resnick/K. Young)(4:19); 2 Wind Beneath My Wings (L. Henley/J. Silbar)(4:53); 3 I've Still Got My Health (C. Porter)(1:29); 4 I Think It's Going To Rain Today (R. Newman)(3:30); 5 Otto Titsling (B. Midler/J. Blatt/C. Seger/M. Shaiman)(3:12); 6 I Know You By Heart (D. Pitchford/G. Merrill/S. Rubicam)(4:39); 7 The Glory Of Love (B. Hill)(3:14); 8 Baby Mine (N. Washington/F. Churchill)(2:06); 9 Oh Industry (B. Midler/W. Waldman)(4:05); 10 The Friendship Theme (G. Delerue) (1:58).

Review: This is nothing more than a clever Bette Midler showcase, with solid renditions of songs she wrote ("Otto Titsling," "Oh Industry"), some standards ("Under the Boardwalk"), some unusual choices ("Baby Mine," from the Disney film Dumbo, and Cole Porter's "I've Still Got My Health"), the whole thing capped by a short instrumental theme penned by Georges Delerue. It may be strictly for fans, but don't deny yourself the enjoyments of which there are quite a few!

The Beast

1988, A&M Records; from the movie The Beast, Columbia Pictures, 1988.

Selections: 1 Badal (27:18); 2 Nanawatai (23:31).

Review: A powerful war drama set in 1981, based on Nanawatai, a play by William Mastrosimone, The Beast recounts a fictional incident during the Russian occupation of Afghanistan, about a tank, the "beast" of the title, and its occupants, who are trapped in a valley following the destruction of a village. There is a confrontational situation elicited between the Russian soldiers and their commander, a fanatic not above killing his own men, and the Afghan partisans. But while Mark Isham's atmospheric synth score might have well served the tense screen action, it proves less than compelling on its own terms, with electronic lines and an occasional horn sound, colliding with percussive effects in the two stretched-out tracks that recombine the cues composed for the occasion.

Beastmaster 2: Through the Portal of Time

1991, Intrada Records; from the movie Beastmaster 2: Through the Portal of Time, New Line Cinema, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Robert Folk; Orchestrations: Robert Folk, Peter Tomashek, Richard Bronskill; Music Editor: Doug Lackey; The Berlin Radio Concert Orchestra, conducted by Robert Folk; Album Producer: Robert Folk; Engineer: Brian Masterson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:52); 2 Dar The Hero (9:49); 3 Creature's Story (2:22); 4 Through The Portal (5:09); 5 Jackie Alone On Desert (1:29); 6 Swamp Creature Attacks (2:35); 7 Travel Montage (3:08); 8 Mind Suck (2:05); 9 Police Escape (1:06); 10 Jackie Gets Some Sleep (:51); 11 I.D. Badges (4:25); 12 Get Arklon (1:47); 13 The Great Escape (4:26); 14 Sharawk Leads The Way (3:32); 15 Neutron Detonator (5:40); 16 Key To The Heart (5:32).

Review: Robert Folk succeeded Lee Holdridge for this sequel to the epic The Beastmaster, featuring another sword-wielding muscled Adonis whose peculiar talent is that he can communicate with animals and travel through time. As he explains in his notes to the album, Folk seized upon the opportunity Beastmaster 2: Through the Portal of Time offered him to write a score firmly rooted in the epic genre, yet laid out in contemporary terms since portions of the story take place in modern-day San Francisco. In every respect, he fulfilled his obligation, creating a set of musical cues that evoke the primitive world from which the hero comes, and the modern setting in which he suddenly finds himself.

But beyond the mere logistics that were imposed on him by the storyline, Folk wrote an outstanding score, beautifully delineated and lyrically expressive, that must count among the best efforts in the genre. Cue after cue, the music, superbly performed by the Berlin Radio Concert Orchestra, unveils its many layers of gorgeous sounds and satisfying melodies to create a musical programming that stands out on its own merits. There are many highlights in the set, but for starters you may want to try "Dar the Hero," "Through the Portal," "The Great Escape" and "Key to the Heart." Now, about that unbelievable story about a muscleman from the past who...

The Beautician and the Beast

1997, Milan Records; from the movie The Beautician and the Beast, Paramount Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Cliff Eidelman; Orchestrations: Patrick Russ, Pete Anthony, Geoff Alexander, Greg Knowles; Music Editor: Jay Richardson; The London Metropolitan Orchestra, conducted by Cliff Eidelman; Album Producer: Cliff Eidelman; Engineers: Chris Dibble, Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Prelude (1:13); 2 Joy Falls On A Cloud (1:19); 3 The Castle (1:37); 4 Party Preparations (1:41); 5 Walking On The Edge (1:29); 6 Falling For The President (2:35); 7 Pochenko Meets The Peasants (2:07); 8 L'Internationale (E. Pottier/P. Degeyter)(1:46); 9 Kleist Blackmails Joy (2:02); 10 His Excellency (:35); 11 Cinderella's Confession (1:52); 12 The Chicken (1:10); 13 Ballroom Waltz (1:32); 14 The J Waltz (J. Graff)(2:44); 15 Boris' Proud Speech (1:11); 16 You Are A Beast (2:11); 17 Going Away (2:20); 18 The Prince And The Princess (1:35).

Review: This album boasts a charmingly old fashioned romantic score by Cliff Eidelman, which certainly adds some big screen feel to The Nanny Fran Drescher's uninspired feature film variation on her TV persona. Much of Eidelman's score is appropriately built on a waltz motif, an attempt to create an atmosphere similar to the one established in Hollywood films of the 1940s, the ones with European locales. Romance is certainly an emotion that Eidelman writes from the heart. Includes the standard "L'Internationale," sung with a full chorus.

Beavis and Butt-Head Do America

1996, Milan Records; from the movie Beavis and Butt-Head Do America, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: John Frizzell; Orchestrations: Frank Bennett, Emilie A. Bernstein; Music Editor: Abby Treloggen; The London Metropolitan Orchestra, conducted by Allan Wilson; Album Producer: John Frizzell; Engineer: Chris Dibble.

Selections: 1 Buttkong (2:57); 2 The Flood (2:05); 3 The Unit In Beavis' Pants (2:07); 4 Dying In The Desert (3:33); 5 The ATF (1:21); 6 Dallas And Muddy (1:47); 7 Searching For The T.V. (:51); 8 Beavis The Sperm (1:45); 9 The Freeway Incident (1:36); 10 DEFCON 4 (1:46); 11 Judgorian Chant (:37); 12 Mr. President, We're Gonna Score (1:50); 13 The Walk Into The Sunset (1:04); 14 The Standoff (3:31); 15 Aunque La Mona (:54); 16 Mucha Muchacha (J. Garcia Esquivel)(2:18) Juan Garcia Esquivel.

Review: John Frizzell's unbelievably large scale orchestral score sounds nothing like what you'd expect for the feature film spin-off of this MTV animated series. The composer wisely chose to play against type by not writing a comedic score, and somehow it works remarkably well. Pieces like "Beavis the Sperm" are so honestly sincere in their intent that they just can't fail in making the film even funnier by taking it all so seriously. We're sure the real words in "Judgorian Chant" say nothing good, but who can tell?

Bed & Breakfast

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Bed & Breakfast, Hemdale Films, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: David Shire; Orchestrations: David Shire; Music Editor: Lori Slomka; The Irish Film Orchestra, conducted by David Shire; Featured Musicians: Audrey Collins (violin), Jay Rosen (electronic violin); Album Producer: David Shire; Engineer: Joe Gastwirt.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Cassie's Toccata (3:20); 2 Claire Remembers Blake (2:30); 3 After Dinner Concert/Amos, Roth And Lobsters (2:25); 4 Renovations Montage (2:25); 5 What Cassie Knows/Renovation Montage II (2:35); 6 Chalk Talk/Beach Walk (2:45); 7 Summer Solstice (3:30); 8 Rowboat Scene (2:35); 9 Heart To Heart (2:00); 10 Where's Adam/Attic Scene/Decision Montage (4:20); 11 Claire Sailing (3:10); 12 End Credits (2:40).

Review: Bed and Breakfast is a 1991 film nobody saw, beautifully photographed on the Maine coast, about a charming rogue (Roger Moore) who comes to stay with a household of women from three generations. One of them is a violinist, which inspires a large portion of David Shire's gem of a score, a lost piece of melodic joie de vivre put out on Varešе Sarabande's short-lived composer-vanity label (i.e. a few albums Varešе released, but not through their regular distributor). Shire comes from a background of both Broadway and film (he did such '70s masterpieces as The Taking of Pelham One Two Three, The Conversation and All the President's Men) and the two genres merge for a score that features several completely realized pieces, but is dramatically understated and flowing throughout. Solo lines dominate, brimming with melody, making the score like another character in the film—at times dancing, reflecting, singing, or speaking a soft lullaby. The size of the orchestra would almost seem too much for the story, but with his chamber/minimalist-like arpeggios Shire makes it honest, gentle and poignant. It's not as large as the Maine coast, or as small as an individual, but rather as big as life by the sea can make you feel.

1996, Milan Records; from the movie Bed of Roses, New Line Cinema, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Convertino; Orchestrations: John Neufeld, Conrad Pope, Bobby Muzingo; Music Editor: Kenn Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producer: Michael Convertino; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Boom (3:56); 2 Tuesday (3:02); 3 Dream (2:39); 4 Independent Love Song (C. Parker/J. Youle)(3:50) Scarlet; 5 Too Much Perfection (1:44); 6 I Looked Up (2:56); 7 Ice Cream (S. McLachlan)(2:42) Sarah McLachlan; 8 In Winter (1:51); 9 Amelia And The King Of Plants (3:07); 10 Family (2:13); 11 Wait (1:56); 12 Killing Time (T. Harris/D. O'Brien)(3:32) Daniel O'Brien; 13 Nervous Heart (M. Addison/J. Zimmerman) (3:22) The Borrowers; 14 Snow Fell On Walter (2:29).

Review: Michael Convertino is one of those composers who writes distinct and consistently fine music for films, but always seems to get overlooked. Bed of Roses, the watchable but almost fatally low-key romance with Christian Slater and Mary Stuart Masterson, features a Convertino score that provides a musical atmosphere that's melodic and earthy, characterized by an almost new-age feel that provides ambiance at the same time it works to accentuate the relationship of the two characters. Convertino's music often lacks numerous "themes" in the traditional sense, but rather contains recurring motives that come and go within the musical "space" that the composer creates in his scores. The result here is an emotional but tranquil effort that is different enough from traditional film scores to grab your attention, and good enough to keep you listening intently.

Beethoven's 2nd

1993, Columbia Records; from the movie Beethoven's 2nd, Universal Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie, Ralph Ferraro, Mark McKenzie; Music Editor: Kathy Durning; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineer: Elton Ashi.

Selections: 1 The Day I Fall In Love (C. Bayer Sager-J. Ingram-C. Magness) (4:09) Dolly Parton, James Ingram; 2 Opening (Snoozing With Beethoven) (3:31); 3 Chance Meeting At The Park (3:48); 4 Burger Binge (1:53); 5 First Kiss (1:48); 6 Feeding Time (3:15); 7 Discovering The Pups (3:00); 8 Two-Dog Walk (2:44); 9 The Facts Of Life (3:38); 10 A New Day (1:56); 11 Rhyce And Seth (1:13); 12 Finding Missy (1:14); 13 Over The Cliff

(2:54); 14 In The Moonlight (2:28); 15 Going Up The Mountain (2:08); 16 Raging Water/Home Again (1:22); 17 Finale (1:13).

Review: Were it not for the jaunty main theme, you might think that Randy Edelman's grander-than-life music for Beethoven had been composed for an epic. Actually, it may be one of the score's greatest flaws. While quite attractive and ultimately fun to listen to, it is much too lush to convince anyone that the film was nothing more than a minor comedy. In fact, in cue after cue, it sounds as if Edelman had been trying to outclass Danny Elfman or James Horner. This said, there are many delightful moments amid the bombast for one to enjoy on a pleasant Sunday afternoon, or any other day for that matter.

And since it worked so well the first time, Edelman encored for the sequel, in which his cues sound equally lovely and overly orchestrated. Now let's be realistic—the film may be called Beethoven's 2nd, but it really has nothing to do with Ludwig van, and a little restraint might have worked just as well.

Beetlejuice

1988, Geffen Records; from the movie Beetlejuice, Warner Bros., 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek; Music Editors: Bob Badami, Nancy Fogarty; Orchestra conducted by Bill Ross; Album Producers: Danny Elfman, Steve Bartek; Engineer: Bob Fernandez.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (2:27); 2 Travel Music (1:07); 3 The Book/ Obituaries (1:30); 4 Enter... "The Family"/Sand Worm Planet (2:50); 5 The Fly (:50); 6 Lydia Discovers? (:59); 7 In The Model (1:35); 8 Juno's Theme (:48); 9 Beetle-Snake (2:08); 10 "Sold" (:35); 11 The Flier/Lydia's Pep Talk (1:25); 12 Day-O (E. Darling/B. Carey/A. Arkin)(3:05) Harry Belafonte; 13 The Incantation (3:11); 14 Lydia Strikes A Bargain... (:52); 15 Showtime! (1:05); 16 "Laughs" (2:33); 17 The Wedding (2:02); 18 The Aftermath (1:21); 19 End Credits (2:47); 20 Jump In Line (Shake, Shake Senora)(3:08) Harry Belafonte.

Review: This delightfully manic Danny Elfman score actually proves that carnival-style music can be used to make a bona fide film score! Bright and bouncy, it crosses effortlessly between the equally bizarre world of the undead and a country home possessed by the ghosts of its former owners. With the dark and twisted textures of director Tim Burton's production design, the score turns it all into a twisted live action cartoon. Heavy influences are drawn from Harry Belafonte's Caribbean songs, two of which are featured on the album, for some very bizarre musical numbers.

Before and After

1996, Hollywood Records; from the movie Before and After, Hollywood Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Howard Shore; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian; Music Editor: Suzana Peric; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Howard Shore; Album Producer: Howard Shore; Engineer: John Kurlander.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:03); 2 Searching For Clues (1:54); 3 Destroying Evidence (3:03); 4 Looking For Jacob (2:07); 5 First Postcard (1:48); 6 Dr. Ryan (:51); 7 Apprehended (3:12); 8 Preliminary Hearing (1:05); 9 Ben And Carolyn (1:27); 10 Treehouse (2:55); 11 The Confession (4:49); 12 The Grand Jury (1:46); 13 Carolyn (2:11); 14 It's Your Fault (1:54); 15 The Truth (1:41); 16 Jacob's Gone (2:00); 17 Before And After (4:14).

Review: A criminal case with romantic undertones, starring Meryl Streep and Liam Neeson, Before and After elicited a dramatic score from Howard Shore, demonstrating particularly emotive skills in writing themes that are attractive, despite the deliberately slow and ominous tone adopted. The relentless somber moods might not be to everyone's liking, but the music is quite striking with the recording by the London Philharmonic Orchestra extracting all the flavor in a very effective reading.

Ben-Hur

Ben-Hur

1989, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Ben-Hur, M-G-M/ Turner, 1925.

Album Notes: Music: Carl Davis; Orchestrations: Colin Matthews, David Matthews; The Royal Liverpool Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Carl Davis; Album Producer: Paul Wing; Engineer: Mike Hatch.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles (3:29); 2 The Nativity: The Cave Of David/ Star Of Bethlehem/The Adoration Of The Magi (5:21); 3 Esther And The Young Prince (3:56); 4 Roman March and Disaster: Gratus' Entry Into Jerusalem/ Storming The Palace and Arrest (6:00); 5 Galley Slave (4:55); 6 Pirate Battle (5:58); 7 Iras The Egyptian (7:40); 8 The Chariot Race: The Gathering Of The Chariots/The Race (13:57); 9 Ben-Hur's Return: The Palace Of Hur/Lepers (11:03); 10 Via Dolorosa: The Way Of The Cross/Miracle (5:06); 11 Earthquake And New Dawn: Collapse Of The Senate/The Resurrection (3:46).

Review: Anyone familiar with Miklos Rozsa's massive score for the 1959 Ben-Hur (see below) will be doubly interested in listening to this soundtrack album. First because Carl Davis was differently inspired than Rozsa by the basic storyline, second because Davis writing a new score for the silent film of 1925 was not under the same constraints and limitations imposed to Rozsa, and may have been more at liberty to let his imagination run free.

The basic concepts of religious reverence and epic outbursts are very much in evidence in his score, as they were in Rozsa's, and his treatment of "The Chariot Race," for instance, has nothing to envy the music for the 1959 version. If anything Davis' thunderous "Gathering of the Chariots," with its heavy reliance on drums, contrasts with Rozsa's clarion-clear trumpet calls. But while Davis' overall approach may sound more traditionally symphonic in a Wagnerian sense, the end result is a score that is equally stirring. Playing by the Royal Liverpool is consistently solid and exciting.

Ben-Hur

1996, Rhino Records; from the movie Ben-Hur, M-G-M, 1959.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; Orchestrations: Miklos Rozsa, Eugene Zador; The M-G-M Studio Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Miklos Rozsa; Album Producer: Marilee Bradford; Engineer: Douglas Schwartz.

Selections: CD 1: 1 Overture (6:32); 2 Anno Domini (1:32); 3 Star of Bethlehem (1:33); 4 Adorations Of The Magi (2:04); 5 Shofar Call (:11); 6 Prelude (Main Title)(2:10); 7 Marcia Romana (1:56); 8 Spirit And Sword (:51); 9 Friendship (4:23); 10 The House Of Hur (1:41); 11 The Conflict (1:42); 12 Esther (2:35); 13 The Unknown Future (:43); 14 Love Theme (2:11); 15 Ring For Freedom (2:39); 16 Salute For Gratus (:33); 17 Gratus' Entry To Jerusalem (1:57); 18 The Arrest (1:18); 19 Reminiscences (1:47); 20 Revenge (1:21); 21 Condemned (:55); 22 Escape (2:06); 23 Vengeance (:45); 24 The Prison (:39); 25 The Desert (2:14); 26 Exhaustion (2:08); 27 The Prince Of Peace, Part 1 (3:07); 28 The Prince Of Peace, Part 2 (1:49); 29 Roman Galley (:57); 30 Salute For Arrius (:20); 31 Quintus Arrives (:40); 32 Roman Fleet (1:05); 33 The Galley (Rowing Of The Galley Slaves), Part 1-4 (3:14); 34 Rest (1:19); 35 Battle Preparations, Parts 1 & 2 (1:59); 36 The Pirate Fleet (1:06); 37 Attack! (1:27); 38 Ramming Speed! (:18); 39 The Battle, Parts 1 & 2 (3:05); 40 Rescue (1:53); 41 Roman Sails (:48); 42 The Rowers (:25); 43 Victory Parade, Parts 1 & 2 (2:50).

CD 2: 1 Fertility Dance (:59); 2 Arrius' Party, Parts 1 & 2 (1:30); 3 Nostalgia (:35); 4 Farewell To Rome (1:39); 5 Judea, Part 1 (2:55); 6 Judea, Part 2 (:24); 7 A Barren Coast (:27); 8 Balthasar (2:00); 9 Balthasar's World (1:56); 10 Homecoming (1:22); 11 Memories (2:48); 12 Hatred (1:34); 13 Lepers (1:00); 14 Return (2:51); 15 Promise (2:29); 16 Sorrow and Intermission (1:24); 17 Entr'acte (3:47); 18 Panem et Circenses (Bread And Circus) March (:52); 19 Circus Fanfares (:42); 20 Panem et Circenses March (1st reprise) (:52); 21 Fanfare For Circus Parade (:14); 22 Circus Parade (Parade Of The Charioteers)(2:13); 23 Fanfare For Start Of Race (:11); 24 Panem et Circenses March (2nd reprise) (:56); 25 Victory March (:17); 26 Bitter Triumph (:46); 27 Aftermath, No. 1 (2:06); 28 Valley Of Lepers (1:11); 29 The Search (2:19); 30 The Uncleans (2:28); 31 Road Of Sorrow (2:48); 32 The Mount (:39); 33 The Sermon (:39); 34 Frustration (1:15); 35 Valley Of The Dead (2:35); 36 Tirzah Saved (2:22); 37 The Procession To Calvary (2:54); 38 The Bearing Of The Cross (2:46); 39 Recognition (1:27); 40 Aftermath, No. 2 (2:22); 41 Golgotha (:52); 42 Shadow Of A Storm (1:00); 43 The Miracle (1:46); 44 Finale (3:07); 45 Star Of Bethlehem (alternate take) (1:33).

Review: See entry below.

Ben-Hur

1985, London Records; from the movie Ben-Hur, M-G-M, 1959.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The National Philharmonic Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Miklos Rozsa.

Selections: 1 Fanfare To Prelude (3:59); 2 Star Of Bethlehem and Adoration Of The Magi (4:03); 3 Friendship (3:55); 4 The Burning Desert (5:24); 5 Arrius' Party (1:46); 6 Rowing Of The Galley Slaves (2:39); 7 Parade Of The Charioteers (3:34); 8 The Mother's Love (2:54); 9 Return To Judea (2:33); 10 Ring For Freedom (2:50); 11 Lepers' Search For The Christ (3:14); 12 Procession To Calvary (4:46); 13 Mirace and Finale (5:32).

Review: A hugely popular soundtrack, the music from Ben-Hur was initially released on one LP by M-G-M Records to coincide with the film's first run. The success of that album soon prompted the label to issue a second volume on the subsidiary label, Leo Records, though that album was deleted soon after.

With the advent of CDs, Ben-Hur was then reissued several times, but the Rhino set finally presents the colossal score in all its grandeur, with each cue properly sequenced, plus many outtakes and selections that were initially composed but discarded before the final cut.

Though Rozsa created many outstanding scores during his long and prolific career as a film composer, Ben-Hur must be considered his crowning achievement. The 2-CD set does it full justice.

For those less inclined to purchase the Rhino set, the National Philharmonic Orchestra and Chorus, under the direction of the composer, give a sumptuous reading of highlights from the score, in what might be a recording of choice.

Benny & Joon

1993, Milan Records; from the movie Benny & Joon, M-G-M, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Rachel Portman; Music Editor: Bill Abbott; Orchestra conducted by J.A.C. Redford; Album Producer: David Franco; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 I'm Gonna Be (500 Miles)(3:34) The Proclaimers; 2 Benny And Joon (2:45); 3 Snorkel's Mask (1:03); 4 Joon's Medicine (1:41); 5 Hubcaps (:31); 6 Sam's New Home/Raisins (2:39); 7 Balloon (1:49); 8 In The Park (5:09); 9 Love Theme (3:08); 10 Sam Is Kicked Out (3:36); 11 On The Bus (4:10); 12 Swinging (2:59); 13 Sam And Joon (1:39); 14 Benny And Joon (reprise)(2:44).

Review: In recent years, women composers have succeeded in making themselves heard in a field that had essentially been a man's world. High on that list of relative newcomers is Rachel Portman, who made quite an impression with this quirky score for a film starring Johnny Depp, in which the influence of Danny Elfman is occasionally apparent. Writing for a handful of solo instruments within the larger framework provided by the orchestra, Portman developed a series of attractive cues anchored by the main theme, with the clarinet and the flute playing an essential role in the mix ("Balloon," "In the Park," "Love Theme").

The Benny Goodman Story

1972, MCA Records; from the movie The Benny Goodman Story, Universal Pictures, 1955.

Album Notes: Featured Musicians: Benny Goodman and His Orchestra, The Benny Goodman Quartet, The Benny Goodman Trio.

Selections: 1 Let's Dance (F. Baldridge/J. Bonine/G. Stone)(2:17); 2 Down South Camp Meetin' (3:03); 3 King Porter Stomp (F. Morton)(2:40); 4 It's Been So Long (H. Adamson/W. Donaldson)(3:17); 5 Roll 'Em (3:13); 6 Bugle Call Rag (E. Blake/ C. Morgan)(2:57); 7 Don't Be That Way (M. Parish/B. Goodman/E. Sampson)(3:52); 8 You Turned The Tables On Me (S. Mitchell/L. Alter)(2:54) Martha Tilton; 9 Goody Goody (M. Malneck/J. Mercer)(2:17); 10 Slipped Disc (B. Goodman)(4:13) The Benny Goodman Octet; 11 Stompin' At The Savoy (A. Razaf/ B. Goodman/E. Sampson/C. Webb)(2:32); 12 One O'Clock Jump (W. Basie/H. James) (3:07); 13 Memories Of You (E. Blake/A. Razaf) (2:48) The Benny Goodman Trio; 14 China Boy (D. Winfree/P. Boutelje) (3:32) The Benny Goodman Trio; 15 Moonglow (E. DeLange/W. Hudson/I. Mills)(6:49) The Benny Goodman Quartet; 16 Avalon (A. Jolson/B.G. DeSylva/V. Rose)(6:05) The Benny Goodman Quartet; 17 And The Angels Sing (Z. Elman/J. Mercer)(2:59) Martha Tilton; 18 Jersey Bounce (B. Feyne/R. Wright/B. Plater/T. Bradshaw/E. Johnson)(3:00); 19 Shine (C. Mack/L. Brown/ F. Dabney)(:58) Harry James; 20 Sing Sing Sing (With A Swing) (L. Prima)/Christopher Columbus (L. Berry/A. Razaf)(7:59).

Review: Even if the story of the legendary Benny Goodman is highly romanticized in the film The Benny Goodman Story and hardly reflected the reality of his life, one thing that is truly authentic in the film is the music, performed by the great man himself, and many of the sidemen who had made the journey to fame with him back in the '30s, including Harry James, Gene Krupa, Lionel Hampton, Teddy Wilson and Martha Tilton, among many others. The selections, heard in this soundtrack album, are actual recreations of the band's most famous hits, including Goodman's signature songs, "Let's Dance," "One O'Clock Jump" and "Stompin' at the Savoy," as well as "Moonglow," "Avalon," "And the Angels Sing," "Don't Be That Way," and the always thrilling "Sing Sing Sing" with its "Christopher Columbus" interpolation, which was one of the highlights at the celebrated Carnegie Hall concert in 1938. If you like jazz, and if you like big bands, and even if you hate the saccharine film, you owe it to yourself to have this album.

The Best Years of Our Lives

1988, Preamble Records; from the movie The Best Years of Our Lives, Samuel Goldwyn Productions, 1946.

Album Notes: Music: Hugo Friedhofer; Orchestrations: Jerome Moross, Edward B. Powell, Leo Shuken, Sidney Cutner; Orchestrations reconstructed: Tony Bremner; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Franco Collura; Featured Soloist: Bob Burns (alto sax); Album Producer: John Lasher; Engineer: Bob Auger

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:26); 2 Homecoming (6:17); 3 The Elevator/ Boone City/Peggy (4:12); 4 Fred And Peggy (2:22); 5 The Nightmare (6:12); 6 Fred Asleep (2:19); 7 Neighbors/ Wilma/ Homer's Anger (7:31); 8 Homer Goes Upstairs (5:49); 9 The Citation/Graveyard And Bombers (4:21); 10 End Title and End Cast (Wilma)(1:58); 11 Exit Music (1:54).

Review: This classic Academy Award-winning score by Hugo Friedhofer was created to illustrate the lives of three veterans coming back to their hometown at the end of World War II, and the problems they encounter trying to adjust to the changes that have occurred within themselves and around them. Beautifully lyrical, but eschewing a maudlin sentimentality that could have seemed unnecessary in less experienced hands, Friedhofer wrote a score that confronted and underlined the powerful, emotionally charged story in which the full range of human feelings found an expression, from wrenching torment to liberating love, from tears to laughter.

The recording, one of the earliest reconstructions of a classic film score, does full justice to the many beauties contained in the music, with the London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Franco Collura, giving a top-notch performance, further enhanced by the superlative ambient sound.

Betrayed

1988, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Betrayed, United Artists, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Bill Conti; Orchestrations: Jack Eskew; Orchestra conducted by Bill Conti; Featured Musicians: John Goux (guitar), Tommy Morgan (harmonica), Bill Conti (piano); Album Producers: Bill Conti, Lee DeCarlo; Engineer: Lee DeCarlo.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:15); 2 The Stalk (1:33); 3 To The Bank (1:13); 4 The Way (2:11); 5 Riding To Work (1:18); 6 Shoot The Horse (1:30); 7 Guns (1:36); 8 The Bank Robbery (:44); 9 I'm Back (1:38); 10 There Ain't No Going Back (1:12); 11 Another Way (2:16); 12 Trip To Chicago (:53); 13 Passing Time (:57); 14 The Contract (1:35); 15 Rock Country (1:18); 16 My F.B.I. (1:01); 17 Marry Me (:50); 18 Kill Me Kathy (1:14); 19 End Title (3:58).

Review: Bill Conti fashioned a very engaging, country-styled score for this political thriller, set in the Midwest, about an attractive undercover FBI operative (Debra Winger), who infiltrates a radical group suspected of having murdered a controversial radio talk show host. With a predominance of motifs for guitar and harmonica, the flavorful cues set the scene of the action and give specific moments in it a vibrant musical support ("The Way," "Riding to Work," "Another Way," "Rock Country"), making this an album that's quite pleasant to listen to.

Betty Blue

1986, Virgin Records; from the movie Betty Blue, Alive Films, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Gabriel Yared.

Selections: 1 Betty and Zorg (2:24); 2 Storms Over Night (3:13); 3 Cargo Voyage (1:13); 4 Garbage Cooking (1:47); 5 To Humidify The Mount (1:45); 6 Little Nicolas (3:35); 7 Gyneco Zebra (1:40); 8 Like Two Fingers In The Hand (1:06); 9 Zorg and Betty (2:15); 10 Chili con carne (3:10); 11 It's The Wind, Betty (4:11); 12 Sunset Hanging On A Tree (1:04); 13 Lisa Rock (1:15); 14 The Heart In A Purple Skai (1:12); 15 Bungalow Zen (1:30); 16 37.2 In The Morning (2:54); 17 Damned Fair Rides (2:24).

Review: For this gritty drama by Diva director Jean-Jacques Beineix, Gabriel Yared wrote a convincing score that blends elements of romance and pathos. The story of two youngsters, steady Zorg and batty Betty, on a free-wheeling romp in the country, the film is noticeably distinguished by Beineix's colorful approach to filmmaking, and by Beatrice Dalle's sensual portrayal as Betty. Yared's music captures the poetic focus that contrasted and enhanced the character's slow descent into madness.

The Beverly Hillbillies

1993, Fox Records; from the movie The Beverly Hillbillies, 20th Century-Fox, 1993.

Selections: 1 White Lightnin' (J.P. Richardson)(3:12) Joe Diffie; 2 I Ain't Never (M. Tillis/W. Pierce)(2:25) The Oak Ridge Boys; 3 Crying Time (B. Owens)(3:08) Lorrie Morgan; 4 I'm Movin' On (H. Snow)(2:55) Danny Kershaw; 5 I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry (H. Williams)(4:03) Aaron Tippin; 6 Hot Rod Lincoln (C. Ryan/W.S. Stevenson)(2:47) Jim Varney, Ricky Skaggs; 7 Honey Don't (C. Perkins)(3:31) Joe Walsh, Steve Earle; 8 Together Again (B. Owens)(2:36) Doug Supernaw; 9 If You've Got The Money I've Got The Time (L. Frizzell/J. Beck)(2:01) Ricky Van Shelton; 10 Wasted Days And Wasted Nights (F. Fender/W. Duncan)(3:03) Freddy Fender & The Texas Tornadoes; 11 If You Ain't Got Love (D. Parton)(2:51) Dolly Parton; 12 The Ballad Of Jed Clampett (P. Henning)(1:20) Jerry Scoggins.

Review: This big screen remake of the television series yielded this exuberant soundtrack album, graced by the presence of a great lineup of country performers, including Dolly Parton, The Oak Ridge Boys, Ricky Van Shelton, The Texas Tornadoes, and Lorrie Morgan who does a great rendition of "Crying Time." About a compilation such as this, there is really very little to say. The songs are good natured and pleasant and very enjoyable, and your reaction to the album will largely depend on how you feel about the artists and their stylings. For the record, though, it should be noted that Jerry Scoggins does a cover version of "The Ballad of Jed Clampett." They probably should have used the original!

Beverly Hills Cop

1984, MCA Records; from the movie Beverly Hills Cop, Paramount Pictures, 1984.

Selections: 1 New Attitude (S. Robinson/J. Gilutin/B. Hull)(4:36) Patti LaBelle; 2 Don't Get Stopped In Beverly Hills (Hawk/H. Hewett/M. Free) (4:20) Shalamar; 3 Do You Really (Want My Love?)(Junior/G. Nightingale)(3:44) Junior; 4 Emergency (H. Rice/S. Sheridan)(3:28) Rockie Robbins; 5 Neutron Dance (A. Wills/D. Sembello)(4:12) Pointer Sisters; 6 The Heat Is On (K. Forsey/H. Faltermeyer)(3:45) Glenn Frey; 7 Gratitude (D. Elfman)(5:04) Danny Elfman; 8 Stir It Up (A. Willis/D. Sembello)(3:35) Patti LaBelle; 9 Rock'n'Roll Me Again (M. Bennon/R. Theiner)(3:14) The System; 10 Axel F (H. Faltermeyer)(3:00) Harold Faltermeyer.

Review: One of the more popular song compilation albums still in print years after the release of the film, it owes much of its success to an excellent selection of artists. Many of the songs are prominently featured in the film, particularly some fine work by Patti LaBelle ("New Attitude," "Stir It Up"), Glen Frey ("The Heat is On") and The Pointer Sisters ("Neutron Dance"). The album also features "Gratitude," a vocal performance by Danny Elfman who would breakout the following year with Pee Wee's Big Adventure. A few other songs that were not used in the movie still capture the energy and mood of this fast-paced Eddie Murphy comedy/adventure vehicle. Of course there's also the original version of Harold Faltermeyer's "Axel F" theme, the only piece that could possibly be considered underscore since it was used so often throughout the film.

Beverly Hills Cop III

1994, MCA Records; from the movie Beverly Hills Cop III, Paramount Pictures, 1994.

Selections: 1 The Place Where You Belong (C. Martin/T. Lorenz/D. Van Bensauer/M. Gay/G. Bright)(4:22) Shai; 2 Summer Jamming (I. Levis)(4:03) Inner Circle; 3 Luv 4 Dem Gangsta'z (K. Carter/Doctor Jam)(4:33) Eazy-E; 4 Mood (J. Harris III/T. Lewis/C. Moore)(4:10) Chante Moore; 5 The Right Kinda Lover (J. Harris III/T. Lewis/A. Bennett-Nesby/J. Wright)(4:52) Patti LaBelle; 6 Keep The Peace (K. Forsey/M. Younger-Smith/A. Farriss/ M. Hutchance)(4:29) INXS; 7 Right Thing, Wrong Way (J. Harris III/T. Lewis/T. Trent D'Arby)(5:13) Terence Trent D'Arby; 8 Leavin' (R. Wiggins/ J.L. Smith) (4:06) Tony Toni Tone; 9 Axel F ((H. Faltermeyer)(2:57) Nile Rodgers, Richard Hilton; 10 Come See About Me (B. Holland/E. Holland/ L. Dozier)(2:37) The Supremes.

Review: Like the film series, the "Beverly Hills Cop" musical franchise ran out of steam by its third time out. One can never speak ill of a Supremes classic like "Come See About Me," and there are reasonably good selections from Tony! Toni! Tone! ("Leavin'") and Terence Trent D'Arby ("Right Thing, Wrong Way"). But there's certainly nothing as memorable as any of the hits from the original "Beverly Hills Cop" soundtrack.

Got It (S. Freeman)(3:36) Little John; 17 "...Yes, I guess I did" (:32); 18 The End (G.S. Clinton)(1:19).

Review: Introduced by a funny bit of dialogue, "You're a Ninja?..." that sets the scene for the album, this compilation presents several songs that are part of the soundtrack for this frequently hilarious film about a karate expert who became a Ninja when it would seem he should have been a sumo wrestler instead. But don't let the silliness of the premise drive you crazy—watching the film will suffice. Or try this album, informed by several other moments of nonsense from the soundtrack ("My identity must remain mysterious...," "You're the big, fat Ninja, aren't you," "Close to the temple, not inside..."), and featuring some songs guaranteed to entertain you, even if they don't always delight you, like "Tsugihagi Boogie Woogie," "Tarzan Boy," "Turning Japanese," and Lene Lovich's perversely humorous rendition of "I Think We're Alone Now (Japanese Version)."

The Big Chill

1983, Motown Records; from the movie The Big Chill, Columbia Pictures, 1983.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Roger Nichols; Engineer: John Matousak.

Selections: 1 I Heard It Through The Grapevine (N. Whitfield/B. Strong) (5:04) Marvin Gaye; 2 My Girl (W. Robinson, Jr./R. White)(2:55) The Temptations; 3 Good Lovin' (R. Clark/A. Resnick)(2:28) The Rascals; 4 The Tracks Of My Tears (W. Robinson, Jr./W. Moore/M. Tarplin)(2:53) Smokey Robinson & The Miracles; 5 Joy To The World (H. Axton)(3:24) Three Dog Night; 6 Ain't Too Proud To Beg (N. Whitfield/E. Holland, Jr.)(2:31) The Temptations; 7 (You Make Me Feel Like A) Natural Woman (G. Goffin/C. King/J. Wexler)(2:41) Aretha Franklin; 8 I Second That Emotion (W. Robinson, Jr./A. Cleveland)(2:46) Smokey Robinson & The Miracles; 9 A Whiter Shade Of Pale (K. Reid/G. Brooker)(4:03) Procol Harum; 10 Tell Him (B. Russell)(2:29) The Exciters.

Review: A solid collection of golden oldies that marked a generation and actually rekindled the fortunes of Motown Records when they were used in the soundtrack of this film. Nothing but the best here, and each song chockful of fond memories. Okay, the album is kind of short with ten tracks adding up to 31 minutes of playing time, but for once you still might want to pick up a copy and listen to it, just for the fun of it.

The Big Country

1988/1995, Silva America; from the movie The Big Country, United Artists, 1958

Album Notes: Music: Jerome Moross; Orchestrations: B. Mayers, George Grau, Conrad Salinger, Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Lloyd Young; The Philharmonia Orchestra, conducted by Tony Bremner; Album Producer: Christopher Palmer; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:13); 2 Julie's House (1:57); 3 The Welcoming (3:19); 4 Courtin' Time (1:23); 5 Old Thunder (1:46); 6 The Raid and Capture (4:55); 7-10 Major Terrill's Party (dance suite): (a) dance 1 (1:47), (b) dance 2 (1:03), (c) waltz (2:47), (d) polka (1:00); 11 McKay's Ride/McKay Is Missing/The Old House (5:30); 12 Waiting (1:55); 13 The Big Muddy (3:02); 14 McKay Alone/Night At Ladder Ranch/The Fight (4:30); 15 Cattle At The River (2:18); 16 Attempted Rape (1:45); 17 The War Party Gathers/McKay In Blanco Canyon/The Major Alone (7:16); 18 The Duel/The Death Of Buck Hannassey/End Title (5:33).

Review: One of the great western scores, the music for The Big Country was, for many years, available only on a United Artists mono or rechanneled stereo LP of dubious sonic quality. The score deserved a reevaluation, and this superior recording fills the gap. With The Philharmonia, conducted by Tony Bremner, giving an outstanding performance, Jerome Moross' music emerges full force as the extraordinary effort it always was. Everything in this recording works to emphasize the positive aspects of the score, including the splendid, wide-open sonics, as well as the packaging, with an informative booklet providing behind-the-score glances that will delight any fan of film music.

The Big Easy

1987, Antilles Records; from the movie The Big Easy, Columbia Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Album Compiler: Danny Holloway; Engineers: Ken Perry, Bill Inglot.

Selections: 1 Iko Iko (S. Jones/J. Jones/M. Jones/J. Thomas/B. Hawkins/R. Hwakins/J. Johnson)(2:03) The Dixie Cups; 2 Tipitina (H.R. Byrd)(3:37) Professor Longhair; 3 Ma 'Tit Fille (S. Dural)(6:51) Buckwheat Zydeco; 4 Colinda (p.d.)(3:05) Zachary Richard; 5 Tell It Like It Is (G. Davis/L. Diamond)(4:18) Aaron Neville & The Neville Brothers; 6 Zydeco Gris Gris (M. Doucet)(4:08) Beausoleil; 7 Oh Yeh Yai (T. Simien)(3:13) Terrance Simien & The Mallet Playboys; 8 Hey Hey (Indians Comin')(C. Neville/G. Landry)(4:00) The Wild Tchoupitoulas; 9 Closer To You (D. Quaid/T. Simien)(4:58) Dennis Quaid; 10 Saviour, Pass Me Not (C. Jeter)(5:06) The Swan Silvertones; 11 Buck's Nouvelle Jole Blon (C. Breaux)(4:42) Buckwheat Zydeco & Ils Sont Partis Band; 12 Pine Grove Blues (N. Abshire) (1:03) Dewey Balfa.

Review: The New Orleans setting of this offbeat police drama suggests a score that would make use of the specific sounds heard in that city, with The Dixie Cups, Professor Longhair, Buckwheat Zydeco, and Aaron Neville & The Neville Brothers among the local artists represented. Dennis Quaid, who plays in the film an extrovert homicidal detective, hot after Ellen Barkin, a transfer from another city, the moment she shows up in his office, also wrote and performs a number, "Closer to You," which does not seem so out of place in the context. A flavorful, frequently exhilarating album.

Big Time

1988, Island Records; from the movie Big Time, Island Visual Arts, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Tom Waits; Featured Musicians: Michael Blair (drums, percussion, bongos), Ralph Carney (saxes, clarinets, horn), Greg Cohen (electric bass, alto horn), Marc Ribot (guitars, banjo, trumpet), Willie Schwarz (accordion, Hammond organ, sitar, conga), Fred Tackett (guitar), Richie Hayward (drums), Larry Taylor (upright bass), Tom Waits (organ, vocals); Album Producers: Tom Waits, Kathleen Brennan; Engineer: John Oster.

Selections: 1 16 Shells From A Thirty-Ought-Six (4:10); 2 Red Shoes (4:06); 3 Underground (2:20); 4 Cold Cold Ground (3:18); 5 Straight To The Top (T. Waits/G. Cohen)(2:45); 6 Yesterday Is Here (T. Waits/K. Brennan)(2:57); 7 Way Down In The Hole (4:26); 8 Falling Down (4:12); 9 Strange Weather (T. Waits/K. Brennan)(3:20); 10 Big Black Mariah (2:41); 11 Rain Dogs (3:52); 12 Train Song (2:54); 13 Johnsburg, Illinois (1:32); 14 Ruby's Arms (4:44); 15 Telephone Call From Istanbul (4:15); 16 Clap Hands (4:43); 17 Gun Street Girl (4:00); 18 Time (4:00).

Review: An account of live performances by Tom Waits and his band, recorded in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Dublin, Stockholm, and Berlin, this album is largely a showcase for the songwriter and presents songs that his fans will identify with. As is frequently the case in films such as this, the scope and impact are limited, with Waits' raucous vocals unlikely to attract anyone other than hardcore followers.

Big Top Pee-Wee

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:23); 2 The Girl On The Flying Trapeze (2:01) Pee-Wee Herman; 3 Pee-Wee Flies (:52); 4 Happy House/Pee-Wee Herman Had A Farm (1:16) Pee-Wee Herman and Vance the Pig; 5 Rise 'n Shine (2:52); 6 The Greenhouse (1:00); 7 Sneaky Walk (:48); 8 Race To School (:29); 9 The Big Storm (2:18); 10 Pee-Wee To The Rescue/Lion Problems (1:23); 11 Where's Midge? (:28); 12 Circus Parade (1:03); 13 Sad Drive Home (1:23); 14 Circus In The House (1:23); 15 Happy Circus (1:39); 16 Zsa Zsa's Delight (1:13); 17 Elephant Ride (2:36); 18 The Big Kiss (:53); 19 Rejection (1:41); 20 Mace's Speech (1:13); 21 Man To Man (:27); 22 Psycho Winnie (1:09); 23 Rimprovero (trad.) (:44) Pee-Wee Herman; 24 I Love You (3:09); 25 Pee-Wee Tries/Town Spies (1:30); 26 Pee-Wee's Love Theme (2:45); 27 Angry Mob (:30); 28 Transformations (1:16); 29 Big Top Finale (3:31) Pee-Wee Herman and The Big Top Company; 30 Pee-Wee's Big Surprise (2:26); 31 End Credits (3:02).

Review: This 1988 follow-up to the 1985 cult classic Pee-Wee's Big Adventure didn't bring Tim Burton back behind the camera, but did, at least, reunite Danny Elfman with its daffy protagonist, who here gets involved with a traveling carnival. This setting affords Elfman the opportunity at writing some irresistibly goofy circus music and fanfares, interspersed with more charming, Rota-esque Pee-Wee motifs, newly composed for this sequel (the result of the picture being produced by another studio). There's even a song Pee-Wee croons in his best Sinatra style ("The Girl on the Flying Trapeze"), along with a duet between Pee-Wee and his farm animal sidekicks. The result is an enthusiastic score filled with all the quirky instrumentations associated with Elfman's most offbeat works; dialogue is incorporated in several of the tracks, but they do less to detract from the music than they do to cement the charm of the material. One of Elfman's early scores, the Arista album is now hard-to-find but worth the effort to seek out.

Billy Bathgate

1991, Milan Records; from the movie Billy Bathgate, Touchstone Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Orchestrations: Tom Pasatieri; Music Editor: Todd Kasow; Orchestra conducted by J.A.C. Redford, Enrico DiCecco; Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineers: James Nichols, Marian Conaty.

Selections: 1 The Dutchman (2:52); 2 A Capable Boy (1:34); 3 A Model Citizen (1:19); 4 Bye Bye Blackbird (M. Dixon/R. Henderson)(3:21) Rachel York; 5 Rebecca (1:23); 6 A Girl Whos Not Named Lola (:48); 7 Oyfn Pripetshok (On The Hearth)(M. Warshawsky)(1:56) Children Chorus; 8 Manhattan (:40); 9 Bathgate Avenue (:49); 10 I'm In The Mood For Love (J. McHugh/D. Fields) (2:16); 11 Killer Of Dreams (2:10); 12 To The Fields Of Onondaga (1:49); 13 Latest Development (1:43); 14 I Get A Kick Out Of You (C. Porter)(1:29); 15 Miss Lola Miss Drew (1:29); 16 A Country Town (:42); 17 Irving And Otto (1:27); 18 My Romance (R. Rodgers/L. Hart)(1:57); 19 A Chase At The Races (3:15); 20 Drew Preston (3:35); 21 Billy Bathgate (4:06).

Review: Excessively somber orchestral score by Mark Isham. I actually appreciated the welcome breaks afforded by the selection of period music, pieces such as Cole Porter's "I Get a Kick Out of You." These songs are the only bright spots in a composition that captures the ill-fated life of a young man who joins up with gangster Dutch Schultz (Dustin Hoffman). Isham's work interacts very well with songs, flowing easily and providing some stable emotional support to the film. However, by "A Chase at the Races," it all becomes extremely dark and ominous. Actress Rachel York's vocal version of "Bye Bye Blackbird" is included on the album, as is "Oyfn Pripetshok (On the Heath)," a children's choir theme used for the Schindler' s List trailers.

The Birdcage Woof

1996, edel America Records; from the movie The Birdcage, United Artists, 1996.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Steven Goldstein, Michael O'Martian, Andy Garcia, John Lurie, Emilio Esteban; Album Editor: Charles Martin Inouye.

Selections: 1 We Are Family (B. Edwards/N. Rodgers)(3:35) The Goldman Girls; 2 William Tell Overture (G. Rossini)(1:28); 3 She Works Hard For The Money (D. Summer/M. O'Martian)(3:54) Donna Summer; 4 Can That Boy Fox Trot (S. Sondheim)(2:37) Nathan Lane; 5 Mi Guajira (I. Lopez)(3:53) Cachao; 6 Little Dream (S. Sondheim)(3:26) Nathan Lane; 7 No Pain For Cakes (J. Lurie)(3:57) The Lounge Lizards; 8 Love Is In The Air (S. Sondheim)(3:08) Christine Baranski, Robin Williams; 9 I Could Have Danced All Night (A.J. Lerner/F. Loewe)(1:10) Hank Azaria, Gene Hackman, Nathan Lane, Dianne Wiest, Robin Williams; 10 We Are Family (reprise)(B. Edwards/N. Rodgers)(2:59) The Goldman Girls; 11 Family Salsa (B. Edwards/N. Rodgers)(2:14); 12 Conga (E. Garcia)(3:57) Gloria Estefan & Miami Sound Machine.

Review: This is a clear example of Hollywood at its most commercially crass. Take a funny foreign movie, La cage aux folles (a.k.a. Birds of a Feather), and remake it with an American cast, but make sure to revamp it so that it sounds as if it had originated here. Where the original had a marvelous, whimsical score by Ennio Morricone, replace it now with nondescript songs from various sources (including, God forgive them!, a couple of numbers written by Stephen Sondheim, Broadway's emeritus composer/lyricist and wunderkind, performed in screeching style by the film's stars). Put together a "soundtrack" album, and the poor suckers who saw the film will shell out their $16 gladly to get it. Sorry, but the album truly doesn't deserve it.

The Black Cauldron

1985, Varese-Sarabande; from the animated feature The Black Cauldron, Walt Disney Pictures, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; The Utah Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Musician: Cynthia Millar (Ondes Martinot); Album Producer: Elmer Bernstein.

Selections: 1 Escape From The Castle (2:29); 2 Taran (4:01); 3 The Witches (2:16); 4 Gurgi (3:24); 5 The Horned King (2:55); 6 The Fair Folk (3:08); 7 Hen Wen's Vision (3:44); 8 Eilonwy (5:05); 9 Finale (4:35).

Review: Based on Lloyd Alexander's sword-and-sorcery "Chronicles of Prydain," The Black Cauldron may have seemed too serious and adult an animated feature to entice its target audience of tykes, despite the fact that it involved a stock assortment of daring youngsters and their cuddly animal characters in their fight-to-save-the-world against a group of evil monsters. But it prompted composer Elmer Bernstein to write one of his most interesting scores, a subtle brew of epic and romance, well-designed to play under the screen action and give it more impact while making for an enjoyable listening experience when appreciated on its own terms. The Utah Symphony, conducted by the composer, delivers the goods in this spacious-sounding CD, with the right gusto and usual flourishes.

Black Orpheus

1989, Verve Records; from the movie Black Orpheus, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Luis Bonfa, Antonio Carlos Jobim; CD Producers: Cees Schrama, Richard Seidel, Seth Rothstein.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:09); 2 A Felicidade (A.C. Jobim/V. De Moraes) (2:34); 3 Frevo (A.C. Jobim)(4:27); 4 O nosso amor (A.C. Jobim) (1:10); 5 O nosso amor (A.C. Jobim)(accordion and tambourine)(4:16); 6 Manha de carnaval (L. Bonfa)(3:04); 7 Sunrise (A.C. Jobim)(:47); 8 Manha de carnaval (1:32); 9 Macumba Scenes (trad.)(3:11); 10 O nosso amor (A.C. Jobim)(7:36); 11 Manha de carnaval (L. Bonfa)(2:57); 12 Samba de Orfeo (L. Bonfa/A. Maria)(1:58); 13 Drum Schools (trad.)(4:45); 14 Bola Sete Medley: Manha de carnaval (L. Bonfa)/ A Felicidade (A.C. Jobim)/Samba de Orfeo (L. Bonfa)(13:35).

Review: Two of Brazil's most important composers, Antonio Carlos Jobim and Luis Bonfa, teamed to create the explosive musical score for this colorful retelling of the Orpheus legend set in Rio during the Carnival. The film was the Grand Prize Winner at the Cannes Film Festival in 1959. The song "Manha de carnaval" (Morning of the Carnival), performed by Breno Mello, the film's Orfeo to Marpessa Dawn's Eurydice, is an early expression of the bossa nova movement that swept this country in the mid-1960s.

Black Rain

1989, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Black Rain, Paramount Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Orchestrations: Shirley Walker; Featured Artists: Iggy Pop, UB40, Soul II Soul, Ryuichi Sakamoto, Les Rita Mitsouko and Sparks, Gregg Allman.

Selections: 1 Livin' On The Edge Of The Night (J. Rifkin/E. Rackin)(3:38) Iggy Pop; 2 The Way You Do The Things You Do (R. Rogers/W. Robinson) (3:16) UB40; 3 Back To Life (Jam On The Groove Mix)(B. Romeo/S. Law/P. Hooper) (5:07) Soul II Soul, Caron Wheeler; 4 Laserman (R. Sakamoto)(4:48) Ryuichi Sakamoto; 5 Singing In The Shower (R. Mael/R. Mael)(4:23) Les Rita Mitsouko and Sparks; 6 I'll Be Holding On (D. Paich)(5:39) Gregg Allman; Black Rain Suite (H. Zimmer): 7 Sato (4:45); 8 Charlie Loses His Head (7:04); 9 Sugai (6:52); 10 Nick And Masa (2:55).

Review: Hans Zimmer's volatile percussive mix of orchestral and synthesized performances is a perfect mate for Ridley Scott's breakneck paced action film. The composer keeps the instrumentation at the high end, avoiding bass instruments, and interpolates familiar Far Eastern motifs to create an ethnic flavor for the Japanese locale of the story. Unfortunately, without Scott's visuals, the music loses a lot of the dramatic power it has in the film. The result is a surprising, but disappointingly ordinary synth score. The 20 minutes presented here as the "Black Rain Suite" is a forerunner to the assembled concert style presentations Zimmer would adopt on later albums like Crimson Tide. Among the six songs that lead off the CD is "Laserman," a composition by fellow film composer Ryuichi Sakamoto.

Black Robe

1991, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Black Robe, Alliance Communications/Samuel Goldwyn, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Georges Delerue; Music Editor: Dan Carlin; The String Plus and The Sydney Philharmonia Choir, conducted by Georges Delerue; Featured Soloist: Christopher Taplin (soprano); Album Producer: Georges Delerue; Engineer: Michael Spavrou.

Selections: 1 Black Robe Main Title (1:52); 2 Daniel And Annuka (1:47); 3 The Journey Begins (1:11); 4 Daniel Rescues La Forgue (:56); 5 First Kiss (1:35); 6 Flashback (1:21); 7 Conspiracy (1:25); 8 Lost In Forest (3:18); 9 Flagellation (1:41); 10 The Journey Continues (:44); 11 Traveling (:29); 12 Hostile Country (1:21); 13 The Iroquois Attack (1:45); 14 The Natives Abandon La Forgue (2:17); 15 Chomina Decides To Go Back (:50); 16 The Escape (2:36); 17 Chomina Prepares To Die (3:59); 18 The Final Canoe Trip (1:21); 19 La Forgue's Farewell To Daniel And Annuka (1:06); 20 Taretendi And La Forgue (:38); 21 Libera Me (5:02).

Review: In one of his last efforts shortly before his death, Georges Delerue wrote a highly emotionally-charged score for Bruce Beresford's epic adventure of a young, idealistic Jesuit priest who embarks on a perilous journey through the rugged 17th-century Canadian wilderness to convert the Huron Indians. Both story and locale provided the composer with the essential ingredients he needed. The deep mysticism of the film's hero, the romantic aspects of his quest, the culture clash between his own upbringing and the lifestyle of the Indians he seeks to convert, and the majestic beauty of the Canadian wilderness all found their way into his musical expression. As a result, his score is intensely reflective and deeply exciting, an attractive mixture that reflects both aspects of the screen action.

Black Sunday/Baron Blood

1992, Bay Cities Records; from the movies Black Sunday, 1960; and Baron Blood, 1972.

Album Notes: Music: Les Baxter; Orchestras conducted by Les Baxter; Album Producer: Nick Redman; Engineer: Daniel Hersch.

BARON BLOOD: 2 Suite (25:34).

> (The Hollywood Reporter, 1-16-96)

Review: Two horror films scored by Les Baxter, better known today as a kitschy band arranger-conductor and pop orchestrator. Made in 1960 in Italy, Black Sunday was a stylish adaptation of a ghost story by Gogol, starring Barbara Steele in a dual role as a charming innocent and as her sexually irresistible ancestor who returns from the undead to haunt her. Baxter's score, uncommonly dark, with bizarre effects and instrumentations, seemed the perfect complement to the film, and though in mono sound in this recording (in which the cues are presented together in one long suite) it is still profoundly affecting and scary.

Another Italian-made film, Baron Blood, released in 1972, dealt with the impoverished owner of an estate in Europe whose evil ancestor, in an all-too familiar twist, returns from the undead to haunt him. Once again, Baxter provided a perfectly spooky score, even more chilling and pervasive than the one for Black Sunday, in which light, airy melodies contrast and inform the more malevolent accents in the music. And he did it all without any synthesizer! Makes you wonder...

Blade Runner

1982, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Blade Runner, Warner Bros., 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Vangelis; Orchestrations: Patrick Williams, Eddie Karam, Angela Morley; The New American Orchestra, conducted by Jack Elliott; Featured Musicians: Tom Scott (alto sax), Ian Underwood (synthesizers), Bill Watrous (trombone), Tommy Tedesco, Dan Ferguson (guitar), Michael Lang (Fender Rhodes, piano), Richard Tee (piano), Chuck Findley (flugelhorn), Steve Schaeffer (drums), Neil Stubenhaus (bass); Album Producer: Jack Elliott; Engineer: Hank Cicalo.

Selections: 1 Love Theme (4:12); 2 Main Title (5:01); 3 One More Kiss, Dear (4:00); 4 Memories Of Green (4:50); 5 End Title (4:17); 6 Blade Runner Blues (4:38); 7 Farewell (3:10); 8 End Title (reprise)(3:08).

Blade Runner

1994, Atlantic Records; from the movie Blade Runner, Warner Bros., 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Vangelis; Arranged and Performed: Vangelis; Featured Musician: Dick Morrisey (saxophone); Album Producer: Vangelis; Engineers: Raine Shine, Frederick Rousseau, Philippe Colonna.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (3:42); 2 Blush Response (5:47); 3 Wait For Me (5:27); 4 Rachel's Song (4:46) Mary Hopkins; 5 Love Theme (4:56); 6 One More Kiss, Dear (Vangelis/P. Skellern) (3:58) Don Percival; 7 Blade Runner Blues (8:53); 8 Memories Of Green (5:05); 9 Tales Of The Future (4:46) Demis Roussos; 10 Damask Rose (2:32); 11 Blade Runner (End Titles) (4:40); 12 Tears In Rain (3:00).

Review: Vangelis' original score has long been unavailable (despite mention of a soundtrack release in the film's on-screen credits), although a rerecorded version done by the New American Orchestra was produced shortly after the release of the film. Vangelis' score is almost completely electronic and the well-intentioned attempts (some arranged by Patrick Williams) to recreate the music orchestrally fail miserably. But the jazzier tracks (notably "Memories of Green" and "Bladerunner Blues") actually benefit from the elimination of some of the bleating electronic textures employed by Vangelis in the film.

Vangelis finally released his original score in 1995, but it too is a compromise for those interested in hearing the unadulterated score. Vangelis interpolates dialogue and sound effects, as well as a few rather more pop-flavored compositions ostensibly composed for but not used in the final cut of the film. Some of these are actually enjoyable listening ("Rachel's Song" for example, is hauntingly beautiful), but are markedly different from the primarily atmospheric, dreamy textures Vangelis created for the rest of the film's music. Most of the high points are here, however, including the rapturous scoring of an early Spinner car flight, the wailing, quasi-oriental "Legends of Future Past,", Vangelis' touching, saxophone solo love music and his hammering, cheesy disco-era end titles. Fans of New Age "space" music will find this album fits right into their collection.

Blind Date

1987, Rhino Records; from the movie Blind Date, Tri-Star Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestra conducted by Henry Mancini; Song Producers: Peter Bunetta, Rick Chudacoff, Larry Brown; Engineers: Daren Klein, John Richards; Album Producers: Al Bunetta, Tom Bocci; Engineer: Ken Perry.

Selections: 1 Simply Meant To Be (H. Mancini/G. Merrill/S. Rubicam)(4:14) Gary Morris, Jennifer Warnes; 2 Let You Get Away (B. Vera)(4:47) Billy Vera & The Beaters; 3 Oh, What A Nite (B. Vera)(3:19) Billy Vera & The Beaters; 4 Anybody Seen Her? (L.R. Brown/B. Vera)(3:32) Billy Vera & The Beaters; 5 Talked About Lover (K. L'Neire/L. Brown)(4:10) Keith L' Neire; 6 Crash, Bang, Boom (P. Bunetta/J. Ericksen)(3:39) Gubert Tubbs; 7 Something For Nash (H. Mancini)(3:31); 8 Treasures (S. Jordan)(2:27) Stanley Jordan; 9 Simply Meant To Be (H. Mancini)(3:46).

Review: Another sorry example of a favorite composer undone by the commercial considerations that often preside over the creation of a film soundtrack and its related album. The unfortunate victim in this instance is Henry Mancini, only represented here by two cues he created for this otherwise hilarious Blake Edwards romp about a serious-minded financial analyst on a date with a dizzy girl who can't hold her champagne, and the mayhem that ensues at a function after she's had two glasses. Billy Vera and The Beaters and the other performers here are doing what they have been asked to do, but their vocal contributions mean very little while Mancini's cues only whet one's desire to hear more of his music for this film.

Blink

1994, Milan Records; from the movie Blink, New Line Cinema, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Brad Fiedel; Music Editor: Allan K. Rosen; Featured Musicians: Ross Levinson (electric violin), Doug Norwine (saxophones); Featured Vocalists: The Drovers: Sean Cleland (violin, mandolin, viola), Michael Kirkpatrick (guitar, mandolin, vocals), David Callahan (bass, vocals), Jackie Moran (drums, percussion, vocals), Winston Damon (percussion, trombone, vocals); Song Producers: Michael Kirkpatrick, David Blocker; Engineer: John Ray Castellanos; Score Producer: Brad Fiedel; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 The Boys And The Babies (M. Kirkpatrick/D. Callahan/J. Moran/ K. Keane)/Is Craig Here? (M. Kirkpatrick)(4:08) The Drovers; 2 Emma's Eyes (3:51); 3 Bumps in the Night (3:31); 4 What Is Beautiful? (1:18); 5 When Fortune Turns Her Wheel (M. Kirkpatrick)(3:56) The Drovers; 6 Witness On The Run (3:22); 7 On The Floor (1:24); 8 Open Your Eyes (3:29); 9 Escape From Illusion (3:19); 10 Clean Hands (1:33); 11 The Blinds Come Down (2:26); 12 The Eyes You Stole (7:33); 13 John And Emma's Theme (1:36); 14 Insulated Man (M. Kirkpatrick)(4:42) The Drovers, Chantal Wentworth.

Review: Known more for his industrial strength synthesized scores for The Terminator films, Brad Fiedel created a serene, and somewhat enjoyable low-key score, thanks in part to the use of piano solos to represent the central character, the visually impaired Emma. Her sight only recently restored, but not quite perfect, she may or may not have witnessed a murder. For that aspect of the film, Fiedel relied on his old musical bag of tricks. The alternative Irish/American band, The Drovers, appear as themselves in the film (Emma is purported to be their fiddler) and they are featured in four songs on the soundtrack.

Bliss

1997, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Bliss, Triumph Films, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Jan A.P. Kaczmarek; Orchestrations: Krzesimir Debski; The Sinfonia Varsovia, conducted by Krzesimir Debski; Featured Musicians: Pawel Losakiewicz, Krzesimir Debski (violin), Andrzej Jagodzinski (piano), Jacek Urbaniak (recorder); Featured Vocalist: Marta Boberska (soprano); Album Producer: Jan A.P. Kaczmarek; Engineer: Rafal Paczkowski.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:21); 2 Wedding (4:14); 3 If You Love Me (3:19); 4 I Want A Good Marriage (1:57); 5 Discovery and Confrontation (1:09); 6 Blue Bedroom (3:12); 7 The Dance (1:14); 8 Joseph And Maria (2:44); 9 Baltazar's Teachings (1:34); 10 Bliss Carezza (1:35); 11 Tears and The Night Swimming (2:48); 12 Bondage (2:47); 13 Love Making (2:57); 14 It Was My Father (2:40); 15 Separation With Hope (2:50); 16 Waltz Again (2:04); 17 First Touch (2:56); 18 Maria's Confession (2:29); 19 Reunion (3:04); 20 Rushing Waltz (1:27); 21 Finale (3:01).

Review: If the movie itself, about a young couple and their sexual problems, were not so banal and only worthy of a quick fadeout at the box office, this soundtrack might possibly attract more people than it will, and it should. Lushly romantic, with attractive melodies to sustain one's attention, it has at least some redeeming values. But don't let the track titles throw you off course. While they apply to the narrative and follow poor Joseph and Maria on their path to marital bliss, they are simply meant here as an indication of the intent actually pursued by the composer to conform with the storyline. You won't need them to enjoy the album.

The Blood of Heroes

1989, Intrada Records; from the movie The Blood of Heroes, New Line Cinema, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Todd Boekelheide; Orchestrations: Mark Adler, Todd Boekelheide; Orchestra conducted by Mark Adler; Album Producer: Todd Boekelheide; Engineers: Dave Luke, Danny Koppelson.

Selections: 1 Juggers Coming! (1:50); 2 Main Title (3:06); 3 A Game At Samchin (3:23); 4 Party, Party, Party! (2:26); 5 Dog Boy's Pain (:54); 6 Leaving Home (:48); 7 Enforcement (2:11); 8 Watching, Waiting (1:14); 9 Kidda Stabds Up (1:20); 10 Tested (1:27); 11 A Struggle, A Triumph (4:38); 12 One Eye From Blind (1:49); 13 Fear Of The Red City (2:43); 14 The First Sixty Stones (3:22); 15 Hang On (4:55); 16 The Juggers Of Doom (7:51).

Review: Not a score that will be appreciated by every ear, but nonetheless a fascinatingly creative work to experience, Todd Boekelheide abandons most conventional forms of musical composition to portray the barbaric world of a decaying future. He does this, not only by interpolating usual instruments into his orchestra, but by sampling sounds created by throwing odd pieces of junk around his basement! Every so often, he breaks away with some standard fare, like the harmonic solo on "Watching, Waiting," or the offbeat "Party, Party, Party," which sounds more like it would at home in the bar on "The Drew Carey Show." Played frequently in 12/8 time, a rhythm favored in African music, Boekelheide's score is both powerful and refreshingly original.

Blown Away

1994, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Blown Away, M-G-M, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Orchestrations: William Ross; Music Editor: Ken Karman; Orchestra conducted by Alan Silvestri; Featured Performers: Big Head Todd and the Monsters, October Project, U2, Aretha Franklin, The Pogues, The Sundays, The Jayhawks, Joe Cocker & Bekka Bramlett; Album Producers: Richard B. Lewis, John Watson; Engineer: Joe Gastwirt.

Selections: 1 In The Morning (T. Park Mohr) (3:55) Big Head Todd And The Monsters; 2 Return To Me (E. Adler/J. Flanders) (4:16) October Project; 3 With Or Without You (P. Hewson/D. Evans/A. Clayton/L. Mullen) (4:55) U2; 4 All Night Long (C.R. Lewis) (3:05) Aretha Franklin; 5 Tuesday Morning (P. Stacey) (3:29) The Pogues; 6 Here's Where The Story Ends (D. Gavurin/H. Wheeler) (3:52) The Sundays; 7 Darling Today (Olson/Louris) (2:58) The Jayhawks; 8 You'll Lose A Good Thing (B.L. Ozen) (2:38) Aretha Franklin; 9 Take Me Home (J. Capek/S. Kipner/M. Jordan) (4:21) Joe Cocker, Bekka Bramlett; 10 Main Title—Prince's Day (A. Silvestri) (2:26).

Review: A modest but pleasant listen that mixes big names with fresh talent. It's hard to go too wrong when there are two Aretha Franklin cuts to listen to, and U2's "With or Without You" sounds good in most any contest. Meanwhile, the hipness impaired will be well-educated by sampling songs by Big Head Todd, the Sundays, the Jayhawks and Big Head Todd & the Monsters.

Blue Chips

1994, MCA Records; from the movie Blue Chips, Paramount Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Song Producers: John Mellencamp, Jimi Hendrix, John Fogerty, J.D. Miller, Willie Mitchell, Al Green, Nile Rodgers, Jed Leiber, Dick Rowe; Album Executive Producer: William Friedkin; Engineer: Tom Baker.

Selections: 1 Baby, Please Don't Go (J. Williams) (3:14) John Mellencamp; 2 All Along The Watchtower (B. Dylan) (3:59) Jimi Hendrix; 3 Lookin' Out My Back Door (J. Rodgers)/Dolphin Fight Song (reprise) (J. Leiber)/Land Of A Thousand Dances (C. Kenner) (7:47) Nile Rodgers; 8 The Practice (N. Rodgers) (2:10) Nile Rodgers; 9 The Drills Medley: 3 On 3/Campus Tour (N. Rodgers)/ Dolphin Fight Song (J. Leiber)/ Shake Your Hips (J. Moore) (4:10) Nile Rodgers; 10 Butch's Chicago Blues (N. Rodgers) (2:53) Nile Rodgers; 11 Baby, Please Don't Go (J. Williams) (2:41) Them.

Review: A sports film without Queen's "We Will Rock You"—now there's a concept. Bookended by versions of Joe Williams' "Baby, Please Don't Go"—one by John Mellencamp, the other by Them—Blue Chips mixes oldies with score pieces by Chic's Nile Rodgers. Having fairly obscure stuff like John Lee Hooker doing "Money (That's What I Want)" and Slim Harpo's "Shake Your Hips" puts Blue Chips in the bonus. And at least there's no rapping from hoops sensation and film co-star Shaquille O'Neal.

Lee/S. Remi)(4:03) Da Bush Babees; 9 Danny Hoch with Basehead as Flex (:57); 10 Why Can't We Be Friends? (Allen/Brown/Dickerson/Jordan/Miller/Oskar/Scott/ Goldstein)(3:23) Geggy Tah; 11 Let's Get Ready To Rhumba (J. Lurie)(1:14) John Lurie National Orchestra; 12 Tango Apasionado (A. Piazzolla)(3:30) Astor Piazzolla; 13 Danny Hoch as Shaddjeh (:43); 14 Happy Suicide (D. Byrne/ V. Anad)(9:42) David Byrne, Vijaya Anand; 15 Egg Cream (L. Reed) (3:57) Lou Reed; 16 The Return of Flex (:44) Danny Hoch.

Review: David Byrne's somewhat iconoclastic approach is evident all over this soundtrack album in which Danny Hoch, assuming various personalities, introduces some of the selections, performed by a motley group of recording stars, from Soul Coughing to Astor Piazzolla, from Paula Cole to Lou Reed, from Selena (and David Byrne) to Vijaya Anand (and David Byrne). Some good, exotic tracks, too, with La Casa's "Mi Barrio," Spearhead and Zap Mama's "To My Ba-bay!," and John Lurie National Orchestra's "Let's Get Ready to Rhumba," among the best. Spicy hot, and tasty!

The Blue Lagoon

1987, Southern Cross Records; from the movie The Blue Lagoon, Columbia Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; The Australian Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Basil Poledouris; Album Producer: Basil Poledouris; Engineer: Roger Savage; CD Engineer: Danny Hersch.

Selections: 1 Love Theme (Emmeline)(2:31); 2 Main Title (2:35); 3 Fire (1:17); 4 The Island (1:43); 5 The Sands Of Time (2:24); 6 Paddy's Death (1:18); 7 The Children Grow (4:09); 8 Lord Of The Lagoon (1:04); 9 Love Theme (reprise)(1:10); 10 Underwater Courtship (1:58); 11 The Kiss (2:33); 12 Richard Sees Paddy (2:20); 13 The Birth (1:13); 14 Bad People/Baby Swim (2:59); 15 The Memories (1:18); 13 3 Points To Port/End Titles (3:20).

Review: Many viewers have tried to forget this tepid 1980 remake about a boy and a girl stranded on a desert isle, allowing only the images of Brooke Shields, Nestor Almendros' sumptuous cinematography, and the lovely music by Basil Poledouris to linger in their memories. Poledouris, coming off his fine score for John Milius' Big Wednesday (which remains sadly unavailable), scored the movie with a lyrical passage for a piano solo that gradually integrates the full orchestra, setting the stage for an evocative collection of romantic cues that never feels overtly saccharine in its most melodramatic moments. A contrasting music-box motif evokes the innocence of the stranded teens without pounding you over the head with its importance to the narrative, and this relatively low-key approach fills the entire score. The Australian Symphony Orchestra's performance is competent and the soundtrack remains one of Poledouris's most interesting scores for its subject matter, which is as far removed from his work on the Milius and Paul Verhoeven films as one could imagine.

The Blue Max

1995, Legacy Records/Sony Music; from the movie The Blue Max, 20th Century-Fox, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Chris Herles.

Selections: 1 The Blue Max (Main Title)(2:24); 2 The New Arrival (1:23); 3 A Toast To Bruno (1:41); 4 First Blood (2:23); 5 First Victory (:41); 6 The Captive (1:45); 7 The Victim (2:33); 8 The Cobra (1:39); 9 The Attack (6:30); 10 A Small Favor (:56); 11 Love Theme (1:16); 12 The Rivals (:26).

Review: While Jerry Goldsmith's dramatic score for the World War I epic The Blue Max has been reissued several times, this Columbia/ Legacy CD issue offers its most complete presentation to date. Assembled from the original elements (including nine reels of previously lost music, located in a vault at the Fox Studios), this gorgeous restoration effectively captures the occasionally dark, yet always strong spirit of the film's plot, the aerial confrontation of two skilled pilots, on opposite sides of the conflict, and Goldsmith's poignant musical themes. While it is generally considered one of the composer's lesser known works, it is highly recommended as one of his finest, as this outstanding reissue definitely demonstrates.

Blue Velvet

1986, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Blue Velvet, Dino De Laurentiis Entertainment, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Angelo Badalamenti; The Film Symphony of Prague, conducted by Angelo Badalamenti; Album Producer: David Lynch; Engineer: Jiri Sobac.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:27); 2 Night Streets/Sandy And Jeffrey (3:42); 3 Frank (3:34); 4 Jeffrey's Dark Side (1:48); 5 Mysteries Of Love (French horn solo)(D. Lynch/A. Badalamenti)(2:10); 6 Frank Returns (4:39); 7 Mysteries Of Love (instrumental)(D. Lynch/A. Badalamenti)(4:41); 8 Blue Velvet (B. Wayne/L. Morris)(1:19)/Blue Star (D. Lynch/A. Badalamenti) (1:55); 9 Lumberton U.S.A. (D. Lynch/A. Badalamenti)(:30)/Going Down To Lincoln (1:43); 10 Akron Meets The Blues (2:40); 11 Honky Tonk Part I (B. Doggett/C. Scott/S. Sheppard/B. Butler/H. Glover)(3:09) Bill Doggett; 12 In Dreams (R. Orbison)(2:48) Roy Orbison; 13 Love Letters (V. Young/E. Heyman)(2:36) Ketty Lester; 14 Mysteries Of Love (D. Lynch/A. Badalamenti)(4:22) Julee Cruise.

Review: Angelo Badalamenti's score for David Lynch's stylish mystery thriller is darkly romantic. His melodies are pretty but somber, a beautiful gown worn by a corpse. The omnipresent darkness and deviation that is the film's undercurrent is reflected in Badalamenti's musical style. His main theme, violins playing against violins in almost kaleidoscopic spirals, creates a somewhat Hitchcockian mood of hidden menace. Another theme, heard vocally as well as in two instrumentals, is a sorrowful love song, resolutely unhappy—is also appropriate to the film's depiction of romance gone askew. There's only about 20 minutes of score on the CD, the balance filled out by moody songs, source music, even a strange sound effects suite.

Bodies, Rest & Motion

1993, Big Screen Records; from the movie Bodies, Rest & Motion, Fine Line Features, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Convertino; Orchestrations: Marc Falcone; Music Editor: Kenn Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by Marc Falcone, Artie Kane; Featured Vocalists: Marva Hicks, Lynne Fiddmont-Linsey, Debra Parsons, Katrina Perkins, Mindy Stein, Susan Beaubian, Kiki Ebsen, Michael Convertino; Album Producer: Michael Convertino; Engineers: Paul Brown, Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:39); 2 The Desert (1:07); 3 Going (1:04); 4 Pray (2:23); 5 Cactus (1:37); 6 Transcendence And Appliance (:53); 7 Everything Must Ride (:58); 8 Your Whole Life (:47); 9 Where Luck Can Find You (:54); 10 To The August House (1:31); 11 I'm Happy (1:15); 12 Soul Station (:46); 13 Here And There And Now (1:40); 14 Beautiful Young Girl (1:25); 15 It's A Big Planet (2:15); 16 End Title (2:29); 17 Postlude (1:29); 18 Love Making (1:35); 19 This Rain (3:31); 20 Sid Invisible (1:37).

Review: Set in the Arizona desert, this odd tale of youngsters who meet, make love, and go on their merry way elicited from Michael Convertino a New Age score permeated with Native American sounds and chanting. Strangely atmospheric and unusual, it is greatly evocative and quite attractive, though it probably gains at being heard in connection with the screen action. Some selections like "To the August House" or "It's a Big Planet" are particularly pretty.

Body Bags

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Body Bags, Showtime, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: John Carpenter, Jim Lang; Album Producers: John Carpenter, Jim Lang; Engineer: Jim Lang.

Selections: 1 The Coroner's Theme (6:28); 2 The Picture On The Wall (1:14); 3 Alone (3:46); 4 Cornered (1:41); 5 Locked Out (3:11); 6 The Corpse In The Cab (3:00); 7 Body Bag #1 (2:16); 8 Brain Trouble (4:50); 9 Long Beautiful Hair (5:40); 10 Broken Glass (1:05); 11 Dr. Lang (2:44); 12 The Operation (1:15); 13 I Can See (1:05); 14 Vision (:54); 15 Vision And Voices (4:34); 16 Put Them In The Ground (1:22); 17 Vision And Rape (2:21); 18 John Randle (4:20); 19 ...Pluck It Out (3:47).

Review: Listening to this soundtrack album, one almost feels tempted to say, like Shakespeare, that it is "much ado about nothing." John Carpenter, who has occasionally shown bits of brilliance in his scores, seems to have taken the easy way out here. The musical ideas are trite, the expression vapid, the execution uninspired. Here and there, one can hear flashes of interesting ideas trying to develop ("Long Beautiful Hair," "I Can See"), but generally speaking the score is one long, unsubstantial exercise.

Body Heat

1989, SCSE Records; from the movie Body Heat, The Ladd Company, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Album Producer: Al Woodbury; Engineers: Dan Wallin, Colin Derek.

Selections: 1 Ladd Company Logo (J. Williams)/Main Title (3:39); 2 I'm Weak (3:15); 3 Chapeau Gratis (1:12); 4 Heather (1:58); 5 I'm Frightened (2:33); 6 Kill For Pussy (2:48); 7 Us And Oscar (1:18); 8 Surprise/Explosion (2:30); 9 Heather And Roz (1:36); 10 Glasses (:46); 11 Better Get Him (6:05); 12 Matty Was Mary Ann (4:16).

Review: The quintessential John Barry mystery score. You can just feel all the sweat of a hot and humid summer night in South Florida. The principal theme, played by an alto sax, has since been covered on many jazz albums and has often been copied in other films. Barry's score is surprisingly limited thematically and very often repetitious. Nothing unusual for this composer, whose music is still dramatically powerful. It captures not just the sexual tension between lovers William Hurt and Kathleen Turner ("Kill for Pussy"), but the anxiety of their plot to murder Turner's husband. The buildup to the explosion of the house ("Better Get Him") is a real nail biter, one of Barry's most suspenseful moments. The album includes John Williams' music for the Ladd Company logo and detailed notes by Royal S. Brown. It is rumored to have been mastered from an audio cassette, which may account for the minor tape hiss and some high end audio breakup that can be heard, but none of that has kept this score from becoming a highly prized album. Originally released as a limited edition, first as a 45 rpm vinyl 12" disc in 1983, and then on CD six years later, Body Heat became a top collectible fetching upwards of $150 for either format.

Body of Evidence

1993, Milan Records; from the movie Body of Evidence, Dino de Laurentiis/ M-G-M Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Graeme Revell; Orchestrations: Graeme Revell, Tim Simonec; Music Editor: Dick Bernstein; Synthesizers and Programming: Graeme Revell; Members of the Munich Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Tim Simonec; Featured Musician: Eberhard Weber (bass); Album Producer: Graeme Revell; Engineer: Dan Wallin.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:12); 2 The Passion Theme (G. Revell/J. Silbar/ W. Hill)(4:49) Warren Hill; 3 The Funeral (3:30); 4 The House Boat (4:34); 5 Hot Wax And Champagne (5:38); 6 The Fight (3:05); 7 The Handcuffs (4:21) Darlene Koldenhoven, Donna Davidson, Bobby Page, Linda Harmon, John Laird, Gene Merlino; 8 The Parking Garage (2:57); 9 Waiting For The Jury (3:19); 10 Confrontation (1:39); 11 Karma/ End Credits (4:06).

Review: The actual, very real merits of Body of Evidence, a crime drama of a different kind, may have been obscured by the fact that it stars Madonna as a sex-starved woman, accused of having inflicted too much of a good thing on her now defunct husband, and willing to demonstrate in situ to the district attorney what it is she did. Among the elements that are somewhat ignored in the process is Graeme Revell's contemporary score, a mix of synth effects and orchestral lines that seem to be there more for atmosphere than for musical support, though a couple of strong selections (notably "The Passion Theme," performed by Warren Hill, and "The Handcuffs") are particularly memorable.

Body Parts

1991, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Body Parts, Paramount Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Loek Dikker; Orchestrations: Loek Dikker; Music Editor: Carl Zittrer; The Munich Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Allan Wilson; Album Producer: Loek Dikker; Engineer: Chris Dibble.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (4:27); 2 Life Imprisonment (1:33); 3 The Freeway Wreck (1:57); 4 Organ Transplant (2:59); 5 Full Recovery (2:36); 6 Family Life (2:39); 7 Learning To Walk (2:16); 8 Nightmare (2:47); 9 The Doctor Won't Do It (1:56); 10 Charlie Comes Calling (2:20); 11 Draper Pays His Debt (2:35); 12 Death Of Lacey (1:18); 13 The Chase (2:32); 14 Charlie's Escape (2:31); 15 Final Confrontation (2:35); 16 Death Of Evil (2:33); 17 End Credits (4:10).

Review: Ever heard a "singing saw" before? If not, then here's your chance – Loek Dikker's soundtrack for this modestly entertaining 1991 horror movie with Jeff Fahey and Kim Delaney features, yes, a singing saw that creates an appropriately eerie sound. Director Eric Red clearly wanted a large orchestral score for his "dangers of body transplants" thriller, and the composer has responded with a low-key, almost subtle (at times) music score that has some rather odd sounding string arrangements to nicely compliment the singing saw. The tone is dissonant and rather unembracing, but hey, it's a horror movie out of the Dr. Frankenstein school, so why carp? Body Parts is a better movie, and music score, than many of its genre peers.

Clivilles/D. Cole/T. Never/M. Visage)(4:51) The S.O.U.L. S.Y.S.T.E.M.; 10 (What's So Funny 'Bout Peace) Love And Understanding (N. Lowe)(4:06) Curtis Stigers; 11 Theme From The Bodyguard (A. Silvestri)(2:43); 12 Trust In Me (C. Midnight/M. Swersky/F. Beghe)(4:14) Joe Cocker, Sass Jordan.

Review: Whitney Houston's film debut made musical history. Her broad, melodramatic rendition of Dolly Parton's "I Will Always Love You" set a record for consecutive weeks at No. 1 on the Billboard charts (14) before being upended by Boyz II Men. This is actually half a Houston album, but she certainly made the most of it, putting two more singles ("I Have Nothing" and "I'm Every Woman") into the Top 5, though her best performances comes on the gospel showcase "Jesus Loves Me." The album was also good news for British rocker Nick Lowe. Curtis Stiger covered his "Peace, Love and Undertstanding," snaring Lowe a well-deserved $1 million royalty check.

Bolero

1984, Prometheus Records/Belgium; from the movie Bolero, Cannon Films, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Peter Bernstein; Orchestrations: Christopher Palmer; Music Editor: Kathy Durning; The Rome Studio Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Featured Musician: Cynthia Millar (Ondes Martenot); Album Producer: Alan E. Smith.

Selections: 1 Bullero (2:06); 2 The Sleepless Night (2:42); 3 Moroccan Holiday (3:12); 4 "What, Me Worry?" (1:44); 5 Welcome To The Casbah (1:47); 6 The Bolero Bolero (2:45); 7 Chase To The Beach (1:04); 8 Ride On The Beach (1:35); 9 Opium Den (2:15); 10 Belly Dance (1:13); 11 Take Off (1:40); 12 Ecstasy (E. Bernstein)(4:47); 13 Dinner Music (4:44); 14 Foreplay/The Sheik (4:02); 15 Tango For Rudy (1:27); 16 The Bull Ring (2:02); 17 Cotton And Mac Talk/Graduation Present (3:11); 18 Angel/Gypsy Dance (2:43); 19 Gored (:54); 20 Cry (1:37); 21 Kidnapping (2:10); 22 First Lesson/Eureka (E. Bernstein) (5:04); 23 March Of The Bull Fighters (1:25).

Review: Evidently, Peter Bernstein has learned his music lessons well, and the score he wrote for Bolero, Bo Derek's unending search for the man who will ravish her and make her a woman, is greatly satisfying. Happily mixing genres (as in tauromachy and Spanish dancing for the cleverly-titled "Bullero"), Bernstein's cues denote a sure hand and an even surer ear for attractive film music. It helps, of course, that Papa Elmer is at the helm conducting the Rome Studio Symphony, and that he contributed a couple of selections, but the bulk of the score is Peter's and many of his compositions ("The Sleepless Night," "Ride on the Beach," "Foreplay/The Sheik") are appropriately descriptive. In the midst of the heavily-scented evocations, he also threw in some fiery moments, including a languorous "Bolero Bolero," a throbbing "Tango for Rudy," and an impassioned "Gypsy Dance."

1991, Atlantic Records; from the movie The Bonfire of the Vanities, Warner Bros., 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Dave Grusin; Orchestra conducted by Dave Grusin; Album Producer: Brooks Arthur.

Selections: 1 Prologue (1:44); 2 Bonfire Of The Vanities Theme (4:34); 3 Master Of The Universe (:53); 4 Concorde (:59); 5 Bronx Exit (3:00); 6 Yo! (1:32); 7 Get-Away (1:41); 8 Love Drums, part 1 (:47); 9 Love Drums, Part 2 (:46); 10 Coma (:48); 11 End Of The Road (:39); 12 Hang-Out (3:19); 13 Jackals, Part 1 & 2 (2:37); 14 Subway Breakdown (Prelude)(1:36); 15 Blues For Caroline (3:34); 16 Thinking Of Caroline (1:35); 17 Out Of My Life (:41); 18 Blues (reprise)(1:02); 19 Bugged (1:23); 20 Father/Son (:58); 21 Decency (1:41); 22 Speechless/Case Dismissed (1:09); 23 Sword Of Justice (3:44); 24 Epilog-Peter's Theme (1:17); 25 End Credit Theme (3:42).

Review: This standard jazz fusion fare from Dave Grusin sounds more like any one of his own GRP albums than a film score. While his bouncy music suggests that he seemed to find the film funnier than most audiences and critics did, on CD it makes a pleasant diversion. The music maintains its attitude all the way through, apparently never taking things too seriously. Inexplicably, Grusin's name appears nowhere on the cover of this Atlantic Records' release, except in the small print on the movie credit block. Odd considering his popularity as a jazz artist.

1993, Big Screen Records; from the movie Bopha!, Paramount Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Performers: James Horner, Mike Fisher, Ralph Grierson, Warren Luening, Jr., Kazu Matsui, Ian Underwood; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Amandla! (3:36); 2 Main Title (3:23); 3 Pride Of The S.A.P. (1:28); 4 The Depot (5:35); 5 "Necklaced" Effigy/ Micah Moves To The Compound (3:51); 6 Micah And Rosie/ Indefinite Detention (6:49); 7 Nightfall (3:05); 8 "Arrest The Children" (4:43); 9 Estrangement (1:32); 10 Uprising (3:54); 11 Torching Micah's House (3:55); 12 A Shattered World (2:37); 13 Naledi Saves Zweli (1:46); 14 Theme From Bopha!/Amandla! (6:02).

Review: James Horner abandoned much of the compositional techniques for which he's become known to take a fresh approach for this film. Perhaps the score owes much of its inspiration to the African motifs that are incorporated, particularly the Zulu tribal marches which are interpolated with electronic effects. This medley yields a tense and dark otherworldly effect that is most likely effective as a film score. However, what it gains for creativity, it lacks in pure entertainment value making this one of Horner's less interesting albums.

Born on the Fourth of July

1989, MCA Records; from the movie Born on the Fourth of July, Universal Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Music Editor: Ken Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Featured Soloist: Tim Morrison (principal trumpet, The Boston Pops Orchestra); Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Review: An outstanding score by John Williams is the centerpiece of the soundtrack album for Oliver Stone's cluttered 1989 biopic of Vietnam vet Ron Kovic. So masterful in conveying all the dramatic requirements of Kovic's decades-spanning story is Williams' score, in fact, that you forget his music actually takes up less than half of the album's running time, the remainder of which contains Edie Brickell & New Bohemians' "A Hard Rain's a Gonna Fall" along with a number of period songs strictly generic in their selection (Don McLean's "American Pie," Van Morrison's "Brown Eyed Girl," Henry Mancini's "Moon River," etc.). But Williams' score, featuring a downbeat trumpet fanfare performed by Tim Morrison, is one of his most powerful and potent efforts, offering both moments of tragedy and uplift, culminating in a knockout finale. It's just one more jewel in Williams' crown, and certainly one of the best film scores to come out of the last half of the 1980s.

Born to Be Wild

1995, Milan Records; from the movie Born to Be Wild, Warner Bros., 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Snow; Music Editor: Jeff Charbonneau; Orchestra conducted by Mark Snow; Album Producer:

David Franco; Engineers: Joe Gastwirt, Ramon Breton.

Selections: 1 Plucked From The Jungle (4:01); 2 Water Paint (3:18); 3 Bobo's Dream/Sweeping (2:06); 4 Surf And Rescue (2:00); 5 River Celebration/ The Verdict (1:40); 6 Hats On The Rolling Van (3:14); 7 Campfire (2:42); 8 Train Chase/Right And Wrong (3:39); 9 Stealing Katie (2:17); 10 Statues (1:10); 11 Cornfield Chase (1:20); 12 Goodbye (3:34); 13 Back To The Species (M. Snow/Lebo M)(2:41) Lebo M; 14 Born To Be Wild (M. Bonfire)(3:45) Green Jelly.

Review: Known primarily these days for his brilliant non-thematic work on the "X-Files" TV series, Mark Snow gets to strut his melodic stuff here for one of the several Free Willy knock-offs produced around the time, with a domesticated gorilla replacing in this case the seagoing beastie. Backed with a full symphonic orchestra, Snow has created a bright score, featuring some charming, albeit sugar-coated themes ("Goodbye") with several tracks interpolated with African inspired rhythms ("Plucked from the Jungle"). Artist Lebo M, who also worked with Jerry Goldsmith on Congo, co-composed the song "Back to the Species" with Snow and performs on the album. The rock group Green Jelly also brings Steppenwolf's "Born to Be Wild" into the '90s.

1992, MCA Records/Japan; from the movie Boy on a Dolphin, 20th Century-Fox, 1957.

Album Notes: Music: Hugo Friedhofer; Orchestrations: Edward Powell; Lyrics: Paul Francis Webster, Takis Morakis; The 20th Century-Fox Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Lionel Newman.

Selections: 1 Main Title: Boy On A Dolphin (4:09) Mary Kaye; 2 Phaedra Finds The Boy On A Dolphin (4:00) Marni Nixon; 3 The Acropolis (2:06); 4 The Cafe (3:01); 5 Montage: The Road To Meteora: (a) The Harbor, (b) The Mountains, (c) The Monastery, (d) Street Music (5:57); 6 The Dive (2:06); 7 The Search (2:27) Mary Kaye; 8 Nocturnal Sea (6:15) Marni Nixon; 9 Mondraki Bay (2:38); 10 Love Scene (2:58); 11 The Captive (2:53); 12 End Title: Boy On A Dolphin (3:14).

Review: Alan Ladd and Sophia Loren, looking for an antique Greek sculpture buried at the bottom of the Aegean Sea, discovered more than they bargained for in this pleasantly innocuous film shot on location and sporting a serenely evocative Academy Award-nominated score by Hugo Friedhofer. Using the basic components at his disposal—a romantic love story, an exotic setting, and a rich musical culture—the composer created a stylishly impressionistic series of cues, effectively mixing into them elements of Mediterranean folk music to give them the right tonal colors. Mary Kaye delivers the nostalgic title tune, while Marni Nixon vocalizes on a couple of tracks. The CD, issued in Japan only, can be found in this country at specialty stores.

The Boy Who Could Fly

1986, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Boy Who Could Fly, Lorimar Motion Pictures, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Album Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineers: Keith Grant, Daniel Hersch.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:36); 2 New Starts (3:51); 3 Millie's Science Project (3:09); 4 Family (2:57); 5 Flying (4:29); 6 Eric On The Roof (2:23); 7 Eric Agitated/Louis Defeated (3:55); 8 Millie And Eric Flee (3:45); 9 In The Air (4:31); 10 The Boy Who Could Fly (2:41).

Review: This gentle, monothematic score by Bruce Broughton tells of the blooming friendship between a young girl who moves next door to an autistic boy. Millie has a younger brother who has been tormented by the local bullies and dreams simply of just getting safely around the block. The mysterious Eric, however, believes he can really fly and before long, Millie begins to suspect it might be true. By altering his one theme, Broughton was able to create a symphonic poem for the three youngsters that grows from its light, innocent beginning ("Main Title") to a full-flourished orchestral movement that tells that real life can be even more amazing than one's fantasies ("In the Air").

Review: Whoopi Goldberg, Mary-Louise Parker and Drew Barrymore star in this comedy romp as a trio of cross country travelers heading for San Diego and much more than they had bargained for when they started off. Making the trip a great deal more enjoyable are the songs heard on the soundtrack, performed by some of the top female singers today, including Bonnie Raitt, Melissa Etheridge, Sheryl Crow, Stevie Nicks, Annie Lennox, and Whoopi herself. The album brings the performers and their songs center stage for what amounts to a sensational all-star showcase. When pop compilation soundtracks are that good, one only has to listen and enjoy.

1995, Milan Records; from the movie The Brady Bunch Movie, Paramount Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Featured Artists: Mudd Pagoda, Generation Why, The Original Brady Bunch Kids; Album Producer: Steve Tyrell.

Selections: 1 The Brady Bunch (Grunge version)(S. Schwartz/F. DeVol) (1:02); 2 It's A Sunshine Day (S. McCarthy)(2:38) The Original Brady Bunch Kids; 3 I'm Feeling Nothing (DADA)(2:26) DADA; 4 "Marsha, I have to tell you something" (:13); 5 Venus (R. Van Leeuwen) (3:00) Shocking Blue; 6 Girl (C. Fox/N. Gimbel)(3:48) Davy Jones; 7 "You're all a part of me" (:08); 8 Whatever (S. Tyrell/M. Landau/S. Tyrell)(3:44) Zak; 9 Supermodel (You Better Work) (R. Charles/J. Harry/L. Tee)(3:43) RuPaul; 10 "You kids have no idea what it takes to impress a chick" (:08); 11 Till I Met You (S. Schwartz/L. Schwartz/B. Williams)(1:45) Mudd Pagoda; 12 The Beast Is Out Of Hand (S. Tyrell/K. Savigar/S. Tyrell)(2:55) Mudd Pagoda; 13 Have A Nice Day (S. Tyrell/B. Coffing/S. Tyrell/M. Landau)(3:01) Barry Coffing, Zachary Throne; 14 I'm Looking Around (S. Tyrell/B. Coffing/S. Tyrell/M. Landau) (3:11) Generation Why; 15 "Marsha did it again..." (:04); 16 I Wish I Could Be Like You (S. Tyrell/K. Savigar/S. Tyrell)(3:28) Mudd Pagoda; 17 "I think Peter's a babe..." (:07); 18 Keep On (T. Jenkins/J. Mills) (2:50) The Original Brady Bunch Kids; 19 "And as a wise man once said..." (:08); 20 The Brady Bunch (S. Schwartz/F. DeVol) (:58) Lauren Tyrell, Megan Joyce, Christina Tyrell, Kristina Oloffson, Zachary Throne.

Review: Stop laughing! Not only did they make the movie—it was a hit! The same can't be said for the companion album, though, whose only chart hits are prior smashes by Venus ("Shocking Blue") and RuPaul ("Supermodel (You Better Work)"). For kitsch lovers, this set includes the original Brady cast's "It's a Sunshine Day" as well as cute Monkee Davy Jones serenading Marcia with "Girl." And, of course, there's the Brady Bunch theme, which you can hear at least three times a day on cable TV.

1983, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Brainstorm, M-G-M/UA, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; The London Symphony Orchestra, The Ambrosian Singers and The Boys Choir Of New College, Oxford, conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:15); 2 Lillian's Heart Attack (3:18); 3 Gaining Access To The Tapes (2:49); 4 Michael's Gift To Karen (6:54); 5 First Playback (3:21); 6 Race For Time (4:53); 7 Final Playback/End Titles (6:50).

Review: This is a strikingly powerful early effort in James Horner's career, one of the scores that made a lot of people sit up and take notice of his ability to convey the emotions reflected on-screen. As a team of scientists seek to perfect a virtual reality device that records from and plays back images directly to the brain, Horner conceived symphonic battle between the light and the dark, with a screeching army of voices to speak for the unknown. The seven tracks form individual movements of a concerto, bouncing from the fear of death with heavy handled percussion effects ("Lillian's Heart Attack") to the wonder of a living man's peak at heaven with the use of a mixed boys and adult choir ("Final Playback"). Horner uses a passionate, classically inspired love theme ("Michael's Gift to Karen") when researcher Christopher Walken attempts to rekindle the lost passion with his estranged wife by showing her a VR recording of how he really perceives her. This is an immensely entertaining effort, despite the fact that several themes have since been reused on other Horner scores. "Race for Time," for example, was recycled into Clear and Present Danger for virtually the same sequence! This early digital recording has a superb dynamic range.

1997, RCA Victor Records; from the movie Brassed Off!, Miramax Films, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Trevor Jones; Orchestrations: Trevor Jones, Geoff Alexander; Orchestra conducted by Trevor Jones; Featured Soloist: Maurice Murphy (trumpet, flugelhorn); The Grimethorpe Colliery Band, conducted by John Anderson; Featured Soloists: Paul Hughes (flugelhorn), Shaun Randall (cornet); Album Producer: Trevor Jones; Engineers: Mike Sheady, Simon Rhodes.

Selections: 1 Death Or Glory (R.B. Hall)(2:49); 2 A Sad Old Day (:48); 3 Floral Dance (K. Moss)(2:59); 4 Aforementioned Essential Items (:32); 5 En Aranjuez con tu amor (J. Rodrigo)(4:04); 6 Years Of Coal (:35); 7 March Of The Cobblers (R. Barrett/E. Siebert)(3:09); 8 There's More Important Things In Life (1:47); 9 Cross Of Honour (W. Rimmer)(2:14); 10 Jerusalem (Parry/Blake, arr.: V. Herbert)(2:23); 11 Florentiner March (Fucik, arr.: Barsotti); 12 Danny Boy (Londonderry Air)(trad., arr.: P. Grainger)(3:07); 13 We'll Find A Way (3:25); 14 Clog Dance (Marcangelo)(2:40); 15 Colonel Bogey (K. Alford) (3:15); 16 All Things Bright And Beautiful (Monk/Alexander, arr.: D. Rimmer) (2:04); 17 William Tell Overture (G. Rossini, arr.: G.J. Grant)(3:23); 18 Honest Decent Human Beings (1:37); 19 Pomp And Circumstance (E. Elgar, arr.: O. Hume)(3:19).

Review: This roaring, brassy album, with incidental music by Trevor Jones, is so ingratiating it's almost too good to miss. The film, about a fictional Yorkshire mining town (slyly named Grimley, in reference to Grimethorpe) faced with the closure of its pit, and threatening to retaliate with the disbanding of its champion brass band, called for a soundtrack that features brass numbers. Among the selections heard in the film and on this CD, several (Rodrigo's "Concerto de Aranjuez," Alford's "Colonel Bogey," and Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance," among them) will be well known, even if the arrangements for brass give them a new luster. Other lesser known tunes provide pleasant discoveries. In the mix, Trevor Jones' touching, haunting cues seem swallowed, but are equally enjoyable and on the button.

Braveheart

1995, London Records; from the movie Braveheart, Paramount Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: James Horner; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Assistant Music Editors: Christine Cholvin, Joe E. Rand; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by James Horner; Instrumental Soloists: Tony Hinnegan (kena and whistle), James Horner (keyboards), Eric Rigler (Uilleann pipes), Mike Taylor (Bodhran drum and whistle), Ian Underwood (synth programming), Choristers of Westminster Abbey, Martin Neary, director; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineer: Jonathan Allen.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:51); 2 A Gift Of A Thistle (1:37); 3 Wallace Courts Murron (4:25); 4 The Secret Wedding (6:33); 5 Attack On Murron (3:00); 6 Revenge (6:23); 7 Murron's Burial (2:13); 8 Making Plans/ Gathering The Clans (2:05); 9 "Sons of Scotland" (6:19); 10 The Battle Of Stirling (6:07); 11 For The Love Of A Princess (4:07); 12 Falkirk (4:04); 13 Betrayal and Desolation (7:48); 14 Mornay's Dream (1:18); 15 The Legend Spreads (1:09); 16 The Princess Pleads For Wallace's Life (3:38); 17 "Freedom"/The Execution/ Bannockburn (7:24); 18 End Credits (7:12).

Review: In Mel Gibson's marvelous historical drama, the character of William Wallace is that of a man who rises from despair and loss to lead a nation in gaining their independence, becoming a larger-than-life, mythic figure along the way. In James Horner's equally brilliant film score, the composer captures the intimacy of Wallace with his allies and loved ones, just as he adeptly echoes the stirring, impassioned cries for freedom that Wallace represents. For all of its 70-plus minutes, then, Horner's Braveheart takes you on a rich sonic journey with changing emotions and varied dramatic situations, and virtually all of it works—the battle music is propulsive and dynamic, the main theme moving, tragic and triumphant all at the same time, while the ethnic instrumentation works perfectly with the London Symphony Orchestra in building a lyrical musical landscape that's undoubtedly one of Horner's most complex and satisfying works yet.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Orchestrations: Michael Kamen; The National Philharmonic Orchestra of London, conducted by Michael Kamen; Featured Soloists: Mel Colins (saxophone), Derick Collins (clarinet), Sid Sax (violin); Album Producer: Michael Kamen; Engineers: Eric Tomlinson, Andy Jackson.

Selections: 1 Central Services/The Office (1:41); 2 Sam Lowry's First Dream/Brazil (2:10) Kate Bush; 3 Ducts (:42); 4 Waiting For Daddy/Sam Lowry's Wetter Dream ("The Monoliths Erupt") (3:00); 5 Truck Drive (1:15); 6 The Restaurant (You've Got To Say The Number) (1:34); 7 Mr. Helpmann (1:14); 8 The Elevator (:45); 9 Jill Brazil/Power Station (2:07); 10 The Party (Part 1)/Plastic Surgery (1:03); 11 Ducting Dream (1:53); 12 Brazil/Geoff Muldaur

(3:26); 13 Days And Nights In Kyoto/The Party (Part 2) (1:18); 14 The Morning After (1:46); 15 Escape? (1:03); 16 The Battle (4:30); 17 Harry Tuttle, "A Man Consumed By Paperwork" (1:50); 18 Mother's Funeral/Forces Of Darkness (1:44); 19 Escape! No Escape! (2:26); 20 Bachianas Brazil Samba (2:51).

Review: Michael Kamen's music provides a superb backdrop to Terry Gilliam's multi-faceted drama of dreams and disillusionment in the near future. Central to the score is the 1930 Ary Borroso tune "Brazil," which refers both to the character of revolutionary Jill Brazil, and to a place better than the dismal bureaucratic world in which Sam Lowry exists. The Borroso tune runs throughout, but Kamen's own romantic theme, a sweeping, soaring Korngold-esque melody, captures all of Lowry's hopeful longing and accompanies his visions of heroism and love. Scattered amongst these two cornerstone motifs is a great variety of music, from comic "Central Services" pseudo-TV advertisements (seen in the film on video monitors), to pop tunes used as background fillers, and plenty of adventurous symphonic cues.

1990, RCA Records; from the movie Breakfast at Tiffany's, Paramount Pictures, 1961.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestra conducted by Henry Mancini; CD Producer: Chick Crumpacker; CD Engineer: Dick Baxter.

Selections: 1 Moon River (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(2:41); 2 Something For Cat (3:07); 3 Sally's Tomato (3:05); 4 Mr. Yunioshi (2:29); 5 The Big Blow Out (2:26); 6 Hub Caps And Tail Lights (2:24); 7 Breakfast At Tiffany's (2:45); 8 Latin Golightly (2:57); 9 Holly (3:18); 10 Loose Caboose (3:08); 11 The Big Heist (3:07); 12 Moon River Cha Cha (H. Mancini/J. Mercer) (2:35).

Review: Someone with some clout at BMG, the controlling agent for RCA Victor Records, should take the bull by the horns, make the executive decision to begin a thoughtful, realistic assessment of their immense, historically vital catalog, and create CD reissues that reflect the importance of the music. Is anybody out there listening?

A perfect case to argue this point is the label's so-called budget series that contains many of RCA Victor's legendary albums, including Henry Mancini's pivotal soundtracks for the television series "Peter Gunn," and films such as The Pink Panther and Breakfast at Tiffany's.

The last one is an important film, and next to the two other aforementioned Mancini works, the composer's most celebrated effort, including the most gorgeous version of "Moon River" ever. It is sad that the powers-that-be at RCA don't believe the soundtrack is deserving of better treatment.

This low-end, early CD issue will have to do for now, with no liner notes or historical information, no extra musical selections or up-to-date digital restoration. It's a shame! (The rating doesn't reflect the quality of the music, but its shabby presentation).

Album Notes: Album Producers: Ray Williams, Mark Warrick; Engineer: Crispin Metropolis.

Selections: 1 In A Broken Dream (D. Bentley)(3:40) Python Lee Jackson; 2 Hot Love (M. Bolan)(4:56) T-Rex; 3 Child In Time (Lord/Blackmore/ Gillan/Glover/Paice)(10:18) Deep Purple; 4 Suzanne (L. Cohen)(3:49) Leonard Cohen; 5 Virginia Plain (B. Ferry)(2:56) Roxy Music; 6 All The Way To Memphis (I. Hunter)(4:55) Mott the Hoople; 7 He's Gonna Step On You Again (J. Kongos/C. Demetriou)(4:19) John Kongos; 8 Whisky In The Jar (Lynott/Bell/Downey)(5:43) Thin Lizzy; 9 A Whiter Shade Of Pale (K. Reid/ G. Brooker)(4:05) Procol Harum; 10 Goodbye Yellow Brick Road (E. John/B. Taupin)(3:13) Elton John; 11 Cross-Eyed Mary (I. Anderson)(4:09) Jethro Tull; 12 Siciliana from Sonata No. 2 for Flute and Harpsichord, BWV 1031 (2nd Movement)(J.S. Bach)(4:30) Christian Steenstrup, Carl-Ulrik Much Andersen.

Review: There is something perversely endearing about an album that brings together selections by T-Rex ("Hot Love"), Deep Purple ("Child in Time"), Leonard Cohen (the classic "Suzanne"), Procol Harum ("A Whiter Shade of Pale"), Elton John ("Goodbye Yellow Brick Road"), and... Johann-Sebastian Bach (the "Siciliana" movement from the Sonata BWV 1031)!

How these relate to the film written and directed by Lars von Trier is quite another question, but the fact is the disparities in the musical programming actually work very nicely.

The Bride of Frankenstein

1993, Silva Screen; from the movie The Bride of Frankenstein, Universal Pictures, 1935.

Album Notes: Music: Franz Waxman; Orchestrations: Clifford Vaughan; Re-orchestrations: Tony Bremner, Soren Hyldgaard; The Westminster Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Kenneth Alwyn; Album Producer: Soren Hyldgaard; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 The Bride Of Frankenstein—Main Title (1:24); 2 Prologue—Minuetto and Storm (3:52); 3 Monster Entrance (2:14); 4 Processional March (2:16); 5 A Strange Apparition/ Pretorius' Entrance/You Will Need A Coat (2:55); 6 Bottle Sequence (2:13); 7 Female Monster Music/Pastorale/Village/ Chase (4:30); 8 Crucifixion/Monster Breaks Out (3:11); 9 Fire In The Hut/ Graveyard (2:07); 10 Danse macabre (2:09); 11 The Creation (10:14); 12 The Tower Explodes and Finale (3:10); 13 The Invisible Ray Suite (F. Waxman) (5:54).

Review: Franz Waxman's monumental score for the 1935 The Bride of Frankenstein was one of the earliest fully-developed film scores in a day when most films had very sparse musical accompaniment. With its blend of romantic motifs and a variety of inventive horrific passages—the most notable being the "Creation" music, wherein the composer musically depicted the chilling noises of the laboratory equipment to create an impressionistic and unique musical sequence—it was a milestone in film music. This recreation of the score is superbly performed and very nicely packaged, including a 20-page booklet which analyzes the music one cue at a time. The CD is also notable for including, for the first time, a six-minute suite from Waxman's The Invisible Ray, another very early and very good Universal horror score.

1995, Legacy Records/Sony Music Entertainment; from the movie The Bridge on the River Kwai, Columbia Pictures, 1957.

Album Notes: Music: Malcolm Arnold; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Malcolm Arnold; Album Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Chris Herles.

Selections: 1 Overture (4:24); 2 Colonel Bogey March (2:52); 3 Shear's Escape (3:58); 4 Nicholson's Victory (4:45); 5 Sunset (3:54); 6 Working On The Bridge (2:58); 7 Trek To The Bridge (8:28); 8 Camp Concert Dance (2:36); 9 Finale (2:12); 10 River Kwai March (2:58); 11 (I Give My Heart (To No One But You)(3:16); 12 Dance Music (4:54); 13 The River Kwai March/ Colonel Bogey March (2:28) Mitch Miller & His Orchestra.

Review: When Columbia Records released the soundtrack to The Bridge on the River Kwai in late 1957, no one anticipated the immense popularity it would enjoy. While the score by British classical composer Malcolm Arnold would go on to win an Academy Award, the Columbia soundtrack LP would remain a "hit" in its own right, despite some technical flaws that affected its sonics. Probably the greatest boost for the evocative, dramatic score was the waxing of the film's most memorable themes, "The River Kwai March" and "Colonel Bogey March" by Mitch Miller. Issued as a single and included on the soundtrack LP, this million selling hit drew heaps of attention to the film, and its captivating music.

Freshly restored from the original mono session tapes, the CD offers pitch/speed corrected masters (a problem inherent in the original LP issues), and while not quite perfect, markedly improved sound. As a bonus, three newly discovered session tracks are included.

1995, Malpaso Records; from the movie The Bridges of Madison County, Warner Bros. Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Lennie Niehaus, Clint Eastwood; Orchestra conducted by Lennie Niehaus; Album Producer: Clint Eastwood.

Selections: 1 Doe Eyes (Love Theme)(C. Eastwood)(1:06); 2 I'll Close My Eyes (B. Kaye/B. Reid)(2:50) Dinah Washington; 3 Easy Living (L. Robin/R. Rainger)(6:26) Johnny Hartman; 4 Blue Gardenia (B. Russell/L. Lee)(5:18) Dinah Washington; 5 I See Your Face Before Me (H. Dietz/A. Schwartz) (5:04) Johnny Hartman; 6 Soft Winds (F. Henderson/F. Royal)(3:02) Dinah Washington, Hal Mooney and His Orchestra; 7 Baby, I'm Yours (V. McCoy) (2:33) Barbara Lewis; 8 It's A Wonderful World (J. Watson/H. Adamson/J. Savitt) (2:32) Irene Kral, The Junior Mance Trio; 9 It Was Almost Like A Song (H. David/A. Jordan)(2:49) Johnny Hartman; 10 This Is Always (H. Warren/M. Gordon)(3:22) Irene Kral, The Junior Mance Trio; 11 For All We Know (S. Lewis/J.F. Coots)(5:31) Johnny Hartman; 12 Doe Eyes (reprise)(5:00).

Review: The movie might have been slow and monotonous, but at least the soundtrack album is a bit easier to take, being comprised of Lennie Niehaus instrumentals and a selection of jazz standards. Included are several tracks each from Dinah Washington, including "I'll Close My Eyes" and "Blue Gardenia," and Johnny Hartman's "For All We Know" and "It Was Almost Like a Song," in addition to songs from Barbara Lewis and Irene Kral. Niehaus' score is represented on the album by two cuts—a brief opening cut and a full rendition of the theme "Doe Eyes," composed by Niehaus and Eastwood, heard in the end credits of the picture and on the end of the album. Like Eastwood's theme for Unforgiven, "Doe Eyes" is a lovely, lyrical tune that is minimally performed at first (here by solo piano) before being developed gradually into a full-fledged orchestral arrangement. It all makes for pleasant listening, though still recommended most strongly for fans of the film.

Bright Angel

1991, Intrada Records; from the movie Bright Angel, Hemdale Film Corporation, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Young; Orchestrations: Christopher Young; Music Editors: John Lasalandra, Virginia Ellsworth; Featured Musicians: Mark Zimoski (synthesizers, electronic percussion), Daniel Licht (synthesizers, extended guitar techniques); Album Producer: Christopher Young; Engineers: Jeff Vaughn, Michael Aarvold.

Selections: 1 Bright Angel (3:30); 2 Wasteland White Light (3:39); 3 Sweetgrass Hills (2:41); 4 Milk River Runaway (2:24); 5 Lost Lullaby (2:44); 6 Nothing Worth Hiding (2:12); 7 Fish Feel Pain (3:58); 8 Sunburst (3:23); 9 Things Pass Too Fast (3:45); 10 Red Rover, Red Rover (3:49); 11 Just Another Casper Night (6:20); 12 Too Morose? (2:00); 13 Wheatstraw Blind (4:29); 14 Gateway (5:23); 15 Trails End Where They Should (2:34).

Review: Christopher Young masterfully captured the emotional disposition of this Middle American character play about a troubled teenage boy as he travels cross country with an equally distressed young girl. His main themes are a collection of anxious, blue-grass style tunes, all lacking in any tranquility and overburdened with brooding anguish. The real creativity, however, comes with cues like "Wasteland White Light," a jumble of dissonant melodies that reflect the confusion in the lives of the young protagonists. Real life endings aren't always happy, and Young accomplished what he set out to do for the film—instill a real sense that there would ever be one for these two.

Broken Arrow

1995, Milan Records; from the movie Broken Arrow, 20th Century-Fox, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Music Editor: Adam Smalley; Music conducted by Bruce Fowler, D. Harper; Featured Musicians: Hans Zimmer (synthesizers), Duane Eddy (baritone guitar), Bob Daspit (guitars), Emil Richards (percussion), Walt Fowler (trumpet), Bruce Fowler (one-note trombone), Ryeland Allison (weird noises), Lisbeth Scott (vocals); Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Jay Rifkin; Engineer: Slamm Andrews.

Selections: 1 Brothers (7:05); 2 Secure (4:47); 3 Stealth (7:35); 4 Mine (5:42); 5 Nuke (10:48); 6 Greed (11:00); 7 Hammerhead (4:40); 8 Broken (7:37).

Review: Hans Zimmer's score for Broken Arrow makes the most out of its musical palette. A few faint melodies trickle throughout, but the music's main attribute is its ambient texture. Typical of the composer's approach, the 10:47 "Nuke" carries on this resolute disposition with a dispassionate female choir, intoning slowly over eerie shards of electronic sound, broken for a momentary segue into a rhythmic action melody. The cue develops into a cyclone of ambient sound whirling around a relentless rhythm of percussiveness which builds in speed and force through its culmination with choir and high-end synths. Another, "Greed," carries the form into further regions, creating a compelling rhythm of slow-moving synth tones over fast-moving percussive taps—and of course altering the shape, size, and speed of the rhythm throughout the cue. Zimmer's orchestration swirls in layers, waves of sound overlapping each other, each wave conveying with it another new sound on a storm-tossed musical tide. It's to Zimmer's credit that the CD's hour's-worth of music is consistently varied, fresh, and audibly interesting, not always the case with action scores.

Pearson) (5:38) Donald Byrd; 22 Streets Of The Bronx (B. Barbella)(4:46) Bells and String Orchestra.

Review: The diversified collection of pop vocals heard in this album reflects the choices made by executive producer Robert De Niro to serve as the soundtrack to this film which bears his creative imprint. The story of a young boy torn between his streetwise, working class father, played by De Niro, and a charismatic neighborhood crime boss (Chazz Palminteri), whom the boy worships, A Bronx Tale finds a natural musical mine in the songs that dominated the radio air waves in the 1960s, the period of the film. The mix of doo-wop songs and classic rock tunes is strongly evocative of the era, extending as it does from golden oldies by Dion and the Belmonts, The Cleftones, and The Moon Glows, to hits by Dean Martin, Della Reese, Aaron Neville, The Moody Blues, and Jimi Hendrix. A trip down Memory Lane if ever there was one...

Brother's Keeper

1993, Angel Records; from the documentary Brother's Keeper, American Playhouse Theatrical Films, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Jay Ungar, Molly Mason; Featured Musicians: Jay Ungar (violin, viola, mandolin, guitar), Molly Mason (guitar, bass), Guy "Fooch" Fischetti (pedal steel guitar), Peter O'Brien (drums); Album Producers: Jay Ungar, Molly Mason; Engineer: Chris Andersen.

Selections: 1 Brother's Keeper (3:17); 2 Lyman's Walk (:58); 3 The Streets Of Munnsville (2:13); 4 The Golden Eagle Two-Step (3:06); 5 I'm Just a-Fiddlin' (2:15); 6 Waltzing With You (2:37) Jay Ungar, Molly Mason; 7 Fog Scene (1:06); 8 Roscoe's Waterfall (2:35); 9 Fiddler Elbow (4:18); 10 Johnson Road (2:46); 11 The Auction (1:45); 12 Fall To Winter (:48); 13 Delbert's Tear (2:32); 14 The Tractor Breakdown (2:47); 15 Gobblers (1:56); 16 Cows On The Hill (3:45); 17 The Trial (3:25); 18 Waltzing With You (2:33); 19 Brother's Keeper (1:59).

Review: For this award-winning documentary about four New York State dairy farming brothers whose lives are shattered when one is accused of murder, Jay Ungar and Molly Mason wrote a score that draws its inspiration from its strong rural American roots. Eloquent in its simplicity, it makes no concessions to current trends, and succeeds in being both profoundly compelling and unusually attractive.

The Buccaneer

1988, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Buccaneer, Paramount Pictures, 1958.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein.

Selections: 1 Prelude (3:35); 2 Honest Dominique/The Lady And The Pirate (5:00); 3 Barataria (4:30); 4 Mutiny (1:58); 5 Ravens Pursuit And Hanging (2:40); 6 Back To Barataria (2:55); 7 The Knife (1:51); 8 Lovers United (1:33); 9 Treachery At Barataria (4:01); 10 Battle At New Orleans (4:12); 11 Polka (1:32); 12 Valse Tragique (3:41); 13 Out To Sea (3:25).

Review: One of the last great swashbucklers, The Buccaneer starred Yul Brynner as buccaneer Jean Lafitte, and Charlton Heston as Andrew Jackson, who wins the 1812 Battle of New Orleans against the British, only after he strikes a deal with Lafitte who provides him with much-needed men and guns. Not always historically accurate, but rife with action scenes, the colorful production, supervised by Cecil B. De Mille and directed by Anthony Quinn, received a brilliant score created by Elmer Bernstein. In a vibrant display of all the tones at his disposal on his musical palette, the composer wrote a series of cues that cover the gamut of emotions in the action, from the derring-do of the high seas adventures to the romantic interludes between Lafitte and his tempestuous mistress (portrayed by Claire Bloom), from the courtly living in the Jackson ranks to the ultimate devastating battle that sealed the fate of the British forces. The 1958 recording, in aggressive stereo, is in need of good mastering.

Bugsy

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Music Editor: James Flamberg; Unione musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Featured Musicians: Francesco Santucci (flugelhorn), Paolo Zampini (flutes), Rosario Giuliani (alto sax); Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineer: Franco Patrignani.

Selections: 1 Ac-cent-tchu-ate The Positive (J. Mercer/H. Arlen)(2:49) Johnny Mercer; 2 For Her, For Him (4:52); 3 Act Of Faith (3:20); 4 The Die Is Cast (3:25); 5 That Night In Last vegas (2:01); 6 Humiliated (1:35); 7 United (3:31); 8 Bugsy's Arrest (3:48); 9 In Cuba (1:44); 10 Why Don't You Do Right? (J. McCoy)(2:26) Peggy Lee; 11 Candy (A. Kramer/M. David/J. Whitney)(3:13) Johnny Mercer, Jo Stafford; 12 Fly Away (4:26); 13 On Sale (1:38); 14 Act Of Faith (3:15); 15 Desert Mirage (1:30); 16 On A Street At Night (2:08); 17 More Money (1:57); 18 At Great Expense (2:40); 19 Bugsy's Death (4:25); 20 Virginia Waits (2:18); 21 Neurotic Love (2:15); 22 Long Ago And Far Away (J. Kern/I. Gershwin)(2:54) Jo Stafford.

Review: A frequently compelling romantic drama about the man who "created" Las Vegas, Bugsy found in Ennio Morricone a composer with a special understanding for psychological studies mixed with gangster overtones. Based on the true, grander-than-life story of Bugsy Siegel, a childhood friend of George Raft and Meyer Lansky, the film retraces his arrival in Hollywood, his involvement with a charming but empty-headed would-be actress, his friendship with Lucky Luciano, his high society connections, and his ignominous death by the hands of his former friends and protectors. With typical flair, Morricone details various salient moments in the action, outlining them with themes that are ingeniously sketched and interestingly written. While the overall tone of the cues is in the slow mode characteristic of his writing style for the thriller genre, the score contains some signature effects, like a pesky buzzing over an ominous string line ("Humiliated"), or a lovely theme for oboe against a full orchestral texture ("Act of Faith"). Augmenting the score and providing a different mood, four standards by Johnny Mercer, Peggy Lee and Jo Stafford situate the action and its musical accompaniment squarely into its 1940s time period.

1988, Capitol Records; from the movie Bull Durham, Orion Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Featured Artists: Joe Cocker, The Fabulous Thunderbirds, Los Lobos, George Thorogood & The Destroyers, The Blasters, House Of Shock, John Fogerty, Pat McLaughlin, Bennie Wallace & Dr. John, Stevie Ray Vaughan, Bonnie Raitt; Producers: Charlie Midnight, Denny Bruce, T-Bone Burnett, Steve Berlin, Terry Manning, Richard Gottehrer, John Fogerty, Mitchell Froom, Bennie Wallace; Album Producers: Danny Bramson, Tim Devine.

Selections: 1 A Woman Loves A Man (D. Hartman/C. Midnight)(4:09) Joe Cocker; 2 Can't Tear It Up Enuff (K. Wilson)(2:45) The Fabulous Thunderbirds; 3 I Got Loaded (C. Bob)(3:23) Los Lobos; 4 Born To Be Bad (G. Thorogood)(3:33) George Thorogood & The Destroyers; 5 So Long Baby, Goodbye (D. Alvin)(2:23) The Blasters; 6 Middle Of Nowhere (G. Schock/V. DeGeneres) (3:36) House Of Shock; 7 Centerfield (J.C. Fogerty)(3:53) John Fogerty; 8 You Done Me Wrong (P. McLaughlin)(3:31) Pat McLaughlin; 9 Try A Little Tenderness (Woods/Campbell/Connelly)(3:15) Bennie Wallace & Dr. John; 10 All Night Dance (B. Wallace)(5:47) Bennie Wallace & Dr. John, Stevie Ray Vaughan; 11 Love Ain't No Triple Play (B. Wallace/M. Rebennack)(3:27) Bennie Wallace & Dr. John, Bonnie Raitt.

Review: A hodgepode, sure enough, but it's a good hodgepodge. A double, if not quite a home run. John Fogerty's "Centerfield" is appropriate. George Thorogood's "Bad to the Bone" seems a bit heavy duty for a film about minor league baseball, but juke joint stuff like the Fabulous Thunderbirds' "Can't Tear It Up Enuff" and Los Lobos' "I Got Loaded" fits the bill perfectly. Dr. John is the real all-star here, though, working out on three songs, including duets with Stevie Ray Vaughan and Bonnie Raitt. A cracker jack collection, fer sure.

Bulletproof

1996, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Bulletproof, 1996

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Emilie A. Bernstein, Patrick Russ; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: Emilie A. Bernstein; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 Buddies (:59); 2 The Bust (3:17); 3 Shots (1:05); 4 Gurney (:37); 5 Flying (2:56); 6 In The Desert (2:18); 7 Cliff (2:02); 8 Phone (4:25); 9 Darryl's Rescue (3:13); 10 Fighting (1:06); 11 Thugs And Hugs (1:22); 12 Mistakes (3:36).

Review: It seems kind of odd that Elmer Bernstein would come back to a genre he obviously abandoned a decade earlier. There is a lot to be said of the fun in listening to any score reminiscent of his many comedy/adventure scores and, in fact, portions of "Flying" frequently quotes a motif he used in Ghostbusters. Overall, though, this score seems to be somewhat nondescript, with no real character. It leaves you feeling as if you walked into the second act of something, perhaps an episode of a 1960s TV cop show. Maybe Adam Sandler's antics just don't motivate Bernstein, or maybe he's truly tired of this genre.

Buster

1988, Atlantic Records; from the movie Buster, Vestron Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Anne Dudley; The London Film Orchestra, conducted by Anne Dudley; Album Producers: Anne Dudley, Phil Collins, Lamont Dozier.

Selections: 1 Two Hearts (P. Collins/L. Dozier)/Gardening By The Book (3:23) Phil Collins; 2 Just One Look (D. Payne/G. Carroll)/...And I Love Her (2:28) The Hollies; 3 Big Noise (L. Dozier/P. Collins) (3:54) Phil Collins; 4 The Robbery (7:31); 5 I Got You Babe (S. Bono) (3:09) Sonny & Cher; 6 Keep On Running (J. Edwards)/Alone In Acapulco(2:44) Spencer Davis Group; 7 Loco In Acapulco (P. Collins/L. Dozier) (4:11) The Four Tops; 8 How Do You Do It? (M. Murray)/Thoughts Of Home (1:53) Gerry & The Peacemakers; 9 I Just Don't Know What To Do With Myself (H. David/B. Bacharach)/The Good Life (3:02) Dusty Springfield; 10 Sweets For My Sweet (D. Pomus/M. Shuman) (2:26) The Searchers; 11 Will You Still Be Waiting? (1:54); 12 A Groovy Kind Of Love (T. Wine/C. Bayer Bacharach) (3:30) Phil Collins.

Review: Phil Collins stars as the title happy-go-lucky small-time thief, who hits the big time when he robs a trainload of used banknotes with the help of a gang led by a friend. On the run from the law, he moves to Mexico, only to find out that once the money is gone life in the sun is not as rosy as he had anticipated. Punctuating this bittersweet comedy are several classic rock tracks by Gerry & The Pacemakers, Dusty Springfield, Sonny and Cher, and The Hollies, among others, as well as a couple of new original songs by Collins. Tying in all these elements together is the incidental music, composed by Anne Dudley, in one of her early efforts, and already demonstrating some of the qualities that have made her a top scorer in more recent years. A bright, breezy album that's quite enjoyable.

Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid

1987, A&M Records; from the movie Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, 20th Century-Fox, 1969.

Album Notes: Music: Burt Bacharach; Lyrics: Hal David; Orchestra conducted by Burt Bacharach.

Selections: 1 The Sundance Kid (2:10); 2 Raindrops Keep Fallin' On My Head (2:57) B.J. Thomas; 3 Not Goin' Home Anymore (3:27); 4 South American Getaway (5:14); 5 Raindrops Keep Fallin' On My Head (2:31); 6 On A Bicycle Built For Joy (3:07) B.J. Thomas; 7 Come Touch The Sun (2:27); 8 The Old Fun City (N.Y. Sequence) (3:59); 9 Not Goin' Home Anymore (reprise) (1:04).

Review: Burt Bacharach wrote one of his most endearing scores for this amusing western loosely based on the exploits of the so-called Hole-in-the-Wall band of outlaws, led by the quick-witted Butch Cassidy and his quiet cohort, the Sundance Kid (portrayed by Paul Newman and Robert Redford, respectively). While their screen exploits, glossier no doubt than the pair's real-life petty crimes, and the two stars' obvious chemistry helped make the film a tremendous box-office hit, that success was also due in large part to Bacharach's whimsical and jaunty score, in which the song "Raindrops Keep Fallin' on My Head" played an important role. The recording's only drawback is that its playing time is so short (under 28 minutes). When the going is that good and that enjoyable, you wish it would last a bit longer.

Butterfly

1991, Prometheus Records/Belgium; from the movie Butterfly, Par-Par Productions, 1991.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:17); 2 Hot Tin Tub (2:42); 3 Discipline (1:57); 4 Moke Shot (2:37); 5 Pokin' Moke (1:22); 6 Girl On My Porch (3:06); 7 It's Belle (1:35); 8 I'm Your Daughter (2:55); 9 Silver Mine (1:10); 10 Daddy Agrees (1:41); 11 Here For The Wedding (1:54); 12 She's Not Your Kid (2:23); 13 Chippings (2:04); 14 The Trial (2:13); 15 A Son-In-Law (1:06); 16 Suburst (1:36); 17 Kady (2:49); 18 Main Title (alternate version)(3:52); 19 It's Wrong For Me To Love You (3:51) Pia Zadora.

Review: This is a somewhat pedestrian romantic score, and quite an unexpected effort from Ennio Morricone. Perhaps he couldn't keep a straight face while watching this Pia Zadora vanity effort financed by her ex-husband, in which she plays a young waif claiming to be miner Stacy Keach's long-lost daughter, and then seduces him! Morricone plays everything with a very minimalist approach and that does keep with the film's claustrophobic nature, but it doesn't make for a too thoroughly entertaining listen. The CD is twice as long as the original LP release and features eleven tracks (approximately 21 minutes) previously unreleased. Surprisingly, these are some of Morricone's more interesting cues. Zadora performs the song "It's Wrong for Me to Love You," proving she's a far better singer than actress.

Bye Bye, Love

1995, Giant Records; from the movie Bye Bye, Love, 20th Century-Fox, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: J.A.C. Redford; Orchestrations: J.A.C. Redford; Music Editor: Michael T. Ryan; Orchestra conducted by J.A.C. Redford; Song Producers: John Boylan, Frak Filipetti, James Taylor, The Everly Brothers, Pete Wingfield, John Jennings, Mary Chapin Carpenter, Graham Nash, Don Everly, Dave Edmunds, Peter Asher; Engineer: Bernie Grundman.

Selections: 1 Let It Be Me (M. Curtis/P. Delanoe/G. Becaud) (3:11) Jackson Browne, Timothy B. Schmit; 2 I Will (J. Lennon/P. McCartney) (3:09) Ben Taylor; 3 Don't Worry Baby (B. Wilson/R. Christian)(3:23) The Everly Brothers, The Beach Boys; 4 Bye Bye, Love (B. Bryant/ F. Bryant)(2:49) The Proclaimers; 5 Stones In The Road (M. Chapin Carpenter)(4:34) Mary Chapin Carpenter; 6 Our House (G. Nash)(3:03) Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young; 7 So Sad (To Watch Good Love Go Bad)(D. Everly)(2:37) The Everly Brothers; 8 This Little Girl Of Mine (R. Charles)(2:23) Dave Edmunds; 9 Falling In Love Again (F. Hollander/S. Lerner)(2:40) Linda Ronstadt; 10 The Main Thing (Original Score Ballad) (J.A.C. Redford)(2:27).

Review: O.K., let's get this straight. The Everly Brothers don't perform their classic rendition of the title track. That one's done by the Proclaimers. But the Everlys turn up twice, singing "So Sad (To Watch Good Love Go Bad)" and joining the Beach Boys on an harmony-drenched version of "Don't Worry Baby." Jackson Browne and Eagles bassist Timothy B. Schmit are also duet partners ("Let It Be Me"), while Ben Taylor – son of James Taylor and Carly Simon – contributes "I Will." But so-so performances and already available songs make this a tepid collection.

ENNIO MORRICONE

As one of the most eclectic and prolific composers of the twentieth century, Ennio Morricone has created soundtracks for over 350 films and television productions released in English, Italian, and French. Although he established his "name" by composing scores for Italian westerns (often called "spaghetti westerns"), Morricone has composed mystery thrillers, romantic dramas, comedies, and epics, including The Untouchables, City of Joy, In the Line of Fire, Wolf, and Disclosure.

Morricone's work with director Sergio Leone on the classic 1960s "man with no name" trilogy vaulted both Morricone and actor Clint Eastwood to instant cult stardom. In scores for A Fistful of Dollars, For a Few Dollars More, and The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly, Morricone mirrored the violence, irony, and campy humor pervading the classic Eastwood western. Besides his work with Leone, Morricone has worked with major directors such as Franco Zefferelli, Federico Fellini, Roman Polanski, and Roland Joffe.

Born in Rome, Italy, in 1928, Morricone started writing music at the age of six. He holds diplomas in composition, trombone, and orchestra direction from the Santa Cecilia Conservatory in Rome, and he still plays trombone with a local music group called Nuova Consonaza. Along with his classical compositions, he has composed a ballet (Requiem for Destiny) but little other non-film music.

Review: The nice thing about Mark Knopfler is that when he writes film scores they tend to be gracefully attractive, sometimes sentimental, but usually very expressive. For Cal, a romantic drama with political overtones set in Ireland, he fashioned a wonderful score in which the Uillean pipes and tin whistle help create the proper atmosphere, while the guitars, mandolin and keyboards state the various melodies with great restraint and much feeling. Two long cues ("Father and Son" and "The Long Road") are particularly representative of the score itself, with gorgeous melodies that capture the tender moods in the story and bring them forward in a compelling display that transcends the medium for which they were originally designed.

California Suite

1980, CBS Records; from the movie California Suite, Columbia Pictures, 1978.

Album Notes: Music: Claude Bolling; Featured Musicians: Hubert Laws (flute), Claude Bolling (piano), Chuck Damonico (bass), Shelly Manne (drums), Bud Shank (flute/soprano sax), Tommy Tedesco (guitar), Ralph Grierson (piano); Album Producer: Claude Bolling; Engineer: Dan Wallin.

Selections: 1 California (5:04); 2 Love Theme from California Suite (7:02); 3 Black Battle (3:38); 4 Hanna's Daughter (1:16); 5 Black Folks (4:19); 6 Hanna's Theme (4:25); 7 Academy Awards (4:03); 8 Beverly Hills (5:10); 9 California (2:28).

Review: This bouncy, easy-going, jazzy soundtrack did much to establish the popularity of Claude Bolling in America, and provided a pleasantly innocuous musical setting to the screen comedy, based on a stage play by Neil Simon. The catchy themes, developed by the composer at the piano with master flutist Hubert Laws, presage Bolling's future pop-classical collaborations with Jean-Pierre Rampal, Yo-Yo Ma, Pinchas Zukerman, and other great soloists.

Cape Fear

1991, MCA Records; from the movie Cape Fear, Universal Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; Orchestrations: Emilie A. Bernstein; Music Consultant: Christopher Palmer; Adapter, Arranger and Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: Emilie A. Bernstein; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Max (5:39); 2 Sam's Story (1:47); 3 Love? (1:59); 4 Strip Search (3:38); 5 Rape and Hospital (3:56); 6 Frightened Sam (2:14); 7 Cady Meets The Girls (2:07); 8 Sam Hides (2:20); 9 Drive (1:11); 10 Teddy Bear Wired (2:46); 11 Kersek Killed (3:37); 12 Houseboat (1:48); 13 The Fight (1:55); 14 Destruction (2:36); 15 The End (5:36).

Review: The original soundtrack recording from Martin Scorsese's 1991 remake of the 1962 classic, Cape Fear is the perfect vehicle for the collaboration of two of the most celebrated modern-day film composers—Bernard Herrmann and Elmer Bernstein. Working from the late Herrmann's original score, Bernstein has deftly adapted and re-orchestrated the original's eerie, chilling theme music, and in doing so, has filled a (hitherto) noticeable void in the Herrmann catalog. Notes director Scorsese, "[Herrmann's] music is noted for its unique instrumentation, and the manner in which it underlines the psychology of the characters, often creating a trance-like state." In this instance, Herrmann's exquisite use of the orchestra (mostly strings, but including other elements as well) imbues just the right essence of terrifying fear and drama—reminiscent of, yet different in texture and orchestral voicing, from his work for the great Hitchcock film thrillers. With this newly revised score, Bernstein has hit the mark dead-on, bringing us a first-rate, high-fidelity documentation of one of Herrmann's most important compositions.

Car Wash/Best of Rose Royce from Car Wash

1996/1988, MCA Records; from the movie Car Wash, Universal Pictures, 1976.

Album Notes: Music: Norman Whitfield; Orchestra conducted by Paul Riser; Featured Performers: Rose Royce, The Pointer Sisters, Richard Pryor; Album Producer: Norman Whitfield; CD Producer: Andy McKaie; Engineer: Paul Elmore

Selections: CAR WASH: 1 Car Wash (5:06) Rose Royce; 2 6 O'Clock DJ (Let's Rock)(1:09); 3 I Wanna Get Next To You (3:58) Rose Royce; 4 Put Your Money Where Your Mouth Is (3:25) Rose Royce; 5 Zig Zag (Rose Royce) (2:30); 6 You're On My Mind (L. Jobe/H. Garner, Jr.)(3:27); 7 Mid Day DJ Theme (1:43); 8 Born To Love You (Rose Royce)(3:06) Rose Royce; 9 Daddy Rich (3:24) Rose Royce; 10 Richard Pryor Dialogue/Rich Reprise (5:05) Richard Pryor; 11 You Gotta Believe (2:51) The Pointer Sisters; 12 I'm Going Down (3:36) Rose Royce; 13 Yo Yo (Rose Royce)(4:17) Rose Royce; 14 Sunrise (10:46); 15 Righteous Rhythm (2:30); 16 Water (3:31); 17 Crying (2:57) Rose Royce; 18 Doin' What Comes Naturally (3:10) Rose Royce; 19 Keep On Keepin' On (6:39) Rose Royce.

BEST OF ROSE ROYCE: 1 Car Wash (5:06); 2 I Wanna Get Next To You (4:00); 3 I'm Going Down (3:38); 4 Put Your Money Where Your Mouth Is (3:26); 5 Born To Love You (3:07); 6 Yo Yo (4:17); 7 Daddy Rich (3:16); 8 Keep On Keepin' On (6:39); 9 Doin' What Comes Naturally (3:10); 10 Crying (2:58).

Review: In a rare synergy between pop music and the movies, the songs are an important element to the dramatic/comedic action in Car Wash, a film which took place, as its title indicates, in a downtown Los Angeles gas station where a loud speaker continually blares the latest hits. The songs, created by Norman Whitfield and performed for the most part by Rose Royce, are woven into the screen action which involved such colorful characters as Franklyn Ajaye, George Carlin, Irwin Corey, Ivan Dixon, and, as a fancy preacher, Richard Pryor, followed by his retinue of attractive females, The Pointer Sisters. The soundtrack album offers all the original songs heard in the film (there were quite a few others that probably were not licensed to the label), while the "Best of Rose Royce" features only the tracks recorded by that group.

The Cardinal

1987, Preamble Records; from the movie The Cardinal, 1963.

Album Notes: Music: Jerome Moross; Music Editor: Leon Birnbaum; Orchestra conducted by Jerome Moross; Album Producers: Jerome Moross, Clyde Allen; Engineers: Harold Lewis, Ernie Oelrich; CD Producer: John Lasher; Engineer: Fred Mitchell.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:02); 2 Stonebury (1:55); 3 Dixieland/Tango (2:50); 4 The Cardinal's Faith (4:51); 5 They Haven't Got The Girls In The U.S.A. (J. Moross/A. Stillman)(2:50) Bobby Morse and His Adora-Belles; 6 The Cardinal In Vienna (6:07); 7 Annemarie (2:55); 8 The Cardinal's Decision (3:35); 9 Way Down South (1:55); 10 The Cardinal Themes (4:59).

Review: Composer Jerome Moross' rich Americana style is unmistakable, whether it's in the service of a western like The Big Country, a medieval epic like The War Lord, or a soaper like Otto Preminger's The Cardinal. In this last effort, Moross' opening theme, set against the bells of a cathedral, is a warm, sentimental brass-and-string anthem alternating against a wavering brass figure that winds majestically heavenward and forms the graceful spine of much of the later material. There's a rather mocking waltz setting for "Vienna" and a dance-like melody that's an ingenious take on the opening phrase of the Shaker melody Aaron Copland adapted for his Appalachian Spring ballet. Even in this sometimes glitzy setting Moross' melodic progressions are sublime, and although this score doesn't match the power of some of his better-known works, it makes a welcome addition to the Moross canon.

Selections: CD 1: (score) 1 Carlito's Way (5:17); 2 Carlito And Gail (4:05); 3 The Cafe (1:59); 4 Laline (2:36); 5 You're Over, Man (2:09); 6 Where's My Cheesecake? (2:12); 7 The Buoy (4:04); 8 The Elevator (1:45); 9 There's An Angle Here (2:18); 10 Grand Central (10:08); 11 Remember Me (4:52).

CD 2: (songs) 1 I Love Music (K. Gamble/L. Huff)(4:50) Rozalla; 2 Rock The Boat (W. Holmes)(3:06) The Hues Corporation; 3 That's The Way I Like It (H. Casey/R. Finch)(3:03) KC And The Sunshine Band; 4 Rock Your Baby (H. Casey/ R. Finch)(3:40) Ed Terry; 5 Parece Mentira (P. Flores)(5:24) Marc Anthony; 6 Backstabbers (L. Huff/G. McFadden/J. Whitehead)(3:07) The O'Jays; 7 TSOP – The Sound Of Philadelphia (K. Gamble/L. Huff)(3:35) MFSB, The Three Degrees; 8 Get To Be Real (C. Lynn/D. Paich/D. Foster) (5:05) Cheryl Lynn; 9 Lady Marmalade (K. Nolan/B. Crewe)(3:55) LaBelle; 10 Pillow Talk (S. Robinson/M. Burton)(3:46) Sinoa; 11 El Watusi (R. Barretto)(2:38) Ray Barretto; 12 Oye como va (T. Puente)(4:14) Santana; 13 You Are So Beautiful (B. Preston/B. Fisher)(4:49) Billy Preston.

Review: A disco-era gangster film gives us, well, plenty of disco. And once you've had "Saturday Night Fever," everything else seems superfluous. "Carlito's Way" has a few of the genre's greatest hits – K.C. & the Sunshine Band's "That's the Way I Like It," LaBelle's "Lady Marmalade," the Hues Corporation's "Rock the Boat." And Carlos Santana is probably alarmed at how comfortably his "Oye Coma Va" fits into the proceedings. But Billy Preston's "You Are So Beautiful" doesn't hold a candle to Joe Cocker's.

Carried Away

1996, Intrada Records; from the movie Carried Away, Fine Line Features, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Orchestrations: Bruce Broughton; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Broughton; Album Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:33); 2 At School (3:01); 3 Joe Meets Catherine (2:18); 4 Time To Marry Me (1:30); 5 The Coyote (2:17); 6 Momma (3:20); 7 The Funeral (8:01); 8 Joe Waits For The Major (3:23); 9 The Barn Fire (1:49); 10 Joe Returns To Rose (2:00); 11 At The Ocean (2:17); 12 End Credits (3:29).

Review: An acclaimed "small" picture from director Bruno Rubeo, Carried Away boasts an intimate score by Bruce Broughton. Performed by a small ensemble orchestra that's ideally suited for this character-driven drama starring Dennis Hopper and the director's wife, Amy Irving, Broughton grounds his score in a theme for solo piano that reflects the inner emotions of the film's characters, with the orchestra used sparingly, thereby reducing overly melodramatic moments. The cumulative effect is that of an extremely subdued but amiable and poignant work nicely illustrating the composer's quieter side, though anyone expecting Silverado or even The Boy Who Could Fly will most likely be disappointed.

1995, Argo Records; from the movie Carrington, Gramercy Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Nyman; Featured Musicians: The Michael Nyman Band: Michael Nyman (piano), Beverly Davison, Ann Morfee, Claire Thompson, Nicholas Ward, Boguslow Kosteki, Harriet Davies (violin), Catherine Musker, Bruce White, Philip D'Arcy, Jim Sleigh (viola), Anthony Hinnigan, Justin Pearson, Tony Lewis (cello), Martin Elliott (bass guitar), David Roach (soprano/alto sax), Jamie Talbot (alto/tenor sax), Richard Clews (horn); Album Producer: Michael Nyman; Engineer: Michael J. Dutton.

Selections: 1 Outside Looking In (9:14); 2 Opening Titles (1:21); 3 Fly Drive (1:40); 4 Cliffs Of Fall (2:00); 5 Every Curl Of Your Beard (2:24); 6 Virgin On The Roof (1:40); 7 Gertler (3:15); 8 Leaving Gertler (1:27); 9 Painting The Garden Of Eden (1:59); 10 Partridge (1:54); 11 Floating The Honeymoon (2:45); 12 Brenan (6:53); 13 Beacus (2:58); 14 Leaving Brenan (1:59); 15 Ham Spray House (1:39); 16 The Infinite Complexities Of Christmas (4:18); 17 Something Rather Impulsive (1:48); 18 If This Is Dying (1:46); 19 Adagio from String Quintet in C (F. Schubert)(15:11) Amadeus Quartet, Robert Cohen.

Review: Christopher Hampton's biographical drama about the relationship between painter Dora Carrington and writer Lytton Strachey sports a beautiful score by Michael Nyman that blends the sort of formalized chamber orchestra approach you might expect from this sort of period movie with the composer's own minimalist leanings. The repeated phrases, primarily played by strings, manage to evoke all sorts of things: the uncontainable energy of sex, the creative drive as expressed through Carrington's paintings, and especially Carrington's obsessive feelings for Strachey, which eventually lead to her suicide after Strachey's death (a sequence effectively treated with a lengthy and morose Schubert adagio). There's a Coplandesque, syncopated cue for a carriage ride, and Nyman's thematic material for the love relationship between the two artists is gorgeous. On the whole this is one of the composer's most accessible and effective works for film.

Bach) (6:26) The Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Review: The Band's Robbie Robertson produced this gem, a collection of bluesy '60s and '70s rock spiced by a few left turns—Dean Martin's "You're Nobody Till Somebody Loves You," for instance, or "Flight of the Bumble Bee." The rest of the set blends Britain (the Rolling Stones, the Moody Blues, Jeff Beck, Eric Burdon), Memphis (B.B. King, the Staple Singers, Otis Redding) and New York (Lou Reed) into a hot stew of consistently good tunes.

Casino Royale

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Casino Royale, Columbia Pictures, 1967.

Selections: 1 Casino Royale Theme (Main Title)(2:34) Herb Alpert and The Tijuana Brass; 2 The Look Of Love (4:00) Dusty Springfield; 3 Money Penny Goes For Broke (2:30); 4 Le Chiffre's Torture Of The Mind (2:08); 5 Home James, Don't Spare The Horses (1:28); 6 Sir James' Trip To Find Mata (3:46); 7 The Look Of Love (2:40); 8 Hi There Miss Goodthighs (1:12); 9 Little French Boy (2:22); 10 Flying Saucer—First Stop Berlin (2:52); 11 The Venerable Sir James Bond (2:50); 12 Dream On James, You're Winning (1:15); 13 The Big Cowboys And Indians Fight At Casino Royale/Casino Royale Theme (reprise)(4:50) Herb Alpert and The Tijuana Brass.

Review: As soundtracks go, this is really a piece of fluff, but at the time it was created, it beautifully captured the lightweight zany atmosphere of the late 1960s, and of the film itself, an amusing spoof of the James Bond spy thrillers. Some selections ("The Look of Love," and "Casino Royale") have since become hits in their own right, and it is a renewed pleasure to find them again here. The instrumental cues, while not as well-known, pretty much define the best comedic aspects of the film, and make for a very entertaining listening experience.

Casper

1995, MCA Records; from the movie Casper, Universal Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie, Art Kempel, Dan Davis, James Horner; Music Editors: Jim Henrikson, Joe E. Rand; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producers: James Horner, Shawn Murphy; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineers: Andy Bass, Dave Marquette, Jay Selvester.

Selections: 1 "No Signs Of Ghosts" (7:31); 2 Carrigan And Dibs (2:40); 3 Strangers In The House (2:36); 4 First Haunting/The Swordfight (5:01); 5 March Of The Exorcists (2:45); 6 The Lighthouse/Casper And Kat (4:57); 7 Casper Makes Breakfast (3:42); 8 Fond Memories (3:39); 9 "Dying" To Be A Ghost (7:02); 10 Casper's Lullaby (5:40); 11 Descent To Lazarus (10:20); 12 One Last Wish (4:19); 13 "Remember Me This Way" (D. Foster/L. Thompson) (4:28) Jordan Hill; 14 "Casper The Friendly Ghost" (M. David/J. Livingston)(2:11) Little Richard; 15 The Uncles Swing/End Credits (6:21).

Review: Considering this is a film geared toward young children, James Horner had the unenviable task of reminding the audience that Casper is the ghost of a dead child. To be sure, there are funny elements to the story, but the pathos of Casper's unearthly existence is an essential plot point. A gentle lullaby for orchestra and chorus captures the soul of the friendly ghost perfectly, despite the all too obvious comparisons to Danny Elfman's BeetleJuice on the comedy bits. That said, this is a marvelously pleasant listen, marred only by Little Richard's screeching rendition of the old cartoon theme, better adapted by Horner for the main title (though it is regrettably absent from the CD).

The Cassandra Crossing

1990, RCA/BMG Ariola (Italy); from the movie The Cassandra Crossing, 1977.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; The Symphonic Orchestra Unione musicisti di Roma, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Federico Savina.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:21); 2 Break-In (2:20); 3 Safe Living (4:08); 4 I Can't Go (4:35); 5 Helicopter Rescue (3:34); 6 It's All A Game (J. Goldsmith/H. Shaper)(3:00); 7 I'm Still On My Way (D. Jordan)(2:30) Ann Turkel; 8 The Climber (2:29); 9 It's God Will (3:03); 10 Kaplan's Death (3:31); 11 End Titles (1:48).

Review: Goldsmith's music to this peculiar disaster/conspiracy thriller is a watershed '70s action score with a distinctly European sound set up in its moody, romantic title theme (later adapted into a song, "It's All a Game"). The agitated string writing of action cues like "Break In" and "I Can't Go" bring to mind Goldsmith's work on Logan's Run, but the score's set piece, "Helicopter Rescue" is in a class by itself. It's a spectacular cue built around some wildly unpredictable, jazz-influenced rhythms that you could probably dance to if you were double-jointed. Almost as good is the propulsive "The Climber," with its more literal use of locomotive-like rhythms and sounds from the orchestra. Other cues emphasize harpsichord and bongos, a melancholy woodwind theme and a reverberating metallic sound to underscore scenes of the Cassandra Crossing itself, a gigantic, rickety metal bridge. This Italian release adds another song, "I'm Still on My Way" warbled by actress Ann Turkel, but the star is Goldsmith's score, despite a less-than-stellar orchestral performance.

1995, Intrada Records; from the movie Castle Freak, Full Moon Entertainment, 1995.

Selections: 1 Prologue (6:30); 2 The Toy Room (1:28); 3 The Castle (3:19); 4 Giorgio Unleashed (3:08); 5 The Family Tomb (3:02); 6 John's Despair (1:35); 7 Giorgio Snaps (4:32); 8 Il castelli di giove (2:08); 9 Giorgio Abducts Becky (7:50); 10 The Final Battle (8:07).

Review: Richard Band has always managed to squeeze every last dollar out of his meager scoring budgets to yield the maximum effect. By combining his home studio battery of state-of-the-art synthesizers with as many acoustic players as he can afford (in this case a battery of strings for the theme for the title freak), he can avoid many of the shapeless, and mindless, sound clusters that have become standard fare for the horror film genre. Typical of much of Band's other genre work, this score is no less effective.

1989, Columbia Records; from the movie Casualties of War, Columbia Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra and Chorus Unione Musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Featured Soloist: Trencito De Los Andes (Pan flutes); Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineer: Sergio Marcotulli.

Selections: 1 Casualties Of War (9:25); 2 Trapped In A Tunnel (4:37); 3 No Escape (7:02); 4 The Abduction (4:47); 5 No Hope (2:31); 6 The Rape (4:00); 7 The Death Of Oahn (2:32); 8 The Healing (2:14); 9 The Fragging (1:19); 10 Waste Her (3:40); 11 Elegy For A Dead Cherry (1:16); 12 Elegy For Brown (3:44).

Review: This grim portrayal of war and the terrible toll it takes on soldiers and civilians alike elicited a moving score from Morricone, in which the haunting Pan flute creates a nostalgic aura. Brian de Palma's film, the story of four American GIs who rape and kill a Vietnamese woman, became the basis for a broad indictment of this country's role in Vietnam in the 1960s. It prompted Morricone to write a profoundly reflective score, in which the horrors of war and the sorrow brought by the crime itself are subtly intermingled. The nine minute-plus title track, a dirge-like elegy for chorus and orchestra, punctuated by the Pan flute, sets the tone for the entire album, with its long melodic lines suggestive of an eerie civilized world where such "casualties" can happen. The other selections pretty much follow the thread of the story, from the woman's abduction, her rape, and her death over the objections of one of the men, a "cherry" private played by Michael J. Fox. Recalling in some ways his music for The Mission (q.v.), Morricone's score is a powerful statement, all at once disturbing and compellingly attractive.

Cat People

1982, MCA Records; from the movie Cat People, RKO-Universal Picture, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Giorgio Moroder; Orchestrations: Sylvester Levai; Music Editor: Bob Badam; Album Producer: Giorgio Moroder; Engineer: Carla Ridge.

Selections: 1 Cat People (G. Moroder/D. Bowie)(6:43) David Bowie; 2 The Autopsy (1:31); 3 Irena's Theme (4:20); 4 Night Rabbit (1:58); 5 Leopard Tree Dream (4:01); 6 Paul's Theme (Jogging Chase)(3:51); 7 The Myth (5:11); 8 To The Bridge (2:50); 9 Transformation Seduction (2:44); 10 Bring The Prod (1:57).

Review: This stylish remake of the 1942 thriller, which takes as its premise that a race of cat people, resulting from the ancient mating of women with big cats, roams the Earth and, under certain conditions, reverts to the predators' killer instinct before turning human again, may be best remembered today for the fact that Nastassia Kinski, who stars in it, is such a lovely cat woman. Giving the film an extra aura of mystery and fright, Giorgio Moroder's electronic/instrumental score has its ominous moments, and generally speaking holds its own. At times melodic, but most often exploring sound effects that are more effective on the screen, the album is a mixed bag. David Bowie's hypnotic performance of the main theme, "Putting Out Fire," is a definite plus.

The Cemetery Club

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Cemetery Club, Touchstone Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Featured Soloist: Cynthia Millar (piano); Album Producer: Elmer Bernstein; Engineer: Brian Masterson.

Selections: 1 Esther, Doris And Lucille (2:32); 2 First Date (1:00); 3 Friends (1:19); 4 Alone (1:59); 5 Cemetery (2:30); 6 Ben (2:11); 7 Walk (2:21); 8 Doris (2:32); 9 Fight (2:38); 10 New Life (1:12); 11 Kiss (1:10); 12 Weekend (:38); 13 Funerals (1:30); 14 Search (1:21); 15 Endings (1:29); 16 The Club (3:06); 17 For Sentimental Reasons (D. Watson/W. Best)(2:50) Cle Thompson; 18 There Will Never Be Another You (H. Warren/M. Gordon) (2:13) Etta Cox; 19 Kiss Of Fire (L. Allen/R. Hill)(2:47) Diane Ladd.

Review: Ignoring the sadder aspects of the story, Elmer Bernstein concentrated on the feel-good side of this sly, bittersweet comedy about three widows, whose bereavement brings them together, and who band to face the outside world with more serenity before launching themselves again on the dating scene. While the score has its moments of melancholy, most of the moods projected in the cues are lovely expressions of romanticism that are quite endearing, when not outright charming, with a recurring motif for "Esther, Doris and Lucille" tying everything together, and reaching a climax in a spirited little waltz ("The Club"). Three pop selections are welcome additions and complement the feelings expressed in the score.

Chain Reaction

1996, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Chain Reaction, 20th Century-Fox Film, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton, Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producers: Jerry Goldsmith, Bruce Botnick; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Meet Eddie (4:52); 2 Assassins (5:16); 3 Open Minds (2:46); 4 Ice Chase (5:49); 5 No Solution (2:41); 6 System Down (2:27); 7 Open Door (3:12); 8 Out Of The Hole (3:31).

Review: Regretfully, this is simply an uninspired assemblage of cues from Jerry Goldsmith's score that repeatedly teases you with the prospect that it's going to go somewhere, but never quite manages to make the effort. The same three-note motif (the main theme?) is aimlessly repeated over and over. Hopelessly dull and unentertaining overall, it's only with the final cue, "Out of the Hole" that any true sign of the master is revealed, but by then it's just too late for you to care.

Goldsmith's score for one of the more idiotic action films of the '90s marked a return to the heavy, elaborate orchestral stylings of late '70s/early '80s efforts like Outland and The Swarm in several large-scale action cues, notably the five minute "Ice Chase" and the percussive "Closed Door". The staccato, heavily rhythmic action material stands rather uncomfortably alongside less textured (and less interesting) quasi-romantic cues like "Open Minds" and "Out of the Hole" that are more in keeping with Goldsmith's current, subdued style, while the chase cues hint at the glories of the past. The score also features a wailing electric guitar as a motif for paunchy hero Keanu Reeves, an effect that rarely achieves organic unison with the modernistic film score sound of the rest of the music.

The Chamber

1996, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Chamber, Universal Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Carter Burwell; Orchestrations: Carter Burwell, Sonny Kompanek; Music Editor: Adam Smalley; Orchestra conducted by Carter Burwell; Album Producer: Carter Burwell; Engineer: Michael Farrow.

Selections: 1 We Leapfrog To Our Death (2:08); 2 Two Small Bodies (1:48); 3 Dark Roots Of The Tree (1:42); 4 Parchman Farm, By Car (1:35); 5 Teddy Meeks' Execution (2:45); 6 Hall Of Records (3:23); 7 Cowards (1:36); 8 Tale Of The Laurel Tree (5:43); 9 Mitigating Circumstances (3:10); 10 Klan Teaching (4:02); 11 Ripples (2:36); 12 Lady Justice (4:27); 13 The Goodbye (3:42); 14 The Walk (2:48); 15 The Chamber (1:10); 16 The End (2:33).

Review: This is a fairly straightforward Carter Burwell effort that is well-composed and orchestrated, but just never quite seems to stick in your mind. It is surprisingly unmemorable for such an established composer, probably because Burwell seems to do his best work for the quirky films created by the Coen Brothers, like Raising Arizona and The Hudsucker Proxy.

Chaplin

Selections: 1 Chaplin: Main Theme (3:06); 2 Early Days In London (4:17); 3 Charlie Proposes (3:01); 4 To California/The Cutting Room (3:45); 5 Discovering The Tramp/The Wedding Chase (4:01); 6 Chaplin's Studio Opening (1:58); 7 Salt Lake City Episode (2:11); 8 The Roll Dance (2:34); 9 News Of Hetty's Death/Smile (3:42); 10 From London To L.A. (3:20); 11 Joan Barry Trouble/Oona Arrives (2:15); 12 Remembering Hetty (2:57); 13 Smile (2:05); 14 The Roll Dance (1:47); 15 Chaplin: Main Theme/Smile (3:38); 16 Smile (3:38) Robert Downey, Jr.

Review: While the music from Chaplin is fine accompaniment to the film, it doesn't stand quite as well on its own as a general "listening" CD. Composer John Barry has created a quietly beautiful score, but without the visuals, it often sounds heavy and plodding—perhaps because it lacks any real, melodic "theme." While it has a number of interesting moments ("Salt Lake City Episode" and "The Roll Dance" among them), fans of the film will probably enjoy it more than casual listeners. A vocal version of Chaplin's own composition, "Smile," performed by Robert Downey Jr., is included. The sonics are, as expected, excellent.

1988, RCA Records; from the movie Charade, Universal Pictures, 1963.

Selections: 1 Charade (Main Title)(2:07); 2 Bistro (1:48); 3 Bateau Mouche (2:52); 4 Megeve (2:58); 5 Bye Bye Charlie (3:05); 6 The Happy Carousel (1:28); 7 Charade (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(2:34) Chorus; 8 Orange Tamoure (1:52); 9 Latin Snowfall (2:31); 10 The Drip-Dry Waltz (1:49); 11 Mambo Parisienne (2:30); 12 Punch And Judy (1:49); 13 Charade (Carousel) (1:37).

Review: A romantic comedy thriller set in France, Charade received the right musical touch from maestro Mancini, whose amiable and diverting score seems a perfect companion to the screen action. The story involves Audrey Hepburn, a widow in distress pursued by a trio of thugs trying to recover the money her late husband may have swindled from them, and Cary Grant, as the dashing knight in suit and tie who comes to her rescue. Like many Mancini scores, the tone in the cues is lightweight and attractive, with the pleasantly catchy title tune, with lyrics by Johnny Mercer, adding a melodically memorable element to the proceedings. One drawback, however, characteristic of RCA at that time, is that the recording is aggressively close-miked and dry, resulting in a brittle, unflattering sound, with a significant amount of hiss at the top.

1981, Polydor Records; from the movie Chariots of Fire, 20th Century-Fox, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Vangelis; Album Producer: Vangelis; Engineers: Raphael Preston, John Walker, Raine Shine.

Selections: 1 Titles (3:33); 2 Five Circles (5:20); 3 Abraham's Theme (3:20); 4 Eric's Theme (4:18); 5 100 Meters (2:04); 6 Jerusalem (H. Parker) (2:47) The Ambrosian Singers; 7 Chariots Of Fire (20:41).

Review: A daring effort by director Hugh Hudson that could have backfired as brilliantly as it paid off. Imagine the idea of completely scoring a film about two runners at the 1924 Olympics with electronics, composed by a musician known for making the music up as he watches the film instead of writing it in advance. The concept seems like something destined for failure, but under the brilliant instincts of Vangelis, the music created garnered both a best-selling soundtrack album and a 1981 Academy Award for Best Original Score. An early music video, showing slow-motion runners moving in time to the theme, made the music synonymous with the sport in the public's mind. The 21-minute "Chariots of Fire" track is most likely a suite of the original underscore cues, while the five initial tracks appear to be fleshed out cover versions of the primary themes.

The Chase

1989, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Chase, Columbia Pictures, 1966.

Selections: 1 Main Title: The Chase (2:44); 2 The Chase Is On (4:41); 3 Saturday Night Philosopher (4:44); 4 What Did I Do Wrong? (2:38); 5 Call That Dancin'? (3:37); 6 Stop Talking Foolish, Stop Talking Anything (3:34); 7 Look Around (2:00); 8 The Beating (3:23); 9 And You've Got One! (2:41); 10 I Came To The End Of Me! (2:51); 11 Blues For Bubber (4:05); 12 The Junkyard (5:27); 13 I'll Drink To That (2:45); 14 The Killing/Next Morning (5:19).

Review: John Barry wrote a taut score for this pulse-pounding story of an escaped convict (Robert Redford) who returns to his hometown, a small Texas community, to try and clear himself from what might have been a false charge, only to be hunted down by the town's high-minded citizens. The film, a study of a close-knit society where alcoholism, adultery and fanatical evangelism are the prevailing ills, prompted Barry to write a score in which the dominant note is a pervading sense of drama about to erupt at any moment. The ominous tone in most of the tracks is temporarily relieved by an occasional blues number, in what is essentially a richly expressive and rewarding score.

Cheyenne Autumn

1987, Label X; from the movie Cheyenne Autumn, Warner Bros. Pictures, 1964.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North; Orchestrations: Gil Grau, Henry Brandt; Orchestra conducted by Alex North; Engineer: Federico Savino; CD Producer: John Lasher.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:10); 2 Main Title (2:17); 3 Indians Arrive (1:27); 4 Friend Deborah/Waiting For Supplies (2:25); 5 The School House (1:16); 6 Archer (1:51); 7 Rejection (4:15); 8 Truth (:52); 9 Entr'acte (1:17); 10 River Crossing (2:24); 11 Sick Girl (3:26); 12 The Battle (3:40); 13 Dodge City (2:14); 14 Cattle Drive (1:46); 15 Old Chief (1:37); 16 Lead Our People Home (3:09); 17 Death (2:35); 18 The People (1:10); 19 Spring/Soldiers/ Alarm (3:18); 20 Hope (1:10); 21 End Title and End Cast (:52).

Review: Alex North produced this rich, thoughtful western score at the tail end of his epic period (shortly after composing Spartacus and Cleopatra), and Cheyenne Autumn works as a kind of warmer response to those occasionally brutal works, shot through with Americana and the ceremonial dignity of the Native American people John Ford's film concerned itself with. The score mixes sharp-edged martial fanfares with somber, reflective passages marking the hardship of the Cheyenne tribe struggling to maintain their identity as they're relegated to reservation life in the late 1800s. There are deeply percussive battle cues, a melancholy Americana love theme, even a Samuel Barber-like satirical use of the "Camptown Races" melody for a revisionist sequence involving Wyatt Earp (Jimmy Stewart). Ford evidently hated this score, but it's by far the best music ever associated with one of his features, and no film composer ever captured the emotion of anguish better than North.

1986, GNP Crescendo; from the movie Children of a Lesser God, Paramount Pictures, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Convertino; Orchestrations: Michael Convertino, Shirley Walker, Chris Boardman; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker; Album Producer: Michael Convertino; Engineers: Dan Wallin, Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:03); 2 Silence And Sound (3:26); 3 Sarah Sleeping (1:42); 4 Rain-Pool (1:09); 5 Underwater Love (1:23); 6 On The Ferry (1:45); 7 James And Sarah (1:08); 8 Goodnight (1:21); 9 Boomerang (3:26); 10 Forgiveness/Winter Into Spring (4:05); 11 Double Concerto in D Minor for Violins, 2nd Movement (J.S. Bach)(2:27); 12 Searching For Sarah (1:14); 13 Love On The Couch (1:25); 14 James Alone On The Pier (:53); 15 Joined (2:11); 16 End Title (3:02).

Review: This early new age style score by Michael Convertino is hauntingly romantic and, with its simple, catchy main theme, is one of the key reasons for the film's success. Played primarily by string instruments and a synclavier, the score captures the unblemished innocence of a young, introverted deaf woman (Marlee Matlin in her Academy Award-winning performance) brought out of self-imposed isolation by teacher William Hurt. Originally released as an LP, the inclusion of the song "Boomerang" on track nine devastates the score's dreamy pacing. Packaging, a holdover from the LP version as well, fails to list any track numbers (but does have the bizarre legends "Side One" and "Side Two").

Selections: 1 Main Title (Red Bear's Theme)(2:28); 2 The Waterfall/Micah's Transformation (3:22); 3 Love In The Corn (2:08); 4 Nosebleed (2:23); 5 On The Porch, At The Table, In The Circle (3:50); 6 Doc Appleby (3:24); 7 A Combine And A House (6:12); 8 Stalking The Newsvan (3:05); 9 Danny And Lacy Kiss (2:33); 10 Hallfire Suite (6:18); 11 Ring Sacrifice/Finale (4:29); 12 Children Of The Children (End Credits)(2:55).

Review: This early effort by Daniel Licht (Bad Moon) shows he was always able to rise above this type of trash. Licht does manage to squeeze quite a lot energy out of his meager budget, even finding a way to combine a modest sized choir with his orchestra. The voices chant out pseudo-American Indian verses to represent "He Who Walks Between the Rows," the evil spirit that has possessed the young. "Nosebleed" is the cue that perhaps best represents the composer's intent for the dark nature of the children. He also manages to inject some pleasant alternative direction with the romantic start to "A Combine and a House," while imbuing some genuine oddness with the use of some Far Eastern motifs. Licht endows this film, the second chapter in a laughingly bad trilogy adapted from a single Stephen King short story, with some credence of seriousness. He deserves better opportunities than these.

Children of the Night

Album Notes: Music: Daniel Licht; Music Editor: John LaSalandra; Orchestra conducted by Tim Simonec; Album Producer: Daniel Licht; Engineer: Jeff Vaughn.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (1:40); 2 The Girl's Theme (1:13); 3 The Girls Go To Chuch (2:43); 4 Mark Meets Karen (3:00); 5 Matty's Story (1:46); 6 Bloodsucker's Ball (3:37); 7 Billy's Theme/Karen Loves Frank (2:11); 8 Grandma Attack/Cocoon Love (3:34); 9 Dance Of Karen's Lights (1:43); 10 Cindy Dies (2:10); 11 Old Friends' Reunion (2:20); 12 Young Blood/Meet Zakir (1:44); 13 Morning Music (1:15); 14 Drive Montage (1:24); 15 Zakir Goes To Church (2:19); 16 Ride To Old Mill/A Milkman's Revenge (2:14); 17 Endgame (3:21); 18 End Credits (2:08).

Review: Though written for a horror film, this melodic score shows Daniel Licht in a very positive light, with themes that are for the most part attractive and catchy, and seem to belie the darker aspects of the story itself. The score opens on a series of cues that presage the arrival of a vampire in the small middle-American town where the action takes place, and where various light incidents are the occasion for spirited musical moments that are quite engaging. But as the action progresses, the moods evolve into a darker, more percussive mode, though without losing their melodic content, and become increasingly more ominous and darker. Using the full forces of the orchestra, Licht then unleashes the final strokes with themes that signal the end of the nightmare. It's all very effective, and enjoyably easy on the ear.

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Chinatown, Paramount Pictures, 1974.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Featured Artist: Uan Rasey (trumpet); Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Tom Mack; Engineers: John Norman, Thorne Nogar.

Selections: 1 Love Theme From Chinatown (Main Title)(1:59); 2 Noah Cross (2:27); 3 Easy Living (L. Robin/R. Rainger)(1:49); 4 Jake And Evelyn (2:41); 5 I Can't Get Started (I. Gershwin/V. Duke)(3:35) Bunny Berigan and His Orchestra; 6 The Last Of Ida (2:59); 7 The Captive (3:05); 8 The Boy On A Horse (2:05); 9 The Way You Look Tonight (J. Kern/D. Fields)(2:16); 10 The Wrong Clue (2:32); 11 J.J. Gittis (3:05); 12 Love Theme From Chinatown (End Title)(2:03).

Review: This moody and incredibly atmospheric work was a replacement score written and recorded by Goldsmith in an astonishing 11 days. The richly nostalgic solo trumpet theme is justly famous and lends tremendous emotional weight to cues like "Jake and Evelyn" and "The Wrong Clue," while the rest of the score creates a memorably dark feeling almost entirely with piano, from hand-stopped low end notes to an almost tide-like effect created by brushing the piano strings themselves. There's also a brutally violent staccato piano solo and some disturbing, atonal avant garde string effects that stretch the tension and masterfully hint at the terrible psychological wounds hidden within the characters of Roman Polanski's brilliant gumshoe film. This long-overdue release from Varese boasts superb sound that immerses the listener in the score's percussive sonic world, and its few pieces of period source music blend seamlessly with Goldsmith's music. A must-have.

Album Notes: Music: Cliff Eidelman; Orchestrations: Mark McKenzie, William Kidd; Music Editor: Robin Eidelman; The Seattle Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Cliff Eidelman; Album Producer: Cliff Eidelman; Engineer: Joe Gastwirt.

Selections: Act 1: Spain: 1 The Great Sea (1:35); 2 Come O Come Emanuel (2:23); 3 The Broken Cloud (3:39); 4 Never Forget (2:00); 5 Spain Defeats The Moors (3:09); 6 Houses Of Gold (1:07); Act 2: The Sea: 7 The Voyage (1:29); 8 Mutiny On The Bounty (3:17); 9 Remembering Home (1:31); 10 Saint Elmo's Fire (4:07); 11 The Discovery (Gloria)(3:03); Act 3: The West Indies: 12 The New World (3:22); 13 Alvarao's Fatal Act (2:17); Act 4: The Sea: 14 Storm (1:02); Act 4 Part II: Spain: 15 The Return (:41); 16 A Hero's Welcome (dialogue) (7:27).

Review: Once in a while you come across music written for a bad movie that is far better than it has any right to be, and even surpasses the picture itself in terms of its popularity. That's certainly the case with Christopher Columbus: The Discovery, the first of two big-budget 1992 flops depicting the discovery of the New World. This film, produced by Alexander Salkind, features a grand, old-fashioned orchestral score by Cliff Eidelman, who seized the opportunity to write music in the great swashbuckling tradition of Korngold and latter-day composers like John Williams. It's stirring, robust and downright glorious in its best portions, illustrating young Eidelman's adept handling of both chorus and orchestra, and resulting in what is really a sensational album. The movie might be a dud, but just as Vangelis wrote a great score for the equally disastrous Ridley Scott bomb 1492, Eidelman has come up with a terrific stand-alone work that has already outlasted the unintentionally funny inadequacies of its source.

Review: Ennio Morricone struck a particularly emotional chord in this Academy Award-winning score for the film of Giuseppe Tornatore, permeated with a deep sense of melancholy and nostalgia. Heard behind the screen action, the score subtly underlines the feelings of a successful filmmaker who goes back to his little hometown only to be confronted by the ghosts of his past, and particularly the memory of an old projectionist who became his first mentor and sparked his interest in the movies. But beyond being a mere recollection of a youngster slowly coming of age, the film is a paean to a time when the cinema was something special and unique in the lives of everyone, and when going to the movies meant an unforgettable magic adventure in a land that only existed on celluloid. In his score, Morricone was able to capture the deep emotional moods evoked by the film, and turned in one of the most eloquent soundtracks of his long and distinguished career.

Review: Soundtrack listeners tend to dislike dialogue mixed in with their music, and with Circle of Friends, you can see why—the dialogue disrupts any momentum that Michael Kamen's score attempts to build up during the course of its abbreviated running time. What you end up with, then, are very brief, mostly unexceptional snippets of music interspersed with dialogue that will only appeal to die-hard fans of the movie. This comes in spite of the fact that Kamen's music is pleasant enough (with the Chieftains onboard, it comes off as an agreeable distant cousin to Far and Away), and the Shane McGowan-Maire Brennan duet, "You're the One," written by Kamen and McGowan, is actually quite good, even with a pair of vocalists whose styles are seemingly at odds with each other. But what more can you say about an under-30 minute album where dialogue is seemingly used to pad the running time?

Review: This sensational recreation of Bernard Herrmann's music for Orson Welles' Citizen Kane must rank among the most successful attempts at bringing into the digital era a score from the early days of Hollywood. Herrmann himself recorded at various times some cues from his score, and others, notably Charles Gerhardt in his Classic Film Scores series, have made sure to include excerpts from the momentous score, but this recording is its only complete representation, with Tony Bremner conducting the Australian Philharmonic Orchestra in a flawless performance. A trend-setter in every way Citizen Kane is probably the most famous film ever made in Hollywood, an icon of moviemaking which launched the screen careers of many of its creators, including writer/director Welles, and co-star Joseph Cotten.

For Herrmann, by his own admission, it was a dream come true. Unlike the prevailing practice that gives a composer two to three weeks to write his music once the film is shot, he began scoring it almost from the first day of shooting, with his cues not only reflecting the unfolding screen action, but becoming part of it when Welles decided to match some scenes to the music Herrmann had written. The cues presented here follow the drama about press tycoon Charles Kane, from his youth to his two marriages and the last word ("Rosebud") he whispers on his deathbed. At times deeply introspective, at times vibrant and descriptive, the score immediately established Herrmann as a vigorous, somewhat iconoclastic composer who worked by his own rules, a reputation he nurtured throughout the rest of his career. Like some books in a personal library, some recordings are essential in any basic collection. Citizen Kane is one of them!

Selections: 1 The Bridge (2:05); 2 The Meet (2:57); 3 The Hospital (2:17); 4 When I Was A Kid (2:21); 5 The Cabin (1:06); 6 The King Maker (2:22); 7 Old Friends (2:49); 8 Swartz Is Dead (2:45); 9 Think About It (1:22); 10 The Report (1:37); 11 Take A Vacation (3:31); 12 Count On It (4:50).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith brought some echoes of On the Waterfront to this story of New York political intrigue, one of the few intelligent dramas scored by the composer in the '90s. There's a relentless pulse of timpani moving through virtually every cue of this score that functions as a kind of heartbeat for the Big Apple, moving from the gritty romanticism of the opening blues theme through hammering, violent street crime encounters, and finally surging under the film's subtle dramatic underscoring, which ranges from a swaggering blues theme for a political "kingpin" to more lyrical, introspective moments filling out the back end of the album. There's a real regression from the percussive, agitated first half of the CD to the more measured tones on which it ends, but the rumble of low percussion makes for an unusually cohesive listening experience.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Music Editor: Richard Blackford; The Unione musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Featured Musicians: Laura Pontecorvo (recorder), Paolo Zampini (flutes), Stefano Novelli (piccolo clarinet), Felice and Raffaele Clemente (Pan pipes), Amedeo Tommasi, Gianluca Podio (synthesizers), The London Studio Orchestra and The Stephen Hills Singers, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Featured Musicians: Mike Taylor (Indian flute), Levine Andrade (viola), Sirish Manji (tabla), Manti Aswin (tampura), Chandra Ramesh (sitar), Erwin Keiles (scinai) Glen Keiles, Richard Blackford (synthesizers); Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineers: Franco Patrignani, Dick Lewzey.

Selections: 1 City Of Joy (2:12); 2 The Family Of The Poor (2:41); 3 One Night By Chance (3:33); 4 Crack Down (3:21); 5 Hope (2:19); 6 In The Labyrinth (1:43); 7 The Family Of The Poor (2:09); 8 A Surgeon In Despair (2:23); 9 One Night, By Chance (1:47); 10 For A Daughter's Dowry (3:59); 11 Godfather Of The Bustee (2:27); 12 Monsoon (2:10); 13 Calcutta (4:19); 14 Bustee Day (1:39); 15 The Birth (2:16); 16 The Worm Turns (3:51); 17 The Labyrinth (5:39); 18 To Calcutta (6:50); 19 The Family Of The Poor (1:37); 20 To Roland (1:52).

Review: In a style not unlike the one that served him so well for The Mission, Ennio Morricone conceived for City of Joy a score that exudes vibrancy and excitement, with an impressive array of musicians and vocalists lending their help. The film, about an American doctor in Calcutta and the struggle he wages against local thugs trying to control the slums, motivated Morricone to write a deeply emotive and lyrical score, in which the Indian instruments often play a dominant role. It is a very stylized, attractive effort with many qualitative themes that paint vivid, colorful pictures.

City Slickers

City Slickers

1991, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie City Slickers, Castle Rock Entertainment, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Mark McKenzie, Hummie Mann; Music Editor: Scott Stambler; Orchestra conducted by Hummie Mann, Mark McKenzie; Album Producer: Marc Shaiman; Engineer: Joel Moss.

1994, Chaos Records; from the movie City Slickers II: The Legend of Curly's Gold, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian, Frank Bennett, Larry Blank, Brad Dechter, Jerry Hey; Music Editor: Michael Linn; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producer: Marc Shaiman; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineers: Andy Bass, Jay Selvester, David Marquette, Fred Vogler, Leslie Ann Jones, Sue McLean, Greg Dennen, Mark Eshelman, Bill Talbott, Tom Hardisty.

Selections: 1 Mitch's Dream (2:35); 2 Main Title (2:50); 3 Found: One Smile (1:14); 4 Discovering The Map (1:53); 5 Oh! Brother (1:26); 6 Gold Diggers Of 1994 (:46); 7 The Map Is Real... And On Fire (1:31); 8 On The Trail (:48); 9 Real Men (:48); 10 Let's Get That Gold! (1:51); 11 Duke Saves The Day (2:46); 12 Come And Get Me! (2:21); 13 The Stampede (7:23); 14 Look Who's Bonding Too (1:57); 15 Over The Buffalo's Back, Under The Frozen People (2:28); 16 To The Bat Cave! (2:48); 17 There's Gold In Them Thar Hills (4:58); 18 A Box Full Of Lead (5:38); 19 Jackpot! (3:39).

Review: With City Slickers, and its sequel The Legend of Curly's Gold, Marc Shaiman wrote a music that takes its inspiration in the western genre, while gently poking fun at it, in much the same way Elmer Bernstein devised his score for The Hallelujah Trail, which City Slickers sometimes evokes.

The rambunctious, rollicking adventures of three urban cowboy wannabes on a two-week vacation at a dude ranch, driving cattle across the west under the guidance of a surly cowboy named Curly (Jack Palance), the first film became a festive occasion to oppose two totally different lifestyles, with many humorous situations evolving from the confrontation. Shaiman's score, taking a cue from the script, keeps its musical tongue firmly in cheek and makes several amusing turns that will delight fans of film music as well as first listeners. A performance of the classic song "Young At Heart," by Jimmy Durante, seems oddly out of place in the context.

The Legend of Curly's Gold finds the three city slickers (Billy Crystal, Daniel Stern and Bruno Kirby) back in the west, looking for a treasure their late trail boss might have hidden somewhere. Helping along in the search is Curly's brother (also played by Palance). The film may tread over familiar grounds, but once again the moods are kept lightweight and entertaining, with Shaiman's score, much more expansive in this longer-playing recording, revisiting his previous effort and adding several new themes for another enjoyable musical romp.

1986, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Clan of the Cave Bear, Warner Bros., 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Performed by: Alan Silvestri; Album Producer: Alan Silvestri; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:13); 2 The Bear Skull (1:32); 3 Ayla Finds The Cave (1:36); 4 Ayla Alone (2:10); 5 The Glacier Trek (2:26); 6 The Clan Finds Ayla (3:25); 7 Kreb On The Mountain (1:42); 8 The Counting (2:40); 9 Kreb Gives Ayla Totem (3:20); 10 Wolf Attack (1:27); 11 The Vision (3:36); 12 Iza's Death (2:08); 13 Caught (4:08); 14 The Clan (1:55); 15 Ayla Hugs Kreb (2:10); 16 The Rape (1:35); 17 End Title (6:30).

Review: Like Raquel Welch before her, Darryl Hannah is an eye-popping prehistoric siren in The Clan of the Cave Bear, but very little else in this unimaginative adaptation of Jean Auel's novel matched her physical charms or the rugged beauty of the Canadian scenery. One exception however is Alan Silvestri's compelling score, a deft blend of orchestral and synthesized sounds, some devised to resemble the grunts that passed for language at that remote time, others to evoke moods and feelings in a society with minimal forms of expression. Not every track works in the context, and while some ("Ayla Alone") are particularly effective, others ("The Glacier Trek") sound repetitive and dry. But one might excuse the flaws in this score, as the overall impression it leaves is positive.

Class Action

1991, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Class Action, 20th Century-Fox, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Music Editor: Jim Hendrickson; Synthesizer Programming: Ian Underwood, Ralph Grierson; Performed by: James Horner, Ralph Grierson; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:57); 2 Memories Of Mom (4:13); 3 Do You Like Me (1:44); 4 The Deposition (2:41); 5 The More I See You (H. Warren/M. Gordon) (1:57); 6 Depth Charge (1:52); 7 Michael Revealed (1:22); 8 Iron Mountain (:47); 9 Paper Blizzard (2:46); 10 Stolen Files (1:14); 11 The Trial (2:48); 12 Healing The Rift (5:23); 13 End Title (2:37).

Review: A taut courtroom drama opposing a veteran lawyer against his own daughter in a class action suit, Class Action was an ideal vehicle for Gene Hackman and Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, both stimulatingly effective in a face-to-face confrontation that pulled no punches but wound up sounding realistic and emotionally charged. In a very uncharacteristic, low-key style, James Horner wrote a series of cues that subtly underlined the action while avoiding to call too much attention to them. Taken on their own musical merits, however, they emerge as attractive pieces of music, beautifully realized and captivating. A piano solo performance of the old chestnut "The More I See You," by Ralph Grierson, adds the right poetic touch to the score itself.

1994, Milan Records; from the movie Clear and Present Danger, Paramount Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Don Davis; Music Editors: Jim Henrikson, Joe E. Rand; Assistant Music Editor: Helena Lea; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Featured Musicians: Michael Fisher, Ralph Grierson, Tony Hinnigan, James Horner, Randy Kerber, Mike Taylor, Ian Underwood; Album Producers: James Horner, Shawn Murphy; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineers: Andy Bass, Dave Marquette, Jay Selvester.

Selections: 1 Main Title/A Clear And Present Danger (5:24); 2 Operation Reciprocity (3:25); 3 The Ambush (9:50); 4 The Laser-Guided Missile (3:51); 5 Looking For Clues (3:32); 6 Deleting The Evidence (4:41); 7 Greer's Funeral/ Betrayal (6:21); 8 Escobedo's New Friend (5:28); 9 Second Hand Copter (2:15); 10 Truth Needs A Soldier/End Title (5:48).

Review: Except for the occasional use of South American flutes to suggest the Colombian scenes, Clear and Present Danger is rooted in dramatic Americana. Opening with a heraldic trumpet fanfare, a graceful melody for strings over low brass tones creates an elegant, dignified feel. The feeling doesn't last long, though, as most of the score consists of suspense and action motifs. There are plenty of rhythmic, surging cues for brass and percussion, some vaguely pretty but more often furtive violin melodies, dissimulated by dark, brooding string chords, plenty of suspenseful woodwinds and percussion figures, and some neat textural synth-percussion effects. Horner develops the score's minor two-note motif from minimalist winds and drums to a fever pitch of frenzied swirling strings, pounding drums, eerily rising brasses and scattering piano notes. It's a good score, its listenability reduced somewhat due to an overabundance of the action/suspense motifs, but on the whole it is effectively presented and well orchestrated.

Clerks

1994, Chaos/Columbia Records; from the movie Clerks, Miramax Films, 1994.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Love Among Freaks, Ted Nicely, Alice In Chains, Rick Parasher, Matt Hyde, Bash & Pop, Cliff Shrimper, Critter & The Jesus Lizard, Paul Pacific, Andy Wallace, Bad Religion, John Fryer, John Custer, Clint Werner, Seaweed, Soul Asylum, Toby Wright; Song Engineers: Steve De Acutis, Ted Nicely, Eli Janney, Scott, Matt Hyde, Virgil Gentile, Critter, Sir James Bunchberry, Andy Wallace, Stabbing Westward, Richard Mouser, Clint Werner, Seaweed, Toby Wright; Executive Music Producers: Bob Weinstein, Harvey Weinstein, Scott Greenstein; Engineer: Wally Traugott.

Selections: 1 Dante's Lament (:05); 2 Clerks (S. Smyth/S. Angley) (3:41) Love Among Freaks; 3 Kill The Sex Player (Girls Against Boys) (3:18) Girls Against Boys; 4 No Time For Love, Dr. Jones (:10); 5 Got Me Wrong (J. Cantrell) (4:11) Alice in Chains; 6 Randall And Dante On Sex (:20); 7 Making Me Sick (T. Stinson/G. Gershunoff/R. Bradbury) (3:01) Bash & Pop; 8 A Bunch Of Muppets (:24); 9 Chewbacca (Art/Hank/Dave) (1:26) Supernova; 10 Panic In Cicero (The Jesus Lizard) (3:29) The Jesus Lizard; 11 Shooting Star (P. Rodgers) (4:42) Golden Smog; 12 Leaders And Followers (G. Graffin) (2:41) Bad Religion; 13 I Like To Expand My Horizons (:15); 14 Violent Mood Swings (W. Flakus/C. Hall/J. Sellers/D. Suycott/S. Zechman) (5:34) Stabbing Westward; 15 Berserker (S. Smyth/S. Angley/K. Smith) (2:09) Love Among Freaks; 16 Big Problems (R. Mullin/W. Weatherman) (2:15) Corrosion of Conformity; 17 Go Your Own Way (L. Buckingham) (3:51) Seaweed; 18 Social Event Of The Season (:28); 19 Can't Even Tell (D. Pirner) (3:14) Soul Asylum; 20 Jay's Chant (:11).

Review: Life in a convenience store, and the odd assortment of people it seems to attract on a regular basis, Clerks, an independent black-and-white film that made a splash at the Sundance Festival, has its moments of humor and pathos, but amounts to little else than a splash-dash effort of unconnected scenes, all aiming to chronicle the problems faced on his first day by a new clerk, Dante. Punctuating the action, and giving it an extra dimension, is the soundtrack, a collection of grunge songs by such groups as Girls Against Boys, Alice In Chains, Supernova, Love Among Freaks, and others. Bits of dialogue (some actually quite funny) are interspersed from time to time, the better to situate the songs in the development of the action.

The Client

1994, Elektra Records; from the movie The Client, Warner Bros., 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Howard Shore; Orchestrations: Howard Shore; Music Editor: Ellen Segal; Orchestra conducted by Howard Shore; Featured Musicians: Steve Jordan, Danny Kotchmar, Michael Lang, Rim May, Simon Franglen; Album Producer: Howard Shore; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 The Client (1:35); 2 Romey's Suicide (8:32); 3 Have You Told Me Everything? (2:23); 4 Reggie's Theme (1:57); 5 Barry The Blade (3:50); 6 I'll Take The Fifth (2:04); 7 Unfit (2:25); 8 Kill Them All (1:33); 9 Jailbird (1:23); 10 The Morgue (4:53); 11 I Know Where The Body's Buried (3:37); 12 The Boathouse (8:52); 13 Leaving Memphis (:53); 14 Bye Reggie (1:27); 15 The Flight To Phoenix (1:47); 16 The End (3:39).

Review: A fairly intense dramatic score by Howard Shore for the 1994 adaptation of John Grisham's best seller. The album is extremely dark in its overall tone, taking seriously the concept of its central figure, a child whose life is in jeopardy from the Mob. In the use of a "Southern Twang" motif to reinforce the setting ("Reggie's Theme"), the apprehension is extremely prevalent, and even at the end, when the good guys win, Shore doesn't let us off too easily.

1993, Scotti Bros.; from the movie Cliffhanger, Tri-Star Pictures, 1993.

Selections: 1 Cliffhanger Theme (3:52); 2 Sarah's Farewell (2:14); 3 Sarah Falls (3:53); 4 Gabe Returns (3:11); 5 I Understand (1:40); 6 Sunset Searching (1:19); 7 Tolerated Help (2:55); 8 Base Jump (4:10); 9 Bats (2:25); 10 Two Man Job (2:08); 11 Kynette Is Impaled (4:00); 12 Fireside Chat (:33); 13 Frank's Demise (2:37); 14 Rabbit Hole (1:33); 15 Icy Stream

Review: This Trevor Jones score opens well with the unabashedly romantic "Cliffhanger Theme." Never before has dangling over a sheer drop seemed so adventurous. At that moment, you really think you're about to hear a sweeping score. Wrong. From that point on, everything slows down to a crawl and whatever momentum the main theme has generated is quickly lost. The album plods through the next five tracks before evidencing some signs of life on "Tolerated Help." Most of the album's gusto seems to have been saved for the final five or six tracks, particularly the seven and a half minute "End Credits."

Clockers

1995, Columbia Records; from the movie Clockers, Universal Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Terence Blanchard; Featured Musicians: Terence Blanchard (trumpet), Edward Simon (piano), Troy Davis (percussion); Orchestra conducted by Terence Blanchard; Album Producers: Robin Burgess, Alex Steyermark; Engineer: James P. Nichols.

Selections: 1 Strike Rides With Rodney (3:09); 2 Strike Packs Up (3:03); 3 Tyrone/Brothers (1:55); 4 Jail Visit/Strike Teaches Tyrone (5:27); 5 Errol/ Family (1:45); 6 Drive With Andre (2:09); 7 Rodney's Plan/Rocco (3:02); 8 In The Joint/Rocco Grills Strike (5:29); 9 Trains And Crack (1:59); 10 Brothers' Photos (2:21); 11 Something Personal/Evil Rodney (3:54); 12 Iris Wants To Know (2:50); 13 Rough Ride With Rodney (3:00); 14 Tyrone's Story (4:11); 15 Self-Defense (1:51); 16 Strike Leaves Town/Finale (7:24).

Review: Terence Blanchard's music to this Spike Lee "joint" is the last thing you'd expect for a gritty urban crime procedural—a heartfelt, richly emotional orchestral score that's almost suggestive of Aaron Copland in its opening moments of plaintive woodwind playing. Relentlessly downbeat, with a steady, deliberate rhythmic tread that suggests the inevitability of the film's tragic storyline, the score has some of the same emotional directness and sense of anguish that made Howard Shore's Silence of the Lambs so effective. There are some very low key suggestions of a blues sensibility at work in the score, but for most of this album Blanchard just works away at an ebbing, regretful melody with his small group of strings, piano and woodwinds.

1995, MCA Records; from the movie Clockers, Universal Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Raymond Jones, David Gamson & Chaka Khan, Tim Atack, Prince Sampson & Des'ree, DJ Premier, Salaam Remi, Branford Marsalis, Ski-Original Flavor, DJ Ali & DJ Trouble, Uneek, Gordon Chambers & Ike Lee III; Executive Soundtrack Producers: Spike Lee, Bill Stephney; Engineer: Tom Baker.

Selections: 1 People In Search of a Life (R. Jones)(6:11) Marc Dorsey; 2 Love Me Still (C. Khan/B. Hornsby)(3:25) Chaka Khan; 3 Silent Hero (Des'ree/ P. Sampson)(5:01) Des'ree; 4 Bird Of Freedom (Seal)(5:13) Seal; 5 Return Of The Crooklyn Dodgers (C. Rock/O.C./Jeru The Damaja/DJ Premier)(5:03) Crooklyn Dodgers; 6 Bad Boy No Go A Jail (M. Higgins/G. Williams)(4:21) Mega Banton; 7 Blast Of The Iron (Rebelz of Authority/S.R. Gibbs)(4:10)Rebelz of Authority; 8 Reality Check (B. Marsalis/R. DaCosta)(2:51) Buckshot LeFonque; 9 Illa Killa (R. Brown)(4:29) Strictly Difficult; 10 Sex Soldier (G. Kahni/M. Henningham)(3:32) Rebelz of Authority; 11 Reality (D. Edwards/S. McFadden)(3:22) BrooklyNytes; 12 Changes (G. Chambers/Ike Lee/J. Alexander) (4:10) Marc Dorsey.

Review: Bringing a different, streetwise sensitivity to the film by Spike Lee, this collection of songs illuminate this tale of an innercity kid, involved in a crime, to which his brother confesses. Marc Dorsey's "People in Search of a Life" serves as an effective introduction to the lineup of songs, with its implied references to the story itself, with Chaka Khan's "Love Me Still," Seal's "Bird of Freedom," and Des'ree's "Silent Hero" among the highlights. "Return of the Crooklyn Dodgers" provides a bridge to another Spike Lee film, and the reggae-like "Bad Boy No Go a Jail," by Mega Banton, is also flavorful, but the other tracks do not provide the same levels of enjoyment.

A Clockwork Orange

1972, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie A Clockwork Orange, Warner Bros., 1971.

Album Notes: Music: Wendy Carlos, Rachel Elkind; Producer: Rachel Elkind.

Selections: 1 Title Music from Music For The Funeral Of Queen Mary (H. Purcell/W. Carlos/R. Elkind) (2:21) "Walter" Carlos; 2 The Thieving Magpie (G. Rossini) (5:57); 3 Beethoviana (Theme From A Clockwork Orange) (W. Carlos/R. Elkind) (1:44) "Walter" Carlos; 4 Ninth Symphony: 2nd Movement (abridged) (L. Van Beethoven) (3:48); 5 March From A Clockwork Orange (from Ninth Symphony: 4th Movement) (L. Van Beethoven/W. Carlos) (7:00) "Walter" Carlos; 6 William Tell

Overture (abridged) (G. Rossini) (1:17) "Walter" Carlos; 7 Pomp And Circumstance March No. 1 (E. Elgar) (4:28); 8 Pomp And Circumstance March No. 4 (abridged) (E. Elgar) (1:33); 9 Timseteps (W. Carlos) (4:13) "Walter" Carlos; 10 Overture To The Sun (T. Tucker) (1:40); 11 I Want To Marry A Lighthouse Keeper (E. Eigen) (1:00) Erika Eigen; 12 William Tell Overture (abridged) (G. Rossini) (2:58); 13 Suicide Scherzo (Ninth Symphony: 2nd movement) (L. Van Beethoven/W. Carlos) (3:07) "Walter" Carlos; 14 Ninth Symphony: 4th movement (abridged) (L. Van Beethoven) (1:34); 15 Singin' In The Rain (A. Freed/N.H. Brown) (2:36) Gene Kelly.

Review: Composer and early synthesizer player Wendy Carlos (working under the pseudonym Walter Carlos, deemed more acceptable in some music quarters at the time), contributed atmospheric electronic variations to classical selections, plus her own compositions for this extraordinary study by Stanley Kubrick of violence and depravation in British youth. Even though synthesizers have long since become an integral part of many horror films, this chilling score remains one of the most powerfully expressive of its kind, and plainly justifies its Academy Award nomination.

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Close Encounters of the Third Kind, Columbia Pictures, 1977.

Selections: 1 Main Title and Mountain Visions (3:17); 2 Nocturnal Pursuit (2:34); 3 The Abduction Of Barry (4:33); 4 I Can't Believe It's Real (6:33); 5 Climbing Devil's Tower (2:29); 6 The Arrival At Sky Harbor (4:31); 7 Night Siege (6:22); 8 The Conversation (3:06); 9 The Appearance Of The Visitors/When You Wish Upon A Star (L. Harline/N. Washington)/ Resolution/ End Title (14:58).

Review: It's amazing how sheer simplicity can often be the ideal approach for a film score. John Williams' well-known, five-note motif that represents the musical communication between the human scientists and extraterrestrial ships in Steven Spielberg's sci-fi classic is deceptive in its seemingly humble musical origins. Yet with Williams' superlative themes and variations, the motif becomes lyrical, emotional and dramatic, perfectly capturing how music can play such a crucial role in a film's narrative. The rest of the score is likewise outstanding, with chorus and orchestra creating a seamless musical fabric simultaneously representing the otherworldly visitors and the decidedly human conflict of protagonist Roy Neary (Richard Dreyfuss). In short, it's a masterpiece. Listeners should be aware that the initial, out-of-print Arista release retains the original album packaging, including notes by Spielberg. The newer Varese issue features different liner notes, along with a disco version of the main theme and a forthcoming remastered Sony re-issue will feature previously unreleased tracks.

Cobb

1994, Sony Classical; from the movie Cobb, Warner Bros., 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Elliot Goldenthal; Orchestrations: Robert Elhai, Elliot Goldenthal; Music Editor: Dan Carlin; Orchestra conducted by Jonathan Sheffer; Featured Musicians: Phil Smith (trumpet), Billy Drewes (saxophone), Bill Mays (piano), John Beal (bass), Jamie Haddad (drums), Elliot Goldenthal (vocals, piano rags); Album Producer: Matthias Gohl; Engineer: Joel Iwataki.

Selections: 1 Variations On An Old Baptist Hymn (3:05); 2 Stump Meets Cobb (1:50); 3 Cooperstown Aria, part 1 (1:43); 4 Nevada Nightlight (2:28); 5 Reno Ho', part 1 (2:37); 6 Newsreel Mirror (3:26); 7 Meant Monk (2:17); 8 Cooperstown Aria, part 2 (2:00); 9 Winter Walk (1:11); 10 Hart And Hunter (1:16); 11 Georgia Peach Rag (2:29); 12 The Baptism (1:30); 13 Reno Ho', part 2 (2:35); 14 The Homecoming (6:18); 15 Sour Mash Scherzo (1:09); 16 Cobb Dies (1:49); 17 The Beast Within (2:24); 18 The Ball Game (W. Carr) (3:05) Sister Wynona Carr.

Review: Powerful orchestral score by Elliot Goldenthal that weaves Gospel and classical music to create an edgy Americana motif worthy of one of baseball's most volatile figures. The overall mood is oppressive and dark, completely overwhelming, much like Ty Cobb himself. This even holds true for the somewhat romantic "Cooperstown Aria," which never quite seems to climb into the light. Interestingly, the cue "The Beast Within" was tracked in from Goldenthal's own Alien score and included on this album, so it's easy to draw parallels between the two scores about the nature of the beast. The composer performs some of the vocals and the piano rags on the album.

Cocktail

1988, Elektra Records; from the movie Cocktail, Touchstone Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Phil Galdston, Starship, Terry Manning, Robbie Nevil, Tom Lord-Alge, Linda Goldstein, The Georgia Satellites, Brenda O'Brien, Terry Melcher, John Cougar Mellencamp, Ry Cooder, Preston Smith, Art Rupe; Album Executive Producer: Brad Neufeld; Engineer: Stephen Marcussen.

Selections: 1 Wild Again (J. Bettis/M. Clark)(4:43) Starship; 2 Powerful Stuff (W. Wilson/M. Henderson/R. Field)(4:48) The Fabulous Thunderbirds; 3 Since When (R. Nevil/B. Mackenzie) (3:34) The Beach Boys; 7 Rave On (S. West/N. Petty/B. Tilghman)(3:13) John Cougar Mellencamp; 8 All Shook Up (E. Presley/O. Blackwell)(3:29) Ry Cooder; 9 Oh, I Love You So (P. Smith) (2:42) Preston Smith; 10 Tutti Frutti (R. Penneman/D. LaBostrie/J. Lubin) (2:23) Little Richard.

Review: Cocktail, a Saturday Night Fever in a bar, is marked by an exhilarating performance from Tom Cruise, as a handsome young man, fresh from the Army, who takes New York and the hip crowd by storm as an eclectic bartender in a chic, well-appointed room. Contributing a contemporary flavor to the film is its clever assortment of pop songs, featuring performances by frontline artists such as The Beach Boys, John Cougar Mellencamp, Ry Cooder, The Fabulous Thunderbirds, and Starship. On its own terms, the album proves a powerful reminder of the screen action, as well as a pleasantly programmed compilation. Bobby McFerrin's cheery "Don't Worry, Be Happy" is a highlight.

Selections: 1 Returning Home (6:05); 2 Taking Bernie To The Beach (4:31); 3 Joe's Gift (8:06); 4 Remembrances/The Break-In (8:24); 5 Basketball Swing (6:58); 6 Jack's Future (2:44); 7 Growing Old (1:55); 8 Good Friend (3:16); 9 Rescue/The Ascension (11:29).

Review: In some of his early scores (see also batteries not included)*, James Horner often indulged his love for the big bands. In both Cocoon and Cocoon: The Return, he included some tracks ("The Boys are Out," in the former, "Taking Bernie to the Beach" and "Basketball Swing," in the latter) that reflect his fondness for the genre and his particular talent at writing exciting cues in that vein. By far, those are the most engaging moments in both scores. The rest of the time, the music, sometimes grandiloquent, sometimes understated, is confined to reflecting the moods of some senior citizens in a Florida retirement home who become young again after they discover a miraculous spring, with their further adventures being the focus of the sequel. Both films, in combining the Peter Pan syndrome with pseudo-galactical fantasies, succeeded in tapping into humanity's age-old dream of remaining forever young and healthy. Except for the exuberant numbers singled out earlier, Horner's scores echoed these feelings with great restraint and subtle understatement, achieving in the process a cohesive musical presentation which, in these recordings, comes across quite effectively. A pop vocal by Michael Sembello ("Gravity") in the first album, proves totally unnecessary and, in fact, breaks the overall unity of the score.

The Collector

1991, Mainstream Records; from the movie The Collector, Columbia Pictures, 1965.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestra conducted by Maurice Jarre; CD Producer: Jackie Mills; Engineer: Jackie Mills.

Selections: 1 The Collector (3:38); 2 The Catch (2:23); 3 Trapped (2:22); 4 Captive (4:31); 5 The Garden (2:09); 6 The Bargain (1:39); 7 Temptation (4:20); 8 Last Day (3:12); 9 Seduction (4:39); 10 Death (5:12); 11 Theme from "David And Lisa" (M. Lawrence)(2:16); 12 Somewhere My Love (from "Doctor Zhivago")(M. Jarre/P.F. Webster)(4:04); 13 I Will Wait For

You (from "Umbrellas Of Cherbourg")(M. Legrand/N. Gimbel/ J. Demy)(2:58); 14 The Sweetheart Tree (from "The Great Race")(J. Mercer/H. Mancini)(2:09).

Review: Leave it to Maurice Jarre to take a chilling film of abduction, and score it 180-degrees different from the psychological thrillers of Hitchcock and Herrmann only a few years earlier. The Collector is a 1966 picture directed by the legendary William Wyler, starring Terence Stamp as a nut who kidnaps his true love, an art student played by Samantha Eggar. The bulk of the film is the struggle between captor and captive, but Jarre's score is practically upbeat, featuring a pleasant, if a bit hyperactive waltz that is disturbing due to its sheer obliviousness towards the on-screen action. It's like this little fantasy running through the abductor's head, a serene and infectious tune laced with harpsichord, as if it was "playing house" throughout, or scoring the idyllic setting in a rural English home. The score is nicely listenable on its own, a ballet of sweetness amidst a gripping, tragic tale of an "I'll make her love me" wacko gone unchecked.

Coma

1990, Bay Cities Records; from the movie Coma, M-G-M, 1978.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Harry V. Lojewski; CD Producer: Nick Redman.

Selections: 1 Jefferson Institute (1:59); 2 Study In Anatomy (3:13); 3 A Chance Encounter (5:01); 4 Love Theme From "Coma" (2:38); 5 A Free Ride (2:58); 6 O.R. 8 (4:53); 7 The Long View (3:42); 8 A Lucky Patient (5:06); 9 Love Theme From "Coma" (disco version)(4:29); 10 Disco Strut (D. Peake) (2:33).

Review: A superior thriller score that blends the Goldsmith trademarks of staccato piano playing and unnerving string effects with an eerie, dangling metallic clang that foreshadows the film's set piece of a roomful of comatose living organ donors hanging from the ceiling. Michael Crichton's film had no music at all until it was halfway over, so without a piece of title music the album is a jumble of nonchronological cues and some regrettable source pieces from the disco era. But the score's highlights are well worth searching for, from the Bartok-influenced creepiness and fluttering, unsettling piano runs of "The Jefferson Institute" to the clanking, malevolent "O.R. 8" and the climactic, heart-pounding piano chase, "A Lucky Patient," this is a textbook example of Goldsmith's command of the genre.

The Comancheros/True Grit

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Leo Shuken, Jack Hayes (The Comancheros); The Utah Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Featured Soloists: Edmund Cord (trumpet), Leonard Braus (violin); Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineers: Bruce Leek, Fred Mitchell.

Selections: THE COMANCHEROS: 1 Main Title (1:39); 2 Escort (3:21); 3 McBaine And The Prairie (2:35); 4 Jake Surveys The Camp (3:45); 5 Pursuit (2:03); 6 Mexican Dance (2:15); 7 Indian Attack (3:08); 8 Finale (1:03);

TRUE GRIT: 9 Main Title (1:42); 10 Rooster And Runaway (2:54); 11 Bald Mountain (4:29); 12 Pony Mine And Papa's Things (2:09); 13 The Dying Moon (3:09); 14 Big Trail (1:52); 15 Sad Departure/The Pace That Kills (3:00); 16 Warm Wrap-Up (1:55).

Review: Through their many contributions in the genre, some composers defined the western score and gave its most recognizable musical expressions (one would almost be tempted to say "cliches"), but none as eloquently and exhilaratingly as Elmer Bernstein. Whether writing for a serious film (The Magnificent Seven, of course, but also The Comancheros or True Grit, both represented here), or spoofing himself (as he did so effectively in The Hallelujah Trail), Bernstein never lost sight of what made his western movie music so characteristic. It always was, in a nutshell, as it should always sound, bold, spacious, and spectacular. Between the pulse-racing motifs suggesting the wide open spaces, or the Mexican-tinged accents descriptive of south of the border action, his music is always thrilling, colorful, exciting. These two scores are fine examples of his approach to the genre, and both evidence the very qualities that make his music so uniquely lively. This is the first time The Comancheros is available in an album, and while there is an original soundtrack album to True Grit (q.v.), this rerecording is far superior to it sonically, and introduces several cues not found elsewhere. The Utah Symphony, conducted by the composer, plays these scores with the right amount of dynamism and gusto.

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Come See the Paradise, 20th Century-Fox, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album

Producers: Randy Edelman, Alan Parker; Engineers: Elton Ahi, Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Love Theme (4:45); 2 Fire In A Brooklyn Theatre (1:20); 3 Shikataganai (:26); 4 Love Is The Sweetest Thing (R. Noble) (3:14) Mark Earley; 5 Lily And Mini (:49); 6 Flowers That Bloom In The Rain (F. Ikeda-Takashi) (2:21) Mariko Seki; 7 Kawamura Family Theme (A. Parker/J. Mogami) (3:27) Sanae Hosaka; 12 Little Tokyo (:56); 13 Terminal Island (:40); 14 Santa Anita (A. Parker/J. Parker) (:39); 15 Don't Sit Under The Apple Tree (L. Brown/S. Stept/C. Tobias) (2:28) Teri Eiko Koide, Jumi Emizawa, Cynthia Lawren; 16 Bad Days (:30); 17 Love Birds (M. Kume/Harano) (2:20) Syoji; 18 Nine Tiny Seconds (A. Parker/J. Parker) (:48); 19 A Little Bag Of Magic (2:08).

Review: This charming, emotionally moving score by Randy Edelman suffers greatly on CD from poor sequencing. Period songs, most sung in Japanese (and one with record surface noise!), frequently break in between the cues. They were probably inserted in this fashion because the actual underscore cues take up very little total time. The music, a blend of electronics and acoustics, would have probably flowed better had the underscore been edited into a suite. Three tracks were written by Alex and Jake Parker. Edelman's dramatically charged "Fire in a Brooklyn Theatre" is used frequently in film trailers.

Album Notes: Featured Musicians: Conor Brady (guitar), Fran Beehan (drums), Paul Bushnell (bass), Ronan Dooney (trumpet), Eamann Flynn (keyboards), Carl Geraghty (tenor/baritone sax), Felim Gormley (alto sax), Alex Acuna (percussion), Mitchell Froome (keyboards), Dean Parks (guitar); Albums Producers: Paul Bushnell, Kevin Killen, Alan Parker; Engineers: Kevin Killen, Tim Martin; Assistant Engineers: Eric Rudd, Robbie Adams.

Selections: VOLUME 1: 1 Mustang Sally (B. Rice) (4:02) Andrew Strong; 2 Take Me To The River (A. Green/M. Hodges) (3:36) Andrew Strong; 3 Chain Of Fools (D. Covay) (2:58) Angeline Ball, Maria Doyle; 4 The Dark End Of The Street (D. Penn/C. Moman) (2:34) Andrew Strong; 5 Destination Anywhere (N. Ashford/V. Cropper) (2:52) Robert Arkins; 9 Land Of A Thousand Dances (C. Kenner/A. Domino) (3:16) Andrew Strong; 10 Nowhere To Run (B. Holland/L. Dozier/E. Holland) (3:40) Niamh Kavanagh; 11 Bring It On Home To Me (S. Cooke) (3:41) Robert Arkins, Angeline Ball.

Review: Not the original, but an incredible simulation. This ensemble of Irish musicians is charming in the movie and they play these old rhythm 'n' blues favorites with convincing spirit, and the best vocalists—Maria Doyle and Andrew Strong—often make the Commitments sound even better than a top-shelf bar band. Seven of the songs on "Vol. 2" weren't performed in the film, but it really doesn't matter; like The Big Chill, this is feel-good stuff that doubles as terrific party music.

Company Business

1991, Intrada Records; from the movie Company Business, M-G-M, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Orchestrations: Michael Kamen; Orchestra conducted by Michael Kamen; Album Produ- cers: Michael Kamen, Stephen McLaughlin; Engineer: Stephen McLaughlin.

Selections: 1 Journey To Alexanderplatz (10:55); 2 Faisal's Escape (14:51); 3 Natasha (1:28); 4 Cafe Jatte (5:11); 5 Eiffel Tower (7:27); 6 The Island (4:09).

Review: This is one of those soundtracks which reminds the listener that film music, while it sometimes makes for a listenable recording, is nevertheless not written with that purpose in mind. Michael Kamen is of course an immensely gifted composer, but the programmatic requirements of this spy thriller, for whatever reason, needed music which does not work on a record album. The first track, "Journey to Alexanderplatz" is a surging suspense cue, nicely orchestrated (by Kamen himself). However, removed from the film, it simply meanders on disc (that this track is also 11 minutes long does not increase its allure). The second track, "Faisal's Escape" is similarly meandering, but more subdued and even less interesting (and this track lasts fifteen minutes!). The only listenable cue is "Cafe Jatte", a jazzy pastiche/source cue for saxophone, piano and rhythm section, which unfortunately segues into more meandering suspense music after three minutes. The sax theme returns however in the closing track, "The Island." The score for Company Business is not bad. It is just programmatic to the extent that there is no shape, architecture or melody for the listener to grab hold of. As such, listening to this CD is ultimately a maddening experience.

Con Air

1997, Hollywood Records; from the movie Con Air, Touchstone Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Mancina, Trevor Rabin; Orchestrations: Gordon Goodwin, Nick Glennie-Smith, Bruce Fowler, Trevor Rabin, Mark Mancina; Orchestra conducted by Gordon Goodwin, Nick Glennie-Smith; Featured Musician: Lou Molino III (drums); Album Producers: Trevor Rabin, Mark Mancina, Paul Linford; Engineers: Steve Kempster, Paul Linford, Christopher Ward.

Selections: 1 Con Air Theme (1:31); 2 Trisha (1:04); 3 Carson City (3:04); 4 Lear Crash (4:44); 5 Lerner Landing (3:28); 6 Romantic Chaos (1:22); 7 The Takeover (3:52); 8 The Discharge (1:09); 9 Jailbirds (:59); 10 Cons Check Out Lerner (1:55); 11 Poe Saves Cops (2:25); 12 The Fight (:22); 13 Battle In The Boneyard (7:41); 14 Poe Meets Larkin (1:14); 15 Bedlam Larkin (:49); 16 Fire Truck Chase (4:22); 17 Overture (4:18).

Review: An action-driven score, it took not one but two composers to come up with this electronic-cum-orchestra mishmash which probably makes a lot of appropriate noises in connection with the various scenes on-screen, but which elicits a yawn otherwise. Making a prominent place for the drumming of Lou Molino III, who carries the majority of the tunes, the selections unfold one after the other, sounding exactly alike, with soft moments leading to big surges that mean very little, at least in musical terms. In the mush, one track, "Trisha," actually comes out for a hot minute as being genuinely attractive.

Conan

Conan the Barbarian

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Conan the Barbarian, Universal Pictures, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Text: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Text Translation: Beth Lawson, Teresa Cortey; Members of the Orchestra and Chorus of Santa Cecila and the Radio Symphony of Rome, conducted by Basil Poledouris; Album Producer: Basil Poledouris; Engineers: Pedegro Savina (Rome), Frank Jones (Burbank).

Selections: 1 Anvil Of Crom (2:34); 2 Riddle Of Steel/Riders Of Doom (5:36); 3 Gift Of Fury (3:50); 4 Wheel Of Pain (4:09); 5 Atlantean Sword (3:50); 6 Theology/Civilization (3:13); 7 Wifeing (Love Theme from Conan The Barbarian)(2:10); 8 The Leaving/The Search (5:59); 9 Mountain Of Power Procession (3:21); 10 The Tree Of Woe (3:31); 11 Recovery (2:11); 12 The Kitchen/The Orgy (B. Poledouris/Z. Poledouris)(6:30); 13 Funeral Pyre (4:29); 14 Battle Of The Mount (4:52); 15 Death Of Rexor (5:34); 16 Orphans Of Doom/The Awakening (5:31).

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Conan the Destroyer, Universal Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie, Jack Smalley, Scott Smalley; The Unione Musicisti di Roma Orchestra, conducted by Basil Poledouris; Album Producer: Basil Poledouris; Engineers: Antonio Rampotti.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Riders Of Taramis (3:31); 2 Valeria Remembers (3:02); 3 The Horn Of Dagoth (2:17); 4 Elite Guard Attacks (2:23); 5 Crystal Palace (6:00); 6 The Katta (1:05); 7 Dream Quest (1:30); 8 Night Bird (2:21); 9 Approach To Shadizaar (2:40); 10 The Scrolls Of Skelos (2:26); 11 Dueling Wizards (1:25); 12 Illusion's Lake (1:27); 13 Conan And Bombaata Battle (1:16).

Review: Basil Poledouris' music for these two movies, a poetic tribute to the romantic notions of Robert E. Howard's pulp fiction tales set in a bloody, uncivilized age, established him as a premier composer for epic action films. During the opening 20 minutes of the first film, director John Milius kept dialogue to a minimum, using Poledouris' music to literally tell the story of Conan's early life (tracks 1 through 4 on the CD). All of the cues are not epic, however, and some, like "Wifeing," provide a counterpoint to the bombast with remarkable gentleness. Various choral verses, drawn from Latin and Gregorian chants, are also interpolated to great effect to reflect the religious fervor of villain Thulsa Doom's dreaded Snake Cult.

In comparison, the music for the second film pales because of the paltry budget that was set aside for the creation of its score. Saddled with an orchestra that was just a shadow of the powerhouse he had on the first film, Poledouris wrote a score that works best in its softer moments, the action cues suffering from a notable lack of percussion. Still, this album has a lot of fine music to offer (i.e. "The Horn of Dagoth"), but it simply cannot compete with its predecessor's intensity.

1993, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Coneheads, Paramount Pictures, 1993.

Selections: 1 Magic Carpet Ride (J. Kay/R. Moreve)(3:41) Slash, Michael Monroe; 2 Tainted Love (E.C. Cobb)(2:43) Soft Cell; 3 No More Tears (Enough Is Enough)(P. Jabara/B. Berry/P. Buck/M. Milles)(5:13) R.E.M.; 7 Soul To Squeeze (A. Kiedis/Flea/J. Frusciante/C. Smith)(4:52) Red Hot Chili Peppers; 8 Fight The Power (C. Ridenhour/H. Shocklee/E. Sadler/K. Shocklee)(4:06) Barenaked Ladies ; 9 Little Renee (Digable Planets)(3:22) Digable Planets; 10 Chale Jao (T. Bailey)(4:11) Babble; 11 Conehead Love (P. Aykroyd/B. Gowdy)(4:16).

Review: This one's aimed hard at the modern rock market, with new offerings from the Red Hot Chili Peppers ("Soul to Squeeze," a hit) and R.E.M. ("It's a Free World Baby," a dud). Remakes are the order of the day on the rest of the album, including hilarious takes on "Fight the Power" by Barenaked Ladies and a show-stopping duet on "No More Tears (Enough is Enough)" by k.d. lang and Erasure's Andy Bell. The latter is as much fun as a potent cone ring.

Congo

1995, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Congo, Paramount Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton, Alexander Courage; Lyrics: Lebo M; Vocal Arrangements: Lebo M; Music Editors: Ken Hall, Darrell Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producers: Jerry Goldsmith, Lebo M; Engineer: Bruce Botnick; Assistant Engineers: Paul Wertheimer, Dominic Gonzales, Norm Dlugatch.

Selections: 1 Spirit Of Africa (2:43) Lebo M; 2 Bail Out (2:59); 3 No Customs (1:50); 4 Deep Jungle (2:35); 5 Hippo Attack (2:27); 6 Crash Site (2:01); 7 Gates Of Zinj (4:04); 8 Amy's Nightmare (2:12); 9 Kahega (2:19); 10 Amy's Farewell/Spirit Of Africa (10:29) Lebo M.

Review: Give Jerry Goldsmith a creative challenge and he can usually create something better than any film as silly as this ever deserved. The score's strength comes from "Spirit of Africa," a beautiful theme song co-written by Goldsmith with singer/songwriter Lebo M, that's sung first in an African dialect, then later in English. This is the high point of the album and, unfortunately, the film doesn't inspire much else. Goldsmith interjects various African rhythms throughout, but uses his standard electronic jiggery-pokery to spice up the rather ordinary action cues. Adding to the irritation, the correct order of the CD tracks can only be found on the disc itself, not on the packaging!

Cookie Woof

1989, UNI Records; from the movie Cookie, Warner Bros., 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Thomas Newman; Song Producers: Steve Lovell, Andy Richards, Duncan Bridgeman, Tony Brown, Nanci Griffth, CCP, Arthur Baker, Fred Zarr; Engineers: Tony Phillips, Zeus B. Held, John Vigran.

Selections: 1 Americanos (H. Johnson)(3:36) Holly Johnson; 2 Revolution Baby (N.C. Sayer)(4:52) Transvision Vamp; 3 Jingle Bell Rock (J. Beal/J. Boothe)(2:08) Bobby Helms; 4 Never Mind (H. Jet Vegas; 8 Love Is A Many Splendored Thing (S. Fain/P.F. Webster)(2:58) The Four Aces; 9 Never Had It So Good (T. Paige/A. Forbes)(3:20) Tommy Page.

Review: Unless you listen attentively or you read the fine print on the label copy, you probably wouldn't guess that Thomas Newman wrote the score for this dispensable comedy about a mafia boss, back home after some years spent behind bars, and the independent teenage daughter with whom he must now contend. The people lending their talents to this soundtrack album probably deserve better; so did Newman, represented here by the "Cookie Theme"; so do you.

Cool Hand Luke

1996, MCA Records/Japan; from the movie Cool Hand Luke, Warner Bros., 1967.

Album Notes: Music: Lalo Schifrin; Orchestra conducted by Lalo Schifrin; Album Producer: Tom Mack; Engineers: Thorne Nogar, Andy Richardson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:05); 2 Just A Closer Walk With Thee (2:55); 3 Tar Sequence (3:13); 4 Lucille (2:46); 5 Egg Eating Contest (2:58); 6 Plastic Jesus (E. Rusk/G. Cromarty)(1:58); 7 Bean Time (1:12); 8 Ballad Of Cool Hand Luke (2:36); 9 Arletta Blues (2:55); 10 The First Morning (1:51); 11 The Chase (3:18); 12 Road Gang (1:49); 13 End Title (2:13).

Review: In one of his better screen roles, Paul Newman portrays in Cool Hand Luke a convicted felon doing time on a chain gang in a Southern prison, a loner ("What we have here is a failure to communicate") whose only salvation comes when he is gunned down by prison guards after he tries to escape. As memorable as Newman's tour-de-force portrayal is Lalo Schifrin's biting Academy Award-nominated score, in which the use of various solo instruments (notably the harmonica and the banjo) adds a distinctive Southern rural touch. Schifrin's signature staccato orchestral outbursts permeate some of the most powerful moments in the score (particularly the "Tar Sequence," which New Yorkers should recognize as the theme used by a local news station, and "The Chase"), while the tense moods are occasionally relieved by lighter tracks like "Egg-Beating Contest" or the lilting "Ballad of Cool Hand Luke." This CD, released in Japan only, can be found in specialty stores.

Cool World

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Music Editors: Scott Grusin, Christopher Kennedy; The Munich Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Allan Wilson; Featured Musicians: Terry Bozzio (drums), Nigel Hitchcock (saxophone), Dave Hartley (piano), Greg Knowles (percussion), Claus Reichstaller (trumpet), Mark Isham (trumpet), Rick Keller (saxophone), Roy Babbington (double bass), Felici Civitareale (lead trumpet); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineer: Chris Dibble; Assistant Engineers: Peter Fuchs, Mark Tucker, Paul Golding, Declan McGovern.

Selections: 1 The Cool World Stomp (1:33); 2 The Desert Gamble (2:08); 3 Lonette (3:10); 4 A Cool New World (3:54); 5 Nails (1:00); 6 The Slash Club (5:53); 7 I'm No Dream (2:22); 8 Miss Holli Would (4:08); 9 A Pen Job! (1:55); 10 The Death Of Nails (1:00); 11 The Bunny And The Poppers (1:03); 12 Harris And Lonette (3:08); 13 The Legend Of Vegas Vinnie (2:00); 14 A Trip Through The Past (1:12); 15 A Night Out In Cool World (3:05); 16 She Would If She Could (5:25); 17 The Spike Of Power (7:15); 18 He's A Doodle! (2:26); 19 The Cool World Stomp (reprise) (4:37).

Review: One of those instances where the soundtrack is far more interesting than the film it was composed for. Mark Isham here gets the chance at writing a score that's right up his alley—an eclectic mixture of swinging Big Band, jazz, techno, and orchestral passages that zips right along for nearly the entire duration of the album. A small jazz ensemble, including Isham himself on the trumpet, leads the way through the score's liveliest passages, like "The Cool World Stomp", while the composer also includes a lush love theme for saxophone and orchestra to go along with the fast-tempo of the majority of the score. Simply put, there is something here to please both traditional soundtrack listeners and fans of Isham's solo albums, even though many tracks were either buried under sound effects or entirely taken out of the movie itself (and are designated as such here). Regardless, this is an energetic, often dynamic effort that functions perfectly as an album.

Review: Playing against the film's storyline, Chris Young's symphonic score paints a dark psychological portrait of the serial murderer who copies infamous crimes of past serial killers. Offsetting this evil poignancy is Young's deliciously frightening suspense and terror music. In one outstanding cue after another, he keeps reminding us that the terror is still there, even if offscreen. "Pastoral Horror" is a prime example of the music's duality, alternately horrifying and elegant, yet thoroughly captivating. "Lay Me Down," which concludes the score with a graceful dynamic, has slowly-swaying violins over a writhing sea of rustling strings in a powerful resolve to the music that's gone before. The cue—melodic yet ambient, compelling yet frightening—is penetrating, and recalls previous horrors while acknowledging the price of survival.

Review: An interracial love affair between a black housekeeper and her white employer, father of a motherless little girl, is the interesting premise of this enjoyable comedy, which yielded this equally delightful soundtrack compilation. The 1950s setting of the film pretty much dictated what the music would be, with songs from the period performed by Sarah Vaughan, Dinah Washington, Billie Holiday, and Louis Armstrong and Oscar Peterson forming the core of this compilation. New songs, also in the style of the era, complement the soundtrack album, with the title tune, a jaunty little tune, making a particularly favorable impression in Big Joe Turner's rendition. Thomas Newman's single incidental music cue, "Home Movies," would suggest that he wrote more in this vein, though it never made it to the album.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Music Re-creation: Bob Wilber; Orchestrations: Al Woodbury, John Barry; Vocal and Dance Arrangements: Joyce Brown; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; Featured Musicians: Dave Brown, Marky Markowitz, Randy Sandke, Lew Soloff (trumpet), Bob Wilber, Lawrence Feldman, Joe Temperley, Frank Wess, Chuck Wilson (reeds), Dan Barrett, Joel Helleny, Britt Woodman (trombone), John Goldsby (bass), Mike Peters (guitar, banjo), Chuck Riggs (drums), Mark Shane (piano); Album Producer: John Barry; Engineer: Tom Jung, Rebecca Everett, Fred Bova.

Selections: 1 The Mooche (E.K. Ellington/I. Mills) (3:29); 2 Cotton Club Stomp #2 (M. Parish/I. Mills/E.K. Ellington) (2:40); 3 Drop Me Off In Harlem (N. Kenny/E.K. Ellington) (2:49); 10 Mood Indigo (E.K. Ellington) (3:34); 11 Minnie The Moocher (C. Calloway/ I. Mills) (3:07) Larry Marshall; 12 Copper Colored Gal (B. Davis/J.F. Coote) (1:15) Gregory Hines; 13 Dixie Kidnaps Vera (J. Barry) (2:37); 14 The Depression Hits/Best Beats Sandman (J. Barry) (2:42); 15 Daybreak Express Medley (E.K. Ellington) (3:43).

Review: Music by Duke Ellington, and acceptable facsimiles by John Barry, make up this rousing soundtrack to a gangster movie set in Harlem in the 1930s. The big band recreations, in full digital sound, are tremendously exciting, and played to the hilt by a group of seasoned musicians for whom this kind of music no longer has any secret. An occasional vocal sparks the proceedings, with film star Gregory Hines contributing an excellent version of the classic "Copper Colored Gal." The cues by John Barry fit nicely within this program of standards, and add an element of originality to the soundtrack.

Courage Under Fire

1996, Angel Records; from the movie Courage Under Fire, 20th Century-Fox, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: James Horner; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producers: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineers: Andy Bass, Marc Gebauer, Dave Marquette, Jay Selvester, Kirsten Smith.

Selections: 1 Hymn (3:39); 2 Al Bathra/Main Title (10:12); 3 Friendly Fire/Ilario's Story (3:07); 4 The Elegy (3:46); 5 Courage Under Fire (6:38); 6 Monfriez's Suicide (3:21); 7 Night Mutiny (2:58); 8 The Betrayal (3:10); 9 Playing Back The Tape (2:55); 10 The Medal Of Honor/A Final Resting Place (14:39).

Review: When you're presented with track titles like "Hymn" and "The Elegy" on a soundtrack album for a film that isn't a biblical drama, you can't help but wonder if somebody isn't taking things a little too seriously. James Horner's Courage Under Fire score has a tendency to drown the listener in its good intentions, canonizing the fictional character Meg Ryan plays in the film, when the point of the narrative is that Ryan's character is all too human, neither superhero, coward or saint. The score is most convincing when it deals with the adrenaline-charged rhythms of the battlefield, from an ascending two-note motif in low brass (similar to an effect often employed by composer Jerry Goldsmith in scores like Capricorn One) to some fierce orchestral heroics that presage some of the exciting effects Horner achieved in his Apollo 13 score. The above-mentioned "Hymn" and "Elegy" offer some moving, lyrical melodies that function quite beautifully on their own but pad out the album's lengthy denouement unmercifully.

Cousins

1989, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Cousins, Paramount Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Angelo Badalamenti; Orchestrations: Angelo Badalamenti, Charles Samek, Ronnie Lawson; Featured Musicians: Mike Lang (piano), Kirk Whalum (saxophone); Orchestra conducted by Angelo Badalamenti, Nick Perrito; Album Producer: Angelo Badalamenti; Engineer: Joel Moss; Assistant Engineer: Ethan Chase.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:27); 2 Maria's Theme (2:19); 3 Adulterer's Blues (2:08) Kirk Whalum; 4 Love Theme (3:20); 5 Adulterer's Blues Two (1:50) Kirk Whalum; 6 Cousins Waltz (2:46); 7 Montage (Maria's Theme) (2:41); 8 Love Theme (piano solo) (1:58); 9 Adulterer's Blues (jazz quintet) (2:20); 10 Classicval restaurant (3:34); 11 I Love You For Today (2:46); 12 Love Theme (Finale) (2:36); 13 Cousins Waltz (Credits) (3:10).

Review: There's something about the often avant-garde musical sensibilities of Angelo Badalamenti that lend itself easily to the creepy dreamscapes of David Lynch, but people tend to forget that the composer has penned some other, equally successful film scores for genres that are as far removed from Twin Peaks as you could imagine. Cousins is the enjoyable 1989 remake of the French farce Cousin, Cousine, and it contains a romantic score by Badalamenti that can be best described as infectious – the elegant piano solo which comprises the love theme, the daffy chase music that sounds like it's out of some Henry Mancini score from the '60s, and the lyrical "Cousins Waltz" all help to make this an easy-going, charming score, illustrating that Badalamenti can work quite well outside of atmospheric mood pieces and horror shows, if he's ever given the chance.

1994, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Cowboys, Warner Bros., 1974.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Music Editor: Donald Harris; The Warner Bros. Studio Orchestra, conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:18); 2 Schoolboys Or Cowboys? (1:09); 3 Learning The Ropes (1:28); 4 Wild Horses (1:40); 5 Deserted (1:40); 6 Crazy Alice (1:58); 7 Alternate Main Title (1:27); 8 The Ranch (2:31); 9 Overture (2:30); 10 Bedtime Story (1:44); 11 Rustlers (1:16); 12 Stealing Back The Herd (1:22); 13 Nightfall (1:53); 14 A Sad Day (1:33); 15 Into The Trap (2:12); 16 The Drive (1:42); 17 Summer's Over (1:29).

Review: It took 20 years for this soundtrack to get a commercial release, but it was well worth the wait. John Williams, who has often expressed himself in the adventure and epic genres, only wrote occasionally in the western idiom (unless you consider all the Indiana Jones films to be westerns of a different kind) but one happy exception was the score he wrote for The Cowboys. Starring John Wayne as an aging, leather-tough trail master who takes along with him a band of inexperienced youngsters to drive a herd of cattle across 400 miles of the West's most treacherous territory after his regular hands desert him, the film elicited from the composer a rambunctious, Americana-flavored music, which at times evokes The Reivers, also directed by Mark Rydell, but most often creates its own poetic imagery. For several years, the only selection from the score that was available was the brilliant overture Williams recorded with The Boston Pops. Much shorter, and with different instrumentations, it is found here as the "Main Title," with the other tracks pretty much following the storyline from "Learning the Ropes," to "The Drive," which finds the young cowboys delivering the herd after successfully completing their journey. In an awkward bit of sequencing, however, an alternate version of the "Main Title" and the "Overture" have been inserted in the middle of the program, while both the "Entr'acte" and "End Credits," which are available on the laserdisc, are missing.

The Craft

1996, Columbia Records; from the movie The Craft, Columbia Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Graeme Revell; Album Producer: Ralph Sall; Engineers: Larry Ferguson, Ralph Sall.

Selections: 1 Tomorrow Never Knows (J. Lennon/P. McCartney) (4:14) Our Lady Peace; 2 I Have The Touch (P. Gabriel) (4:17) Heather Nova; 3 All This And Nothing (V. Dombroski) (4:19) Sponge; 4 Dangerous Type (R. Ocasek) (3:40) Letters to Cleo; 5 How Soon Is Now? (S. Morrissey/J. Marr) (4:27) Love Spit Love; 6 Dark Secret (M. Sweet) (4:03) Matthew Sweet; 7 Witches Song (M. Faithfull/J. Mavety/B. Reynolds/T. Stannard/S. York) (4:36) Juliana Hatfield; 8 Jump Into The Fire (H. Nilsson) (5:45) Tripping Daisy; 9 Under The Water (J. Kilcher/R. Sall) (4:59) Jewel; 10 Warning (R. Sall/T. DeLaughter) (4:45) All Too Much; 11 Spastica (J. Frischmann) (2:30) Elastica; 12 The Horror (R. Langdon) (4:50) Spacehog; 13 Bells, Books And Candles (G. Revell) (3:48).

Review: A supernatural thriller about four high school girls who discover their inner power through witchcraft, The Craft yielded this song compilation album which features an eclectic mix of cutting-edge bands and artists introducing new songs or doing covers of songs created by others, like The Beatles' "Tomorrow Never Knows," The Cars' "Dangerous Type," The Smiths' "How Soon Is Now," Peter Gabriel's "I Have The Touch," and Harry Nilsson's "Jump Into the Fire." This witches' brew works most of the time, with "All This and Nothing" by Sponge, "Witches Song" by Juliana Hatfield, and "Under the Water" by Jewel, among the tunes best remembered from the film, in which they make a perfect counterpoint to the screen action. Both Elastica and Spacehog present previously unreleased material ("Spastica" and "The Horror," respectively), with Graeme Revell contributing "Bells, Books and Candles," from his original score.

1996, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Craft, Columbia Pictures, 19956.

Album Notes: Music: Graeme Revell; Orchestrations: Tim Simonec; Music Editor: Josh Winget; Keyboards, Programming and Arrangements: Roger Mason; Album Producer: Graeme Revell; Engineer: Mark Curry.

Selections: 1 Ours Is The Power (1:07); 2 Bitches Of Eastwick (3:18); 3 A Natural Witch (1:27); 4 Calling The Corners (1:31); 5 The Magic Store (2:19); 6 Bonnie (2:23); 7 Invocation (4:24); 8 The Glamour (1:58); 9 The Nightmare (1:47); 10 Behind The Curtain (2:16); 11 By The Power Of 3x3 (4:27); 12 Sarah's Revenge (1:37); 13 Trouble With Snakes And Insects (1:53); 14 I Bind You, Nancy (2:30); 15 Lightning Strikes (2:04).

Review: Graeme Revell has conjured up another inventive fantasy film score. Very similar to The Crow in its approach, he combines various opposing musical styles once again to create an unsettling mood. Indian chants are principally used ("The Magic Store") to separate "normal" reality from the supernatural world into which four young girls will cross once they begin dabbling in witchcraft. As the girls start using their powers, Revell mates the chanting with a rock track to signify these are '90s "Bitches of Eastwick."

Crash

1996, Milan Records; from the movie Crash, Fine Line Features, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Howard Shore; Orchestrations: Howard Shore; Music Editor: Suzana Peric; Electronic Music Preparation: Simon Franglen; Orchestra conducted by Howard Shore; Featured Musicians: Robert Piltch, Mike Francis, Edward Quinlan, James Tait, Rick Whitelaw, Tony Zory (electronic guitars), Erica Goodman, Marie Boisvert, Janice Lindskoog (harps), Joseph Orlowski, Melvin Berman, Douglas Stewart (woodwinds), Robin Engelman, Brian Leonard (percussion); Album Producer: Howard Shore; Engineers: Gary Gray.

Selections: 1 Crash (3:36); 2 CineTerra (1:04); 3 Mechanism Of Occupant Ejection (2:05); 4 Mirror Image (3:24); 5 Where's The Car? (2:39); 6 Sexual Logic (4:07); 7 Road Research Laboratory (2:12); 8 Mansfield Crash (3:37); 9 Chromium Bower (3:38); 10 A Benevolent Psychopathology (2:23); 11 Two Semi-Metallic Human Beings (2:22); 12 Triton (2:45); 13 Accident... Accident... (2:59); 14 A Crushed Convertible (1:55); 15 Prophecy Is Dirty And Ragged (5:48).

Review: Crash, David Cronenberg's latest examination of sexual aberration, features an unusual score, performed by a small group consisting of six electric guitars, three harps, three woodwinds and two percussionists, with the unusual ensemble creating a uniquely effective miasmic ambiance which emphasizes the contemporary sensuality of the picture. Created by Cronenberg's long-time collaborator Howard Shore, its highly modernistic, somewhat decadently erogenous accents are very suitable to the obsessive, carnal darkness of the filmmaker's cinematic vision. There are no real melodies, but the guitars and harps, which double one another, succeed in evoking an almost unbearable claustrophobic sensitivity. Remixing and resynthesizing the tracks also added to this chaotic ambiance. Though the overall discordant sound suffers somewhat on its own, Shore's inventiveness translates into an interesting and sensually charged score.

Crimes of the Heart

1986, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Crimes of the Heart, Dino De Laurentiis Entertainment, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Georges Delerue; Orchestra conducted by Georges Delerue; Featured Soloists: Roy Willox (alto sax), Ronnie Price (keyboard); Album Producers: Georges Delerue, Freddie Fields; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Introduction (2:40); 2 Crimes Of The Heart (4:30); 3 Meg (2:45); 4 Ice Cream (2:43); 5 Doc Porter (3:26); 6 Babe (1:00); 7 Night To Day (2:06); 8 Broom Chase (1:41); 9 Lonely Hearts Club (:55); 10 Meg And Babe (1:42); 11 Study (1:46); 12 Flirtation (1:37); 13 Willy Jay (2:46); 14 Toes (1:50); 15 Bus Ride (:30); 16 Old Granddaddy (2:50); 17 Sunset (1:32); 18 Main Theme (1:00); 19 Willy Jay Away (1:32); 20 Dusk For Night (1:39); 21 Crimes (:30); 22 End Title (4:30).

Review: Based on Beth Henley's 1980 eponymous stage play, Crimes of the Heart became a wonderful screen vehicle for Jessica Lange, Diane Keaton and Sissy Spacek, portraying three sisters who get back together momentarily in their North Carolina home and reflect about their past, the world around them and their relationship with one another, in a riveting display of superb acting and gripping melodramatic comedy. Enhancing the many moods of the film, and giving the action an extra boost of its own, Georges Delerue wrote a strongly appealing score, in which the main motif, a soulful saxophone romance leading to an exuberant waltz, developed in "Crimes of the Heart," sets the tone. Drawing upon his many resources as a master melodist, he detailed the sisters and other characters with whom they interrelate in individual cues that are among the choicest moments in this beautiful score, and imaginatively described in striking musical terms some of the action's most important scenes.

Criminal Law

1988, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Criminal Law, Hemdale Film Corp., 1988

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Music Editor: Kenneth Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 The Victim (2:29); 2 The Body (3:21); 3 Start Remembering (1:30); 4 About Last Night (1:24); 5 The Closet (2:29); 6 The Garden Pavillion (3:15); 7 The Drive (1:13); 8 Avenger (1:13); 9 The Game (1:58); 10 The Clinic (2:12); 11 Poor Ben (4:37); 12 Hostage (:46); 13 Burnout (1:13); 14 End Title (2:44).

Review: This second all-electronic score by Jerry Goldsmith, after the abrasive Runaway, is far more textural, moving from a fluttering, echoed pan flute effect to a delicately lyrical piano theme (the only acoustic sounds in the score) and some throbbing, ostinato-driven suspense cues for Martin Campbell's entry in the briefly-popular "lawyers-in-distress" film cycle of the late '80s. Unlike the obvious electronic sounds of Runaway, Criminal Law is often indistinguishable from acoustically-created music and it's an extremely listenable (albeit brief) album, although essentially ambient in nature. Like Goldsmith's earlier work on films like Freud and his Twilight Zone television scores, Criminal Law doesn't so much grab you by the throat as slowly hypnotize you.

Crimson Tide

1995, Hollywood Records; from the movie Crimson Tide, Hollywood Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Orchestrations: Nick Glennie-Smith, Bruce Fowler, Ladd McIntosh, Suzette Moriarty; Music Editor: Bob Badami; Orchestra conducted by Nick Glennie-Smith; The London Choir conducted by Harry Gregson-Williams; Featured Musician: Malcolm McNab (trumpet); Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Jay Rifkin; Engineers: Jay Rifkin, Alan Meyerson.

Selections: 1 Mutiny (8:58); 2 Alabama (23:50); 3 Little Ducks (2:03); 4 1SQ (18:04); 5 Roll Tide (7:34) The London Choir.

Review: This album of Hans Zimmer's score was heavily edited into five suites to create a lavish 67-minute symphonic presentation. Unfortunately, the downside of this overlong album (one track, "Alabama," is almost 24 minutes long!) is that the music spends too much time languishing on low-key "tension" music. The score is filled with seemingly wild electronic effects, and one can't help but grow tired of it all very quickly. As a result, there's quite often the feeling that you've heard the same passage before. Worse still, every so often Zimmer quotes a string passage that he used earlier in Backdraft. Perhaps this flurry of action music serves just to keep you awake.

Criss Cross

1992, Intrada Records; from the movie Criss Cross, M-G-M, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Trevor Jones; Orchestrations: Trevor Jones, Guy Dagul; Orchestra conducted by Guy Dagul; Featured Musicians: Trevor Jones, Guy Dagul, Roger King (synthesizers), Andy Sheppard (saxophone), Mike Moran (synthesizer programmer), Gerry Leonard (electric guitar); Album Producer: Trevor Jones; Engineer: Roger King.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles (2:02); 2 Chris Hitches A Ride (3:30); 3 Tracy Cries (5:19); 4 Summer In The Keys (1:43); 5 Drug Revelation (2:39); 6 Chris At Transent (1:27); 7 Fine mi lassa (V. Bellini)(1:41); 8 Moon To Pool (1:44); 9 The Bust (3:40); 10 Chris And Mum Move (3:07); 11 End Credits (3:11).

Review: Trevor Jones monothematic score for this quiet relationship drama is suitably small and poignant. Drawn around an acoustic guitar melody embellished by massed strings, the music lends a voice to the inner hearts of the working mother and teenage son whose broken relationship becomes the focus of the story. Aside from the guitar theme, Jones provides a variety of ambient material to support activities, while the guitar theme always speaks for the heart. As pretty as the main theme is, it's rather simple and as a result it grows rather repetitious. The synth motifs are effective but don't make for entirely enjoyable listening. Criss Cross is a pretty score but in the end it may be too reliant upon its one melodic theme to sustain the entire score. Likeable but not a big repeat player.

1993, Intrada Records; from the movie Critters, New Line Cinema, 1993.

Selections: 1 Main Title (6:46); 2 Charlie's Accident (:43); 3 Jay And Brad Look For The Critters (2:38); 4 Jeff Is Dinner (:59); 5 Looking In The Cellar (4:25); 6 The Bounty Hunters/Critters Get Steve (3:51); 7 Critters Hunt For Lunch (3:56); 8 Brad Burns A Critter (3:13); 9 They're Growing (2:09); 10 Meanwhile Back At The House (2:08); 11 Looking For Chewy (1:41); 12 Brad Goes After April (2:17); 13 The Critters Are Destroyed (3:50); 14 The House Returns (5:06); 15 Critter Skitter (D. Newman/J. Vigran) (3:27).

Review: A minor, long-forgotten classic horror film, Critters gave David Newman an unusual opportunity to write a score which effectively blends electronics and a full orchestra in a slow build-up that forcefully reaches a climax and dissipates until the unavoidable sequel. In an unusual display of craftmanship, Newman only uses the electronics at the very start of the "Main Title," during the pre-title segment set in outer space (where the critters of the title are growing and multiplying before they invade Earth), but as soon as the action switches to the farm where most of the action next takes place, the orchestra takes over. From then on, most of the cues rely on the orchestra and individual solo instruments, adding layers of frightful sounds that paint the horror pictured in the film as the voracious man-eating critters wreak havoc in middle America.

Only once the critters have been destroyed does the music relax and end on a peaceful note. At the same time, in another compositional tour-de-force, Newman has devised many soft-sounding, elegiac cues that belie and contrast the tension in the film. It is a clever device that forces the listener's attention, while it effectively conveys the power of the drama unfolding on the screen. Taken as a listening experience, the score offers many inspiring moments, though ultimately it probably will appeal mostly to those who have seen the film and have enjoyed it thoroughly.

Crooklyn

Crooklyn

1994, MCA Records; from the movie Crooklyn, Universal Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Al Bell, Sly Stone, Robert Poindexter, Richard Poindexter, Poncho Cristal, Eugene Record, Thom Bell, Wandell Quezerque, Stan Vincent, James Brown, David Rubinson, Narada Michael Walden; Album Executive Producer: Spike Lee; Engineer: Herb Powers.

Selections: 1 Crooklyn (E.K. Archer/K. Blake/D. Clear/J. Davis/A. Muhammad) (4:32) The Crooklyn Dodgers; 2 Respect Yourself (M. Rice/L. Ingram) (4:53) The Staple Singers; 3 Everyday People (S. Stewart) (2:19) Sly And The Family Stone; 4 Pusher Man (C. Mayfield) (5:02) Curtis Mayfield; 5 Thin Line Between Love And Hate (R. Poindexter/R. Poindexter/J. Members) (3:24) The Persuaders; 6 El Pito (I'll Never Go Back To Georgia) (J. Sabater/J. Cuba) (5:32) Joe Cuba; 7 ABC (A. Mizell/F. Perren/D. Richards/B. Gordy) (2:57) The Jackson Five; 8 Oh Girl (E. Record) (3:47) The Chi-Lites; 9 Mighty Love (J. Jefferson/B. Hawes/C. Simmons) (4:57) The Spinners; 10 Mr. Big Stuff (J. Broussard/R. Williams/C. Washington) (2:46) Jean Knight; 11 Ooh Child (S. Vincent) (3:17) The Five Stairsteps; 12 Pass The Peas (J. Brown/C.F. Bobbit/ J. Starks) (3:11) The JB's; 13 Time Has Come Today (J. Chambers/W. Chambers) (4:54) The Chambers Brothers; 14 People Make The World Go Round (T. Bell/L. Creed) (5:05) Marc Dorsey.

Review: Shamelessly old school, this soundtrack reaches back for vintage Jackson 5 ("ABC"), Sly & the Family Stone ("Everyday People"), JB's ("Pass the Peas"), Staple Singers ("Respect Yourself"), Chambers Brothers ("Time Has Come Today") and too many more to mention. The Crooklyn Dodgers' hip-hopping "Crooklyn," however, pales before such vaunted company.

Robinson) (3:03) Smokey Robinson & The Miracles; 14 I Can See Clearly Now (J. Nash) (2:41) Johnny Nash.

Review: Continuing along the same lines as volume one, this second anthology of wonderful 1960s black pop tunes delivers the goods, with tunes by The Stylistics, Stevie Wonder, The Jackson Five, Smokey Robinson, Isaac Hayes, Johnny Nash, and several others. Uncomplicated, direct, enjoyable, it may be a throwback to happier (?) times, but it's also something that you can put on your CD player, and play many times over, just for the fun of it.

Crossing the Line

1991, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Crossing the Line, Miramax Films, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; The Unione musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Album Producer: Ennio Morricone.

Selections: 1 Running In The Park (:53); 2 Main Titles (3:26); 3 Beth Says No (2:47); 4 Road Training 1 (2:18); 5 Road Training 3 (1:34); 6 Rain In Gobi Desert (1:18); 7 Journey To Fight (3:19); 8 Round Four (1:03); 9 Road Training 2 (1:09); 10 The Wasteland (2:38); 11 Round One (2:14); 12 Round Two (1:40); 13 Round Six (3:37); 14 There's Blood On That Money (2:53); 15 Danny Runs Home (1:18); 16 End Titles (3:24).

Review: Ennio Morricone's darkly-hued score for orchestra and chorus powerfully underlines the drama and the tension in this film set in Scotland about a miner, a man of ideals, down on his luck and in search of his own self. Many of the cues in the score are on the down side, with moody expressions reflecting both the rural environment in which the action unfolds and the feelings of the film's main character, played by Liam Neeson. Following his slow ascent to personal salvation, the music builds up to a climax which sums up his experience, and points the way to a gradual acceptance of the fate he's inherited. In the profusely descriptive score, some cues emerge for their lyricism, notably "Road Training 2," or "The Wasteland," in which the main theme, played by a saxophone against a floating string line, is inexplicably marred by a sudden glitch in the recording.

ard Holmes (bass), Sonny Terry, Frank Frost, John Logan (harmonica), George Bohannon (baritone horn), Walt Sereth (saxophone), Miguel Cruz (percussion); Album Producer: Ry Cooder; Engineer: Mark Ettel.

Selections: 1 Crossroads (R. Johnson) (4:23) Ry Cooder; 2 Down In Mississippi (J.B. Lenoir) (4:26) Terry Evans, Bobby King, Willie Green, Jr.; 3 Cotton Needs Pickin' (F. Frost/R. Holmes/O. Hill) (2:57) Jim Dickinson; 7 He Made A Woman Out Of Me (F. Burch/D. Hill) (4:12) Amy Madigan; 8 Feelin' Bad Blues (R. Cooder) (4:17); 9 Somebody's Callin' My Name (trad.) (1:45) Bobby King, Sam King, Arnold McCuller, Willie Green, Jr.; 10 Willie Brown Blues (R. Cooder/J. Seneca) (3:46) Joe Seneca; 11 Walkin' Away Blues (S. Terry/R. Cooder) (3:40).

Review: Rooted in the music of the South, this excellent soundtrack album will mostly appeal to anyone interested in the blues, but it should also find a broader audience among those who have enjoyed this saga of a young Juilliard scholar who embarks on a tour of the Mississippi Delta, allegedly to discover Robert Johnson's "unknown 30th song." Deftly performing the works of local songwriters, including Johnson's title tune, as well as his own compositions, Cooder and cohorts deliver a potent brew of foot-stompers and gut-wrenchers, both vocal and instrumental, that are difficult to resist, let alone ignore.

The Crow

1994, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Crow, Miramax/ Dimension Pictures, 1994.

Selections: 1 Birth Of The Legend (6:16); 2 Resurrection (2:10); 3 The Crow Descends (2:30); 4 Remembrance (2:54); 5 Rain Forever (2:32); 6 Her Eyes... So Innocent (2:45); 7 Tracking The Prey (3:35); 8 Pain And Retribution (2:34); 9 Believe In Angels (3:31); 10 Captive Child (2:32); 11 Devil's Night (2:30); 12 On Hallowed Ground (2:42); 13 Inferno (5:02); 14 Return To The Grave (3:45); 15 Last Rites (3:55).

Review: Gritty urban score that successfully mixes diverse elements of jazz and rock music with European, Eastern and Island elements. Electric guitars unconventionally share the spotlight with an Armenian duduk and a Japanese shakuhachi. There's even two remarkably tender love themes, a complete contrast from everything else, one for the back-from-the-dead rock musician who seeks vengeance on the punks who murdered both him and his fiancee, and one for the child who loved them both. Dark, deeply moving, at times disturbing, but boldly creative.

Bates) (4:08) Pet; 15 City Of Angels (Frost/G. RueDaFlores/J. Gonzalez/K. Gully) (4:52) Above The Law, Frost.

Review: Following a predecessor that hit No. 1 is an unenviable task—especially since The Crow also established a foothold for modern (aka alternative) rock in Hollwyood. City of Angels didn't hit the same heights, but it's nearly as good, with Hole's steroid-fueled version of Fleetwood Mac's "Gold Dust Woman," White Zombie's "I'm Your Boogieman" and an inspired duet by Linda Perry and Jefferson Airplane/Starship matron Grace Slick on "Knock Me Out." Tricky and The Gravediggaz team up on the head-bobbing "Tonite is a Special Nite," and Iggy Pop's "I Wanna Be Your Dog" is a welcome inclusion on any rock collection.

The Crow: City of Angels

1996, Miramax/Hollywood Records; from the movie The Crow: City of Angels, Miramax/ Dimension Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Graeme Revell; Orchestrations: Tim Simonec, Graeme Revell; Music Editor: Josh Winget; Keyboard and Programming: Graeme Revell; Orchestra conducted by Tim Simonec; Featured Musicians: Masakazu Yoshizawa (shakuhachi), M.B. Selections: 1 City Of Angels (3:19); 2 Camera Obscura (2:27); 3 The Crow Rises (3:14); 4 Santa Muerte (1:17); 5 "...A Dream On The Way To Death" (2:13); 6 Temple Of Pain (2:46); 7 A Murder Of Crows (1:59); 8 Mirangula: Sign Of The Crow (2:03); 9 Lament For A Lost Son (3:30); 10 "Hush Little Baby..." (3:03); 11 Dias de las murtes (3:31); 12 The Campanile (4:11); 13 La Masquera (5:09); 14 "I'll Wait For You" (1:49); 15 Believe In Angels (G. Revell/H. Nova) (5:43) Graeme Revell, Heather Nova.

Review: Graeme Revell's score for this sequel is decidedly darker than his work for the original, if that's even possible. It's a true mark of talent that he can form something fresh from what was simply a poor retread of the original film. Once again, Revell combines an eclectic mix of instrumentation and vocals, from the almost ordinary chant "Santa Muerte" to the gloomy and twisted "Temple of Pain." The original theme from The Crow is quoted on several tracks and Revell co-wrote the song "Believe in Angels" with singer Heather Nova.

The Crucible

1996, RCA Victor; from the movie The Crucible, 20th Century-Fox, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: George Fenton; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian; Music Pre-Production and Synthesizers: Adrian Thomas; Orchestra conducted by George Fenton; Album Producers: George Fenton, Eliza Thompson; Engineer: Paul Hulme.

Selections: 1 Front Titles: Dancing In The Forest (5:18); 2 John Proctor (3:55); 3 The Village (2:06); 4 Reverend Hale (2:56); 5 Meeting At The Inn (1:25); 6 Tituba's Confession (3:34); 7 Judge Danforth Arrives (1:12); 8 Vengeance (4:44); 9 Elizabeth Accused (2:24); 10 Hale Leaves The Village (2:45); 11 Taking Elizabeth (3:02); 12 Interrogation (5:44); 13 The Hanging (2:12); 14 Abigail Disappears; 15 The Beach (2:10); 16 Proctor Confesses (6:52); 17 Forgive Us (End Credits) (3:18).

Review: This depressing tale about sexual hysteria and religious persecution in 17th-century Salem, Mass. translated itself into a striking score for George Fenton, who wrote a series of cues well-designed to subliminally enhance the screen action. Based on Arthur Miller's wrenching play, a thinly disguised indictment written at the height of the McCarthy witch hunt of the 1950s, the film depicted the religious repression that follows accusations by some sexually exacerbated Puritan girls that a local farmer is an agent of the Devil. The main motifs devised by Fenton to underscore the story strictly evoke the drama in a very subdued way, more threatening than any violent outburst. Occasionally, a simple melody suggests the innocence of the victims ("Elizabeth Accused"), but much of the music is bathed in the undefined ominous moods that permeate it. A heady score it may be, but a magnificent one nonetheless.

Cry Freedom

1987, MCA Records; from the movie Cry Freedom, Universal Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: George Fenton, Jonas Gwangwa; Orchestrations: George Fenton, Peter Whitehouse; Orchestra conducted by George Fenton; Vocal Director: Jonas Gwangwa; Featured Musicians: Torera (Mbira), Thebe Lipere (Berembau, percussion); "Shebeen" Band: Lucky Ranku (guitar), Ernest Mothle (bass), Fats Mogoboya (congas), Churchill Jolobe (drums), Mervin Africa (piano), Dudu Pukwana, Teddy Osei, Bheki Mseleku (saxophone), David De Fries (trumpet); Album Producers: George Fenton, Keith Grant; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 Crossroads – A Dawn Raid (2:16); 2 Gumboots (1:46); 3 Black Township (2:32); 4 Shebeen Queen (2:58); 5 Asking For Trouble (2:23); 6 Dangerous Country (1:38); 7 Detention (2:00); 8 The Mortuary (2:27); 9 The Funeral (September 25, 1987) (4:40); 10 At The Beach (3:25); 11 The Getaway (3:23); 12 The Frontier (2:59); 13 Last Thoughts (1:35); 14 Deadline (2:15); 15 The Phone Call (2:01); 16 Telle Bridge (2:47); 17 Soweto – and vocal reprise (1:08); 18 Cry Freedom (4:41).

Review: For Richard Attenborough's moving depiction of apartheid as experienced by newspaperman Donald Woods and South African activist Stephen Biko, George Fenton has delved deeply into African musical traditions to create a score which is rich in rhythm, song and soft melody. Its combination of orchestral and vocal music, African and European, sorrowful and triumphant, gives it a unique quality. There are four primary themes, two African and two European in style. The first half of the film tells Biko's story, and the music consequently is predominantly African. After his death, the film focuses on Woods' efforts to publicize Biko's martyrdom, and the European music dominates amid faint echoes of the African sounds.

The closing song, "Cry Freedom" (sung by Fenton and Gwangwa, backed by a large choir), reflects the pain and suffering of what Biko and too many others have gone through in the cause of freedom; yet the music remains filled with pride, hope, and confidence. Despite the suffering, it suggests that the cause is not lost.

Cry, the Beloved Country

1995, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Cry, the Beloved Country, Miramax Films, 1995.

Selections: 1 Main Title/The Letter (3:36); 2 The Beginning Of The Journey (2:10); 3 The Train To Johannesburg (2:48); 4 You've Been Robbed (1:28); 5 Emaxambeni (E. Masuka)(2:37) Dorothy Masuka; 11 Bastards, Bloody Bastards (1:03); 12 Did It Seem Heavy? (:48); 13 Cry, Cry The Beloved Country (1:45); 14 Christ, Forsake Me Not (3:19); 15 The Boys Club (1:36); 16 We Taught Him Nothing (2:05); 17 Amazing Grace (trad.) (3:33) Ladysmith Black Mambazo; 18 Go Well Umfundisi (1:09); 19 Do Not Spoil My Pleasure (2:38); 20 It Is My Son – That Killed Your Son (3:53); 21 The Marriage (2:55); 22 The Shadow Of Death (2:53); 23 The Fifteenth Day (3:17).

Review: Set in South Africa at the height of apartheid, this second film adaptation of Alan Paton's striking novel about two men, a white patriarch and a black minister brought together by a murder, prompted John Barry to write a fluid score that strangely contrasts with the racial tension in the action. His various cues, long on melodic orchestral lines but relatively short on real emotion, seem a far cry from the more-to-the-point music he wrote for Born Free in 1966, in which his use of African drums and sonorities at least had the merits of suggesting in strong evocative terms the rugged environment and some of the rapid-pace action in that film. Here, the music is at best serviceable, though, true to the composer's reputation as a master melodist, it is also very attractive. Tracks by South African recording stars (The Havana Swingsters, Ladysmith Black Mambazo, et al.) are awkwardly interspersed.

The Cure

Album Notes: Music: Dave Grusin; Featured Musicians: Dean Parks, George Doering (guitars), Jimmy Johnson (electric bass), Harvey Mason (drums), Mike Fisher (percussion), Jim Walker (recorder, penny-whistle, alto flute), Tommy Morgan (hamonica, blues harp), Dave Grusin (piano), Ralph Grierson (orchestral piano); conducted by Dave Grusin; Album Producers: Dave Grusin, Scott Grusin; Engineers: John Richards, Michael Landy, Scott Grusin.

Selections: 1 First Visit (1:52); 2 Battleship (1:20); 3 Shopping Cart Ride (1:20); 4 "Soon as they find a cure..." (1:52); 5 Candy Montage (1:33); 6 Gathering Leaves (2:12); 7 Bedtime/Big Changes (2:54); 8 Mississippi Montage (2:07); 9 "Make mine a T-bone" (1:34); 10 A Million Light Years (3:17); 11 Found Money (2:13); 12 Chase And Confrontation (2:46); 13 Going Home (2:59); 14 "We call it a miracle" (1:56); 15 Rain/ Realization (1:41); 16 Requiem (3:25); 17 Last Visit (2:17); 18 Down The River/End Credits (5:30).

Review: A lyrical, touching score by Dave Grusin accompanied this 1995 drama of two young boys learning to cope with terminal illness. Much like his score for On Golden Pond and equally reminiscent of The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter, Grusin utilizes his roots in orchestral film scoring and jazz recording in combining both poignant, emotional cues and strong, bouncy country/R&B tracks, giving the film an atmospheric, rural musical accompaniment. As with many Grusin albums (and soundtracks), most of the selections here are performed by the composer on piano with solid backing from fellow jazz artists, including Jim Walker, Dean Parks, George Doering, and Jimmy Johnson. If you enjoy Grusin's jazz albums and want a taste of his film scoring, The Cure works as a perfect introductory album, just as it comes highly recommended for listeners already accustomed to his fine work for movies and television.

Curly Sue

1991, Giant Records; from the movie Curly Sue, Warner Bros., 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Georges Delerue; Orchestra conducted by Georges Delerue; Album Producer: Georges Delerue; Engineer: Bobby Fernandez.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:05); 2 Thirty-Five-Thirty (P. Williams) (3:34); 3 Two Shades Of Grey (2:26); 4 Innocent Believer (J. Hughes III/M. Deakin) (4:34) 2YZ, Terry Wood; 5 A Hot Bath And A Pizza, Aah! (1:01); 6 They Cut My Hair (2:15); 7 Big Girls Go To School (1:41); 8 Grey Was A Girl Once, Too (3:45); 9 Yacht Club Swing (J.C. Johnson/T. Waller/H. Autrey)(3:10); 10 Git Down (J. Hughes III/M. Deakin)(4:53) 2YZ, Andrea Salazar, Kenyatta Vaughn; 11 Every Girl Needs A Mom (4:50); 12 Someone's Always Hitting Bill (1:40); 13 Bill Can Be Cool/Shop N' Bop (G. Delerue/J. Smalley)(2:55); 14 The Train Calls To Bill (2:30); 15 You Never Know (S. Dorff/J. Betts)(4:03) Ringo Starr; 16 Separation And Reunion (3:48).

Review: John Hughes has worked with virtually every major composer in Hollywood, talents ranging from John Williams, Michael Kamen, Alan Silvestri, Bruce Broughton, Jerry Goldsmith and Maurice Jarre, and his 1991 comedy Curly Sue, Hughes' most recent directorial effort, sported an adequate score by the late Georges Delerue. The music is lyrical with long, flowing melodic lines, the trademark of Delerue, who came from a background in France where he scored numerous films for Francois Truffaut and other esteemed directors. This score is forgettable, genteel, and harmless, working to convey a fairy tale quality in Hughes' film, though, like a lot of Delerue's Hollywood work from this time, doesn't quite have the freshness or spontaneity of some of his earlier works. The album also includes several source music tracks, along with a catchy Ringo Starr ballad, "You Never Know," written by Steve Dorff.

1996, Hollywood Records; from the movie D3: The Mighty Ducks, Walt Disney Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: J.A.C. Redford; Orchestrations: J.A.C. Redford, Carl Johnson, Greg Smith, Marty Jabara, Thomas Pasatieri; Orchestra conducted by J.A.C. Selections: 1 Grade 9 (A. Creeggan/J. Creeggan/S. Paige/E. Robertson/T. Stewart)(2:54) Barenaked Ladies; 2 Changing Of The Guard (B. Keith)(4:13) The Stone Coyotes; 3 Hey Man (D. Hill/A. Bonter)(2:58) The Poorboys; 4 Shake 'Em Down (S. Van Zandt)(3:13) Southside Johnny; 5 Good Vibrations (D. Wahlberg/M. Wahlberg/Spice)(4:31) Marky Mark & The Funky Bunch; 6 Ac-Cent-Tchu-Ate The Positive (H. Arlen/J. Mercer)(3:54) Dr. John; 7 We Will Rock You (B. May)(2:02) Queen; 8 Winning It All (J. Spinks)(3:22) The Outfield; 9 D3: The Might Ducks Main Title (3:29); 10 Mr. Goldberg's Wild Ride (2:21); 11 Morning Showdown (4:48); 12 Victory Over The Varsity (4:54).

Review: The weakest of the "Ducks" films actually has one of the series' more interesting soundtracks, though it's nothing particularly special. Barenaked Ladies' "Grade 9" is a good showcase of the Canadian band's wit, while Dr. John's "Accent-tchu-ate the Positive" and Southside Johnny's "Shake 'em Down" are classy inclusions. Most of the set belongs to J.A.C. Redford's score, which is better off in the penalty box than on your CD player.

Damage

1992, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Damage, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Zbigniew Preisner; The Symphonic Orchestra of Warsaw, conducted by Wojciech Michniewski; Featured Soloists: Lapinski Zdzislaw (cello), Konrad Mastylo (piano), the Tomasz Stonko Jazz Group; Album Producer: Zbigniew Preisner; Engineers: Rafal Paczkowski, Leszek Kaminski.

Selections: 1 Introduction (1:45); 2 The Last Time (3:01); 3 Stephen I (:45); 4 Anna I (1:12); 5 At The Beginning (1:34); 6 Cafe Royal (1:46); 7 Anna II (1:36); 8 Intimacy (1:28); 9 Brussels-Paris (1:22); 10 Lutecia Hotel (1:22); 11 Memories (2:03); 12 In The Country (2:20); 13 The Night (2:30); 14 Dramatic Departure (3:19); 15 Late Thought (1:18); 16 Stephen II (:52); 17

The Last Time II (3:01); 18 Fatal Exit (1:04); 19 Memories Are Made For This (2:05); 20 Damage (1:43); 21 End Title (1:44).

Review: Zbigniew Preisner follows British politician Jeremy Irons down the road to ruin in an affair with his son's girlfriend, Juliette Binoche. One might expect a score of hot sexual tension, ala Body Heat, but Preisner mainly uses a classical air to express the stuffiness of the English family and make the affair seem that much more "dirty." Even the occasional use of a jazz motif (particularly on "The Last Time") only further acts to degrade the conduct of Irons and Binoche.

Damien: Omen II

1988, Silva Screen; from the movie Damien: Omen II, 20th Century-Fox, 1978.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Orchestra conducted by Lionel Newman; Choral Director: John McCarthy; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (5:01); 2 Runaway Train (2:39); 3 Claws (3:15); 4 Thoughtful Night (3:08); 5 Broken Ice (2:21); 6 Fallen Temple (2:54); 7 I Love You, Mark (4:39); 8 Shafted (3:00); 9 The Knife (3:21); 10 End Title (3:25).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith adapted much of his music for the original Omen thriller for this sequel, expanding his orchestrations for a rich, lush-sounding album. The opening title music features a driving, epic-style rendition of his "Ave Satani" music from The Omen, while other cues emphasize heavy, driving rhythms to create the effect of a kind of "machine of evil" that cranks up as devil boy Damien's satanic cohorts deal death and destruction to all who oppose him. Most of the cues explode with spectacular violence, and Goldsmith and his choir leader conjure up some unnerving vocal effects as choir members hiss, growl and wail their way through the composer's "black mass." Goldsmith serves up some spectral, spine-chilling moments of tonal beauty along with the mayhem in cues like "Sleepless Night."

1990, Epic Records/CBS Records; from the movie Dances with Wolves, Orion Pictures, 1990.

Selections: 1 Main Title—Looks Like A Suicide (3:57); 2 The John Dunbar Theme (2:15); 3 Journey To Fort Sedgewick (3:22); 4 Ride To Fort Hays (2:00); 5 The Death Of Timmons (2:25); 6 Two Socks: The Wolf Theme (1:28); 7 Pawnee Attack (3:45); 8 Kicking Bird's Gift (2:08); 9 Journey To The Buffalo Killing Ground (3:39); 10 The Buffalo Hunt (2:41); 11 Stands With A Fist Remembers (2:07); 12 The Love Theme (3:52); 13 The John Dunbar Theme (2:05); 14 Two Socks At Play (1:57); 15 The Death Of Cisco (2:42); 16 Rescue Of Dances With Wolves (2:07); 17 The Loss Of The Journal and The Return To Winter Camp (2:07); 18 Farewell and End Title (8:40).

Review: Rarely do cinematic beauty and musical splendor marry as sympathetically as in Kevin Costner's epic tale, Dances with Wolves. John Barry's Academy Award-winning score is simply breathtaking, hauntingly majestic, and melancholy in an almost imperceptible way. The themes have unique melodic qualities—the Main Title ("Looks Like a Suicide") is stark and foreboding; "The John Dunbar Theme" and "Journey to Fort Sedgewick" deceptively simple, yet rich with complex harmonies that resonate grandly with the exquisite orchestrations of Greig McRitchie. Each selection is, in its own right, a musical gem. The recordings, made at Columbia Studios in Los Angeles, are superb. The strings shimmer, the horns and woodwinds shine, and the percussion rumbles with heart-stopping, earth-shaking depth.

Dangerous Liaisons

1989, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Dangerous Liaisons, Warner Bros., 1989.

Album Notes: Music: George Fenton; Orchestra conducted by George Fenton; Baroque Orchestra, conducted by David Woodcock; Featured Musicians: Maurice Cochrane (harpsichords, fortepiano, baroque organ), Elizabeth Wallfisch & Alison Bury (solo violins); Album Producer: George Fenton.

Selections: 1 Dangerous Liaisons Main Title/Dressing (G. Fenton/A. Vivaldi) (4:20); 2 Madame de Tourvel (2:16); 3 The Challenge (2:06); 4 O Malheureuse Iphigenie! (C. Gluck) (4:28) Catherine Bott; 5 Going Hunting (extract from Organ Concerto No. 13 in F, "The Cuckoo and the Nightingale," by G.F. Handel) (1:21); 6 Valmont's First Move/The Staircase (G. Fenton/A. Vivaldi) (2:16); 7 Beneath The Surface (2:12); 8 The Set-Up (G. Fenton/J.S. Bach) (2:13) Leslie Pearsons, Roderick Elms, Guy Dagul, John Toll; 9 The Key (J.S. Bach) (2:44); 10 Her Eyes Are Closing (3:40); 11 Ombra Mai Fu (G.F. Handel) (2:41) Paulo Abel do Nascimento; 12 Tourvel's Flight (2:10); 13 Success (2:36); 14 Emilie (2:30); 15 Beyond My Control (4:25); 16 A Final Request

(3:13); 17 Ombra Mai Fu (reprise)/The Mirror (G.F. Handel/G. Fenton) (2:33); 18 Dangerous Liaisons End Credits (2:59); 19 Concerto in A minor for four harpsichords (J.S. Bach) (4:12).

Review: Happily mixing original cues with works by some of the best Baroque composers, George Fenton's music for Dangerous Liaisons is a rare treat, a score that brims with great taste and intelligence, and a delightful audio experience from beginning to end. If you really like film music and don't mind being a bit adventurous, don't let the above description deter you. Classical music, when well adapted to the needs of screen action, can be as effective as any score you are likely to hear. One of our most sophisticated composers, Fenton knows and understands the qualities that make classical selections so perfectly suited to a specific screen action, and even when he adapts the works by other composers or he writes his own music, he succeeds in creating cues that sound true to the period, yet have an edge of modernity that is appropriate to the cinematic medium itself. Typically, his score for Dangerous Liaisons shows great elegance and appeal. In the film, it perfectly matched the tone of the action; on its own, it makes for an attractive recording which will provide many hours of listening pleasure.

Dangerous Minds

1995, MCA Records; from the movie Dangerous Minds, Hollywood Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Doug Rasheed, Mr. Dalvin, Pimp C, Frank Hudson, Cyrus Esteban, Michael J. Powell, The Bass Mechanics, Chris Stokes, Claudio Cuenti, Evil Dee, Trevor Horn; Album Executive Producers: Don Simpson, Jerry Bruckheimer, DeVante; Engineer: Herb Powers.

Selections: 1 Gansta's Paradise A.Ivey, Jr./L. Sanders/D. Rasheed)(4:01) Coolio, L.V.; 2 Curiosity (M. Dalvin/M. Elliott)(4:03) Aaron Hall; 3 Havin Thangs (M. Barnett/W. Barnett)(4:45) Big Mike; 4 Problems (A. Forte/ F. Hudson)(3:31) Rappin' 4-Tay; 5 True O.G. (M. Dalvin/S. Garrett/T. Mosely) (3:41) Mr. Dalvin & Static; 6 Put Ya Back Into It (T. Black/M. Powell)(5:42) Tre Black; 7 Don't Go There (Da S.W.A.T. Team) (3:32) 24-K; 8 Feel The Funk (C. Stokes/S. Scarborough)(4:44) Immature; 9 It's Alright (M. Elliott/ C. Mack/E. Dee)(5:13) Sista, Craig Mack; 10 A Message For Your Mind (F. Perren/A. Mizell/ B. Gordy/D. Richards/ A. Forte)(5:00) Rappin' 4-Tay; 11 Gin And Juice (DeVante)(5:09) DeVante; 12 This Is The Life (W. Melvoin/L. Coleman/K. Bell)(4:38) Wendy & Lisa.

Review: This was a career launcher for rapper Coolio. It vaulted his "Gangsta's Paradise" to No. 1 on the Billboard charts, which in turn carried the album to No. 1 as well, with sales in excess of four million copies. No other song on the album is as successful, but it remains a decent sampler of mid-'90s urban styles, including the teenybop of Immature's "Feel the Funk" and the potent street swagger of selections by Rappin' 4-Tay, DeVante and Aaron Hall.

Dante's Peak

1997, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Dante's Peak, Universal Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: John Frizzell; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian, Frank Bennett, Brad Dechter, Robert Elhai, Andrew Kinney, Bruce Fowler; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Music Editors: Abby Thelogen, Jim Weidman; Album Producer: John Frizzell; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (J. Newton Howard)(5:30); 2 The Close Call (1:43); 3 Trapped In The Crater (5:03); 4 On The Porch (2:31); 5 The Evacuation Begins (4:12); 6 The Helicopter Crash (1:28); 7 Escaping The Burning House (2:32); 8 Sinking On Acid Lake (2:37); 9 Stuck In The Lava (1:44); 10 The Rescue (3:05).

Review: Built around an effectively apocalyptic James Newton Howard theme, John Frizzell's score overflows with hyper-dramatic action. Frizzell orchestrates this energetic material effectively and creates plenty of sonic suspense through a cohesive orchestral dissonance. Heavy on brass and percussion, the score is sufficiently cataclysmic, though it seems at its best when grounded solidly upon the Howard theme. Frizzell does incorporate his own love theme in "On the Porch," accompanying a tender dialog between Pierce Brosnan and Linda Hamilton, then recapitulates it as a triumphant finale in "The Rescue." But it's Howard's ominous horn theme that's linked to the malevolent mountain; all other musical material remains subordinate to the volcanic fury of the mountain's music. It's this material which will, ultimately, remain the most memorable on the CD. At 30:27 minutes, though, it's quite a short one, and the fury of much of the music makes it go by all that much quickly.

The Dark Half

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Dark Half, Orion Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Young; Orchestrations: Christopher Young, Jeff Atmajian; Music Editors: John La Salandra, E. Gedney Webb; The Munich Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Allan Wilson; Album Producer: Christopher Young; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Prologue and Tumor (6:14); 2 Twin Ghosts (2:42); 3 Mind Snatcher (1:54); 4 Green To Green (2:02); 5 Dano (2:41); 6 Mr. Machine (4:02); 7 Omnibus Death (10:23); 8 Catechize (1:19); 9 Berol Black Beauty (2:25); 10 Half Divided One (2:01); 11 Fool's Stuffing (3:38); 12 Sparrows (2:48); 13 The Dark Half (4:39).

Review: Despite a pleasantly melodic opening, the underscore for this film doesn't quite yield an entertaining CD. Then again, Christopher Young's primary goal is always to support the film, not make records. If the filmmakers' ultimate intent was that they needed a dreary, sullen score, then he certainly succeeded in delivering the goods. Once down in its pit of despair, it rarely rises up. One has to wonder, however, if Young was simply prohibited from devising another one of his creative orchestrations for fear that it might outshine the film, which was critically lambasted and disowned by Stephen King, and which could have used all the help it could get. If so, then Young's talent was certainly wasted.

Darkman

1990, MCA Records; from the movie Darkman, Universal Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek; Music Editor: Bob Badami; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker; Album Producer: Danny Elfman; Engineers: Bob Fernandez, Dennis Sands, Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (1:37); 2 Woe, The Darkman... Woe (6:09); 3 Rebuilding/Failure (3:16); 4 Love Theme (:56); 5 Julie Transforms (1:11); 6 Rage/Peppy Science (1:37); 7 Creating Pauley (3:19); 8 Double Durante (1:50); 9 The Plot Unfolds (Dance Freak)(7:01); 10 Carnival From Hell (3:16); 11 Julie Discovers Darkman (1:59); 12 High Steel (4:19); 13 Finale/End Credits (3:39).

Review: Danny Elfman wrote a lot of "dark" scores during the late 1980s—Batman, Beetlejuice and Nightbreed among them—but Darkman may just be the most representative score of the composer's work from this period. The music is popular enough to be copied in subsequent genre films in addition to being used in numerous movie trailers, so listeners may be familiar with the score even if they don't instantly know where the music comes from. With his trademark frantic, jumpy, unstable strings, an ominous, foreboding tone, and colorful orchestrations (courtesy of collaborator Steve Bartek), Elfman has written a score that's always interesting to listen to, very much in the style of Batman and his other efforts around this time, though its intense tone may wear some listeners down in album format.

Dave

1993, Big Screen Records; from the movie Dave, Warner Bros., 1993.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: James Newton Howard, Brad Dechter, Chris Boardman; Music Editor: Jim Weidman; Orchestra conducted by Marty Paich; Album Producer: James Newton Howard; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (2:56); 2 The Picnic (4:13); 3 To The White House (3:04); 4 You're On (2:02); 5 Are You Threatening Me? (3:25); 6 She Hates me (3:12); 7 The Teaching Montage (1:07); 8 Do You Like Magic? (2:24); 9 Dave Passes Out (1:11); 10 The Tunnel (1:49); 11 How'd You Get Started? (2:01); 12 Into The Fog (3:40); 13 End Titles (4:13).

Review: James Newton Howard's score for this romantic comedy is a delightful series of cues that are well adapted to the screen action but also exude strong musical characteristics that make this soundtrack album a particularly enjoyable one to listen to. At times elegiac ("The Picnic"), at times amusingly delineated ("She Hates Me"), it overflows with attractive ideas, compactly expressed yet totally convincing and strongly suggestive. In a rare display of Newton Howard's best qualities as a film composer, Dave is a real charming effort.

1979, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Dawn of the Dead, United Film Distribution, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: Goblin; Featured Musicians: Massimo Morante (guitars, bass, mandolin), Claudio Simonetti (keyboards, synthesizers, organ, violin), Fabio Pignatelli (guitar, bass), Agostino Marangolo (piano, percussion), Maurizio Guarini (synthesizer, violin); Album Producers: Goblin.

Selections: 1 Dawn Of The Dead (6:05); 2 Zombie (4:24); 3 Safari (2:11); 4 Pie In The Face (1:54); 5 Edge Of Madness (1:31); 6 Shriek (3:35); 7 The Hunt (3:39); 8 Target Shooting (2:51); 9 Oblivion (5:12); 10 The Awakening (1:04).

Review: For George Romero's visceral horror show, the Italian group Goblin was brought in by executive producer Dario Argento, who had worked with them before and insisted they replace many of the library cues originally patched together by Romero. Goblin provides an effective counterpart to Romero's vivid scenes of flesh-eating zombies invading an abandoned shopping mall, eager for the surviving humans trapped inside. Their music is desolate and brutal, but often satirical, and built around pulsating rock rhythms and textures, both electric and acoustic. Dominated by guitar and drums, the music leads the assault of the zombies, evoking a claustrophobic mood of impending and inescapable terror. It worked very well in the film, but it's less interesting on CD where it tends to drone away rather aimlessly. Unless you're into the throbbing zombie beat, the CD may not be a frequent flyer on your home stereo.

The Day the Earth Stood Still

1993, Fox Records; from the movie The Day the Earth Stood Still, 20th Century-Fox, 1951.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; The 20th Century-Fox Orchestra, conducted by Bernard Herrmann, Lionel Newman, Alfred Newman; Featured Artist: Sam Hoffman (theremin); CD Producer: Nick Redman; Digital Mastering: Dan Hersch.

Selections: 1 20th Century-Fox Fanfare (A. Newman)(:12); 2 Prelude/Outer Space/Radar (3:45); 3 Danger (:22); 4 Klaatu (2:15); 5 Gort/The Visor/The Telescope (2:23); 6 Escape (:52); 7 Solar Diamonds (1:04); 8 Arlington (1:08); 9 Lincoln Memorial (1:27); 10 Nocturne/The Flashlight/The Robot/ Space Control (5:58); 11 The Elevator/Magnetic Pull/The Study/The Conference/The Jewelry Store (4:31); 12 Panic (:42); 13 The Glowing/ Alone/Gort's Rage/Nikto/The Captive/Terror (5:11); 14 The Prison (1:42); 15 Rebirth (1:38); 16 Departure (:52); 17 Farewell (:32); 18 Finale (:30).

Review: Herrmann's music for the 1951 Robert Wise film about a wise extraterrestrial ambassador's visit to Earth is the quintessential '50s sci-fi score, most often remembered for its wailing, eerie theremin effects. The score was unavailable apart from some brief rerecorded suites prior to this 1993 release, which assembles the entire original score, including a few moments not used in the film. The portentous title music gives way to Herrmann's nervous "Radar" cue of low piano and vibraphone, but the highlight of the album involves the arrival of the alien Klaatu (Michael Rennie) and his immense robot Gort, characterized by Herrmann with an unforgettable series of crushing, ascending brass chords and hair-raising theremin glissandos as the robot lays waste to a phalanx of soldiers in Washington, D.C. No fan of Herrmann or science fiction film scores should be without this classic release.

Daylight

1996, Universal Records; from the movie Daylight, Universal Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineer: Elton Ahi.

Selections: 1 Daylight (3:34); 2 Laura's Theme (3:07); 3 Searching For A Miracle (1:58); 4 Survival (2:30); 5 Kit's Plan (3:30); 6 A Community Is Formed (2:46); 7 Leaving George (3:13); 8 Rats (1:54); 9 The Tunnel Claims Its Own (2:13); 10 Power! (2:30); 11 A Short Swim Under Water (2:11); 12 The Sandhog's Chapel (2:17); 13 Light At The End (5:28); 14 Madelyne's Fate (3:27); 15 Whenever There Is Love (B. Roberts/S. Roman)(4:35) Bruce Roberts, Donna Summer; 16 Don't Go Out With Your Friends Tonite (L. Bryan/ R. Bryan/ D. Hoffpauir/K. Kerby)(2:53) Ho-Hum.

Review: An unusual, relatively subtle action score from Randy Edelman, Daylight coasts right along with some exciting action cues that fortunately never overwhelm the claustrophobic suspense of Sylvester Stallone's entertaining disaster movie. Edelman utilizes his standard bag of tricks here (synths combined with full orchestra), but the percussive beat of many of his scores is notably missing, and it results in a solid outing that ought to appeal to action fans and aficionados of the composer. The album also includes "Wherever There is Love," a power ballad performed by Bruce Roberts and Donna Summer, which—thanks to its catchy chorus and typically lush David Foster production sheen—is one of the more enjoyable songs to come out of a disaster movie since, well, "The Morning After" from The Poseidon Adventure, anyway.

1990, DGC Records; from the movie Days of Thunder, Paramount Pictures, 1990.

Selections: 1 The Last Note Of Freedom (H. Zimmer/B. Idol)(5:44) David Coverdale; 2 Deal For Life (M. Page/B. Taupin)(4:36) John Waite; 3 Break Through The Barrier (A. Cymone/G. Cole)(4:47) Tina Turner; 4 Hearts In Trouble (B. Champlin/D. Matkoksky/K. Dukes)(5:14) Chicago; 5 Trail Of Broken Hearts (R. Sambora/T. Marolda/B. Foster)(4:32) Cher; 6 Knockin' On Heaven's Door (B. Dylan)(5:36) Guns N' Roses; 7 You Gotta Love Someone (E. John/B. Taupin)(4:59) Elton John; 8 Show Me Heaven (J. Rifkin/E. Rackin/M. McKee) (3:48) Maria McKee; 9 Thunder Box (A. Smile)(3:49) Apollo Smile; 10 Long Live The Night (J. Jett/R. Cantor/M. Caruso)(3:57) Joan Jett & The Blackhearts; 11 Gimme Some Lovin' (S. Winwood/M. Winwood/S. Davis)(5:01) Terry Reid.

Review: Ever since Risky Business, Tom Cruise star vehicles have been good for high-profile soundtracks. And this one doesn't disappoint, with a jukebox chock full o' biggies – Elton John, Tina Turner, Chicago, Cher. Hard rockers Guns 'N Roses stuck their previously unavailable cover of Bob Dylan's "Knockin' on Heaven's Door" here to lure the rock crowd, and ambitious listeners could find some real gems, like Terry Reid's version of "Gimme Some Lovin'" and Maria McKee's "Show Me Heaven" amidst a load of luke-warm castaways from the more established names.

The Dead/Journey Into Fear

1987, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movies The Dead, Vestron Pictures, 1987; and Journey Into Fear, Stirling Gold, 1975.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North; The Dead: Featured Musicians: Ann Stockton (Irish harp), Paul Shure, Bonnie Douglas, Sheldon Sanov, Arnold Belnick, Bruce Dukov, Israel Baker (violin), Milton Thomas, David Schwartz (viola), Frederick Seykora, Dennis Karmazyn (cello), Milton Kastenbaum (bass), Sheridon Stokes (flute), Tom Boyd (oboe), Dominick Fera (clarinet), John Berkman (keyboard); Journey Into Fear: Orchestrations: Richard E. Bronskill; Music Editor: Kenn Wannberg; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Alex North; Album Producer: Alex North.

Selections: THE DEAD: 1 Main Title (2:05); 2 The Story Of Michael Furey (3:01); 3 Gretta's Young Romance (1:49); 4 Gabriel's Mounrful Reflections (5:12); 5 Aunt Kate Recalls Parkinson (:52); 6 Gretta's Fond Memory (1:45); 7 Grim Gabriel (1:09); 8 The Lass Of Aughrim (3:05) Frank Patterson; JOURNEY INTO FEAR: 9 Main Title (1:47); 10 Dead Agent (1:34); 11 Loneliness (2:55); 12 The Weapon (1:29); 13 The Search (1:50); 14 Deadly Quest (2:44); 15 Troubled Romance (3:18); 16 Pursuit (3:15); 17 Despair (1:23); 18 Desperate Straits (2:18); 19 It's Over (End Title)(2:42).

Review: Belying its apparently downbeat subject, a dramatic screen rendition of the Joyce story set at the turn of the century, the score for The Dead, a film directed by John Huston, is an attractive series of little musical miniatures for chamber orchestra and solo instruments, among them the flute, the oboe and the clarinet. Introduced by the "Main Title," a piece for solo harp, it segues into a collection of themes that underline the screen action, notably about Gretta, married to Gabriel, who, on the occasion of a family reunion at their aunts' home in Dublin, reveals to her husband that she loved another when she was younger.

In contrast to the romantic simplicity and loveliness of The Dead, Journey Into Fear, a contemporary murder mystery, elicited a score that sometimes verges on the atonal, with bursts of orchestral violence to portray the "aggressiveness inherent in this propulsive story," as the composer himself described it. Occasionally, a melodic interlude ("Loneliness," "Troubled Romance") provides some relief to the musical tension, but the title of the film appropriately describes the overall tones of the score, played with great energy by the Graunke Symphony Orchestra.

Dead Again

1991, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Dead Again, Paramount Pictures, 1991.

Selections: 1 The Headlines (3:26); 2 Final Request (2:30); 3 A Walk Down Death Row (:59); 4 The Woman With No Name (3:34); 5 Winter 1948 (2:56); 6 Two Halves Of The Same Person (2:19); 7 It Never Rains In LA (1:40); 8 I'm Not Roman (1:29); 9 Inga's Secrets (1:04); 10 Hightower House (2:52); 11 Fate Happens/Death Of A Mad Son (4:38); 12 The Door Is Closed (1:11); 13 Dead Again (3:03).

Review: The second collaboration between director-actor Kenneth Branagh and composer Patrick Doyle results in a bombastic, often over-the-top but nevertheless enjoyable score similar to the composer's most pulsating works (think Mary Shelley's Frankenstein). To fit the Hitchcock-esque tone of Branagh's entertaining "film noir," Doyle ventures into some elegiac string territory worthy of Bernard Herrmann, while still retaining his own voice through the propulsive action music accompanying the film's opening titles or the poignant love theme, with echoes of tragedy, that brings the picture to a close. Minor quibble: some of the music is written in strict accordance to the action on-screen, meaning some tracks don't translate well to album form, though the brief running time at least means that the music never wears out its welcome. A worthy effort into the Branagh-Doyle series, though it is far from the best – or the worst – score to result from their collaborative relationship.

Review: A complex psychological film, set in New Orleans, Dead Man Walking told the unique story of a nun and a convicted killer awaiting execution, and the unusual emotional ties that eventually bind their existences. Adding a pertinent fold to the absorbing drama, the soundtrack relied on the powerful combination of contemporary songs and rare instrumental cues written by a wide range of composers. A cornucopia of top frontline performers provide the enjoyment in the first album which brings together the talents of Bruce Springsteen, Johnny Cash, Suzanne Vega, Lyle Lovett, Mary Chapin Carpenter, Tom Waits and Patti Smith, to name a few. Unless you have seen the film (and even if you have), it is sometimes difficult to assess how each song fits within the dramatic texture of the screen action, but taken on its own musical merits this compilation album is certainly better than most.

In a total genre departure, the second album presents various selections, many of them in the Pakistani Sufi idiom, a devotional style rich with tradition, used to express the transcendental moods that permeate some of the scenes in the film. By combining those with the songs of a gospel choir, film composer David Robbins was able to create a highly unusual, strikingly powerful soundtrack which does not seek any compromise and will probably regrettably attract only a limited audience. But if you like the first album, try to find the second for a broader, richer musical experience.

Huff)(8:29) Harold Melvin & The Blue Notes; 7 Get Up And Get Down (T. Hester)(3:11) The Dramatics; 8 If There's Hell Below (C. Mayfield)(7:44) Curtis Mayfield; 9 Do Right Woman, Do Right Man (D. Penn/C. Moman)(3:16) Aretha Franklin; 10 Where Is The Love (R. MacDonald/W. Salter)(4:12) Jesse & Trina; 11 Tired Of Being Alone (A. Green) (2:48) Al Green; 12 Love Train (K. Gamble/L. Huff)(2:59) The O'Jays; 13 The Look Of Love (B. Bacharach/ H. David)(11:13) Isaac Hayes; 14 Dead Presidents Theme (D. Elfman)(4:22).

Review: If this sounds like something the Dead Kennedys should be part of, think again. This soundtrack comprises soul classics from front to back, a hall of fame assemblage that includes Aretha Franklin, Curtis Mayfield, Sly & the Family Stone, Harold Melvin & the Blue Notes, the Spinners, Isaac Hayes, James Brown, Al Green and the inimitable rumble of Barry White. You'll feel good, like you knew that you would.

1990, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Dead Solid Perfect, HBO Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Tangerine Dream; Music Editor: Allen K. Rosen; Album Producers: David Stoner, James Fitzpatrick; Engineer: Alan Howarth.

Selections: 1 Theme From Dead Solid Perfect (3:20); 2 In The Pond (1:16); 3 Beverly Leaves (:59); 4 Of Cads And Caddies (2:13); 5 Tournament Montage (2:38); 6 A Whore In One (2:14); 7 Sand Trap (1:22); 8 In The Rough (:42); 9 Nine Iron (1:39); 10 U.S. Open (1:41); 11 My Name Is Bad Hair (2:32); 12 In The Hospital Room (:36); 13 Welcome To Bushwood/Golfus Interruptus (1:33); 14 Deja Vu (I've Heard This Before!)(1:32); 15 Birdie (1:20); 16 Divot (1:19); 17 Kenny And Donny Montage (1:40); 18 Off To See Beverly (:33); 19 Phone To Beverly (1:19); 20 Nice Shots (2:43); 21 Sinking Putts (2:05); 22 Kenny's Winning Shot (1:07).

Review: Unlike most Tangerine Dream albums, this score for a lighthearted pre-Tin Cup look at the world of professional golf was assembled not from the full-length themes composed by the group, but from the cues edited down to create the film underscore. Until I was asked to assist engineer Alan Howarth and producer Ford A. Thaxton in creating a listenable album, I had not fully appreciate the group's ability to capture the nature of a film. I soon found we could assemble the wealth of short pieces into one big coherent symphonic suite. Having been most familiar with the film, and its quirky ambience, I discovered much to my amazement that Tangerine Dream's musical instincts were pretty much on target. I could hear pro-golfer Randy Quaid struggling with both his personal and professional life, with the music effectively capturing both the tension of the tournaments and Quaid's more lighthearted off-the-green antics ("A Whore in One").

The Dead Zone 🦴🦴🦴

1994, Milan Records; from the movie Dead Zone, Paramount Pictures, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Orchestrations: Michael Kamen; The National Philharmonic Orchestra of London, conducted by Michael Kamen; Featured Soloist: Sid Sax (violin); Album Producer: Michael Kamen; Engineers: Eric Tomlinson, John McLure.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles (4:20); 2 Coma (4:24); 3 Hospital Visit (1:09); 4 First Vision—Second Sight (1:33); 5 Lost Love (1:23); 6 Drowning Vision—Through The Ice (2:46); 7 School Days (2:14); 8 In The Snow—Hope (2:22); 9 Alone (3:57); 10 Political Death (2:27); 11 Rally—Meet Your Local Candidate (3:52); 12 Realisation—Destiny (2:15); 13 Death Of A Visionary (2:12); 14 Civic Duty And Sacrifice (1:48); 15 The Dead Zone (2:39); 16 Coda To A Coma—The Balcony (2:25).

Review: This long overdue release of Michael Kamen's score to director David Cronenberg's successful adaption of the Stephen King story will be welcomed by all fans of the composer. Dreamy in pacing, subdued in nature, Kamen centers it all around Johnny, a man who has awakened from a coma to find he now has "second sight." It's not a gift, but a curse and Johnny, no matter how good his deed, will not be rewarded with happiness. He foreshadows the inevitable conclusion by drawing out as much pathos as he can muster, and even the theme "Lost Love" reeks with agony. As Johnny descends ineluctably into madness, Kamen makes sure we know that.

Deadfall

1997, Retrograde Records; from the movie Deadfall, 20th Century-Fox, 1968.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Orchestrations: John Barry; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by John Barry; Featured Soloist: Renata Tarrago (guitar); CD Producer: Lukas Kendall; Engineer: Daniel Hirsch.

Selections: 1 My Love Has Two Faces (J. Barry/J. Lawrence)(3:52) Shirley Bassey; 2 The Meeting (2:45); 3 Statue Dance (2:44); 4 The Last Deadfall (6:13); 5 My Love Has Two Faces (3:16); 6 Romance For Guitar And Orchestra (14:12); 7 My Love Has Two Faces (male vocal version)(3:32); 8 My Love Has Two Faces (alt. instrumental)(3:18).

Review: For many years, this soundtrack album (released on LP by 20th Century-Fox Records, at a time when such a label existed) was every collector's prized possession or most-wanted title. There is, of course, a very simple reason for that. Written by John Barry for a thriller directed by Bryan Forbes, it featured among its choicest moments a sensational romance for guitar and orchestra which is considered one of the composer's most complete, most comprehensive creations, as well as one of his most attractive. Superbly performed by Renata Tarrago, it is the centerpiece of this new CD release, and impresses once again as a work of striking beauty and imagination (it is heard during one of the film's crucial sequences, a robbery that takes place during a concert, and lasts precisely as long as the performance of the piece itself). Characteristic of Barry's highly charged style, it is a work of striking originality, with strong romantic leanings, played for all its worth. The rest of the score, announced by Shirley Bassey's vocal on the song "My Love Has Two Faces," is an amalgam of flavorful cues that delineate specific moments in the action, with this CD edition adding two previously unreleased tracks, both featuring the main song title in an alternate instrumental, and in a male vocal version.

Deadly Care

1992, Silva America Records; from the movie Deadly Care, Universal Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Tangerine Dream; Album Producers: Tangerine Dream, Ford A. Thaxton; Engineer: John Goodmanson.

Selections: 1 Deadly Care (Main Title)(4:56); 2 Paddles/Stolen Pills (2:54); 3 A Strong Drink/A Bad Morning (2:00); 4 Wasted And Sick (1:22); 5 Hope For The Future (4:01); 6 The Hospital (5:42); 7 In Bed (1:52); 8 Annie And Father (1:25); 9 More Pills (1:26); 10 In The Head Nurse's Office/At The Father's Grave (1:26); 11 Clean And Sober (4:02).

Review: This score is one of Christopher Franke's last collaborations with the group Tangerine Dream before he left in 1987 to launch his own career as a film composer. It is a dark representation of a nurse's descent into drug and alcohol abuse, told with somber melodies and minimal orchestrations. It is an interesting change of pace for the group, known more for somewhat brighter harmonies (though not as bleak as The Keep). The CD was assembled from the group's original studio recordings as opposed to the edited down versions adapted for use as the underscore.

Death Becomes Her

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:32); 2 "Me" (G. Aymar/M. Donovan/D. Koepp) (2:18) Meryl Streep; 3 Woman On The Verge (1:30); 4 Lisle (1:05); 5 A Touch Of Magic (2:32); 6 Now, A Warning (:52); 7 Sempre Viva (1:49); 8 Another Drunk Driver (1:47); 9 Hurry Up, You Wimp (1:57); 10 It's Alive (3:00); 11 Helen Spies (2:00); 12 Another Miracle (2:31); 13 I'll Be Upstairs (:38); 14 Loving You (2:30); 15 I'd Rather Die (2:59); 16 End Credits (5:45).

Review: If you took the most frantic, frenzied string sections of Who Framed Roger Rabbit? and Back to the Future, then wrote an entire score around them without composing a substantial theme to tie it all together, what you'd come up with would undoubtedly resemble Death Becomes Her. An often engaging, macabre fantasy from Robert Zemeckis (made after the Future sequels and prior to Forrest Gump) that never quite hits the bull's-eye, this rather tedious score from his long-time collaborator Alan Silvestri frequently grates on the listener for almost the length of its entire album, offering little variation or musical surprises outside of its dark, dissonant nature and thumping percussion section. It's an atmosphere score to be certain, working just fine as musical wallpaper in the movie, but it doesn't function at all outside of the film context it was intended to accompany. Recommended only for Silvestri completists.

The Deceivers

1988, RCA Victor; from the movie The Deceivers, Merchant Ivory Productions, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: John Scott; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineer: Peter Kramper.

Selections: 1 In The Beginning (2:46); 2 The Deceivers (Main Title) (2:12); 3 Massacre Of The Nawab's Company (3:05); 4 Journey To Madya (2:00); 5 Forest Murders (1:41); 6 Purge (2:51); 7 Deceivers Waltz (2:14); 8 Madya Quadrille (1:09); 9 Tiger Hunt (1:47); 10 A Killing Grove (:58); 11 William And Sarah (2:49); 12 The House Of Feringeea (1:34); 13 Invocation To Kali (2:18); 14 The Rumal Strikes (1:39); 15 William Kills (2:39); 16 The Consecrated Goor (1:40); 17 Dance To Kali (1:57); 18 Beloved Of Kali (3:52); 19 The Widow's Warning (2:48); 20 River Massacre (2:09); 21 Defeat Of The Deceivers (4:07); 22 End Credits (2:41).

Review: John Scott, another highly literate composer, provided the attractive score for this Merchant Ivory production, starring Pierce Brosnan, set in India at the turn of the century. Though the instrumentations occasionally call for an "ethinic" drum or rhythm, sometimes mixed with the more traditional orchestral figures, much of the music is written in broad, colorful epic and romantic tones that have little to do with the setting but that describe in bold terms the dramatic action on the screen.

Many cues are particularly attractive in the overall mix, but some stand out noticeably, among them the descriptive "Purge," a stately lovely "Deceivers Waltz," a jaunty "Madya Quadrille," and the bold "Defeat of the Deceivers." Performance by the Graunke Symphony Orchestra is right on target, though sonics are somewhat unfocused due to distant miking which flatters individual solo instruments but results in less definition when the full orchestra is heard.

The Deer Hunter

1989, Capitol Records; from the movie The Deer Hunter, Universal Pictures, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: Stanley Myers; Orchestra conducted by Stanley Myers; Featured Artist: John Williams (guitar); Soudntrack Recording Engineer: Aaron Rochim; Album Producers: David Cavanaugh, Rupert Perry; Engineer: Hugh Davies.

Selections: 1 Cavatina (3:32) John Williams; 2 Praise The Name Of The Lord (trad., arr. K. Kovach)(1:44); 3 Troika (trad., arr. S. Myers)(2:20); 4 Katyusha (trad., arr. K. Kovach)(1:38); 5 Struggling Ahead (3:04); 6 Sarabande (2:54) John Williams; 7 Waiting His Turn (1:27); 8 Memory Eternal (trad., arr. K. Kovach)(1:13); 9 God Bless America (I. Berlin) (1:45); 10 Cavatina (reprise)(3:54) John Williams.

Review: A stirring, sprawling saga, The Deer Hunter is an epic film in every sense of the word. Laced with literary allusions, it follows a group of friends from a small town in Pennsylvania whose coming-of-age includes a Russian orthodox marriage, a hunt, and a stint in Vietnam, where they are captured by the Vietcong and forced to submit to a game of Russian roulette. While symbols and references abound in the film directed by Michael Cimino, a contributing element to its success is its soundtrack, which incorporates Stanley Myers' informed music, traditional songs, and sound effects. This short (24 minutes) CD can hardly be said to effectively represent the film, but it contains Myers' lovely "Cavatina," performed by guitarist John Williams. Certainly, a film of this importance (it won five Oscars, including Best Picture and Best Direction) would justify a soundtrack album more representative than this...

1990, Intrada Records; from the movie Def-Con 4: Defense Condition 4, New World Pictures, 1990.

Selections: 1 Def-Con 4 (Main Title)(1:39); 2 Forced Landing (2:21); 3 The Liberation Of Fort Liswell (2:36); 4 Armageddon (2:14); 5 Ghost Planet (2:02); 6 Gideon's Law (1:41); 7 The Terminals (1:05); 8 A New Man's Destiny (2:33); 9 Defense Condition 1 (2:18); 10 The Juggernaut (1:32); 11 Electronic Ocean (2:20); 12 A Message From Home (2:00); 13 I Can't Go On (2:12); 14 The New Dark Age (2:11);

AVENGING ANGEL: 15 Kit Carson (3:26); 16 Overdrive (2:16); 17 Molly Mey (2:23); 18 Ratamacue (2:42); 19 Dark Angel (4:22); 20 Never (1:04); 21 Bughouse Bust (2:07); 22 Good Golly Solley (2:39);

THE TELEPHONE: 24 Vashti Blue (3:22); 25 Definitely Not Manhattan (3:20); 26 Pantomime (3:24); 27 Christmas In July (2:30).

Review: This excellent overview anthology of Christopher Young's early career starts off with 14 selections from his score to the 1985 post-apocalypse film Def-Con 4, notable because this was where he first created what he refers to as "Metallic Sound Sculptures." This tact is allowed to flourish even further on "Thantos," a track from the score for Torment, which, despite its electronic sounding demeanor, is strictly an acoustic creation. For fans of his more tonal work, Young has nicely contrasted these with selections from Avenging Angel, featuring a fine mix of broadly comical music and street jazz, and The Telephone. For the latter, he composed some excellent jazz tunes, but these cues were abandoned by the filmmakers in favor of previously tracked material. Some of the music from Def-Con 4, particularly "Armageddon," was tracked into the U.S. version of Godzilla 1985.

Demolition Man

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Demolition Man, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Elliot Goldenthal; Orchestrations: Bob Elhai, Elliot Goldenthal, David John Olsen, Lolita Ritmanis; Music Editors: J.J. Geroge, Eric Reasoner; Orchestra conducted by Jonathan Sheffer; Album Producer: Matthias Gohl; Engineers: Steve McLaughlin, Bobby Fernandez.

Selections: 1 Dies Irae (1:51); 2 Fire Fight (1:35); 3 Fuilty As Charged (3:58); 4 Action, Guns, Fun (1:26); 5 Machine Waltz (1:56); 6 Defrosting (1:43); 7 Confronting The Chief (:32); 8 Museum Dis Duel (1:56); 9 Subterranean Slugfest (1:44); 10 Meeting Cocteau (1:42); 11 Tracking Simon Phoenix (3:03); 12 Obligatory Car Chase (3:06); 13 Flawless Pearl (1:15); 14 Final Confrontation (1:55); 15 Code 187 (:41); 16 Silver Screen Kiss (1:30).

Review: Here's the '90s in a bottle: Demolition Man (1993) is a futuristic story with Sylvester Stallone and ditzy sidekick Sandra Bullock hunting down evil Wesley Snipes in new agey "San Angeles." It is completely over the top in mean-spirited noise and violence, but does not take itself seriously and is halfway entertaining, if you don't mind the aesthetic and moral values being sucked right out of you. Elliot Goldenthal turned in a loud, technically ambitious score that is also a '90s signpost. Screaming Wagnerian brass, electronics, percussion loops and minimalist keyboards blend into an earful of stylized mainstream cinema. However, unlike some of its techno-orchestra progeny, Demolition Man is actually good and seems to make a statement in its complete collision of genres, from orchestra to Philip Glass to new age. At the least, it has cool track titles like "Obligatory Car Chase." For New York-based composer Goldenthal—who really does know what he's doing—it was obviously another quarter-million dollar orchestration lesson paid for by the Brothers Warner.

1993, Big Screen Records; from the movie Dennis the Menace, Warner Bros., 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton, Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Featured Musicians: Jim Self (tuba), Tommy Morgan (harmonica); Album Producers: Jerry Goldsmith, Bruce Botnick; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Dennis The Menace (Main Title)(2:52); 2 Baby Sitting (3:50); 3 Fun With False Teeth (1:54); 4 Bed Time (5:10); 5 The Shaggy Dog (4:02); 6 The Heist (4:14); 7 Wanna See My Sling Shot (1:21); 8 Tied Up (2:08); 9 Beans (4:09); 10 Real Love (1:29); 11 Hung Up (1:29); 12 He's Back (2:18); 13 Forgetful Sam (1:28); 14 Toasted Marshmallow (4:22).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's entry in the Home Alone sweepstakes captures the spirit of its adorable tike star a bit too well. It's brimming with energy and good feeling, but also awfully annoying. The title theme is positively exuberant, charging along with the title character in a manner enjoyably reminiscent of the composer's propulsive theme to The Great Train Robbery, but most of the remainder of the album descends into Mickey Mousing hell as Goldsmith is forced to score the film's numerous pratfalls and kindergarten-level sight gags. Everything comes together for the obligatory heart-tugging finale, but by then you might be tempted to leave this CD with the sitter.

Desperado

1995, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Desperado, Columbia Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Los Lobos; Songs: Los Lobos; Album Producers: Los Lobos.

Selections: 1 Cancion del Mariachi (Morena de mi corazon)(C. Rosas)(2:07) Los Lobos, Antonio Banderas; 2 Six Blade Knife (M. Knopfler)(4:34) Dire Straits; 3 Jack The Ripper (M. Grant/L. Wray)(2:31) Link Wray & His Ray Men; 4 Manifold De Amour (D. Hidalgo/L. Perez)(2:03) Latin Playboys; 5 Forever Night Shade Mary (D. Hidalgo/L. Perez)(3:01) Latin Playboys; 6 Pass The Hatchet (R. Theriot/R. Leon, Jr./E.S. Oropeza)(3:01) Roger & The Gypsies; 7 Bar Fight (Los Lobos)(1:55) Los Lobos; 8 Strange Face Of Love (T. Larriva)(5:52) Tito & Tarantula; 9 Bucho's Gracias/Navajas Attacks (Los Lobos)(3:57) Los Lobos; 10 Bulletproof (Los Lobos)(1:43) Los Lobos; 11 Bella (C. Santana)(4:29) Carlos Santana; 12 Quedate aqui (M. Villafane) (2:06) Salma Hayek; 13 Rooftop Action (Los Lobos)(1:37) Los Lobos; 14 Phone Call (Los Lobos)(2:17) Los Lobos; 15 White Train (Showdown)(T. Larriva)(5:58) Tito & Tarantula; 16 Back To The House That Love Built (T. Larriva/T. Marsico/V. Marsico/C. Midnight)(4:41) Tito & Tarantula; 17 Let Love Reign (Los Lobos)(3:22) Los Lobos; 18 Mariachi Suite (Los Lobos)(4:24) Los Lobos.

Review: If you had picked up this soundtrack, you might not have been surprised when Antonio Banderas landed the Che role in "Evita"—although his warble-along with Los Lobos on "Cancion Del Mariachi (Morena De Mi Corazon)" hardly establishes his singing prowess. The rest of the album flaunts a cooly consistent Latin flavor, though it seems more restrained than it should be. Carlos Santana plays some beautiful solos on "Bella," and Link Wray & His Ray Men get a welcome resurrection on "Jack the Ripper."

Selections: DESPERATELY SEEKING SUSAN: 1 Leave Atlantic City! MAKING MR. RIGHT: 12 Chemtech Promo Video (1:52); 13 Ulysses' Escape (3:00); 14 Night Visit (1:00); 15 Frankie's Drive (1:05); 16 Ulysses (1:41); 17 In The Lab (1:15); 18 Sondra And Jeff (:57); 19 Mr. Right (1:28); 20 Wedding Reception (1:56); 21 Parting Glance (1:09).

Review: Under the guise of presenting two soundtracks to two films directed by Susan Seidelman, this CD compiles together the works of two composers who couldn't be farther apart, Thomas Newman and Chaz Jankel. Newman wrote the superior score for the film Desperately Seeking Susan, which had the distinction of being Madonna's first film, in which she played a free-spirit and occasional jewel thief who trades her lifestyle with that of Rosanna Arquette, a suburban housewife with a bad case of amnesia. Matching the action's quirky turns, Newman, in one of his earliest efforts, created an inventive little score that borrows from various styles to underline the various moods in the film.

Conversely, the charms in Desperately didn't wind up in Making Mr. Right, made two years later, which starred Ann Magnuson as a Florida woman who gets involved with an android. Saddled with a subject matter that might have been less than inspiring, Chaz Jankel concocted a series of cues that are, at best, serviceable, but rely too much on rhythm and not enough on melodic substance ("Frankie's Drive"). As a result, his score is generally dry and not very interesting, something which devalues the whole album.

Destination Moon

1994, Citadel Records; from the movie Destination Moon, Eagle-Lion Films, 1950.

Album Notes: Music: Leith Stevens; The Vienna Concert Orchestra, conducted by Heinz Sandauer; Album Producer: Tom Null; Engineer: Bruce Leek.

Selections: 1 Earth (2:59); 2 In Outer Space (19:28); 3 On The Surface Of The Moon (4:14); 4 Escape From The Moon(3:02); 5 Finale (13:01).

Review: A trend-setter and pioneering effort in space exploration, Destination Moon may seem laughable today, particularly in view of the tremendous technical advances made by the movies since it was produced almost half a century ago. But in its time, it was a tremendous cinematographic achievement that owed a large part of its success to George Pal's extraordinary special effects, and to Leith Stevens' bold score, a perfect musical illustration of the engrossing screen adventure. Presented in five sections, including two long cues, the score essentially follows the film's action, with "In Outer Space" attempting to describe in sheer musical terms the effects of weightlessness, and with the "Finale" erupting in joyous accents as the daring space explorers make their trip back to Earth. The score may be closer in spirit to the musical techniques used at the time than the selections that eventually made it into the much more advanced 2001: A Space Odyssey (q.v.). But it is very effective in capturing the moods of this early odyssey, at a time when going to the moon was still a dream, and stands out well as a pure piece of film music.

1995, Columbia Records; from the movie Devil in a Blue Dress, TriStar Pictures, 1995.

Selections: 1 West Side Baby (J. Cameron/D. Bartley)(2:46) T-Bone Walker; 2 Ain't Nobody's Business (P. Grainger/J. Witherspoon/R. Prince/C. Williams) (2:54) Jimmy Witherspoon; 3 Hy-Ah Su (D. Ellington) Duke Ellington; 4 Hop, Skip And Jump (R. Milton)(2:34) Roy Milton; 5 Good Rockin' Tonight (R. Brown)(2:47) Wynonie Harris; 6 Blues After Hours (P. Crayton/J. Taub)(2:29) Pee Wee Crayton; 7 I Can't Go On Without You (S. Nix/H. Glover)(3:00) Bull Moose Jackson; 8 'Round Midnight (B. Hanighen/ C. Williams/T. Monk)(3:10) Thelonious Moon; 9 Chicken Shack Boogie (L. Callum/A. Milburn)(2:51) Amos Milburn; 10 Messin' Around (F. Hunt)(3:04) Memphis Slim; 11 Chica Boo (L. Glenn)(2:22) Lloyd Glenn; 12 Theme From Devil In A Blue Dress (2:32); 13 Malibu Chase (1:29); 14 End Credits (3:02).

Review: Anyone buying this soundtrack album on the assumption that the music was composed by Elmer Bernstein may be confronted with a serious case of mistaken identity. Bernstein indeed wrote the score for this film, a murder mystery set in Los Angeles in the days following World War II that mixes races and politics, but his contribution is only represented here by three selections, including the film's "Theme" and "End Credits." In this case, however, the rest of the music is solidly rooted into some of the period's classic recordings, with rare and exciting sides by T-Bone Walker, Jimmy Witherspoon, Duke Ellington, Thelonious Monk, and Memphis Slim, among others, that define better than any other the rich background of the film itself. Contrasting with these mono recordings, Bernstein's cues may sound oddly out of place, but since they are relatively short and come completely at the end the effect is not too jarring. Also, it must be said that, though stylistically different, they are quite attractive, whetting one's appetite for a more comprehensive "score" album.

The Devil's Own

1997, Beyond Music; from the movie The Devil's Own, Columbia Pictures, 1997.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:35); 2 God Be With You (D. O'Riordan)(3:32) Dolores O'Riordan; 3 Ambush (2:30); 4 The Irish Republican Navy (1:20); 5 The New World (4:31); 6 Launching The Boat (3:03); 7 Secrets Untold (5:02); 8 The Pool Hall (2:30); 9 Rory's Arrest/Diaz Is Killed (4:21); 10 Quiet Goodbyes (1:02); 11 Rooftop Escape (1:45); 12 The Mortal Blow (5:10); 13 Going Home (J. Horner/W. Jennings)(7:10).

Review: The Gaelic folk song "There Are Flowers Growing Upon the Hill," which bookends this album and contrasts its most searing moments, seems a perfect complement to this engrossing story of a member of the IRA who avoids arrest and prosecution by going into hiding in America and moving into the house of a New York Irish cop. Between the action cues that detail his flight from justice and involvement in additional revolutionary activities from his American base, and the more lyrical accents that underscore the Irish soul of the story, James Horner's music, unusually low key and emotionally affecting, unfolds with great majesty and power. Some cues ("The New World," or "Secrets Untold," with its distant evocation of Ralph Vaughan Williams) are particularly attractive and denote a new level of maturity in the composer. Similarly, cues like "Launching the Boat" draw their strength from the deft use of Irish-inspired melodies and instruments (notably the Uilleann flute and hornpipe) that confer them greater intensity and poetry. It all adds up to a very attractive and enjoyable soundtrack album.

Diabolique

1996, edel America Records; from the movie Diabolique, 1996.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:41); 2 Desperation (4:09); 3 Scene Of The Crime (2:48); 4 Missing Persons (2:15); 5 A Stimulating Bath (6:18); 6 Empty Pool (2:35); 7 Suburban Pittsburgh (3:09); 8 Searching Through Drawers (4:12); 9 Mia (3:00); 10 Getting Dizzy (2:19); 11 Darkened Hallway (2:54); 12 Two Females And A Guy (5:52); 13 Finale (3:37); 14 In The Arms Of Love (M. Marinangeli/F. Maddlone)(2:26) Sherry Williams.

Review: Though lacking some of the suspense in Henri-Georges Clouzot's 1955 thriller upon which this remake was based, Diabolique offers its share of throat-tightening moments in this exploration of the murder of an authoritarian schoolmaster in the hands of his sickly wife and strong-headed mistress, played by Isabelle Adjani and Sharon Stone respectively. Informing the chiller and some of its most visually frightful moments, Randy Edelman's score at times evokes Bernard Herrmann's urgently feverish music for some of Alfred Hitchcock's best dramas. Most often, however, there is little tension in the cues and none of the hallucinatory effects that would have taken the score to a higher level of effective illustration, as if the composer had been afraid to be too extrovert. "A Stimulating Bath," "Empty Pool" and "Darkened Hallway," however, are appropriately somber and ominous sounding.

1995, Capitol-EMI Music; from the movie Diamonds are Forever, United Artists, 1971.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: John Barry.

Selections: 1 Diamonds Are Forever (Main Title)(2:40) Shirley Bassey; 2 Bond Meets Bambi And Thumper (2:16); 3 Moon Buggy Ride (3:12); 4 Circus, Circus (2:57); 5 Death At The Whyte House (3:43); 6 Diamonds Are Forever (3:45); 7 Diamonds Are Forever (2:32); 8 Bond Smells A Rat (1:51); 9 Tiffany Case (3:44); 10 007 And Counting (3:30); 11 Q's Trick (2:24); 12 To Hell With Blofeld (1:28).

Review: John Barry was at the peak of his creativity when he scored the James Bond films. Though he derisively characterized his contributions to the screen exploits of Agent 007 as "million-dollar Mickey Mouse music," the fact is that no one else (and there have been others) managed to match the sense of fun and sheer merriment Barry brought to his scores. Fans of Bond and Barry (the two names have become almost inseparable) often argue over which of Barry's scores stand out among those he wrote, but Diamonds are Forever is often mentioned as one of the best, which doesn't mean that this recorded representation is necessarily as good as it should be. As a matter of fact, among the Bond score recordings, this is probably the one that most closely resembles a near-miss: the best cues in the film have been left out of the soundtrack album, and those that have been included sound in dire need of a good remixing and mastering. Still, there are some memorable moments in the album, notably the quirky "Moon Buggy Ride," with its fun extrapolations on xylophone and flute; "Tiffany Case," a seductive kitschy lounge cue; the jazzy "Q's Trick," with its enjoyable big band riff; and of course Shirley Bassey's rendition of the title tune, which was perhaps not as pungent as "Goldfinger," but again nothing could have possibly matched that song and Bassey's treatment of it.

Dick Tracy

1990, Sire Records; from the movie Dick Tracy, Warner Bros., 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek, Shirley Walker, Jack Hayes; Music Editor: Bob Badami; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker; Album Producer: Danny Elfman, Steve Bartek, Bob Badami; Engineers: Dennis Sands, Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineers: Sue McLean, Sharon Rice.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (3:36); 2 After The "Kid" (1:45); 3 Crime Spree (1:54); 4 Breathless' Theme (2:13); 5 Big Boy/Bad Boys (2:10); 6 Tess' Theme (1:09); 7 Slimy D.A. (1:41); 8 Breathless Comes On (2:54); 9 Meet The Blank (1:43); 10 The Story Unfolds (1:59); 11 Blank Gets The Goods (2:25); 12 Rooftops (2:01); 13 Tess' Theme (reprise)(1:17); 14 The Chase (2:57); 15 Showdown/Reunited (4:07); 16 Finale (1:00).

Review: It only seemed natural that after Batman, Danny Elfman would become the top composer of the comic strip hero, a position he quickly tired of. In his music for Dick Tracy, however, the novelty had not yet worn out, and his whimsical approach is less rooted in the dark detective film-noir, and more in the gangster epics of Elliot Ness and The Untouchables, and the music of Gershwin. Making it even more seductive, there's some nice "Big Band" influences to portray bad girl torch singer Breathless Mahoney, and an innocent love theme for Tracy's girl, Tess Trueheart.

Madonna: I'm Breathless

1990, Sire Records; from the movie Dick Tracy, Warner Bros., 1990.

Album Notes: Album Producers: Madonna, Patrick Leonard, Kevin Gilbert, Shep Pettibone, Bill Bottrell; Engineers: Brian Malouf, Shep Pettibone.

Selections: 1 He's A Man (Madonna/P. Leonard)(4:42); 2 Sooner Or Later (S. Sondheim)(3:18); 3 Hanky Panky (Madonna/P. Leonard)(3:57); 4 I'm Going Bananas (M. Kernan/A. Baley)(1:41); 5 Cry Baby (Madonna/P. Leonard)(4:04); 6 Something To Remember (Madonna/P. Leonard)(5:03); 7 Back In Business (Madonna/P. Leonard)(5:10); 8 More (S. Sondheim)(4:56); 9 What Can You Lose (S. Sondheim) (2:08); 10 Now I'm Following You, Part 1 (1:35); 11 Now I'm Following You, Part 2 (3:18); 12 Vogue (4:50).

Review: If Andy Paley, whose name is all over the first album as producer, writer or co-writer of most of the songs, and occasional artist/performer, were slightly more talented, this Dick Tracy CD could actually be enjoyable. But the pop songs he wrote for the occasion border on the banal, and only the performances by an all-star cast (which includes k.d. lang, Jerry Lee Lewis, Darlene Love, Patti Austin, Al Jarreau, August Darnell, Ice-T and LaVern Baker, among its most recognizable names) make this album more interesting than it actually is.

Also, notably missing from that collection are the songs written by Stephen Sondheim, and performed by Madonna as Breathless Mahoney, which can be found on the second CD. In this case, the combination of the gifted songwriter and the talented performer proves explosive, and turns the album into a totally delirious burst of enjoyment. Madonna demonstrates another side of her creativity by co-writing some of the other songs on the album, which are not at all bad.

Die Hard

Die Hard 2: Die Harder

Die Hard with a Vengeance

1995, RCA Victor; from the movie Die Hard with a Vengeance, 20th Century-Fox, 1995.

Selections: 1 Summer In The City (J. Sebastian/S. Boone/M. Sebastian) (2:45) The Lovin' Spoonful; 2 Goodbye Bonwits (6:28); 3 Got It Covered (R. Roachford/L. Maturine/R. Kirkpatrick) (4:14) Fu-Schnickens; 4 John And Zeus (3:19); 5 In Front Of The Kids (D. Lee) (2:45) Extra Prolific; 6 Papaya King (5:20); 7 Take A-nother Train (2:55); 8 The Iron Foundry (A. Mosolov) (3:09); 9 Waltz Of The Bankers (4:14); 10 Gold Vault (3:46); 11

Surfing In The Aquaduct (2:31); 12 Symphony No. 1 (excerpt, 4th movement) (J. Brahms) (15:00); 13 Symphony No. 9 (excerpt, 4th movement) (L. van Beethoven) (9:48).

Review: These lackluster follow-ups to the original film score (still unreleased at press time) fail to capture the energy Michael Kamen established with his first effort. Instead, both albums wander aimlessly, "mickey mousing" the action with nary a memorable theme present. This all may be partly due to poor sequencing, especially on Die Hard with a Vengeance, since that score was unfinished when the CD was pressed to meet its release date (which also explains the lack of track titles on the packaging). Pop songs and classical cues were added on the latter to fill time.

Diggstown

1992, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Diggstown, M-G-M, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: James Newton Howard; Orchestra conducted by James Newton Howard; Featured Musicians: Marc Bonilla (guitars), John Robinson (drums), Neil Stubenhaus (bass guitar), Tommy Morgan (harmonica), Michael Finnigan (Hammond organ), Bob Zimmitti (percusion); Album Producers: James Newton Howard, Michael Mason; Engineer: Robert Schaper; Assistant Engineers: Charlie Paakkari, Tom Hardisty.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:19); 2 Do I Have It Or Not (:55); 3 Training Montage (1:58); 4 Emily (1:26); 5 Lane Sees Emily (1:35); 6 Tank (1:33); 7 Digg's House (1:49); 8 Slim's Fight (1:28); 9 Billy's Fight (1:11); 10 Hambone (4:23); 11 Hammerhead (3:40); 12 Torres Fight (1:59); 13 The Mock Ending (1:05); 14 End Credits (3:32).

Review: The lack of musical focus in this score may be its most characteristic aspect. Literally speaking, the music is all over the place, not knowing whether to call it rock, soundtrack, folk or quits. For the most part, the cues tend to be dominated by electric guitar riffs over long synth lines that go nowhere, and an obligatory booming drum beat. Unfortunately, it sounds very dry, not very inspired and in bad need of a central thematic idea. Even semi-interesting concepts like "Tank," with its blues ending, are not sufficiently developed to catch one's interest. James Newton Howard has done much better things before and since.

Diner

Darin) (2:29) Bobby Darin; 19 Don't Be Cruel (O. Blackwell/E. Presley)(2:02) Elvis Presley; 20 Goodbye Baby (J. Scott)(2:07) Jack Scott.

Review: Great movie, great soundtrack—in fact, maybe the best collection of '50s music in any movie this side of American Graffiti. It doesn't have everybody (no Chuck Berry, for instance), but the names that are here—Elvis Presley, Jerry Lee Lewis, Fats Domino, Jimmy Reed, Dion & the Belmonts, Jack Scott and more—are all hall-of-fame choices.

Selections: 1 Kimberley Trumpet (2:15) Chuck Findley; 2 The Arrival (2:05) Miles Davis; 3 Concert On The Runway (3:50) Miles Davis; 4 The Departure (1:05) Miles Davis; 5 Dingo Howl (:08) Chuck Findley; 6 Letter As Hero (1:22) Chuck Findley; 7 Trumpet Cleaning (3:56) Miles Davis; 8 The Dream (3:45) Miles Davis; 9 Paris Walking I (1:58) Chuck Findley; 10 Paris Walking II (3:17) Miles Davis; 11 Kimberley Trumpet In Paris (2:05)

Chuck Findley; 12 The Music Room (2:50); 13 Club Entrance (4:12) Chuck Findley; 14 The Jam Session (6:00) Miles Davis, Chuck Findley; 15 Going Home (2:05) Miles Davis; 16 Surprise! (4:52) Chuck Findley.

Review: Early in their respective careers, Miles Davis and French composer Michel Legrand worked together on a trend-setting jazz album, so this soundtrack may, in a sense, be considered a reunion of sorts. The score, for a film made in Australia, is mostly noteworthy for Legrand's sometimes explosive cues ("Concert on the Runway," "Letter as Hero," "Paris Walking II," "The Jam Session"), and for Davis' unmistakable style. Chuck Findley, who takes the spotlight on several tracks, brings to the proceedings a different flair, with both trumpeters receiving solid support from an impressive array of seasoned performers, including Abe Laboriel on bass, Harvey Mason and Alphonse Mouzon on drums, and Legrand himself on piano. An occasional bit of dialogue places some of the tracks into the film's context.

Disclosure

1995, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Disclosure, Warner Bros., 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra Unione Musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineers: Franco and Fabio Patrignani; Assistant Engineer: Andrea Morricone.

Selections: 1 Serene Family (4:11); 2 An Unusual Approach (7:07); 3 With Energy And Decision (2:07); 4 Virtual Reality (6:24); 5 Preparation And Victory (4:04); 6 Disclosure (:49); 7 Sad Family (1:29); 8 Unemployed! (1:10); 9 Sex And Computers (2:50); 10 Computers And Work (2:00); 11 Sex And Power (2:33); 12 First Passacaglia (4:21); 13 Second Passacaglia (1:41); 14 Third Passacaglia (4:33); 15 Sex, Power And Computers (4:23).

Review: The lovely "Serene Family" which introduces this score soon gives way to more ominous sounds, as if to indicate that not everything is quite right in this complex story of a computer analyst whose new boss turns out to be an old flame, and who finds himself accused of sexual harassment when he refuses to rekindle their love affair. With his usual crafty sense of drama and tension, Morricone conjures up the best and worst in the screen action, with cues that subtly underscore it while creating an aura of their own that is difficult to dismiss. Most fascinating in this set of musical images are the three similarly-themed "Passacaglias," in which the composer uses all the orchestral resources at his disposal to create cues that are particularly evocative.

The Distinguished Gentleman

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Randy Edelman, Greig McRitchie; Music Editor: Tom Carlson; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineer: Elton Ahi.

Selections: 1 Where The Money Is (2:50); 2 The Distinguished Gentleman (2:07); 3 A Kiss By The Potomac (1:50); 4 Wrong Place, Wrong Time (1:45); 5 Mr. Johnson Finds A Cause (1:13); 6 Girls Of Many Nations In D.C. (1:37); 7 Lucrative Luncheon (1:27); 8 Trouble (1:20); 9 Perks (1:16); 10 A Quick Getaway (:34); 11 Soft Rebellion (1:21); 12 Three Ring Hearing Room (:59); 13 Taking Sides On The Issue (1:14); 14 You, Me And A Martini (2:56); 15 Art Of The Con (1:43); 16 On The Campaign Trail (2:06); 17 The Distinguished Gentleman (reprise)/Finale (2:23).

Review: An exuberant calypso, "Where the Money Is," sets the extravagant tone to this colorful comedy starring Eddie Murphy as a small-time con man from Miami who is transported into the world of politics after he is mistaken for a deceased congressman. Contrasting the happy tones of this telling tune, Randy Edelman created a series of grander-than-life cues to depict the general atmosphere that pervades the new surroundings in which the con-man, and his associates, suddenly find themselves. It is an amusing juxtaposition that gives the score its greatest strength, and turns it into a joyous musical affair. In the process, the composer reveals a quirky mind in tunes like the pleasantly lilting "Lucrative Luncheon," and a flair for the grandiloquent in selections like "The Distinguished Gentleman March" or "Taking Sides on the Issue." It would be significantly more exciting, however, had the cues been further developed than they are (many of them hover between a minute and a minute-and-a-half of playing time, not enough to truly make a lasting impression).

Catalani) (3:09); 7 Sentimental Walk (piano solo) (3:20); 8 Ground Swell (4:21); 9 Metro Police (2:35); 10 The Priest And The West Indian (1:30); 11 Abandoned Factory (3:10); 12 Aria from "La Wally" (reprise) (3:22) Wilhelmenia Wiggins Fernandez.

Review: Vladimir Cosma, one of France's most popular film composers but a relative unknown in this country, delivered one of his best scores for this film, directed by Jean-Jacques Beineix, about the young admirer of a celebrated soprano, and a recording he made of one of her performances, which bootleggers want to acquire. The film did much to popularize Alfredo Catalini's aria from the obscure opera "La Wally," but it also attracted attention to Cosma for the wonderful qualities in his score, particularly the evocative "Sentimental Walk," heard in a scene in which the soprano and her young fan are seen walking in the rain in the desolated Jardin des Tuileries in Paris. Unlike some of Cosma's more quirky efforts, however, the other selections here are less defined and not as powerfully imaginative.

Divine Madness

Greenwich) (9:42); 9 You Can't Always Get What You Want (M. Jagger/ K. Richards)/I Shall Be Released (B. Dylan)(5:56).

Review: This recording of standards and new tunes performed by the exhilarating Bette Midler will no doubt appeal to all her fans, if they don't already own the CD. Others will react to it according to their own tolerance for the tongue-in-cheek style of the star, and her often outrageous stage antics. Recording during a concert performance, the selections have the spontaneity and energetic drive that usually characterize the singer's free-wheeling approach when she finds herself in front of an audience totally attuned to her. Sonically, the recording is not all that it should be, with the large hall blurring some of the sound qualities, particularly in the big up-tempo numbers, but don't let that deter you from enjoying it.

Doc Hollywood

Kouter)(2:48); 15 Fireflies And Night Shade (2:30); 16 Stone Walks Alone (:49); 17 Escape From Grady (1:11); 18 Breech Birth (:37); 19 Remembrance Of Things Past (:57); 20 A Shooting Star (:51); 21 Back To The Interstate, Ben Stone (2:52); 22 Life Sentence (4:24).

Review: Ths delightfully off-base score by Carter Burwell does well contrasting the high-powered dreams of a big city doctor (Michael J. Fox) sentenced to perform community service in a small Southern town. The use of zydeco music, previously established in the "Northern Exposure" TV series, adds the right amount of absurdity, especially in an hilarious sequence called "Pee Zydeco" (see the movie to find out). However, it's Burwell's moving variations on a romantic, ambient vocal theme, particularly "Voices Across the Lake," that really stick in the mind.

Review: Brian May scored the first two Mad Max films for director George Miller, and even though the film brought great success to Miller and star Mel Gibson, the Australian May never quite broke into the Hollywood studio system, despite having a great deal of talent that never seemed to realize its full potential on this side of the Atlantic. One of May's rare late excursions into U.S. films came when he scored Dr.Giggles, Manny Coto's tired horror-parody with L.A. Law star Larry Drake. With a full-blooded orchestra behind him, May wrote a decent score for a movie that didn't deserve as much, marked by a motif for the title protagonist that's dark and menacing, but more like an old-time Universal horror movie than Danny Elfman. The music is well-done but offers few surprises, so genre addicts might want to check it out, though others are advised to head elsewhere.

1995, Intrada Records; from the movie Dr. Jekyll and Ms. Hyde, Savoy Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Mark McKenzie; Orchestrations: Mark McKenzie, Patrick Russ; Music Editors: Dick Bernstein, John Finklea, Jim Young; Orchestra conducted by Randy Thornton; Featured Vocalist: Patricia Swanson (soprano); Album Producer: Mark McKenzie; Engineer: Andy Waterman.

Selections: 1 Overture (6:08); 2 Old Movie Music (2:20); 3 Off To Work (2:20); 4 Great Grandfather's Books (2:37); 5 Something Electrical (2:18); 6 A Little Surprise (1:47); 7 Breakfast Transformation (2:35); 8 Charades (2:20); 9 Irresistible Helen (1:41); 10 Helen Deflates (2:02); 11 The Unstable Gene (2:12); 12 Taking Back My Chromosomes (1:57); 13 Narrow Escape (2:19); 14 Footsy (based on "Habanera" from Carmen)(G. Bizet)(1:55); 15 Final Transformation (2:46); 16 Acid Love Potion (2:46).

Review: A spin off the old chestnut horror story about Dr. Jekyll and his nefarious alter ego Mr. Hyde (in this case a feminine incarnation for added fun), Dr. Jekyll and Ms. Hyde gave Mark McKenzie an opportunity to write an expansive, lyrical score, in which broad swathes of musical humor add an unexpected and welcome touch. The recurring main theme, a deft confrontation of two musical elements (one for each of the main character's dual personalities), amusingly pervades the score, in which an occasional Gothic accent is brought by the cliched contribution of an organ. Throughout, in keeping with the film's tongue-in-cheek approach to its subject, McKenzie displays his thorough musical flair, with some delightful moments ("Off to Work," "A Little Surprise," "Helen Deflates") emerging as a result. Even the inclusion of the "Habanera," from Bizet's opera Carmen, does not seem so out of place in the overall outrageous score.

1995, EMI Records; from the movie Dr. No, United Artists, 1962.

Album Notes: Music: Monty Norman; Orchestra conducted by Monty Norman.

Selections: 1 James Bond Theme (1:45); 2 Kingston Calypso (2:42); 3 Jamaican Rock (2:03); 4 Jump-Up (2:08); 5 Audio Bongo (1:30); 6 Under The Mango Tree (2:20); 7 Twisting With James (3:08); 8 Jamaica Jazz (1:04); 9 Under The Mango Tree (2:40); 10 Jump Up (1:25); 11 Dr. No's Fantasy (1:40); 12 Kingston Calypso (2:30); 13 The Island Speaks (3:18); 14 Under The Mango Tree (2:37); 15 The Boy's Chase (1:30); 16 Dr. No's Theme (1:57); 17 The James Bond Theme (2:20); 18 Love At Last (1:49).

Review: Forget the credits, this album automatically raises the question who did actually write the famous "James Bond Theme"? Is it Monty Norman, whose only other screen credits include the obscure House of Fright and Dickens of London? Or is it, as he all along contended, John Barry, whose impeccable credentials include, in addition to a dozen other James Bond scores, a flurry of Academy Award-nominated and -winning contributions? Whatever the case, this soundtrack to the first James Bond film teems with some good moments, mostly those relating to the exotic Caribbean locale of the action, like "Kingston Calypso," "Jump-Up," "Under the Mango Tree," and some painfully dispensable ones, like "Audio Bongo," for instance, which offers very little, musically speaking, or the dated "Twisting With James." This, however, is not the only problem with this generally charmless album. The fact that the tracks are improperly sequenced notwithstanding, this is probably the worst sounding CD you are likely to find, with a lot of hiss on the tracks, some distortion, and a shrillness that makes the best tracks difficult to listen to. Chalk this one up as yet another soundtrack album that needs to be properly EQ'd before it is deemed acceptable by digital standards.

Doctor Zhivago

1995, Rhino Records; from the movie Doctor Zhivago, M-G-M, 1965.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestrations: Maurice Jarre, Leo Arnaud; The M-G-M Studio Orchestra, conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producers: Marilee Bradford, Bradley Flanagan.

Selections: 1 Overture (4:22); 2 Main Title (2:38); 3 Kontakion/Funeral Song (3:15); 4 Lara Is Charming (1:16); 5 The Internationale (1:12); 6 Lara And Komarovsky Dancing Up A Storm (:40); 7 Komarovsky With Lara In The Hotel (3:51); 8 Interior Student Cafe (1:34); 9 Sventitsky's Waltz/After The Shooting (2:17); 10 Military Parade (2:11); 11 They Began To Go Home (2:06); 12 After Deserters Killed The Colonel (1:05); 13 At The Hospital (1:00); 14 Lara Says Goodbye To Yuri (1:27); 15 Tonya Greets Yuri (:46); 16 The Stove's Out (1:30); 17 Yevgraf Snaps His Fingers (3:09); 18 Evening Bells/Moscow Station (1:03); 19 Flags Flying Over The Train (1:04); 20 Yuri Gazing Through A Tiny Open Hatch (:37); 21 The Door Is Banged Opened (1:48); 22 Intermission (:43); 23 Yuri Follows The Sound Of The Waterfall (:44); 24 Tonya And Yuri Arrive At Varykino (2:56); 25 They Didn't Lock The Cottage (1:33); 26 Varykino Cottage, Winter Snow (:57); 27 Yuri And The Daffodils (1:17); 28 On A Yuriatin Street (1:36); 29 In Lara's Bedroom (:34); 30 Yuri Rides To Yuriatin (:22); 31 Yuri Is Taken Prisoner By The Red Partisans (:49); 32 For As Long As We Need You (:40); 33 Yuri Is Escaping (2:17); 34 Yuri Approaches Lara's Apartment (:50); 35 Yuri Looks Into The Mirror (:30); 36 Lara And Yuri Arriving At Varykino (1:39); 37 Yuri Is Trying To Write (1:19); 38 Yuri Frightens The Wolves Away, Part 1 (:49); 39 Lara Reads Her Poem (:40); 40 Yuri Frightens The Wolves Away, part 2 (1:55); 41 Yuri Works On (:52); 42 Then It's A Gift (End Title) (1:43); 43 Lara's Theme (jazz version) (1:57); 44 Lara's Theme (rock'n'roll version) (2:39); 45 Lara's Theme (swing version) (1:15).

Review: This new reissue of Maurice Jarre's score for Dr. Zhivago is another brilliant example of what can be accomplished with vision, diligence, and creative fortitude. For that's what the Rhino editions of the MGM classic soundtracks are all about – dedication. If you love Dr. Zhivago, this disc is for you! Every snippet of Jarre's music for the tremendously successful film can be found here, in its original, unedited form. Of course, "Lara's Theme" (the leitmotif for the entire film) is included, and as a bonus, the producers have added three alternate versions that were made as impromptu "tension breakers" at the original scoring sessions. It's a treat to hear this group of veteran Hollywood musicians interpret the theme as a jazz, rock and swing tune! There are also a number of outtakes and the accompanying booklet contains commentary by Jarre, and in-depth examinations of the story and score. The sound, as is often the case with these Rhino reissues, is excellent.

Dolores Claiborne

1995, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Dolores Claiborne, Columbia Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Danny Elfman, Edgardo Simone; Music Editor: Curt Sobel; Orchestra conducted by Richard Stone; Album Producers: Danny Elfman, Curt Sobel; Engineers: Bobby Fernandez, Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (2:46); 2 Vera's World (3:42); 3 Flashback (1:54); 4 Getting Even (1:48); 5 Ferry Ride (:55); 6 Sad Room (:53); 7 Eclipse (7:16); 8 Finale (5:35); 9 End Credits (5:16).

Review: This is a superb, poetic score from Danny Elfman, who here downplays his brooding "dark" tone (from Batman, Nightbreed, et al) in favor of equally somber but more restrained cues that reflect the distinct personalities of the two female protagonists at the heart of Stephen King's novel, outstandingly adapted here for the screen by Taylor Hackford.

Elfman's string-laden score is effective throughout, whether it frantically underscores the revelation of the title character's dark secret, or the growing bond between the hardened Dolores Claiborne and her troubled journalist daughter. Elfman teamed with his usual film-music collaborators here (including Steve Bartek, who receives no credit on the album for some strange reason), and the result is one of his best. Alas, Varese's album runs a scant 30 minutes, and would have benefited from some additional cues that could have fleshed out the album to a more satisfying length.

Dominick & Eugene

1988, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Dominick & Eugene, Orion Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Trevor Jones; Orchestra conducted by Trevor Jones; Album Producer: Trevor Jones; Engineer: Rico Goldomon.

Selections: 1 Main Theme (Opening Titles)(4:42); 2 Nicky Runs To Hospital (4:15); 3 Fred Is Killed (1:18); 4 Dominck & Eugene (2:30); 5 Chernax Dismisses Nicky (:54); 6 Nicky Rescues Joey (2:38); 7 Nicky's Problem (2:05); 8 Gino And Nicky In Warehouse (1:59); 9 Fred/Chernax's Reprise (1:53); 10 Nicky Interrupts Kiss (1:09); 11 Hospital Reprise (2:50); 12 Nicky Is Contrite (2:41); 13 Rescue (Part 2)(1:21); 14 Departure (3:57).

Review: This film about the relationship of two brothers, one of them retarded, furnished Trevor Jones with one of the few "people" stories in a list of credits which otherwise encompasses mostly thrillers or epics. Jones has always had a particular gift for memorable and engaging themes and does not disappoint here. The main theme is a beautiful lament for small orchestra and solo guitar, performed by an uncredited John Williams. Much as in Jones' Last of the Mohicans however, this is a case of a wonderful theme stretched a little too thin. Lovely as it is, this theme appears several times with little variation and by the fourth appearance becomes rather redundant. The other cues are mostly synthesized "atmosphere" or suspense cues, which, while effective in the film, are not really very listenable. Still, the main theme remains wonderful, and this alone makes this CD worth owning.

Don Juan DeMarco

1995, A&M Records; from the movie Don Juan DeMarco, New Line Cinema, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Orchestrations: Michael Kamen, Robert Elhai, Nick Ingman, Ed Shearmur; Music Editor: Zigmund Gron; The London Metropolitan Orchestra, conducted by Michael Kamen; Featured Musicians: Julian Bream, Paul Kamen, Paco de Lucia, Juan Martin, John Themis, Chucko Merchan, Orlando Rincon, Sol de Mexico, Anna Maria Velez (guitar), Christopher Warren-Green (violin), Caroline Dale (cello), Luis Jardim (percussion); Album Producers: Michael Kamen, Stephen McLaughlin, Christopher Brooks; Engineers: Andy Warwick, Bob Ludwig.

Selections: 1 Have You Ever Really Loved A Woman? (B. Adams/R.J. Lange/M. Kamen)(4:51) Bryan Adams; 2 Habanera (2:08); 3 Don Juan (4:08); 4 I Was Born In Mexico (2:25); 5 Has amado una mujer de veras? (B. Adams/R.J. Lange/M. Kamen)(2:45) Michael Kamen, Jose Hernandez, Nydia; 6 Dona Julia (4:58); 7 Don Alfonso (6:47); 8 Arabia (7:53); 9 Don Octavio del Flores (1:46); 10 Dona Ana (7:31).

Review: You may dispense with Bryan Adams' "Have You Ever Really Loved a Woman?" which sounds hopelessly wrong for this modern retelling of Lord Byron's Don Juan. The film finds Johnny Depp as the latest incarnation of the fabled great lover, now apparently distraught over the loss of the one woman he actually loved, and Marlon Brando the psychiatrist who gives him new hopes and to whom Don Juan tells about his more than 1,000 conquests. The great strength of this album is Michael Kamen's gorgeous Mexican-flavored score, complete with guitar calls, castanets, and the full array of south of the border colorful tonalities one hopes to find (but seldom does) in a music of this kind. The composer's own rendition of the title song, with Spanish vocals by Jose Hernandez and Nydia, is everything Bryan Adams' version is not, and one of the pleasurable highlights in the album. Other tracks that attract and make a lasting impression include the delicate "Dona Julia," the habanera-like "Arabia," and "Dona Ana," another beautiful selection.

1997, Hollywood Records; from the movie Donnie Brasco, Mandalay Entertainment, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Patrick Doyle; Album Producers: Mike Newell, Mark Johnson, Gail Mutrux; Engineer: John Polito.

Selections: 1 A Stranger On Earth (S. Feller/R. Ward)(2:58) Dinah Washington; 2 (The Gang That Sang) Heart Of My Heart (B. Ryan)(2:32) Lou Monte; 3 Happiness (A. Toussaint)(3:58) The Pointer Sisters; 4 What You Won't Do For Love (B. Caldwell/A. Kettner)(4:44) Bobby Caldwell; 5 Heart Of Glass (D. Harry/C. Stein)(4:34) Blondie; 6 Love Machine, Pt. 1 (W. Moore/W. Griffin)(3:01) The Miracles; 7 Don't Bring Me Down

(J. Lynne) (4:02) Electric Light Orchestra; 8 Disco Inferno (L. Green/R. Kersey) (10:55) The Trammps; 9 Brooklyn Girls (R. Freeland/B. Labounty)(3:24) Robbie Dupree; 10 Return To Me (D. Di Minno/C. Lombardo)(2:24) Dean Martin; 11 The Latin One (R. Espinosa/A. Baeza/M. Lespron/E. Rodriguez/J. Salas/B. Magness)(4:40) El Chicano; 12 Just Around The Corner (H. Hancock/M. Ragin)(7:35) Herbie Hancock; 13 Donnie And Lefty (4:25).

Review: The true soundtrack to this true-life mob infiltration film is gunfire, but that doesn't play well on a CD. Instead, this is a hodgepodge of mostly danceable songs from the era of the Donnie Brasco investigation, with a few well-worn hits—Electric Light Orchestra's "Don't Bring Me Down," Blondie's "Heart of Glass," the Trammps' Saturday Night Fever hit "Disco Inferno"—and some less familiar fare, such as the Miracles' "Love Machine, Pt. 1," the Pointer Sisters' "Happiness" and Herbie Hancock's "Just Around the Corner." Ultimately, this is the kind of random collection you're better off fahgeddin' about.

Don't Be a Menace to South Central While Drinking Your Juice in the Hood

1996, Island Records; from the movie Don't Be a Menace to South Central While Drinking Your Juice in the Hood, Miramax Films, 1996.

Album Notes: Song Producers: The Rza, Mr. Sex & Buttnaked TimDawg, Tizone, Mr. Dalvin, D.J. Clark Kent, Erick Sermon, D-Flow Production Squad, R. Kelly, Joe, Lord Jamar, Mobb Deep, Frankie Cutlass, T-Mor, Sean Greene, Geary J. McDowell, Stanley Brown; Album Executive Producer: Hiriam Hicks.

Selections: 1 Winter Warz (D. Coles/E. Turner/L. Hawkins/D. Hill/C. Woods/ R. Diggs)(5:10) Ghostface Killer, Masta Killa, U-God, Raekwon & Cappadonna; 2 Renee (T. Thomas) (5:25) Blue Raspeberry; 17 Don't Give Up (S. Brown/D. Lawrence)(3:57) The Island Inspirational All-Stars, Kirk Franklin & The Family, Hezekiah Walker & The Fellowship Choir, Donald Lawrence & The Tri-City Singers, Karen Clark-Sheard.

Review: A good assemblage of contemporary R&B talent, mostly of the hip-hop variety, keeps all of its best songs bottled up here. Joe's "All the Things (Your Man Won't Do)" is a worthy hit, but the other top names—R. Kelly, Jodeci, Doug E. Fresh and Lost Boyz—come in with mediocre fare that may add some flavor to the film but doesn't make for much of a listening experience.

Double Dragon

1994, Milan Records; from the movie Double Dragon, Universal Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Jay Ferguson; Song Producers: Dobbs The Wino, Basement Boys, Michael Lattanzi, George Morel, Tolga Katas & Stevie B., Paul Scott & Sank Thompson, Graham McPherson, Kevin O.; Album Producer: David Franco; Engineer: Jeff Faustman.

Selections: 1 I Remember (A. Ivey, Jr.)(4:48) Coolio; 2 What I Need (R. Payton/D. Smith/C. Waters)(4:43) Crystal Waters; 3 Love Will Shine On Me (M. Lattanzi)(4:11) Michael Lattanzi, Crystal Tallefero; 4 I Know (M. Lattanzi/N. Kalliongis)(7:12) George Morel, Lillias White; 5 Dream About You (M. D'Allesandro/T. Oliphant/D. D'Bonneau)(4:14) Darryl D' Bonneau; 9 Starting Over (T. Swider/D. Freebairn/A. Shore/T. Lane)(5:21) D.F.M.; 10 Main Title (2:42); 11 The Tournament (2:30); 12 Huey And Lewis (1:55); 13 Monster Truck (3:35); 14 Welcome (2:43); 15 Junk Rumble (2:19); 16 The Chief Readies His Troops (2:08).

Review: Everybody has been through this scenario before: you walk into a record store's cut-out bin hoping to find a buried treasure for a cheap price. After thumbing through hundreds of titles, all you can find are some Vanilla Ice albums and several copies of Double Dragon, the lousy soundtrack to the 1994 adaptation of the popular video-game that came and went from theaters in a matter of days. Jay Ferguson composed the primarily-electronic score, which is surrounded by bubblegum tracks by the likes of Crystal Waters, Stevie B. and rapper Coolio, who performs "I Remember." To put it mildly, the music to Mortal Kombat is a bit more effective.

Andy Dursin

Dracula

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Dracula, Universal Pictures, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams.

Selections: 1 Main Title and Storm Sequence (5:08); 2 The Night Visitor (2:12); 3 To Scarborough (2:42); 4 The Abduction Of Lucy (3:34); 5 Night Journeys (5:12); 6 The Love Scene (2:04); 7 Meeting In The Cave (3:29); 8 The Bat Attack (2:46); 9 For Mina (2:15); 10 Dracula's Death (2:57); 11 End Titles (3:58).

Review: John Williams' Dracula music is highly romantic, emphasizing, as did John Badman's filmic style in this 1979 variation, the exotic sensuality of the vampire. Opening with a swelling, fully symphonic love theme, the music grasps us into its harmonic power much the way Count Dracula seduces the hapless heroine in his own hypnotic power. Eschewing the throbbing, pulse-pounding, gut-wrenching dissonances of previous Dracula scores, Williams invests into the film a sense of poignancy and lyricism that embodies the power, passion, and horror of the Dracula figure, while at the same time lending a noble sympathy to his adversaries.

Dragon: The Bruce Lee Story

1993, MCA Records; from the movie Dragon: The Bruce Lee Story, Universal Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Randy Edelman, Greig McRitchie; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineer: Elton Ahi.

Selections: 1 Dragon Theme/A Father's Nightmare (3:33); 2 Yip Man's Kwoon (2:27); 3 Lee Hoi Chuen's Love (2:09); 4 Bruce And Linda (2:44); 5 The Challenge Fight Warm-Up (2:14); 6 Sailing On The South China Sea (2:12); 7 Fists Of Fury (1:17); 8 The Tao Of Jeet Kune Do (2:15); 9 Victory At Ed Parker's (1:32); 10 Chopsaki (1:11); 11 Brandon (2:04); 12 The Mountain Of Gold (:44); 13 The Premiere Of "The Big Boss" (1:45); 14 Fighting Demons (2:36); 15 The Dragon's Heartbeat (5:09); 16 First Date (2:16); 17 The Hong Kong Cha-Cha (R. Cohen-R. Randles)(3:43) Lynn Ray, Xiao Fen Min.

Review: Dragon: The Bruce Lee Story inspired Randy Edelman to write a florid score in which the throbbing action cues (with dominant synth effects) mix with more reflective selections (played by the orchestra) intended to underscore the scenes in which Lee is seen not as an indomitable screen hero and karate expert but as the vulnerable human being he was offscreen. These last cues ("Lee Hoi Chuen's Love," "Bruce and Linda," "Sailing on the South China Sea") are by far the most revealing, as they enable the composer to show his sentimental side and come up with melodies that are quite attractive. A splendid anthem, "The Dragon's Heartbeat," first played on the piano and reprised by the full orchestra, that eventually dissolves into a pulsating rocker, sums up the general moods projected by the score. A blues ("First Date," with its faint echo of "Moonglow and Theme from Picnic") and an exotic number ("The Hong Kong Cha Cha") round up the selections.

Dragonheart

1996, MCA Records; from the movie Dragonheart, Universal Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Music Editor: Joanie Diener; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineers: Elton Ahi, Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 The World Of The Heart/Main Title (3:17); 2 To The Stars (3:11); 3 Wonders Of An Ancient Glory (2:21); 4 Einon (3:53); 5 The Last Dragon Slayer (4:00); 6 Bowen's Ride (2:33); 7 Mexican Standoff (2:20); 8 Draco (1:13); 9 A Refreshing Swim (1:25); 10 Re-Baptism (2:47); 11 Bowen's Decoy (3:22); 12 Kyle, The Wheat Boy (4:24); 13 The Connection (2:25); 14 Flight To Avalon (2:54); 15 Finale (5:28).

Review: The delightful epic fantasy score by Randy Edelman exploits the whimsical notion of a dragon slayer teaming with the last dragon to scam villagers of "protection money." At the core of the score is the bond that forms between two former mortal enemies who now must depend on each other to survive in a world that has outgrown them. Although he touches briefly on instrumentation appropriate for the era, Edelman scored the picture more as a contemporary "buddy" adventure that could be set in any era. In so doing, he breathed a dignified life into the mythical creature.

Dragonslayer

1990, SCSE Records; from the movie Dragonslayer, Paramount Pictures, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North; Orchestrations: Henry Brandt; Orchestra conducted by Alex North; Album Producers: Alex North, Len Engel; Engineer: Len Engel.

Selections: 1 Urlander's Mission (Main Titles)(2:44); 2 "No Sorcerers, No Dragons" (1:45); 3 Hodge's Death (2:15); 4 Forest Romp (1:29); 5 The Lair (1:46); 6 Valerian And Galen's Romance (1:54); 7 Tyrian And Valen Fight (2:11); 8 Jacopus Blasted (2:21); 9 Galen Jailed/Galen's Escape (1:16); 10 Ulrich's Death/Mourning (5:49); 11 Galen's Search For The Amulet (3:11); 12 Maiden Sacrifice (6:57); 13 Elspeth's Destiny/ Dragon's Scales (2:29); 14 Vermithrax's Lair/Landslide (4:29); 15 Dragon's Flight/Burning Villages (2:14); 16 The Lottery (3:14); 17 Elspeth At The Stake/Vermithrax's Triumph/ Galen's Encounter (5:46); 18 Galen's Desperation And Spirit Revitalized (1:50); 19 Eclipse/Love And Hope (2:38); 20 Resurrection Of Ulrich (2:29); 21 "Destroy That Amulet!"/Ulrich Explodes/ Vermithrax's Plunge (6:38); 22 The White Horse/Into The Sunset (End Credits)(4:30).

Review: Alex North's final entry in the epic genre is this stunningly complex, modernistic masterwork for Hal Barwood's fascinatingly cynical tale of a dragon, sorcery, and medieval corruption. I can't imagine anything more portentous than North's title music, a crushing blast of low horns, grinding, dissonant string chords and nervous piccolo exclamations, leading into a cowed, mournful low string melody for the medieval villagers struggling under the threat of the dragon Vermithrax Pejorative. North wrote a glistening series of piccolo and celeste effects for the death and resurrection of a sorcerer, two scenes that bookend the film's action, and there are disturbing, percussive passages for the dragon attacks, a religious chorale for the death of an arrogant monk, a brutal, lengthy battle cue for the hero's first confrontation with the monster, a subdued love theme, and a remarkable introduction to the film's final showdown between sorcerer and dragon, full of spine-tingling sense-of-wonder orchestrations. North adapted music from his rejected score to Stanley Kubrick's 2001 for several sequences and the overall tone and approach of both scores is quite similar. The music for the final battle with the dragon (an unusually lyrical approach to the action) went unused in the film along with a couple of other cues, but the album presents the score as composed by North. Highly recommended to fans of this composer, but North's hard-edged, tonally uncentered style may be tough to digest for the uninitiated.

The Draughtsman's Contract

1993, DRG Records; from the movie The Draughtsman's Contract, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Nyman; Featured Musicians: The Michael Nyman Band: Michael Nyman (harpsichord, piano), Alexander Balanescu, Elizabeth Perry (violin), Malcolm Bennett (bass guitar), Andrew Findon, John Harle, Ian Mitchell, Keith Thompson (saxophones, clarinets), Stave Saunders (bass trombone, euphonium), Barry Guy (double bass); Album Producer: Michael Nyman; Engineers: J. Martin Rex, Brad Grisdale, Dave Hunt, Steve Smith, Robert Zimbler.

Selections: 1 Queen Of The Night (6:11); 2 (Drawing 3) The Disposition Of The Linen (4:50); 3 Return Of Neville/Death Of Herbert/A Watery Death (3:35); 4 (Drawing 6) The Garden Is Becoming A Robe Room (6:07); 5 (Drawing 1) Chasing Sheep Is Best Left To Shepherds (2:36); 6 (Drawing 5) An Eye For Optical Theory (5:13); 7 (Death Of Neville) Bravura In The Face Of Grief (12:17).

Review: Michael Nyman's music may not be to everyone's liking, but it won't leave you indifferent. And whether you respond to it favorably or not will depend in large part on how you react to his minimalist approach to film scoring. The music, performed here by a small chamber ensemble, played an important role in this odd story about an architect working for a British lady who trades his landscaping designs for her favors. But taken on its own merits, it tends to sound dry and unattaching after a while. And when it takes, as in the last track, endless variations on the same theme, it may turn off even the most lenient listener. Not helping either is the grating sound quality of the recording.

Dream Lover

1994, Koch Screen; from the movie Dream Lover, Gramercy Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Young; Orchestrations: Pete Anthony, Christopher Young; Music Editor: John La Salandra; Orchestra conducted by Pete Anthony; Synthesizers and Percussions: Mark Zimoski; Album Producer: Christopher Young; Engineer: Rick Winquest.

Selections: 1 Dream Lover (2:40); 2 Moreland's Galloper Waltz (2:51); 3 Just For You (4:07); 4 One Last Dance (2:31); 5 Seen Before (2:09); 6 The Green Palace (1:44); 7 False Face (1:47); 8 Lena Lai (3:55); 9 Forget Me Not (3:36); 10 Black Widow (3:15); 11 Flying (4:36); 12 Dead Of Night (3:16); 13 Dream Lover's Waltz (1:34); 14 Sweet Dreams (3:34).

Review: Tubular bells over an attractive orchestral melody supported by ethereal vocalists, a quirky waltz performed by a carousel organ, and an exuberant ragtime are some of the many delights that await the listener in this soundtrack signed by Christopher Young for an erotic drama about a young architect and the emotionally unbalanced sexy woman who becomes his wife. The broad range and wide diversity of the musical cues, which also include a pseudo-oriental composition and a Parisian-styled waltz, combine to create a score which is both challenging and consistently satisfying.

1980, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Dressed to Kill, Filmways Pictures, 1980.

Album Notes: Music: Pino Donaggio; Orchestra conducted by Natale Massara; Album Producer: Pino Donaggio; Engineer: Paul Brown.

Selections: 1 The Shower (Theme from Dressed To Kill)(4:09); 2 The Museum (6:19); 3 The Note (3:18); 4 Flight From Bobbi (2:18); 5 Death In The Elevator (2:15); 6 Liz And Peter: A Romantic Interlude (1:48); 7 The Erotic Story (2:42); 8 The Transformation/The Storm/The Revelation (3:57); 9 Kate's Confession (:41); 10 The Forgotten Ring/The Murder (3:24); 11 The Cab (1:56); 12 The Asylum/The Nightmare (4:14); 13 Finale (2:30).

Review: Brian de Palma took more than a single cue from suspense master Alfred Hitchcock when he directed this stylish essay about an attractive woman with a particularly sexy disposition, who meets with a rather nasty killer in an elevator, and the high-class prostitute who finds herself accused of the murder. And while Pino Donaggio is not Bernard Herrmann, his score for the film was the perfect musical complement to De Palma's erotic visions ("The Shower," "The Erotic Story," "The Cab"). Even if "Death in the Elevator" lacks the subtle, terrifying impact of Herrmann's famous shower scene in Psycho, Donaggio's elegant and classy musical cues set this score aside and qualify it as a real winner.

Driving Miss Daisy

1989, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Driving Miss Daisy, Warner Bros. Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Hanz Zimmer; Arrangements: Hans Zimmer; Engineer: Jay Rifkin.

Selections: 1 Kiss Of Fire (L. Allen/R. Hill)(3:04) Louis Armstrong; 2 Santa Baby (T. Springer/P. Spring/J. Javitz)(3:23) Eartha Kitt; 3 Driving (6:50); 4 Home (3:23); 5 Georgia (7:55); 6 End Titles (4:51); 7 Song To The Moon (A. Dvorak)(6:05) Gabriela Benachova, Czech Philharmonic, Vaclav Neumann.

Review: The soundtrack to this Academy Award-winning film is an odd lot. First you have pop standards, Louis Armstrong doing the tango "Kiss of Fire," and Eartha Kitt singing her signature Yule song, "Santa Baby." On the other side of the spectrum, there is a long excerpt from Antonin Dvorak's "Song to the Moon," performed by the soprano Gabriela Benachova with the Czech Philharmonic. Somewhere in between are four cues from the score composed by Hans Zimmer, an effervescent synthesizer music that helps evoke this affectionate story about an elderly Southern lady and the black chauffeur who has been in her employ for years and the warm relationship that has settled between them. Surprisingly, the combination of all these elements works wonders, with the album eliciting a positive response despite its disparate components.

Drop Zone

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Drop Zone, Paramount Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer, Nick Glennie-Smith, Ryeland Allison; Orchestrations: Hans Zimmer, Nick Glennie-Smith, Ryeland Allison; Featured Vocalists: Rose Stone, Randelle K. Stainback; Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Jay Rifkin; Engineer: Alan Meyerson.

Selections: 1 Drop Zone (1:45); 2 Hyphopera (R. Allison)(1:41) Randelle K. Stainback; 3 Hi Jack (4:35); 4 Terry's Dropped Out (1:01); 5 Flashback And Fries (N. Glennie-Smith)(4:21); 6 Miami Jump (5:14); 7 Too Many Notes, Not Enough Rests (10:39); 8 After The Dub (8:07).

Review: With this energetic mix of rockin' synthesizers and orchestra, Hans Zimmer triumphs with this highly charged score for the John Badham-directed Wesley Snipes action film. There's never a dull moment. The music shifts effortlessly from the movie's thrilling guitar-driven skydiving cues ("Hi Jack") to the more poignant emotional sequences ("Terry Dropped Out"). Kudos especially to Zimmer's wonderful and humorously well-titled "Too Many Notes—Not Enough Rests," the bane of any action movie composer's existence! One of Zimmer's best works for this genre.

Dune

1984, Polydor Records; from the movie Dune, Universal Picture, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Toto; Adaptation and Additional Music: Marty Paich; Additional Orchestrations: Allyn Ferguson; The Vienna Symphony Orchestra and The Vienna Volkoper Choir, conducted by Marty Paich, Allyn Ferguson; Featured Musicians: David Paich (keyboards), Jeff Porcaro (drums, percussion), Steve Porcaro (keyboards), Mike Porcaro (bass, percussion), Steve Lukather (guitars); Album Producer: Toto; Engineers: Tom Knox, Shep Lonsdale, Al Schmitt, Tom Fletcher, Geoff Workman.

Selections: 1 Prologue (1:47); 2 Main Title (1:15); 3 Robot Fight (1:18); 4 Leto's Theme (1:43); 5 The Box (2:37); 6 The Floating Fat Man (The Baron) (1:24); 7 Trip To Arrakis (2:35); 8 First Attack (2:43); 9 Prophecy Theme (B. Eno/D. Lanois/R. Eno)(4:19); 10 Dune (Desert Theme)(5:30); 11 Paul Meets Chani (3:04); 12 Prelude (Take My Hand)(:59); 13 Paul Takes The Water Of Life (2:48); 14 Big Battle (3:06); 15 Paul Kills Feyd (1:51); 16 Final Dream (1:25); 17 Take My Hand (2:35).

Review: This is a surprisingly well-written score by the pop group Toto for the David Lynch adaptation of Frank Herbert's best-seller. Even more remarkable is the fact that this has been their only film effort. The group appears to have a real sense of what is needed in this film, though the level of their contribution against those by orchestrators/conductors Marty Paich (credited with additional music) and Allyn Ferguson, remains a mystery. As an album, Dune is a glorious blend of electronics, orchestral and choral motifs. Notable cues include the thrilling "First Attack," the mystical "Paul Meets Chani" and the finale "Take My Hand." New age artist Brian Eno contributes the "Prophecy Theme" and the two dialogue sequences don't detract from the experience.

Dying Young 🦴🦴🦴🦴🦴

1991, Arista Records; from the movie Dying Young, 20th Century-Fox, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter; Orchestra conducted by Marty Paich; Featured Musicians: Kenny G, Michael Lang (piano), Dean Parks (guitar), Jeffrey Porcaro (drums), Michael Fisher (percussion), Neil Stubbenhaus (bass), Gayle Levant (harp); Album Producer: James Newton Howard; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Theme from Dying Young (4:00) Kenny G; 2 Driving North/ Moving In (4:15) Kenny G, James Newton Howard; 3 The Clock (1:23); 4 Love Montage (2:56); 5 The Maze (2:38); 6 All The Way (S. Cahn/J. Van Heusen) (3:30) Jeffrey Osborne; 7 Hillary's Theme (3:08) Kenny G, James Newton Howard; 8 Victor Teaches Art (1:22); 9 The Bluff (:59); 10 San Francisco (2:03); 11 Victor (1:39); 12 All The Way (S. Cahn/J. Van Heusen)(5:29) King Curtis; 13 I'll Never Leave You (Love Theme)(2:55) Kenny G, James Newton Howard.

Review: For once, Kenny G's detractors will have to admit that his contribution to this film score actually enhances it. Playing in the romantic style that has insured his enormous success, Dying Young, a soap opera if there ever was one, provides the instrumentalist with the right emotional moods to express his own romanticism in a way that's extremely attractive and welcome. Much of the credit must also go to James Newton Howard, obviously inspired by this maudlin story of a doomed love affair, for which he wrote a lush series of cues, in which the dominant note is also strongly evocative of the film's main theme. The old standard, "All the Way," performed as a vocal by Jeffrey Osborne and as an instrumental by King Curtis, contributes an inspired note to this standout soundtrack album.

See: The Four Musketeers

Earthquake 🦴🦴🦴🦴

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Earthquake, Universal Pictures, 1974.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: Sonny Burke; Engineer: Mickey Crofford.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:52); 2 Miles On Wheels (2:36); 3 City Theme (2:53); 4 Something For Rosa (2:30); 5 Love Scene (2:26); 6 The City Sleeps (2:24); 7 Love Theme (2:26); 8 Cory In Jeopardy (2:23); 9 Medley: (a) Watching and Waiting, (b) Miles' Pool Hall, (c) Sam's Rescue (3:40); 10 Something For Remy (3:47); 11 Finale/End Title (1:47); 12 Earthquake: Special Effects (2:42); 13 Aftershock (:24).

Review: Before he became the uncontested champion of big orchestral scores with Star Wars in 1977, John Williams carved himself a special niche as the composer best qualified to write the music for the many disaster films which flourished in the early 1970s, including Jaws, The Towering Inferno and The Poseidon Adventure. Add to those the score he created for Earthquake, the film that saw Los Angeles disappear long before it was toast in Volcano... (or was it Dante's Peak?). In this particularly remarkable effort, Williams wrote a broad range of cues, from a tender love scene to a chase to the actual disaster. In addition, there are many other moments to enjoy in his diversified music, from a bluesy "City Theme," to a lightly jazzy "Something For Rosa," to a lusty "Love Theme." A word of warning: the last two tracks are low-rumbling recordings of an earthquake that will rattle and destroy your speakers if you play the CD too loud.

Eat Drink Man Woman

1994, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Eat Drink Man Woman, Samuel Goldwyn, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Mader; Arrangers: Mader, Hector Martignon, Sarah Plant; Featured Musicians: Wu Man (pipa, ruan), Wang Tien Jou (erhu), Cao Ying Ying (sanxian), Sarah Plant (flute), Steve Elson (saxophone, clarinet), Hector Martignon (piano), Thomas Ulrich (cello), Mario Rodriguez (bass), Armando Sanchez, Louis F. Bouzo, Joe Gonzales (percussion), Mader (marimba, keyboard), Dina Emerson (vocals); Album Producer: Mader; Engineer: Eric Liljestrand.

Selections: 1 Awake (2:32); 2 Good Morning, My Life! (1:12); 3 Mambo City (10:53); 4 The Daughter's Heart 1 (4:08); 5 Night Moon (2:41); 6 Destiny (1:54); 7 Pa's Kitchen 1 (1:09); 8 Emptiness (:58); 9 Up Or Down (:24); 10 Pa's Kitchen 2 (1:40); 11 Loneliness (:34); 12 The Banquet (1:54); 13 Pa's Secret (:46); 14 Who's With Me (3:33); 15 Kitchen Impro (1:33); 16 Darkroom (:40); 17 Revelation (:47); 18 The Daughter's Heart 2 (4:08).

Review: Absolutely nothing like what you'd expect for a film about a collision of generations in a Chinese/American household. Composer Mader has created a brilliant montage of musical styles that complement each other in a refreshing way few scores do. The album moves with a surprising ease between an authentic Chinese motif to a contemporary film cue and finally to mambo! Mader, in an act of sheer gall, composed a blues piece, "The Daughter's Heart 1," that suddenly shifts into a passage played by Chinese instruments! This is a true melting pot of world music and a delightful change of pace.

Ed Wood

1994, Hollywood Records; from the movie Ed Wood, Touchstone Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Howard Shore; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Howard Shore; Featured Musicians: Lydia Kavina (theremin), Cynthia Millar (Ondes Martenot); Album Producer: Howard Shore; Engineers: John Kurlander, Keith Grant, Gary Chester.

Selections: 1 Main Title (5:04); 2 Backlot (1:06); 3 Mr. Lugosi/Hypno Theme (1:56); 4 Beware (:56); 5 Glen Or Glenda (1:18); 6 Eddie, Help Me (1:56); 7 Elmogambo (3:20); 8 Bride Of The Monster (1:17); 9 I Have No Home (1:20); 10 Kuba Mambo (1:53); 11 Nautch Dance (1:27); 12 Angora (1:23); 13 Sanitarium (3:42); 14 Ed, Kathy (1:28); 15 Elysium (2:16); 16 "Grave Robbers" Begin (1:16); 17 Lurk Him (1:04); 18 Ed Takes Control (4:06); 19 Eddie Takes A Bow (1:00); 20 This Is The One (1:58); 21 Ed Wood (video) (3:22).

> Elliot Goldenthal
> (The Hollywood Reporter, 1-16-96)

Review: Dedicated to the memory of Henry Mancini, Howard Shore's fine score for Ed Wood brims with nostalgia. Shore perfectly captures the sonic nuances of low-budget 1950s sci-fi/monster film music, including the use of the icon of science fiction instruments, the theremin and the Ondes Martenot. His music lends an appropriate backdrop to the film's production scenes—recreations of such classic bargain-basement sci-fi as Bride of the Monsters and Plan 9 From Outer Space, the stereotypical '50s horror music—and also quotes from Tchaikovsky's 'Swan Lake" and the main title music from the original Dracula and Mummy films. In contrast a number of beat-generation jazz cues provide a contemporary mid-'50s sound, suitably thin and carrying their own sense of nostalgia and slight weirdness. More than an exercise in nostalgia, though, it's a finely crafted composition which works effectively as film music while also conveying a sort of homage to these corny yet beloved film music clichés.

The Eddy Duchin Story

1990, MCA Records; from the movie The Eddy Duchin Story, Columbia Pictures, 1956.

Album Notes: The Columbia Picture Studio Orchestra, conducted by Morris Stoloff; Featured Artist: Carmen Cavallaro (piano).

Selections: 1 To Love Again (Main Title)(based on F. Chopin's E Flat Nocturne)(M. Stoloff/N. Washington)(3:02); 2 Manhattan (R. Rodgers/L. Hart)(3:01); 3 Shine On Harvest Moon (N. Bayes/J. Norworth)(2:48); 4 It Must Be True (You Are Mine, All Mine)(G. Arnheim/G. Clifford/H. Barris) (2:26); 5 Whispering (M. Schonberger/R. Coburn/J. Schonberger)(2:57); 6 Dizzy Fingers (Z. Confrey)(2:00); 7 You're My Everything (H. Warren/J. Young/M. Dixon) (3:06); 8 Chopsticks (trad.)(2:28); 9 On The Sunny Side Of The Street (D. Fields/J. McHugh)(2:07); 10 Brazil (Aquarela do Brasil)(A. Barroso)(3:34); 11 La vie en rose (E. Piaf/Louiguy)(3:28); 12 To Love Again (Finale)((based on F. Chopin's E Flat Nocturne)(M. Stoloff/N. Washington) (3:34).

Review: The life story of sweet band pianist and conductor Eddy Duchin, portrayed by Tyrone Power, provides for a remarkably effective musical film in which the highlights are the many standards from the 1920s and '30s that Duchin performed to the great delight of high society people. Carmen Cavallaro, himself an accomplished pianist, plays these selections on the soundtrack and in this album which is consistently enjoyable, even when all that's required is background music.

Edward Scissorhands

1990, MCA Records; from the movie Edward Scissorhands, 20th Century-Fox, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek; Music Editor: Bob Badami; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker; Album Producer: Danny Elfman; Engineers: Shawn Murphy, Dennis Sands, Bill Jackson; Assistant Engineers: Sue McLean, Sharon Rice.

Selections: Part One: Edward Meets The World... 1 Introduction (Titles) (2:36); 2 Storytime (2:35); 3 Castle On The Hill (6:25); 4 Beautiful New World/Home Sweet Home (2:05); 5 The Cookie Factory (2:14); 6 Ballet de Surburbia (suite)(1:17); 7 Ice Dance (1:45); 8 Etiquette Lesson (1:38); 9 Edward The Barber (3:19); Part Two: ...Poor Edward! 10 Esmeralda (:27); 11 Death! (3:29); 12 The Tide Turns (suite)(5:31); 13 The Final Confrontation (2:17); 14 Farewell (2:46); 15 The Grand Finale (3:26); 16 The End (4:47); 17 With These Hands (A. Silver/B. Davis)(2:43) Tom Jones.

Review: The always inventive Danny Elfman surpassed himself when he wrote this brilliant score for Tim Burton's strange and poetic fantasy about a youth whose hands are scissors, and who, because of it, discovers himself a unique talent as a landscape artist. The childlike qualities in the main character, the creation of a mad scientist who dies before he has a chance to finish his work, as well as the fable-like aspects of the screenplay inspired Elfman to write cues in which the main accents evoke a wonderland where anything and everything can happen, and often does. "Storytime," in fact, sets the right musical atmosphere from the start, with the other selections detailing the strange and wonderful tale of Edward, and the problems he encounters when he attempts to enter the real world. Throughout the soft-hued score, an evanescent chorus and tinkling bells add an imaginative lilt to the cues. In this creative canvas, the only discordant note is Tom Jones' abrasive performance of "With These Hands," mercifully heard at the end, which breaks the moods established by the score.

The Egyptian

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Egyptian, 20th Century-Fox, 1954.

Album Notes: Music: Alfred Newman, Bernard Herrmann; The Hollywood Symphony Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Alfred Newman; Featured Soloist: Doreen Tryden; CD Producers: Tom Null, Robert Townson; Engineer: Michele Stone.

Selections: 1 Prelude/The Ruins/The Red Sea and Childhood/ The Nile and The Temple (6:37); 2 Her Name Was Merit (3:03); 3 The Pharaoh Akhnaton (3:51); 4 Nefer, Nefer, Nefer (7:17); 5 The Lotus Pool (3:53); 6 The Valley Of The King (5:33); 7 At The Tomb Of Amenhotep (The Great Pharaoh)(5:02); 8 The Martyrdom Of Merit (4:20); 9 The Death Of Akhnaton (4:57); 10 Horemheb, The New Pharaoh (2:21); 11 Exile And Death (1:41).

Review: In a collaborative effort almost unique in the annals of film music, two of Hollywood's greatest composers, Alfred Newman and Bernard Herrmann, wrote the glorious score for this offbeat epic drama, set 33 centuries ago, about a monotheist Pharaoh, and the physician (the "Egyptian" of the title) he befriends, a humanist with a unique vision about his own role on earth. Actually, the two composers didn't work together as each took a certain number of scenes and wrote his cues independently, but the general texture of the score belies its varied origins, and its overall excellence testifies to the professionalism of both composers who viewed the film itself as a limitless forum for musical expression. In his comprehensive liner notes, Kevin Mulhall details which tracks were composed by Herrmann and which by Newman, as well as the unusual situation that brought the two men to write this score. The recording, while appropriately spacious and grandiose, is in mono. Presumably the multi-tracks still exist at 20th Century-Fox and the day when we might hear a full stereophonic version of this great score may not be far away. In the meantime, this CD is the next best thing.

The Eiger Sanction

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Eiger Sanction, Universal Pictures, 1975.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:24); 2 Theme From "The Eiger Sanction" (2:53); 3 Fifty Miles Of Desert (2:50); 4 The Icy Ascent (3:41); 5 Friends And Enemies (3:01); 6 The Top Of The World (3:05); 7 Theme From "The Eiger Sanction" (2:09); 8 Training With George (2:13); 9 Theme From "The Eiger Sanction" (2:07); 10 George Sets The Pace (2:39); 11 The Microfilm Killing (2:04); 12 Up The Drainpipe (3:18); 13 The Eiger (2:14).

Review: This suspense film starring Clint Eastwood, as a former secret agent and avid mountain climber who comes out of retirement to handle a delicate assignment, elicited another flavorful pre-Star Wars score from John Williams. Characteristic of the composer's style at the time, the main theme from the film is a jazzy tune that swings lightly over a melodic orchestral line, and is reprised twice in stylistically different versions. The other cues detail the action in terms that embody it and at the same time provide an appealling musical program. The sound quality in this CD is not as good as it should be, with a semi-monochromatic sound and an EQ that generally lacks brightness.

8 Heads in a Duffel Bag Woof

1997, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie 8 Heads in a Duffel Bag, Orion Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Andrew Gross; Music Editor: Lee Scott; The Northwest Sinfonia, conducted by Andrew Gross; Album Producer: Andrew Gross; Engineer: John Kurlander.

Selections: 1 Orion Logo (:23); 2 Main Titles Part One (:59); 3 Main Titles Part Two/Boarding The Plane (2:43); 4 Wrong Bag (:53); 5 Arrival In Mexico (:25); 6 Rico's Threat (1:02); 7 I Didn't Really Invite You (:46); 8 Annette's Lost It (1:25); 9 Tommy Enters Fraternity (1:24); 10 Taking Out The Trash (:49); 11 Hiding The Heads (1:20); 12 Annette Looks For Heads (:41); 13 Charlie Looks For Heads (:58); 14 Laundry Room (:56); 15 Meet The Banditos (1:17); 16 Airport Security (1:12); 17 Charlie Packs Heads (1:02); 18 We've Gotta Move (1:11); 19 Laurie Bonks Annette (:44); 20 Return Of The Banditos (1:30); 21 Desert Music (2:16); 22 Tommy Counts Heads (1:58); 23 Charlie Takes Control (1:38); 24 Ska Cha Chase (2:21); 25 Tango To The End (2:05).

Review: Granted, action in comedies must be swift, and so it derives must be the music that underscores it. But this is ridiculous. Out of 25 tracks in this soundtrack album, fully 10 are under one minute of playing time, and another 11 are under two minutes. Talk about swiftness! The cues by Andrew Gross, a newcomer on the scene, don't even have the time to make any kind of impact.

1994, MCA Records; from the movie 8 Seconds, New Line Cinema, 1994.

Selections: 1 Burnin' Up The Road (T. McBride/B. Carter/R. Ellsworth)(3:41) John Anderson; 2 Pull Your Hat Down Tight (L. Storey)(2:31) Pam Tillis; 3 No More Cryin' (T. McBride/J. Leo)(3:02) McBride & The Ride; 4 Standing Right Next To Me (K. Bonoff/W. Waldman)(3:47) Karla Bonoff; 5 Ride 'Em High, Ride 'Em Low (R. Dunn)(3:23) Brooks & Dunn; 6 Just Once (D.L. Muprhy/K. Tribble)(3:00) David Lee Murphy; 7 When Will I Be Loved (P. Everly)(2:04) Vince Gill, Karla Bonoff; 8 If I Had Only Known (J. Stanfield/C. Morris)(4:01) Reba McEntire; 9 Texas Is Bigger Than It Used To Be (R. Rogers/M. Wright/J. Johnston)(4:08) Mark Chestnutt; 10 You Hung The Moon (P. Smyth/K. Savigar)(3:59) Patty Smyth; 11 Once In A While (S. Dorff/J. Bettis) (3:59) Billy Dean; 12 Lane's Theme (3:36).

Review: Some soundtrack compilations have an engaging quality that seems to come through even as you read the credits. Such is the case with this collection of country tracks, featuring some well-known and respected artists from this side of the border, which is as pleasant and entertaining as can be and which help illustrate the saga of a young and avid bronco rider, whose goal in life is to stay on the eight seconds it takes to qualify at the rodeo. Nothing fancy, just some good clean fun, and a feeling that sometimes soundtrack albums can be as uncomplicated and enjoyable as, well... riding a wild beast? In all this country charm, Bill Conti's "Lane's Theme" almost sounds like an odd intruder.

El Cid

1991, Sony Music Special Products; from the movie El Cid, M-G-M, 1961.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra of Munich, conducted by Miklos Rozsa; Album Producer: Miklos Rozsa; Engineer: Debra Parkinson.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:15); 2 Prelude (3:31); 3 Palace Music (:59); 4 Fight For Calahorra (3:37); 5 Thirteen Knights (2:33); 6 Farewell (6:27); 7 Intermezzo: El Cid March (4:04); 8 The Twins (2:25); 9 Battle Of Valencia (7:30); 10 The Cid's Death (3:09); 11 Legend And Epilogue (5:06).

Review: The superlative Koch recording, a superb recreation of the score with several previously unrecorded cues, is the current best representation of the epic music Rozsa wrote for the Samuel Bronston extravaganza, recounting the medieval tale of the Spanish hero (Charlton Heston at his dashing best) and how he defeated several centuries of dominance by the Moors. The handsome package (the booklet features profuse liner notes, including an introduction by Martin Scorsese, and many pictures from the production) is a magnificent complement to the music, delivered with the right amount of zest and enthusiasm by the New Zealand Symphony in sonics that are detailed and spacious, if at times a trifle fuzzy.

The Sony set is the actual soundtrack recording, with the composer conducting the Graunke Symphony in a spirited performance, made even more exciting thanks to the brilliant sound quality of the CD. However, while this album contains a few tracks that are not on the Koch album ("Thirteen Knights," "The Twins") it also misses quite a few others. Hopefully, Rhino, current holder of the rights to this M-G-M soundtrack, will eventually reissue it in a complete format.

The Electric Horseman

1987, Columbia Records; from the movie The Electric Horseman, Columbia Pictures, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: Dave Grusin; Orchestrations: Dave Grusin; Orchestra conducted by Dave Grusin; Album Producers: Dave Grusin, Larry Rosen; Engineers: Dan Wallin, Larry Rosen; Assistant Engineer: Ollie Cotton.

Selections: 1 Midnight Rider (G. Allman) (2:41) Willie Nelson; 2 My Heroes Have Always Been Cowboys (S. Vaughan) (3:03) Willie Nelson; 3 Mammas Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up To Be Cowboys (E. Bruce/P. Bruce) (3:27) Willie Nelson; 4 So You Think You're A Cowboy (W. Nelson/H. Cochran) (2:16) Willie Nelson; 5 Hands On The Wheel (B. Callery) (2:48) Willie Nelson; 6 Electro-Phantasma (5:00); 7 Rising Star (Love Theme) (2:32); 8 The Electric Horseman (3:42); 9 Interlude: Tumbleweed Morning (:27); 10 Disco Magic (5:00); 11 Freedom Epilogue (2:11).

Review: Grusin wrote the score, but Willie Nelson (with five songs on this album and a co-starring role in the film) gets all the credit. Actually, who should complain when the songs include "My Heroes Have Always Been Cowboys" and "Mammas Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up To Be Cowboys," two of Nelson's most popular hits. As for Dave Grusin, writing in an idiom that is closer to his own roots, he does well for himself with cues that are attractively designed and strongly evocative of the specific atmosphere of the film, a romantic comedy starring Robert Redford as an ex-rodeo champion seeking a richer and more rewarding life, and Jane Fonda as the TV reporter who comes to share his views. "Electro-Phantasma," a bouncy, jazzy tune, and "Disco Magic," Grusin's concession to the omnipresent fad at the time, are quite enjoyable. "Love Theme," in a more subtle vein, proves equally fetching.

The Elephant Man

1994, Milan Records; from the movie The Elephant Man, Paramount Pictures, 1980.

Album Notes: Music: John Morris; Orchestrations: Jack Hayes; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by John Morris; Album Producer: John Morris; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 The Elephant Man Theme (3:44); 2 Dr. Treves Visits The Freak Show And Elephant Man (4:08); 3 John Merrick And Psalm (1:16); 4 John Merrick And Mrs. Kendal (2:02); 5 The Nightmare (4:38); 6 Mrs. Kendal's Theater And Poetry Reading (1:57); 7 The Belgian Circus Episode (2:59); 8 Train Station (1:54); 9 Pantomime (2:19); 10 Adagio For Strings (S. Barber) (9:28) The London Symphony Orchestra, Andre Previn; 11 Recapitulation (5:35).

Review: A gruesome story about a man's deformity and the strange fascination he exerted on his contemporaries in Victorian England, The Elephant Man inspired John Morris to write a generally somber score, well in keeping with the nature of the drama. The horror provoked by John Merrick's appearance, his inner thoughts and his dream about having a more normal existence, are fully explored in cues in which the main theme, a wistful melody initially heard as a delicately attractive waltz, returns as an adagio filled with morose undertones. In contrast, other cues announce in a gritty, almost unbearably harsh way, the plastic carnival exuberance that marks his exhibition at various fairgrounds, the only way he could make a living. A sardonic "The Nightmare" blends both elements in a grotesque display that is both vivid and frightening. Adding a somewhat unnecessary touch to this score, strong enough to exist on its own terms, is yet another version of Samuel Barber's "Adagio For Strings," performed by the LSO and Andre Previn.

Elizabeth and Essex

1992, Bay Cities Records; from the movie The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex, Warner Bros., 1939.

Album Notes: Music: Erich-Wolfgang Korngold; The Munich Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Carl Davis; Album Producer: Paul Wing; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 Elizabeth And Essex (suite): Main Title/Narrative/March/ Shadow And Parade/The Throne Room/After Elizabeth Slaps Essex/Elizabeth And Essex (8:14); 2 The Queen (suite): The Courier/The Chess Game/Mirror Scene/ The Queen/Messenger/Poor Child (13:11); 3 Reconciliation (suite): The Hunting/Raleigh And Essex/Silver Armor/Lady Penelope/Darling/Card Game/Love Scene (11:55); 4 Ireland (suite): Council Dismissed/Love And The Ring/ Ireland/Shadow Of Penelope/Elizabeth Weeps/The Battle/The Truce (9:37); 5 Essex Returns (suite): The Palace/Queen Elizabeth/Essex Returns/Love Scene/ Arrest (10:13); 6 The Tower Of London (suite): The Tower/Cecil/Essex/Love Scene/Executioner/End Cast (12:25).

Review: Carl Davis and the Munich Symphony Orchestra conjure up all the drama and passion in Korngold's score for The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex in a recording marked by its brilliant sonics and the excellence of its performance. Instead of presenting the score as a disjointed series of short cues, the recording regroups the main themes in six long suites that follow the unfolding historical drama starring Errol Flynn as the ambitious Lord Essex, a hero in his own country after he defeated the Spaniards at Cadiz, and Bette Davis as the Queen of England, with whom Essex has an affair before she has him beheaded when she senses his real ambition is to overthrow her and seize power. Much in the line of his other swashbucklers, like Sea Hawk or Captain Blood, Korngold wrote a score that teems with gorgeous romantic melodies and rambunctious action cues. The whole brew is served with the right dose of pageantry and pathos by the orchestra, wonderfully together behind its conductor.

Emma

1996, Miramax-Hollywood Records; from the movie Emma, Miramax Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Rachel Portman; Orchestra conducted by David Snell; Featured Musicians: Hugh Webb (harp), Nick Bucknall (clarinet), Linda Coffin (flute); Album Producer: Rachel Portman; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (4:26); 2 Harriet's Portrait (1:11); 3 Sewing And Archery (3:07); 4 Frank Churchill Arrives (2:30); 5 Celery Root (2:55); 6 Mr. Elton's Rejection (1:59); 7 Emma Tells Harriet About Mr. Elton (1:06); 8 The Coles Party (3:10); 9 Mrs. Elton's Visit (1:32); 10 Emma Dreams Of Frank Churchill (:50); 11 The Dance (1:17); 12 Gypsies (:47); 13 The Picnic (2:29); 14 Emma Insults Miss Bates (2:00); 15 Emma Writes Her Diary (2:53); 16 Mr. Knightley Returns (1:58); 17 Proposal (4:22); 18 End Titles (4:21).

Review: With its deft use of classical-sounding themes, many of them crafted for a chamber ensemble in which delicate instruments like the harp, clarinet and flute play a predominant role, this magnificent score must rank among some of the best film music written last year. Composed for yet another adaptation of a Jane Austen novel (Hollywood's greatest screenwriter of late), this discriminating score is achingly beautiful, superbly nuanced, and gorgeously melodic. Heard behind the scenes on the screen, it subtly underscores the action, adding its own commentary without overstressing its presence. Isolated from the film, it stands out as a marvelous example of solid music composition, at times joyously expressive, at times compassionately poignant, but always pleasantly listenable, and constantly inventive. In other words, it's everything good film music should always be.

Empire of the Sun

1987, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Empire of the Sun, Warner Bros., 1987.

Selections: 1 Suo Gan (p.d., arr. by John McCathy)(2:19) The Ambrosian Junior Choir, John McCarthy, James Rainbird; 2 Cadillac Of The Skies (3:48); 3 Jim's New Life (2:33); 4 Lost In The Crowd (5:39); 5 Imaginary Air Battle (2:35); 6 The Return To The City (7:45); 7 Liberation: Exsultate Justi (1:46); 8 The British Grenadiers (trad.)(2:25); 9 Toy Planes, Home and Hearth (Chopin Mazurka, op. 17, No. 4)(4:37); 10 The Streets Of Shanghai (5:11); 11 The Pheasant Hunt (4:24); 12 No Road Home/Seeing The Bomb (6:10); 13 Exsultate Justi (4:59).

Review: Considered by many one of John Williams' best efforts, this striking score yielded at least two recognizable hits in the composer's canon, if not on the charts, "Cadillac of the Skies" and the anthem "Exsultate Justi." But this brilliantly colorful film by Steven Spielberg, about a young boy caught in World War II China by the Japanese invasion, inspired the composer to write a rich series of cues, highlighted by some unforgettable moments like "Jim's New Life," "Imaginary Air Battle," or the actively exotic "The Streets of Shanghai." Typical of Williams' florid style, the cues overflow with great melodic themes, excitingly expressive and wonderfully stated. One exception, however, is "The Pheasant Hunt," for percussion and ethnic instruments, which might have been very effective on the screen behind the action, but which makes no real musical statement of its own and seems a bit of a waste in the current context.

The Empire Strikes Back

1997, RCA Victor Records; from the movie The Empire Strikes Back, 20th Century-Fox, 1980/1997.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Orchestrations: Herbert W. Spencer; The London Symphony Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson; CD Producer: Nick Redman; Engineers: Michael Matessino, Brian Risner, Dan Hersch.

Selections: CD 1: 1 20th Century-Fox Fanfare (A. Newman)(:22); 2 Main Title/The Ice Planet Hoth (8:09); 3 The Wampa's Lair/Vision Of Obi-Wan/ Snowspeeders Take Flight (8:44); 4 The Imperial Proble/Aboard The Executor (4:24); 5 The Battle Of Hoth: Ion Cannon/Imperial Walkers/Beneath The At-At/Escape In The Millenium Falcon (14:48); 6 The Asteroid Field (4:15); 7 Arrival On Dagobah (4:54); 8 Luke's Nocturnal Visitor (2:35); 9 Han Solo And The Princess (3:26); 10 Jedi Master Revealed/Mynock Cave (5:44); 11 The Training Of A Jedi Knight/The Magic Tree (5:16)

CD 2: 1 The Imperial March (Darth Vader's Theme)(3:02); 2 Yoda's Theme (3:30); 3 Attacking A Star Destroyer (3:04); 4 Yoda And The Force (4:02); 5 Imperial Starfleet Deployed/City In The Clouds (6:04); 6 Lando's Palace (3:53); 7 Betrayal At Bespin (3:46); 8 Deal With The Dark Lord (2:37); 9 Carbon Freeze/Darth Vader's Trap/Departure Of Boba Fett (11:50); 10 The Clash Of Lightsabers (4:18); 11 Rescue From Cloud City/ Hyperspace (9:10); 12 The Rebel Fleet/End Title (6:28).

Review: John Williams reached the culmination of his blockbuster style with this first Star Wars sequel, which features a dizzying array of memorable themes as it underscores the dark middle section of George Lucas's space epic trilogy. Williams originally scored almost every moment of Empire, and this deluxe 2-CD set presents the entire score for the first time with amazing fidelity and showmanship. Included is a great deal of music Williams wrote for early sections of the film as action ensues on the ice planet of Hoth, and album producer Nick Redman and sequencer Mark Mattesino have ingeniously organized this music to reflect both the familiar movie editing of the music and the score as it might have been, with plenty of music that's never been released in any form. The throbbing early passages involving Luke Skywalker and Han Solo exploring on their two-legged Taun-Tauns and Williams's thrillingly sustained, agitated battle sequences dominate the first third of the album, while his delicate, exquisitely lyrical material for Yoda lends a reflective quality to the score's midsection. The heavy, percussive sounds of Bespin's carbon freeze chamber and a throbbing, dirge-like melody raise the stakes for the film's climactic sequences, with the composer at his swashbuckling best in "The Duel" and whipping up amazing drama and suspense with Luke "Losing a Hand" and barely escaping Darth Vader during the propulsive jump to "Hyperspace." You might be exhausted by the umpteenth take on "Darth Vader's Theme" by the time this is over, but Empire remains a magnificent, unforgettable epic score.

Enemies, A Love Story

1989, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Enemies, A Love Story, 20th Century-Fox, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestra conducted by Maurice Jarre; Featured Soloist: Giora Feidman (clarinet); Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Bobby Fernandez.

Selections: 1 Herman (5:24); 2 A Third Wife (5:08); 3 Tamara (4:03); 4 Kretchmar Country Club (2:43); 5 In The Wood (2:17); 6 The Rumba (2:22); 7 Masha (4:40); 8 Baby Masha (4:55).

Review: Maurice Jarre returned to a seldom explored side of his vast creative talent with this score written for Paul Mazursky's biting satire about a man, a survivor of the Holocaust, living in New York and married to three women, with all the complications this deliciously unusual situation created. As he already had demonstrated a year before in the director's Moon Over Parador, Jarre can easily handle the most spurious aspects of broad comedy, even going as far as spoofing his own style to add extra pep to his concoctions. Here, the situation enabled him to add to the mix some Jewish accents, with Giora Feidman handling the obligatory clarinet solos. Posing ever so slightly to reflect on the individual charms of the three women, as does the hero of the film, the music moves merrily into its own territory, with a "kretchmar" and a rumba among its most enjoyable side trips.

Enemy Mine

1985, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Enemy Mine, 20th Century-Fox, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The Studioorchester of Munich, conducted by Maurice Jarre; Electronic Ensemble: Michael Boddicker, Maurice Jarre, Martin Levy, Michel Mention, Kristian Schultze, Nyle Steiner; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineers: Ulrich Ullmann (electronic), Peter Kramper (orchestral).

Selections: 1 Fyrine IV (5:02); 2 The Relationship (3:55); 3 The Small Drac (2:45); 4 The Crater (2:15); 5 The Birth Of Zammis (6:14); 6 Spring (1:27); 7 The Scavengers (4:48); 8 Davidges Lineage (3:33); 9 Football Game (:44); 10 Before The Drac Holy Council (9:54).

Review: This wonderful thematic score by Maurice Jarre is cleverly sequenced like a symphonic suite so that the music evolves from a focus on electronics to acoustics. In fact, early cues in the film are also more electronic and the finale almost all orchestral. This shifting of orchestrational style allowed Jarre to play up the sci-fi aspects of the film against the emotional core of the story. Even with all the film's futuristic trappings, it still all boils down to a basic story of friendship and parental love between two who were once mortal enemies. Chiefly, Jarre used his electronics to play the alien aspects of the planet locale and the hostility between the lizard-like Draconian marooned with a human fighter pilot. The theme for the mystical Draconian religion is brought into full bloom during the finale, "Before the Drac Holy Council," through the use of an electronically augmented chorus.

The English Patient

1996, Fantasy Records; from the movie The English Patient, Miramax Films, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Gabriel Yared; Music Editor: Robert Randles; The Academy of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, conducted by Harry Rabinowitz; Featured Musician: John Constable (piano); Featured Vocalist: Marta Sebestyen; Album Producer: Robert Randles; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 The English Patient (3:30); 2 A Retreat (1:21); 3 Rupert Bear (1:22); 4 What Else Do You Love? (1:00); 5 Why Picton? (1:04); 6 Cheek To Cheek (I. Berlin) (3:15) Fred Astaire; 7 Kip's Lights (1:24); 8 Hana's Curse (2:06); 9 I'll Always Go Back To That Church (1:48); 10 Black Nights (1:53); 11 Swoon, I'll Catch You (1:47); 12 Am I K. In Your Book? (:55); 13 Let Me Come In! (2:35); 14 Wang Wang Blues (G. Mueller/H. Busse/B. Johnson) (2:47) Benny Goodman; 15 Convento di Sant'Anna (9:09); 16 Herodotus (1:04); 17 Szerelem, Szerelem (trad.) (4:32) Muszikas, Marta Sebestyen; 18 Ask Your Saint Who He's Killed (1:04); 19 One O'clock Jump (C. Basie) (3:10) Benny Goodman; 20 I'll Be Back (4:00); 21 Let Me Tell You About Winds (:55); 22 Read Me To Sleep (4:56); 23 The Cave Of Swimmers (1:55); 24 Where Or When (R. Rodgers/L. Hart) (2:14) Shepheard's Hotel Jazz Orchestra; 25 Aria from The Goldberg Variations (J.S. Bach) (2:57) Julie Steinberg; 26 Cheek To Cheek (I. Berlin) (3:42) Ella Fitzgerald; 27 As Far As Florence (5:16); 28 En Csak Azt Csodalom (Lullaby For Katharine) (trad) (1:07).

Review: Dismissing the several pop songs included in this album, which neither add nor detract from the music itself and certainly provide a period flavor, portions of this Oscar-winning score by Gabriel Yared may actually have been more effective on the screen than in this soundtrack album. One basic reason is that many of the cues, short as they are, are not sufficiently developed to really attract, and often sound unfinished. There are, of course, some happy exceptions, including a lovely "Kip's Lights," played by a romantic piano against an attractively evanescent orchestral background; "I'll Always Go Back To That Church," with its faint evocation of Italy; "Convento di Sant'Anna," a piano sonata, staid yet poetic in its subtle simplicity; and "Read Me To Sleep," another piece for piano solo that is starkly eloquent. These, and some of the other selections succeed in recreating the atmosphere that permeates this romantic drama about an amnesiac aviator and the Canadian nurse who tends to him in an old monastery in Tuscany, in the last days of World War II.

The Englishman Who Went Up a Hill But Came Down a Mountain

1995, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie The Englishman Who Went Up a Hill But Came Down a Mountain, Miramax Films, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Stephen Endelman; Orchestrations: Stephen Endelman; Orchestra conducted by Stephen Endelman; Featured Performers: Sian James (vocals), Gwalia Male Voice Choir, Giles Lewin (bagpipe, flute, pennywhistle); Album Producer: Jeffrey Kimball; Engineer: James P. Nichols.

Selections: 1 Opening Credits/English Drive (1:28); 2 Johnny's Triumph (1:51); 3 Hustle And Bustle (2:40); 4 Johnny's Barrow (1:20); 5 Never Ending Rain (:44); 6 The Brothers Tup (2:02); 7 Lovers On The Mountain (2:11); 8 Reverend Jones' Death (2:00); 9 It's A Hill (:44); 10 Villagers Begin Building (2:59); 11 The Sermon (1:50); 12 The Rain (3:37); 13 Anson And Betty (4:28); 14 Tommy Two Strokes (1:13); 15 Men Of Harlegh (1:51); 16 Ffynnon Garw (2:11); 17 Magnificent Peak (3:59).

Review: The beautifully exotic score for this film starring Hugh Grant was composed by Stephen Endelman, who is not to be confused with either Cliff Eidelman or Randy Edelman. Not that you will, once you have heard this extraordinary profuse orchestral score, subtly relying on the flute and the pennywhistle to create its own poetic atmosphere. Rooted in the English folk tradition, the themes evolve out of the orchestral texture to reveal the uncanny talent of the composer who succeeds in accenting the stronger aspects of the story, as well as evoking the raw beauty of the countryside in which it takes place. Some cues ("Never Ending Rain," "Lovers on the Mountain," "Magnificent Peak") are particularly striking, but the score as a whole is remarkably attractive.

Eraser

1996, Atlantic Records; from the movie Eraser, Warner Bros., 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Orchestrations: Williams Ross, Mark McKenzie, Conrad Pope; Music Editors: Kenneth Karman, William Kaplan; Orchestra conducted by Alan Silvestri; Album Producer: Alan Silvestri; Engineer: Dennis Sands; Assistant Engineers: Tom Hardisty, Sue McLean, Dave Marquette, Andy Bass.

Selections: 1 Eraser Original Maintitle (2:38); 2 "She's In" (6:11); 3 Kruger's Story (1:56); 4 Cabin Raid (4:41); 5 Kruger Escapes (4:23); 6 "Your Luggage" (3:18); 7 "When I Have Proof" (3:15); 8 Cyrez Break In (6:52); 9 Union Trouble (3:21); 10 Dock Fight (3:13); 11 Reunion (1:39); 12 "The Eraser" (1:45).

Review: A lackluster action film score, especially by Alan Silvestri standards. There's a sense of boredom all around here as the music just plods along. It takes until track 5, "Kruger Escapes," before there's any sign of life. The screeching guitar passages seem more necessary to keep the listener awake than serve any dramatic purpose. The main theme seems to be going somewhere, but exactly where is never clear.

Album Notes: Music: Shirley Walker, John Carpenter; Orchestrations: Lolita Ritmanis, Michael McCuistion; Music Editor: Thomas Milano; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker; Featured Musicians: Nyle Steiner (electronic valve instrument), Jamie Muhoberac (sample synthesist), Mike Watts, Shirley Walker (keyboard synthesists), Mike Fisher (electronic percussion), Tommy Morgan (harmonica), Daniel Greco (hammer dulcimer), John Goux (guitar), Nathan East (bass guitar), John Rosinson (rock drums), Tom Raney, Greg Goodall (timpani), Robert Zimmitti (Daiko drum), Endre Granat (violin), Jon Clarke (soprano oboe); Album Producer: Shirley Walker; Engineers: Robert Fernandez, Doug Botnick.

Selections: 1 Escape From New York Main Title (J. Carpenter/ A. Howarth) (2:07); 2 History Of Los Angeles (J. Carpenter/S. Walker)(2:09); 3 Snake's Uniform (J. Carpenter)(:58); 4 Submarine Launch (S. Walker)(2:36); 5 Sunset Boulevard Bazaar (S. Walker)(2:03); 6 Motorcycle Chase (S. Walker) (2:23); 7 Showdown (J. Carpenter)(1:27); 8 Beverly Hills Surgeon General (J. Carpenter/ S. Walker)(4:10); 9 The Future Is Right Now (S. Walker) (2:00); 10 Hang Glider Attack (S. Walker)(2:30); 11 The Black Box (S. Walker)(1:14); 12 Escape From Coliseum (S. Walker)(1:53); 13 Helicopter Arrival (S. Walker)(2:05); 14 Fire Fight (S. Walker)(2:49); 15 Escape From Happy Kingdom (S. Walker)(1:30); 16 Crash Landing (S. Walker)(1:38).

Review: Somewhat disappointing follow up to the delightfully minimalist score to Escape from New York. Original composer John Carpenter contributed to this effort, most notably the new Morricone-inspired theme for anti-hero Snake Plisskin. The bulk of the work was created by Shirley Walker, who scored Carpenter's also disappointing Memoirs of an Invisible Man, and uses contemporary action film orchestral and synthesizer techniques here, without making any attempt to blend her compositional style with Carpenter's (compare her "Fire Fight" with his "Showdown"). What made the first film's score so popular was that it captured Plisskin's dark, brooding personality so well. He was a bad ass with no love for a world that didn't care about him. This time, Walker and Carpenter seem hell bent on spoofing not only the entire genre of post apocalyptic films, but their own as well. They're even making fun of Kurt Russell's less than subtle Clint Eastwood-like performance of Plisskin by clearly defining the connection musically.

Review: Call it the lighter side of Close Encounters of the Third Kind, if you will, but having to deal once again with alien visitors under the aegis of film magician Steven Spielberg, John Williams wrote a score that is as exhilarating and florid as his previous score was brooding and somber. Of course, the story itself suggested as much. Instead of government agents trying to make contact with people from another planet, not knowing what their ultimate intentions might be, this time around the extra-terrestrial, stranded on Earth following a landing accident, is trying to elude government agents intent on capturing him. With the help of a little guy who captures his confidence, E.T. eventually succeeds in going back home, but not before living some rousing, unforgettable moments. Williams' score, exquisitely shaded and warmly effusive, helps give the tale an extra element of verisimilitude, with a cohesive combination of musical themes all designed to enhance the screen action.

When the film was initially released, Williams went to the studio, and rerecorded several of the themes for an album which has been in the MCA catalogue ever since, first as an LP and, since the late 1980s, as a CD. The music, focusing on the lighter cues in the score, has made many converts, with one selection in particular, "Flying," achieving the status of a popular hit.

Recently, without saying much about it, MCA has added to its catalogue a vastly expanded version of the soundtrack, which is remarkably different from the previous album. Instead of using the studio rerecording, these are the actual soundtrack cues, which have different tempi, somewhat altered orchestrations, and a greater abundance of the darker cues from the score. More profuse, and certainly truer to the music one can hear in the film itself, this album makes fewer concessions to the popular aspects of the score and gives a broader scope of Williams' actual work, a startling combination of dark and light moments, all coming together in a mesmerizing display of his creative bent. Which of the two should you get? Both, of course, as they seem to complement each other while offering slightly different takes on the same score.

NINO ROTA

Italian composer Nino Rota, best known for his prolific composition of filmscores, was also an esteemed music teacher and classical composer who worked on operas, ballets, masses, and orchestral and chamber pieces. Although he worked with several directors, he attained prominence by providing the musical scores for the most memorable films of Federico Fellini and Francis Ford Coppola.

Rota's distinctive soundtracks set the dramatic tone of more than 40 films, starting with His Young Wife in 1945. In the United States, the films that brought Rota the most exposure were Coppola's The Godfather and The Godfather, Part II. However, Fellini film enthusiasts throughout the world lauded the composer's scores for 1954's La Strada, 1960's La Dolce Vita, 1965's Juliet of the Spirits, and 1974's Amarcord.

Rota was born and raised in Milan, Italy, and was the grandson of pianist/composer Giovanni Rinaldi. At the age of eight, he began studying the piano and composing. When he was 12, he entered the Milan Conservatory and studied under Italy's most distinguished musical teachers, including Casella and Pizzetti. He later attended the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia on a special musical scholarship and studied composition with Rosario Scalero while in the United States. Upon returning to Italy, Rota resumed his studies and received an arts degree in literature from Milan University.

In 1974, Rota shared a best original dramatic score Oscar for his work with Carmine Coppola on the music to The Godfather, Part II. He continued composing soundtracks until shortly before is death in 1979.

Review: k.d. lang's songs and score (written in collaboration with Ben Mink) enhance this fantasy based on Tom Robbins' 1973 quirky cult novel, in which a virgin hippie girl with abnormally developed thumbs (ideal for hitchhiking) ends up on an Oregon ranch where the cowboys are actually cowgirls. When the dispirited girls take over the ranch, and feed some peyote to a flock of cranes, resulting in an ecological disaster, the Army decides to intervene, in a painful echo to some of the political upheavals of the late 1960s. In this bizarre topsy-turvy set-up, the score explores various styles, with some uplifting rockers among its most endearing moments. While one could dispense with the strange-sounding "Much Finer Place," "Virtual Vortex," and "Apogee," (which is mercifully short) which tie some of the selections together, the other tracks (particularly "Lifted By Love," the old-fashioned "In Perfect Dreams," or the exuberant "Don't Be a Lemming Polka") are quite enjoyable.

Everyone Says I Love You

1997, RCA Victor; from the movie Everyone Says I Love You, Miramax Pictures, 1997.

Ruby)(3:03) The Helen Miles Singers.

Review: It did make sense, of course, that Woody Allen would eventually attempt to make a film musical, and that he would call upon the services of his favorite composer, Dick Hyman, to create the original score and write the orchestrations for some of the standards heard in it. But like the "tap dancing" in "My Baby Just Cares For Me," this soundtrack album, delightful as it may be, sounds strangely out of step and out of focus. Whether it is the recording itself, oddly without much sonic definition, or the performances that fail to ignite, the result is an album that seems to promise a lot but never quite delivers. The selections include many standards from the '30s, performed by the stars of the film (including Goldie Hawn, Alan Alda and Julia Roberts), and some nifty instrumentals with Dick Hyman on piano and Woody Allen himself on clarinet.

Executive Decision

1996, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Executive Decision, Warner Bros., 1996.

Selections: 1 The Map (1:30); 2 All Aboard (5:40); 3 Drill Team (5:39); 4 Do It (2:33); 5 Pick It Up (2:31); 6 Starting Over (2:55); 7 The Sleeper (3:28); 8 The Ramora (2:19); 9 Hold It (1:58).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's spare, militaristic score for this excellent airborne nail-biter harkens back to the sound of '70s works like Twilight's Last Gleaming and The Cassandra Crossing, although the film's claustrophobic setting never really allows much opportunity to open the music up. Most of the score consists of statements of the straightforward military theme that opens the film, and there's at least one hard-charging, pulsating action cue ("All Aboard") that's similar to the composer's driving Total Recall title music. Much of the rest of the score consists of some percussive, low-key sneaking-around music as commandos infiltrate a hijacked 747 in midair. A simple, sitar-like electronic motif somewhat jingoistically portrays the Middle Eastern hijackers. The climactic action slugfest is "The Sleeper," with some harsh brass textures and a full-on attack theme as the commandos finally storm the hijackers. It's not exactly Capricorn One, but it does mark a welcome return to a grittier orchestral style for the composer.

Exit to Eden

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Exit to Eden, Savoy Pictures, 1994.

Selections: 1 Nina (3:05); 2 Shoot Out (:53); 3 Follow That Cab (1:22); 4 Goodbye Dad (:52); 5 The Arrival (1:55); 6 Eyes Straight (2:24); 7 The Temptation (2:13); 8 Fair Day (1:13); 9 Sheila In The Mirror (1:16); 10 Get With The Programme (4:11); 11 Streetscene (1:31); 12 The Bedroom (:47); 13 Elliot And Lisa (1:34); 14 Excuse Me (3:05); 15 Tommy And Sheila (1:02); 16 Careless Love (3:08); 17 Dixie Time (1:27).

Review: A kinky comedy about, of all things, sexual deviations, Exit to Eden received an amusingly provocative score from Patrick Doyle, who must have had a field day concocting this one. Driven by a central theme, "Nina," a jaunty little tune that recurs at various points, the score explores many grounds and develops in the process attractive ideas, from a wistful "The Temptation," to a mock anthem ("The Arrival"), to a delightfully well etched selection titled "Get with the Programme." The jazzy "Sheila in the Mirror" and a ragtime, "Streetscene," add a different and ultimately satisfying touch to the whole thing.

Exodus

1988, RCA Records; from the movie Exodus, United Artists, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Ernest Gold; The Sinfonia of London Orchestra, conducted by Ernest Gold; CD Producer: John Snyder; Engineer: Joe Lopes.

Selections: 1 Theme Of Exodus (2:27); 2 Summer In Cyprus (2:14); 3 Escape (1:20); 4 Ari (2:56); 5 Karen (2:00); 6 Valley Of Jezreel (4:38); 7 Flight For Survival (1:31); 8 In Jerusalem (3:38); 9 The Brothers (1:12); 10 Conspiracy (3:00); 11 Prison Break (3:24); 12 Dawn (4:04); 13 Flight For Peace (1:25).

Review: The fervently grandiose theme Ernest Gold wrote for this recounting of the events that led to the creation of the state of Israel somehow captures the breadth and scope of the historical facts, but dwarfs in the process his other cues for the film. It must be said that the huge popularity of the theme, which was "covered" by every instrumental group and soloist around the world when it was first created, also turned it into a musical saw that overstayed its welcome. The score received the Oscar in 1960, besting such heavy contenders as Dimitri Tiomkin's The Alamo, Elmer Bernstein's The Magnificent

Seven, and Alex North's Spartacus, which probably were more worthy. Certainly, one cannot deny the raw power behind the bombastic cues written by Gold, though the score as a whole seems most effective in its quietest moments ("Karen," "In Jerusalem," "Dawn"). The recording, sloppily remastered, evidences some hiss, a huge amount of reverb, and a rather harsh sound that is not very conducive for repeated listening.

Exotica

1994, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Exotica, Alliance Films, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Mychael Danna; Featured Musicians: Amenee Shishakly (clarinet), Ron Korn (flute), Hovhaness Tarpinian (tar), Aruna Narayan Kalle (sarangi), Nabil Saab (oud), Kamel Saab (darabukha), Adel Saab (tambourine), Paul Intson (bass guitar), Rakesh Kumar, Annie Szamosi, Garo Tchaliguian, Harrison Kennedy (voices); Album Producer: Mychael Danna; Engineers: Gaurav Chopra (Bombay), Paul Intson.

Selections: 1 Exotica (3:43); 2 Something Hidden (2:46); 3 Dilko Tamay Huay (b. Swaroop Rahi)(5:26); 4 Field 1, Field 2 (2:28); 5 Pagan Song (3:43); 6 The Kiss (1:33); 7 Inside Me (4:31); 8 My Angel (1:33); 9 A Little Touch (3:23); 10 Field 3 (3:14); 11 Snake Dance (6:04); 12 Field 4 (2:15); 13 Mujay Yaad (5:07); 14 The Ride Home (3:54).

Review: Winner of the International Critics' Prize at Cannes, this minor essay from Canadian filmmaker Atom Egoyan explores the lower depths of human sentiments in a drama that is set for the most part in a seedy strip joint, and ultimately doesn't prove very interesting. The chilling, depraved atmosphere that pervades the film got a boost from Mychael Danna's score, in which exotic Middle-Eastern instruments add a rather mysterious touch. Still, when it comes to listening to this CD on its own terms, the music sounds rather tepid and fails to attract, in a clear demonstration that not all film scores lend themselves to the soundtrack album treatment.

Explorers

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Explorers, Paramount Pictures, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 The Construction (2:25); 2 Sticks And Stones (2:03); 3 No Air (2:24); 4 The Bubble (1:43); 5 First Flight (2:45); 6 Free Ride (3:33); 7 Fast Getaway (4:47); 8 She Likes Me (2:28); 9 Have A Nice Trip (7:54); 10 All Around The World (2:18) Robert Palmer; 11 Less Than Perfect (4:06) Red 7; 12 This Boy Needs To Rock (3:57) Night Rider.

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's score for this underrated Joe Dante fantasy is perfect, surging with boyish optimism as its pulsing chords and infectiously good-natured melodies underscore the efforts of three socially-misfit young boys to construct their own spaceship (with the help of a little alien technology). Although not as audacious as Dante's Gremlins, Explorers is more heartfelt, juggling the director's satiric sensibilities (mainly expressed by a bizarre rockabilly theme for some pop culture-obsessed extraterrestrials) with an honest and moving sense of youthful excitement at the wonders of the universe and the thrill of staying up past your bedtime. The cues involving the building and flight of the spacecraft ("Construction," "First Flight" and "No Air") pump as much adrenaline as Goldsmith has ever pumped, particularly as the latter cue launches with a spine-tingling synthesized choir and no-nonsense brass over busily churning strings and woodwinds. Goldsmith developed most of the score from a five note motif for the alien technology, including a lovely romantic motif for the film's wonderfully optimistic denouement of the boys flying through a dream-like nocturnal cloudscape.

Extreme Measures

1996, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Extreme Measures, Castle Rock Entertainment, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek, Edgardo Simone, Mark McKenzie; Music Editor: Ellen Segal; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producers: Danny Elfman, Ellen Segal; Engineers: Andy Bass, Patricia Sullivan.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:29); 2 Hard Guys (2:40); 3 Cokie (2:24); 4 Dumped (1:17); 5 The Descent (6:38); 6 Tough News (2:40); 7 Hope?/Fey (4:24); 8 Elevator Madness (2:29); 9 Epilogue/End Credits (4:32).

Review: This score is both a surprising and refreshing change of pace for Danny Elfman. As the first bars of the "Main Title" play, you'd never guess this is the work of the same man who composed Batman or Beetlejuice. The film, a murder mystery dealing with the subject of human experimentation by a prominent physician, motivated Elfman to paint on a more mature musical canvas. Although he still uses a chorus of voices similar to those in Edward Scissorhands, the effect here is anything but whimsical. They sing a litany for the souls losing their lives in the name of medical progress. The rest of the score is deliciously dark, a concoction of somber motifs filled with a woeful marriage of strings, piano, rolling drums, and a smattering of creative percussion. Elfman has definitely become more proficient as a film composer.

Extreme Prejudice

1992, Intrada; from the movie Extreme Prejudice, Tri-Star Films, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton, Alexander Courage; The Hungarian State Opera Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Arrivals (5:19); 2 Cash (7:28); 3 The Set-Up (3:21); 4 Dust (4:16); 5 Identities (1:48); 6 Extreme Prejudice (2:13); 7 The Plan (9:22); 8 To Mexico (3:05); 9 No Friendlies (2:40); 10 They Didn't Care (3:39); 11 The Funeral (2:07); 12 A Deal (4:41).

Review: This unusual techno-western score is a strange mix of Goldsmith's brassy Capricorn One-style atmosphere, some of the electronicized South American feel of Under Fire, and a whole lot of drum machines. There are some extended action sequences that are developed in almost lyrical fashion, and the back end of the album boasts a pretty over-the-top synthesized take-off of Ennio Morricone's familiar spaghetti western motif from The Good, the Bad and the Ugly. More effective is an atmospheric, vaguely militaristic solo trumpet effect echoing over the proceedings. This is a transitional score that marks Goldsmith's early foray into electronics, and thus may be less appealing to those weaned on his grittier orchestral efforts of the '60s and '70s. Fans of the composers later works might find it more appealing.

Eye of the Panther/ Not Since Casanova

1996, Prometheus Records; from the movies Eye of the Panther, and Not Since Casanova.

Album Notes: Music: John Debney; Orchestras conducted by John Debney; Album Producer: Ford A. Thaxton; Engineer: James Nelson.

Selections: EYE OF THE PANTHER: 1 In The Fields/Hunter (3:32); 2 Children In The Wilderness (1:36); 3 A Panther Watches (1:07); 4 The Candle Expires/The Ravaging (3:03); 5 Escape (1:06); 6 The Meeting (1:27) 7 Love Grows (1:01); 8 Strange Yearning (2:19); 9 Love Theme (2:12); 10 Transformation (1:32); 11 A Wolf In Her Clothes (1:02); 12 A Love Beyond Words (2:03); 13 Beware, She Bites (2:15); 14 A Panther Strikes/Resurrection (2:10); NOT SINCE CASANOVA: 15 Overture (4:50); 16 Dreams (1:16); 17 First Kiss (1:27); 18 Gina, The Dream Girl (1:24); 19 How To Put It Into Words (2:04); 20 At Sunset (1:08); 21 Will You Walk With Me? (3:17); 22 Irish Wedding (1:05); 23 Dreams Fulfilled (1:27); 24 The Carousel Of Life (2:15).

Review: Two soundtracks could not be more different, yet both reveal facets of a composer who has recently made himself more and more visible in a crowded field. Eye of the Panther, Dabney's first full "horror score," was created for a television film about a young woman who turns into a panther at night. It was written for a large chamber orchestra, an unusual style in itself. Not Since Casanova, composed for a little-seen independent film, elicited a gentle, romantic score with baroque overtones. In both cases, Dabney asserts himself as an interesting composer, whose talent is undeniable but who has done much better since these early efforts.

The Fabulous Baker Boys

1989, GRP Records; from the movie The Fabulous Baker Boys, 20th Century-Fox, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Dave Grusin; Orchestra conducted by Dave Grusin; Featured Musicians: Ernie Watts (saxophones), Sal Marquez (trumpet), Lee Ritenour (guitar), Brian Bromberg (bass), Harvey Mason (drums); The Duke Ellington Orchestra, conducted by Mercer Ellington; The Benny Goodman Quartet: Benny Goodman (clarinet), Teddy Wilson (piano), Lionel Hampton (vibraphone), Gene Krupa (drums); The Earl Palmer Trio: Karen Hernandez (piano), Ernie McDaniels (bass), Earl Palmer (drums); Album Producers: Dave Grusin, Joel Sill; Engineer: Don Murray; Assistant Engineers: Mike Kloster, Tom Nellen, Rick Winquest.

Selections: 1 Main Title (Jack's Theme) (6:39); 2 Welcome To The Road (5:32); 3 Makin' Whoopee (W. Donaldson/G. Kahn) (3:08) Michelle Pfeiffer; 4 Suzie And Jack (4:58); 5 Shop Till You Bop (4:44); 6 Soft On Me (2:29); 7 Do Nothin' Till You Hear From Me (E.K. Ellington/B. Russell) (3:25) The Duke Ellington Orchestra; 8 The Moment Of Truth (3:54); 9 Moonglow (W. Hudson/E. DeLange/I. Mills) (3:25) The Benny Goodman Quartet; 10 Lullaby Of Birdland (G. Shearing) (2:29) The Earl Palmer Trio; 11 My Funny Valentine (R. Rodgers/L. Hart) (3:01) Michelle Pfeiffer.

Review: Michelle Pfeiffer slinking her way across the top of a grand piano, while warbling a sexy rendition of the old chestnut "Makin' Whoopee," is the image most filmgoers remember from this mildly entertaining romantic comedy. Otherwise, this rather conventional story, about two brothers who hire an attractive vocalist to give more pep to their lackluster lounge act, had its moments of fun but ended up being relatively tame in the end. Echoing the moods in the film, Dave Grusin wrote a score that had its moments, though his contribution fell somewhat short of his usual best. The choice cuts here, as in the film, are the vocals by Pfeiffer, deliciously wanton, and source music by Duke Ellington and Benny Goodman.

Face/Off

1997, Hollywood Records; from the movie Face/Off, Paramount Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: John Powell; Orchestrations: Bruce Fowler, Suzette Moriarty, Ladd McIntosh, Walt Fowler, Lucas Richman, Steve Fowler; Music Editor: Sally Boldt; Orchestra conducted by Lucas Richman; Featured Musicians: Michael Fisher (live percussion), Bob Daspit, Geoff Zanelli (guitars), Craig Hara (trumpet), Martin Tillmann (electric cello); Featured Performers: Boston Baroque Orchestra & Chorus; Album Producer: Hans Zimmer; Engineer: Alan Meyerson.

Selections: 1 Face On (4:58); 2 80 Proof Rock (4:29); 3 Furniture (7:12); 4 The Golden Section Derma Lift (3:15); 5 This Ridiculous Chin (6:52); 6 No More Drugs For that Man (7:28); 7 Han's Loft (3:37); 8 Ready For The Big Ride, Bubba (3:54).

Review: John Powell, scoring his first major film under the aegis of Hans Zimmer, created an unusual series of cues for this thriller starring John Cage as a crime-driven maniac, and John Travolta as a FBI agent trying to nab him. When he finally does, the movie is only halfway through, because Cage's demented brother now threatens to blow up the entire city of Los Angeles, and Travolta, in order to prevent the disaster, takes on Cage's persona, physical as well as psychological, while Cage becomes Travolta. Adding his support to the unusual story, Powell has devised textures that emphasize its various aspects, with heavy emphasis on electronic and live percussion to create a greater sense of urgency. It works terrifically well in the movie, but not, unfortunately, as just film music. Occasionally, when the melodic content in the cues is allowed to develop and be heard, then the soundtrack album becomes lyrical and most effective. Those moments, however, are rare and infrequent.

The Falcon and the Snowman

1985, EMI Manhattan; from the movie The Falcon and the Snowman, Orion Pictures, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Pat Metheny, Lyle Mays; Orchestrations: Pat Metheny, Lyle Mays; Featured Performers: The Pat Metheny Group; Album Producers: Pat Metheny, Lyle Mays; Engineer: Marcellus Frank.

Selections: 1 Psalm 121/Flight Of The Falcon (4:08); 2 Daulton Lee (5:56); 3 Chris (3:16); 4 "The Falcon" (4:59); 5 This Is Not America (P. Metheny/L. Mays/D. Bowie)(3:53) David Bowie; 6 Extent Of The Lie (4:15); 7 The Level Of Deception (5:45); 8 Capture (3:57); 9 Epilogue (Psalm 121)(2:14).

Review: It is, in a sense, unfortunate that Pat Metheny has not written more frequently for the screen. This fine effort for a real-life Cold War thriller set in the world of computers and drugs, gave him the impetus to create with Lyle Mays a score that is genuinely affecting and exciting. True to their jazz roots, there is plenty of great music, performed by the Pat Metheny Group, in tracks that do not necessarily try to match the screen action, but that constitute the substance for an intelligent, highly enjoyable album. A vocal by David Bowie, "This Is Not America," adds an extra dimension, consistent with the tone of the rest of the music.

The Fall of the Roman Empire

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Fall of the Roman Empire, PC Films, 1964.

Album Notes: Music: Dimitri Tiomkin; Lyrics: Paul-Francis Webster; Music Editor: George Korngold; Orchestra conducted by Dimitri Tiomkin; Album Producer: Irving Townsend; Engineer: Robert Jones; CD Producers: Tom Null, Richard Kraft.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:40); 2 The Fall Of Love (2:33); 3 Lucilla's Sorrow (1:45); 4 Ballomar's Barbarian Attack (1:37); 5 Morning (1:03); 6 Profundo (2:32); 7 Notturno (1:58); 8 Pax Romana (bolero) (5:15); 9 The Prophecy (1:05); 10 Persian Battle (2:01); 11 Dawn Of Love (2:20); 12 The Roman Forum (4:35); 13 Addio (1:55); 14 Tarantella (2:15); 15 Resurrection (2:53); 16 The Fall Of Rome (2:08).

1991, Cloud Nine Records; from the movie The Fall of the Roman Empire, PC Films, 1964.

Selections: 1 Fanfares and Flourishes (:51); 2 Prelude (2:42); 3 Dawn On The Northern Frontier (2:17); 4 Livius' Arrival (1:02); 5 Old Acquaintances (4:31); 6 Pax Romana (5:12); 7 The Dawn Of Love (2:19); 8 Decoy Patrol (:57); 9 The Battle In The Forest/Reinforcements (3:49); 10 The Funeral Of Marcus Aurelius (2:32); 11 The Roman Forum/By Jove and Intermission Title (5:24); 12 Intermezzo: Livius and Lucilla (2:17); 13 Conflict In The Caverns (1:45); 14 Aftermath and Journey To Rome (2:27); 15 The Army Enters Rome/The New God/The Challenge (4:03); 16 Finale (2:08).

Review: Dimitri Tiomkin, delving into an area that seemed exclusive to Miklos Rozsa, came up with a sensational epic score for this Samuel Bronston monumental screen extravaganza about the glory that once was Rome. With its spectacular scenes of red-capped legions parading or going to war, its grander-than-life sets, and the majestic sweep of its three-hour story of greed and the abuse of power in ancient Rome, the film needed a score that matched its scope. Tiomkin obliged, writing one of his most memorable efforts. At the time of its release, a somewhat simplified soundtrack album was issued by Columbia Records, consisting of some of the most important cues from the film that had been rearranged for the album. This is the album that was eventually reissued on compact disc by Varese-Sarabande.

The Cloud Nine album, on the other hand, contains the actual film tracks (some unfortunately in mono only), which supplement Tiomkin's rerecording and add to it many cues that had been omitted. Put together, both albums provide a broad picture of the composer's intents, notably revealing that, unlike the scholarly research done for such films as Quo Vadis or Ben-Hur by Rozsa, who included many reconstructed Roman instruments to give his musical cues the sound of authenticity, Tiomkin was more interested in writing a music that matched the sweep of the screen action, regardless of the period feel (the organ which broadly announces the "Overture," for instance, is a modern creation). Just the same, his score is a splendid effort, one that can sustain repeated playings and provide many hours of listening enjoyment.

The Fan

1996, TVT Records; from the movie The Fan, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Orchestrations: Bruce Fowler; Music Editor: Adam Smalley; Orchestra conducted by Harry Gregson-Williams; Featured Musicians: Steve Erdody (cello), Bob Daspit (guitars), Martin Tillman (electric cello); Score Producers: Hans Zimmer, Adam Smalley, Ryeland Allison; Engineer: Alan Meyerson.

Selections: 1 Did You Mean What You Said (Sovory/M. Antoine/M. Mishaw) (3:49) Sovory; 2 Letting Go (T. Trent D'Arby/H. Zimmer)(5:35) Terence Trent D'Arby; 3 Unstoppable (M. McDermon/P. Phillips)(3:47) Mic Geronimo; 4 Hymn Of The Big Wheel (R. Del Naja/G. Marshall/A. Vowles/N. Cherry/H. Andy) (6:35) Massive Attack; 5 (Let Me Up) I've Had Enough (K.W. Shepherd/M. Selby/J. Nadeau)(2:44) Kenny Way Shepherd; 6 Little Bob (S. Ryder/D. Saber/ P. Leveridge)(5:36) Black Grape; 7 Border Song (Holy Moses)(E. John/B. Taupin)(3:37) Raymond Myles; 8 What's Goin' Down (M. Elliss/S. Wright/I. Dury/C. Jankel)(4:19) Honky; 9 Deliver Me (M. Brooks/D. Blanes)(3:58)Foreskin 500; 10 Forever Ballin' (J. Jackson/T. Himes)(4:25)Johnny "J", Big Syke; 11 I'm da Man (Jeune/Shiro)(5:24) Jeune; 12 Sacrifice (H. Zimmer) (19:09).

Review: An unmemorable baseball film starring Robert De Niro and Wesley Snipes, The Fan yielded a "soundtrack" album in which undistinguishable selections by Sovory, Mic Geronimo, Honky, and Jeune (some of which actually were not even heard in the film, but are added here in a deceptive ploy to beef up the album) vie for the listener's attention with songs by Terence Trent D'Arby ("Letting Go"), Massive Attack ("Hymn of the Big Wheel"), and a 19 minute-plus instrumental ("Sacrifice"), composed by Hans Zimmer. Not enough to satisfy one's appetite, particularly at today's rates.

Fantasia

1990, Disney Records; from the animated feature Fantasia, Walt Disney Films, 1940.

Album Notes: Orchestra conducted by Leopold Stokowski; Album Producer: Ted Kryczko; Sound Restoration: Terry Porter; Engineer: Mel Metcalfe.

Tchaikovsky): 2 Dance Of The Sugar Plum Fairy (2:41); 3 Chinese Dance (1:02); 4 Dance Of The Reed Flutes (1:48); 5 Arabian Dance (3:18); 6 Russian Dance (1:04); 7 Waltz Of The Flowers (4:25); 8 The Sorcerer's Apprentice (P. Dukas)(9:17); 9 The Rite Of Spring (I. Stravinsky)(22:28).

CD 2: Symphony No. 6 ("Pastoral"), Op. 68 (L. Van Beethoven): 1 Allegro ma non troppo (4:40); 2 Andante molto mosso (6:23); 3 Allegro/Allegro/ Allegretto (10:57); 4 Dance Of The Hours (from "La Gioconda")(A. Ponchielli)(12:13); 5 A Night On Bald Mountain (M. Mussorgsky)(7:25); 8 Ave Maria, Op. 52 No. 6 (F. Schubert)(6:27).

Review: Classical music as the ultimate film score, and for an animated feature no less! But when Leopold Stokowski, ever the pioneer, and Walt Disney teamed to create Fantasia, with scenes based on the classical repertoire, this meeting of minds resulted in a breakthrough film which, even today, stands as the most perfect of its kind, even though it met with less than enthusiastic response when it was initially released. The choice of selections, drawing from the compositions most likely to elicit a nod of recognition even from the uninitiated, can hardly be faulted. And even if Stokowski's playing is not to everyone's taste, his flamboyant style comes excitingly through in the most memorable moments from the film, particularly Paul Dukas' The Sorcerer's Apprentice, Modeste Mussorgsky's Night On Bald Mountain, and everyone's favorite, Amilcare Ponchielli's Dance Of The Hours, which proved that even hippopotami could make gracile ballerinas. The soundtrack, available here in primitive-sounding stereo, was re-recorded in full digital sound in 1982 with Irwin Kostal conducting the orchestra, but since the new recording attempted to match Stokowski's tempo, it often sounds stilted and unexciting. The original, warts and all, is the one to have.

Far and Away

Selections: 1 County Galway, June 1892 (1:55); 2 The Fighting Donellys (2:18) The Chieftains; 3 Joe Sr.'s Passing/The Duel Scene (4:41); 4 Leaving Home (1:55); 5 Burning The Manor House (2:43); 6 Blowing Off Steam (1:31); 7 Fighting For Dough (2:02) The Chieftains; 8 Am I Beautiful? (3:38); 9 The Big Match (5:56); 10 Inside The Mainsion (4:24); 11 Shannon Is Shot (4:06); 12 Joseph's Dream (3:08); 13 The Reunion (3:50); 14 Oklahoma Territory (2:12); 15 The Land Race (4:56); 16 Settling With Steven/The Race To The River (4:08); 17 Joseph And Shannon (3:14); 18 Book Of Days (Enya/R. Ryan)(2:53) Enya; 19 End Credits (6:35) The Chieftains.

Review: For this grand and glorious story of love and life from Ireland to Oklahoma, John Williams has provided a rich, tender yet often thunderous score drawn from Irish folk styles. The Main Theme evokes the plaintive, Irish countryside as much as the boundless Oklahoma plains. It also embodies the proud, resistant spirit of Joseph (Tom Cruise) and of Shannon (Nicole Kidman), as well as eloquently evoking the love the two of them share. It's a grand, sweeping theme that mirrors the intensity of the human spirit depicted in the film. Williams superbly captures both the large scope of the picture as well as the characters' innermost feelings and brings them both to life with this excellent score.

A Far Off Place

1993, Intrada Records; from the movie A Far Off Place, Walt Disney/Amblin Entertainment, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Frank Bennett, Brad Dechter, Tom Pasatieri, Joel Rosenbaum; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (5:17); 2 The Slaughter (4:35); 3 The Elephant (5:06); 4 Attacked From The Air (3:43); 5 Gemsbock Gift (2:14); 6 The Swamp (3:46); 7 Sandstorm! (6:58); 8 Death In The Mine (2:48); 9 Epilogue/End Credits (5:40).

Review: A Walt Disney family adventure set in Africa, about two orphaned teens and their Bushman guide making their way back to civilization, A Far Off Place received a broad, symphonic score from James Horner, evidently inspired by the subject matter. The cues overflow with colorful, dynamic accents, sometimes subtly underscored by a variety of exotic-sounding percussive instruments, sometimes framing the contribution of a lonely reed. The lengthy playing time of some of the cues enables them to make more than a passing impression, in effect forcing the listener to become involved and enjoy the music for its own sake. There is a lot to like in this score, which incidentally eschews the facile ethnic effects in favor of a more complex but ultimately more rewarding orchestral approach, with selections like "The Elephants," "Sandstorm," or "Death in the Mine," inviting repeated playing.

Faraway, So Close

1994, SBK Records; from the movie Faraway, So Close, Sony Pictures Classics, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Laurent Pettigrand; Orchestra conducted by Sherry Bertram; Featured Soloists: David Darling (cello), Irene Maas (soprano); Album Producer: Gareth Jones; Engineer: Gareth Jones.

Selections: 1 Faraway, So Close (3:56) Nick Cave; 2 Stay (Faraway, So Close!)(6:06) U2; 3 Why Can't I Be Good (4:22) Lou Reed; 4 Chaos (4:51) Herbert Groenemeyer; 5 Travelin' On (3:49) Simon Bonney; 6 The Wanderer (5:16) U2, Johnny Cash; 7 Cassiel's Song (3:36) Nick Cave; 8 Slow Tango (3:29) Jane Siberry; 9 Call Me (4:08) The House of Love; 10 All God's Children (4:42) Simon Bonney; 11 Tightrope (3:18) Laurie Anderson; 12 Speak My Language (3:36) Laurie Anderson; 13 Victory (4:06); 14 Gorbi (2:51); 15 Konrad 1st Part (1:56); 16 Konrad 2nd Part (3:41); 17 Firedream (3:01); 18 Allegro (3:27); 19 Engel (4:44); 20 Mensch (1:38).

Review: Wim Wenders is a filmmaker who uses music to both amplify and to inspire his visuals. This time he weaves Celtic and mostly moody selections into the mix, leaning on artists such as U2, Nick Cave, Simon Bonney and Laurie Anderson, each of whom contribute two selections. U2's pair—"Stay (Faraway, So Close)" and "The Wanderer" with Johnny Cash—also appear on the group's own "Zooropa" album, but sound fine in this context. First-rate contributions from Lou Reed and House of Love are valuable additions to an exceptional effort.

A Farewell to Arms/ Sons and Lovers

1996, DRG Records; from the movies A Farewell to Arms, David O. Selznick/ 20th Century-Fox, 1957; and Sons and Lovers, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Mario Nascimbene; Orchestrations: Mario Nascimbene; Orchestras conducted by Franco Ferrara, Mario Nascimbene; Album Producers: Mario Nascimbene, Claudio Fuiano; Engineer: Gianni Mazzarini.

Selections: A FAREWELL TO ARMS: 1 Main Titles (2:35); 2 March Of The Alpini (2:13); 3 At The Front: Death Of Sgt. Passini (1:15); 4 First Encounter Of Henry And Catherine (3:20); 5 Feast At The Village For The Departure (1:35); 6 Love Encounter At Piccolo Hotel (10:14); 7 Retreat At Caporetto (9:26); 8 Henry's Escape (3:42); 9 Escape To The Lake and Arrival In Switzerland (4:38); 10 Peaceful Life (2:13); 11 Waiting For Little Catherine (3:33); 12 Foreboding (1:34); 13 Catherine's Death and Finale (2:52);

SONS AND LOVERS: 14 Main Titles (1:34); 15 Encounter With Myriam (2:57); 16 The Mine's Tragedy (2:16); 17 Love Scene (1:08); 18 Night Of Love and Finale (4:07).

Review: If you can live with the degraded sonics in this recording with flutters, distortions, and a harsh, grating sound apparent on most of the tracks, there is a lot to be enjoyed in these two scores from the fertile pen of Italian master Mario Nascimbene. For David O. Selznick's brilliant treatment of the Hemingway novel, starring Rock Hudson and Jennifer Jones as the star-crossed lovers caught on the Italian war front in the last brutal days of World War I, Nascimbene wrote a score that mixes both aspects of the drama—the war effort and the lovers' passion—in cues that teem with romantic themes and heroic echoes. The lovely tune, a waltz, that marks the lovers' first encounter and follows them through their idyll and unhappy ending, has justifiably become a favorite theme among fans of film music, and is heard here in several variations. Sons and Lovers, a drama set in the bleak north countryside of England, elicited from Nascimbene a score that contrasts the grim aspects of the story and the environment with cues that sometimes affect a jaunty lilt. Sound quality here is also a problem, with heavy hiss on the tracks, some distortion, and an occasional dropout.

Fargo/Barton Fink

1996, TVT Records; from the movies Fargo, Gramercy Pictures, 1996; and Barton Fink, 20th Century-Fox, 1991.

Selections: FARGO: 1 Fargo, North Dakota (2:49); 2 Moose Lake (:41); 3 A Lot Of Woe (:54); 4 Forced Entry (1:23); 5 The Ozone (:58); 6 The Trooper's End (1:04); 7 Chewing On It (:54); 8 Rubbernecking (2:06); 9 Dance Of The Sierra (1:25); 10 The Mallard (1:02); 11 Delivery (4:48); 12 Bismark, North Dakota (1:05); 13 Paul Bunyon (:34); 14 The Eager Beaver (3:14); 15 Brainerd, Minnesota (2:41); 16 Safe Keeping (1:45);

BARTON FINK: 17 Fade In (1:08); 18 Big Shoes (1:33); 19 Love Theme (1:21); 20 Barton In Shock (1:58); 21 Typing Montage (2:12); 22 The Box (3:06); 23 Barton In Flames (:58); 24 Fade Out/The End (3:37).

Review: The nostalgic accents of a fiddle permeate the soundtrack to Fargo, a rural crime drama in which a car salesman, over his head in debts, hires two inept ex-cons to kidnap his wife, hoping to extract the ransom money from his father-in-law. However, the well laid plan unravels hopelessly after one of the cons kills a state trooper who had stopped the pair on a minor infraction. While most of the cues Burwell wrote for the film capture the drama-in-the-making, the moods struck are very sullen and grave, and fail to actually communicate the dark humor in the story itself, which made the film so disarmingly funny despite the seriousness of the storyline.Barton Fink, also produced by Joel and Ethan Coen, makers of Fargo, elicited a score that seems more in keeping with the light, eccentric moods in this story of a Broadway playwright whose success takes him to Hollywood, despite his hatred for the medium. Soon, however, Fink (played in tortured fashion by John Turturro) has become implicated in a series of murders, and that's only the beginning... The few cues assembled here give an excellent impression of Burwell's surrealist music for the film, with the composer adding his pianistic touch to the proceedings. Enjoyable through and through.

Fatal Attraction

1987, GNP Crescendo Records; from the movie Fatal Attraction, Paramount Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Electronic Ensemble: Michael Boddicker, Ralph Grierson, Rick Marvin, Judd Miller, Alan Pasqua, Emil Richards, Nyle Steiner, John Van Tongeren; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: 1 Fatal Attraction; 2 Following Dan; 3 Madness; 4 Where Is Ellen; 5 Beth; 6 Confrontation.

Review: Electronic score by Maurice Jarre starts off well enough with its pleasant main theme, but it quickly degrades by track two into a collection of uninteresting effects and several tumults of noise. Much of the electronic instrumentation sounds dated just ten years later, making it hard to believe it's not a score for a direct-to-video independent film instead of one of Paramount Pictures' biggest box office hits. Poorly packaged CD uses art from initial LP release and lists only six tracks on the back cover while player counts off 14!

Father of the Bride

1991, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Father of the Bride, Touchstone Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Music Editor: Katherine Quittner; Orchestra conducted by Alan Silvestri; Album Producer: Alan Silvestri; Engineers: Dennis Sands, Bob Fernandez, Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:36); 2 Annie's Theme (:48); 3 Drive To Brunch (1:40); 4 Snooping Around (:46); 5 Pool Cue (1:00); 6 $250 A Head (:22); 7 Annie Asleep (:48); 8 Basketball Kiss (:51); 9 The Wedding (1:10); 10 Snow Scene (1:21); 11 Nina At The Stairs (:33); 12 The Big Day (1:00); 13 Annie At The Mirror (1:05); 14 Pachelbel Canon (4:46) The Baroque Chamber Orchestra, Ettore Stratta; 15 The Way You Look Tonight (J. Kern/D. Fields)(3:05) Steve Tyrell; 16 My Annie's Gone (:45); 17 The Way You Look Tonight (reprise)(2:00); 18 End Credits (3:10).

Review: Alan Silvestri's sugar-coated score for this 1991 Steve Martin remake of the classic Spencer Tracy film is good fun, thanks to a memorable main theme and a brief collection of tracks that range from introspective and touching to downright jazzy and off the wall. Varese's album also contains Pachelbel's "Canon" and a cover of "The Way You Look Tonight" by Steve Tyrell, which is also interpolated quite nicely with Silvestri's score as the music comes to a close. Many of the tracks are short and the thematic development of the musical material is, subsequently, fairly limited, but this is a pleasant album as far as it goes, and if you've seen and enjoyed the movie, you'll probably want the soundtrack as well.

1995, Hollywood Records; from the movie Father of the Bride, Part II, Touchstone Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Orchestrations: William Ross; Music Editor: Andrew Silver; Album Producer: Alan Silvestri; Engineer: William Ross.

Selections: 1 Give Me The Simple Life (R. Bloom/H. Ruby)(3:16) Steve Tyrell; 2 Annie Returns (:47); 3 Jubilant George (3:56); 4 The Way You Look Tonight (J. Kern/D. Fields)(4:32) Steve Tyrell; 5 New Baby Suite (1:19); 6 At Last (H. Warren/M. Gordon)(2:59) Etta James; 7 When The Saints Go Marching In (trad.)(2:25) Fats Domino; 8 Summer Montage (1:41); 9 George Walks (3:14); 10 Remembering Annie (Basketball Montage)(:47) Randy Waldman, Phillip Ingram (vocal); 11 We're Having A Baby (1:45); 12 Rush Down Corridor (1:30); 13 George Tells A Story (5:26); 14 On The Sunny Side Of The Street (D. Fields/J. McHugh)(2:53) Steve Tyrell; 15 End Credits Suite (2:58).

Review: As uncomplicated as the first score, yet equally melodic and occasionally jazzy, Father of the Bride, Part II does not break any new grounds, but is enjoyable in its own right. Steve Tyrell is back on board for another round of classic standards ("Give Me the Simple Life," "The Way You Look Tonight," "On the Sunny Side of the Street"), with Etta James and Fats Domino also on hand for a couple of tunes, including the always rousing "When the Saints Go Marching In." If any real criticism can be leveled against it, it would have to be about the short playing time of some of the cues (:47 for "Annie Returns," not long enough for any theme to make any kind of impression), but the overall balance tips toward the positive. So, play it and have a good time.

Fearless Woof

1993, Elektra Records; from the movie Fearless, Warner Bros., 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Featured Artists: Kronos Quartet, Dumisani Maraire (ngoma/hosho), Dawn Upshaw (soprano).

Selections: 1 Max (M. Jarre)(:53); 2 Mai Nozipo (Mother Nozipo)(D. Maraire)(6:56) Kronos Quartet; 3 Polymorphia (K. Penderecki)(11:46) National Philharmonic Orchestra, Leonard Slatkin; 4 Sin Ella (Gipsy Kings)(3:57) Gipsy Kings; 5 Fearless (M. Jarre)(3:33); 6 Symphony No. 3 (H. Gorecki)(26:26) Dawn Upshaw, London Sinfonietta, David Zinman.

Review: Multiple Oscar-winning film composer Maurice Jarre is credited with writing the score for this film starring Jeff Bridges. You wouldn't know it from listening to this "soundtrack album" which features two of his cues for a total playing time of four minutes, in addition to long selections from other recordings of modern classical music already available elsewhere on the Elektra label. Unfortunately, this is as misleading as can be, with fans of Jarre and of film music the losers in this dishonest, mindless exploitation.

Feast of July

1995, Angel Records; from the movie Feast of July, Touchstone Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Zbigniew Preisner; Orchestra conducted by Zdzislaw Szostak; Album Producer: Geoffrey Alexander; Engineer: Kirsty Whalley; Assistant Engineer: Toby Wood.

Selections: 1 Winter: Burial/Flashback (4:24); 2 Spring: The Present/ Bella And Con (5:24); 3 Summer: The Harvest/Arch Wilson (4:34); 4 Will You Marry Me? (2:01); 5 The Murder (4:12); 6 Autumn: Con's Vision (1:48); 7 Con's Death (3:45); 8 End Credits: Departure For Ireland (7:41); Harvest Dances (R. Portman): 9 Corn Riggs (1:21); 10 Harvest Waltz (1:28); 11 Haste Of Wedding (1:29).

Review: Characteristic of the Merchant Ivory productions, this slick late 19th-century period drama about a young woman, seduced and abandoned by a married man, and rescued in her hour of need by a kindly couple and their three sons, elicited a flavorful, very restrained score by Zbigniew Preisner, dominated by solo passages for a variety of instruments like the harp, guitar, flute and piano. While the cues are presented in a haphazard order and do not entirely follow the progression of the screen action, they have also been assembled in four distinctive parts, each part representing a season, a satisfying device that strengthens the overall musical picture and gives it a sharper focus. There are many lovely moments in the score, further enhanced by the addition of three short folk-themed "Harvest Dances," composed by Rachel Portman. A rich, satisfying score.

Fedora

1989, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Fedora, United Artists, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Miklos Rozsa; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: Hans Endrulat.

Selections: FEDORA: 1 Prelude and Fedora Appears (1:14); 2 The Island (2:48); 3 Dejected (1:05); 4 Rain (4:37); 5 Souvenir de Corfu (1:25); 6 Always The Actress (4:18); 7 Discovered (1:29); 8 Disappointed (1:00); 9 No Escape (1:52); 10 The Oscar (4:00); 11 Search In The Villa (7:04); 12 Fedora's Daughter (1:18); 13 Butcher! (3:05); 14 Star Mother (1:06); 15 Metamorphosis (:50); 16 Deception (3:00); 17 Escape (2:27); 18 Finale (1:31);

CRISIS: 19 Introduction (1:12); 20 March Of The Revolution (1:01); 21 Village Square (3:42); 22 Fandango (1:20); 23 La carta de Rehen (1:18); 24 Finale (1:06).

Review: This limited edition CD offers the last score composed by Miklos Rozsa, for a film by Billy Wilder starring William Holden, Marthe Keller and Henry Fonda, in which the basic themes are the evanescence of youth, the destructive power of beauty, and the romance of a bygone era—the golden days of Hollywood. These moods suggested to the composer a score in which his own romantic leanings and sensitive writing share the scene in a kaleidoscopic display. This is a rare and beautiful example of the composer's creativity, further enhanced with the addition of his guitar suite for Crisis.

Selections: 1 On To Washington (2:45); 2 Ellie's Theme (1:30); 3 The Bank (2:19); 4 You Have The Right To Remain Silent (:45); 5 Main Goal (J.L. Walker) (3:43) Joe Louis Walker; 6 Exam Cram (:26); 7 Let's Kick Butt (2:48); 8 All Lips 'n Hips (C. Blomquist)(4:05) Electric Boys; 9 Lights Are On But Nobody's Home (G. Goldberg)(3:12) Roy Gaines, Barry Goldberg; 15 Ain't No Piece Of Cake (1:33); 16 Flunking Out (:50); 17 On The Move (1:30); 18 Final Assault (1:25); 19 Graduation (1:20).

Review: Randy Edelman, in one of his early efforts, made a good impression with this colorfully inventive score for a low-key comedy about female agents of the FBI, and the havoc they create when they take over a case. The themes, many in an attractive contemporary mold, make little demands on the intellect but are listenable and quite enjoyable in their own right. Some vocal selections alter the focus of the recording at various points, and prove less addictive than the instrumental score.

Kenner) (2:59) Guy; 7 Raining Like Magic (Raffi)(4:19) Raffi; 8 Some Other World (B. Roberts/E. John)(4:42) Elton John.

Review: Characteristic of some recent soundtracks, Ferngully... The Last Rain Forest (an animated feature with a message—the protection of the rainforests) elicited two different releases, one for the score by Alan Silvestri, the other compiling some of the pop songs heard during the course of the action, sometimes in much abbreviated form. The good news here is that the song album is a first-class compilation, bringing together several frontline performers for some decidedly enjoyable results, including Robin Williams, who does a hilarious "Batty Rap," Johnny Clegg, Tone-Loc, Sheena Easton, and Elton John, particularly effective in the inspirational "Some Other World."

The score album, featuring the music of Alan Silvestri over the varied sounds of a rain forest (birds chirping, a rainfall, thunderstorm), is appropriately atmospheric, with many dynamic elements ("Skylarking," "Crysta's Journey," "The Grotto Song") that enliven it and provide the musical enjoyment. With its careful dosage of big orchestral riffs and effective synthesized sounds, it stands out as a very attractive effort.

A Few Good Men

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Mark McKenzie, Hummie Mann; Music Editor: Curtis Roush; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producers: Marc Shaiman, Hummie Mann; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: 1 Code Red/Semper Fidelis (J.P. Sousa)(2:13); 2 Kaffe (2:17); 3 Facts And Figures (1:56); 4 Guantanamo Bay (2:48); 5 Hound Dog (J. Leiber/M. Stoller)(2:51) Willie Mae ''Big Mama'' Thornton; 6 Plea Bargain (2:19); 7 Trial And Error (3:33); 8 Pep Talk (3:18); 9 Honor (3:49); 10 Stars And Stripes Forever (J.P. Sousa)(2:07).

Review: A striking murder trial set in a military compound, A Few Good Men is a provocative film starring Tom Cruise and Demi Moore charged with the prosecution of two marines accused of killing a cadet, only to discover that a high-ranking officer, played by Jack Nicholson, might have been actually responsible. Contrasting the potent elements in this courtroom drama, Marc Shaiman created a score that is surprisingly melodic and low-key. While some ominous undertones announce the trial itself, and the potential dangers in probing too deeply into the killing, the lovely floating chords used by Shaiman seem to contradict, yet reinforce the moods in the film itself. A performance of "Hound Dog" by Big Mama Thornton, while a part of the soundtrack, seems totally unnecessary to the dramatic development of the score itself.

The Field

1991, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Field, Avenue Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; The Irish Film Orchestra, conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Musician: Liam O'Flynn (Uilleann pipes); Album Producer: Cynthia Miller; Engineer: Brian Masterson.

Selections: 1 The Land (5:43); 2 The Bird (2:19); 3 To The Field (4:58); 4 Stranger (3:46); 5 Auction (2:11); 6 Revelation (5:08); 7 Killing (2:59); 8 The Widow And The Dance (1:51); 9 Questions (2:33); 10 Caravan (1:31); 11 The Church (1:55); 12 Discovery (2:59); 13 The Cliffs And The Sea (3:16); 14 Credits (3:33).

Review: A film which took as its background the difficult existence of poor Irish farmers in the 1920s and '30s, The Field presented an artistic challenge to composer Elmer Bernstein about what he calls in his notes to this album "the necessity of making a decision about the degree to which the 'language' of the music should contain ethnic elements." To this end, he judiciously chose to use the evocative Uilleann pipes to convey the moods and feelings characteristic to the film's setting, and added to them subtle electronic effects and the specific sound of the Ondes Martenot, on which he has been increasingly relying in recent years, to delineate the brooding drama about an Irish farmer who obstinately attempts to keep a sterile piece of land from the American developer who wants to buy it. The end result is a generally brooding score occasionally marked by some lovely melodies ("To the Field") and haunting effects ("Auction"), a deft blend that ultimately proves most endearing.

1989, RCA/Novus Records; from the movie Field of Dreams, Universal Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie, James Horner, Billy May; Music Editors: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Featured Musicians: Tommy Tedesco, Ian Underwood, Ralph Grierson, Tim May, Steve Schaeffer, Neil Stubenhaus, Jim Thatcher, Mike Taylor, Tony Hennigan; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 The Cornfield (5:34); 2 Deciding To Build The Field (5:51); 3 Shoeless Joe (2:14); 4 The Timeless Street (2:38); 5 Old Ball Players (2:44); 6 The Drive Home (2:13); 7 Field Of Dreams (3:30); 8 The Library (2:29); 9 "Moonlight" Graham (2:03); 10 Night Mists (4:19); 11 Doc's Memories (3:17); 12 The Place Where Dreams Come True (9:06); 13 End Credits (4:07).

Review: One of James Horner's most poignant, lyrical and haunting compositions to date, Field of Dreams is one of those soundtracks that you'll find in even the libraries of the most casual "pop music" collector. Everybody who hears it just seems to like it. In this score, Horner works his magic through the mystical tones of the film's nostalgic piano beginning and Big Band section (arranged by Billy May, who worked with Horner a number of times during this period), never overplaying his hand before the film's climax, which culminates in a fugue for the brass section and orchestra that signals the cyclical nature of the film's theme of father and son, of one family generation crossing over into the next. It's a lovely section of music that is alluded to only briefly in the music before, and also one of Horner's best—its usage in numerous televised sports programs and news features since then is clearly a testament to the score's continued popularity with listeners of all musical persuasions.

Fierce Creatures

1997, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Fierce Creatures, Universal Pictures, 1997

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 Willa's Theme (2:10); 2 First Day (1:17); 3 Chores (2:17); 4 To The Zoo (2:07); 5 The Funeral (2:33); 6 Trained Seals (1:55); 7 Under Control (2:30); 8 Contact (1:27); 9 A Good Idea (2:13); 10 The Grave (2:04); 11 A Long Story (2:25); 12 You're Fired (2:07); 13 End Credits (3:34).

Review: For this low-key comedy effort (a sequel to the much more effective and enjoyable A Fish Called Wanda) Goldsmith wrote one of his better comedy scores, a blend of amiable, low-key jazz elements and some surprisingly affecting romanticism that thankfully avoids over-emphasizing the comic aspects of the story. There's a bouncy, light quality to many of the cues that's quite infectious, and some surprisingly lyrical moments as Goldsmith underscores some outlandish animal acts. It all adds up to a score that, while not one of Goldsmith's more memorable efforts, still makes for a very enjoyable listening experience on its own.

55 Days at Peking

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie 55 Days at Peking, 1963.

Album Notes: Music: Dimitri Tiomkin; The Sinfonia Of London, conducted by Dimitri Tiomkin; CD Producers: Tom Null, Richard Kraft; Engineer: Michele Stone.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:53); 2 Main Title (3:02); 3 Welcome Marines (1:54); 4 Hotel Blanc (2:23); 5 Explosion Of The Arsenal (2:40); 6 Natasha's Waltz (2:18); 7 The Peking Theme (So Little Time)(D. Tiomkin/P.F. Webster) (2:27); 8 The Peking Theme (So Little Time)(D. Tiomkin/P.F. Webster)(2:45) Andy Williams; 9 Children's Corner (1:37); 10 Moon Fire (5:45); 11 Attack On The French Legation (3:17); 12 Death Of Natasha (2:48); 13 Help Arrives (2:49); 14 End Title (1:35).

Review: A spectacular epic adventure, recounting the 1900 Boxer Rebellion against the major powers established in China at the time (England, France, Germany, and the United States among them), accused of crass commercialism and of exploiting the Chinese, 55 Days at Peking elicited a vibrant score from Dimitri Tiomkin in which heroic accents and romantic themes vie to draw the listener into their attractive musical web. In typical Tiomkin fashion, the cues that are strongly evocative of the screen action ("Explosion of the Arsenal," "Attack on the French Legation") come off best, with layers upon layers of orchestral riffs building up to a climax. However, the tension in those tracks is pleasantly relieved by some exquisite romantic cues ("Natasha's Waltzes," "Children's Corner") that are equally evocative. Andy Williams' perfunctory rendition of "The Peking Theme" is a dispensable filler. The recording, incidentally, is extremely noisy—a problem that exists on the original tapes, and not exclusively on this CD.

Final Analysis

Selections: 1 Final Analysis Front Titles (2:38); 2 I Had The Dream Again (:38); 3 The Rain's Stopped (3:34); 4 Do It (1:51); 5 The Day Lighthouse (3:07); 6 The Murder (2:07); 7 The Courtroom (2:46); 8 The Tea Room (2:35); 9 The Switch (2:24); 10 The Bay Marina (2:09); 11 The Kidnap (1:05); 12 The Night Lighthouse (5:48).

Review: A surprisingly effective old-fashioned thriller, Final Analysis brought together Richard Gere, as a San Francisco psychiatrist, and Kim Basinger, as the married sister of one of his patients with whom he has an affair, and who eventually disposes of her husband in order to marry him. The film, which at times evokes such classic thrillers as The Maltese Falcon and Vertigo, not surprisingly inspired George Fenton to write a vivid score neither Miklos Rozsa nor Bernard Herrmann would have disavowed. Boldly affirmative and muscular for the most part, it follows the narrative with pungent cues that set the tone for much of the screen action, underscoring it or subtly reinforcing it when the need arises. Among its many convincing moments, "The Rain's Stopped," "The Tea Room," "The Bay Marina," and the chilling "The Murder," particularly stand out.

The Final Conflict

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Final Conflict (The Last Chapter in The Omen Trilogy), 20th Century-Fox, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Lionel Newman; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Len Engel.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:22); 2 The Ambassador (4:45); 3 Trial Run (2:10); 4 The Monastery (3:13); 5 A TV First (2:45); 6 The Second Coming (3:16); 7 Electric Storm (5:17); 8 The Hunt (3:58); 9 The Blooding Reel (3:32); 10 Lost Children (3:40); 11 Parted Hair (6:30); 12 The Iron (2:18); 13 The Final Conflict (3:40).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith wrapped up his Omen trilogy with this spectacular work, his equivalent of a biblical epic. Although it continues the Latin chants and evocative choral effects of the first two Omen scores, The Final Conflict develops entirely new melodic material, from an imposing horn theme for the adult Damien Thorn (based on a motif from Prokofiev's Alexander Nevsky) to a beautiful pastoral melody for the forces of good as they gather to battle Damien's hordes for the fate of mankind. If only the movie had been as spectacular and gripping as the score. The sheer scale of this work easily ranks it as one of the landmarks in Goldsmith's career. Check out the climactic cue, which underscores nothing less than the second coming of Christ! There are also amazingly powerful cues written for a fox hunt and a mystical conjunction of stars. It's the ultimate soundtrack guilty pleasure, a score that evokes the final conflict between good and evil far more convincingly than the film for which it was written.

Firestarter

1984, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Firestarter, Universal Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Tangerine Dream; Album Producers: Tangerine Dream.

Selections: 1 Crystal Voice (3:07); 2 The Run (4:50); 3 Testlab (4:00); 4 Charly The Kid (3:51); 5 Escaping Point (5:10); 6 Rainbirds Move (2:31); 7 Burning Force (4:17); 8 Between Realities (2:26); 9 Shop Territory (3:15); 10 Flash Final (5:15); 11 Out Of The Heat (2:30).

Review: Typical of Tangerine Dream, the score for Firestarter, a film about a little girl with pyrokinetic powers, is an amalgam of attractively designed synth figures, laid over a rhythm track, that are fairly evocative. Unlike some of their most adventurous works, however, their music here is accessible, with melodic themes that develop along conventional lines, adding layers upon layers of ideas that prove enjoyable in a purely musical context.

The Firm

1993, GRP Records; from the movie The Firm, Paramount Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Dave Grusin; Orchestra conducted by Dave Grusin; Album Producers: Dave Grusin, Joel Sill; Engineer: Don Murray; Assistant Engineer: Michael Kloster.

Selections: 1 The Firm Main Title (3:48); 2 Stars On The Water (R. Crowell) (3:15) Jimmy Buffett; 3 Mitch And Abby (2:22); 4 M-O-N-E-Y (L. Lovett) (3:15) Lyle Lovett; 5 Memphis Stomp (3:36); 6 Never Mind (H. Howard) (3:42) Nanci Griffith; 7 Ray's Blues (4:33); 8 Dance Class (A. Narell) (5:46) Dave Samuels; 9 The Plan (4:43); 10 Blues: The Death Of Love And Trust (3:11); 11 Start It Up (R. Ford) (3:43) Robben Ford, The Blue Line; 12 Mud Island Chase (3:53); 13 How Could You Lose Me?/End Title (3:39).

Review: Dave Grusin wrote one of his most unusual scores for this contemporary drama starring Tom Cruise, with Jimmy Buffett, Lyle Lovett and Dave Samuels among the performers who also contributed their talent to the soundtrack. While he expresses himself in the jazz style that has been his mainstay for many years, Grusin does so here in unadorned piano solos that are particularly affecting and create a definitely unique atmosphere.

First Blood

1990, Intrada; from the movie First Blood, Carolco Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Allan Snelling.

Selections: 1 Home Coming (2:21); 2 Escape Route (2:39); 3 First Blood (4:36); 4 The Tunnel (4:02); 5 Hanging On (3:29); 6 Mountain Hunt (6:06); 7 My Town (1:55); 8 The Razor (3:08); 9 No Power (2:51); 10 Over The Cliff (2:03); 11 It's A Long Road (2:51); 12 It's A Long Road (J. Goldsmith/H. Shaper) (3:19) Dan Hill.

Review: Birthplace of all the main themes for Jerry Goldsmith's mainstream megahit was Rambo: First Blood Part II, but with a more human element present than the bombastic superhero-style score of the sequel. There's also a distinct sense of sadness in First Blood, personified by the principle theme song, "It's a Long Road." The lyrics are an analogy for the difficulties Vietnam veterans faced while they tried to reassimilate back into society. Although Rambo seeks peace, he is a trained fighter who can explode when pushed too far. Goldsmith's music, likewise, can launch from a pleasant refrain into a flurry of brass. His trademark use of electronic textures serves him well as a means of heightening the tension. The album also includes Dan Hill's vocal version of "It's a Long Road."

First Knight

1995, Epic Sountrax/Sony Music; from the movie First Knight, Columbia Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick; Assistant Engineer: Sue McLean.

Selections: 1 Arthur's Fanfare (:46); 2 Promise Me (4:06); 3 Camelot (2:20); 4 Raid On Leonesse (4:28); 5 A New Life (4:56); 6 To Leonesse (3:27); 7 Night Battle (5:40); 8 Village Ruins (3:21); 9 Arthur's Farewell (5:27); 10 Camelot Lives (5:42).

Review: If you can accept Richard Gere as Sir Lancelot you'll be more than willing to take Goldsmith's lush, glitteringly romantic take on the Camelot legend, brimming with large-scale, old-fashioned action cues and fulsome pomp-and-circumstance involving Sean Connery's King Arthur and the glory of Camelot itself. There's a ringing fanfare for Arthur and a Tristam-and-Isolde-style romantic theme that's drenched in hopeless longing. Everything climaxes in a furious choral cue that should bring back fond memories of Goldsmith's Omen scores as the forces of good and evil battle for the future of Camelot, and Goldsmith's epic eulogy for the dying Arthur is one of the most moving pieces of music the composer has produced in a long time. Overall First Knight stands as a slightly more intelligent take on his earlier approach to the medieval adventure Lionheart, and while it may strike some as too traditional in its approach, it will probably be exactly what fans of the composer's recent work are looking for.

First Men in the Moon

1991, Cloud Nine Records; from the movie First Men in the Moon, Columbia Pictures, 1964.

Album Notes: Music: Laurie Johnson; Orchestra conducted by Laurie Johnson; Album Producer: David Wishart.

Selections: 1 Prelude (1:59); 2 Modern Moon Landing (1:53); 3 Newscasters/ Union Jack/Journey To Dymchurch (2:02); 4 Cherry Cottage/Kate And Bedford (3:08); 5 Arguments (1:25); 6 Cavor's Experiments (4:45); 7 The Sphere (1:14); 8 Love Theme (2:41); 9 To The Moon (2:22); 10 Lunar Landing/ Moonscape/ Weightlessness/Planting The Union Jack (1:33); 11 Lens Pit/ Shadows (1:56); 12 Battle With The Selenites (2:15); 13 Search For The Sphere/Kate In Peril (3:52); 14 The Moon Beast (4:20); 15 Lens Complex/ Dismantling The Sphere/ Cocooning Selenites/The Eclipse (3:05); 16 End Of The Eclipse/The Grand Lunar (3:41); 17 Bedford Shoots At The Grand Lunar (1:28); 18 Pursuit And Escape From The Moon/End Title (2:06).

Review: Though thoroughly outdated by the time it was released in 1964, a few years ahead of Neil Armstrong's first walk on the lunar surface, First Men in the Moon, based on H.G. Wells' 1901 novel, is an engrossing space adventure, featuring the wonders of Ray Harryhausen's dynamation skills. The story, slyly brought to the mid-century with the first moon exploration, circa 1964, finding evidence that a previous, unheralded expedition took place at the turn of the century, required a score that would all at once have elements of thrill and romance, something Laurie Johnson provided with accomplished skill. The romantic aspects of the story are detailed in the cues that evoke the turn-of-the-century escapade, with themes that are wonderfully explicit and descriptive. Conversely, for the Moon sequences, the composer devised cues that are more monothematic, using woodwind and brass instruments playing in their nethermost registers, to the exclusion of strings. The combination of both makes for a very unusual, comprehensive score that remains pleasantly attractive when removed from its primary function. Unfortunately, this thin-sounding, mono recording doesn't give a flattering image of the composer's achievements, and proves at times less endearing than it could have been.

The First Wives Club

1996, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The First Wives Club, Paramount Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian, Frank Bennett, Pat Russ, Brad Dechter, Jon Kull; Music Editors: Nic Ratner, Nicholas Meyers; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane, Edward Karam; Album Producer: Marc Shaiman; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Cynthia (2:14); 2 Annie (:46); 3 Elise (:48); 4 Brenda (:45); 5 Bad News (:51); 6 Wham, Bam, Divorce Me Ma'am (1:23); 7 Letter To Three Wives (1:55); 8 The First Wives Club (1:48); 9 Gathering Information (1:54); 10 Setting Up Shop (1:10); 11 Tea Time With Gunilla (2:51); 12 Duarto Makes His Entrance (:40); 13 The Big Break In (5:18); 14 Phone Tag (1:00);

15 The Auction (1:58); 16 Operation Hell Hath No Fury (4:45); 17 The Unveiling (:56).

Review: A stinging social comedy about three married women jilted by their respective husbands who organize a "club" and seek revenge, The First Wives Club was scored by Marc Shaiman who developed a series of cues which match the biting tone of the story and display fun touches of their own. First drawing a portrait of the three heroines – Elise (played by Goldie Hawn), Brenda (Bette Midler), and Annie (Diane Keaton) – Shaiman let the storyline dictate where his music would interfere most effectively, and his cues, as a result, are representative of the unfolding screen action. It is not very difficult to follow the progression as the three abandoned wives agree to create the club, and go into action in order to repay in kind the men who have treated them so badly. All along, Shaiman keeps his score with tongue firmly in cheek with cues that provoke the listener while they recall the film's best scenes. Amusingly entertaining, the music is a total delight.

A Fish Called Wanda

Selections: 1 End Titles (3:16); 2 Main Title (2:33); 3 First Encounter With Otto (:27); 4 Robbery (2:25); 5 George Arrested (1:12); 6 Empty Safe (:46); 7 Wanda Meets Archie (:36); 8 Otto Jealousy (:40); 9 Sword Ballet (:50); 10 Humping (2:07); 11 Wanda Visits Archie At Home (2:14); 12 Assassination 1 (:20); 13 Choir Boys (:24); 14 Wanda Meets Archie At Flat 1 (1:12); 15 Assassination 2 (:40); 16 Wanda Meets Archie At Flat 2 (1:40); 17 Assassination 3 (:53); 18 Ken's Sadness (:44); 19 Chase 1 (1:32); 20 Chase 2 (2:36); 21 A Fish Called Wanda Suite (14:55).

Review: It matters little if this album is rather oddly sequenced (where else but in a Monty Python album would you find the "End Titles" as the first track?), what counts here is the music. John Du Prez, who has written the scores for several Python films, has created a quirky series of cues, propelled by an omnipresent electronic beat in which guitarist John Williams brings a definitely different flavor. Some tracks ("First Encounter with Otto," "Wanda Meets Archie," "Otto's Jealousy") are meant to underscore specific moments in the film, and as such make less of an impression as pure musical statements. But the longer selections, capped by a long suite, reflect the specific flavor of the zany comedy with the suite essentially reprising the main themes into a long orchestral elaboration. The suite, incidentally, is in effect track 23 (and not 21 as indicated on the backtray information) and lasts 16:55 minutes (not 14:55). Bet you anything that these Python guys were again responsible for that snafu!

The Fisher King

1991, MCA Records; from the movie The Fisher King, Tri-Star Pictures, 1991.

Selections: 1 Intro: The Jack Lucas Radio Show (:11); 2 Chill Out Jack (C. Samrai/R. Williams/P. Harvey/J. Templeton)(2:45) Trip; 3 Pet Peeves (:31); 4 I'm Sorry (R. Self/D. Allbritten)(2:24) Brenda Lee; 5 Sunrise Confession (1:24); 6 The Power (B. Benitez/J. Garrett III/Toni C./R. Frazier/M. James)/ Sign Off (5:53) Chill Rob G; 7 I Wish I Knew (H. Warren/M. Gordon)(4:53) John Coltrane; 8 How About You (B. Lane/R. Freed)(4:18) Harry Nilsson; 9 The Grand Central Waltz (2:15); 10 The Story Of The Fisher King (2:49); 11 Jack Meets Perry (4:19); 12 Everything's Coming Up Videos ("Some People/ Rose's Turn")(J. Styne/S. Sondheim)(1:21) Michael Jeter; 13 An Evening Out/Lydia, The Tattooed Lady (H. Arlen/E.Y. Harburg)(4:52) Robin Williams; 14 Quest For The Grail (3:02); 15 The Red Knight Suite (6:48); 16 How About You (B. Lane/R. Freed)(2:47).

Review: Despite a preponderance of pop songs on this typically song-oriented soundtrack, we are given a good 20 minutes of George Fenton's contemporary mix of classical music and moody jazz to convey the varied personalities housed within Terry Gilliam's unusual exploration of the thin line between reality and fantasy. The score's standout cue, at almost seven minutes, is the introspective "Red Knight Suite," which offers a contrast to the bristling action cues heard previously. A jazzy trumpet over electric guitar speaks quietly while suggesting a contemporary, urban milieu, while a Morricone-esque harmonica lends an effective counterpoint. The cue moves quickly into the fantastic with the entry of a choir overdriving string and horn figures. The choir supports the film's Grail-like sense of Quest, and the cue builds to a ferocious climax before dissolving, leaving only a stately, classical string motif which heralds a return to normalcy, to sophistication, after our dalliance with fantasy. The assembly of the CD, its first half an attempt to mimic the style of a live radio broadcast with shock-jock introductory patter, may not appeal to those interested only in Fenton's score, but the ability-to program the CD allows Fenton's music to be heard without interruption.

Review: Good concept, good bands and some awfully fun songs. As one might expect, the B-52's—excuse us, the BC-52's—crank up the grins with "Bedrock Twitch" and their version of "(Meet) The Flintstones." Some blasts from the past include Was (Not Was)' "Walk the Dinosaur" and Screaming Blue Messiahs' "I Wanna Be a Flintstone," while "I Showed a Caveman How to Rock" by US3 and Def Jef brings the prehistoric set into the hip-hop age. We're still not sure what Green Jelly's "Anarchy in the U.K." is doing here, but it's just as funny as everthing else. Yabba dabba doo!

Review: If the formula works, why not try it again... and again... so, after Willy and Andre, here comes Flipper, another docile marine mammal who develops a friendship with a rebellious boy. You get the picture! In this case, though, the film has serious antecedents in the guise of a popular television series in the 1960s and a couple of previous features. It is also the occasion for some attractive underwater and abovewave scenes, and for a pertinent score by Joel McNeely. With the formidable London Symphony Orchestra playing the score for all it's worth, there are some lovely moments to be enjoyed. The "Main Title" (featuring Crosby, Stills and Nash) is a fluid lyrical anthem, faintly evocative of Simon and Garfunkel or The Mamas and The Papas. The other cues are flavorful musical statements with a pervading poetic imagery that are compelling and frequently attractive, like in "Marv Meets Flipper". The "enhanced CD" also contains various pop vocals by The Beach Boys, Professor Longhair and Tom Jones (who cares to hear "It's Not Unusual" once more) that can be programmed out.

Seth Goes Through (2:02); 7 Ronnie Comes Back (:52); 8 The Jump (1:19); 9 Seth And The Fly (1:41); 10 Particle Magazine (:58); 11 The Armwrestle (:57); 12 Brundlefly (1:41); 13 Ronnie's Visit (:33); 14 The Street (:43); 15 The Stairs (1:24); 16 The Fingernails (2:31); 17 Baboon Teleportation (:55); 18 The Creature (2:05); 19 Steak Montage (:55); 20 The Maggot/Fly Graphic (1:32); 21 Success With Baboon (:55); 22 The Ultimate Family (1:55); 23 The Finale (2:45).

Review: Howard Shore's score for this remake of the 1958 classic is a real nail-biting horror score, featuring a poignant three-note main theme with forlorn horns calling out in ever building motifs. What the album lacks, however, is a break from all the tension. Anything that could remotely be called a light moment ("Success with Baboon," "Particle Magazine") simply foreshadows the coming nightmare. One of Shore's more thematic scores for director David Cronenberg may not be considered entertainment by everybody, but it's an excellently written, hauntingly dark piece of work. The CD contains three additional tracks that went unused in the final film.

Review: This monster album, which sold several million copies at the time of its release, was literally put together for the film, about a group of young people, led by rebellious Kevin Bacon, anxious to have a dancehall but prevented from doing so by straight-laced local authorities. Today, the film may seem quaintly old-fashioned and dated, but the album still throbs with its great collection of dance numbers, spearheaded by the uncontested hits "Let's Hear It for the Boy," "Dancing in the Sheets," and "Footloose." A better-than-average pop-rock compilation.

For Love or Money

1992, Big Screen Records; from the movie For Love or Money, Universal-International, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Orchestrations: Donald Nemitz; Musicians: "Rev." Dave Boruff (alto sax), Bill Broughton (trombone); Music Editor: Patricia Carlin; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Broughton; Album Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineer: Larry Walsh.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:52); 2 Mr. Ireland (2:22); 3 Barneys (2:37); 4 Doug Goes Home (1:06); 5 Ticket Exchange (1:15); 6 I Owe You One (1:21); 7 Fat Belly Dancer (:45); 8 Wochenend und Sonnenschein (M. Ager/J. Yellen) (1:15); 9 The Doug (4:41); 10 Chopper To The Hamptons (2:16); 11 Done Deal (7:09); 12 For Love Or Money (4:04); 13 In Your Eyes (M. Shaiman/R. McLean) (3:05) Bobby Short; 14 (Your Love Has Lifted Me) Higher And Higher (C. Smith/G. Jackson/R. Miner)(3:07) Jimmy Barnes.

Review: The underscoring for this lightweight comedy starring Michael J. Fox features prominently two solo instruments, an alto sax and a trombone, both of which confer to the music a specific flavor that is at once endearing. If that were not sufficient, however, Broughton's muscular cues revel in exploring musical lines that can be in turn strongly delineated ("Mr. Ireland"), strikingly sentimental ("Doug Goes Home"), bouncy ("Ticket Exchange"), or simply exhilarating ("Done Deal"). An amusing German rendition of "Happy Days are Here Again" adds a different touch to this enjoyable album.

For the Boys

1991, Atlantic Records; from the movie For the Boys, 20th Century-Fox, 1991.

Album Notes: Arrangers: Marc Shaiman, Billy May, Dave Grusin, Marty Paich, Ralph Burns, Robbie Buchanan, Arif Mardin, Joe Mardin; Album Producers: Arif Mardin, Marc Shaiman; Engineers: Jack Joseph Puig, Michael O'Reilly, Don Murray, Bob Schaper, Joey Wolpert.

Selections: 1 Billy-A-Dick (H. Carmichael/P.F. Webster(1:35) Bette Midler; 2 Stuff Like That There (J. Livingston/R. Evans)(2:51) Bette Midler; 3 P.S. I Love You (J. Mercer/G. Jenkins)(3:34) Bette Midler; 4 The Girl Friend Of The Whirling Dervish (A. Dubin/J. Mercer/H. Warren) (1:17); 5 I Remember You (J. Mercer/V. Schertzinger)/Dixie's Dream (M. Shaiman)(2:21) Bette Midler, James Caan; 6 Baby It's Cold Outside (F. Loesser)(1:30) Bette Midler, James Caan; 7 Dreamland (D. Grusin/A. & M. Bergman)(3:16) Bette Midler; 8 Vickie And Mr. Valves (L. LaCroix)(2:29); 9 For All We Know (J.F. Coots/S. Lewis)(4:01) Bette Midler; 10 Come Rain Or Come Shine (H. Arlen/J. Mercer)(3:30) Bette Midler; 11 In My Life (J. Lennon/P. McCartney)(3:26) Bette Midler; 12 I Remember You (J. Mercer/V. Schertzinger)(3:35) Bette Midler; 13 Every Road Leads Back To You (D. Warren)(3:48) Bette Midler.

Review: The Divine Ms. M. struck a particularly felicitous note in this heart-warming story about a singer entertaining the troops over a fifty-year period, and her relationship with another performer, James Caan, married to someone else. In her stage shows, Midler's great gift as a vocalist sometimes takes second place to her broad antics, but she is quite fetching in her treatment of the chestnuts that comprise the program in this delightful CD, with sensational charts by veterans Billy May, Ralph Burns and Marty Paich, among others. A brilliant showcase for this particular side of her talent, Midler shares the spotlight with Caan (whom she easily outshines) on a couple of selections and introduces a previously unrecorded song by Hoagy Carmichael and Paul Francis Webster, as well as a lovely ballad penned by Dave Grusin and Alan and Marilyn Bergman.

For Whom the Bell Tolls

1991, Stanyan Records; from the movie For Whom the Bell Tolls, Warner Bros., 1943.

Album Notes: Music: Victor Young; Orchestrations: Leo Shuken, George Parrish; The Warner Bros. Studio Orchestra, conducted by Ray Heindorf; CD Producer: Rod McKuen; Engineers: Michael M. Arick, Steve Hoffman.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Roberto And Kashin Blow Up A Train/ Kashin Falls (3:40); 2 Roberto And Anselmo Climb To The Cave/Pablo/Rafael, The Gypsy/ Pablo's Jealousy/Roberto And Maria (5:29); 3 Pilar/Pilar Sees Death In Roberto's Palm (4:25); 4 Politics In The Cave/Roberto Explains His Cause/ Maria Warns Roberto About Pablo (3:17); 5 Maria's Confession/ Roberto's Kiss/"I Don't Know How To Kiss" (3:10); 6 Maria (3:00); 7 El Sordo Retreats/ "What Use Is Courage?" (2:20); 8 Maria And Roberto: Their Night Alone (3:45); 9 The Sun Rises/ Maria Alone/The Bridge Is Blown (4:13); 10 Roberto Returns To Maria/Roberto Awaits Death/Roberto Sends Maria Away/ End Title (5:45); 11 Main Title From America, America (M. Hadjidakis) (3:03); 12 Barbarossa (R. McKuen) (3:36); 13 Kiev (R. McKuen)(4:03).

Review: Victor Young's percussive Oscar-nominated score for this Spanish Civil War drama, based on the novel by Ernest Hemingway, received a loving treatment in a rerecording made in the late 1950s by Ray Heindorf and the Warner Bros. Studio Orchestra. When he wrote it, Young essentially focused on two basic elements, the tragedy of a country and its people split into two warring factions, and the tender feelings that slowly develop between Roberto, an American dynamite expert on the side of the guerrillas, and Maria, an orphan girl. Propelled by a breathtaking "Love Theme," lushly played by the strings, and with the constant support of an acoustic guitar to give the music its flavor, the music unfolds with great passion and strength. The recording itself has the closeness and immediacy usually associated with recordings from the era, with excellent stereo definition. The CD also features a cue from Manos Hadjidakis' score for the 1963 America, America and two selections composed by Rod McKuen for the 1978 The Unknown War which are totally out of place in the context.

Forbidden Planet

1989, Small Planet/GNP Crescendo; from the movie Forbidden Planet, M-G-M, 1956.

Album Notes: Electronic Music: Louis and Bebe Barron; Album Producers: Louis and Bebe Barron; Engineers: Louis Barron, Mary Ellen Kabat, Bob Hata.

Selections: 1 Main Titles/Overture (2:20); 2 Deceleration (:50); 3 Once Around Altair (1:09); 4 The Landing (:40); 5 Flurry Of Dust/A Robot Approaches (1:09); 6 A Shangri-La In The Desert/Garden With Cuddly Tiger (1:32); 7 Graveyard/A Night With Two Moons (1:15); 8 Robby, Make Me A Gown (1:16); 9 An Invisible Monster Approaches (:46); 10 Robby Arranges Flowers, Zaps Monkey (1:17); 11 Love At The Swimming Hole (3:11); 12 Morbius' Study (:37); 13 Ancient Krell Music (1:47); 14 The Mind Booster/Creation Of Matter (:56); 15 Krell Shuttle Ride and Power Station (2:31); 16 Giant Footprints In The Sand (:45); 17 Nothing Like This Claw Found In Nature! (1:23); 18 Robby, The Cook, And 60 Gallons Of Booze (:56); 19 Battle With Invisible Monster (2:50); 20 Come Back To Earth With Me (1:17); 21 The Monster Pursues/Morbius Is Overcome (5:45); 22 The Homecoming (1:56); 23 Overture (reprise)(2:13).

Review: The Barrons' seminal all-electronic score for this classic 1950s space opera is a true test of the open-mindedness of the listener as this soundtrack stakes out a territory that exists somewhere between music, sound effects, and something altogether indefinable. Created long before the invention of the synthesizer, this "score" was produced by the Barrons by building specially-designed circuits to generate the required sounds and then recording them, but the result is astonishingly organic and atmospheric. Despite the abstract nature of the sounds produced, there are recognizable motifs, such as the percolating theme for Robby the Robot and a frightening "footstep" effect for the movie's invisible Id monster. Some of the cues will set your teeth on edge, particularly the hair-raising "Deceleration," while many create hypnotic, undulating textures that might actually lower your blood pressure. You can argue about whether this is actually music or not, but it's still fascinating listening.

Forbidden Zone

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Forbidden Zone, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek; Featured Artists: Danny Elfman and The Mystic Knights of the Oingo Boingo; Album Producers: Richard Elfman, Michael Boshears, Loren Paul Caplin; Engineers: Michael Boshears, Brad Kay.

Selections: 1 Forbidden Zone (2:45) Danny Elfman; 2 "Hercules" Family Theme (1:37); 3 Some Of These Days (S. Brooks)(2:50) Cab Calloway, The Kipper Kids; 4 Journey Through The Intestines (:55); 5 Squeezeit's Vision Of His "Sister" (:30); 6 Queen's Revenge (2:40) Danny Elfman, Susan Tyrrell, Marie-Pascale Elfman; 7 Factory (:58); 8 Love Theme — Squeezeit And The Chickens (:42); 9 Flash And Gramps (:56); 10 Squeezeit The Moocher (Minnie The Moocher)(C. Calloway)(4:48) Danny Elfman, Toshiro Baloney; 11 Alphabet Song (1:58); 12 Cell 63 (1:20); 13 Witch's Egg (G. Mishalsky/S. Tyrrell)(2:22) Susan Tyrrell; 14 Yiddishe Charleston (B. Rose/B. Fischer) (1:33) Susan Tyrrell, R. Yossele Elfman; 15 Bim Bam Boom (N. Morales/J. Comacho)(1:53) Miguelito Valdez; 16 Chamber Music (1:58); 17 Pleure (J. Savary)(:37) Marie-Pascale Elfman; 18 Battle Of The Queens (3:04); 19 Love Theme: King And Queen (1:08); 20 Finale (3:20).

Review: Anyone who has enjoyed Danny Elfman's outstanding contributions to film music over the past 6-7 years will have a blast listening (or, as the case may be, discovering for the first time) this delirious score (or "musical schizophrenia," as Elfman himself describes it) for a film, starring Herve Villechaize and Susan Tyrrell, as rulers of an underground kingdom called the "Sixth Dimension," made by Richard Elfman, that has mercifully left relatively no trace. Many of the composer's quirky musical ideas can be tracked down to this early effort, in which he gets support from The Mystic Knights of the Oingo Boingo, built around period songs (most notably Cab Calloway's "Some of These Days" and "Minnie the Moocher," the last one thoroughly, but enjoyably destroyed by Elfman and Toshiro Baloney). As Danny Elfman writes in his short commentary, the score, which is guaranteed to bring a broad smile to your face, is "a great chance to stretch out and go nuts." He succeeded beyond all expectations!

> "I wanted the music to be a bit softer than usual and let the special effects do the work. I didn't want it to sound like a marooned-in-space movie."

Forever Young

1992, Big Screen Records; from the movie Forever Young, Warner Bros., 1992

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton, Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Featured Artists: Mike Lang (piano solo), Joel Peskin (soprano sax solo); Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Love Theme From Forever Young (4:02); 2 Test Flight (3:40); 3 The Experiment (3:12); 4 Tree House (3:04); 5 Kitchen Aid (2:41); 6 The Diner (1:57); 7 The Air Show (2:29); 8 She's Alive (3:28); 9 Let Go (3:01); 10 Reunited (7:42); 11 The Very Thought Of You (R. Noble)(2:44) Billie Holiday.

Review: Jerry Goldsmith goes for the romance in this glossy but forgettable blend of star-crossed love, Rip Van Winkle and childhood antics. For chase and flight cues involving Mel Gibson's pilot character Goldsmith brought in some heavy-duty rhythmic orchestral material, similar to some of the pounding, percussive chases in the earlier Total Recall, while electronic passages mark suspense in other passages. The centerpiece of the score is a rhapsodic Hollywood-style love theme that Goldsmith developed into its own separate presentation for this album. Unfortunately the theme itself is less effective than some of the less-calculated incidental material that precedes it. That leaves Forever Young as a well-crafted and recorded album that just doesn't represent Goldsmith at his most interesting.

Forget Paris

1995, Elektra Records; from the movie Forget Paris, Columbia Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian, Larry Blank, Harvey Cohen; Music Editor: Scott Stambler; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producer: Marc Shaiman; Engineer: Dennis Sands; Assistant Engineers: Paul Wertheimer, Dominic Gonzales, Norm Dlugatch, Tom Hardisty.

Selections: 1 When You Love Someone (C. Bayer Sager/M. Shaiman/A. Baker) (4:10) Anita Baker, James Ingram; 2 Love Is Here To Stay (G. Gershwin/I. Gershwin) (3:42) Billie Holiday; 3 April In Paris (V. Duke/E.Y. Harburg) (1:57); 4 For All We Know (J.F. Coots/S. Lewis) (2:53) Billie Holiday; 5 Lazy River (S. Arodin/H. Carmichael) (3:28) Louis Prima; 6 Come Rain Or Come Shine (J. Mercer/H. Arlen)(4:37) David Sanborn; 7 April In Paris (V. Duke/ E.Y. Harburg)(6:35) Ella Fitzgerald, Louis Armstrong; 8 Paris Suite (6:13); 9 Swish (2:34); 10 Craig And Lucy (1:48); 11 Tea For Two (V. Youmans/ I. Caesar)/It Don't Mean A Thing (If It Ain't Got That Swing)(E.K. Ellington/ I. Mills)(3:01); 12 Nice Work If You Can Get It (G. Gershwin/I. Gershwin) (2:00); 13 My Melancholy Baby (E. Burnette/G. Norton)(3:00); 14 When You Love Someone (C. Bayer Sager/M. Shaiman/A. Baker)(4:26); 15 To Marriage (1:03).

Review: The combination of some great songs, great vocal performances, and Marc Shaiman's flavorful jazzy score makes for a particularly strong soundtrack album that has undeniable charm. The film, a romantic comedy starring Billy Crystal and Debra Winger, already had a good flair of its own, but the musical contributions here add significant touches that enhance the screen proceedings. In the context "When You Love Someone," a duet with typical sliding inflections by Anita Baker and James Ingram, may strike as being out of style, but the tracks by Louis Armstrong, Billie Holiday, Louis Prima and Duke Ellington are wonderful. "April in Paris," played big band style, and "Come Rain or Come Shine," with David Sanborn blowing a mean sax, also rank among the rewarding selections here, along with the cues by Shaiman, which cover the gamut from a Gallic-flavored "Paris Suite," to several tracks with a pleasant jazz feel ("Craig and Lucy," "To Marriage"), to explosive big band treatments of classic hits ("Nice Work If You Can Get It," "My Melancholy Baby"). A rich and satisfying album.

Review: The phenomenal success of the 2-CD set illustrates better than most the incredible synergy that exists at times between the movies and the recording industry. One of the most creative compilations of pop songs used in a film, the set includes many of the tunes that marked the period from the late '50s through the '70s. Among its highlights are Elvis Presley's "Hound Dog," The Four Tops' "I Can't Help Myself," Aretha Franklin's "Respect," Bob Dylan's "Rainy Day Women #12 & 35," The Mamas and The Papas' "California Dreamin'," Simon & Garfunkel's "Mrs. Robinson," Harry Nilsson's "Everybody's Talkin'," Willie Nelson's "On The Road Again"—all of them songs that can be found elsewhere but which, combined together, make for a most attractive and enjoyable package.

The score by Alan Silvestri serves as a perfect counterpoint to these classic pop hits, and emphasizes the more romantic aspects of this docu-fable about the slow-witted innocent (played by Tom Hanks) who finds himself unwillingly involved in some of the most remarkable events of the past 30 years.

The Four Musketeers/ The Eagle Has Landed/ Voyage of the Damned

1987, Label X; from the movies The Four Musketeers, 1975; The Eagle Has Landed, 1977; and Voyage of the Damned, 1976.

Album Notes: Music: Lalo Schifrin; Orchestras conducted by Lalo Schifrin; Album Producer: Lalo Schifrin; Engineers: Richard Lewzey, Peter Wandless.

Selections: THE FOUR MUSKETEERS: 1 Overture (3:40); 2 Athos' Story (2:20); 3 Chase To The Convent (2:39); 4 The Musketeers Rescue Constance (1:51); 5 Breakfast At The Bastion (2:46); 6 A Lovely Adventure (1:08); 7 Chased From The Louvre (1:50); 8 Frozen Pond Fight (4:52); 9 Milady's Theme (2:59); 10 End Credits (1:50);

THE EAGLE HAS LANDED: 11 Main Title (2:25); 12 The Eagle Grows, Pt. 1 (2:56); 13 The Eagle Grows, Pt. 2 (2:36); 14 Flight Of The Eagles (3:07); 15 Eagles vs. Fox (4:34); 16 End Credits (March) (2:22);

VOYAGE OF THE DAMNED: 17 Main Title (2:21); 18 House Painter March (1:49); 19 Hotel Nacionale (2:18); 20 Lament (2:30); 21 Tragedy/Time Pulse (3:59); 22 Our Prayers Have Been Answered (2:16); 23 End Credits (Foxtrot) (2:30).

Review: Lalo Schifrin strangely unaffecting score for The Four Musketeers is a serious letdown in this sequel to the original film made by Richard Lester, which had been scored by Michel Legrand. But whereas Legrand had approached the first film with great personal empathy for it subject matter, Schifrin's totally detached and by-the-book cues completely miss the flavor of the period and end up sounding as a purely routine job. He fared somewhat better with The Eagle Has Landed, a World War II adventure centered around an improbable German plot to kidnap Winston Churchill, in which the cymbalom provides an interesting colorful motif that recurs throughout the score. He also did better with his cues for The Voyage of the Damned, a sensitive drama about the plight of Jewish refugees from war-torn Europe on board a ship no country wants to accepts. Further marring one's appreciation of these scores, the recording contains various sonic glitches, including poorly focused sound, some analog dropouts, and tape noises that could have been easily eliminated.

Fekaris, Freddie Perren, Gus Dungeon, Swing Out Sister, Pete Smith, Squeeze, Neil Dorfsman, Sting; Engineers: Bob Clearmountain, Pete Smith.

Selections: 1 Love Is All Around (R. Presley)(3:59) Wet Wet Wet; 2 But Not For Me (G. & I. Gershwin)(3:01) Elton John; 3 The Right Time (E. Van De Horst/E. Smidt)(3:29) I To I; 4 Smoke Gets In Your Eyes (J. Kern/O. Harbach) (4:26) Nu Colours; 5 I Will Survive (F. Perren/D. Ferakis)(3:53) Gloria Gaynor; 6 Crocodile Rock (E. John/B. Eisler)(2:09) Sting; 10 Chapel Of Love (P. Spector/E. Greenwich/J. Barry)(3:42) Elton John; 11 Four Weddings And A Funeral: After The Funeral (R.R. Bennett)(1:52) John Hannah.

Review: A cheery collection of British pop, with occasional diversions for wedding reception fare such as Gloria Gaynor's "I Will Survive." The covers are coolest, though—Wet Wet Wet's exuberant "Love is All Around," Swing Out Sister's sumptuous "La La La (Means I Love You)" and Elton John's "Chapel of Love," which is as reckless as he's sounded in years.

1492: Conquest of Paradise

Album Notes: Music: Vangelis; Featured Musicians: Bruno Manjares, Pepe Martinez (Spanish guitars, voices), Francis Darizcuren (mandolin, violin), Didier Malherbe (flutes), Guy Protheroe (vocals); The English Chamber Choir, conducted by Guy Protheroe; Album Producer: Vangelis; Engineer: Philippe Colonna.

Selections: 1 Opening (1:21); 2 Conquest Of Paradise (4:48); 3 Monastery Of La Rabida (3:39); 4 City Of Isabel (2:16); 5 Light And Shadow (3:47); 6 Deliverance (3:29); 7 West Across The Ocean Sea (2:53); 8 Eternity (2:00); 9 Hispanola (4:57); 10 Moxica And The Horse (7:06); 11 Twenty Eighth Parallel (5:14); 12 Pinta, Nina, Santa Maria (Into Eternity)(13:20).

Review: Despite the fact that Vangelis uses guitars and mandolins to give his score the necessary Spanish flavor, there is something definitely odd about the sounds of a synthesizer in the context of an epic that takes place in the 15th century. Not that one should necessarily be a stickler for authenticity, but the effect here is somewhat jarring. This said, the score for 1492: Conquest of Paradise has its share of great musical moments, with sweeping melodies that are appropriately overblown, in keeping with its subject matter. The title tune, a spacey selection with rhythm and choral work, is quite effective. Adding to the impression of a vast musical canvas on display, many of the cues fade into one another, making for a somewhat continuous program of impressive scope and dimension.

Francis of Assisi/ Doctor Faustus

1997, DRG Records; from the movies Francis of Assisi, 20th Century-Fox, 1961; and Doctor Faustus, Columbia Pictures, 1968.

Album Notes: Music: Mario Nascimbene; Orchestrations: Mario Nascimbene; Orchestras conducted by Franco Ferrara, Mario Nascimbene; Featured Musician: Severino Gazzelloni (flute); Featured Artists: Lucia Vinardi (soprano); Vocal Sextet "Luca Marenzio" conducted by Piero Cavalli; Concentus antiqui conducted by Carlo Quaranta; Album Producers: Mario Nascimbene, Claudio Fuiano; Engineer: Gianni Mazzarini. Nascimbene, Mario,

Selections: FRANCIS OF ASSISI: 1 Main Titles (3:14); 2 First Meeting With God (1:20); 3 Chamber Music (2:24); 4 Second Meeting With God (2:38); 5 Building The Church (2:31); 6 Clare's Theme (3:23); 7 Stigmata (2:27); 8 Death Of Francis (1:49); 9 Finale (2:59);

DOCTOR FAUSTUS: 10 Introductory Theme (2:10); 11 Invocation Of Faustus To Mephistopheles: Apparition Appears/The Angel Of Good And The Angel Of Evil Contend For The Soul Of Faustus (10:34) Richard Burton; 12 Catacombs: Supernatural Visions And Voices (2:58) Richard Burton; 13 Apparition Of Helen (1:26); 14 The Garden Of Delight (1:47); 15 Music At The Court (2:40); 16 Helen's Theme (1:26); 17 Ballet (1:32); 18 Another Ballet (2:26); 19 Faustus Appeals To Mephistopheles For Helen's Love: Faustus And Helen Love Scene (5:16) Richard Burton; 20 Eleven O'Clock Sounds: Monologue Of Faustus/ Twelve O'Clock Sounds/Helen Drags Faustus Into The Abyss/ Finale (9:37) Richard Burton.

Review: An epic religious drama, Francis of Assisi stars Bradford Dillman as the young 13th-century Italian nobleman who swears off a dissolute existence to spend the rest of his life in poverty and contemplation. For this inspirational tale, composer Mario Nascimbene created a series of cues that mix broad orchestral accents and heavenly choirs in a score that sounds at times dry and cliched, but is occasionally redeemed by some lovely themes ("Chamber Music," "Building The Church," "Clare's Theme"). The mono recording evidences serious tape damage, with flutter, distortion and dropouts on some of the tracks.

Doctor Faustus, starring Richard Burton delivering his lines with the ardor that characterized some of his most theatrical performances, is another variation on the Faust legend in which the good doctor sells his soul to the Devil in exchange for youth and eternal life. Nascimbene's music, heard here in another technically deficient recording with oddly uneven stereo separation, often sounds appropriately ominous, though he did create a lovely theme for Helen that is reprised a couple of times, and also wrote a very attractive series of cues marked "Ballet," "Another Ballet," and "Music at the Court."

Frank and Jesse

1994, Intrada Records; from the movie Frank and Jesse, Trimark Pictures, 1994.

Selections: 1 Frank And Jesse Suite (5:27); 2 Main Title (3:55); 3 Family Moments (2:28); 4 Gentle Spirits (1:06); 5 Tragedy At Home (3:07); 6 Meet The James Gang (2:07); 7 Marauding (1:52); 8 Daring Escape (1:28); 9 Frank's Despair (1:03); 10 The Peace Ranch (1:18); 11 Mountain Top Dance (1:19); 12 The Lord Is Callin' Youn (3:06); 13 Northfield Battle (2:15); 14 I Play Not Marches... (2:24); 15 Goodbye Jesse (2:12); 16 Justice Will Be Served (3:16).

Review: In recent times, westerns have fallen into disfavor, and even though there have been attempts at rekindling the genre these have been few and far between. Made in 1994, Frank and Jesse, yet another variation on the lives of the famous James brothers, didn't meet with great success at the box office, but it enabled Mark McKenzie, scoring his third feature, to write a bold, impassioned series of cues in which the epic grandeur of the film and its most intimate moments are fully explored. Using a quintet of authentic 19th-century instruments, he created some lovely themes ("Family Moments," "The Peace Ranch") to underscore the close feelings between the siblings, relying on the fuller orchestral textures to depict the moments of action ("Marauding," "Daring Escape," "Northfield Battle"). It may not be The Magnificent Seven or The Alamo, but the score has a sweep of its own that is ultimately quite engaging.

Frankenstein

Selections: 1 To Think Of A Story (3:28); 2 What's Out There (2:52); 3 There's An Answer (4:37); 4 I Won't If You Won't (1:58); 5 A Perilous Direction (3:20); 6 A Risk Worth Taking (3:18); 7 Victor Begins (:54); 8 Even If You Die (2:16); 9 The Creation (2:00); 10 Evil Stitched To Evil (4:43); 11 The Escape (1:47); 12 The Reunion (:45); 13 The Journal (1:04); 14 Friendless (2:09); 15 William! (2:44); 16 Death Of Justine/Sea Of Ice (3:54); 17 Yes I Speak (5:37); 18 God Forgive Me (:57); 19 Please Wait (3:21); 20 The Honeymoon (1:16); 21 The Wedding Night (2:05); 22 Elizabeth (4:11); 23 She's Beautiful (3:36); 24 He Was My Father (6:10).

Review: A chilling, provocative orchestral score, Patrick Doyle's music for Mary Shelley's Frankenstein conjures up images of a monster creation let loose in an unsuspecting world, all the more frightening that it is underplayed, as a threat that looms without speaking its name. In bold, colorful strokes, the music paints these visions, first as an idea born in the mind of a deranged scientist, then as a solid plan that eventually yields a real creature, articulate and even more dangerous as a result. A love theme, heard in fragments throughout but eventually fully developed in "The Wedding Night," brings a romantic counterpoint to the subliminal horror. It may be far from the Gothic accents invented by Franz Waxman or Hans Salter in earlier times, but the music created by Doyle is strangely, almost eerily beautiful and elegant, which is part of the fascination it exerts.

Frankie Starlight

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Frankie Starlight, Fine Line Features, 1993.

Selections: 1 From My Window (E. Bernstein/E.A. Bernstein)(3:36) Belinda Pigeon; 2 Moon (Main Title)(2:25); 3 Windows And Memories (1:39); 4 Flashback (1:43); 5 Visions

(2:33); 6 A New Life (1:01); 7 Jack And Bernadette (3:46); 8 Emma's Revenge (2:41); 9 At Play (1:09); 10 Wild Ride (1:35); 11 Rooftops And Starlight (2:00); 12 Release (2:18); 13 In Paris (1:36); 14 Farewells (1:39); 15 Proposal (2:42); 16 Roofdance (End Credits)(4:03).

Review: "From My Window," performed by Belinda Pigeon, which recalls some of Sondheim's best moments, effectively introduces this gorgeous soundtrack recording which finds Elmer Bernstein in a very lyrical frame of musical mind. The wistful romantic moods, explored in the main theme, "Moon," are sustained almost throughout the entire score, with gentle extrapolations that are fetching and intelligently expressive. Only occasionally does the score indulge in some more animated releases ("At Play," and "Wild Ride," with its bouncy syncopated rhythms reminiscent of some cues from The Magnificent Seven), which provide surprising relief and enjoyment.

Frantic

1988, Elektra Records; from the movie Frantic, Warner Bros., 1988.

Selections: 1 I'm Gonna Lose You (M. Hucknall)(4:04) Simply Red; 2 Frantic (4:05); 3 On The Roofs Of Paris (6:00); 4 One Flugel Horn (3:16); 5 Six Short Interludes (4:31); 6 Nocturne For Michel (3:16); 7 In The Garage (4:12); 8 The Paris Project (3:16); 9 Sadly Nostalgic (1:47); 10 Frantic (6:03).

Review: Ennio Morricone wrote a particularly effective score for this taut thriller, starring Harrison Ford, about an American doctor unwillingly drawn into a web of political intrigues while attending a convention in Paris. Underscoring the suspense in the film, the cues detail the main character's search for a truth that eludes him, with Morricone's signature rhythmic syncopations subtly conveying the tension that permeates the action. The eerie moods (strangely contrasted in "On the Roofs of Paris" by the lilt of an accordion waltz) build up to a climax that is powerfully stated in a reprise of the main theme. This soundtrack album, enhanced by the forlorn "I'm Gonna Lose You," performed by Simply Red, is both surprising and remarkably enjoyable.

Free Willy

Free Willy

1993, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Free Willy, Warner Bros., 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Music Editor: Tom Milano; Synthesizers: Michael Boddicker; Orchestra conducted by Basil Poledouris; Album Producers: Joel Sill, Gary LeMel, Jerry Greenberg, Basil Poledouris; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Will You Be There (Theme From Free Willy)(M. Jackson) (5:54) Michael Jackson; 2 Keep On Smilin' (N.M. Walden/S. Jackson/S.Jo Dakota)(4:36) NKOTB; 3 Didn't Mean To Hurt You (T. Jackson/T. Jackson/ T.J. Jackson)(5:48) 3T; 4 Right Here (B.A. Morgan/J. Bettis/S. Porcaro) (3:50) SWV-Sisters With Voices; 5 How Can You Leave Me Now (P. Frazier) (5:44) Funky Poets; 6 Main Title (5:07); 7 Connection (1:44); 8 The Gifts (5:20); 9 Friends Montage (3:41); 10 Audition (2:05); 11 Farewell Suite: (a) Jessie Says Goodbye, (b) Let's Free Willy!, (c) Return To Freedom (12:02); 12 Will You Be There (reprise)(M. Jackson)(3:40) Michael Jackson.

Review: This set mixes yawn-inducing instrumental music with yawn-inducing, but far more successful, vocal music. SWV's "Right Here/Human Nature" medley charted higher, but Michael Jackson's emotive "Will You Be There" is the film's theme and its most recognizable track. It could be worse; New Kids on the Block have a song on here, too.

Free Willy 2

1995, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Free Willy 2, Warner Bros., 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Music Editor: J.J. George; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker, Basil Poledouris; Featured Artist: Michael Boddicker (synthesizers); Producers: Tim Boyle, Basil Poledouris; Engineer: Sue McLean; Song Producers: Michael Jackson, Steve Lindsey, Soulshock & Karlin, Guy Roche, Ian Stanley, Michael Vail Blum; Song Engineers: Bruce Swedien, Richard Browne, David Cole, Gabe Veltri, Thom Russo, Mario Luccy; Album Producers: Gary LeMel, Joel Still.

Selections: 1 Childhood (M. Jackson)(4:27) Michael Jackson; 2 Forever Young (B. Dylan)(4:25) Rebbie Jackson; 3 Sometimes Dancin' (featuring Spragga Benz)(N. Gilbert/J. O'Brien/Jonah/Soulshock/Karlin/L. James)(5:10) Brownstone; 4 What Will It Take (T. Jackson)(5:17) 3T; 5 I'll Say Goodbye For The Two Of Us (D. Warren)(4:35) Expose; 6 Forever Young (B. Dylan)(5:00) Pretenders; 7 Lou's Blues (N. Cavaleri)(3:14) Nathan Cavaleri Band; 8 Main Titles (3:28); 9 Whale Swim (3:15); 10 Reunion (3:38); 11 Childhood (instrumental)(M. Jackson)(4:27) Michael Jackson.

Review: The sappy "Childhood" ("Have you seen my childhood?") crooned by Peter Pan (sorry, Michael Jackson!), introduces this sequel to the story of a child who befriends an orca, with the soundtrack album consisting mostly of similarly youth-oriented pop songs, including two not in the film, that are unlikely to get an R-rating or even an adult warning. In the mush, Basil Poledouris' score is virtually lost with only three selections that add up to ten minutes of playing time. As usual, his music is flavorful and aggressively romantic, with great orchestral textures, but in this context who cares!

The French Lieutenant's Woman

1981, DRG Records; from the movie The French Lieutenant's Woman, Juniper Films, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Carl Davis; Orchestrations: Carl Davis, Brian Gascoigne; Orchestra conducted by Carl Davis; Featured Soloists: Erich Gruenber (violin), Kenneth Essex (viola), Keith Harvey (cello), John Lill (piano); Album Producer: Carl Davis; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 Sarah's Walk (1:30); 2 A Proposal (2:06); 3 Period Research (1:36); 4 Her Story (3:53); 5 Decision Taken (1:38); 6 Towards Love (2:17); 7 Location Lunch (2:23); 8 Together (3:53); 9 Domestic Scene (2:12); 10 Resurrection (2:12); 11 A House In Windmere (from Adagio of Sonata in D, K.576)(W.A. Mozart)(6:17) John Lill; 12 End Of Shoot Party (3:35); 13 The Happy Ending (6:25).

Review: A complex film with a story-within-a-story, this adaptation by Harold Pinter of John Fowles' romantic novel strongly benefitted from Meryl Streep's extraordinary performance as a mysterious woman who befriends a French soldier in 1867 England, only to be ostracized as a result, and as the modern actress who portrays her and who has an affair with the actor (Jeremy Irons) playing an English gentleman attracted to the "French Lieutenant's woman." The screen action, teetering between the contemporary and the period love affairs, received a strong musical support from Carl Davis' effective score, with some of the cues ("Sarah's Walk," "Her Story," "Towards Love") reflecting the romantic surge in the period story, while others ("Location Lunch," "Domestic Scene," "End of Shoot Party") stressed the contemporary aspects of the film in progress.

Review: This affecting story of life in a Southern town, and of an unsolved murder that took place years before, got much of its flavor from Thomas Newman's beautifully stated score and from the many pop songs heard on the soundtrack that both defined the locale and the given time period of the screen action. Thankfully, both are available on individual CDs, with the score detailing some of the most memorable scenes from the film, in cues that have an incredible energy and lyrical expression.

The songs, with performances by a wide range of seasoned performers (Jodeci, Paul Young, Patti LaBelle, Taylor Dayne), capture the essence of the action, and give it a palpable and recognizable frame of reference. Common to both are Marion Williams' spirited numbers which, better than most, provide an appropriate Southern flavor to the albums.

The Frighteners

1996, MCA Records; from the movie The Frighteners, Universal Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek, Mark McKenzie, Edgardo Simone; Music Editor: Ellen Segal; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producer: Danny Elfman; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Intro/Titles (5:43); 2 The "Lads" (2:00); 3 Poltergeists (2:05); 4 Victim #38 (1:52); 5 Who's Next? (1:39); 6 The Garden (3:08); 7 Chilly (1:29); 8 Time (4:41); 9 Patty's Place (2:12); 10 Flashbacks (1:07); 11 Patty Attack (3:04); 12 Frank's Wife (:50); 13 Doom (3:08); 14 Heaven (1:46); 15 Don't Fear The Reaper (5:46) The Mutton Birds.

Review: This score can best be described as Beetlejuice gone bad. Portions of Elfman's early work can be heard here in the more humorous use of harpsichord and string arrangements, but because the film wasn't a comedy (though it had been promoted as such), the score was required to be much darker. Unfortunately, the result is that it isn't as fun as Beetlejuice, though it's still a cut or two above what anyone else might have done for a similar film. Elfman has a good sense of the absurd, something that is always obvious in much of his other genre work, but this score can boast some genuinely creepy passages, too. The album includes "Don't Fear the Reaper" performed by The Mutton Birds.

From Dusk Till Dawn

1996, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie From Dusk Till Dawn, Miramax Films, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Graeme Revell; Song Producers: Jeff Eyrich, David Vaught, Don Cook & Raul Malo, Jimmie Vaughan, Tito Larriva, Robert Rodriguez & Mark Goldenberg, Bill Ham & Billy F. Gibbons, Stevie Ray Vaughan & Double Trouble; Soundtrack Executive Producers: Robert Rodriguez, Quentin Tarantino, Lawrence Bender; Engineer: Chris Bellman.

Selections: 1 Everybody Be Cool (:05); 2 Dark Night (D. Alvin) (3:49) The Blasters; 3 Mexican Blackbird (B. Gibbons/D. Hill/F. Beard) (3:04) ZZ Top; 4 Texas Funeral (D. Vaught) (2:32) Jon Wayne; 5 Foolish Heart (R. Malo/E. York) (3:33) The Mavericks; 6 Would You Do Me A Favor? (:12); 7 Dengue Woman Blues (J. Vaughan) (6:24) Jimmie Vaughan; 8 Torquay (G. Tomsco) (2:42) The Leftovers; 9 She's Just Killing Me (B. Gibbons/D. Hill/F. Beard) (4:56) ZZ Top; 10 Chet's Speech (:42); 11 Angry Cockroaches (Cucarachas enojadas) (T. Larriva/P. Atanasoff) (5:15) Tito & Tarantula; 12 Mary Had A Little Lamb (B. Guy) (4:15) Stevie Ray Vaughan, Double Trouble; 13 After Dark (T. Larriva/S. Huffsteder) (4:11) Tito & Tarantula; 14 Willie The Wimp (And His Cadillac Coffin) (B. Carter/R.E. Ellsworth) (4:35) Stevie Ray Vaughan, Double Trouble; 15 Kill The Band (:05); 16 Mexican Standoff (G. Revell) (:50); 17 Sex Machine Attacks (G. Revell) (1:23).

Review: If truth be told, you never know what to expect when you listen to a soundtrack album. For example, this compilation put together for a martial arts and vampire film rolled into one, includes headliners like The Blasters, ZZ Top, Stevie Ray Vaughan, and The Mavericks, among others. Not bad, except that the tunes they perform aren't necessarily big hits for them, just run-of-the-mill numbers that have their genuine moments of flash. Throughout, sound bites prove intriguing, if nothing else. And how about a song called "Texas Funeral" performed (spoken ?) by Jon Wayne (no! not the actor, even though many of the tracks here border on the country genre, but check the spelling of the name...). It all adds up to a definitely strange but compelling album.

From Russia with Love

1995, EMI-America; from the movie From Russia with Love, United Artists, 1963.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Lyrics: Lionel Bart; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: John Barry.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles/James Bond Is Back/From Russia With Love/James Bond Theme (2:24); 2 Tania Meets Klebb (1:27); 3 Meeting In St. Sophia (1:06); 4 The Golden Horn (2:28); 5 Girl Trouble (2:25); 6 Bond Meets Tania (1:18); 7 007 (2:40); 8 Gypsy Camp (1:15); 9 Death Of Grant (2:00); 10 From Russia With Love (2:35) Matt Monro; 11 Spectre Island (1:15); 12 Guitar Lament (1:09); 13 Man Overboard/Smersh In Action 2:18); 14 James Bond With Bongos (2:29); 15 Stalking (2:01); 16 Leila Dances (1:57); 17 Death Of Kerim (2:29); 18 007 Takes The Lektor (3:00).

Review: Another monster James Bond score signed by John Barry, and probably his most effective effort in the genre. The score, powered by the almost exclusive use of brass and percussion instruments, has an urgency and drive that seldom lessens and wonderfully captures the excitement in the film. A mandatory vocal, performed with great gusto by Matt Monro (a pleasant change from Shirley Bassey's over-the-top performances of "Goldfinger" and "Diamonds are Forever"), adds an extra zing to the album.

The Fugitive

1993, Elektra Records; from the movie The Fugitive, Warner Bros., 1993.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: James Newton Howard, Chris Boardman, Brad Dechter; Orchestra conducted by Marty Paich; Featured Musicians: Wayne Shorter (soprano sax), Chuck Domanico (acoustic bass), James Newton Howard (piano); Album Producers: James Newton Howard, Michael Mason; Engineer: Robert Schaper; Assistant Engineers: Sue MacLean, Tom Hardisty, Greg Dennan.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (3:52); 2 The Storm Drain (4:25); 3 Kimble Dyes His Hair (4:23); 4 Helicopter Chase (4:50); 5 "The Fugitive" Theme (3:06); 6 Subway Fight (2:27); 7 Kimble Returns (3:08); 8 No Press (4:56); 9 Stairway Chase (2:32); 10 Sykes' Apt. (4:19); 11 It's Over (3:40).

Review: Harrison Ford, playing another victim of circumstances on the run from justice, has one of his better screen roles in this big screen remake of the eponymous early 1960s television series. Adding a specific flavor of its own to the action, James Newton Howard wrote a series of cues that spell it out while providing an extra dramatic anchor to it. The tension in the drama comes out particularly effectively in the cues marked "Helicopter Chase," "Subway Fight" and "Stairway Chase," in which the taut orchestral textures echo the gripping screen visuals. The more subliminal accents in some of the other selections, notably "Kimble Dyes His Hair" and "Sykes' Apartment," with their faint ominous tones presaging some forthcoming dangers to the hero, are equally effective. The main theme, a delicate duet between a piano and a soprano sax (James Newton Howard and Wayne Shorter), is yet another expressive track.

Full Metal Jacket

1987, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Full Metal Jacket, Warner Bros., 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Abigail Mead; Programmer: Abigail Mead; Engineer: Tim Pennington.

Selections: 1 Full Metal Jacket (5:01) Abigail Mead, Nigel Goulding; 2 Hello Vietnam (T. Hall)(3:04) Johnny Wright; 3 Chapel Of Love (J. Barry/ E. Greenwich/P. Spector)(2:46) The Dixie Cups; 4 Wooly Bully (D. Samudio) (2:19) Sam The Sham & The Pharaohs; 5 I Like It Like That (C. Kenner) (1:56) Chris Kenner; 6 These Boots Are Made For Walking (L. Hazelwood) (2:00) Nancy Sinatra; 7 Surfin' Bird (A. Frazier/C. White/T. Wilson, Jr./ J. Harris) (2:15) The Trashmen; 8 The Marines' Hymn (2:06) The Goldman Band; 9 Transition (:32); 10 Parris Island (4:28); 11 Ruins (2:09); 12 Leonard (5:56); 13 Attack (2:02); 14 Time Suspended (1:03); 15 Sniper (3:15).

Review: A somewhat random collection of '60s classics and instrumental pieces composed for the film. At least the songs—"Surfin' Bird," "I Like it Like That," "These Boots Are Made for Walking"—aren't titles that usually show up in films. The original score is pretty blah, however.

Review: When a mafia boss is gunned down, his death brings together his brothers, who are determined to find his killer and avenge him. This Prohibition period crime drama, filmed by Abel Ferrara, received a smart soundtrack album, thanks to the selection of recordings from the era that have been compiled for the occasion. Opening up the proceedings is Carlo Buti's "Il primo amore," which is the only reference to the Italian background of the story. The other tracks include performances by

"My job was to artistically do a 12th century score but one that was accessible to mainstream audiences."

Coleman Hawkins, Bunny Berigan, Benny Goodman, Duke Ellington, Erskine Hawkins and Artie Shaw, among others. Surprisingly, however, the Billie Holiday song that anchored the film and situated its time period more strongly than any other is noticeably absent from this otherwise flavorful compilation.

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Fury, 20th Century-Fox, 1978.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:13); 2 For Gillian (2:42); 3 Vision On The Stairs (4:10); 4 Hester's Theme and The House (4:36); 5 Gillian's Escape (6:15); 6 The Search For Robin (2:43); 7 Death On The Carousel (2:52); 8 Gillian's Vision (4:03); 9 Death On The Carousel and End Titles (8:28); 10 Epilogue (4:38).

Review: The Fury is a dark score, underlining the psychic horror of Brian de Palma's telekinetic terror film with a haunting orchestration. Built around a slow, waltz-like main theme, using the same kind of ascending/descending triads that characterized Bernard Herrmann's score for Vertigo, Williams' music develops into a stunning, powerful work, dominated by brass, which emphasizes and embellishes de Palma's omnipresent mood of surreal gloom and terrifying apprehension. Interestingly, the CD (like its previous LP incarnation) isn't the original soundtrack but a much-improved rerecording done by Williams and the London Symphony, which includes a 4 and a half minute epilogue which reconstructs all the score's themes into a thunderous and profound final statement. The CD also includes an additional cue not on the original LP, an alternate version of "Death on the Carousel."

Game of Death/ Night Games

1993, Silva Screen Records; from the movies Game of Death, 1973; and Night Games, Next Decade Entertainment, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; Album Producers: John Barry, Ford A. Thaxton; Engineer: John Goodmanson.

Selections: GAME OF DEATH: 1 Main Title/Set Fight With Chuck Norris (3:42); 2 Will This Be The Song I'll Be Singing Tomorrow (2:22); 3 Three Motorcycles/ Stick Fight With Santo (3:59); 4 Billy's Funeral Dirge (2:59); 5 Garden Fight (2:48); 6 Billy And Ann's Love Theme (2:37); 7 The Big Motorcycle Fight (5:45); 8 Goodbye Dr. Land (1:57); 9 Will This Be The Song I'll Be Singing Tomorrow (2:21) Colleen Camp; 10 Game Of Death: End Title (2:45); 11 Stick Fight (with sound effects)/Main Title (reprise)(6:14);

NIGHT GAMES: 12 Descent Into Decadence (5:59); 13 The Lesbian Tango (2:56); 14 The Wet Spot (3:34); 15 Water Sports/The Dominatrix's Waltz (7:40); 16 Phantom Of The Orgasm (8:24); 17 Afterplay (1:11).

Review: John Barry delivers the punches (make that the chops and the kicks) in the first score, which starred Bruce Lee shortly before his untimely death, and strikes a diffidently erotic note in the second, a sex fantasy directed by Roger Vadim. Bruce Lee's Game of Death actually found the composer in great verve, exploring the possibilities of scoring a martial arts film with all the colorful musical resources at his disposal. That he largely succeeded is a credit to his creativity as a film composer with few peers in the business. The tracks, which sometimes evoke some of Barry's best efforts in the thriller genre in the late 1960s, blend percussive action cues and lovingly detailed romantic expressions, in a score that has great strength and vitality. Best are "Garden Fight" and "The Big Motorcycle Fight," among the former, and "Billy's Funeral Dirge" and "Billy and Ann's Love Theme," among the latter. A "Stick Fight" (with sound effects) provides additional fun.

Though Night Games is, by all critical accounts, a total disaster and an "insult to adult minds," to quote one reviewer, Barry's music easily soars above the most pedestrian aspects of the film to create an elegant and erotic evocation. Three longer cues ("Descent into Decadence," "Water Sports/The Dominatrix's Waltz" and "Phantom of the Orgasm") are particularly striking with their deft blend of long, melodic lines, occasionally supported by a wordless choir. "The Lesbian Tango," with its slow, exotically syncopated rhythms, is a lot of fun.

Genocide

1993, Intrada Records; from the movie Genocide, MCEG Sterling, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: Elmer Bernstein; Engineers: John Arrias, Joe Tarantino, Douglass Fake.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:09); 2 My Brother's Keeper (1:23); 3 A Convenient Enemy (1:51); 4 Herr Hitler (1:33); 5 Dachau (6:12); 6 We Shall Outlive Them (2:03); 7 The Nazi Trap (5:28); 8 Slaughter (3:44); 9 The Butterfly (1:05); 10 Kremer's Diary (5:39); 11 Farewell To Mother (1:41); 12 Be Strong And Brave (3:20); 13 Liberation (1:58); 14 The Legend Of Chaya (:36); 15 The Flag (2:45); 16 End Title (3:34).

Review: An Academy Award-winner as Best Documentary Feature, Genocide, narrated by Elizabeth Taylor and introduced by Simon Wiesenthal, was one more attempt at illustrating and trying to explain the extermination of Jews during World War II. For this moving account, Elmer Bernstein wrote an appropriately somber score, with some cues, like "A Convenient Enemy," "Dachau," "Slaughter," exploring in musical terms the unexplainable. Even the more exuberant last tracks fail to shake the dark moods that linger long after the music has stopped.

Gentlemen Don't Eat Poets

1997, Pangea Records; from the movie Gentlemen Don't Eat Poets, Live Entertainment, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Anne Dudley; Orchestrations: Anne Dudley; Orchestra conducted by Anne Dudley; Featured Musician: Phil Todd (saxophone); Album Producer: Anne Dudley; Engineers: Steve Price, Paul Hulme.

Selections: 1 This Was Never Meant To Be (Sting/A. Dudley)(4:04)Sting; 2 Theme From Gentlemen Don't Eat Poets (1:28); 3 Opening Titles: The Fledges Arrive (3:18); 4 Sir Hugo, The Dinosaur... And The Toad (2:08); 5 Meet George Leckie (1:28); 6 Dreaming Of Doris... And Fledge (3:33); 7 The Game Room (2:07); 8 Fledge's Den And Sydney's Disappearance (2:52); 9 Cleo Looks For Clues (1:49); 10 Jiving And Jamming (3:28); 11 Trying It On For Size (2:35); 12 An Apparition... And The Marshes (4:36); 13 Inspector Limp Gives Chase (3:19); 14 Fledge Begins His Conquest (1:43); 15 George's Story (1:29); 16 This Was Never Meant To Be (shellac mix)(1:44); 17 An Innocent Man/Hugo Loses His Mind (3:05); 18 Cleo Plots Her Revenge (2:43); 19 The Last Dance (1:42).

Review: This clever period piece about a poet, with whom an uppercrust English girl falls in love and the effects this dalliance has on the family, serves as the departing point for Anne Dudley's stylish score, in which bits of dialogue set up some of the cue, providing the extra dramatic touch that makes them all the more enjoyable. In the middle of all the expansive romantic cues the composer created, a bouncy "Jiving and Jamming" brings a different, albeit welcome, switch in genres that proves surprising and delightful at the same time. A breathy vocal by Sting, who also appears in the film, is quite satisfying in its own right.

Geronimo

1993, Columbia; from the movie Geronimo: An American Legend, Columbia Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Ry Cooder; Orchestrations: George S. Clinton, Van Dyke Parks; Orchestra conducted by George S. Clinton; Music Editor: Bunny Andrews; Album Producer: Ry Cooder; Engineer: Allen Sides.

Selections: 1 Geronimo: Main Title (R. Cooder/Hoon-Hoortoo/ J. Benally/ R.C. Nakai/G. Clinton)(5:09); 2 Restoration (R. Cooder/G. Clinton)(6:19); 3 Goyakla Is Coming (R. Cooder/ Hoon-Hoortoo/R.C. Nakai)(1:11); 4 Bound For Canaan (The 6th Cavalry)(R. Cooder/G. Clinton)(1:37); 5 Cibecue (R. Cooder/ R. Carlos Nakai/J. Benally)(2:03); 6 The Governor's Ball: Get Off The Track/Danza/Battle Cry Of Freedom (V.D. Parks)(9:43); 7 Wayfaring Stranger (R. Cooder/G. Clinton) (3:09); 8 Judgment Day (R. Cooder/G. Clinton)(2:12); 9 Bound For Canaan (Sieber And Davis)(1:31); 10 Embudos (R.C. Nakai)(1:56); 11 Sand Fight (R. Cooder/R.C. Nakai/Hoon-Hoortoo)(1:13); 12 Army Brass Band: The Young Recruit/ The Girl I Left Behind Me/Come Come Away (L. Schwartz)(2:58) Americus Brass Band; 13 Yaqui Village (R. Cooder/R.C. Nakai/J. Benally/Hoon-Hootoor)(3:17); 14 I Have Seen My Power (R. Cooder/ R.C. Nakai/J. Benally/ Hoon-Hootoor) (2:16); 15 La visita (R. Cooder)(3:11); 16 Davis (R. Cooder) (2:52); 17 Train To Florida (Hoon-Hootoor/R.C. Nakai/J. Benally)(9:27).

Review: Ry Cooder's appropriately authentic score, with the considerable support of Indian music and chants, serves as a colorful backdrop for this account of the life story of the great Apache warrior. With Cooder's usual contingent of sidemen and associates (among them David Lindley, prominently featured on mandolin and bouzouki, and Van Dyke Parks, who provided some of the orchestrations) contributing their talent, the music establishes its own standards and creates in relatively short time the moods which pervade the whole score. The clash between two cultures and two different sets of forces is fully explored in cues in which the Native American music is contrasted with the martial fife and drum accents of the federal armies. A rich and unusual score, which requires closer attention than most to endear itself, Geronimo: An American Legend may well be one of Cooder's best efforts to date.

Get Yourself a College Girl

1992, Sony Music Special Products; from the movie Get Yourself a College Girl, M-G-M, 1964.

Album Notes: none available.

Selections: 1 Whenever You're Around (D. Clark/M. Smith)(2:54) The Dave Clark Five; 2 The Girl From Ipanema (A.C. Jobim/N. Gimbel)(2:53) Stan Getz, Astrud Gilberto; 3 Around And Around (C. Berry)(2:42) The Animals; 4 The Sermon (J. Smith)(2:59) Jimmy Smith; 5 Get Yourself A College Girl (F. Karger/S. Miller)(2:38) Mary Ann Mobley; 6 Bony Moronie (L. Williams) (2:38) The Standells; 7 Thinking Of You Baby (D. Clark/M. Smith) (2:33) The Dave Clark Five; 8 Sweet Rain (M. Gibbs)(3:26) Stan Getz; 9 Blue Feeling (J. Henshaw)(2:30) The Animals; 10 Comin' Home Johnny (trad.) (3:12) The Jimmy Smith Trio; 11 Talkin' About Love (F. Bell/R. Linn) (2:22) Freddie Bell, Roberta Linn & The Bell Boys; 12 The Swim (L. Tamblyn)(2:31) Standells.

Review: Sad to say, but M-G-M, which for many years had dominated the screen musical genre with productions that set the standards for the entire industry, found itself releasing films like Get Yourself a College Girl in the 1960s, in imitation of works produced (the term is a generous one) by other studios. An inane campus comedy, Get Yourself... concerned a college student, Mary Ann Mobley (Miss America of 1959), who gets into trouble for writing "sophisticated" songs and spends the ensuing 80 minutes trying to get out of the mess, in a film that also stars Nancy Sinatra. One of the film's redeeming values is its soundtrack, sprinkled with "in" songs, performed by an interesting line-up of talent, including The Dave Clark Five, The Animals, Freddie Bell & The Bell Boys, for the bubblegum trade, and Stan Getz, the Jimmy Smith Trio, and Astrud Gilberto, for their elders. The title tune, delivered in a clear-sounding vocal by Mary Ann Mobley herself, unfortunately sets the intellectual tone for much of the album.

Getting Even with Dad

1994, Private Music; from the movie Getting Even with Dad, M-G-M, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Miles Goodman; Orchestrations: Oscar Gastro-Neves; Music Editor: Nancy Fogarty; Orchestra conducted by Miles Goodman; Album Producers: Miles Goodman, Joel Moss; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: 1 Money (That's What I Want)(B. Gordy/J. Bradford)(2:33) Barrett Strong; 2 Do You Love Me (B. Gordy)(2:52) The Contours; 3 Ball The Wall (H. Roeland Byrd)(3:17) Professor Longhair; 4 I Need Money (Keep Your Alibis)(J. Moore)(2:21) Slim Harpo; 5 Blues Ain't Nothin' (T. Mahal) (4:12) Taj Mahal; 6 You Can't Get There From Here (A. Croce)(2:37) A.J. Croce; 7 I Found Faith (A. Croce)(2:44) A.J. Croce; 8 Weight Of The World (B. O'Doherty/F. Velez)(3:53) Ringo Starr; 9 Getting Even (3:08); 10 The Coin Heist (4:40); 11 Natural Selection (2:17); 12 The Aquarium (2:12); 13 Getting Closer To Dad (2:17); 14 Theresa (2:19); 15 Comin' Home Baby (B. Dorough/B. Tucker)(3:15); 16 Hide And Seek (4:41); 17 Goodbye For Now (1:58); 18 The Bus To Redding (3:27); 19 Money (New Orleans version)(B. Gordy/J. Bradford)(2:46) A.J. Croce.

Review: The many early rock and blues songs heard on the first tracks of this soundtrack album exude a raucous flavor that seems to be missing in Miles Goodman's musical cues. Some of the selections ("The Coin Heist," "The Aquarium," "Getting Closer to Dad") are perhaps more reflective of some of the sentiments expressed in this comedy, about a kid who tries to steer his father, a small-time con artist, in the right direction, but, as is often the case in the genre, music and screen action are sometimes so intimately integrated that once they are separated, the music makes much less sense. But the pop selections are terrific!

Gettysburg

1993, Milan Records; from the movie, Gettysburg, New Line Cinema, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro, Randy Edelman; Music Editor: Joanie Diener; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producers: Randy Edelman, David Franco; Engineers: Dennis Sands, Elton Ahi.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:32); 2 Men Of Honor (2:55); 3 Battle Of Little Round Top (3:56); 4 Fife And Gun (3:01); 5 General Lee At Twilight (1:25); 6 The First Battle (2:41); 7 Dawn (1:57); 8 From History To Legend (2:56); 9 Over The Fence (4:09); 10 We Are The Flank (2:14); 11 Charging Up The Hill (2:24); 12 Dixie (2:25)(R.Edelman); 13 General Lee's Solitude (3:39); 14 Battle At Devil's Den (1:45); 15 Killer Angel (4:41); 16 March To Mortality (Pickett's Charge)(3:13); 17 Kathleen Mavourneen (3:15)(R.Edelman); 18 Reunion and Finale (5:44).

Review: Randy Edelman's broad score for this epic Civil War adventure is a vast tribute to the drama and tragedy of the battle that inspired Abraham Lincoln's ageless memorial address.

While a couple of traditional cues appear, the score is derived primarily from Edelman's heroic main theme, which gives the score a hugeness befitting the historical battle and its widescreen depiction. Thunderous orchestrations, rendered intimate by acoustic guitar, speak eloquently for the soldiers who fought on both sides. Synths merged with symphs lend the main theme a timeless grace as well as a tone of extreme despondence. Even though the story depicts the savagery of warfare, its primary focus remains the people involved in those battles. The score nobly follows suit. "Battle of Little Round Top," for example, is given a slow, surging undercurrent that runs throughout the scene. Rather then matching the action, Edelman attempts to reflect the feeling of the scene. Even within the dissonance of "The First Battle," with its rousing conflagration of rhythmic strings and synths and rapid strokes of drum and violin, the main theme sounds solid amid the fury of activity—capturing the spirit and heart of those so viciously engaged. And, after the fury is spent, Edelman's theme sounds tender on acoustic guitar, a splendidly intimate paean to the heroes fallen.

Ghost

1995, Milan Records; from the movie Ghost, Paramount Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestra conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineer: Sharon Rice.

Selections: 1 Unchained Melody (A. North/H. Zaret)(3:36) The Righteous Brothers; 2 Ghost (7:24); 3 Sam (5:33); 4 Ditto (3:19); 5 Carl (4:06); 6 Molly (6:17); 7 Unchained Melody (A. North/H. Zaret)(4:01); 8 End Credits (4:16); 9 Fire Escape (3:12); 10 Oda Mae & Carl (3:55).

Review: Maurice Jarre created a love theme that balances between two emotional extremes, the intense love of a young couple and the sense of sadness felt when Sam (Patrick Swayze) is murdered. The intense bond of the lovers keeps Sam's spirit earthbound until he can find a way to save Molly (Demi Moore) from the same fate. This theme is, however, completely overshadowed by the use of The Righteous Brothers' recording of "Unchained Melody" (composed by Alex North) which, for the film-going public, became Ghost's signature tune. Jarre's instrumental version of "Unchained Melody" is surprisingly busy with studio noise, perhaps because he realized the uphill battle he was saddled with and resented having to record the theme. His own love theme is also played orchestrally to contrast with the flurry of electronic effects that represent the darkness of the "other side." This gloomy mood unfortunately makes up the bulk of the album, so it's disappointing that Ghost is not as overly romantic in nature as one would expect. The 1995 reissue of the album contains two additional, but unremarkable electronic underscore tracks.

The Ghost and Mrs. Muir

1985, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Ghost and Mrs. Muir, 20th Century-Fox, 1947.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; Orchestrations: Bernard Herrmann; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Engineer: Richard Lewzey.

Selections: 1 Prelude/Local Train/The Sea (3:59); 2 The Ghost/The Storm/ The Apparition (4:43); 3 The Lights/Bedtime (2:51); 4 Poetry (2:19); 5 Lucia/Dictation/Boyhood's End/ Pastoral (3:54); 6 Nocturne (2:25); 7 London/ The Reading/ Local Train (2:34); 8 The Spring Sea (4:51); 9 Romance/Love/ Farewell (5:14); 10 The Home/Sorrow (3:18); 11 The Passing Years/The Late Sea (2:53); 12 Forever (2:43).

Review: In the 1970s, composer Elmer Bernstein created a club for fans of film music, and at their behest began to record significant scores from the past that had not been available or that were in serious danger of totally disappearing. While many of these recordings are still awaiting reissue on compact disc, this rendition of Bernard Herrmann's wonderfully lovely statement for Joseph L. Mankiewicz' 1947 light fantasy fortunately was released by Varese-Sarabande, and should be sought by anyone with a strong interest in good film music or, more generally speaking, in anything Herrmann ever composed. The most striking character of Herrmann's score is that he avoided any otherwordly effect that might have seemed too obvious. Instead, he concentrated on creating a musical canvas that relied on attractive orchestral textures, sometimes pared down to only a few instruments, at other times using the full contingent of players. Making his music even more accessible, many of the shorter cues have been brought together, making the selections more comprehensive and musically more pungent.

The Ghost and the Darkness

1996, Hollywood Records; from the movie The Ghost and the Darkness, Paramount Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; The National Philharmonic Orchestra of London, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith;

Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick; Producer and Arranger, Hindi and Swahili: George Acogny; Engineers: Richard Mitchell, Alan Myerson.

Selections: 1 Theme From "The Ghost and the Darkness" (2:12); 2 The Bridge (4:10); 3 Catch A Train (2:02); 4 Lions Attack (5:18); 5 First Time (2:01); 6 Starling's Death (5:57); 7 Lions Reign (2:41); 8 Preparations (2:47); 9 Remington's Death (2:32); 10 Prepare For Battle (2:01); 11 Final Attack (2:53); 12 Welcome To Tsavo (5:00); 13 Hamara Haath ("Our Hands Unite") (G. Acogny)(3:06) The Worldbeaters, Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan; 14 Dueling Chants, part 1: "Jungal Bahar" (G. Acogny)(3:21) The Worldbeaters, Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan; 15 Safari Ya Bamba ("Journey To Bamba")(G. Acogny)(2:33) The Worldbeaters; 16 Terere Obande (G. Acogny)(2:42) The Worldbeaters; 17 Iye Oyeha (G. Acogny)(2:14) The Worldbeaters.

Review: Although Goldsmith's mix of Irish, African and British Colonial elements in his opening theme is disappointingly literal, the bulk of The Ghost and the Darkness makes for one of the composer's best works of the '90s: a beautiful, flowing score with some amazingly powerful moments, especially when the composer brings in a vivid Hindu chant over his orchestra. Goldsmith's fluid, evocative electronic effects include a repeated breathing effect for the film's man-eating lions, some striking synthesized choral effects, and slashing mixes of vocal effects and animal sounds for the lion attacks. The style of orchestral writing sometimes recalls John Barry in its use of brass, but Goldsmith brings his unmistakable experimentation to the process and the result is probably the composer's most enjoyable album of the '90s.

Ghost Story

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Ghost Story, Universal Picture, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Philippe Sarde; Music Editor: John Caper, Jr.; Album Producer: Philippe Sarde; Engineer: Mickey Crofford.

Selections: 1 Ghost Story (3:30); 2 Accidents (4:05); 3 Mansion (2:55); 4 Love Suite (4:18); 5 Dementia (2:05); 6 Fright (2:55); 7 Regression (2:30); 8 Picnic (2:10); 9 Demise (4:08); 10 Finale (5:28).

Review: Just about the only memorable element of John Irwin's 1981 supernatural thriller is Phillipe Sarde's deliciously creepy score, a delirious Halloween treat from its opening, spidery double bass chords to the wailing solo soprano "ghost" melody interspersed throughout its cues. There are pounding, percussive chase cues, Grand Guignol-style horror underscoring that includes blasting brass exclamations and pipe organ chords, and a wonderful "danse macabre" ("The House") of scratchy, Stravinskyesque fiddle, piano, spinet and celeste. The score leads inevitably from sunny treatments of its gentle love theme down the primrose path to mournful regret and horror, mixing moments of lovely sincerity with a traditional horror movie approach that's so lovably purple you won't know whether to scream or laugh.

Ghostbusters II

1989, MCA Records; from the movie Ghostbusters II, Columbia Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Song Producers: L.A., Babyface, Jellybean Johnson, Eumir Deodato, James Taylor, Bobby Brown, Doug E. Fresh, RUN-D.M.C., Oingo Boingo, Chris Thomas, Glenn Frey, A.Z. Groove, Cornelius Mims; Album Executive Producers: Peter Afterman, Kathy Nelson; Engineer: Steve Hall.

Selections: 1 On Our Own (L.A. Reid/Babyface/D. Simmons)(4:53) Bobby Brown; 2 Supernatural (J. Johnson/T. Lewis/J. Harris)(4:35) New Edition; 3 The Promised Land (B. Caldwell/P. Gordon)(4:17) James "J.T." Taylor; 4 We're Back (B. Brown/D. Austin)(5:08) Bobby Brown; 5 Spirit (D.E. Fresh/B. Wright) (4:14) Doug E. Fresh & The Get Fresh Crew; 6 Ghostbusters (R. Parker, Jr.) (4:09) RUN-D.M.C.; 7 Flesh 'n Blood (D. Elfman)(4:16) Oingo Boingo; 8 Love Is A Cannibal (E. John/B. Taupin)(3:53) Elton John; 9 Flip City (G. Frey/H. Wolinski)(5:12) Glenn Frey; 10 Higher And Higher (G. Jackson/C. Smith/R. Miner)(4:08) Howard Huntsberry.

Review: This sequel set has the distinction of reuniting Bobby Brown and New Edition – on the same album at least. Brown's "On Our Own" is a keeper and is one of the better singles from the summer of '89, when it resided near the top of the charts. Run-D.M.C.'s "Ghostbusters" is big , hip-hoppin' fun, but the rest is much B-matter by Elton John, Oingo Boingo and the Eagles' Glenn Frey.

Ghosts of Mississippi

1997, Columbia Records; from the movie Ghosts of Mississippi, Castle Rock Entertainment/Columbia Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian, Patrick Russ; Music Editor: Scott Stambler; Orchestra conducted by Eddie Karem, Artie Kane; Album Producer: Marc Shaiman; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 I Wish I Knew How It Would Feel To Be Free (B. Taylor/D. Dallas) (4:41) Dionne Farris; 2 Prologue (6:14); 3 Myrlie Plants The Seed (1:33); 4 Bobby Gets Hooked (3:16); 5 On The Delta (:58); 6 Friday Phone Call (2:09); 7 I Will Live My Life For You (H. Salvador/M. Stellman) (2:28) Tony Bennett; 8 The Smoking Gun (1:29); 9 Klandestine Meeting (1:29); 10 Mannish Boy (M. Morganfield/E. McDaniel/M. London) (2:58) Muddy Waters; 11 Walking Blues (R. Johnson) (2:32) Robert Johnson; 12 The Thrill Is Gone (R. Hawkins/ R. Darnell) (4:37) B.B. King; 13 Busted (5:42); 14 Building The Case (1:33); 15 Bomb Scare (1:17); 16 Finding Strength (2:02); 17 Witness For The Prosecution (3:44); 18 DeLay Speaks (2:10); 19 Waiting For The Verdict (1:43); 20 Myrlie Victorious (2:41); 21 I Wish I Knew How It Would Feel To Be Free (B. Taylor/D. Dallas) (4:16) Nina Simone.

Review: This account of the life and death of civil rights activist Medgar Evers, and the events spanning 30 years that eventually led to the arrest and conviction of his killer, was powerfully enhanced by Marc Shaiman's appropriately low-key score, in which many of the cues aim to create a quiet rather than a rambunctious atmosphere. Occasionally, a vocal track sets the album on a slightly different course, with B.B. King, Muddy Waters and the ubiquitous Tony Bennett contributing their talents. Nina Simone's intense performance in "I Wish I Knew How It Would Feel to Be Free," which closes the film and the soundtrack album, is worth alone the price of admission.

Giant

1989, Capitol Records; from the movie Giant, Warner Bros., 1956.

Album Notes: Music: Dimitri Tiomkin; The Warner Bros. Orchestra, conducted by Dimitri Tiomkin, Ray Heindorf.

Selections: 1 Main Title (Giant Theme) (2:11); 2 Hunt Scene (2:59); 3 Love Theme (There's Never Been Anyone Else But You) (1:46); 4 First Love (3:25); 5 Road To Reata (5:08); 6 Jett Rink Theme (6:50); 7 Toy Trumpet March/ Christmas Morning/ Angel's Return (3:47); 8 Romantic Interludes (Love Theme) (4:38); 9 Jett Rink, Oil Baron (5:29); 10 Fight Scene (The Yellow Rose Of Texas) (D. George) (2:20) (R. Heindorf); 11 Home In Reata (4:02); 12 End Title (The Eyes Of Texas Are Upon You) (trad., arr. R. Heindorf) (:40) (R. Heindorf).

Review: The sprawling saga in Edna Ferber's novel received a sensational screen treatment in which Rock Hudson, Elizabeth Taylor and James Dean gave vivid portrayals as the characters whose lives were ultimately dwarfed by the significant social and economical changes that altered the Texan landscape between World War II and the mid-1950s. Contributing significantly to the overall impact of the film was Dimitri Tiomkin's great score, unfortunately abbreviated for its soundtrack album release and available only in mono.

Contrasting the gentle idyll between Bick Benedict, the cattle owner, and Leslie, the Maryland girl he marries and brings to Reata, his Texas home lost in the middle of an immense desolated territory ("There's Never Been Anyone Else But You"), Tiomkin created a pungent theme for Jett Rink, the envious handyman who inherits a small piece of land and becomes immensely wealthy when he discovers a huge oil field underneath his plot, first expressing his dreams and aspirations ("Jett Rink Theme"), then his unbearable selfishness and superiority ("Jett Rink, Oil Baron").

On a broader scale, the film also explored the moral and social changes in Texas, from the pervasive influence oil exerted on the society, when the cattle owners gradually lost their power to a disdainful upstart aristocracy, to the greater role racial relations began to play in this new society, all themes that received equally strong evocations in Tiomkin's profuse score.

Central to the latter was a memorable fistfight between Bick and a burly diner owner who refuses to serve Bick's stepdaughter because she is Mexican, the entire brawl set to the Mitch Miller's thrilling rendition of "The Yellow Rose of Texas," a #1 hit on the charts the year before. The new laserdisc release of the film will contain additional music from that impressive score which will complement, not duplicate, the existing CD.

The Giant of Thunder Mountain

1994, Citadel Records; from the movie The Giant of Thunder Mountain, American Happenings, 1994.

Selections: 1 Prologue (Main Theme)(1:07); 2 The Giant (1:43); 3 In The Giant's Cabin (1:53); 4 Up The Mountain (1:21); 5 Taunting The Giant (1:35); 6 Return To The Cabin (1:27); 7 Amy/ The Bear (4:15); 8 In The Forest (:49); 9 Amy And The Giant (1:28); 10 Burning The Cabin (2:00); 11 The Villain (2:43); 12 Hunting The Giant (4:36); 13 Stalking The Villain (3:39); 14 Meadow Walk (1:22); 15 Members Of The Club (1:50); 16 Wood Carving (2:46); 17 Unease (3:23); 18 Pursuit (:57); 19 Villainy (1:12); 20 Finale (2:30).

Review: A folk tale that did not make much of an impression at the box office, The Giant of Thunder Mountain inspired Lee

Holdridge to write an appropriately evocative score, rooted in folk themes and instrumentations, with some broad orchestral effects to evoke the drama itself. Lovely melodies detail the poetic aspects of the story, while stronger accents underscore moments of action, sometimes, as in "Amy/The Bear," within the same cue. It all adds up to a remarkably effective score, lyrical to a fault and very entertaining for the most part.

Album Notes: Music: Prince; Songs: Prince; Arrangers/Producers: Prince, The New Power Generation, David Z. and the Family, The Starr Company.

Selections: 1 She Spoke 2 Me (Prince) (4:19) Prince; 2 Pink Cashmere (Prince) (6:15) Prince; 3 Count The Days (3:26) The New Power Generation; 4 Girls & Boys (Prince) (5:31) Prince; 5 The Screams Of Passion (St. Paul/ Susannah) (5:27) The Family; 6 Nasty Girl (Vanity) (5:14) Vanity 6; 7 Erotic City (Prince) (3:55) Prince And The Revolution; 8 Hot Thing (Prince) (5:41) Prince; 9 Adore (Prince) (6:31) Prince; 10 The Cross (Prince) (4:46) Prince; 11 How Come U Don't Call Me Anymore (Prince) (3:53) Prince; 12 Don't Talk 2 Strangers (Prince) (3:11) Prince; 13 Girl 6 (Prince/T. Barbarella) (4:04) The New Power Generation.

Review: Prince is the master of this particular Spike Lee joint, whose soundtrack features a collection of his work plus that of long-gone spin-offs such as The Family and Vanity 6. There are a couple of new songs from his New Power Generation ("Count the Days," "Girl 6"), but it's almost unfair to ask them to hold their own alongside proven past favorites such as "Erotic City" and "The Cross."

Lennon/P. McCartney)(1:56); 15 Eleanor Rigby (J. Lennon/P. McCartney)/ Eleanor's Dream (1:01); 16 The Long And Winding Road (J. Lennon/P. McCartney)(3:47); 17 No More Lonely Nights (playout version) (4:17); 18 Goodnight Lonely Princess (3:53).

Review: To damn with faint praise, the album is better than the movie. By a little. When an artist starts covering his old hits, as Paul McCartney does on this effort, you know that can't be a good thing. And it isn't. The best thing that came out of the Broad Street project was a brief working relationship with former 10cc member Eric Stewart, who collaborated with McCartney on some decent new tunes for the film and worked with the ex-Beatle even more fruitfully on the underappreciated "Press to Play" album.

The Glass Menagerie

1987, MCA Records; from the movie The Glass Menagerie, Cineplex Odeon Films, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestra conducted by Henry Mancini; Featured Musicians: Walt Livinsky (soprano sax), Phil Bodner (clarinet/tenor sax), Mel Davis (trumpet), Dave Bargeron (trombone), Grady Tate (drums), Derek Smith (piano), Bucky Pizzarelli (guitar), Brian Torff (bass); Album Producer: Henry Mancini; Engineer: Ed Rak.

Selections: 1 Main Title (Tom's Theme)(2:11); 2 Gentlemen Callers (The Glass Menagerie Theme)(P. Bowles)(1:26); 3 Blue Roses (Laura's Theme)(2:05); 4 Laura's Private World (2:11); 5 Jonquils (The Glass Menagerie Theme)(P. Bowles)(2:58); 6 My Sister Laura (3:30); 7 The Magic Scarf (1:26); 8 Make A Wish (2:39); 9 Tom's Theme (End Credits)(2:19); 10 The Blues In Three (3:06); 11 Easy Ride (2:50); 12 Where Is Dear Old Dad? (2:57); 13 The Rumba You Saved For Me (2:36); 14 Slow And Sassy (6:00); 15 Tango Paradiso (3:34); 16 Paradise Dance Hall Blues (3:20).

Review: A sensitive adaptation of Tennessee Williams 1954 stage play, directed by Paul Newman and starring Joanne Woodward (Newman's wife), The Glass Menagerie provided Henry Mancini with a rare opportunity to compose an unusually wistful score in which the dark poetic accents evoke strong emotions and unrealized dreams. Central to the score is the theme for Laura, "Blue Roses," the pathetic crippled waif, forever hoping that a gentleman will call for her and whose life is shattered as a result. Also strongly suggestive is the film's main theme, "Jonquils," which gives the score a solid romantic anchor. In the midst of the dreamy moods suggested by the action, Mancini also created some effective dance numbers that enliven his music, including "The Blues in Three," "The Rumba You Saved for Me," "Slow and Sassy," "Tango Paradiso," and "Paradise Dance Hall Blues," among others, all of which have been placed at the end of the recording in a rather uninspired bit of sequencing.

The Glenn Miller Story

1985, MCA; from the movie The Glenn Miller Story, Universal Pictures, 1954.

Album Notes: The Universal-International Orchestra, conducted by Joseph Gershenson; Featured Artists: Louis Armstrong and the All-Stars: Louis Armstrong (trumpet), Trummie Young (trombone), Barney Bigard (clarinet), Billy Kyle (piano), Bud Freeman (tenor sax), Kenny John (drums), Arvell Shaw (bass).

Selections: 1 Moonlight Serenade (M. Parish/I. Mills)(2:28); 2 Tuxedo Junction (B. Feyne/W. Johnson/E. Hawkins/J. Dash)(2:32); 3 Little Brown Jug (G. Miller/J. Winner)(3:04); 4 St. Louis Blues (W.C. Handy)(3:32); 5 Basin Street Blues (S. Williams)(7:16); 6 In The Mood (A. Razaf/J. Garland)(3:10); 7 A String Of Pearls (E. DeLange/J. Gray)(2:30); 8 Pennsylvania 6-5000 (J. Gray/C. Sigman)(3:10); 9 American Patrol (F.W. Meacham)(3:24); 10 Otchi-Tchor-Ni-Ya (trad.)(7:24).

Review: James Stewart is quite believable as Glenn Miller in the otherwise highly romanticized screen biopic based on the life of the big band leader and Air Force pilot. The music, too, plays with great dynamic drive, sounds authentic, with the U-I Studio Orchestra, conducted by Joseph Gershenson, revisiting the hits from the Miller band, including "Moonlight Serenade," "Tuxedo Junction," "In the Mood," and "Pennsylvania 6-5000," among others. But the true highlight in this soundtrack album, as it is in the film, is a scorching version of "Basin Street Blues" by Louis Armstrong and his All-Stars, whose performance is the real thing. No... bones about it!

Glory

1994, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Glory, Tri-Star Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Music Editors: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Featured Artists: The Boys Choir Of Harlem, Dr. Walter J. Turnbull, director; Album Producers: James Horner, Shawn Murphy; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 A Call To Arms (3:07); 2 After Antietam (2:39); 3 Lonely Christmas (1:54); 4 Forming The Regiment (5:26); 5 The Whipping (2:09); 6 Burning The Town Of Darien (2:30); 7 Brave Words, Braver Deeds (3:09); 8 The Year Of Jubilee (2:25); 9 Preparations For Battle (7:32); 10 Charging Fort Wagner (2:51); 11 An Epitaph To War (2:32); 12 Closing Credits (6:51).

Review: James Horner's music for this impassioned Civil War drama reveals a powerful depth of feeling and a profound sense of honor for the black soldiers of the 54th Regiment. Horner's poignant theme for the boys' choir and orchestra runs throughout the motif-filled variations and historical music that form the score's musical canvas. His single theme maintains the music's focus on its heroes, the soldiers of the 54th. Though war assaults them on every side and ultimately overcomes them, their glorious theme sounds solemnly and nobly through it all. With superb orchestration and outstanding sound—the low end drums and percussion sound through brilliantly on the CD—the music is grand yet intimate, intensely dramatic yet incredibly poignant. The full choir intones purposefully during the climactic battle scenes, chanting like resolute angels joining the 54th in their final, hopeless charge against Fort Baxter. The score is fully emotive and vastly memorable. The music, as with the film's images, lingers long and is presented in one of Horner's finest compositions.

Targioni-Tozzetti/G. Menasci) (8:13); 17 Coda: The Godfather Finale (2:28).

Review: Francis Ford Coppola's impressive treatment of Mario Puzo's novel about the ups and downs of a Mafia family has long been one of the screen's most successful trilogies. Matching colorful characters and narrative intensity with sensational portrayals and effective cinematography, Coppola created a fresco of incredible scope, vitality and beauty, its sympathetic views of some rather shady people notwithstanding.

As important to the success of the original 1972 film as all its other ingredients is Nino Rota's exceptional score, which beautifully captures the flavor and the essence of the screen drama, and helps take it to a higher level of importance and recognition. Both the "Main Theme," a mournful waltz heard in various guises at different times throughout the action, and the equally popular "Love Theme," achieved hit status in countless cover versions and vocal/instrumental renditions.

Unfortunately, the powerful atmosphere suggested by Rota's original score is considerably diluted by Carmine Coppola's contributions in the following two films. In both, the best musical moments belong to Rota who easily outshines Coppola, whose flair for musical underscoring is mediocre at best. In all three recordings, pop vocals provide an extra dimension to the scores, with an uncredited singer warbling "I Have But One Heart," which should have been performed by Frank Sinatra or Jerry Vale for best results, in the first album; and Al Martino effectively handling "To Each His Own" in the third volume. In the last album, a performance of "Promise Me You'll Remember" by Harry Connick, Jr. is easily dispensable. Overall sound quality in the three albums varies considerably, with a great amount of distortion noticeable in the first.

Gold Diggers: The Secret of Bear Mountain

1995, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Gold Diggers: The Secret of Bear Mountain, Universal Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Joel McNeely; Orchestrations: David Slonaker, Art Kempel, Joel McNeely; Music Editor: Michael Ryan; Orchestra conducted by Joel McNeely; Album Producer: Joel McNeely; Engineer: Geoff Foster.

Selections: 1 Bear Mountain (3:39); 2 Exploring The Cave (1:25); 3 The Legend Of Molly Morgan (1:50); 4 Summer Adventures (5:10); 5 A Terrible Tale (2:25); 6 The Great Rescue (5:04); 7 Into The Lake (2:10; 8 Crystal Cavern (3:41); 9 Glow Worms! (4:32); 10 Back From The Dead (2:09); 11 Molly Morgan's Gold (4:32); 12 The Flying Song (C. Hay/C. Fischer)(5:00) Colin Hay.

Review: The story of two adventurous young girls, Beth and Jody (played by Christina Ricci and Anna Chlumsky), one the savvy street-wise urbanite, the other the rebellious country pumpkin (and bumpkin), who set out to discover a legendary cache of gold in the wilds of the Pacific Northwest, Gold Diggers: The Secret of Bear Mountain elicited a strong, flavorful score from Joel McNeely, whose only major fault is that too often it telegraphed the screen action. On its own, however, it reveals several themes that are quite attractive, including the folk-oriented "Legend of Molly Morgan," laid out in broad, colorful terms. "The Flying Song," performed by Colin Hay, in a style that sometimes evokes Phil Collins, is a fine coda to the recording.

Golden Gate

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Golden Gate, Samuel Goldwyn, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Elliot Goldenthal; Orchestrations: Elliot Goldenthal, Robert Elhai; The Pro Arte Orchestra, conducted by Jonathan Sheffer; Featured Musicians: Billy Drewes (saxophone), Elliot Goldenthal (keyboards, vocals), Richard Martinez (keyboards), James Haddad (percussion), Steve Gorn (bamboo flute), Matthias Gohl (keyboards, Scott Lee (bass); Album Producer: Matthias Gohl; Engineers: Steve McLaughlin, Bill Emmons.

Selections: 1 Golden Gate (3:36); 2 The Woman Cries (3:34); 3 Between Bridge And Water (1:55); 4 Tender Deception (3:33); 5 Bopathonix Hex (2:48); 6 The Woman Warrior (2:30); 7 The Softest Heat (3:45); 8 The Moon Watches (1:43); 9 Whisper Dance (1:52); 10 Kwan Ying (2:46); 11 Motel Street Meltdown (1:24); 12 Judgment On Mason Street (2:02); 13 Write It As Time (:28); 14 Between Bridge And Sky (2:51).

Review: Elliot Goldenthal created a fascinating eclectic mix of musical styles that includes jazz, blues and Chinese motifs for this story of an FBI agent who becomes involved with the Chinese community in San Francisco during the McCarthy witch hunt of the 1950s. The score has a dark, brooding quality which does well to capture the mood of the era. Goldenthal himself performs on "Motel Street Meltdown," a piece reminiscent of the bizarre vocal arrangements featured in the TV series "Twin Peaks."

Goldeneye

1995, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Goldeneye, United Artists, 1995.

Selections: 1 Goldeneye (Bono/The Edge)(4:46) Tina Turner; 2 The Goldeneye Overture (4:24); 3 Ladies First (2:44); 4 We Share The Same Passions (4:46); 5 A Little Surprise For You (2:02); 6 The Severnaya Suite (2:07); 7 Our Lady Of Smolensk (1:01); 8 Whispering Statues (3:26); 9 Run, Shoot And Jump (1:05); 10 A Pleasant Drive In St. Petersburg (4:28); 11 Fatal Weakness (4:43); 12 That's What Keeps You Alone (3:17); 13 Dish Out Of Water (3:57); 14 The Scale To Hell (3:43); 15 For Ever, James (2:01); 16 The Experience Of Love (E. Serra/R. Hine)(5:57) Eric Serra.

Review: Whenever someone other than John Barry comes in to score a James Bond movie, you shouldn't hold your breath hoping the results will come close to being a Barry-caliber outing. In fact, the best you can often hope for is that the score won't be an outright dud like Eric Serra's music for Goldeneye, Pierce Brosnan's first outing as 007. At times an embarrassing collection of techno/industrial tracks with static orchestral lines, Serra's Goldeneye gets off on the wrong foot with what can be best described as "Bond on Bongos" before heading off in other confused directions. His music for the film's tank chase, "A Pleasant Drive in St.Petersburg," included here but thrown out of the film itself, is about as laughable and headache-inducing as the rest of his ill-considered score. The serviceable main theme, performed by Tina Turner and written by U2 members Bono and The Edge, fares much better, but it, too, remains far removed from its more successful predecessors.

Andy Dursin

Goldfinger

1995, EMI-America; from the movie Goldfinger, United Artists, 1964.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Lyrics: Leslie Bricusse, Anthony Newley; Orchestra conducted by John Barry.

Selections: 1 Goldfinger/Into Miami (2:47) Shirley Bassey; 2 Alpine Drive/Auric's Factory (5:24); 3 Oddjob's Pressing Engagement (3:05); 4 Bond Back In Action Again (2:29); 5 Teasing The Korean (2:12); 6 Gassing The Gangsters (1:03); 7 Goldfinger (2:08); 8 Dawn Raid On Fort Knox (5:43); 9 The Arrival Of The Bomb and Count Down (3:25); 10 The Death Of Goldfinger/End Titles (2:34).

Review: The best, and probably most effective, contribution by John Barry to the James Bond films, Goldfinger is the score to which all others have to measure up. With its strong array of thematic material, powerful melodies, suggestive cues and varied instrumentations, the score managed to musically excite as much as the screen action itself. Even Shirley Bassey's over-the-top performance of the title tune, which is badly distorted in the recording itself, contains more energy than any vocal in the other films, including Ms. Bassey's rendition of "Diamonds are Forever" or Tom Jones' vibrant interpretation of "Thunderball".

More to the point, Barry's use of electric guitar, brass instruments, and percussive devices to underscore the most stirring moments in the action, defined a style that has been imitated (including by Barry himself) but never equalled in terms of raw vitality. In cue after cue, the composer challenges the listener with muscular musical ideas, electrifying sounds, and pervasive concepts that are sustained throughout the score.

In derisive comments he often made about his contributions to the series, Barry was creating "Mickey Mouse" film music, but it is in fact everything film music should be about—bold, assertive, enthusiastic, a total complement to the screen action, and something one might feel compelled to listen to frequently, just because it provides such pleasure.

The CD, incidentally, repeats the flaws in the original LP, and fails to include the four tracks "Golden Girl," "Death of Tilley," "The Laser Beam," and "Pussy Galore's Flying Circus" initially available only in a British pressing, but subsequently released in this country in the 2-CD "30th Anniversary" package (q.v.).

Gone Fishin'

1997, Hollywood Records; from the movie Gone Fishin', Hollywood Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Music Editor: John La Salandra; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineer: Elton Ahi.

Selections: 1 Down In The Everglades (T. Brown) (2:35) Willie Nelson; 2 Gone Fishin' (1:48); 3 Speed Boat Race (2:14); 4 Fisherman's Heaven (1:59); 5 Swamp Music (1:26); 6 Discovering The Map (1:05); 7 Airboats (3:23); 8 Catch's Advice (1:06); 9 Alligators (1:42); 10 The Early Days (Opening) (2:16); 11 Unhitched (2:43); 12 Out Of Gas (2:04); 13 Life Is Good (1:03); 14 A Stolen Vehicle (:41); 15 Sleepwalking (3:32); 16 Closing (1:57); 17 What Went Wrong (A. Kury/R. Cain/P. Love/S. Kromos/M. Lord) (3:40) The Love Junkies; 18 Best Friend (A. Kury/R. Cain/P. Love/S. Kromos/M. Lord) (3:02) The Love Junkies.

Review: A strongly colloquial score, with folk undertones, Randy Edelman tapped into a new creative vein for this amiable comedy about two long-time fishing friends who win a grand prize vacation to the Florida Everglades, only to be confronted with all kinds of misfires and adventures they had hardly expected along with their winning. At times humorous, at times wistfully reflective, the overall tone of the score is cleverly rollicking in keeping with the action itself, with the most eventful moments receiving appropriate musical comments that suggestively underline them, while making for an entertaining soundtrack album. "Down in the Everglades," by Willie Nelson, and two vocals by The Love Junkies add a welcome touch to the music.

Gone with the Wind

1988, Stanyan Records; from the movie Gone with the Wind, Selznick International/M-G-M Pictures, 1939.

Album Notes: Music: Max Steiner; The London Sinfonia, conducted by Muir Mathieson; CD Producer: Rod McKuen; Engineer: Steve Hoffman.

Selections: 1 Tara's Theme/Invitation To The Dance/Melanie's Theme/ Ashley/ The Prayer/Bonnie Blue Flag/Scarlett O'Hara/Scarlett's Agony/War (16:52); 2 Belle Watling/Bonnie's Death/Rhett Butler/Bonnie's Theme/Ashley And Melanie (Love Theme)/The Oath/Return To Tara (20:50); bonus tracks: 3 America, America: Farewell Son/The Voyage (M. Hadjidakis) (5:39); 4 For Whom The Bell Tolls: The Bridge (V. Young) (4:16); 5 Spellbound: Main Theme (M. Rozsa) (4:44); 6 America, America: Frustration, Dreams And Loneliness (M. Hadjidakis) (4:14); 7 The Cardinal: Theme (Stay With Me) (J. Moross) (2:48); 8 The Prime Of Miss Jean Brodie: Overture (R. McKuen) (5:46).

Review: The lavish 2-CD set from Rhino, replete with profuse liner notes and illustrations, documents one of the all-time great film scores, and includes one of the most celebrated tunes from the movies, "Tara's Theme." It is also the most complete and, true to Rhino's usual standards of excellence, its presentation is nothing short of superb.

The variable sonics are the main drawback here, but it's the original music as recorded in 1939, when prevailing techniques were a far cry from today's norms. Despite its technical shortcomings the score largely holds its own, and emerges as a grandiose achievement.

The 1973 RCA Victor rerecording, with the National Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Charles Gerhardt, while not as comprehensive, boasts superb stereo sound, and playing that is faithful to the spirit of the original.

The only interest in the Stanyan set, conducted by Muir Mathieson, also in stereo, is the fact that it was the first "authentic recording of the complete score authorized by the composer," a claim that is now superseded by the Rhino release. In addition, the bonus selections can only be viewed as unnecessary padding, with some (America, America and The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie) oddly chosen in this context.

Good Morning, Vietnam

1988, A&M Records; from the movie Good Morning, Vietnam, Touchstone Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Album Producer: David Anderle; Engineer: Arnie Acosta.

Selections: 1 Adrian Cronauer (2:09); 2 Nowhere To Run (B. Holland/L. Dozier/E. Holland)(2:56) Martha Reeves & The Vandellas; 3 I Get Around (B. Wilson)(2:09) The Beach Boys; 4

Game Of Love (C. Ballard, Jr.)(2:04) Wayne Fontana & The Mindbenders; 5 Adrian Cronauer (:15); 6 Sugar And Spice (F. Nightingale)(2:13) The Searchers; 7 Adrian Cronauer (:47); 8 Liar, Liar (J. Donna)(1:51) The Castaways; 9 The Warmth Of The Sun (B. Wilson/M. Love) (2:48) The Beach Boys; 10 Adrian Cronauer (:34); 11 I Got You (I Feel Good)(J. Brown)(2:44) James Brown; 12 Adrian Cronauer (:08); 13 Baby Please Don't Go (J. Williams)2:40) Them; 14 Adrian Cronauer (:33); 15 Danger Heartbreak Dead Ahead (W. Stevenson/C. Paul/I.J. Hunter)(2:28) The Marvelettes; 16 Five O'Clock World (A. Reynolds)(2:18) The Vogues; 17 California Sun (H. Glover/M. Levy)(2:22) The Rivieras; 18 Adrian Cronauer (1:21); 19 What A Wonderful World (G. Weiss/B. Thiele)(2:48) Louis Armstrong.

Review: Credit this album with establishing Louis Armstrong's "What a Wonderful World", deftly deployed over harsh images of warfare, as a cultural standard, a blessing or a curse depending on how many commercials you've heard it in. Robin Williams' monologues are a joy to have, though the excerpts are often too short. And there's a wealth of tremendous '60s tunes, some of which—such as the Marvelettes' "Danger Heartbreak Dead Ahead," the Searchers' "Sugar and Spice" and the Vogues "Five O'Clock World"—are refreshing choices.

The Good Son

1993, Fox Records; from the movie The Good Son, 20th Century-Fox, 1993.

Selections: 1 The Good Son (2:22); 2 Hospital (:51); 3 Mark Arrives (2:49); 4 Evil (2:20); 5 Goodbye (1:41); 6 Treehouse (2:00); 7 Rocks And Rails (1:34); 8 Dog Chase (2:43); 9 Mom (1:47); 10 Killing The Dog (1:55); 11 Mr. Highway (2:13); 12 Dark (2:56); 13 Skating And Drowning (3:26); 14 Funeral (1:48); 15 Susan (2:28); 16 Richard's Duck (1:18); 17 Threat (1:16); 18 The Cliff (4:26); 19 End Credits (4:35).

Review: Elmer Bernstein, a master at evoking a wide range of different moods, came up with one of his most attractive efforts for this film starring Macaulay Culkin, about an orphan boy, and his younger cousin, a psychopath with murderous instincts. Relying on the power of strong, romantic themes, at times gloriously expressed on the piano or Cynthia Millar's oddly atmospheric Ondes Martenot, the music unfolds with often striking beauty, creating an aura that is most fetching. Even the tracks less likely to elicit a positive reaction because of the downbeat moods they evoke ("Killing the Dog," "Skating and Drowning," "Funeral") come out strongly, thanks to the composer's skill at writing particularly exquisite melodies. An unusual, though remarkably sensitive score, only marred by the short playing time of some of the cues.

The Good, the Bad and the Ugly

1985, EMI-Manhattan; from the movie The Good, the Bad and the Ugly, United Artists, 1968.

Selections: 1 The Good, The Bad and The Ugly (Main Title)(2:38); 2 The Sundown (1:12); 3 The Strong (2:20); 4 The Desert (5:11); 5 The Carriage Of The Spirits (2:06); 6 March (2:49); 7 The Story Of A Soldier (3:50); 8 March Without Hope (1:40); 9 The Death Of A Soldier (3:05); 10 The Ecstasy Of Gold (3:22); 11 The Trio (5:00).

Review: Ennio Morricone had one of his most memorable spaghetti western scores with this film by Sergio Leone, a sprawling saga in which Clint Eastwood, in one of his best film performances, and Eli Wallach, in a delightful portrayal as Eastwood's snarling partner and foe, are the main protagonists. The effective set of cues created by the composer (and included in this sadly incomplete soundtrack album) provides the appropriate musical setting for some of the most relevant scenes in this overblown story about two bounty hunters who become unwilling soldiers of fortune while on their way to finding a hidden cache of gold. Among the tracks that stand out, "March," "The Story of a Soldier," "March without Hope" and "The Ecstasy of Gold" have justifiably become popular among fans of the stunning film. But the whole score, even in its abbreviated presentation, is quite successful at evoking the stirring climate that pervades this engrossing, and grandly over-the-top, western epic.

GoodFellas

1990, Atlantic Records; from the movie GoodFellas, Warner Bros., 1990.

Selections: 1 Rags To Riches (J. Ross/R. Adler)(2:49) Tony Bennett; 2 Sincerely (H. Fuqua/A. Freed)(3:04) The Moonglows; 3 Speedo (E. Navarro) (2:19) The Cadillacs; 4 Stardust (H. Carmichael/M. Parish)(3:12) Billy Ward & The Dominoes; 5 Look In My Eyes (R. Barrett)(2:18) The Chantels; 6 Life Is But A Dream (R. Cita/H. Weiss)(2:34) The Harptones; 7 Remember (Walkin' In The Sand)(G. Morton)(2:20) The Shangri-Las; 8 Baby I Love You (R. Shannon)(2:36) Aretha Franklin; 9 Beyond The Sea (C. Trenet/J. Lawrence) (2:52) Bobby Darin; 10 Sunshine Of Your Love (J. Bruce/P. Brown/E. Clapton) (4:10) Cream; 11 Mannish Boy (M. Morganfield/M. London/E. McDaniel)(5:17) Muddy Waters; 12 Layla (piano exit)(E. Clapton/J. Gordon)(3:52) Derek & The Dominos.

Review: A brief '50s and '60s set that starts in the ballroom, with Tony Bennett singing "Rags to Riches," moves to the street corner for the doo-wop heaven of the Moonglows, Cadillacs and others, then winds its way through girl group pop before ending up at Muddy Waters' gritty "Mannish Boy" and Cream's power rock classic "Sunshine of Your Love." Not a bad ride, but it's docked a full bone for including only the piano outro to Derek & the Dominos' "Layla."

A Goofy Movie

1995, Walt Disney Records; from the animated feature A Goofy Movie, Walt Disney Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Carter Burwell, Don Davis; Orchestrations: Shirley Walker, Don Davis, Lolita Ritmanis, Bruce Fowler; Music Editors: Adam Smalley, Tom Carlson; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker, Don Davis; Album Producers: Carter Burwell, Don Davis; Engineers: Michael Becker, Joe Gastwirt.

Selections: 1 I2I (P. DeRemer/R. Freeland)(4:02) Tevin Campbell, Rosie Gaines; 2 After Today (T. Snow/J. Feldman)(2:21) Aaron Lohr; 3 Stand Out (P. DeRemer/R. Freeland)(3:00) Tevin Campbell; 4 On The Open Road (T. Snow/J. Feldman)(3:01) Bill Farmer, Aaron Lohr; 5 Lester's Possum Park (R. Petersen/K. Quinn)(1:25) Kevin Quinn; 6 Nobody Else But You (T. Snow/J. Feldman)(2:35) Bill Farmer, Aaron Lohr; 7 Opening Fanfare/Max's Dream (1:50); 8 Deep Sludge (2:04); 9 Bigfoot (2:14); 10 Hi Dad Soup (1:32); 11 Runaway Car (2:17); 12 Junction (:45); 13 The Waterfall!/The Truth (3:10).

Review: The urban contemporary stylings in some of the vocals on this Disney soundtrack album have a flavor that contrasts with the characters originally developed by the master animator, and show how removed from its lily white image the studio has become in recent years. The fact that the songs probably will not appeal to the film's core audience of underage tykes, or that their elders are unlikely to find anything remotely redeeming in a cartoon about Goofy leaves open the question about who will eventually be attracted to this album. The question also raises a doubt about the score created by Carter Burwell which will have a hard time finding an audience. Smart film music fans, always eager to discover some of their favorite composers' latest creations, will be a happy exception and will be amply rewarded with a series of short compact cues that are attractively laid out and cohesively creative. Within the limits set by the animated feature, Burwell and Don Davis have invented some nifty musical moments that are effective and enjoyable, with "Bigfoot" and "Runaway Car" particularly noticeable among them.

Gorillas in the Mist

1988, MCA Records; from the movie Gorillas in the Mist, Warner Bros., 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The Maurice Jarre Electronic Ensemble: Michael Boddicker, Ralph Grierson, Judd Miller, Michael Fisher, Dan Greco, Rick Marvin, Nyle Steiner, Emil Richards, Alex Acuna; Featured Musicians: Dennis Karmazan, Ron Leonard (cellos); Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Joel Moss; Assistant Engineers: Nick "Beemer" Basich, Phil Jamtaas, Jim Mitchell, George Smith, Bill Talbott.

Selections: 1 African Wonderment (14:22); 2 Black Magic (3:13); 3 Making Contact (5:53); 4 Tenderness and Turmoil (9:40); 5 The Death Of The Digit (5:49); 6 Gorillas In The Mist (5:07).

Review: On various occasions, Maurice Jarre has indulged in creating scores that made a pervasive use of synthesizers, unfortunately not always creatively or interestingly. There have been some happy exceptions, and his score for Gorillas in the Mist happens to be one of them. Somehow, the African background for this film about anthropologist Dian Fossey, its exotic sounds, and Jarre's own electronic inventions, supplemented by colorful orchestral textures, seem to blend very well to create a score of great scope and creative importance. Essential to the appreciation of it are two lengthy extrapolations, "African Wonderment," which describes in pure musical terms the landscape and its rich fauna, and "Tenderness and Turmoil," in which Fossey's mind sets find a melodic expression. The other selections are more directly linked to the action, about Fossey's attempts to survey and study the life of gorillas, and the primates' response to her presence in their midst. The score received an Oscar nomination and one can easily understand why.

Gorky Park

1983, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Gorky Park, Orion Pictures, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Greg McRitchie; Music Editor: George Brand; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineers: Dan Vallen, Danny Hersch.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:44); 2 Following Girwill (2:59); 3 Irina's Theme (2:34); 4 Following KGB (2:04); 5 Chase Through The Park (1:56); 6 Arkady And Irina (2:40); 7 Faceless Bodies (1:54); 8 Irina's Chase (3:44); 9 The Sable Shed (6:42); 10 Airport Farewell (3:50); 11 Releasing The Sables/End Titles (4:18).

Review: A rather odd East-West crime story about a Russian detective (William Hurt) investigating the murder of three men whose bodies were discovered in Moscow's Gorky Park, and the American sable trader (Lee Marvin) he eventually links with the deed, Gorky Park prompted James Horner to write a suitable score, in which the Russian references are swiftly borrowed from Tchaikovsky, enabling him to concentrate on an old-fashioned set of cues that could have been composed for any drama, whatever the setting. With Joanna Pacula providing an extra element to the mix, the score reveals many contrasting moods, all beautifully developed, from the romantic accents in "Irina's Theme" and "Arkady and Irina," to the throbbing riffs in "Chase Through the Park" and "The Sable Shed." While an early effort by Horner, this is also an interesting album well worth looking for.

The Graduate

1987, Columbia Records; from the movie The Graduate, Embassy Pictures, 1967.

Album Notes: Music: Dave Grusin; Orchestra conducted by Dave Grusin; Songs: Paul Simon, Art Garfunkel; Album Producer: Teo Macero.

Selections: 1 The Sound Of Silence (P. Simon)(3:07) Simon & Garfunkel; 2 The Singleman Party Foxtrot (2:54); 3 Mrs. Robinson (P. Simon)(1:16) Simon & Garfunkel; 4 Sunporch Cha-Cha-Cha (2:55); 5 Scarborough Fair/ Canticle (Interlude)(P. Simon/ A. Garfunkel)(1:43); 6 On The Strip (2:01); 7 April Come She Will (P. Simon)(1:51); 8 The Folks (2:28); 9 Scarborough Fair/ Canticle (P. Simon/A. Garfunkel)(6:23) Paul Simon, Art Garfunkel; 10 A Great Effect (4:08); 11 The Big Bright Green Pleasure Machine (P. Simon)(1:47); 12 Whew (2:12); 13 Mrs. Robinson (P. Simon)(1:14) Paul Simon, Art Garfunkel; 14 The Sound Of Silence (P. Simon)(3:08) Paul Simon, Art Garfunkel.

Review: Not that it set out to be this way, but The Graduate should probably be remembered today as the film that, in effect, signalled the start of a 10-year period during which instrumental music almost totally disappeared from the screens. The tremendous success of this album, fueled in large part by the songs written by Simon and Garfunkel, attracted Hollywood producers to the incredible profits that could be generated for them when a soundtrack album went gold and beyond. And the best way to achieve this, it seemed, was to replace instrumental scores by rock songs that could attract a younger, wider audience. As a result, many of the most respected film composers in town suddenly found themselves unemployed. Some, like Bernard Herrmann, Miklos Rozsa and Dimitri Tiomkin, chose to seek a new career in Europe, where their talents were still admired and widely appreciated. Others, like Elmer Bernstein, "crossed over" and began writing innocuous music scores that could fit neatly between the various songs on the soundtracks while being unobtrusive and totally unmemorable. It would take John Williams and Star Wars, in 1977, to bring back film music to its former glory, and enable a new generation of composers like James Horner, Danny Elfman and Alan Silvestri, to draw on their predecessors' contributions to the screen and make a name for themselves with broad-scale instrumental scores.

Meanwhile, The Graduate has its moments, notably its evocative pop songs, and no doubt deserves to be in every collection.

Graffiti Bridge

1990, Paisley Park Records; from the movie Graffiti Bridge, 1990.

Album Notes: Songs: Prince; Orchestral Arrangements: Clare Fischer; Featured Performers: Morris Day, Sheila E. (drums), Boni Soyer (organ), Candy Dulfer, Eric Leeds (saxophone), Atlanta Bliss (trumpet), Joseph Fiddler (keyboards); Album Producer: Prince; Engineers: Michael Koppelman, Dave Friedlander, Tom Garneau, Remi Jiya, Keith Cohen.

Selections: 1 Can't Stop This Feeling I Got (4:24); 2 New Power Generation (3:39); 3 Release It (Prince/L. Seacer, Jr.) (3:54) The Time; 4 The Question Of U (4:00); 5 Elephants And Flowers (3:54); 6 Round And Round (3:55) Tevin Campbell; 7 We Can Funk (Prince/G. Clinton) (5:28) George Clinton, Prince; 8 Joy In Repetition (4:53); 9 Love Machine (Prince/L. Seacer, Jr./M. Day) (3:34) Morris Day, Elisa, The Time; 10 Tick... Tick... Bang (3:30); 11 Shake! (4:01) The Time; 12 Thieves In The Temple (3:20); 13 The Latest Fashion (4:02) The Time, Prince; 14 Melody Cool (3:39) Mavis Staples; 15 Still Would Stand All Time (5:23); 16 Graffiti Bridge (3:51) Mavis Staples, Tevin Campbell;

17 New Power Generation, Part II (2:57) Mavis Staples, Tevin Campbell, T.C. Ellis, Robin Power.

Review: With the film career of the artist formerly known as Prince now taking a well-deserved vacation, we can acknowledge that the best way to enjoy his movies is to play the soundtrack recordings instead. Case in point: this filmed "sequel" to Purple Rain comes within a couple of lively production numbers of being wholly forgettable, and yet the soundtrack CD finds the Prince "Ur-groove" in the very first track and never lets it go. The result is a party album hot enough to help you forget the money you spent on the movie ticket. Prince regulars Morris Day and The Time pitch in, as do guest vocalists including Mavis Staples and George Clinton.

Grand Canyon

1991, RCA Records; from the movie Grand Canyon, 20th Century-Fox, 1991.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (3:36); 2 Claire Returns The Baby (1:11); 3 My Sister Lives Around Here/Those Rocks (1:59); 4 Bloodstain (2:05); 5 The Baby (2:48); 6 Don't Work Late (:52); 7 Mack's Flashback (1:22); 8 Don't Want Out (6:44); 9 Searching For A Heart (W. Zevon) (4:16) Warren Zevon; 10 Mack And Claire's Dream (5:23); 11 Dee In Brentwood (:48); 12 Otis Runs (3:53); 13 You White? (1:27); 14 Keep The Baby (1:34); 15 Doesn't Matter (:45); 16 Grand Canyon Fanfare/End Titles (4:10).

Review: An emotionally moving, superior effort by James Newton Howard that balances the perceptions of life in modern day Los Angeles, capturing the fears and hopes of those who struggle to survive in the sometimes oppressive, sometimes cold world of the inner city. Although an orchestra is used over the entire score, Howard often primarily utilizes guitars, percussion and/or synthesizers to keep the scope small and personal. The people are the core of this story, the city only the locale. At times, a chorus passes through, personifying our daydreams of a brighter future. The music deftly alternates through several changes in musical style. Each represents the personal stories of the film's main characters, the privileged upper middle class couple who find themselves growing apart, and those trapped at the bottom in East L.A., struggling to hold onto their dignity and self respect. As their lives converge, each group becomes a source of strength for the other, and Howard melds their themes together, ultimately culminating with the exuberant "Grand Canyon Fanfare," the score's only large scale orchestral cue. Warren Zevon's song "Searching for a Heart," completely appropriate to the mood, is well placed within the album, breaking the score into two suites.

Grand Slam

1989, Grudge Records; from the movie Grand Slam, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Bill Conti; Orchestra conducted by Bill Conti; Album Producer: Bill Conti.

Selections: 1 Grand Slam (B. Conti/M. Mueller) (3:16) Little Richard; 2 Home Run Jam (2:49); 3 Dreams (B. Conti/B. Henry) (3:42) Roberta Flack; 4 New Born Child (B. Conti/B. Henry) (4:11) Ashford & Simpson; 5 Beverly Glen Cop (4:28); 6 You Don't Scare Me (N. Diamond/P. Cook) (3:07) Linda Williams; 7 Rockabilly Baseball (3:00); 8 We're Winning (I. Hayes) (5:15) Isaac Hayes; 9 Dreams (3:59).

Review: Yet another baseball film, in which Bill Conti's contribution is reduced to a scant four cues. In this case, it really doesn't matter, because Conti, a composer whose career started on a high note but who has not sustained the hopes he nurtured at the time, uses his score to develop dry ideas that go nowhere. Driven by an electronic drum that sounds too dry and too robotic, his cues have all the excitement of a wet rag, with the music in search of an attractive melodic hook that never materializes. The rest of the selections consists of very conventional vocals, with Roberta Flack faring the best with her sensitive performance on "Dreams," and Little Richard the worse with his abrasive reading of the line "Ain't nothin' like a grand slam to make you feel like a real man..." Forget it!

The Great Caruso

1989, RCA Victor; from the movie The Great Caruso, M-G-M, 1951.

Album Notes: tracks 1-8: The RCA Victor Orchestra, conducted by Constantine Callinicos; tracks 9-20: Orchestra conducted by Paul Baron; Album Producer: Nathaniel S. Johnson; Engineer: David Satz.

Selections: RIGOLETTO (G. VERDI): 1 Questa o quella (1:45); 2 La donna e mobile (2:02); 3 Parmi veder le lagrime (4:37);

TOSCA (G. PUCCINI): 4 Recondita armonia (2:41); 5 E lucevan le stelle (3:03);

L'ELISIR D'AMORE (G. DONIZETTI): 6 Una furtiva lagrima (4:12);

LA GIOCONDA (A. PONCHIELLI): 7 Cielo e mar (3:59);

PAGLIACCI (R. LEONCAVALLO): 8 Vesti la giunna (3:34); 9 Vieni sul mar (anon.) (2:26); 10 Senza nisciuno (DeCurtis/Barbieri) (2:47); 11 Musica proibita (Gastaldon) (3:16); 12 Vaghissima sembianza (Donaudy) (2:54); 13 Serenata (Caruso/Bracco) (3:49); 14 Lolita (Buzzi/Peccia) (3:19); 15 Luna d'estate (Tosti) (2:18); 16 L'alba separa dalla luce l'ombra (D'Annunzio/Tosti) (3:04); 17 Pour un baiser (Doncieux/Tosti) (2:15); 18 La mia canzone (Cimmino/ Tosti) (3:12); 19 Ideale (Errico/Tosti) (3:09); 20 Santa Lucia (Palardi) (2:40).

Review: At the height of his career, Mario Lanza starred as Enrico Caruso in a highly fictional account of the great singer's life made in Hollywood. In the film, Lanza sang several operatic tunes popularized by Caruso, including the eight selections that were eventually released as the film's "soundtrack" album. Eight years later, he recorded additional songs Caruso had either created or covered in his time, all of them from a more popular source. Film fans will notice that three of these were orchestrated by a young arranger named Ennio Morricone. Otherwise, this set is strictly for devotes.

The Great Escape

1992, Intrada Records; from the movie The Great Escape, United Artists, 1964.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Leo Shuken, Jack Hayes; Music Editor: Leo Carruth; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: Douglass Fake; Engineer: Joe Tarantino.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:10); 2 Premature Plans (2:07); 3 Cooler And Mole (2:26); 4 Blythe (2:11); 5 Discovery (2:54); 6 Various Troubles (2:40); 7 On The Road (2:54); 8 Betrayal (2:05); 9 Hendley's Risk (2:24); 10 Road's End (2:00); 11 More Action (1:57); 12 The Chase (2:48); 13 Finale (3:15).

Review: Taken from the original 1963 master tapes, the CD version contains admirable sound quality with minimal and barely noticeable hiss and distortion. The music itself is outstanding, built around a variety of themes representing the various characters who people this ultimate World War II POW film. The main theme, a catchy march for wind instruments over trombones and tuba, sustained by a counter melody for violins over militaristic percussion, evokes the Concentration Camp prisoners and their spirit of resistance against their captors. A generic cue, "On the Road," marked by eerie woodwind tones over gentle harp plucks and quietly rising brass chords, represents the mystery and danger beyond the camp's barbed-wire fences. The final theme for freedom is developed into a grand and glorious melody evoking a sense of quiet victory while retaining a sense of sorrow for those lost and left behind. Brassy punches bridge this and the main theme, which closes out the score. An excellent military score and one of Bernstein's best which is very well preserved on CD.

The Great Muppet Caper

Selections: 1 The Main Title (2:49); 2 Hey, A Movie! (1:30) Cast; 15 The First Time It Happens (reprise)(1:37) Jim Henson, Frank Oz.

Review: Okay, The Muppets are cute! And Joe Rapposo, for many years their musical director, knew better than any other composer how to express in his songs their different personalities and translate the flavor of their antics. But nowhere was this more apparent than in this, their first big screen effort, which saw the whole gang—Kermit, Fozzie, Miss Piggy, Dr. Teeth and the Electric Mayhem—do what they do best, entertain us. Along the way, they performed some entertaining numbers, all found on this sparkling album, most notably "Rainbow Connection," the bouncy "Movin' Right Along," or "I Hope That Somethin' Better Comes Along," Kermit and Rowlf's sad realization that they can't live without a mate. A short (32 minutes) but entertaining album.

The Great White Hype

1996, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie The Great White Hype, 20th Century-Fox, 1996.

Album Notes: Song Producers: D.J. U-Neek, Studio Tone, 4th Disciple, Rza, Jocko & Ski, P.M. Dawn, Doug Rasheed, Denzil Foster & Thomas McElroy, Marcus Miller, Mike E. Clark & ICP; Soundtrack Executive Producer: Reginald Hudlin.

Selections: 1 Movin' On (A. Lennox/D. Stewart/D.J. U-Neek/NYT Owl)(4:12) D.J. U-Neek, NYT Owl; 2 Baller's Lady (P. Broussard/K. Irving/M. Whitman/E. Stevens/V. Nichol)(4:25) Ambersunshower; 8 Knocked Nekked (From The Waits Down)(D. Rasheed/J. Foxx/R.R. Moore)(4:36) Jamie Foxx & Dolemite; 9 We Got It (T. McElroy/D. Foster)(3:58) Premier; 10 I've Got You Under My Skin (C. Porter)(3:58) Lou Rawls, Biz Markie; 11 Bring The Pain (C. Smith/R. Diggs, Jr.)(3:18) Method Man; 12 And I Love You (M. Miller/D. Ward)(4:39) Marcus Miller; 13 Chicken Huntin' (Slaughterhouse No Blood Radio Mix)(ICP/M. Clark/D. Greenburg/H. Dodd/M. Niles)(3:43) Insane Clown Posse.

Review: The dichotomy between the film and the soundtrack album is that one is a spoof of urban, innercity life and the world of boxing, while the other almost begs to be taken at face value. Combining performances by East Coast and West Coast hip hop artists, the album only begins to echo the film's irreverent style when Lou Rawls and Biz Markie team for a version of "I've Got You Under My Skin" Cole Porter would never have dreamed of, or when Jamie Foxx shares the spotlight with Dolemite on "Knocked Nekked (From the Waist Down)." But other than those, the tracks in the album don't seem to have the right flair.

Green Card

1991, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Green Card, Touchstone Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Featured Musicians: Hans Zimmer (synthesizers), Ian Lees (bass); Album Producer: Hans Zimmer; Engineers: Brendan Morley, Paul Grant.

Selections: 1 Subway Drums (L. Wright)(1:29) Larry Wright; 2 Instinct (3:33); 3 Restless Elephants (2:55); 4 Cafe Afrika (2:59); 5 Greenhouse (3:15); 6 Moonlight (1:24); 7 9 a.m. Central Park (1:48); 8 Adagio from the Clarinet Concerto in A Major (W.A. Mozart)(8:38) Richard Stolzman, The English Chamber Orchestra; 9 Silence (4:38); 10 Instinct II (3:10); — 11 Asking You (1:45); 12 Pour Bronte (6:19); 13 Eyes On The Prize (H. Stewart)(3:04) The Emmaus Group Singers.

Review: Hans Zimmer has scored this urban romance as if it were a jungle picture. And appropriately so. Emerging out of an urban-percussion composition by Larry Wright, Zimmer's score for Green Card is alternately exotic, toe-tapping, and highly romantic. His opening cue is an evocative blend of voice, synth, and percussion, suggesting the urban jungle and its primitive roots, as multi-layered and compelling as any of Zimmer's thickly-orchestrated compositions. His main theme is a catchy, rhythmic motif for reedy synth and heavy percussion. Synth-woodwind and percussion, including what sounds like synth-steel drum, abound in the instrumentation — an unusual style for a romantic comedy (the musical style is as much director Peter Weir's as it is Zimmer's, according to the composer), but one that adds an engaging quality to the music on film as well as on CD. A romantic piano theme rises above the urban jungle music, signifying the awakening love of the main characters that similarly rises above events they are wrapped up in. Also included on the disc is a Mozart Clarinet Concerto, heard in the film, and a closing pop song.

Gremlins

Gremlins

1993, Geffen Records; from the movie Gremlins, Warner Bros., 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Gremlins... Mega Madness (M. Sembello/M. Hudson/D. Freeman) (3:50) Michael Sembello; 2 Make It Shine (M. Ross)(4:10) Quarterflash; 3 Out Out (P. Gabriel)(7:00) Peter Gabriel; 4 The Gift (4:51); 5 Gizmo (4:09); 6 Mrs. Deagle (2:50); 7 The Gremlin Rad (4:03).

Review: Considering how wonderful Jerry Goldsmith's score for the film is, it seems a real shame that the powers-that-be at Geffen Records chose to include only 15 minutes of his music in this album, on which the playing time is already inordinately short by usual standards. The cues, all four of them, placed at

> "Jazz was my first true love in terms of a music I had discovered on my own. I wanted to learn it, study it and do it."
>
> Mark Isham
> (The Mark Isham Web Site)

the end of the album, denote the wonderfully whimsical tones adopted by the composer to depict the invasion of an entire city by a colony of furry little things that have an uncanny ability to reproduce once they are exposed to water or any sort of food past the witching midnight hour. "The Gremlin Rag," alone, is an outstanding piece of music, delightful and totally enjoyable. While these selections give an idea of the score Goldsmith created for the film, the album leaves one wanting for more. As for the pop selections, they do seem like a lot of padding.

Gremlins 2: The New Batch

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Gremlins 2: The New Batch, Warner Bros., 1990.

Selections: 1 Just You Wait (2:11); 2 Gizmo Escapes (3:43); 3 Leaky Faucet (3:45); 4 Cute... (1:58); 5 Pot Luck (3:00); 6 The Visitors (3:31); 7 Teenage Mutant Gremlins (3:23); 8 Keep It Quiet (3:10); 9 No Rats (2:23); 10 Gremlin Pudding (2:13); 11 New Trends (3:39); 12 Gremlin Credits (4:52).

Review: Goldsmith returned to Gremlins territory for this warm-hearted sequel that jettisoned the horror elements in favor of gentle satire, with his score following director Joe Dante's lead with an eclectic brew of electronic tomfoolery, low-key jazz and noble-sounding underscoring for the aspirations of the benevolent Donald Trump-like entrepreneur John Glover. The result is some amusing moments and a particularly lovely denouement, but overall this one falls into a group of pretty unmemorable comedy scores Goldsmith produced in the early '90s.

The Grifters

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Grifters, Miramax Pictures, 1990

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: Cynthia Millar; Engineer: Dick Lewzey.

Selections: 1 The City (3:32); 2 The Racetrack (1:46); 3 Roy In Trouble (1:23); 4 School For Grifters (2:48); 5 To The Hospital (3:56); 6 Troubadour Race (2:24); 7 Lilly's Argument (1:45); 8 Bobo (5:01); 9 Carhumba (2:22); 10 Roy Gambles (C. Millar)(1:54); 11 Madness (2:11); 12 Myra's Blues (1:08); 13 Roy And Lilly (C. Millar)(2:20); 14 Chase (2:27); 15 Fright And Flight (4:04); 16 Endings (4:42); 17 Credits (3:30); 18 Do Ya, Do Ya Love Me? (E.A. Bernstein/P. Theodore)(3:17) Dream World.

Review: Including a jaunty little tune which pervades the whole score, The Grifters ranks among Elmer Bernstein's top efforts and one of his best scores in recent years. Based on a novel by Jim Thompson about a group of small-time con artists and how everyone in the small group cheats on everyone else, the film was permeated with a blend of mordant humor and brooding darkness that gives the narrative a teasing, elusive quality and stands out as one of the most telling themes developed by the composer. These elements found an echo in the score, essentially written for a small chamber ensemble of woodwinds and brass, with electronic sounds designed by Cynthia Millar. In turns humorously eccentric, darkly original, and solidly anchored around the five-note motif in its main theme, the score comes across as an enticing piece of music, with amusing elements and thoughtful interpolations.

Grosse Pointe Blank

1997, London Records; from the Grosse Pointe Blank, Hollywood Pictures, 1997.

Selections: 1 Blister In The Sun (G. Gano) (2:07) Violent Femmes; 2 Rudie Can't Fail (J. Strummer/M. Jones) (3:29) The Clash; 3 Mirror In The Bathroom (The English Beat) (3:06) The English Beat; 4 Under Pressure (D. Bowie/F. Mercury/R. Taylor/J. Deacon/B. May) (4:02) David Bowie, Queen; 5 I Can See Clearly Now (J. Nash) (2:44) Johnny Nash; 6 Live And Let Die (P. McCartney) (3:02) Guns 'N Roses; 7 We Care A Lot (Faith No More) (4:02) Faith No More; 8 Pressure Drop (T. Hibbert) (4:18) The Specials; 9 Absolute Beginners (P. Weller) (2:49) The Jam;

10 Armagideon Time (C. Dodd/W. Williams) (3:50) The Clash; 11 El Matador (F. Ciancianulo) (4:33) Los Fabulosos Cadillacs; 12 Let My Love Open The Door (P. Townshend) (4:56) Pete Townshend; 13 Blister 2000 (G. Gano) (2:57) Violent Femmes.

Review: A good combination of oldies and new stuff, this soundtrack album serves up a refreshing line-up of great rockers who aren't often found together on the same album. Bookended by two selections by Violent Femmes, the album's best moments include The Clash's "Rudie Can't Fail" and "Armagideon Time," Guns 'N Roses's cover version of Paul McCartney's "Live and Let Die," and The Jam's take on "Absolute Beginners." David Bowie and Queen's collaboration on "Under Pressure" is always nice to have around, as is Pete Townshend's "Let My Love Open The Door." A pleasant surprise is Los Fabulosos Cadillacs, a rarely heard (at least in this country) Argentinian group whose energetic "El Matador" is alone worth a visit.

Groundhog Day

1993, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Groundhog Day, Columbia Pictures, 1993.

Selections: 1 Weatherman (G. Fenton/H. Ramis) (4:18) Delbert McClinton; 2 Clouds (1:10); 3 I Got You Babe (S. Bono) (3:12) Sonny & Cher; 4 Quartet No. 1 in D: The Groundhog (2:08) Sheldon Sanov, Pam Goldsmith, Bruce Dukov, Dennis Karmayzn; 5 Take Me Round Again (3:06) Susie Stevens; 6 Drunks (2:17); 7 Pennsylvania Polka (L. Lee/Z. Manners) (2:24) Frankie Yankovic; 8 You Like Boats But Not The Ocean (1:41); 9 Phil Getz The Girl (3:31) Dan Higgins; 10 Phil Steals The Money (1:21); 11 You Don't Know Me (E. Arnold/C. Walker) (4:12) Ottmar Liebert, Luna Negra; 12 The Kidnap And The Quarry (2:50); 13 Sometimes People Just Die (1:39); 14 Eighteenth Variation from Rapsodie On A Theme Of Paganini (S. Rachmaninoff) (3:34) Elizabeth Buccheri; 15 Medley: Phil's Piano Solo (T. Fryer)/Eighteenth Variation from Rapsodie On A Theme Of Paganini (S. Rachmaninoff) (1:49) Terry Fryer; 16 The Ice Sculpture (2:05); 17 A New Day (1:26); 18 Almost Like Being In Love (F. Loewe/A.J. Lerner) (1:52) Nat King Cole.

Review: The soundtrack to this zany picture starring Bill Murray is itself deliciously insane, with its blend of a pseudo baroque quartet piece named for the film title next to Sonny and Cher warbling their hit "I Got You Babe." The story of an egotistical weatherman who has keeps living the same day over and over and over, the film's inspired lunacy translated itself into an album that also includes several pop tunes including "Almost Like Being in Love," by Nat King Cole, and "Pennsylvania Polka," played by Frankie Yankovic in another odd pairing. George Fenton contributes some eclectic themes like "Clouds," "Drunks," "The Kidnap and the Quarry," among other, equally welcome moments. Delightfully entertaining is the word.

Grumpier Old Men

1995, TVT Records; from the movie Grumpier Old Men, Warner Bros., 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Orchestrations: William Ross; Music Editors: Bob Badami, Kenneth Karman, Jacqueline Tager; Orchestra conducted by Alan Silvestri; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 (I'll Be Glad When You're Dead) You Rascal You (S. Theard) (3:05) Louis Armstrong, Louis Jordan; 2 Hit The Road Jack (P. Mayfield) (3:15) Buster Poindexter; 3 That's Amore (J. Brooks/H. Warren)(3:07) Dean Martin; 4 Understand Your Man (J. Cash)(2:42) Johnny Cash; 5 Venus (R. Leeuwen)(3:00) Shocking Blue; 6 Jump In The Line (Shake Senora)(H. Belafonte/R. DeLeon/G. Oller/S. Samuel)(3:42) Harry Belafonte; 7 Stayin' Alive (B. Gibb/R. Gibb/M. Gibb)(4:43) The Bee Gees; 8 The Chicken Dance (T. Rendell/W. Thomas)(1:06) Wally Olson Band; 9 'S Wonderful (G. & I. Gershwin) (1:32) Les Brown and His Orchestra, Doris Day; 10 Almost Like Being In Love (F. Loewe/A.J. Lerner)(1:54) Nat King Cole; 11 I Hear Bells (Wedding Bells) (T. Love/B. Strong)(2:27) Del Vikings; 12 What The Heck (1:01); 13 End Title (3:44).

Review: The constant one-upmanship between two grumpy old friends (Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau returning to the roles they created in Grumpy Old Men) finds its best musical expression in the lively "(I'll Be Glad When You're Dead) You Rascal You," performed by Louis Armstrong and Louis Jordan, the first selection on the album. Unfortunately, the moods in the film are not sustained in this collection of pop tracks, which include Buster Poindexter's derivative rendition of Ray Charles' hit "Hit the Road Jack," Dean Martin's "That's Amore," and Harry Belafonte's exuberant "Jump in the Line (Shake Senora)," already a highlight in the film Beetlejuice. Alan Silvestri's score, reduced here to two cues ("What the Heck" and "End Title"), sounds lovely, but who can tell?

Guarding Tess

1994, Tristar Music; from the movie Guarding Tess, Tristar Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Convertino; Orchestrations: John Neufeld, Conrad Pope; Music Editor: Ken Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by Richard Kaufman; Album Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:13); 2 Patriots (7:53); 3 Golf (3:26); 4 Outsiders (5:22); 5 A Picnic In Winter (2:24); 6 The President Is Arriving (3:45); 7 "Ich gehe, doch rate ich dir" (from Die Entfuehrung aus dem Serail)(W.A. Mozart)(3:46) Elzbieta Szmyrka, Gunther Missenhardt, Wiener Symphoniker, Bruno Weil; 8 With You Alone (1:56); 9 Guarding Tess (2:23).

Review: Charming score by Michael Convertino for this comedy film about the war of wills between a former First Lady and her Secret Service bodyguard. As they snipe at each other, the composer hints at their growing bond with a bold arrangement of strings in "Patriots". Conversely, Convertino relies on classical music-inspired arrangements to play up the absurdity of the government's stuffy sense of self importance.

The Guns of Navarone

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Guns of Navarone, Columbia Pictures, 1961.

Album Notes: Music: Dimitri Tiomkin; Lyrics: Paul Francis Webster; The Sinfonia of London Orchestra, conducted by Dimitri Tiomkin; CD Producers: Robert Townson, Tom Null; Engineer: Michele Stone.

Selections: 1 Prologue (3:00), narration by James Robertson Justice; 2 The Guns Of Navarone (D. Tiomkin/P.F. Webster)(3:59) Mitch Miller and the Sing Along Chorus; 3 Sea Scene / Odyssey Begins (8:48); 4 Climbing The South Cliff (1:43); 5 Anna (1:31); 6 Death Of Young Pappadimos (1:14); 7 Legend Of Navarone(2:21); 8 Yassu (3:41); 9 Preparation For Guns (1:58); 10 Wedding Music (2:15); 11 Mission Accomplished (7:23); 12 The Guns Of Navarone (3:11).

Review: Another blockbuster score by Dimitri Tiomkin, filled with great energy and heroic accents to underline this World War II drama in which Gregory Peck, David Niven and Anthony Quinn single-handedly defeat the entire German army when they destroy huge guns on the island of Navarone, off the coast of Greece, guarding the open sea. The "legend," introduced in a prologue narrated by James Robertson Justice, sets the tone and provides the background to the tale itself, musically illustrated by the composer, in a stirring display of his florid style. Three themes evoke the action, a martial one to convey the war effort, another with a Greek flavor to stress the locale, and a third, a lyrical theme, to express the beauty and deep emotional impact of the adventure itself. While the score itself is very attractive and makes for an entertaining listening session, you might want to ignore Mitch Miller and the gang's earnest rendition of the inane title song, in which lyrics try to rhyme such unlikely poetic words as "nitroglycerine" and "saboteurs."

Halloween: The Curse of Michael Myers

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Halloween: The Curse of Michael Myers, Miramax Films, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Howarth, John Carpenter; Album Producer: Alan Howarth.

Selections: 1 Jamie's Escape (4:04); 2 Birth Ceremony (2:50); 3 You Can't Have The Baby (3:37); 4 Empty Stomach (2:58); 5 Watching Mom (4:23); 6 Kara Returns (3:38); 7 Thorn (4:08); 8 Carnival Festival (4:07); 9 It's Raining Red (2:59); 10 Look Upstairs (6:25); 11 It's His Game (5:56); 12 Maximum Security (3:40); 13 Operating Room (7:56).

Review: While most synthesized horror film scores tend to sound as if they were made up as the performer went along, director John Carpenter uses the limitations of his early synthesizer work to great advantage in Halloween. The resulting work is a minimalist creation as relentless as the film's unstoppable killer. Carpenter based his score on three principal themes, the main title with its infectious mix of repetitive piano, rattle, and stomping, the more subtle "creeping" motif, and a desperate, repetitive "stalking" theme. His wise exploitation of the simplicity of the arrangements created both an effective score and entertaining soundtrack album. By avoiding the use of conventional electronic effects, Carpenter's score shows very little dating 20 years later.

Alan Howarth, who worked closely with Carpenter for several years on a variety of scores, took on the Halloween series solo in 1988 with the fourth film, The Return of Michael Myers. His latest score in the series, 1995's The Curse of Michael Myers, still makes good use of the minimalist style established on the first film, but with the use of a battery of state of the art synthesizers, Howarth can now create a score that sounds positively lavish in comparison to Carpenter's. The Halloween theme is brought into the '90s with guitars replacing the piano track and Carpenter's old "creeping" motif returns once again. Howarth puts in a good effort with several interesting moments and some synth passages are so well designed that they sound almost acoustical. It can't, however, equal the first film score simply because of sheer nostalgic value.

Review: The saga of Michael Myers has proven a very fruitful and rewarding franchise for John Carpenter, who initiated it, before leaving to others the fun of completing it (or, as it were, adding to it), and who initially scored it (see above), before turning over this task to Alan Howarth. Though Carpenter's original intentions and not-so-subtle effects eventually were diluted with overuse, one must admit that his successors have skillfully adapted his ideas for maximum results.

A tired, uninspired sequel to the 1985 original, Halloween 2 began where the previous film ended, providing Carpenter with a nifty reprise of "Laurie's Theme," with Myers (now identified as The Shape) on the loose, stalking again, and slashing his way through 92 minutes of a tedious horror film. Still, Carpenter's music, complemented by Howarth's contributions, has an edgy, dangerous tone to it ("Still He Kills," "The Shape Stalks Again") that comes across effectively in this minimalist-sounding soundtrack album. The addition of The Chordettes' "Mr. Sandman," at the end, is a refreshing change of pace.

Carpenter and Howarth returned to the same grounds once more with Halloween 3: Season of the Witch, using the same precision and creativity to come up with a score that's inventive in its own way, even though it increasingly seems to rely on ideas that might have been rejects from the previous two scores. Some tracks emerge, however, as particularly well conceived ("Drive to Santa Mira," "The Rock," and the crushingly exhilarating "Halloween Montage").

Halloween 4: The Return of Michael Myers marked a significant change of pace in the series, with Myers resuming his initial identity, Donald Pleasence returning as Dr. Loomis, and the script consciously ignoring the events that had occurred in the previous two sequels. New also was the fact that Alan Howarth assumed responsibilities as the sole composer, bringing to the score a flair somewhat different from John Carpenter's, better realized, less minimalist, and more melody-driven, despite the abundance of synthesized sounds. Though built around Carpenter's original theme for the series, Howarth's score proves more lush overall, and more listenable than Carpenter's, if only because of the greater variety it exhibits.

The fifth installment in the series, The Revenge of Michael Myers found Howarth taking some more distance from the previous efforts, and building his score around a tingling descending little motif introduced as the main theme to "The Revenge," that recurs at intervals in the electronic texture. Darker than Halloween 4 ("The Shape Also Rises," a combination of distorted grunts, drum beat and low-toned electronic riffs, also heard in "The Attic," in particularly frightening), but equally effective, the score also marked a progression for Howarth, who introduced some acoustic instruments in the mix. Some pop/rock vocals at the beginning of the album also give a different tone to the recording.

Hamlet

Hamlet

1990, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Hamlet, Warner Bros., 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra Unione Musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Featured Soloists: Fausto Anzelmo (viola), Carlo Romano (oboe); Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineer: Sergio Marcotulli; Assistant Engineer: Fabio Venturi.

Selections: 1 Hamlet (Version 1)(3:40); 2 The King Is Dead (4:40); 3 Ophelia (Version 1)(3:45); 4 What A Piece Of Work Is Man (1:36); 5 The Prayer (2:02); 6 The Ghost (5:50); 7 The Play (2:02); 8 The Banquet (1:38); 9 Dance For The Queen (2:12); 10 Ophelia (Version 2)(3:00); 11 Hamlet's Madness (3:17); 12 Hamlet (Version 2)(3:00); 13 Simulated Madness (3:06); 14 The Closet (3:24); 15 Second Madness (1:54); 16 To Be Or Not To Be (3:54); 17 Solid Flesh (1:58); 18 The Vaults (1:40)

Review: This oddly focused film version of Shakespeare's great play, with Mel Gibson playing the melancholy Dane to Glenn Close's semi-detached Gertrude and Franco Zeffirelli handling the directorial chores, compelled Ennio Morricone to write a dark, often sullen score which may seem apt for a Shakespearean drama but not for a listening experience. While recognizing the inherent power of the music itself, most of the cues, introduced by a strong, brooding orchestral chord, convey the somberness in the action, with an organ occasionally reinforcing the generally gloomy moods. "The Banquet," a lively tune,is the only exception, while "Dance for the Queen," which would suggest a lilt in the action, translates itself into something even more mournful than Ravel's "Pavane for a Dead Princess."

Hamlet

1996, Sony Classical; from the movie Hamlet, Castle Rock/Columbia Pictures, 1996.

Selections: 1 In Pace (3:07) Placido Domingo; 2 Fanfare (:48); 3 "All that lives must die" (2:40); 4 "To thine own self be true" (3:04); 5 The Ghost (9:55); 6 "Give me the truth" (1:05); 7 "What a piece of work is a man" (1:50); 8 "What players are they" (1:33); 9 "Out out thou strumpet fortune" (3:11); 10 "To be or not to be" (1:53); 11 "I loved you once" (3:27); 12 "Oh, what a noble mind" (2:41); 13 "If once a widow" (3:36); 14 "Now could I drink hot blood" (6:57); 15 "A foolish prating nave" (1:05); 16 "Oh heavy deed" (:56); 17 "Oh here they come" (4:39); 18 "My thoughts be bloody" (2:53); 19 "The doors are broke" (1:20); 20 "And will 'a not come again?" (1:59); 21 "Alas poor Yorick!" (2:49); 22 "Sweets to the sweet, farewell" (4:39); 23 "Give me your pardon, Sir" (1:24); 24

"Part them they are incensed" (1:47); 25 "Goodnight, sweet prince" (3:36); 26 "Go bid the soldiers shoot" (2:52).

Review: The melancholy Dane gets a perky reworking with this energetic, busy score that settles into more of a chamber mode after its broad orchestral opening. It's percussive, occasionally fiery, coiling along under Kenneth Branaugh's impassioned Hamlet... but despite some involving melodies and Doyle's usual dramatic skills this lengthy score never dwells in the memory the way his groundbreaking Henry V or even his sumptuous Much Ado About Nothing overture still does. This is much more of an incidental score than the through-composed effort of Henry V, dependent on the counter-rhythms of dialogue for many of its effects. Only in lengthier cues like "The Ghost" and "Sweets to the sweet — farewell" does Doyle get the opportunity to sustain and build on the melodies he creates, although the brief sword-fight cue ("Part them they are incensed!") offers some agile, taut string writing. The most noticeable misstep is the surprise appearance by Placido Domingo belting out an opening song, "In Pace," which seems to have little relationship to the score or the film.

The Hand that Rocks the Cradle

1993, Hollywood Records; from the movie The Hand that Rocks the Cradle, Hollywood Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Graeme Revell; Orchestrations: Graeme Revell, Tim Simonec; Music Editor: Dick Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Tim Simonec; Album Producer: Graeme Revell; Engineers: Dennis Sands, Dan Wallin.

Selections: 1 Main Title (The Home)(2:52); 2 Poor Wand'ring One (W. Gilbert/A. Sullivan)(2:55) The D' Oyly Carte Opera Company; 3 The Miscarriage (2:19); 4 Peyton And Baby Joey (1:30); 5 Solomon (3:15); 6 Oh Dry The Glist'ning Tear (W. Gilbert/A. Sullivan)(3:10) The D' Oyly Carte Opera Company; 7 Marlene's Discovery (3:21); 8 The Greenhouse Effect (2:55); 9 Claire Investigates (3:53); 10 You're Not My Mommy (4:55); 11 Solomon's Baby (2:17); 12 End Credit Medley (2:20); 13 One Family Again (2:52).

Review: Graeme Revell's oddly compelling score belies the subtly horrifying moods in this thriller, about a babysitter whose increasingly threatening presence brings havoc in the life of a Seattle family. Progressing with the action, the cues take on a darker edge, though without losing their overall melodic appeal ("Marlene's Discovery," "Claire Investigates"), in a skillfull display of beautifully understated musical ideas to create a subliminal effect that subtly underlines the tension in the film itself. Even without the impact of the screen images, the music retains its flavor, and in fact acquires a sheen that's most revelatory and endearing.

A Handful of Dust

1988, DRG Records; from the movie A Handful of Dust, Stagescreen Productions, 1988.

Selections: 1 A Handful Of Dust Main Title (3:45); 2 Meeting Mr, Beaver (2:45); 3 Cafe de Paris (1:10); 4 Learning To Be Nicer (1:50); 5 Moving Away, Part 1 (2:40); 6 A Course In Economics? (3:35); 7 Weekend Episodes (3:45); 8 Talking Pipes (1:20); 9 A New Outlook (2:05); 10 Moving Away, Part 2 (Adagio) (3:30); 11 The Falls (2:15); 12 Trying To Please (1:55); 13 Pivari Party/A Time Of Waiting (2:45); 14 Memorial (End Credits)(6:35).

Review: Based on a novel by Evelyn Waugh, A Handful of Dust translates into a somewhat slight story about some British aristocrats with little care on their mind other than to live the idle, golden existence to which they feel entitled. As befits this kind of screenplay, the moods were kept light, and even if such unspeakable things as an accidental killing and a divorce spiced it up, it was all jolly good and perfectly swell, an overall feeling which George Fenton's score wrapped with elegant orchestral swirls. The 1930s provided the composer with another definite time period to anchor some of his cues, though the overall tone of his score is kept charmingly low-key and lightly melodic. Listen to the woop-dee-doo tone of "Cafe de Paris," or the equally innocuous "Learning to be Nicer," both of which denote in musical terms an attitude that we have come to accept from the wealthy but slight-headed gentry.

The Handmaid's Tale

1990, GNP Crescendo; from the movie The Handmaid's Tale, Cinecom, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Ryuichi Sakamoto; Music Editors: Robin Clarke, Chris Brooks, Jim Harrison; Album Producer: Ryuichi Sakamoto; Engineer: Fernando Kral.

Selections: 1 Overture/Snow/Prison Camp/On The Bus/Old Hundredth (Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow)(L. Bourgeois)/Nocturno/Moira's Hand/Red Veil/Kate/Rape And Rage/The Kiss/Pollution In City/Moira Escapes/ Rape/Shall We Gather By The River (R. Lowry)(20:51); 2 Love In Nick's

Room/ Amazing Grace (J. Newton) My Daughter Is Alive/Car Bomb/ Travesty/Kate And Moira/Hanging/Particicution/Finding The Knife/Waiting For Murder/Killing Commander/ Mayday/Old Hundredth (Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow)(L. Bourgeois)(20:28).

Review: It is without a doubt a pretty bad idea to amass 27, mostly short, cues into just two overlong 20 minute tracks. The resulting "orchestral suite" approach fails to create any natural sounding flow and yields a rather spotty, unfulfilling mix of musical styles from the Ryuichi Sakamoto score. The lack of indexing especially makes it impossible to follow which of the individual cues listed in mass on the inlay card you are listening to. The album is not without some good points, though they are few and far between. Some of the more poignant moments convey a hint that they might have splendid melodies ("Love in Nick's Room"), but they suffer greatly from some heavy-handed synthesizer work. Generally, there are an awful lot of simplistic musical effects filling up most of the time, from drum tracks to primitive tone build-ups. More often it's vaguely reminiscent of a low budget horror film score.

Hang 'Em High/Guns for San Sebastian

1991, Sony Music Special Products; from the movies Hang 'Em High, United Artists, 1968; and Guns for San Sebastian, M-G-M, 1968.

Album Notes: Hang 'Em High: Music: Dominic Frontiere; Orchestra conducted by Dominic Frontiere; Guns for San Sebastian: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra conducted by Ennio Morricone; CD Producer: Dan Rivard; CD Engineer: Debra Parkinson.

Selections: HANG 'EM HIGH: 1 Hang 'Em High (2:57); 2 Rachel (Love Theme) (3:02); 3 Tumbleweed Wagon (4:13); 4 Bordello (1:40); 5 I'll Get 'Em Myself (3:00); 6 Rachel (reprise)(2:37); 7 Hang 'Em High (reprise)(2:04); 8 It's No Deal (3:26); 9 They Took Me (3:01); 10 Hang 'Em High (2:58);

KELLY'S HEROES (L. SCHIFRIN): 11 Quick Draw Kelly (3:12);

GUNS FOR SAN SEBASTIAN: 12 The Overture (3:43); 13 The Chase (1:53); 14 The Long Trek (5:10); 15 Love Theme (2:54); 16 Music At The Governor's Dinner (1:51); 17 The White Stallion (1:33); 18 Love Theme (reprise)(2:52); 19 Building The Dam (1:30); 20 The Attack (1:57); 21 The Burning Village (2:35); 22 The Villagers Prepare To Blow Up The Dam (1:28); 23 Teclo's Death (1:23); 24 End Title (4:01).

Review: Perhaps because Hang 'Em High starred Clint Eastwood in a role that recalled his portrayal as the Man-With-No-Name in several spaghetti westerns scored by Ennio Morricone, and Guns for San Sebastian had a score by Morricone, it might have seemed like a judicious idea to pair these soundtracks together on one CD. Wrong. Not only are Dominic Frontiere and Morricone miles apart as composers, but the former's derivative contribution, which aims to faintly evoke the latter's, simply doesn't begin to make the sort of impression Morricone's music for Sergio Leone achieved.

If you really are curious to hear a score which Morricone could have written much more eloquently, spend some time with Hang 'Em High, then move on to the real thing with Guns for San Sebastian, another terrific effort by the master himself. The film, made in Mexico, is a standard story about the legendary mid-18th century rebel Leon Alastray (Anthony Quinn), and his fight against marauding Yaqui Indians, led by Charles Bronson. There is no mistaking the accents or the style in this score, with choral vocals and guitar motifs adding their voice to the relentless orchestral textures created by the composer. Several cues attract particularly here, notably "The Chase," with its percolating riff, the "Love Theme," appropriately lyrical, "Building The Dam," with its evocative guitar lines, and the taut "The Burning Village," which starts on a percussive orchestral line that dissolves into a romantic guitar theme.

Indicative of the total lack of understanding for the music or general insensitivity that presided over the sequencing of this album, a track from Kelly's Heroes, composed by Lalo Schifrin, has been inserted for no apparent reason between Hang 'Em High and The Guns for San Sebastian. The rating, incidentally, applies only to the Morricone score.

Hannah and Her Sisters

Foster/W. Basie)(4:42) Count Basie and His Orchestra; 7 I'm In Love Again (C. Porter)(2:12) Bobby Short; 8 You Are Too Beautiful (R. Rodgers/L. Hart)(3:34) Derek Smith; 9 If I Had You (J. Campbell/R. Connelly/ T. Shapiro)(3:32) Roy Eldridge; 10 Isn't It Romantic (R. Rodgers/L. Hart) (4:10) Derek Smith.

Review: In his films, Woody Allen is very careful to use songs or instrumentals that evocatively complement the stories he develops. His taste runs primarily toward the great recordings of the 1940s and early '50s, with the soundtrack albums compiling these recordings together in a suggestive way. Often, his music director, the excellent Dick Hyman, adds his pianistic touch to the tracks, in a further musical expression that matches the moods of the source material. Both are on display in this album, which includes sides by Harry James ("You Made Me Love You" and "I've Heard That Song Before," both with heavy reverb that totally denatures their original sound) and Count Basie ("Back to the Apple"), a great piano medley by Hyman, as well as standards by Cole Porter and Rodgers and Hart sung by Bobby Short and Derek Smith. Adding a totally different, and slightly surprising, note is a performance of Bach's "Concerto in F Minor," which has the unfortunate effect of breaking the mood established by the other selections.

Hard Target

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Hard Target, Universal Pictures, 1993.

Selections: 1 Hunting Season Opens (4:50); 2 Natasha (1:32); 3 Chance And Carmen (1:48); 4 Streetfighting Van Damme (1:51); 5 Friends (1:27); 6 The Lark Descending (2:29); 7 Won't You Let Me Go? (S. Dural, Jr.)(4:28) Buckwheat Zydeco; 8 The Dove And The Garotte (2:29); 9 Motorcycle Chase (2:46); 10 New Orleans Mission (1:31); 11 On The Docks (1:25); 12 Mardi Gras Graveyard (2:26); 13 Miles To Go (2:50); 14 Fouchon's Death (4:27); 15 Epilogue (1:55).

Review: This is a smart mix, combining the Japanese group Kodo with Graeme Revell's hard hitting orchestral stylings. It yields an exciting action film score that is quite entertaining on its own. Key parts of Revell's work is a delightful blend of musical styles, including some colorful downhome bayou strains on cues like "Chance and Carmen" and the poignant "Miles to Go." But it is Kodo's creative percussion work that really kicks the action score into high gear ("Hunting Season Begins").

The Hard Way

1991, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Hard Way, Universal Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Arthur B. Rubinstein; Featured Musicians: Joel Peskin (tenor sax), Warren Luning, Rick Baptiste (trumpet), Charlie Loper (trombone), Chuck Domanico (bass), Steve Schaeffer (drums); Album Producer: Arthur B. Rubinstein.

Selections: 1 The Big Apple Juice (1:54); 2 Cirque Du Parte Crasher (1:45); 3 Manhattan Tow-Truck (2:46); 4 Ghetto a la Hollyweird (1:30); 5 He Dead/She Dead (1:29); 6 Big Girls Don't Cry (B. Gaudio/B. Crewe)(2:23) Frankie Vallie & The Four Seasons; 7 Where Have You Gone, L. Ron? (3:06); 8 Transit Authority (2:12); 9 Gas Attack (2:08); 10 Killer Lang (1:48); 11 Smoking Gun II (3:29); 12 Top Of The World (4:33); 13 The Good, The Badge And The Ugly (1:55); 14 Run Around Sue (E. Maresca/D. DiMucci)(2:43) Dion.

Review: This terrific Arthur B. Rubinstein effort starts off with a cue reminiscent of all those jazz scores for the TV cop shows of the 1950s and 60s ("The Big Apple Juice," "Where Have You Gone, L. Ron?"), but it soon shifts into something with a harder edge. Michael J. Fox plays a spoiled actor who bullies his way into the life of harried NYC police detective James Woods to learn how to act like a real cop. Rubinstein juxtaposes the Hollywood created world of cops (the jazz themes) with reality by infusing their exploits with more street-wise motifs, a creative fusion of various urban styles (including, for example, Jamaican steel drums). The film songs "Big Girls Don't Cry" and "Run Around Sue" also appear on the album.

The Harder They Come

1973, Mango Records; from the movie The Harder They Come, 1972.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Jimmy Cliff, Derrick Harriot, Leslie Kong, Byron Lee.

Selections: 1 You Can Get It If You Really Want (J. Cliff)(2:46) Jimmy Cliff; 2 Draw Your Brakes (D. Harriot/D. Scott)(3:00) Scotty; 3 Rivers Of Babylon (B. Dowe/F. McNaughton)(4:19) The Melodians; 4 Many Rivers To Cross (J. Cliff)(3:02) Jimmy

Cliff; 5 Sweet And Dandy (F. Hibbert)(3:02) The Maytals; 6 The Harder They Come (J. Cliff)(3:43) Jimmy Cliff; 7 Johnny Too Bad (Beckford/Crooks/Bailey)(3:06) The Slickers; 8 Shanty Town (D. Dekker) (2:47) Desmond Dekker; 9 Pressure Drop (F. Hibbert)(3:45) The Maytals; 10 Sitting In Limbo (J. Cliff)(4:57) Jimmy Cliff; 11 You Can Get It If You Really Want (J. Cliff)(2:45) Jimmy Cliff; 12 The Harder They Come (J. Cliff)(3:08) Jimmy Cliff.

Review: This soundtrack album is mostly interesting for its mix of great reggae songs ("Rivers of Babylon," "Many Rivers to Cross," "Shanty Town"), performed by Jimmy Cliff, whose hit "You Can Get It If You Really Want" is included twice, The Maytals, and other Jamaican stars. The film, shot in the slums of West Kingston, presented an uncompromising look at the raw world of reggae and Jamaican ganja, and is one of the first to portray the power of drugs and music with such unique vision. Today, others have delved largely into this subculture phenomena, but the songs in The Harder They Come have lost none of their original impact and still impress in this coherent, powerful compilation.

Hatari!

1987, RCA Records; from the movie Hatari!, Paramount Pictures, 1962.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestra conducted by Henry Mancini; CD Producer: John Snyder; Engineer: Joe Lopes.

Selections: 1 Theme From "Hatari!" (2:56); 2 Baby Elephant Walk (2:42); 3 Just For Tonight (2:02); 4 Your Father's Feathers (3:31); 5 Night Side (3:24); 6 Big Band Bwana (3:03); 7 The Sound Of Hatari (6:42); 8 The Soft Touch (2:43); 9 Crocodile, Go Home! (2:56).

Review: Even the aggressive stereo separation in this soundtrack recording cannot affect the music written by Henry Mancini, in which the sprightly "Baby Elephant Walk" has emerged as one of the composer's most inspired creations. Like most of his scores, treated in a very lackadaisical way by the label to which he was signed for many years, the playing time is kept relatively short and just slightly over 30 minutes, with only one cue ("The Sounds of Hatari," dramatically steeped into a florid bongo drum line) venturing beyond six minutes. Still, it is another example of how great a melodist Mancini was, with themes that are consistently catchy and entertaining.

Haunted Summer

1989, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Haunted Summer, Cannon Films, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Young; Orchestrations: Christopher Young; Music Editors: Virginia Ellsworth, Lisa Kauppi; Synthesizers: Mark Zimoski, Tom Calderaro; Album Producers: David Stoner, James Fitzpatrick; Engineer: Jeff Vaughn.

Selections: 1 Haunted Summer (2:45); 2 Menage (4:40); 3 Villa Diodati (3:38); 4 The Night Was Made For Loving (7:03); 5 Polidori's Potions (4:13); 6 Ariel (2:03); 7 Confreres (2:04); 8 Geneva (1:29); 9 Alby (2:38); 10 An Unquiet Dream (5:30); 11 Hauntings: Hotel d'Angleterre/In The Caves Of Chillon/Incubus/Mont Blanc (18:00).

Review: Superb effort by Christopher Young that fabricates its own unique world of idyllic beauty and melancholy through a brilliant orchestration of synthesizers and a small selection of acoustical instruments. "The Night Was Made for Loving" is the centerpiece, presenting the composer at his melodic best in a seven-minute romantic concerto that's gently framed by elegant secondary motifs. Of course, one must remember that this is the story of the summer when Mary Shelley conceived of Frankenstein, so there's nightmares forthcoming for Young to gnaw his creative teeth upon. Though the foreboding "Polidori's Potions" breaks up the two suites of "bright" music, it is only a taste of things to come. It is still somewhat melodic for what Young saves for dessert. He turns his muse of the macabre loose on the creation of the 18-minute "Hauntings" suite, an edit of four impressively unsettling cues. It all starts off melodically enough with a classical inspired motif, but soon begins to degrade into a twisted witches' brew of dissonant sounds that crawls up your back. The perfect score for the morally challenged.

Havana

1990, GRP Records; from the movie Havana, Universal Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Dave Grusin; Orchestrations: Dave Grusin, Greg MacRitchie, George Hernandez; Orchestra conducted by Dave Grusin; Featured Musicians: Alex Acuna, Harvey Mason, Mike Fisher, Ephraim Torres (drums, percussions), Abe Laboriel, Brian Bromberg (bass), Clare Fisher, Dave Grusin (piano), Lee Ritenour, Ramon Stagnaro (guitars), Dave Valentin (flute), Sal Marquez, Arturo Sandoval (trumpet), Don Menza (saxophone); Album Producer: Dave Grusin; Engineers: Don Murray, John Richards.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:04); 2 Night Walk (3:26); 3 Cuba Libre ("Se fue")(3:31); 4 Santa Clara Suite: (a) Vayase (1:20), (b) Milicia y refugios (1:55), (c) Fuego peligroso (:54), (d) Epilogue (:53); 5 A los Rumberos de Belen (3:53); 6 Love Theme (3:07); 7 Hurricane Country (4:58); 8 Lost In A Sweet Place (2:27); 9 Mambo Lido (3:53); 10 El Conuco (3:12); 11 Adios Habana (3:05); 12 La Academia (2:48).

Review: There are very few surprises in this highly competent score by Dave Grusin, whose jazz roots occasionally show up in some selections, both as composer and performer. The themes have a pleasant lilt to them, and conjure up the right kind of atmosphere, within and without their original relationship to the film itself, about an American gambler in Havana in the last days of the Batista regime. The Cuban background is evoked by means of a strumming acoustic guitar, as well as by what could be construed as South-of-the-border rhythms and sonorities ("Cuba Libre," "Santa Clara Suite," "Mambo Lido," "El Conuco"). It's all very pretty, and it essentially fulfills its function.

Heart and Souls

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:04); 2 Julia And John (1:46); 3 Soul Mates (4:42); 4 Goodbye Thomas (5:22); 5 Heart And Soul (H. Carmichael/F. Loesser) (3:00) Dave Koz; 6 Souled Out (3:45); 7 Goodbye Milo (3:43); 8 Mr. Hug-A-Bug (3:25); 9 Goodbye Penny (2:04); 10 Julia's Farewell/The End (6:21); 11 Walk Like A Man (B. Crewe/B. Gaudio)(2:17) Frankie Valli & The Four Seasons; 12 (You'll Always Be) My Heart And Soul (M. Shaiman)(4:07) Stephen Bishop; 13 What'd I Say (R. Charles)(5:05) Ray Charles; 14 The Thrill Is Gone (R. Hawkins/ R. Darnell)(4:15) B.B. King; 15 The Star-Spangled Banner (F.S. Key/ J.S. Smith)(2:29) Robert Downey Jr., B.B. King.

Review: Marc Shaiman delivered a beautifully lyrical score, built around the Hoagy Carmichael-Frank Loesser standard, also heard in an instrumental version by Dave Koz, which subtly recurs throughout and anchors the music and the film, a delightful comedy starring Robert Downey Jr. as a young man in whom four victims of a bus accident have reincarnated. While the overtones of the score are deftly romantic, the music takes frequent, short sidesteps into big band jazz ("Goodbye Thomas," "Souled Out"), the better to offset its more thoughtful moments. Five vocal selections, including "Walk Like a Man," performed by Frankie Valli & The Four Seasons, "What'd I Say," by Ray Charles, and "The Thrill Is Gone," by B.B. King add a different, albeit equally enjoyable flavor to the proceedings.

1992, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Heart of Midnight, Samuel Goldwyn, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Yanni; Album Producer: Yanni; Engineer: Yanni.

Selections: 1 Overture/Carol's Theme (4:03); 2 Welcome To "Midnight" (:48); 3 Carol Through The Rooms (3:15); 4 "Oh, Daddy"/Carol Sees Fletcher/Rathead On Ice (2:35); 5 Carol's Theme/Soft Interlude (1:03); 6 The Rape (Parts 1 & 2) (3:59); 7 Aftermath (1:15); 8 Carol Talks To Maria (1:18); 9 Sharpe #2 Dies/ Carol's Nightmare (2:10); 10 Carol's Theme/Sadness Of The Heart (1:31); 11 The Library Of Porn (3:31); 12 The Cabinet Falls/Carol Out In The Street/Attic/ Dinner And Downstairs In The Club (4:55); 13 The S&M Room (4:36); 14 End Sequence: The Final Confrontation/Carol's Theme/SWisters In Pain/ Sonny's Death (5:55); 15 Finale/Carol's Theme (2:30).

Review: If you're expecting the dulcet New Age tones Yanni has become famous for on public TV, forget it. Despite the pleasing "Carol's Theme," this is just another dated synthesized horror score. The sharp electronic effects serve more of a purpose in keeping the listener awake during long passages that sound as if they were made up on the spur of the moment instead of being thought out. This remarkably poor sounding recording is not one of Yanni's better efforts.

Heartbreaker

1995, Silva America; from the movie Heartbreaker, Orion Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Tangerine Dream, Christopher Franke, Edgar Froese, Johannes Schmoelling; Album Producer: Ford A. Thaxton; Engineer: Joe Giannola.

Selections: 1 Heartbreakers (2:30); 2 Footbridge To Heaven (2:56); 3 Twilight Painter (4:15); 4 Gemini (3:38); 5 Rain In N.Y. City (3:23); 6 Pastime (2:57); 7 The Loser (3:19); 8 Breathing The Night Away (2:27); 9 Desire (5:35); 10 Thorny Affair (3:10); 11 Daybreak (4:07).

Review: A bright and bouncy early 1980s Tangerine Dream score from the days of Christopher Franke's association. It holds the attention really well, while capturing all the quirky aspects of the film's story of two lifelong friends and their relationships with women. Where the album works best are on the more gentle cues like "Rain in the City" or "Breathing the Night Away." However, most of the cues, like the aggressive "Twilight Painter," regretfully betray their age with their somewhat dated synthesizer sounds. Add an extra bone if you really do miss the '80s. I don't.

Heartbreak Hotel

1988, RCA Records; from the movie Heartbreak Hotel, Touchstone Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Featured Musicians: The Zulu Time Band featuring Dave Davies (guitars, vocals), Michael Moyer (bass, vocals), Cole Hanson (guitar, vocals), Kevin Pearson (drums); The T. Graham Brown Band: Michael Thomas (guitar), Joe McGlohon (saxophone, guitar), Garland (keyboards), Greg Watzel (keyboards), Larry Marrs (bass guitar), Gary Kubal (drums).

Selections: 1 Heartbreak Hotel (M. Boren Axton/T. Durden/E. Presley)(2:06) Elvis Presley; 2 One Night (D. Bartholomew/P. King)(2:30) Elvis Presley; 3 Drift Away (M. Williams)(3:51) Dobie Gray; 4 Can't Help Falling In Love (G. Weiss/H. Peretti/L. Creatore)(2:34) David Keith, T. Graham Brown Band; 5 Bruning Love (D. Linde)(2:51) Elvis Presley; 6 Love Me (M. Stoller/J. Leiber)(1:52) David Keith; 7 Ready Teddy (J. Marascalo/R. Blackwell)(2:03) Elvis Presley; 8 I'm Eighteen (A. Cooper/M. Bruce/G. Buxton/D. Dunaway/N. Smith)(2:56) Alice Cooper; 9 Soul On Fire (F. Carillo/ R. Byrd/R. Kraft)(3:12) Charlie Schlatter, Zulu Time; 10 If I Can Dream (W.E. Brown)(3:07) Elvis Presley; 11 Heartbreak Hotel (M. Boren Axton/T. Durden/E. Presley)(2:25) David Keith, Charlie Schlatter, Zulu Time.

Review: You can hear The King sing the title track, then you can hear actors David Keith and Charlie Schlatter take their stab at it. Need we say more? Keith and Schlatter sing far too much here, and while it's nice to have some more tunes from Elvis, as well as Dobie Gray's "Drift Away" and Alice Cooper's "Eighteen," there are far better ways to get them.

Heat

1995, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Heat, Warner Bros., 1995.

Selections: 1 Heat (7:41) Kronos Quartet; 2 Always Forever (B. Eno/U2) (6:55) Passengers (Brian Eno/U2); 3 Condensers (2:35); 4 Refinery Surveillance (1:45) Kronos Quartet; 5 Last Nite (T. Rypdal)(3:30) Terje Rypdal; 6 Ultramarine (M. Brook)(4:35) Michael Brook; 7 Armenia (E. Neubauten)(4:58) Einsturzende Neubauten; 8 Of Helplessness (2:39); 9 Steel Cello Lament (1:43); 10 Mystery Man (T. Rypdal)(4:40) Terje Rypdal; 11 New Dawn Fades (J. Division) (2:55) Moby; 12 Entrada and Shootout (1:45); 13 Force Marker (B. Eno)(3:37) Brian Eno; 14 Coffee Shop (1:37); 15 Fate Scrapes (1:35); 16 La Bas (L. Gerrard)(3:11) Lisa Gerrard; 17 Gloradin (L. Gerrard)(3:56) Lisa Gerrard; 18 Run Uphill (2:52); 19 Predator Diorama (2:40) Kronos Quartet; 20 Of Separation (2:21); 21 God Moving Over The Face Of The Waters (R. Hall)(6:58) Moby.

Review: "Miami Vice" showed that director Michael Mann had a flair for marrying arresting music and visuals. But shorn of the latter, the songs on "Heat" seem dispirate and random—Kronos Quartet's avant chamber music here, Moby's ambient dance fare there. The collection is notable for "Always Forever Now," a track by the Passengers (aka U2 and Brian Eno), but it's hard to spend time with this as a cohesive listening experience.

Heathers

1989, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Heathers, New World Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: David Newman; Music Editor: Scott Grusin; Album Producer: David Newman; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Strip Croquet (1:56); 2 Suicide Note (2:09); 3 J.D. Blows Up (2:12); 4 The Forest (2:00); 5 You're Beautiful (2:12); 6 Martha Dumptruck (1:13); 7 Third Funeral (1:51); 8 Veronica And J.D. (1:11); 9 First Funeral (1:55); 10 The Dorm (1:01); 11 Back To School (1:11); 12 Forest Chase (1:29); 13 Heather's Locker (1:09); 14 Veronica's Shower (:44); 15 Into The Cafeteria (:50); 16 Veronica's Dream (1:56); 17 J.D.'s Final Stand (2:59); 18 Dorm Party (3:32); 19 Croquet (1:31); 20 Second Funeral (1:28); 21 Poor Little Heather (:56); 22 J.D.'s Bomb (3:53); 23 Petition Montage (2:30).

Review: This sharp (and sharply funny) black comedy about a quartet of stuck-up damsels known as the Heathers, so called because it happens to be the first name of three of them, was the occasion for David Newman to write a serious tongue-in-cheek opus, with dark overtones, that smartly complements the moods of the film. Unlike the large orchestral works for which he has become quite famous in film music circles, Newman chose to go the electronic route this time around, and created a synthesized score in which the only occasional acoustic note is injected by an harmonica. Throughout, there are clever, humorous little touches that make the music even more enjoyable, as in "You're Beautiful," "The Dorm," "Into the Cafeteria".

Heavy Metal

1981, Full Moon/Elektra Records; from the animated feature Heavy Metal, Columbia Pictures, 1981.

Album Notes: Album Executive Producer: Irving Azoff; Album Compilers: Irving Azoff, Howard Kaufman, Bob Destocki.

Selections: 1 Heavy Metal (S. Hagar/J. Peterik)(3:50) Sammy Hagar; 2 Heartbeat (J. Riggs)(4:20) Jerry Riggs; 3 Working In The Coal Mine (A. Toussaint)(2:48) Devo; 4 Veteran Of The Psychic War (E. Bloom/M. Moorcock) (4:48) Blue Oyster Cult; 5 Reach Out (R. James/P. Comita)(3:35) Cheap Trick; 6 Heavy Metal (Takin' A Ride)(D. Felder)(5:00) Don Felder; 7 True Companion (D. Fagen)(5:02) Donald Fagen; 8 Crazy (A Suitable Case For Treatment)(M. Charlton/P. Agnew/D. McCafferty/D. Sweet)(3:24) Nazareth; 9 Radar Rider (J. Riggs)(2:40) Jerry Riggs; 10 Open Arms (S. Perry/J. Cain) (3:20) Journey; 11 Queen Bee (M. Farmer)(3:11) Grand Funk Railroad; 12 I Must Be Dreaming (R. Nielsen)(5:37) Cheap Trick; 13 The Mob Rules (T. Butler/A. Iommi/R.J. Dio)(2:43) Black Sabbath; 14 All Of You (D. Felder) (4:18) Don Felder; 15 Prefabricated (B. Bonvoisin/N. Krief/J. Pursey)(2:59) Trust; 16 Blue Lamp (S. Nicks)(3:48) Stevie Nicks.

Review: One of the great animated features of the 1980s, Heavy Metal owed little to the genre dominated for so long by Walt Disney. In fact, the raw energy of the various segments in the film, designed by some of the best illustrators of the day, was in sharp contrast with the saccharine images usually created by the House of the Mouse or even, for that matter, with the slyly sarcastic cartoon shorts made by Warner Bros. So was, for that matter, the explosive soundtrack which brought together some of the greatest names in rock'n'roll—Blue Oyster Cult, Cheap Trick, Devo, Nazareth, Journey, Grand Funk Railroad, Cheap Trick and Black Sabbath, among them—names one would not normally associate with a cartoon feature. But the tremendous volatile power of the score and the extraordinary visual images on the screen combined to create a film unlike anything usually seen in movie houses.

The CD returns to the catalogue a long sought-after soundtrack album which deserves to be in every collection. Missing, however, is the instrumental score, composed by Elmer Bernstein, which was available on a separate LP and has never been reissued on compact disc.

Hello Again

1987, Cinedisc Records; from the movie Hello Again, Touchstone Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: William Goldstein; Featured Musician: Dave Boruff (saxophone); Album Producer: William Goldstein; Engineer: William Goldstein.

Selections: 1 Hello Again: Main Theme (4:12); 2 Lucy's Reflection (2:30); 3 Kevin And Lucy (3:55); 4 In The Beginning (4:00); 5 Zelda Visits The Beyond (3:57); 6 The Dinner Party/Lucy's Death (3:33); 7 Transfiguration (Resurrection)(2:46); 8 Jason's Remorse/Zelda Clues In Scanlon (3:34); 9 Lucy And Kevin Montage (2:21); 10 Hello Again: Main Theme (reprise)(4:20); 11 Second Thoughts/Lucy And Kevin (3:26); 12 Lucy Despairs/"Kimmy Pie" (4:30); 13 The Grand Finale (3:49).

Review: This synthesized comedy score, written and performed by William Goldstein, has an infectious, innocent charm about it. The main theme is bright and bouncy, but its overuse tends to wear out its welcome. Goldstein's arrangements for the most part work well within the limitations of his electronics, and Dave Boruff's occasional sax solos add some welcome life. However, the synthesized instrumentation sounds awfully primitive just ten years later and, at times, distracts from Goldstein's compositions.

Hellraiser III: Hell on Earth

1996, GNP Crescendo; from the movie Hellraiser III: Hell on Earth, New World Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Miller.

Selections: 1 Hellraiser III: Hell On Earth (2:12); 2 Back To Hell (4:39); 3 Cenobites' Death Dance (2:31); 4 Pinhead's Proteges/ The Devil's Mass (12:50); 5 Come To Daddy (2:43); 6 Gothic Rebirth (1:05); 7 Emergency Room (6:32); 8 Mind Invasion (2:42); 9 The Pillar (4:10); 10 Elliot's Story (5:14); 11 Shall We Begin (2:04).

Review: Although Randy Miller quotes from Chris Young's original Hellraiser several times in this third outing, his own main theme is a strong contender to Young's, carrying on the cosmic drama of the former films while giving this story a musical sensibility of his own. Like the Cenobite torturers of the film, it quickly overcomes the minor musical motifs set before it—such as the heavy and doom-filled theme heard in "Mind Invasion." In "Elliot's Story," Miller accentuates the interplay between the main theme and the "Mind Invasion" motif, one cue playing softly on the violin, and humanizing the horrific sounds heard earlier. The use of the choir adds drama and power to the score. Low, echoing percussion and slow, shimmering cymbals open the music up to cavernous depths. The main theme sounds strident and omnipresent throughout the score.

Henry and June

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Henry and June, Universal Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Robert Townson.

Selections: 1 Parlez-moi d'amour (J. Lenoir/B. Slevier)(3:00) Lucienne Boyer; 2 Pour l'Egyptienne (C. Debussy)(3:22) Ensemble Musical de Paris; 3 Les chemins de l'amour (F. Poulenc)(3:57) Ransom Wilson, Christopher O' Riley; 4 Petite Suite (Ballet)(C. Debussy)(3:04) Alfons Kontarsky, Aloys Kontarsky; 5 I Found A Million Dollar Baby (H. Warren/M. Dixon/B. Rose)(3:04) Bing Crosby; 6 Gnossienne #3 (E. Satie)(3:10) Pascal Roge; 7 Je te veux (E. Satie)(4:46) Jean-Pierre Armengaud; 8 Sonata For Violin And Piano (First Movement)(C. Debussy)(4:45) Kyung-Wha Chung, Radu Lupu; 9 Nocturne No. 1 in C Major (F. Poulenc)(3:57) Paul Crossley; 10 Sous les toits de Paris (R. Moretti/R. Nazles)(2:15); 11 Le doux caboulot (J. Larmanjat/F. Carcos)(1:04) Annie Fratellini; 12 La plus que lente (C. Debussy)(4:17) Josef Suk; 13 Je m'ennuie (W. Berg/C. Francois)(2:18); 14 Coralia (trad.)(4:35); 15 St. James Infirmary (J. Primrose)(2:01); 16 Gran Vals (F. Tarrega)(:43); 17 Basque Song (J. Nin-Culmell)(2:49) Joaquin Nin-Culmell; 18 J'ai deux amours (V. Scotto/ H. Varna)(2:12) Josephine Baker.

Review: Philip Kaufman's brilliant film, Henry and June, centered around the erotic life of two Americans living in Paris who became 20th-century literary giants, Henry Miller and Anais Nin. Set in 1931, the film boldly explores their first encounter and their passionate relationship, further pushed to the limits by Miller's enigmatic and hauntingly sensual wife, June. To musically illustrate this first-rate film, Kaufman assembled various recordings that to him symbolized the period, from both its French and its American perspectives, and gave it its unique cachet. With a few exceptions (Bing Crosby's "I Found a Million Dollar Baby," Lucienne Boyer's "Parlez-moi d'amour" and Josephine Baker's "J'ai deux amours," which bookend the soundtrack album), most of the selections are modern recordings of works from the 1930s, which are strongly evocative of the era, yet are sonically modern in concept and interpretation. Like The Moderns, also set in Paris in the 1930s, Henry and June is a splendid evocation of a period long gone which had a unique flavor to it. The terrific soundtrack album exudes the same irresistible flair.

Henry V

1989, EMI Angel; from the movie Henry V, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Patrick Doyle; Orchestrations: Lawrence Ashmore; The City of Birmingham Orchestra, conducted by Simon Rattle; Album Producers: Simon Woods, Patrick Doyle, Lawrence Ashmore; Engineer: Christopher Dibble.

Selections: 1 Opening Title: "O! For a Muse of Fire" (3:34); 2 Henry V Theme/The Boar's Head (2:46); 3 The Three Traitors (2:03); 4 "Now, Lords, for France!" (2:40); 5 The Death Of Falstaff (1:54); 6 "Once more unto the breach" (3:45); 7 The Threat To The Governor Of Harfleur/Katherine Of France/The March To Calais (5:51); 8 The Death Of Bardolph (2:22); 9 "Upon the King" (4:50); 10 St. Crispin's Day/The Battle Of Agincourt (14:13); 11 "The day is yours" (2:34); 12 "Non nobis, Domine" (4:09) Patrick Doyle, Stephen Hill Singers, Renaissance Theatre Company; 13 The Wooing Of Katherine (2:24); 14 "Let this acceptance take" (2:50); 15 End Title (2:35).

Review: There has rarely been as impressive a film scoring debut as Patrick Doyle's score for Kenneth Branaugh's first-time film directing effort, a gritty and inspiring adaptation of Shakespeare's tale of the British king who overcame incredible odds at the Battle of Agincourt. Opening with a rich low string dirge of great, tragic nobility, Doyle's beautiful music accelerates into an exclamation of pure triumph simply to introduce Shakespeare's tale. It's one of the most active underscoring of dialogue in recent memory, pulsing through scenes, erupting in martial fury or in beautiful elegiac lyricism (as in the "Requiem for Falstaff"). Doyle's scoring of Henry's troop-rallying speech before the Agincourt battle is one of the most moving, gorgeous and inspiring musical cues written for a film in the past couple of decades, and his music for the battle proper is a balletic marvel of percussive, rhythmic drive. The entire score compares quite well with William Walton's legendary effort for the Laurence Olivier Henry V of 1944. It's a rare soundtrack album that will appeal to lovers of film scores as well as good music in general.

Her Majesty Mrs. Brown

1997, Milan Records; from the movie Her Majesty Mrs. Brown, Miramax Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Stephen Warbeck; Orchestra conducted by Nick Ingman; Featured Musicians: Martin Robertson, Tim Holmes (tarogato), Sarah Horner (whistles), Dermot Crehan (fiddle), Pipe Major Willie Cochrane (bagpipes); Album Producer: Stephen Warbeck; Engineers: Chris Dibble, Mark Tucker.

Selections: 1 The Walk On The Moors (2:43); 2 The Swim (2:09); 3 Queen Victoria And John Brown (8:16); 4 The Loch (2:57); 5 The Fight (2:34); 6 The First Ride (2:46); 7 The Assassination Attempt (2:29); 8 Typhoid Fever (2:30); 9 The End Of The Loch (:48); 10 Brown And The Pony (3:29); 11 The Pipes: All The Blue Bonnets Are O'er The Border/Atholl Highlanders/Cock O' The North (4:05); 12 Loch Nagar (1:52); 13 After The Dance (3:36); 14 Political Intrigue (2:09); 15 The Promise (2:06); 16 No Toast For Brown (3:04); 17 The Closing (2:43).

Review: A quaint but apparently true story, Her Majesty Mrs. Brown centers on a little known fact about England's Queen Victoria (played by Judi Dench), in the years following the death of her beloved husband, Prince Albert, and the warm friendship that established itself between her and a loyal servant and stableman by the name of John Brown (portrayed by Billy Connolly). Stephen Warbeck wrote a beautifully poignant and emotionally rousing score, developed around a solemn, stately theme for the Queen, and a blend of Celtic melodic fragments (played on a tarogato, a Hungarian wood instrument), for Brown, in an odd, yet compelling musical marriage. Both themes dominate the score, either played singly or intermingled, while other cues explore the landscapes, natural and political, that serve as a backdrop to the unusual relationship between the Queen and her stableman, often in terms that are quietly stated and attractive. Lush and stirring, it is an unusual score that deserves to be heard.

Hero ♫♫♫

Album Notes: Music: George Fenton; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian; Music Editor: Michael Connell; Orchestra conducted by George Fenton; Featured Musicians: Nat Adderley, Jr. (piano/keyboards), Harvey Mason (drums), William "Doc" Powell (guitar), Byron Miller (bass), Paulinho da Costa (percussion), Wayne Linsey (synthesizer programming/keyboards/cymbals); Album Producer: George Fenton; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 Heart Of A Hero (L. Vandross)(3:29) Luther Vandross, Los Angeles Children' s Chorus; 2 Hero Front Titles (2:01); 3 Keep A Low Profile (2:14); 4 Gale Gayley For Channel 4 News (1:28); 5 Looking For The Truth (2:18); 6 The Plane Crash (9:13); 7 He Said, I'll Save Your Father (2:03); 8 Out Of The Darkness (The Battle Hymn Of The Republic)(2:25); 9 Million Dollar Reward (2:00); 10 The Man I Love (G. & I. Gershwin)(1:57); 11 Dinner For Two (3:18); 12 The Hotel Lobby (2:12); 13 Reunion (1:34); 14 The Angel Of Flight 104 (:51); 15 The Man I Love (reprise)(G. & I. Gershwin) (2:10); 16 The Ledge (Parts 1, 2, 3)(3:33); 17 Lady, I Ain't The Type (2:40); 18 A Pair Of Shoes (1:33); 19 Heart Of A Hero (L. Vandross)(3:24).

Review: Comedy scores do not often make for interesting albums (since they tend to be quirky by nature), and Hero is no exception. George Fenton is of course one of the finest composers of our time (with scores like Cry Freedom, Dangerous Liaisons and The Fisher King to his credit, among many others), but this particular score, while dramatically (and comedically) effective, is not really one which comes together to form a cohesive album. The CD opens with Luther Vandross' song, "Heart of a Hero," which is a typically forgettable pop tune. Fenton's ensuing score is a varied amalgam of styles. The main title opens with an arrangement of "Auld Lang Syne," which segues into a Sousa-like march. Much of the music is light pop or programmatic suspense music, but there are a few listenable moments. Track 5, "Looking for the Truth" has a nice Americana flavor to it, and is typical of Fenton's more noble side and his gift for writing music of depth which flows effortlessly. Hero is certainly a fine score, but one which is better experienced in the film, where it was meant, rather than on disc.

Announced by Luther Vandross' anthem, "Heart of a Hero," this sarcastic comment on modern society and the role television plays in it, takes off with a soaring score, penned by George Fenton, which happily mixes cues for a large orchestra and themes for a jazz combo that includes many well-known participants. It is all the more surprising because Fenton had not often accustomed us for this muscular type of writing in a contemporary idiom, but he pulls it off with gusto and manages to create a music that has great appeal on its own. The film, about a bum who saves several people after a plane crash, and the "friend" who takes credit for his action because no one believes a bum would do it, is a biting satire about television and the 15-minute heroes it creates. The subject obviously motivated Fenton to write one of his most inspiring scores.

Hero and the Terror

1988, Cinedisc Records; from the movie Hero and the Terror, Cannon Films, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: David Michael Frank; Synthesizer Programmer: Jeff Rona; Album Producer: David Michael Frank; Engineers: Avi Kipper, Keith Stein.

Selections: 1 Two Can Be One (R. Jason/D. Osso)(3:47) Joe Pizzulo, Stephanie Reach; 2 Obsession (2:40); 3 Workout (1:23); 4 The Terror (3:39); 5 Hero's Seduction (:42); 6 San Pedro Bust (3:49); 7 The Ladies Room (1:47); 8 Breakout (2:23); 9 Birthday Wishes (1:56); 10 Discovery (1:49); 11 Showtime! (2:36); 12 Angela (2:15); 13 Subterranean Terror (2:30); 14 Simon's Lair (2:58); 15 The Search (1:23); 16 Living Nightmare (2:42); 17 Love And Obsession (1:40).

Review: Announced by the relatively tepid "Two Can Be One," warbled in contemporary fashion by Joe Pizzulo and Stephanie Reach, Hero and the Terror is a combination of orchestral and synthesizer cues, some attractive, some effective, many of them routine. When he stays within an acoustic or orchestral context, David Michael Frank comes up with some lovely tunes ("Hero's Seduction," "Birthday Wishes," "Angela," "Love and Obsession"), but these are defeated by the obvious, and much less creative approach to the electronic cues that constitute the remainder of the score.

Hideaway

1995, TVT Records; from the movie Hideaway, Tri-Star Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Trevor Jones; Orchestrations: Trevor Jones, Geoffrey Alexander, Lawrence Ashmore, Julian Kershaw; Song Producers: KMFDM, Phil Parfitt & J.C. Concato, Hacke, Die Warzau, Randall, Warhen & Levy, Colin Richardson, Bill Leeb & Rhys Fulber, Nick Hell, J.K. Broadrick & G.C. Green; Album Producers: Carol Sue Baker, William Ewart; Engineer: Kevin Hodge.

Selections: 1 Go To Hell (S. Konietzko/E. Esch/S. Am)(5:45) KMFDM; 2 She Believes In Me (P. Parlitt)(5:29) Oedipussy; 3 Peep Show (M.S. Garden/K. Blake)(3:53) Miranda Sex Garden; 4 All Good Girls (V. Christie/J. Marcus) (5:00) Die Warzau; 5 Lung (bronchitis mix)(C. Randall/J. Marcus)(3:08) Sister Machine Gun; 6 Scumgrief (deep dub trauma mix)(D. Cazares/B. Bell) (6:18) Fear Factory; 7 Surface Patterns (B. Leeb/R. Fulber)(5:36) Front Line Assembly; 8 Reverberation Nation (J. Thastrom/S. Terrarie)(5:36) Peace Love & Pitbulls; 9 Nihil (J.K. Broadrick/G.C. Green)(5:56) Godflesh; 10 Cut (M.S. Garden/K. Blake)(4:59) Miranda Sex Garden; 11 Main Titles "Nunc Dimitus" (3:48); 12 Into The Light (6:57); 13 Beyond The Shadow Of Death (10:26).

Review: Hideaway appears at first glance no more than just another rock and roll collection, trowelled indiscriminately into the film (and the CD) for commercial purposes. However, the three tracks allotted to Trevor Jones' score (placed at the end of this disc) are highly recommended. At roughly 20 minutes, Jones' score is the kind of full orchestral music which highlighted his early work, in scores like The Dark Crystal and The Last Place on Earth. Hideaway is a film dealing with mysticism and the afterlife, and Jones' score reflects these fantastical-religious elements with soaring choral music, which evokes a spiritual etheria. A brooding statement of the "Dies Irae" opens the final track, "Beyond the Shadow of Death" which culminates in a powerful setting of the main theme, though the heavy rock and roll drums which come-in near the end unfortunately compromise its effect. Overall, Hideaway represents some of Trevor Jones' better large-orchestral writing. While the rock songs in this release are a forgettable cacophony, Jones' score is a very good one and ultimately makes for rewarding listening.

(1:09); 7 Un ano de amor (N. Ferrer/G. Verlor)(3:20) Luz Casal; 8 El Cucu #1 (4:28); 9 El Cucu #2 (4:16); 10 Murder (:35); 11 Interrogation (4:23); 12 Driving To Confess (1:07); 13 Tele 7 (:10); 14 Rebecca's Arrest (1:05); 15 Piensa en mi (A. Lare)(4:27) Luz Casal; 16 Autumn Sonata (:50); 17 Released Rebecca (1:58); 18 Lethal's Secret (:56); 19 Ambulance Ride (:21); 20 End Title (3:05).

Review: This typically flavorful score by Ryuichi Sakamoto was composed for a Spanish film starring Victoria Abril, which partly explains the inclusion of a couple of vocals in that language, as well as several cues with Spanish titles. Though relying on the sounds of a flamenco guitar to provide an occasional exotic color, Sakamoto wrote a score that is not specifically rooted in either the time or place of the action, about a young woman who finds out that her new husband once had an affair with her own mother, but is more universal in appeal. A diversified mix, the music is an interesting blend of romantic themes and pop/rock tunes, of synthesizer cues and orchestral sounds, all of which combines to give a definitely unusual style to the album.

High Spirits

1988, GNP Crescendo; from the movie High Spirits, TriStar Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: George Fenton; Orchestrations: Christopher Palmer, George Fenton; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by George Fenton; Featured Musicians: Dermot Crehan (Irish fiddle), Paul Brennan (Uillean pipes), Catherine Bott (vocals); Album Producer: Ford A. Thaxton; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 High Spirits Overture (4:37); 2 Prologue and Main Title/ Castle Plunkett (5:00); 3 Plunkett's Lament/Prayers For Freedom (2:16); 4 Ghost Bus Tours (3:36); 5 Ghostly Reflections (1:04); 6 She Is Far From The Land (1:39); 7 Bumps In The Knight (3:42); 8 Mary Appears/Windstorm/A Night For Lovers (5:27); 9 I Could Love You Sir Jack/Shower Surprise (2:37); 10 Knight Time At Castle Plunkett (3:27); 11 The Wedding Night/Jack Saves Mary (2:34); 12 Restless Spirits/The Seastorm (6:12); 13 Madness On All Hallows Eve (4:41); 14 Falling In Love (4:22); 15 The Lovers Dance (Finale)(1:32).

Review: George Fenton's diverse music for High Spirits is as varied as its composer's own repertoire. Varying broadly from mysterious female vocals to farcical symphonics, from riotous electronic/ orchestral effects to full-blooded symphonic overtures, the music draws much of its style from Irish folk songs. Yet the score also bristles with the effective moody atmospheres and quaint orchestrations that made Fenton's A Company of Wolves so remarkable. The Irish fiddle runs throughout many of the cues, driving the orchestra into a rhythmic frenzy of tunefulness, and Fenton ably intersperses the traditional Irish material with his own adventurous music to create a score that is both exhilarating and dreamlike.

Higher Learning

1994, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Higher Learning, Columbia Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Sir Jinx & Goonz Skwad, David Gamson & Me'Shell NdegeOcello, Chase, Raphael Saadiq, Eric Rosse, Organized Noise, Brendan O'Brien, Brad Wood & Liz Phair, The Brand New Heavies, Ted Niceley, Stanley Clarke; Song Engineers: Sir Jinx & Chris Purman, David Gamson & Jason Goldstein, Bob Wartinbee, Darrin Harris & Jerry Brown, John Beverly Jones, Carlos Glover & Alvin Speights, Jim Ebden, Brad Wood, Paul Logus, Andy Baker, Steve Sykes; Album Producer: Danny Bramson; Engineer: Eddie Schreyer.

Selections: 1 Higher (Ice Cube)(4:32) Ice Cube; 2 Something To Think About (:10) Ice Cube; 3 Soul Searchin' (I Wanna Know If It's Mine)(M. NdegeOcello)(6:23) Me'Shell NdegeOcello; 4 Situation: Grimm (R. Tramwick/E. Clark/C.S. Kenol)(3:54) Mista Grimm; 5 Ask Of You (R. Saadiq)(6:02) Raphael Saadiq; 6 Losing My Religion (B. Berry/P. Buck/M. Mills/M. Stipe) (5:00) Tori Amos; 7 Phobia (P. Wade/P. Murra/P. Brown/A. Benjamin/A. Patton/R. Bailey)(5:57) OutKast; 8 My New Friend (:27) Cole Hauser, Michael Rapaport; 9 Year Of The Boomerang (Z. De la Rocha)(4:05) Rage Against The Machine; 10 Higher Learning/Time For Change (S. Bartholomew/A. Levy/N. Lavenport/J. Kincaid)(4:52) The Brand New Heavies; 11 Don't Have Time (L. Phair)(3:14) Liz Phair; 12 Butterfly (T. Amos)(3:07) Tori Amos; 13 By Your Side (Zhane)(4:52) Zhane; 14 Eye (M. Kotch/G. Fitzpatrick)(3:51) Eve's Plum; 15 The Learning Curve (S. Clarke)(3:30) Stanley Clarke.

Review: A contemporary drama, set in a modern college campus, Higher Learning charts a semester in the lives of a handful of students confronting issues of identity, diversity, sexism and escalating racial tension, all of which found an echo in the songs chosen to musically illustrate the film. Featuring recordings from the worlds of R&B, hip hop, rap, and alternative music, the diversified soundtrack brought together performers who also appeared in the film like Ice Cube, Eve's Plum, and others whose contributions were part of the behind-the-action musical make-up, notably Tori Amos, Me'shell NdegeOcello, Liz Phair, and Raphael Saadiq from Tony! Toni! Tone!. Adding a different touch to the proceedings, "Deja," composed by Stanley Clarke, rounds up the performances on the album, along with two scenes from the film, "Something to Think About" and "My New Friend," with dialogue written by John Singleton, who directed it.

Highlander: The Original Scores

1995, edel Records; from the movies Highlander, Republic Pictures, 1985; Highlander II: The Quickening, Columbia Pictures, 1990; and Highlander: The Final Dimension, Columbia Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Highlander: Music: Michael Kamen; Orchestrations: Michael Kamen; Music Editors: Lee Trong Weinrich, Jacky Garston; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Michael Kamen; Featured Musicians: Bob Murphy (pipes), Ben Murdock (mandora); Featured Vocalist: Alexandra Thompson; Producer: Michael Kamen; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson; Highlander II The Quickening: Music: Stewart Copeland; Orchestrations: Johnathan Sheffer; Featured Musicians: Rusty Anderson (guitars); The Seattle Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Johnathan Sheffer; Producer: Stewart Copeland; Engineers: David Roberts, Andrew Warwick, Joel Moss; Highlander The Final Dimension: Music: J. Peter Robinson; Orchestrations: Michael McCuistion, Larry Rench; The Munich Symphony Orchestra, conducted by J. Peter Robinson; Producers: J. Peter Robinson, Michael Hoenig; Engineer: Robert Fernandez.

Selections: HIGHLANDER: 1 The Highlander Theme (5:19); 2 Rachel's Surprise/ Who Wants To Live Forever (Queen/M. Kamen/B. May)(4:08); 3 The Quickening (3:14); 4 Swordfight At 34th Street (2:24); 5 Under The Garden/The Prize (4:04);

HIGHLANDER II THE QUICKENING: 6 Finger Dip (2:00); 7 Rebel Troops (2:09); 8 Dam Raid (1:22); 9 White Cloud (1:44); 10 Mac Absorbs Reno (2:51); 11 Shield Shatters/Alan Dies (3:52);

HIGHLANDER THE FINAL DIMENSION: 12 Love Theme/Shrine Fight (5:30); 13 Massacre (The Beginning)(5:45); 14 Laundry Room/ Quickening 2 (3:30); 15 Revolution (5:30); 16 Final Battle/ Quickening 3/Epilogue (7:01).

Review: One of the best fantasy scores of the '80s, Michael Kamen's Highlander is represented in a 20-minute suite. A colorful blend of orchestra and synthesizers, with a Gaelic flavor, Kamen's score is adventurous, mythic and triumphant, and probably the best he's written. There is a rush of enthusiasm here, which sounds like Kamen was having fun writing it (a feeling that does not come across in his later Hollywood blockbuster scores). The effect of opening the album with Kamen's grand original proves anti-climactic however. Neither of the other scores can compare.

Stewart Copeland's Highlander II is a nonsensical cacophony that mixes coarse synth-rock with orchestra. Jonathan Sheffer's orchestrations are impressive, but working from such ignoble source material he is unable to make it anything special.

J. Peter Robinson allots 27 minutes to his music for Highlander: The Final Dimension. His music is superior to Copeland's, with a nice romantic theme for MacLeod's 19th-century love affair. However, the meandering "atmosphere" cues, awkward rock and roll passages and bloated climax are disconcerting on disc.

Though only 20 minutes, Michael Kamen's Highlander is nevertheless magnificent, and the showpiece of the album. It is this score which ultimately makes the CD recommended.

The Hitcher

1991, Silva Screen Records; from the movie The Hitcher, Cannon Films, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Orchestrations: Mark Isham; Featured Musicians: Kurt Wortman, Bongo Bob Smith (percussion), Bill Douglass (bass), Mark Isham (electronics/ flugelhorn); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineers: Gary Clayton, Sam Lehmer.

Selections: 1 Headlights: Main Title (4:02); 2 The Chosen (2:24); 3 Keys (4:13); 4 Dust And Gasoline (3:01); 5 Dream (1:24); 6 Dogs (3:31); 7 Suicide (1:21); 8 Gun (1:44); 9 Cars And Helicopters (5:35); 10 Motel (2:47); 11 Transfer (1:45); 12 Endgame (2:49); 13 Guards And Cards (3:45); 14 The Hitcher: End Credits (4:12).

Review: Mark Isham's atmospheric score underlines the action in this terror-filled drama, a confrontation between good and evil, about a youth on a cross-country trip and the hitchiker he picks up on a deserted road. Using weird and seemingly disparate extremes, Isham created a flavorful synthesized score that captures the personalities of the characters as well as the tension in the action. It's all very effective and works well within the limits imposed by the subject matter and its treatment.

Hoffa

1993, Fox Records; from the movie Hoffa, 20th Century-Fox, 1993.

Selections: 1 Hoffa End Credits (7:58); 2 RTA Riot & Wake (6:56); 3 Truck Talk (3:07); 4 Trucker Salute (1:10); 5 Ride To The RTA (3:19); 6 This Man's Going To Be President (1:32); 7 Hoffa Trailer (2:15); 8 First Transition (1:05); 9 Billy Flynn (4:05); 10 Jimmy Goes To Jail (2:43); 11 Meeting The Mafia (1:17); 12 Loading Dock Riot (:48); 13 Going To Jail (1:07); 14 Bobby's Cell (1:43); 15 Ants At A Picnic (1:10); 16 Mob Negotiations (:54); 17 Jimmy's Last Ride (:59)

Review: Director Danny DeVito seeks to tell the story of union organizer Jimmy Hoffa with the larger than life scope afforded to any big screen heroic tale. To establish the appropriate musical accompaniment, DeVito turned to his longtime associate David Newman to create an epic symphonic score that gives Hoffa's battles a major life or death ambience. Cues, such as "RTA Riot & Wake," could have easily been composed for a bloody World War II invasion sequence, rather than a struggle outside an inner city loading dock. Even the small moments, like "Truck Talk," are saturated with Hoffa's noble ambitions for "the cause" and his urgent need to break "big labor" before they break him. Newman's original music for the Hoffa advance trailer is also included.

Hollow Reed

1997, RCA Victor; from the movie Hollow Reed, Scala Productions, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Anne Dudley; Orchestrations: Anne Dudley; Orchestra conducted by Anne Dudley; Featured Musicians: Michala Petri (recorder), Anne Dudley (piano); Album Producer: Anne Dudley; Engineers: Roger Dudley, Steve Price.

Selections: 1 Hollow Reed Main Title (1:43); 2 Oliver's Theme (1:53); 3 Upside Down World (2:13); 4 Family Life (2:25); 5 Questioning (1:19); 6 Mother And Son (1:43); 7 Silent Witness (1:44); 8 Waking Nightmare (3:00); 9 A Resolution (2:46); 10 It Will Never Happen Again (1:50); 11 Seeds Of Doubt (1:36); 12 Unnatural Practices (1:31); 13 White Lies (1:35); 14 The Decision (1:41); 15 No Hiding Place (4:02); 16 In A Child's Mind (1:52); 17 Meditations (11:01); 18 I Shall Be Released (B. Dylan)(3:03) Paul Weller.

Review: Anne Dudley's score for Hollow Reed is generally attractive, with cues that are not always fully realized (many end up too abruptly or trail off without a satisfying conclusion), but develop musical ideas that are essentially compelling. The score, a series of long orchestral lines framing the delicate themes played on a variety of wind instruments, is quite evocative and establishes sustained moods that are striking. The overall effect is one of peace and quietness, which strongly supports the screen action. Judged on its own merits, the score also makes an excellent impression that obliterates its more basic flaws.

Home Alone

Home Alone

1990, CBS Records; from the movie Home Alone, 20th Century-Fox, 1990.

Selections: 1 Home Alone (Main Title) ("Somewhere In My Memory") (4:53); 2 Holiday Flight (:59); 3 The House (2:27); 4 Star Of Bethlehem (2:51); 5 Man Of The House (4:33); 6 White Christmas (I. Berlin) The Drifters; 7 Scammed By A Kindergartner (3:55); 8 Please Come Home For Christmas (C. Brown/G. Redd) (2:41) Southside Johnny Lyon; 9 Follow That Kid! (2:03); 10 Making The Plane (:52); 11 O Holy Night (A. Adam) (2:48); 12 Carol Of The Bells (P. Wilhousky) (1:25); 13 Star Of Bethlehem (2:59) Children's Chorus; 14 Setting The Trap (2:16); 15 Somewhere In My Memory (1:04); 16 The Attack On The House (6:53); 17 Mom Returns and Finale (4:19); 18 Have Yourself A Merry Little Christmas (H. Martin/R. Blane) (3:05) Mel Torme; 19 We Wish You A Merry Christmas (trad.)/End Title (4:15).

Review: At a time when most current films seem to eschew the idea of a thoughtful, original score in favor of unremarkable underscoring and commercial-pop style "hook" songs, the soundtrack for Home Alone emerges as a warm, fresh and thoroughly appealing disc that lends itself well to repeated playing.

John Williams' compositions, both spirited and sensitive, perfectly capture the essence of the Christmas season, with all its wonderment and fun, as viewed through the innocent (well, almost!) eyes of a child, the film's pint-sized star, Macauley Culkin. The lush orchestral score is enriched with a few carefully chosen pop vocal recordings, like The Drifters' classic version of "White Christmas," a searing "Please Come Home for Christmas" sung by rocker Southside Johnny Lyon, and an exquisite rendition of "Have Yourself A Merry Little Christmas," (perhaps the most perfect recording ever) by Mel Torme. Definitely a keeper for Christmas, or any time!

Home Alone 2: Lost in New York

1992, Fox Records; from the movie Home Alone 2: Lost in New York, 20th Century-Fox, 1992.

Selections: 1 Somewhere In My Memory (3:49); 2 Home Alone (2:01); 3 We Overslept Again (2:46); 4 Christmas Star (3:18); 5 Arrival In New York (1:41); 6 Plaza Hotel and Duncan's Toy Store (3:45); 7 Concierge and Race To The Room (2:04); 8 Star Of Bethlehem (3:28); 9 The Thieves Return (4:35); 10 Appearance Of Pigeon Lady (3:19); 11 Christmas At Carnegie Hall: (a) O Come All Ye Faithful, (b) O Little Town Of Bethlehem, (c) Silent Night (5:02); 12 Into The Park (3:49); 13 Haunted Brownstone (3:01); 14 Christmas Star and Preparing The Trap (4:17); 15 To The Plaza Presto (3:22); 16 Reunion At Rockefeller Center (2:36); 17 Kevin's Booby Traps (3:41); 18 Finale (3:55); 19 Merry Christmas, Merry Christmas (2:51).

Review: Like most film sequels, Home Alone 2 lacks much of the magic that made the original so endearing, and in many respects, this soundtrack follows suit. What's missing is more of the original John Williams music that enhanced the charm of the original. That said, it is a nice collection of holiday songs, performed by a wide variety of artists, including TLC's rap interpretation of "Sleigh Ride," Alan Jackson performing a country rendition of "A Holly Jolly Christmas," and "My Christmas Tree" sung by the Home Alone Children's Choir. Most interesting are Bette Midler's version of the film's theme, "Somewhere In My Memory," and two Williams compositions, "Merry Christmas, Merry Christmas" and "Christmas Star."

Homeboy

1988, Virgin Records; from the movie Homeboy, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Eric Clapton, Michael Kamen; Featured Musicians: Eric Clapton (guitar), Michael Kamen (keyboards), Steve Ferrone (drums), Nathan East (bass); Album Executive Producer: Fraser Kennedy; Engineers: Steve Chase, Jeremy Wheatley, Ben Kape, Lorraine Francis.

Selections: 1 Travelling East (E. Clapton/M. Kamen) (2:50) Eric Clapton; 2 Johnny (E. Clapton) (1:29) Eric Clapton; 3 Call Me If You Need Me (J.D. Harris) (3:03) Magic Sam; 4 Bridge (E. Clapton) (2:25) Eric Clapton; 5 Pretty Baby (H. Parker) (4:35) J.B. Hutto & The New Hawks; 6 Dixie (trad.) (3:42) Eric Clapton, Nathan East; 7 Ruby's Loft (E. Clapton) (2:33) Eric Clapton; 8 Country Bikin' (E. Clapton) (1:47) Eric Clapton; 9 I Want To Love You Baby (D. Hill) (2:35) Peggy Scott, Jo Jo Benson; 10 Bike Ride (E. Clapton) (1:37) Eric Clapton; 11 Ruby (E. Clapton) (3:53) Eric Clapton; 12 Party (E. Clapton) (1:42) Eric Clapton; 13 Living In The Real World (R. Argent) (3:33) The Brakes; 14 Training (E. Clapton) (3:58) Eric Clapton; 15 Final Fight (E. Clapton) (3:43) Eric Clapton; 16 Chase (E. Clapton) (3:33) Eric Clapton; 17 Dixie (trad.) (2:34) Eric Clapton; 18 Homeboy (E. Clapton/M. Kamen) (4:14) Eric Clapton.

Review: Eric Clapton's presence (his guitar playing, his writing) dominates the entire album, providing the score for this film about a washed-out former boxer trying to make a comeback, with much of its drive and energy. While some cues don't work as well as others ("Bridge," for instance, which is much too dry and uninspiring), most of the selections are beautifully reflective of the downbeat, bluesy moods in the film, and make a musical statement of their own, with Michael Kamen, Steve Ferrone and Nathan East providing solid backup to the leader-composer. Occasionally, as in "Training," the rock'n'roll legend shows his mettle in hard-driving tunes, but these moments are rare and far between and the overall tone of the score is more low-key and subdued. Some vocal numbers not by Clapton, add to the flavor of the album.

Homeward Bound

Homeward Bound: The Incredible Journey

1993, Intrada Records; from the movie Homeward Bound: The Incredible Journey, Walt Disney Films, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Orchestrations: Don Nemitz; Music Editor: Patricia Carlin; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Broughton; Album Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 My Name Is Chance (4:23); 2 The Journey Begins (2:52); 3 Fording The Stream (1:14); 4 The Cougar (3:54); 5 Just Over That Next Hill (2:22); 6 Breakfasting With Bears (1:11); 7 The Little Lost Girl (2:50); 8 Escape From The Pound (2:20); 9 Reunited (4:22); 10 End Credits (5:02).

Review: See entry below.

Homeward Bound II: Lost in San Francisco

1996, Walt Disney Records; from the movie Homeward Bound II: Lost in San Francisco, Walt Disney Films, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Orchestrations: Bruce Broughton; Music Editor: Patricia Carlin; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Broughton; Album Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 A Homeward Bound Overture (5:06); 2 Sassy And Chance (2:07); 3 Airport Escape (1:20); 4 Dog On A Date (1:49); 5 Chasing Chance (3:03); 6 In The Park (3:22); 7 Bungled Ambush (1:42); 8 The Fire (3:35); 9 Attacking The Red Van (6:08); 10 A Thing Of Beauty (2:39); 11 Delilah Returns (5:02).

Review: Bruce Broughton captured the striking beauty of the outdoor environment and the frantic pace of the action in his scores for the Homeward Bound films, about three animals, two dogs and a cat, first in their incredible journey across the Pacific Northwest, then in a sequel that finds the four-legged stars (voiced by Michael J. Fox, Sally Field, Don Ameche and Ralph Waite) lost in the San Francisco wild. It may seem a bit of an overkill to have this lush music used in such a context, but the fact remains that Broughton, one of today's top composers, found the proper voice needed to bring these adventures to musical life. In descriptive terms, he managed to write cues that are frequently picturesque and vivid ("The Cougar," in the first film, "Airport Escape," in the sequel) or simply remarkably attractive ("Just Over That Next Hill," "Dog on a Date"). The main theme that links both scores (developed as "A Homeward Bound" in the second volume) is a catchy, robust piece of business that recalls some of the best western themes heard on the screen.

Honey, I Blew Up the Kid

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Orchestrations: Don Nemitz, David Slonaker; Music Editor: Patricia Carlin; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Broughton; Album Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:03); 2 To The Lab (1:53); 3 Adam Gets Zapped (:35); 4 Putting On Weight? (1:19); 5 Macrowaved (3:15); 6 How'd She Take It? (3:11); 7 Sneaking Out (1:12); 8 Don't Touch That Switch! (:26); 9 The Bunny Trick (2:41); 10 Get Big Bunny (4:11); 11 Clear The Streets! (3:00); 12 Car Flight (4:38); 13 Ice Cream! (3:47); 14 Look At That Mother! (2:26); 15 That's All Folks! (4:20).

Review: Broughton's larger-than-life score for the second Honey... film is a non-stop comedic score, half cartoon music and half emotive drama. The main theme—associated with Rick Moranis and the colossal results of his experiments—is a jaunty scherzo for saxophone and woodwind which propels the score with the unrelenting force of an animated hurricane. Like Ernest Gold's It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World, Broughton's riotous score throws every piece of its musical pie into the face of its listeners, yet takes time out to soothe them with gentle lyricism when it's called for. Comedy scores often don't hold up well on disc because they either are comprised of tiny, unrelated comic cues or are so full of wall-to-wall Mickey Mouse-isms that they make no sense apart from the visual antics. Broughton's score is a happy exception.

Robin) (2:37) Willie Nelson; 13 Can't Help Falling In Love (G. Weiss/H. Peretti/L. Creatore) (2:05) Bono.

Review: An amusing idea (based on the concept that Elvis is alive and well, and performing in Las Vegas) makes for a delightful soundtrack album, with a baker's dozen of the King's hit tunes "covered" by various chartmakers. Not only is this an inspired selection, but anyone who loves Elvis will enjoy discovering these songs performed by others, like Billy Joel, Jeff Beck, Amy Grant, and Willie Nelson, to name a few.

STEWART COPELAND

Perhaps best known as the percussionist for the enormously successful 1980s pop supergroup the Police, Stewart Copeland has also scored numerous films and operas.

Copeland got his first real break in 1974 as a drummer for the band Curved Air. The demise of Curved Air came in 1977 and Copeland hooked up with Sting and Andy Summers and began to perform as the Police. The group accumulated four platinum albums and nine singles in the Top 40, but eventually the Police disbanded, and the band's members pursued solo careers.

In 1983 the multitalented Copeland composed the soundtrack for Francis Ford Coppola's film Rumblefish, which earned him a Golden Globe nomination. Copeland also ventured into the realm of television, penning the themes for George Lucas' "Droids" and "Ewoks" Saturday morning cartoons and composing the music for "The Equalizer," an Emmy Award-winning TV show.

Copeland's earlier success with the film score Rumblefish earned him the attention of Hollywood, and he was asked to compose music for a string of motion pictures, including Oliver Stone's Wall Street and Talk Radio and John Hughes' She's Having a Baby. In 1994 he wrote the blues-influenced score for the critically acclaimed film Fresh.

Venturing back into the world of popular music, Copeland formed the group Animal Logic in 1989, ultimately releasing two self-titled albums. In 1994 he launched an innovative tour with a sampling of percussion groups from around the world, including Zaire, Spain, and West Africa.

Hook

1991, Epic Sountrax; from the movie Hook, Tri-Star Pictures, 1991.

Selections: 1 Prologue (1:31); 2 We Don't Wanna Grow Up (1:50); 3 Banning Back Home (2:22); 4 Granny Wendy (2:57); 5 Hook-Napped (3:56); 6 The Arrival Of Tink and The Flight To Neverland (5:56); 7 Presenting The Hook (2:58); 8 From Mermaids To Lost Boys (4:24); 9 The Lost Boy Chase (3:32); 10 Smee's Plan (1:45); 11 The Banquet (3:08); 12 The Never-Feast (4:40); 13 Remembering Childhood (11:02); 14 You Are The Pan (4:00); 15 When You're Alone (3:14); 16 The Ultimate War (7:53); 17 Farewell Neverland (10:17).

Review: Williams' frequently over-the-top swashbuckling score almost makes one wish the film, a big screen treatment of the story of Peter Pan, had been better than this sometimes messy, often spirited movie actually is. The fact is while the music served its purpose on the screen, it can be best appreciated in this CD in which it makes a different, albeit most enjoyable statement. Williams always excels at creating this type of score, regardless of the merits of the films themselves, and he seldom fails. Here, the score often ends up being quite evocative and exciting, with several cues, like "The Flight to Wonderland," and "The Ultimate War," reaching levels of dynamic enthusiasm that are exhilarating, while others, like "Presenting the Hook," seem to have great fun with the characters and situations they are illustrating. In the process, the composer also takes time to pause and create some lovely melodies, like "Remembering Childhood" for the more reflective moments in the action that add a very good counterpoint to the more active cues. Permeating the whole is the fantasy mood that prevails, making this score one of the composer's most satisfying.

Hoosiers

1986, Polydor Records; from the movie Hoosiers, Orion Pictures, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith, Bruce Botnick; Engineer: Mike Ross.

Selections: 1 Theme From Hoosiers (4:22); 2 You Did Good (6:59); 3 The Coach Stays (2:40); 4 The Pivot (3:26); 5 Get The Ball (1:46); 6 Town Meeting (4:44); 7 The Finals (15:16).

Review: An inspirational film about basketball and the difficult road to final victory of a high school team from a small Indiana town in 1951, Hoosiers (aka Best Shots) benefited from a rousing Chariots of Fire-like score by Jerry Goldsmith. Propelled by a solid synthesizer theme developed over a pounding rhythm, the cues illustrate the various hurdles, professional and personal, the members of the team must overcome under the guidance of their coach, splendid performed by Gene Hackman. Along the way, Goldsmith finds some striking musical ideas in "The Coach Stays," "Get the Ball," and "The Finals" that more than anything else enhance the sometimes plodding action as it moves to its logical conclusion.

Hot Shots!

Hot Shots!

1991, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Hot Shots!, 20th Century-Fox, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Sylvester Levay; Arrangements: Sylvester Levay; Orchestra conducted by Sylvester Levay; Featured Musician: Duane Sciacqua (guitars); Album Producers: Sylvester Levay, Jim Abrahams; Engineer: Brian Reeves.

Selections: 1 Hot Shots!: Main Title (2:38); 2 Sea Maneuvers (1:50); 3 Flash Back (1:45); 4 This Is For You Dad (1:37); 5 Saboteurs (:33); 6 Enemy Planes (1:00); 7 Topper Returns (1:23); 8 Love Theme (The Fruit Seduction (2:12); 9 The Take-Off (1:43); 10 Rescue/Drive To The Hospital (1:03); 11 Father's Theme (:53); 12 Training Flight (1:38); 13 The Man I Love (G. & I. Gershwin)(2:49) Valeria Golino; 14 Aerial Combat (1:56); 15 The Man I Love (reprise)(:35); 16 The Kiss (:46); 17 Dream Lover (B. Darin)(2:40) Dion.

Hot Shots! Part Deux

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Hot Shots! Part Deux, 20th Century-Fox, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Music Editor: Curtis Roush; Orchestra conducted by Basil Poledouris; Album Producer: Basil Poledouris; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:29); 2 Dipsong Fight (3:35); 3 The 3 Bears/ Flurvian Sea (3:03); 4 Reel 5 (3:17); 5 Colonel Torture (3:20); 6 Gotta Light? (6:06); 7 Compound Escape (4:03); 8 Saddam Battles/Freedom Fighters (4:59).

Review: The difference between both scores is what separates a laborious effort from a truly imaginative one. While Sylvester Levay is quite an acceptable composer, whose ideas are for the most part interesting but a trifle hackneyed, Poledouris brings to the task a flair that is truly unmistakable. Thus, if there only was Levay's score to listen to, it probably would pass muster and be judged quite favorably. But Hot Shots! Part Deux, with its broadly humoristic evocations stands so far above that the music devised by Levay doesn't quite make the grade in comparison. This, by the way, is also in keeping with the general tone in both films, with the first an amiable comedy with some goofy moments in it, while the second is completely over-the-top with hilarious results.

The Hot Spot

1990, Antilles Records; from the movie The Hot Spot, Orion Films, 1990.

Selections: 1 Coming To Town (3:06) John Lee Hooker; 2 Empty Bank (2:19) Taj Mahal; 3 Harry's Philosophy (2:46) John Lee Hooker; 4 Dolly's Arrival (1:17); 5 Harry And Dolly (2:49) John Lee Hooker; 6 Sawmill (3:03) John Lee Hooker; 7 Bank Robbery (4:31) Taj Mahal; 8 Moanin' (3:20) John Lee Hooker; 9 Gloria's Story (3:24); 10 Harry Sets Up Sutton (1:41) John Lee Hooker; 11 Murder (4:08) John Lee Hooker; 12 Blackmail (2:09); 13 End Credits (5:19).

Review: This soundtrack album is almost as interesting for Jack Nitzsche's flavorful score as it is for the musicians who play it, including Miles Davis, John Lee Hooker and Taj Mahal, among them. But the specific atmosphere that permeates Dennis Hopper's film noir, about a drifter whose arrival in a small Texas town sets off a chain of events that ends in a fracas in which the various characters reveal their darker leanings, seems to lend itself to this kind of musical treatment. Once the events are set in motion, the course to the unavoidable conclusion is taken at a slow, deliberate pace, an impression further enhanced by the bluesy tone of Jack Nitzsche's evocative music, with John Lee Hooker dominating the tracks with his gritty vocals and Miles Davis delivering a subdued, but quite effective counterpoint. "Dolly's Arrival," a slow sexy tune, played by Roy Rogers on slide guitar, is a highlight, along with "Bank Robbery," in which Miles Davis trades riffs with Taj Mahal on guitar and vocal.

Hour of the Gun

1991, Intrada Records; from the movie Hour of the Gun, United Artists, 1967.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: David Tamkin; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Ray Horricks; CD Producer: Douglass Fake.

Selections: 1 The Hour Of The Gun (2:41); 2 Main Title (4:54); 3 New Marshall (1:06); 4 Ballot Box (3:41); 5 Ambush (2:14); 6 Whose Cattle (2:47); 7 The Painted Desert (1:33); 8 The Search (2:48); 9 Doc's Message (4:40); 10 A Friendly Lie (4:23).

Review: In yet another retelling of the events that led to the celebrated gunfight at the O.K. Corral, the one that saw Doc Holliday and Wyatt Earp defeat the Clanton gang, Hour of the Gun goes one step further and chronicles the slow descent of the lawman into a maelstrom of personal vindication and revenge, following the showdown. One of various psychological westerns that came from that period, Hour of the Gun was as much interested in its characters' motivations and inner thoughts as it was in big action scenes. As a result, action, gritty and violent when it happened, took a back seat to drama, thereby spoiling the film itself from one of its most important elements and an essential ingredient in the genre itself. Responding to the demands of the screenplay, Jerry Goldsmith wrote a score that reflected some of the most intense moments in the film, while also subtly underscoring its more cerebral aspects. Altogether, it was a strong score from a composer who had already found a personal voice in the western and who obviously enjoyed writing for it. The CD reissue simply replicates the original LP, issued on the United Artists label, but with the extra advantage of clean, spacious sound.

House of Frankenstein

1995, Marco Polo Records; from the movie House of Frankenstein, Universal-International, 1944.

Album Notes: Music: Hans J. Salter, Paul Dessau; Reconstruction and Orchestrations: John Morgan, William T. Stromberg; The Moscow Symphony Orchestra, conducted by William T. Stromberg; Album Producer: Betta International; Engineers: Edvard Shakhnazarian, Vitaly Ivanov.

Selections: 1 Universal Signature (J. McHugh)(:16); 2 Main Title (2:17); 3 Lightning Strikes (1:47); 4 Gruesome Twosome Escape (1:50); 5 Strangulation (:30); 6 Off To Vasaria (1:18); 7 Chamber Of Horrors (:40); 8 Dracula Restored (1:30); 9 Dracula's Ring (1:28); 10 The Burgomaster Murdered (2:06); 11 Rendezvous With Dracula (2:34); 12 The World Beyond (1:29); 13 Dracula Pursued (1:44); 14 Dracula Destroyed (1:09); 15 Gypsy Tantrums (1:47); 16 Ilonka Whipped (1:07); 17 Dan's Love (3:23); 18 The Ruins (1:37); 19 The Monstrosities (2:02); 20 Wolf Man Revived (2:13); 21 Show Me The Records (2:22); 22 Travels (:35); 23 Hunchback's Jealousy (1:51); 24 Niemann's Laboratory (1:30); 25 Liquefying Brains (1:12); 26 Niemann's Revenge (1:07); 27 The Pentagram (1:37); 28 Full Moon (1:15); 29 Silver Bullet (3:33); 30 Dr. Niemann Successful (1:24); 31 The Moon Is Full (1:18); 32 Larry At Peace (1:36); 33 Dr. Niemann Attacked (1:36); 34 Death Of The Unholy Two (1:14); 35 End Cast (:28).

Review: This CD features the complete score for House of Frankenstein, composed by Salter and German avant-garde composer Paul Dessau (along with Charles Previn, another Universal staff composer who is co-credited on a few cues). The House score is thrilling, vigorous music, a Symphonie Fantastique in its own right, broken by the occasional light tune such as a pleasing travelogue romp in "Off to Vasaria" and the delightfully manic carnival cacophony of "Chamber of Horrors." The digital recording really lets Morgan's orchestration shine in this cue. Otherwise, the music is dark and terrible, malevolent music for monstrous mayhem. Motifs spring forth for Dracula (somnambulant winds, a 4-note ascending figure, erupting into furious strings, brass, and snare for his final dawn pursuit), the Hunchback (a sorrowful violin melody), the Wolf-Man (passionate strings and winds, the 3-note descending phrase from The Wolf-Man, still mourning Larry Talbot's tragic curse), and the Frankenstein Monster (the dynamic, growling brass motif that makes up the film's primary theme). Spooky sounds for sordid souls.

"A virtual Hollywood camp Symphony Fantastique," to quote Bill Whitaker's informative notes, House of Frankenstein is one of many scores Hans J. Salter wrote during his tenure at Universal International, in which his quirky imagination was severely tasked by the requirements of the job. With great support from Paul Dessau, like him another emigre from Nazi Germany, Salter wrote a score that transcends its subject matter, and rightfully takes its place with this sumptuous rerecording among the great compositions from the screen that came out of the era. Unlike the other monster movies that were churned out by the studio at the time, House of Frankenstein has a truly all-star cast that included such ungodly characters as Dracula, the Wolfman, the Hunchback, the Mad Doctor, and of course the Monster, all of whom needed appropriate themes. As a result, the score teems with melodies and cues, all aimed at explaining the action while giving the weirdos a proper musical image. Lovingly reconstructed by John Morgan and played with relish by the Moscow Symphony Orchestra conducted by William Stromberg, the score at long last gets its proper due in this digital world premiere recording you won't want to miss.

The House of the Spirits

1993, Virgin Records; from the movie The House of the Spirits, Miramax Films, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Orchestrations: Fiachra Trench, Nick Glennie-Smith; Arrangements: Hans Zimmer, Nick Glennie-Smith; Orchestra conducted by Fiachra Trench; Featured Soloists: Jurgen Musser (clarinet), Martin Spanner (oboe, cor Anglais), Richard Stuart, Douglas Myers (trumpet), Michael Stevens (guitar), Nick Glennie-Smith (piano); Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Bille August; Engineer: Malcolm Luker.

Selections: 1 The House Of The Spirits (10:02); 2 Clara (6:31); 3 Coup (9:34); 4 Pedro And Blanca (9:50); 5 Clara's Ghost/La Paloma (S. De Yradier)/ Closing Titles (7:24).

Review: Hans Zimmer's gorgeous score is one of the winning ingredients in this story, spanning more than 45 years, of an aristocratic Chilean family, dominated by an authoritarian paterfamilias, which also includes his clairvoyant wife, his staunchly severe sister, and his daughter. Some of the more disturbing aspects of the story find an echo in the composer's score, though most of the cues are solidly rooted in romantic themes that seem to belie the turmoil in the screen action. Rearranged for this release into five long selections, the cues gain more interpretive force in this presentation, which also enables the music to make a greater impression.

Housekeeping

1987, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Housekeeping, Columbia Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Gibbs; Album Producer: Michael Gibbs.

Selections: 1 Journey To Grandma's (2:20); 2 Ruth And Lucille In Fingerbone (1:35); 3 Hole In The Ice (1:44); 4 Getting To Know Sylvie (3:17); 5 Sylvie (1:39); 6 Life With Sylvie (5:25); 7 Lucille And Ruth Drift (4:10); 8 A Day Out (1:02); 9 On The Lake (1:31); 10 Magic Island (1:49); 11 Waiting And Reminiscing (2:27); 12 Freightcar Ride (1:11); 13 Cleaning House (1:09); 14 Leaving Home (2:48); 15 End Credits (2:43).

Review: Michael Gibbs' folk-tinged score reflects the odd, warm aura of this quirky story about two girls in a small Washington State community, whose lives revolve around the various relatives (all women) who drift in and out of their house, including their mother, grandmother, grand aunts, and aunt. Though solidly suggestive of the moods in the film, the almost chamber-like score, often performed by a couple of solo instruments, sometimes over a sparse orchestral section, appears relatively dry when heard on its own merits, possibly because the musical themes are not sufficiently fleshed out. Only occasionally does the music becomes vibrant ("Freightcar Ride"), exhibiting the very qualities that could have sustained the whole score had they been in display throughout.

How Green Was My Valley

1993, Fox Records; from the movie How Green Was My Valley, 20th Century-Fox, 1941.

Album Notes: Music: Alfred Newman; The 20th Century-Fox Orchestra, conducted by Alfred Newman; CD Producer: Nick Redman; Engineer: Dan Hersch.

Selections: 1 20th Century-Fox Fanfare (:12); 2 Main Title/ Huw's Theme (2:50); 3 The Family And Bronwen (6:30); 4 The Strike/Mother And Huw In Broken Ice (4:42); 5 Treasure Island/The Spring Birds (3:51); 6 Angharad And Mister Gruffydd (2:08); 7 Command From The Queen (1:50); 8 Huw Walks Among The Daffodils (3:29); 9 Angharad With The Minister (1:06); 10 Love Denied (4:11); 11 School (1:36); 12 Huw's Lesson/The Mine Tragedy (3:06); 13 Two More Brothers Leave (1:52); 14 The House On The Hill/Gossip (6:57); 15 Goodbyes (1:31); 16 Huw Finds His Father (:53); 17 Finale/End Title (1:42).

Review: One of the great scores to come out of Alfred Newman's fertile pen, How Green Was My Valley makes a belated and rousing recording debut in this CD released a few years ago. Set against the stark background of life in the Welsh coal mines, this deeply moving story of a family runs the whole gamut of human emotions, from romance to anger, from unrequited love to personal ambition, from the warmth of friendship to the greed of the ruling class. Making its own comments on the unfolding story, Newman's score echoes these sentiments with themes that are lovingly detailed and beautifully catchy. This is nowhere more evident than in the striking cue marked "The Family and Bronwen," in which the composer found warm accents to describe Huw, the film's narrator looking back at his youth and the feelings he had for his family of struggling miners. Presented in stereo, in a sound quality that is not always up to the exacting demands of the digital era, with noticeable hiss and some distortion on many of the tracks, the CD nonetheless is an important contribution to the ever increasing library of classic film scores from the past.

How the West Was Won

1996, Rhino Records; from the movie How the West Was Won, M-G-M, 1962.

Album Notes: Music: Alfred Newman; Lyrics: Johnny Mercer, Sammy Cahn; Orchestrations: Leo Shukin, Jack Hayes, Ken Darby; The M-G-M Studio Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Alfred Newman, Ken Darby, Robert E. Dolan, Joseph Lilley; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineers: Darcy M. Proper, Ellen Fitton.

Selections: CD 1: 1 Overture (5:50); 2 Main Title (3:08); 3 This Is The West (3:19); 4 Miss Bailey's Ghost (:26); 5 A Home In The Meadow (2:59); 6 The Erie Canal (:35) The Whiskeyhill Quartet, The Ken Darby Singers; 7 Two Hearts On A Tree (2:03); 8 Shenandoah (:29) The Ken Darby Singers; 9 First Meeting (2:24); 10 When I Was Single(:41); 11 First Kiss (2:27); 12 The Morning After (:24); 13 The River Pirates (9:02); 14 Godspeed Eve (2:24); 15 The Burial (3:45) Debbie Reynolds, Carroll Baker; 16 Wagon Train Forward (2:00); 17 Sit Down Sister (1:36); 18 Wanderin' (1:41) The Whiskeyhill Quartet; 19 The Jump Off Point (:22); 20 Cleve Van Valen (5:20); 21 Poor Wayfarin' Stranger (2:02) The Whiskeyhill Quartet; 22 Raise A Ruckus Tonight (J. Mercer)(2:25) Debbie Reynolds, The Whiskeyhill Quartet, The Ken Darby Singers; 23 Come Share My Life (2:17); 24 Cheyennes (4:47); 25 Careless Love (:26) Judy Henske, The Whiskeyhill Quartet; 26 Gold Claim (1:40); 27 What Was Your Name In The States? (J. Mercer)(2:03) Debbie Reynolds; 28 He's Gone Away (3:17); 29 Home In The Meadow (S. Cahn)(1:56) Debbie Reynolds; 30 Marriage Proposal (1:44).

CD 2: 1 Entr'acte (4:36); 2 Mr. Lincoln (1:09); 3 He's Linus' Boy (3:01); 4 I'm Sad And I'm Lonely (3:02); 5 When Johnny Comes Marching Home (:57) The Ken Darby Singers; 6 Zeb's Return (4:03); 7 The Pony Express (1:52); 8 A Railroader's Bride I'll Be (1:18); 9 Workin' (1:04); 10 The Jugglers (:19); 11 No Goodbye (1:48); 12 Zeb And Jethro (3:03); 13 Buffalo Stampede (1:40); 14 Climb A Higher Hill (4:17); 15 The Van Valen Auction (3:59); 16 Gant—Desperado (1:54); 17 No Goodbye (2:35); 18 Celebration (1:49); 19 Finale (:21); 20 Finale Ultimo; 21 Exit Music (2:46); 22 Miss Bailey's Ghost (playback version) (:26) Imogene Clark, Carl Fortina; 23 A Home In The Meadow (playback Version)(2:59); 24 When I Was Single (playback Version)(:41) Imogene Clark, Carl Fortina; 25 Shenandoah (2:26); 26 Rock Of Ages (1:32); 27 The Erie Canal (1:08); 28 Wait For The Hoedown (J. Mercer)(2:47); 29 First Meeting (alternate version)(2:22); 30 No Goodbye (vocal version)(1:49); 31 Home In The Meadow (alternate version) (2:32) Debbie Reynolds.

Review: The blockbuster western that almost ended all westerns now finally has a soundtrack CD on a similarly grand scale, with Rhino's ambitious restoration of more than two hours of Alfred Newman's score. Like the film itself, the soundtrack aims for a comprehensive portrait of more than half a century of Americana, from folk songs to ballads to music hall fare. Newman's main theme, booming out of an 86-piece band, still has its power to stir, and much of the restored orchestration is lovely and evocative, although the frequent appearances of the Ken Darby Singers now seem to belong to a faraway time when a men's chorus lurked behind every cactus. In "Raise a Ruckus Tonight" and "Wait for the Hoedown," Debbie Reynolds scholars will find an early incarnation of the "unsinkable" character that she has been playing ever since.

How to Make an American Quilt

1995, MCA Records; from the movie How to Make an American Quilt, Universal Pictures, 1995.

Selections: 1 Quilting Theme (1:43); 2 "The Life Before" (2:23); 3 Swinging On A Star (J. Van Heusen/J. Burke)(2:29) Bing Crosby; 4 Hyacinth & Gladiola (1:41); 5 Night Orchard (1:56); 6 He Never Came Back (1:47); 7 Cherry, Cherry (N. Diamond)(2:43) Neil Diamond; 8 You Belong To Me (P.W. King/C. Price/R. Stewart)(3:03) Patsy Cline; 9 Sophia (2:10); 10 The Sensation Of Falling (:36); 11 Foolish Things (:53); 12 Riffin' At The Ritz (B. Goodman/W. Miller) (3:27) Benny Goodman; 13 At Last (H. Warren/M. Gordon) (3:00) Etta James; 14 Anna Loves/Leaves (1:37); 15 Crow (1:16); 16 An American Quilt (3:36); 17 I Don't Want To Set The World On Fire (E. Seiler/E. Durham/S. Marcus/B. Benjamin)(2:59) The Inkspots; 18 Portraits/Pond (2:00); 19 "Where Love Resides" (1:01); 20 The Diver (2:43).

Review: An excellent score, with a great Americana flair to it, this soundtrack album further benefits from some excellent pop vocal selections, including Bing Crosby's "Swinging on a Star," Patsy Cline's "You Belong to Me," and The Inkspots' "I Don't Want to Set the World on Fire." But the palm here goes to Thomas Newman whose charming, warm series of cues evokes a time and a place that no longer seems to exist, except perhaps in the movies. With cues that seductively explore the myriad variations offered by the central "Quilting Theme," heard as the opening track, the score sets its own moods and reveals a lyrical side that is most engaging. There are many highlights here, outside of the pop selections that give the narrative a strong time period, but a first choice would definitely include "The Life Before," "An American Quilt," "Portraits/Pond," and "The Diver."

Howards End

Selections: 1 Main Title: Howards End (Percy Grainger's Bridal Lullaby) (3:48); 2 Helen And Paul Call It Off (2:53); 3 Music And Meaning (3:04); 4 The Basts/Spring Landscape (7:54); 5 Tango At Simpson's-In-The-Strand (3:17) Teddy Peiro's Tango Group; 6 An Unexpected Proposal (4:10); 7 Margaret's Arrival At Howards End (Percy Grainger's Bridal Lullaby)(2:37); 8 At A Castle In Shropshire (4:40); 9 Moving In (2:05); 10 On The River (3:14); 11 The Sisters' Reconciliation (2:08); 12 Leonard's Death (5:30); 13 Return To Howards End (4:22); 14 End Credits (Percy Grainger's Mock Morris)(3:19).

Review: Richard Robbins' approach to film scoring is often very dramatic, with robust romantic themes that sweep the listener into their highly-charged melodic elements, and very effective. Howards End is no exception. Anchored around Percy Grainger's "Bridal Lullaby," the title tune creates an atmosphere of its own, elegant and slightly understated. These moods are developed more fully with the first original cue, "Helen and Paul Call It Off," in which the early 20th-century atmosphere of the film elicits an echo in Robbins' music. The other selections fully explore the dramatic possibilities born out of this story about an impoverished young widower, now married to a richer friend of his late wife, in which class prejudice and Edwardian snobbery frequently clash with dramatic results. Bringing a total change of pace, "Tango at Simpson's-in-the-Strand" shows another facet of Robbins' creativity and his knack for more exotic types of music.

The Hudsucker Proxy

1994, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Hudsucker Proxy, Warner Bros., 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Carter Burwell; Orchestrations: Sonny Kompanek; Arrangements: Carter Burwell, Todd Kasow; Music Editor: Todd Kasow; Orchestra conducted by Sonny Kompanek; Album Engineer: Michael Farrow.

Selections: 1 Prologue (A. Khachaturian)(3:20); 2 Norville Suite (3:53); 3 Waring's Descent (:27); 4 The Hud Sleeps (2:13); 5 Light Lunch (A. Khachaturian)(1:38); 6 The Wheel Turns (:52); 7 The Hula Hoop (A. Khachaturian)(4:10); 8 Useful (:40); 9 Walk Of Shame (1:22); 10 Blue Letter (:43); 11 A Long Way Down (1:46); 12 The Chase (1:02); 13 Norville's End (3:52); 14 Epilogue (A. Khachaturian)(2:08); 15 Norville's Reprise (1:22).

Review: A goofball spoof of big business by the Coen brothers (Fargo), The Hudsucker Proxy has an equally appropriate Carter Burwell score. The composer counterpoints the on-screen antics by playing up the bizarre visual designs and characters "earnest" motives. Two Khachaturian pieces (one is the celebrated "Sabre Dance" from the Gayane Suite) are well adapted into the score to add a further air of pomposity to the internal politics at Hudsucker Industries.

Hundra

1991, Prometheus Records/Belgium; from the movie Hundra, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra conducted by Ennio Morricone; Album Producer: Morris J. Diamond; Engineers: Smitty Price, Michel Van Achter.

Selections: 1 Chase (2:19); 2 Love Theme (3:17); 3 Hundra's War Theme (2:02); 4 The Magical Change (1:38); 5 Slaughter In The Village (6:58); 6 Chrysula, The Wise One (1:14); 7 By The Sea (1:00); 8 The Wild Bunch (:46); 9 You're Free (1:29); 10 The Love Temple (:55); 11 Bow To The Bull (:51); 12 Hundra's Return (2:34); 13 The Defeat (1:25); 14 A Funny Man (2:59); 15 Hundra's Revenge (5:14).

Review: It may be somewhat of a surprise to find Ennio Morricone scoring a sword-and-sorcery epic in which the central character is a female Conan, but don't let that deter you from enjoying this tremendously exciting score which teems with great, overblown themes in which heroic accents are the predominant note. When he is inspired to write an action score, Morricone often creates themes that are melodically quite powerful and engaging. Such is the case here with "Hundra's War Theme," "Slaughter in the Village," and "Hundra's Revenge," that are as epic and descriptive as one could wish an action theme to be. Central to their effectiveness are strongly delineated melodies that capture the motion in the screen action and translate it in evocative ways that grab the listener's ear and force his attention. In sharp contrast, the composer also includes in the mix a series of cues that are marked by the attractive musical lines in them, notably "Love

Theme," which is particularly fetching, or "Chrysula, The Wise One," in which an oboe details the melody over the full orchestral texture. A great score that may be overlooked but is well worth discovering.

The Hunger

1983, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Hunger, M-G-M/UA, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: Michel Rubini, Denny Jaeger; Album Producers: Michel Rubini, Denny Jaeger; Engineer: Daniel Hersch.

Selections: 1 Trio in E-Flat, op. 100 (excerpt)(F. Schubert)(3:10); 2 Beach House (3:04) Stefany Spruill; 3 Suite No. 1 for Solo Cello in G Major, Preludium, 1st movement (excerpt)(J.S. Bach)(2:14); 4 Waiting Room/Flashbacks (1:50); 5 Sarah's Panic (1:50); 6 The Arisen (5:31); 7 Partita No. 3 in E Major, Gavotte en Rondeau (excerpt)(J.S. Bach)(3:09); 8 Lakme (excerpt)(L. Delibes) (6:05); 9 Sarah's Transformation (1:03); 10 The Final Death (2:12); 11 Trio in E Flat, op. 100 (excerpt)(F. Schubert)(4:54).

Review: A classy contemporary vampire story, The Hunger recalls through some of its aspects Roger Vadim's Blood and Roses, with some twists that even the Gallic director wouldn't have thought about. Starring David Bowie, in a Dorian Gray role, and Catherine Deneuve, the steamy thriller also stars Susan Sarandon, with whom Deneuve has a memorable seduction scene after she has disposed of Bowie in a most ungentlewomanly fashion. Adding a touch of class of its own, the soundtrack collects many works from the classical repertoire, with Michel Rubini providing some cues that also seem quite appropriate. Maybe not to everyone's taste, but interestingly challenging nonetheless.

The Hunt for Red October

1990, MCA Records; from the movie The Hunt for Red October, Paramount Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Music Editors: Tom Villano, Thomas Milano; Synthesizer: Michael Boddicker; Orchestra and Chorus conducted by Basil Poledouris; Album Producer: Basil Poledouris; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Hymn To Red October (Main Title)(5:04); 2 Nuclear Scam (7:17); 3 Putin's Demise (:54); 4 Course Two-Five-Zero (:21); 5 Ancestral Aid (2:10); 6 Chopper (2:52); 7 Two Wives (2:41); 8 Red Route I (3:28); 9 Plane Crash (1:46); 10 Kaboom!!! (3:15).

Review: A fresh spin on the old East-West cold war cliches, The Hunt for Red October turned out to be a particularly gripping drama, thanks largely to Sean Connery's understated performance as the commander of a Russian nuclear submarine who wants to defect to the West, and who is chased by his own bent on stopping him and the Americans who don't trust his motivations. The taut narrative calls for a powerful score that evokes the drama, its roots, the background of its various participants, and a bit of patriotic accents to limn the whole thing. Basil Poledouris delivered all of these and then some in his outstanding contribution, in which a Russian chorus brings an appropriately Slavic flavor to the "Main Title," and in which the course of the action is charted in vivid musical details that have great descriptive force and persuasion.

I Love Trouble

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie I Love Trouble, Touchstone Pictures, 1994.

Selections: 1 Here's Peter (5:10); 2 Here's Sabrina (1:55); 3 Calling All Boggs (1:16); 4 Honeymoon Night (4:55); 5 Two Scoop Snoops (3:39); 6 Everybody Buys The Globe (:47); 7 Scoop De Jour (3:16); 8 Sabrina's Hip (1:04); 9 Wild Goose Chase (1:17); 10 The Beekman Agreement (2:02); 11 Keyhole Foreplay (1:21); 12 Happily Ever After (2:22); 13 I Love Trouble (3:43); 14 You've Really Got A Hold On Me (W. Robinson)(3:38) Robbyn Kirmsse.

Review: The delicately hewn themes David Newman created for the two protagonists in this heart-warming romantic comedy help conjure up the pleasant atmosphere that pervades it. A story about two rival reporters assigned to cover the same case who reluctantly join forces to crack it and the mutual appreciation that comes out of this cooperation, the screenplay enticed the composer to write a strongly evocative score, strong on romantic echoes, with an occasional soft jazz touch ("Honeymoon Night") to add a spark to it, and generally melodic cues that aim to soothe without making too much of a noise. The goal is achieved with themes that have great appeal ("Two Scoop Snoops," "Scoop De Jour"), adding up to an enjoyably lightweight effort.

I Shot Andy Warhol

1996, Tag Recordings; from the movie I Shot Andy Warhol, Orion Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: CD Producer: Randall Poster; Engineer: Stephen Marcussen.

Selections: 1 Season Of The Witch (D. Leitch)(5:20) Luna; 2 Do You Believe In Magic (J. Sebastian)(2:06) The Lovin' Spoonful; 3 Love Is All Around (R. Presley)(3:05) R.E.M.; 4 Burned (N. Young)(2:35) Wilco; 5 Itchycoo Park (R. Lane/S. Marriott)(3)5) Ben Lee; 6 Sunshine Superman (D. Leitch)(5:01) Jewel; 7 Mais Que Nada (J. Ben)(2:39) Sergio Mendes, Brasil '66; 8 Gimi A Little Break (A. Lee)(2:03) Love; 9 Sensitive Euro Man (Pavement)(3:16) Pavement; 10 Kick Out The Jams (F. Smith/W. Kramer/D. Tomich/R. Derminer/M. Davis)(2:55) MC5; 11 I'll Keep It With Mine (B. Dylan)(4:09) Bettie Serveert; 12 Demons (I. Kaplan/G. Hubley)(3:37) Yo La Tenga; 13 I Shot Andy Warhol Suite (J. Cale)(3:27) Dave Soldier, Sara Parkins, Regina Carter, Matt Donner, Todd Reynolds, Judith Insell, Martha Mooke, Mark Deffenbaugh, Mark Stewart, Maya Biser, Mark Dressen, Kermit Driscoll.

Review: Modern rockers doing '60s songs isn't a new idea, but it works well here. Donovan's biggest hits get creditable covers from Jewel ("Sunshine Superman") and Luna ("Season of the Witch"). R.E.M.'s version of the Troggs' "Love is All Around" has been, well, around for awhile, and teen troubadour Ben Lee turns in a refreshingly snotty rendition of the Small Faces' "Itchykoo Park." And the original versions of the MC5's "Kick Out the Jams," Love's "Gimi a Little Break" and the Lovin' Spoonful's "Do You Believe in Magic" bring a little balance to the proceedings.

Ice Station Zebra

1997, PEG Records; from the movie Ice Station Zebra, M-G-M, 1968.

Album Notes: Music: Michel Legrand; Orchestra conducted by Michel Legrand.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:45); 2 The Satellite Falls (2:25); 3 The Russian Trawler (3:30); 4 Tigerfish (1:43); 5 The Crevasse (4:08); 6 Entr'acte (1:57); 7 The Lab (4:45); 8 Through The Ice (3:00); 9 The Fight (3:15); 10 Mission Completed (1:43).

Review: A cold War actioner adapted from a novel by Alistair MacLean and starring Rock Hudson, Patrick McGoohan, Ernest Borgnine and Jim Brown, Ice Station Zebra elicited an appropriately taut score from French composer Michel Legrand. A race against time between Russians and Americans rushing to a solitary Arctic outpost to recover a fallen satellite which holds the key to victory in an all-too-possible (at the time!) nuclear war between the two countries might appear today a bit far-fetched, but it makes for a fine, suspenseful drama, which Legrand's music emphasizes with all the expected "sturm und drang." The one drawback here is the fact that all the tracks combined amount to just 30 minutes of playing time, which seems just a bit short for anyone's money.

Iceman

1992, Southern Cross Records; from the movie Iceman, Universal Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Smeaton; Orchestrations: Bruce Smeaton; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Smeaton; Album Producer: Bruce Smeaton; Engineer: Dan Wallin.

Selections: 1 Ice Cave (1:17); 2 Main Title (3:28); 3 Discovery/ Charlie/ Defrost (1:43); 4 Monitoring/Relics/It's Alive (2:07); 5 Vivarium (2:21); 6 Wild Pig (1:19); 7 Suicide?/Memories (1:22); 8 Messenger/The Bird (2:04); 9 Breakout (2:31); 10 Maynard Surprised/Freedom (2:28); 11 Dreamwalk (1:26); 12 Charlie's Flight/End Title (5:58).

Review: Composer Bruce Smeaton wrote a particularly effective score for this striking science fiction film about a Neanderthal man found in an Arctic cave where he has been frozen for thousands of years, and his slow awakening in a new world totally alien to him. Using as his primary means of expression a Japanese shakuhachi against the context of a symphonic orchestra, Smeaton created a score that emphasizes the apparent dichotomy between the past, represented by the Iceman, and the present, the modern society in which he is "reborn." While his music can hardly be faulted and in fact proves quite challenging in many ways, the short playing time of the CD (less than 29 minutes) is something that leaves a lot to be desired, particularly at the premium price usually demanded for soundtrack albums.

Il bidone

1991, CAM Records/Italy; from the movie Il bidone, Titanus Films, 1955.

Album Notes: Music: Nino Rota; Orchestra conducted by Carl Savina.

Selections: 1 Il bidone (3:16); 2 La moglie del bidonista (2:24); 3 Il tesoro nascosto (:58); 4 Coimbra (5:42); 5 In viaggio per un bidone (1:53); 6 Al cinema (1:30); 7 Cara bambina (2:03); 8 Ballerina Night (3:51); 9 L'ultimo bidone (2:54).

Review: One of Federico Fellini and Nino Rota's early collaborations, Il bidone (known in this country as The Swindle) is interesting in that it presents in embryo all the musical elements Rota would use, reuse and recycle in his subsequent films for Fellini—rambunctious, malicious themes, jaunty, brassy tunes, romantic motifs, with a touch of jazz thrown in for good measure—all of them colliding in a festive display of the composer's incredibly colorful palette and expressive instrumentations. The film, starring Broderick Crawford, Richard Basehart, Franco Fabrizi and Giulietta Masina, deals with a trio of con artists in Rome, each with ideas of striking it rich, in a sly comedy that provided Rota with the right tones to write a diversified score. Some of the themes he developed for the film showed up in other films, sometimes as main motifs, sometimes as secondary ones, but always recognizable, and always thoroughly enjoyable.

Il Casanova (Fellini's Casanova)

1991, CAM Records/Italy; from the movie, Fellini's Casanova, Titanus Films, 1976.

Selections: 1 O Venezia, Venaga, Venusia (3:41); 2 The Magic Bird (2:07); 3 A pranzo dalla Marchesa Durfe (1:48); 4 The Great Mouna (2:00); 5 Canto della buranella (1:23); 6 The Magic Bird In Paris (1:35); 7 "Intermezzo" Of The Praying Mantis (3:40); 8 Pin Penin (3:03); 9 The Magic Bird In Dresden (1:24); 10 Memories Of Henriette (2:01); 11 The Magic Bird In Rome (1:50); 12 The Duke Of Wuttenberg (4:25); 13 The Automated Doll (1:48).

Review: In his music, Nino Rota pretty much tried to capture and reflect the dreamy-like visions and fancy concoctions of Federico Fellini. Often recycling some of the themes he had used in the director's previous films, he created a body of work which, taken as a whole, constitutes an impressive musical tapestry that matches and echoes Fellini's own creative world. Il Casanova, Fellini's tribute to the great 18th-century Venetian lover and adventurer, inspired Rota to write a series of cues around a single motif, "The Magic Bird" (L'uccello magico). The quirky cues, with period instruments occasionally playing strange-sounding melodies, give the music a modern edge mixed with an aura of authenticity, while they evoke Casanova's travels and his many adventures in Paris, in Dresden, and in Rome. The CD, imported from Italy and released by CAM, belongs to that category of hard-to-find titles that will challenge the listener and take him on an unexpected, but rewarding, musical journey.

Il gattopardo (The Leopard)

1991, CAM Records/Italy; from the movie The Leopard, Titanus Films, 1980.

Album Notes: Music: Nino Rota; Orchestra conducted by Franco Ferrara.

Selections: 1 Main Title/A Trip To Donnafugata (8:14); 2 Angelica And Tancrede (4:37); 3 A Prince's Dreams (10:35); 4 Mazurka (1:44); 5 Contradance (3:31); 6 Valse brilliante (G. Verdi)(2:30); 7 Polka (1:35); 8 Quadrille (2:32); 9 Galop (1:36); 10 Departure Waltz (3:57).

Review: A brilliant period drama, directed by Luchino Visconti, The Leopard, set in late 19th-century Sicily, recounted in bold, colorful strokes the story of an Italian aristocrat and his family troubles, even as the world he had known crumbled around him under the onslaught of widespread social changes. Adding a pervasive melancholy touch to the story, Nino Rota provided a lush, expansive score, eons away from the usually jaunty style that had characterized his scores for the films of Federico Fellini. Also central to the music he devised were several dance numbers, notably "Mazurka," "Polka," "Quadrille" and "Galop," which enliven this excellent recording.

I'll Do Anything

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie I'll Do Anything, Columbia Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Orchestrations: Bruce Fowler, Nick Glennie-Smith, Ladd McIntosh, Suzette Moriarty; Featured Musicians: Nick Glennie-Smith, Hans Zimmer (synthsizers), Kurt McGettrick (baritone sax), Gary Foster, Jonathan Crosse, Dan Higgins (soprano sax), Steve Fowler (alto sax), Walter Fowler (trumpet), Gary Gray, Jim Kanter, Marty Kristall (clarinet), Phil Ayling, Jon Clarke (oboe), Rose Corrigan, Ken Munday (bassoon), David Duke (French horn), Charlie Loper, Philip Teele (trombone), Mike Lang, Ralph Grierson (piano), Michael Thompson (guitar), Jimmy Johnson (fretless bass), Dale Anderson, Larry Bunker, Alan Estes, Thomas Raney, Wallace Snow (marimbas), Katie Kirkpatrick (harp), Mervyn Warren, Phillip Ingram, Dorian Holley, Rodney Saulsberry, Arnold McCuller (vocals); Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Jay Rifkin; Engineer: Jay Rifkin.

Selections: 1 Matt (7:21); 2 Burke (10:03); 3 Cathy (8:07); 4 Jeannie (14:09); 5 You Are The Best (C. King)(2:56) Whittni Wright.

Review: This immensely appealling score evokes better than most the charming, oddball comedy for which it was written, about an unemployed actor who takes care of his little girl, only to find himself upstaged by her own career when she lands major parts in films. Initially intended to be a musical, the film suggested many themes which have been arranged here in selections that give them greater overall playing time, with the cues assembled to specifically create portraits of the main characters portrayed by Nick Nolte, Albert Brooks, Joely Richardson, and Julie Kavner. Whittni Wright, who plays the gifted moppet, also takes the spotlight in the album, via a rendition of the jaunty "You Are the Best" she performed in the film.

Immortal Beloved

1994, Sony Classical; from the movie Immortal Beloved, Columbia Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Ludwig van Beethoven; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Sir Georg Solti; Featured Musicians: Emanuel Ax, Pamela Frank, Gidon Kremer, Yo-Yo Ma, Murray Perahia; Album Producers: Michael Haas, Andreas Neubronner, Steven Epstein; Engineers: Pauline Heister, Richard King.

Selections: 1 Napoleon Shells Vienna: Allegro con brio (from Symphony No. 5 in C minor, Op.67) (5:48); 2 Childhood Dreams: Fur Elise (2:53) Murray Perahia; 3 Ludwig And Julia At Schoenbrunn Palace Gardens: Allegro con brio (from Symphony No 3 in E-flat Major, Op. 55, "Eroica") (5:00); 4 Julia And Her Father Secretly Watch: Piano Sonata No. 14 in C-sharp minor, Op. 27, No. 2 "Moonlight") (4:29) Murray Perahia; 5 Ludwig And Caspar Fight: Allegro. Thunderstorm (from Symphony No. 6 in F Major, Op. 68, "Pastoral") (4:08); 6 Ludwig Consoles Anna Marie: Largo assai ed espressivo (from Piano Trio No. 4 in D Major, Op. 70, No. 1, "Ghost" (4:34) Emanuel Ax, Pamela Frank, Yo-Yo Ma; 7 The Beethoven Brothers In Baden: Allegro ma non troppo (from Violin Concerto in D Major, Op. 61) (2:58) Gidon Kremer; 8 A Concert For Lichnowsky: Adagio cantabile (from Piano Sonata No. 8 in C minor, Op. 13, "Pathetique") (5:21) Murray Perahia; 9 The Letter: Rondo. Allegro (from Piano Concerto No. 5 in E-flat Major, Op. 73, "Emperor") (11:26) Murray Perahia; 10 The Funeral: Kyrie (from Missa Solemnis in D Major, Op. 123) (6:03) Renee Fleming, Ann Murray, Vincon Cole, Bryn Terfel, London Voices; 11 Karl At The Ruins: Allegretto (from Symphony No. 7 in A Major, Op. 92) (2:57); 12 The Carriage Stuck In The Mud: Adagio sostenuto-Presto (from Violin Sonata in A Major, Op. 47, "Kreutzer") (3:27) Pamela Frank, Emanuel Ax; 13 The Night Of The Premiere: Ode To Joy (from Symphony No. 9 in D minor, Op. 125) (12:56) Vinson Cole, London Voices.

Review: How could anyone resist this impressive "soundtrack" album, when the music was written by none other than Beethoven? Cleverly packaged to feature some of the composer's best known works, this is in every way a greatest hits compilation, running the gamut from orchestral excerpts (five of the monumental symphonies) to a movement from the brilliant "Emperor" concerto, to chamber music and piano sonatas (both the "Pathetique" and "Moonlight," as well as "Fur Elise"). The music is played with passion by a veritable who's who of longhair performers, including Perahia, Emanuel Ax, Yo-Yo Ma and the LSO, conducted by Sir Georg Solti. Schroeder would love it—so will you!

In Love and War

1997, RCA Victor; from the movie In Love and War, New Line Cinema, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: George Fenton; Orchestrations: Simon Chamberlain, Geoffrey Alexander; Music Editor: Kevin Lane; Orchestra conducted by George Fenton; Featured Musicians: Andy Findon (flute), Michael Jeans (oboe/cor anglais), Nick Bucknall (clarinet), Derek Watkins and Andy Crowley (cornet, trumpet), Edward Hessian (accordion), David Arch (piano); Album Producers: George Fenton, Eliza Thompson; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 Leaving For The Front (3:57); 2 Private Hemingway Reporting For Duty (1:38); 3 Rescuing Roberto (3:51); 4 The Bullet (3:10); 5 The Drive With Domenico (2:29); 6 Agnes' Theme (1:48); 7 Play The Hand You're Dealt (3:16); 8 Small Talk (1:32); 9 The Medal Ceremony (1:51); 10 La Piave (trad.)(1:55) Mickey Binelli; 11 The Lake (1:00); 12 The Cloisters (1:58); 13 Jimmy's Letter (3:33); 14 The Brothel (3:56); 15 POWs (:38); 16 The Trip To Venice (5:19); 17 "Dear Kid" (2:16); 18 The Waltz/Brothel (reprise)(2:28); 19 End Credits (4:00).

Review: Reflective of the moods in this film set during World War I, George Fenton struck a particularly rich vein with themes that underscore the passionate love affair between writer Ernest Hemingway, then a young soldier on the Italian front, and a nurse, eight years older, in a real-life drama that was the spark from which eventually came A Farewell to Arms. Largely ignoring the wartime backdrop of the screenplay, Fenton's music focuses on the most romantic aspects of the story, from its timid beginnings while Hemingway recovers from a serious wound in a hospital, to the break-up forced upon the two lovers by forces outside their control. In its often staid expression, the score finds new accents to speak of love and its wonderful and devastating effects, in terms that tug at the right heartstrings. In it, the composer demonstrates once again his uncanny ability to write music that is simply glorious and profoundly affecting.

In the Army Now

1994, Intrada Records; from the movie In the Army Now, Hollywood Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Robert Folk; Music Editor: Tom Villano; The Sinfonia of London, conducted by Robert Folk; Album Producer: Robert Folk; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Video Game (1:25); 2 Boot Camp (4:48); 3 Grenede Bunker (1:02); 4 Pugal Sticks (1:29); 5 Purified Water (2:04); 6 Ranger Attack (1:30); 7 The Mission (2:33); 8 Lost In The Desert (5:05); 9 New Transportation (1:06); 10 The Cobra (1:41); 11 Camel Traders (:46); 12 Finding The F.A.V.s (:40); 13 Bones (2:01); 14 The Raid Begins (1:06); 15 Last Chance (8:04).

Review: Call it a "guilty pleasure," but Robert Folk has composed an infectiously melodic score for one of the umpteenth brainless Pauly Shore comedies which, presumably, will be as dated one day as disco, bell-bottoms, and the music of Giorgio Moroder are now. Not so for Folk's music, though, which is a large orchestral work performed with appropriate panache by the Sinfonia of London, grounded in a 1941-style military march that culminates in a thrilling, eight-minute long final track that includes some of the best music the composer has written yet. The album is just long enough to sustain repeated visits and Folk's thematic material is strong enough to hold up to them. Unlike the movie, the composer kept a straight face and wrote a seriously good score here, one that might look surprising to someone who spots it upon browsing through your CD rack, but certainly not to anyone who has actually heard it.

In the Line of Fire

1993, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie In the Line of Fire, Columbia Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra Unione Musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineers: Franco Patrignani, Fabio Venturi; Engineer Assistant: Andrea Morricone.

Selections: 1 In The Line Of Fire (2:22); 2 Lilly And Frank (4:01); 3 "Aim High" (4:21); 4 The Boat (2:10); 5 Leary's Shrine (2:06); 6 On The Rooftops (4:28); 7 Discovery In Phoenix (3:00); 8 Lilly And Frank (2:30); 9 Frank Is Depressed (2:40); 10 Arriving In L.A. (2:39); 11 Lilly And Frank (1:49); 12 Telephone Call (3:32); 13 Dinner Date (2:01); 14 Frank (1:35); 15 Solving The Puzzle (1:46); 16 Another Telephone Call (4:05); 17 Dallas Recalled (3:09); 18 In The Park (2:09); 19 Taking The Bullet (2:39); 20 Arriving In L.A. (1:56); 21 Lilly And Frank (1:33); 22 Collage (5:19); 23 On The Trail (1:51).

Review: In a virtual return to some of the orchestral effects he used in some of his most successful spaghetti westerns, notably The Good, the Bad and the Ugly, Morricone wrote a substantial score for this engrossing drama starring Clint Eastwood as a Secret Service agent assigned to protecting the President of the United States, who puts his own life on the line. Many of the cues provide the musical background for the action scenes, with the agent discovering the existence of a plot to kill the President, his efforts to capture the assassin before it's too late, and his ultimate victory over adversity. Setting off the action scenes, which gradually sound more dour and ominous as the drama unfolds, a love theme ("Lilly and Frank"), played in different styles, recurs throughout, as an indication of the isolation in which the Secret Service man finds himself.

In the Mood

1987, Atlantic Records; from the movie In the Mood, Lorimar Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Ralph Burns; Orchestrations: Harvey R. Cohen, Eric Boardman, Ralph Burns; Featured Musicians: Abe Most (clarinet), Joel Preskin (tenor sax), Bill Watrous (trombone), Gene Estes (vibes), Tom Ranier (piano), Warren Luening (flugelhorn), Bob Cooper (tenor sax), Oscar Brashears (trumpet), Marshal Royal (alto sax), Larry Bunker (vibes); Featured Vocalists: Jennifer Holliday, Beverly D'Angelo; Album Producer: Ralph Burns; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 In The Mood (A. Razaf/J. Garland/B. Midler/B. Manilow) (3:36) Jennifer Holliday; 2 Sonny's Theme (1:42); 3 On

The Road (3:23); 4 Dream (J. Mercer) (3:20) Beverly D'Angelo; 5 Champagne Music (2:40); 6 High School Shuffle (2:55); 7 The Escape Of The Woo Woo Kid (1:25); 8 Baby Blues (Sonny's Theme) (R. Burns/P. Robinson) (3:25) Beverly D'Angelo; 9 Take The "A" Train (B. Strayhorn) (3:00); 10 Blues For Francine (2:41); 11 Don't Be That Way (B. Goodman/E. Sampson/M. Parish) (3:00); 12 A Place Called Paradise (2:40); 13 Jack The Wonder Dog (3:10); 14 In The Mood (A. Razaf/J. Garland) (3:35).

Review: The setting of this pleasantly innocuous comedy about the coming of age of a young man in the early 1940s led veteran composer and arranger Ralph Burns to create a vibrantly wonderful score. With solid assist from a handful of seasoned musicians, and the vocal support of Jennifer Holliday and Beverly D'Angelo (one of the film's stars), the soundtrack pays homage to the big band era, with powerful renditions of the standards "In the Mood," "Take the 'A' Train," "Dream," and "Don't Be That Way," plus original cues devised in the style of the period by Burns. The film didn't make much of an impression at the box office, but this soundtrack album is one of the best of its kind ever released.

In the Name of the Father

1994, Island Records; from the movie In the Name of the Father, Universal Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Trevor Jones; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian, Trevor Jones; Music Editor: Bill Abbott; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by David Snell; Album Producer: Trevor Jones; Engineer: Roger King; Assistant Engineers: Rupert Coulson, Andy Strange.

Selections: 1 In The Name Of The Father (Bono/G. Friday/M. Seezer)(5:42) Bono, Gavin Friday; 2 Voodoo Child (Slight Return)(J. Hendrix)(5:09) The Jimi Hendrix Experience; 3 Billy Boola (Bono/G. Friday/M. Seezer)(3:45) Gavin Friday, Bono; 4 Dedicated Follower Of Fashion (R. Davies)(3:00) The Kinks; 5 Interrogation (7:11); 6 Is This Love (B. Marley)(3:51) Bob Marley and The Wailers; 7 Walking The Circle (4:42); 8 Whiskey In The Jar (P. Lymott/ E. Bell/B. Downey)(5:44) Thin Lizzy; 9 Passage Of Time (5:52); 10 You Made Me The Thief Of Your Heart (Bono/G. Friday/M. Seezer)(6:21) Sinead O'Connor.

Review: The energized mixture of songs and Trevor Jones' underscore accurately captures the mood and period of this story about a young man innocently accused of an IRA bombing. Jones' score, presented in three suites totaling only 18 minutes, is appropriately dark and, on occasion, has an even harder percussive beat than the surrounding songs. Its overall dark ambience may not be for all tastes, though bouncy songs like The Kinks' "Dedicated Follower of Fashion" and Bob Marley's "Is This Love" actually offer a surprisingly welcome ray of sunshine in all the bleakness.

Inchon

1988, Intrada Records; from the movie Inchon, M-G-M/UA, 1982.

Selections: 1 Prologue and Main Title (3:48); 2 Resignation (2:10); 3 The Children (:44); 4 The Bridge (3:30); 5 The Apology (2:36); 6 The Church (4:41); 7 The Mines (5:07); 8 The Landing (1:18); 9 The 38th Parallel (1:15); 10 Corpses (1:44); 11 Task Force (3:07); 12 Medley (2:13); 13 Inchon Harbor (1:12); 14 Love Theme (2:49); 15 The Lighthouse (3:13); 16 The Tanks (3:53); 17 MacArthur's Arrival (:50); 18 Lim's Death (3:12); 19 The Trucks (3:02); 20 Inchon Theme (3:21).

Review: Goldsmith returned to the same material he'd covered in 1975's MacArthur with this old-fashioned war epic produced by the Reverend Sun-Yung Moon, but even the middling MacArthur seemed like Patton compared to this goofy, overblown bomb. The Oriental influences in the score are as atmospheric and interesting as many of the composer's earlier works in this style, particularly the fascinatingly percussive opening of Chinese blocks and col legno effects, but the score stumbles in its overly-effusive patriotic material, particularly a strangely overblown march theme for Douglas MacArthur. There are more than enough pulsating action cues and sympathetic moments of epic tragedy in the score to make up for the bombastic moments, however, particularly in this expanded CD from Intrada, which improved on the original LP's pinched sound. The orchestral performance is still below par in some cues, however.

The Incredibly True Adventure of 2 Girls in Love

1995, Milan Records; from the movie The Incredibly True Adventure of 2 Girls in Love, Fine Line Features, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Terry Dame; Arrangements: Terry Dame; Music Editor: Steve Borne; Featured Musicians: Terry Dame (soprano saxophone), Tom Judson (piano), Christine Kuhn (cello), Marie Breyer (percussion); Album Producer: Mark Kaufman; Engineer: Wally Traugott.

Selections: 1 Gas Pump Blues (1:38); 2 Instrumental No. 1 (:26); 3 Two Girls In Love (1:40); 4 A Typical Love (E. Ziff/A. Palmer/A. Ziff)(3:44) Betty; 5 Trouble's Tango/There Is That In Me (4:09); 6 Randy's Theme (2:10); 7 The Clock Song (Scrawl)(3:07) Scrawl; 8 Kitchen Mayhem (1:52); 9 Instrumental No. 2 (1:37); 10 Evie's Theme (:42); 11 Dies Irae (from Requiem K.626) (W.A. Mozart)(1:54)Academy Chamber Choir, The Vienna Symphony Orchestra, Jascha Horenstein; 12 Instrumental No. 3 (1:37); 13 Page Two (Lois) (2:01)Lois; 14 Arm Game (4:09); 15 I'm Not That Kind Of Guy (T. Judson) (1:30) Tom Judson; 16 Mom!! (1:32); 17 Trouble's Tango (3:26).

Review: A story of first love between two girls in their senior year in high school—Randy, a tomboy, and Evie, an African-American princess—the film received a whimsical score from Terry Dame, a composer and multi-instrumentalist, heard here on soprano sax, in a chamber music format. The instrumental cues have a charm that is easily communicative and winning. The pop songs that interrupt the musical flow, on the other hand, are not very interesting and can be edited out.

Indecent Proposal

1993, MCA Records; from the movie Indecent Proposal, Paramount Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Song Producers: Trevor Horn, Tony Brown, Scott Sheriff, Bryan Ferry, Robin Trower, Patrice Rushen, Ian Devaney, Jeff Lynne, Roy Orbison; Engineers: Tim Weidner, Elliot Scheiner, Scott Sheriff, Carmen Rizzo, Jr., Sean Chenery, Humberto Gracia, Richard Dodd, Phil McDonald, Don Smith; Album Producer: Adrian Lyne; Engineer: Steve Hall.

Selections: 1 I'm Not In Love (G. Gouldman/E. Stewart) (3:50) The Pretenders; 2 What Do You Want The Girl To Do (A. Toussaint) (5:07) Vince Gill; 3 If I'm Not In Love With You (D. Thomas) (3:38) Dawn Thomas; 4 Out Of The Window (S. Samuel) (5:55) Seal; 5 Will You Love Me Tomorrow (C. King/G. Griffin) (4:15) Bryan Ferry; 6 The Nearness Of You (N. Washington/H. Carmichael) (3:16) Sheena Easton; 7 In All The Right Places (J. Barry/L. Stansfield/I. Devaney/A. Morris) (5:46) Lisa Stansfield; 8 Instrumental Suite from Indecent Proposal (J. Barry) (25:20); 9 A Love So Beautiful (R. Orbison/J. Lynne) (3:31) Roy Orbison.

Review: Even with its laughable plot and perfume-commercial caliber direction, Indecent Proposal was a box-office smash upon its original release, so there's no question that its music helped play a part in putting it over the top. John Barry composed one of his lush, delicate romantic scores for the film, with solo piano and orchestra gently underscoring the entanglements of a young couple with a Donald Trump-type mogul (Robert Redford). The music is expectedly soothing, but even as Barry scores of this ilk go, it's not anywhere near as memorable as Somewhere in Time or even The Scarlet Letter, and it comprises only a 25-minute suite on the album. The rest of the soundtrack contains various songs by Seal, Bryan Ferry, The Pretenders, Vince Gill and Sheena Easton, and it's all sort of a ho-hum collection of covers with a few new songs that never attained the level of popularity that the film shockingly did with viewers.

Independence Day

1996, RCA Victor; from the movie Independence Day, 20th Century-Fox, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: David Arnold; Orchestrations: Nicholas Dodd; Music Editor: Laurie Higgins; Orchestra conducted by Nicholas Dodd; Album Producer: David Arnold; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 1969: We Came In Peace (2:04); 2 S.E.T.I.: Radio Signal (1:52); 3 The Darkest Day (4:13); 4 Canceled Leave (1:45); 5 Evacuation (5:47); 6 Fire Storm (1:23); 7 Aftermath (3:35); 8 Base Attack (6:11); 9 El Toro Destroyed (1:30); 10 International Code (1:32); 11 The President's Speech (3:10); 12 The Day We Fight Back (4:58); 13 Jolly Roger (3:15); 14 End Titles (9:08).

Review: Writing in a style that echoes some of the best efforts by others like Jerry Goldsmith, James Horner and John Williams, British composer David Arnold gave extraordinary musical life to this sensational sci-fi thriller about evil aliens who invade Earth. The broad, expansive orchestral cues provide the counterpoint to some of the most exciting action cues in the film, with two longer ones ("Evacuation" and "Base Attack") showing the composer at his most proficient with fully developed themes, filled with lush orchestral strokes and eerie choral sounds. The personal, human side of the story is also explored in sensitive cues, like"Canceled Leave," that illuminate and offset its darkest aspects. A thrilling score by a relative newcomer on the scene, whose career is clearly on the rise.

The Indian in the Cupboard

1995, Sony Classical; from the movie The Indian in the Cupboard, Paramount Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Music Editor: Richard Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:57); 2 Meeting Little Bear (3:47); 3 Omri's Newfound Magic (5:50); 4 Building A New Home (4:39); 5 Brotherly Intrigue (4:10); 6 Cowboys And Indians (2:50); 7 Reconciliation (6:28); 8 Shootout (1:21); 9 Just Another School Day (3:06); 10 Cupboard Disappearance (2:55); 11 Lament For Boone (1:51); 12 Ratattack (6:10); 13 Important Decisions (2:48); 14 Bonded For Life/Closing (5:16).

Review: Based on an award-winning children's novel by Lynne Reid Banks, The Indian in the Cupboard is a whimsical fantasy tale about a boy who discovers that, with the turn of a key, he can magically bring to life the three-inch-high toy Indian he placed in the old cupboard in his room. The story prompted Randy Edelman to write a huge, expansive score rife with florid orchestral accents. While the broadness of Edelman's writing might have seemed like overkill on the screen for what is, after all, only a charming little fantasy, the score reveals its many winsome qualities on this soundtrack album recording, with the colorful themes conceived by the composer creating a vibrant tapestry that weaves its own magic. The longer cues help create the overall impression of sheer fun and excitement that pervades the whole effort.

The Indian Runner

1991, Capitol Records; from the movie The Indian Runner, The Mount Film Group, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Jack Nitzsche; Featured Musicians: David Lindley (guitars), Tim Drummond (bass), James Cruce (drums), John Hammond (harmonica), Tom Margan (harmonica), Bradford Ellis (piano and keyboards), Jerry Hey (trumpet); Album Producers: Danny Bramson, Tim Devine, Sean Penn, Jack Nitzsche, Michael Hoenig; Engineers: Rik Pekkonen, Pam Neal, Michael Hoenig.

Selections: 1 Feelin' Alright (D. Mason)(4:20) Traffic; 2 Comin' Back To Me (M. Balin)(5:24) Jefferson Airplane; 3 Fresh Air (J.O. Farrow) (5:18) Quicksilver Messenger Service; 4 Green River (J. Fogerty)(2:36) Creedence Clearwater Revival; 5 Brothers For Good (E. Haller)(4:12) Eric & Bret Haller; 6 Summertime (G. Gershwin/I. Gershwin/D. Heyward)(3:59) Janis Joplin, Big Brother And The Holding Company; 7 I Shall Be Released (B. Dylan)(3:14) The Band; 8 Cold Day In Omaha (2:29); 9 Flop House (2:45); 10 Goin' To Columbus (3:19); 11 Brothers (2:39); 12 "Bye Mommy" (2:17); 13 The Indian Runner (2:20); 14 Bad News (2:49); 15 Criminal Blood (2:59); 16 My Brother Frank (4:27).

Review: A solid '60s rock compilation that pulls no punches or surprises, but is quite enjoyable most of the time. Some of the greatest bands are brought together here, with Jefferson Airplane, Traffic, Fresh Air, Quicksilver Messenger Service, and Creedence Clearwater Revival, among the most prominent. Janis Joplin's take on "Summertime" is always refreshing. The score selections by Jack Nitzsche fulfill their function, but they can't really compete with the great line-up that precedes them.

Indiana Jones

Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade

1989, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade, Paramount Pictures, 1989.

Selections: 1 Indy's Very First Adventure (8:11); 2 X Marks The Spot (3:07); 3 Scherzo For Motorcycle And Orchestra (3:49); 4 Ah, Rats!!! (3:36); 5 Escape From Venice (4:21); 6 No Ticket (2:42); 7 The Keeper Of The Grail (3:21); 8 Keeping Up With The Joneses (3:35); 9 Brother Of The Cruciform Sword (1:53); 10 Belly Of The Steel Beast (5:26); 11 The Canyon Of The Crescent Moon (4:16); 12 The Penitent Man Will Pass (3:23); 13 End Credits (Raiders March)(10:36).

Review: Williams' third Indiana Jones score can't hold a candle to the two previous efforts on a technical level, but it's probably a smoother overall listening experience than the overbearing Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom. Williams adopts a slightly more subdued, flowing style here that results in a number of lengthy cues that don't quite have the showstopping power of anything in Raiders or The Temple of Doom. There's a sprightly comic chase for an early flashback sequence involving the young Indiana Jones, an engaging syncopated fugue for a motorcycle chase and the lurching, climactic "In the Belly of the Steel Beast" which works as an effective counterpart to Raiders' famous truck chase cue. There are plenty of good-natured melodies, including themes for Sean Connery's Professor Jones character and a benevolent guardian of the Holy Grail seen late in the film, but there's really nothing here that lingers in the memory very long.

Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom

1984, Polydor Records; from the movie Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom, Paramount Pictures, 1984.

Selections: 1 Anything Goes (C. Porter)(2:49); 2 Fast Streets Of Shanghai (3:38); 3 Nocturnal Activities (5:53); 4 Shortround's Theme (2:27); 5 Children In Chains (2:42); 6 Slalom On Mt. Humol (2:22); 7 The Temple Of Doom (2:57); 8 Bug Tunnel and Death Trap (3:29); 9 Slave Children's Crusade (3:22); 10 The Mine Car Chase (3:38); 11 Finale and End Credits (6:16).

Review: John Williams' relentless score, a superior effort despite the somber echoes that pervade it, matches the generally downbeat moods in this second installment in the Indiana Jones saga, with an occasional action cue ("Fast Streets Of Shanghai," "The Mine Car Chase") or a swift reprise of the "Raiders' March" reminding the listener that this is still the soundtrack album to an adventure film. On the whole, however, the general tone of the score is more oblique than the composer's previous or subsequent efforts, with often strident orchestral lines underscoring the gloomiest aspects of the film itself, a frightening tale about children being enslaved by an occult sect celebrating Kali, the goddess of death. As if to offset this dark atmosphere, one track, Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" sung in... Chinese, is a real standout, a rib-tickling, grandly overblown performance as exhilarating as it is unexpected.

Indochine

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Indochine, Sony Classics, 1992.

Selections: 1 The Adoption (3:50); 2 Boat On Fire (1:19); 3 First Date (1:22); 4 We Are Two Persons (3:06); 5 Thunderstorm (3:46); 6 Island Of The Dragon (1:39); 7 The Exodus (1:21); 8 Camille's Journey (2:28); 9 End Of The Journey (5:16); 10 Adrift (4:18); 11 The Decision (2:18); 12 On The Way To China (:55); 13 Birth And Revolution (1:53); 14 The Milk Of Viet-Nam (1:00); 15 The Casket (1:11); 16 Eliane Finds Camille (2:57); 17 I No Longer Have A Past (2:31); 18 Main Title (4:28); 19 Tango (3:40); 20 Yvette's Waltz (1:28); 21 The Last Rhumba (1:26).

Review: A riveting romantic tale of lust and passion set against the rising communist movement that eventually forced French natives to leave Indochina, the Asian country they had once colonized, Indochine received a provocative, flavorful score from Patrick Doyle at the top of his creative verve. Matching closely the action in the film, Doyle provided many memorable orchestral cues for this story about a classy, no-nonsense rubber plantation owner (Catherine Deneuve), her adopted Indochinese daughter (Linh Dan Pham), and the handsome young Navy officer (Vincent Perez) who makes both women swoon. Adding dramatic impulse to the story, the silent evolution that opposed traditional attitudes and new ideas within the Indochinese society and the increasing resentment to French colonialist values became further pegs on which Doyle anchors the score, a broadly romantic effort that makes few concessions to an ethnic feel and chooses instead to confine itself to more familiar European grounds. While sequencing of the album seems a bit erratic and does not follow the order in which the story itself unfolds, the cues are attractively assembled and quite enjoyable as a whole.

Infinity

1996, Intrada Records; from the movie Infinity, First Look Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Orchestrations: Bruce Broughton; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Broughton; Album Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineers: Armin Steiner, Joe Tarantino.

Selections: 1 Prologue (3:11); 2 Arline And The Red Dress (2:11); 3 1939 (1:03); 4 A Swelling (:56); 5 Typhoid? (2:38); 6 1941 (1:22); 7 Imaginary Roommate(1:27); 8 Moving To Albuquerque (1:44); 9 Richard And Arline (2:34); 10 Indian Dwellings (2:18); 11 A Nightmare Diagram (3:21); 12 Arline's Death (2:29); 13 The Trip Home (1:27); 14 Exploding The Bomb (2:11); 15 The Dress (Epilogue)(1:30).

Review: Bruce Broughton sensitively handles this pre-World War II love story about A-bomb scientist Richard Feynman and his dying wife, Arlene. Period pieces, such as big band-style tunes, occasionally intrude, but don't break the mood of the score, which concentrates on various moments in the couple's short-lived relationship. Arlene's intensity is first represented with a gentle waltz, while the contrast of her fatal illness plays, first, through a gentle arrangement of strings and woodwinds, before becoming more desolate in tempo as she deteriorates.

Inner Space

1987, Geffen Records; from the movie Inner Space, Warner Bros., 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick; Song Producers: Rod Stewart, Peter Wolf, Narada Michael Walden, Bob Ezrin; Album Executive Producers: John David Kalodner, Gary LeMel; Engineer: Greg Fulginiti.

Selections: 1 Twistin' The Night Away (S. Cooke)(4:10) Rod Stewart; 2 Hypnotize Me (Wang Chung)(4:44) Wang Chung; 3 Is It Really Love? (N.M. Walden)(4:40) Narada Michael Walden; 4 Will I Ever Understand You (J. Crawford)(4:40) Berlin; 5 Cupid (S. Cooke)(2:30) Sam Cooke; 6 Let's Get Small (5:57); 7 Environmental Adjust (3:57); 8 Space Is A Flop (3:02); 9 Gut Reaction (9:57); 10 Air Supply (2:39).

Review: Goldsmith's third film for director Joe Dante was a comic remake of Fantastic Voyage, with a microscopic Dennis Quaid injected into the body of Martin Short. Goldsmith's score emphasized the action and heroism of the storyline for an adventurous effort somewhat in the style of his earlier Explorers work for Dante. The album features around 20 minutes of Goldsmith's score for a satisfying suite, opening with "Let's Get Small," a surprisingly heartfelt heroic anthem. It then continues with some kinetic action cues that balance the undulating sense-of-wonder textures that marked the composer's Star Trek: The Motion Picture music against some mechanistic figures that build into a terrific, percolating action climax in "Gut Reaction." The rest of the album is devoted to pop standards, including some Wang Chung and Rod Stewart's take on "Twistin' the Night Away."

Intersection

1993, Milan Records; from the movie Intersection, Paramount Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, James Newton Howard; Music Editor: Jim Weidman; Orchestra conducted by Marty Paich; The Los Angeles Master Chorale, directed by Paul Salamunovich; Featured Soloist: Toots Thielemans (harmonica); Featured Musicians: Dean Parks (acoustic guitar), Neil Stubenhaus (electric bass), John Robinson (drums), Michael Fisher (percussion); Album Producer: James Newton Howard; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (2:19); 2 Home (4:05); 3 She Needs Her Father (1:35); 4 What's A Girl Gotta Do? (2:54); 5 The Auction (2:48); 6 First Date (3:43); 7 Letter To Olivia (3:24); 8 The Last Ride (3:19); 9 The Accident (1:39); 10 Vincent's Message (2:43); 11 He's Going Flat (2:01); 12 Personal Effects (4:21); 13 End Titles (4:11).

Review: For this mid-life crisis drama, James Newton Howard has sculpted an effective, rhythmic score which accentuates the Richard Gere character's headlong flight back and forth between family fidelity and the allure of infidelity. The score is brooding and subtle, cues linger slowly, indecisively, while a Toots Thielemans harmonic riff plays dreamy jazz over a softly rolling sea of violins. A slow motif for violins and piano also lingers irresolutely, mirroring the conflicts coiling within Gere's character. There are no real melodies. Instead Howard carves a lingering impression through these quiet, reflective cues, which retain a notable sense of vitality even as they are quietly introspective.

Interview with the Vampire

1994, Geffen Records; from the movie Interview with the Vampire, Geffen Pictures/Warner Bros., 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Elliot Goldenthal; Orchestrations: Robert Elhai, Elliot Goldenthal; Music Editors: Michael Connell, Christopher Brooks; Orchestra conducted by Jonathan Sheffer; Album Producer: Matthias Gohl; Engineers: Steve McLaughlin, Joel Iwataki.

Selections: 1 Libera Me (2:47) The American Boychoir; 2 Born To Darkness, part 1 (3:04); 3 Lestat's Tarantella (:46); 4 Madeleine's Lament (3:06); 5 Claudia's Allegro Agitato (4:46); 6 Escape To Paris (3:09); 7 Marche funebre (1:50); 8 Lestat's Recitative (3:39); 9 Santiago's Waltz (:37); 10 Theatre des Vampires (1:18); 11 Armand's Seduction (1:51); 12 Plantation Pyre (1:59); 13 Forgotten Lore (:31); 14 Scent Of Death (1:40); 15 Abduction and Absolution (4:42); 16 Armand Rescues Louis (2:07); 17 Louis' Revenge (2:36); 18 Born To Darkness, part 2 (1:11); 19 Sympathy For The Devil (M. Jagger/K. Richards) (7:35) Guns N' Roses.

Review: A chilling, superlative effort, Elliot Goldenthal's score for Interview with the Vampire is in turns sophisticated, broadly expansive, colorful, and consistently inventive. Introduced by the eerie "Libera Me," performed by an evanescent boy soprano, the music plumbs the depths of the main character's darker aspects and quickly settles on his otherwordly features, a strange mixture of fascination and repulsion that finds a vibrant echo in the orchestral sonorities provided by the composer. No stone is left unturned in this literate effort, in which some of the most elegant tracks include a tarantella, a waltz, a funeral march and a cue, "Born to Darkness," where all these elements coalesce into a striking conclusion. The Rolling Stones' "Sympathy for the Devil," in a strident performance by Guns N' Roses, while probably appropriate in the film, seems an odd choice here and breaks the moods established by Goldenthal's music.

Into the West

1993, SBK Records; from the movie Into the West, Miramax Films, 1993.

Review: The winsome tale of two orphan boys and the magic white stallion that takes them on a wild ride across the Irish countryside in search of their mother's grave, Into the West resulted in a wonderful score from Patrick Doyle, who took a cue from the story's background (the action takes place among the gypsies) to effectively use elements that give his music great depth and poetic impact. Introduced by the various pop selections smartly programmed at the top, and among which "In a Lifetime" by Clannad is a real standout, the instrumental score quickly sets the moods, unfolding in short, attractive bursts that follow the course of the action. Steeped in Celtic music, with melismatic vocalizations adding an original poetic note to some of the cues ("The Blue Sea and the White Horse," "Memories of Mary," "Boy Under Sea"), the score is a brilliantly evocative effort, which invites repeated listening in order to reveal its many hidden beauties.

Intolerance

1990, Prometheus Records/Belgium; from the movie Intolerance, 1916.

Album Notes: Music: Carl Davis; Orchestrations: David Mathews, Colin Mathews; The Luxembourg Radio Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Carl Davis; Album Producer: Paul Wing; Engineer: Richard Bradford.

Selections: 1 Out Of The Cradle (2:17); 2 The "Dear One" (1:12); 3 Old Paris: The Court Of Catherine de Medici (2:41); 4 Brown Eyes (:56); 5 Strike (4:38); 6 Babylon: The Love Temple (2:32); 7 Uplifters (2:34); 8 The Siege Of Babylon (8:36); 9 Fire Machine and Defeat Of Cyrus (2:15); 10 The Boy's Return and Victory Celebration (3:55); 11 Sacred Dance (2:56); 12 Seduction, Murder and Trial (10:20); 13 Last Dawn (2:40); 14 St. Bartholomew's Day Massacre (3:52); 15 Last Sacrament (4:52); 16 Prospers Rescue Attempt and Via Dolorosa (1:42); 17 Babylon's Last Bacchanale (1:13); 18 The Death Of Brown Eyes (2:14); 19 Cyrus At The Gates (1:25); 20 The Fall Of Babylon (6:31); 21 The Walk To The Scaffold (3:33); 22 Apotheosis (2:28).

Review: D.W. Griffith's mammoth study of social abuses in the capitalistic system, as seen through four episodes—the fall of Babylon (539 B.C.), the Passion of Christ (30 A.D.), the St. Bartholomew's massacre in French Renaissance (1572), and modern days—is a fertile ground for musical expression, particularly given the fact that no known score from the 1916 film exists. Carl Davis tackled the project with evident bravura, finding a new voice for each episode, yet devising a continuous link that ties all four of them, in a "soundtrack" recording that no doubt would have delighted the pioneering filmmaker.

Inventing the Abbotts

1997, Unforscene Music; from the movie Inventing the Abbotts, Fox 2000 Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Orchestrations: Michael Kamen, Jesse Levy, Ed Schearmur, Sacha Putnam, D.J. Selections: 1 On Springfield Mountain (trad., arr.: M. Kamen)(3:33) Tara MacLean; 2 Inventing The Abbotts (1:46); 3

Little Star (A. Venosa/ V. Picone)(2:44) The Elegants; 4 Thunder And Lightning (3:44); 5 Jacey And Eleanor (In The Garage)(1:31); 6 Goodnight, Irene (H. Ledbetter/J. Lomax) (1:55)Leadbelly; 7 Picnic (2:01); 8 The Barn (2:47); 9 Eleanor Leaves (1:38); 10 Falling Out Of The Tree (:56); 11 Boathouse (2:35); 12 Re-Inventing The Abbotts (7:03); 13 Toasted Pam (2:16); 14 Mom's Death (1:42); 15 Doug And Pam (5:38); 16 Undecided (C. Shavers/S. Robin)(3:09) The Ray Gelato Giants, Claire Martin.

Review: The old-fashioned flavor of this coming-of-age story set in 1957 is beautifully evoked in the Michael Kamen score, and in the songs (doo-wop and early rock) that are part of the soundtrack. Inventing the Abbotts, set in a small Illinois town, concerned itself with the Abbott girls (Alice, Eleanor and Pamela, respectively played by Joanna Going, Jennifer Connelly, and Liv Tyler), born in a wealthy family, and their relationship with Doug and Jacey Holt (Joaquin Phoenix and Billy Crudup), their less fortunate friends and occasional flirts. Reflecting the romantic interplay between the five principal characters, the score itself remains firmly rooted in a somewhat melancholy mood that eventually proves most endearing. Echoing the period in which the action is set, some rock numbers ("Inventing the Abbotts," "Thunder and Lightning," "Jacey and Eleanor (In the Garage)," and "Falling Out of the Tree") add a different energy to this striking, suggestive soundtrack album.

Iron Will

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Iron Will, Walt Disney Films, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Joel McNeely; Orchestrations: David Slonaker; Music Editor: Curtis Roush; Orchestra conducted by Joel McNeely; Album Producer: Joel McNeely; Engineer: Dan Wallin.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:57); 2 Jack's Death (3:44); 3 Leaving Birch Ridge (2:29); 4 The Race Begins (2:09); 5 Pushing Onward (1:47); 6 Gus Rescues Will (2:53); 7 Devil's Slide (2:23); 8 The Final Day (3:43); 9 Race To The Finish (2:22); 10 Crossing The Line (3:14); 11 End Credits (3:05).

Review: In another effective replay of the awe-inspiring race between a pack of dogs and a steam engine set in the frozen northern Minnesota landscape, Iron Will introduced composer Joel McNeely, scoring his first major feature in a striking display of his nascent talent. Broadly colorful and romantic, and a perfect match to the action, the cues explore the thrill of the race, the hardships it created for men and beasts, and the exhilaration felt by all. McNeely, who has since amply confirmed the promises held in this excellent first effort, constantly finds the right voice to perfectly illustrate the tale and attract the listener not familiar with the film itself. Tracks like "The Race Begins" and "Crossing the Line" are fine examples of his writing at its most descriptive.

Is Paris Burning?

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Is Paris Burning?, Paramount Pictures, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestra conducted by Maurice Jarre.

Selections: 1 Overture (4:00); 2 The Resistance (13:48); 3 The Paris Waltz (2:24); 4 The Liberation (16:15).

Review: The "Paris Waltz," a lovely valse musette, first heard as a doleful, plaintive tune, then as an exuberant expression of freedom recovered, probably stands as one of Maurice Jarre's most attractive themes. But this awesome film about the liberation of the French capital from the German occupant in 1944 was also the occasion for the composer to write one of his most emotionally-charged scores. Everything, in the themes developed and in the unusual orchestrations, like Jarre's use of 12 pianos instead of brass instruments to depict the German army parading in the streets of Paris, is combined to create a music that had the right atmosphere and the melodic bent necessary to emphasize the various aspects of the story, from its historic importance to the human element brought to it by the various participants on both sides of the action. For the soundtrack album, Jarre also chose to recombine his various cues into two long suites, the first one to depict the German presence in the city and the occult resistance that slowly undermines the occupants' effectiveness, the second to paint the bloody uprising that eventually led to the liberation of Paris and its inhabitants. As a result, the music emerges as a long tone poem that proves most effective at conjuring up the moods in the film even as it calls attention to its very qualities.

(1:54); 5 The Colony (5:13); 6 Moreau's Demise (2:45); 7 The Serum (2:39); 8 The Island (2:23); 9 The Button (1:28); 10 The Stranded (2:41); 11 Aissa's Death (2:44); 12 Epilogue (1:09); 13 The Funeral (2:06); 14 Brandenburg Concerto #2 in F Major, Second Movement (J.S. Bach)(3:40); 15 Concerto For 2 Violins in D Minor, Second Movement (J.S. Bach)(7:16); 16 Trout (5:29)Monk & Canatella Band.

Review: The Island of Dr. Moreau may best be remembered as the film that teamed Marlon Brando and Val Kilmer, though it is unlikely it will be remembered as a major contribution to film lore. Nor will Gary Chang's appropriately atmospheric electronic score make much of am impression among the thousands of soundtrack albums available these days. Strictly for hardcore fans, and even they might find it tiresome after a while.

Islands in the Stream

1986, Intrada Records; from the movie Islands in the Stream, 1977.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; The Hungarian State Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Mike Ross.

Selections: 1 The Island (3:07); 2 The Boys Arrive (3:51); 3 Pillow Fight (1:16); 4 Is Ten Too Old (2:51); 5 Night Attack (2:46); 6 Marlin (12:02); 7 The Boys Leave (2:52); 8 The Letter (3:24); 9 How Long Can You Stay (3:15); 10 I Can't Have Him (2:46); 11 The Refugees (4:23); 12 Eddie's Death (3:09); 13 It Is All True (5:07).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith has often mentioned this was his favorite score and one can see why. It is beautifully understated, elegiac, and filled with gorgeous musical ideas and makes a particularly convincing case for film music as a supportive medium while having a life of its own when appreciated on its own merits. The film, about a man living on an island, removed from the onset of World War II, might have been too introspective to attract a large public, but the sensitive story compelled Goldsmith to write a score that teems with wonderful themes, and quickly establishes an aura of its own that is most attractive. The lilting "Is Ten Too Old" alone turns out to be a real delight.

It Could Happen to You

1994, Columbia Records; from the movie It Could Happen to You, TriStar Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Carter Burwell; Orchestra conducted by Carter Burwell; Featured Performers: Tony Bennett, Shawn Colvin, Billie Holiday, Wynton Marsalis, Lyle Lovett, Mary-Chapin Carpenter, Frank Sinatra; Album Engineer: David Mitson.

Selections: 1 Young At Heart (C. Leigh/J. Richards) (2:58) Tony Bennett, Shawn Colvin; 2 They Can't Take That Away From Me (G. & I. Gershwin) (4:12) Billie Holiday; 3 Now It Can Be Told (I. Berlin) (2:26) Tony Bennett; 4 Swingdown, Swingdown (W. Marsalis) (4:19) Wynton Marsalis; 5 She's No Lady (L. Lovett) (3:15) Lyle Lovett; 6 Always (i. Berlin) (3:53) Tony Bennett; 7 Overture (C. Burwell) (2:19); 8 I Fell Lucky (M.C. Carpenter/D. Schlitz) (3:33) Mary-Chapin Carpenter; 9 Round Of Blues (S. Colvin/L. Klein) (4:45) Shawn Colvin; 10 The Search (C. Burwell) (2:57); 11 Young At Heart (C. Leigh/J. Richards) (2:48) Frank Sinatra.

Review: Neatly framed between two different versions of the classic "Young at Heart," in which Sinatra easily wins over Bennett, this set offers a hodgepodge of tunes that may have had some meaning on the screen when heard behind the action, but that fail to make a similar impact when taken on their own individual merits. It's all the more regrettable that some talented people are represented here. Even Carter Burwell's short "Overture" seems hopelessly wasted.

It's Alive 2

1990, Silva Screen Records; from the movie It's Alive 2, Warner Bros., 1978.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann, Laurie Johnson; Orchestrations: Laurie Johnson; Orchestra conducted by Laurie Johnson; Album Producer: Kerry O'Quinn; CD Producers: Ford A. Thaxton, David Stoner, James Fitzpatrick.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:32); 2 Birth Traumas (2:36); 3 Evil Evolving (3:18); 4 Savage Trilogy (3:20); 5 Nightmares (2:58); 6 Beautiful And Bizarre (2:49); 7 Revulsion (4:10); 8 Basement Nursey (2:01); 9 Lamentation (3:07); 10 Living With Fear (3:10); 11 Stalking The Infants (3:02); 12 Climax (2:37).

Review: When Larry Cohen decided to film a sequel to his hugely popular horror film It's Alive, in which Bernard Herrmann's music had played such an integral part, it only seemed normal he would attempt to recombine some of the composer's themes with the new film. To do so, he enlisted the help of famed British composer Laurie Johnson who rescored the cues Herrmann composed for the first film and expanded on them to create a new, bold and consistent score. Like its predecessor, It's Alive 2 took the horror genre into the nucleus of sacrosanct family life with its horrendous story about homicidal mutant babies and efforts by government agents to destroy them. The tones of the film are laid bare from the beginning, with the "Main Title" setting a disquieting mood with its figures for brass and woodwind mixing with eerie synthesizer lines. In taking the themes created by Herrmann, Johnson managed to give them renewed life and make them as foreboding and threatening as in the original film, no minor feat indeed. Bleak and uncompromising, the score is quite unnerving and particularly striking.

It's My Party

1996, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie It's My Party, United Artists, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Orchestra conducted by Basil Poledouris; Album Producers: Basil Poledouris, Tim Boyle; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 It's My Party (3:19); 2 Drifting Apart (3:12); 3 Skiing (:55); 4 Reflections (2:00); 5 It's Not My Fault/Setting Sun (2:59); 6 This Is My Home (2:10); 7 Can I Stay? (:50); 8 Be Strong For Me (3:02); 9 The Kiss Goodbye (5:08); 10 I Love Art (2:15); 11 Ski With Me (2:19); 12 Don't Cut Me Down (O. Newton-John)(4:13) Olivia Newton-John.

Review: Known more for his testosterone-powered action scores, this work by Basil Poledouris comes as a complete and wondrously pleasant surprise. Poledouris created for this film a gentle concerto embodying the soul of a dying man who wishes to throw one last party with his friends before the imminent end. Performed entirely by one solo piano (a rare achievement), the composer reduces the focus, thus making the entire story very personal. Perhaps, what really makes It's My Party Poledouris' most powerful score to date is that its emotional power owes much to the fact that Poledouris himself is performing his own work. Rarely has there been a finer example of the passion that flows from the mind of a talented composer into his music when it is not diluted by the interpretation of others. The intensity here just sweeps you up, shoots through your body like a bolt of lightning, and reaches into your very soul in a way an entire orchestra could never do. A vitally important addition to any music lover's collection.

Ivanhoe

1994, Intrada Records; from the movie Ivanhoe, M-G-M, 1952

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; Orchestral Reconstruction: Daniel Robbins; The Sinfonia of London, conducted by Bruce Broughton; Album Producer: Douglass Fake; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor; Assistant Engineer: Guy Massey.

Selections: 1 Prelude (2:15); 2 Ransom (3:12); 3 Rotherwood (1:09); 4 Lady Rowena (2:15); 5 Sir Cedric (:30); 6 Squire Wamba (4:38); 7 Rebecca (1:00); 8 The Intruder (3:43); 9 The Rivals (4:55); 10 Sheffield (:38); 11 Rebecca's Love (5:13); 12 Search (1:23); 13 Torquilstone Castle (3:16); 14 Bois-Guilbert's Bargain (3:31); 15 The Battlement (7:15); 16 Saxon Victory (7:53); 17 Farewell (2:36); 18 Challenge and Finale (5:58).

Review: Another vibrant re-creation of a great score, with Bruce Broughton leading The Sinfonia of London in a spirited performance that never lessens, Ivanhoe is a sumptuous effort by Miklos Rozsa that long deserved a recording of this caliber. Of all the swashbucklers he scored, this is probably the one that has the best combination of romantic tunes and thrilling action cues, all elements that come clearly to the forefront in this exciting album. With little time wasted on unnecessary asides, Rozsa quickly set the stage for this medieval tale of chivalry and treachery and for its main characters, including Lady Rowena, (Joan Fontaine), Rebecca (Elizabeth Taylor), Bois-Guilbert (George Sanders), and of course Ivanhoe (Robert Taylor, in one of his best screen roles). The spectacular aspects of the tale, the colorful jousts, the exciting battles, also receive their due with cues that aim to broaden the visuals with thrilling musical accents. It all comes excitingly together in this sensational recording, performed with the right dash and recorded in spacious sound.

Jack

1996, Hollywood Records; from the movie Jack, Hollywood Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Orchestrations: Michael Kamen, Bob Elhai, Lolita Ritmanis, Brad Warnaar, John Sacks; Music Editor: David Slusser; The L.A. All-Star Orchestra, conducted by Michael Kamen; Featured Musicians: Mario

Grigorov, Michael Kamen (piano), The San Francisco Saxophone Quartet, Frank Marocco (accordion), Rick Baptist, Morty Okin (trumpet), Pete Escovedo (percussion), Paula Hochhalter, Dennis Karmazyn (cello), Fred Tinsley (bass), Bruce Dukov (violin), Marty Kristall (clarinet), Paul Fried (flute), Vince De Rosa (French horn), Buell Neidlinger (double bass); Album Producers: Michael Kamen, Stephen McLaughlin, Christopher Brooks; Engineers: Stephen McLaughlin, Andy Warwick.

Selections: 1 Jack Conga (3:11); 2 Jack Scherzo (3:17); 3 Sky (1:07); 4 Butterfly (1:36); 5 The Basketball Game (2:24); 6 Cello Jack (3:58); 7 Louie's Mom (A Great School Day)(2:35); 8 Treehouse Collapse (2:34); 9 Jack's Collapse (Butterfly Death)(4:06); 10 Time To Grow Up (:42); 11 The Children's Crusade (Can Jack Come Out And Play)(4:24); 12 Back To School (What Do I Want To Be When I Grow Up? Alive!)(3:03); 13 Valedictorian (Life Is Fleeting)(4:22).

Review: The whimsical accents of this delightful comedy find an echo in Michael Kamen's exhilarating score, which, most appropriately, opens here with an exuberant conga that sets the tone for the rest of the album. To illustrate this story of a 10-year-old boy who evidences the mental and emotional reactions of his age, even though, through a quirk of nature, he actually looks 40, Kamen devised cues that amusingly stress the child-like qualities of the main character, played by Robin Williams, in terms that constantly challenge the listener. Written for a slew of individual instruments taking solos against the broader texture of the orchestra, the music adds an exponential element to the screen action, outlining selected scenes in the life of Jack, his schoolmates, and the adults with whom he comes in contact. Summing up the overall lesson of the film that life is fleeting, "Valedictorian" finds Jack, now 17 but in reality a ripe old 68-year-old, reflecting on the meaning of his brief existence.

Jacob's Ladder

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Jacob's Ladder, Carolco Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestra conducted by Maurice Jarre; Electronic Ensemble: Michael Boddicker, Michael Fisher, Ralph Grierson, Rick Marvin, Judd Miller, Nyle Stiner; Featured Soloists: Gloria Cheng (piano), Kazu Mitsui (shakuhachi), Shankar (double violin/vocal); Featured Vocalists: Jubilant Sykes, Kari Windingstad, The Kitka Eastern European Women's Choir (Bon Brown, vocal director); Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Jacob's Ladder (4:18); 2 High Fever (7:43); 3 Descent To Inferno (8:19); 4 Sarah (7:18); 5 The Ladder (7:14); 6 Sonny Boy (B.G. DeSylva/L. Brown/R. Henderson/A. Jolson)(3:07) Al Jolson.

Review: A horror story about a Vietnam vet exposed to chemicals during the war, and who, as a result, experiences frightful visions, Jacob's Ladder elicited an effectively eerie score from Maurice Jarre, which might have been more impressive as a subtle suggestion of the screen action than it is as a purely aural experiment. Primarily written for an electronic ensemble, it consists of long synthesizer chords, occasionally contrasted by a simple melody on the piano, over which evocative wordless vocals doubling the sound of the shakuhachi combine to create a strange musical atmosphere. Ultimately, though, the lack of a real hook prevents the cues from being more than a background support for an unseen action, depriving the music from its secondary, strictly audio purpose. The addition of "Sonny Boy," performed by Al Jolson, does little to attract the listener.

James and the Giant Peach

1996, Walt Disney Records; from the movie James and the Giant Peach, Walt Disney Films, 1996.

Selections: 1 My Name Is James (2:39); 2 That's The Life (1:59); 3 Eating The Peach (R. Dahl)(2:54); 4 Family (2:44); 5 Main Title (:37); 6 Clouds (1:40); 7 Spiker, Sponge, And A Rhino (3:25); 8 Magic Man (4:15); 9 Giant Peach (1:54); 10 Into The Peach (2:05); 11 James Makes Some Friends (1:08); 12 The Peach Rolls (2:37); 13 All At Sea/That's The Life (reprise) (2:13); 14 100 Seagulls And One Shark (1:58); 15 Lullaby (1:57); 16 James' Dream (1:03); 17 Way Off Course (1:48); 18 The Rhino Attacks (2:51); 19 Empire State Building (2:17); 20 New York City (2:53); 21 Spiker And Sponge Come To America (2:15); 22 A Place Where Dreams Come True (3:58); 23 Good News (4:20) Randy Newman.

Review: Based on a story by Roald Dahl, this live-action/stop-motion animation film follows the adventures of James, an orphan raised by two spinster aunts, one fat, one skinny, and both mean. After a mysterious old man assures him that everything will be all right, James discovers in the backyard a giant peach and the six bugs who live in it, setting off the fairy tale that ensues. While the tone of the film itself was more gritty and caustic than the outline suggests, it prompted Randy Newman to write a lightweight score in a display of emotions unusual for him. Amusingly salient scenes in the action, the score features many highlights that elevate it way above the norm and is enhanced by several songs, including two "That's the Life" and "My Name Is James," that are absolutely terrific.

Selections: 1 Jane Eye Theme (3:13); 2 Overture (Main Title)(3:53); 3 Lowood (2:23); 4 To Thornfield (1:50); 5 String Quartet—Festivity At Thornfield (2:07); 6 Grace Poole and Mason's Arrival (2:59); 7 Trio—The Meeting (3:06); 8 Thwarted Wedding (2:37); 9 Across The Moors (2:36); 10 Restoration (3:55); 11 Reunion (4:22).

Review: Bringing his own musical sensitivity to Charlotte Bronte's celebrated novel, John Williams scored this 1971 version starring George C. Scott and Susannah York, in a dramatic display of all the elements that single him out as a composer—his brilliant feel for melodic material, his lyrical expression, and above all his unusual combination of varied instruments to create the proper atmosphere. All of these elements are brought to the fore here in cues that enhance this story of passion, longing, madness, and mystery. Particularly effective in this context is the contrast between "To Thornfield," a light gallop, and "The Meeting," for a trio, with its morose accents beneath the lilting melody suggesting the oppressive aura of the place and the mysterious foreboding that hangs over it. It shows Williams in a particularly inventive mood, obviously inspired by the broad romantic aspects of the story, and always in search of new, uncommon ways to express his creativity.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; The Slovak Radio Symphony Orchestra of Bratislava, conducted by Adriano; Album Producer: Emil Nizmansky; Engineer: Hubert Geschwandtner.

Selections: 1 Prelude (2:46); 2 Jane's Departure (3:17); 3 Jane Alone (2:16); 4 Dreaming/Vanity (2:04); 5 Elegy/Jane's Sorrow (2:26); 6 Time Passage/The Letter (1:17); 7 Thornfield Hall/Valse Bluette (3:55); 8 Rochester (2:26); 9 The Piano/Promenade (4:07); 10 Rochester's Past/The Fire (5:04); 11 Duo/The Door (3:11); 12 Springtime (2:30); 13 Mr. Mason (3:34); 14 The Room/The Rattle (3:02); 15 The Garden (3:37); 16 Farewell (2:32); 17 Song (Jane's Confession)/The Storm (4:47); 18 The Wedding/The Wife; 19 Jane's Farewell (Rochester's Confession); 20 Jane's Return (3:41); 21 Finale (2:58).

Review: Bernard Herrmann's striking score for this memorable screen adaptation of Charlotte Bronte's Victorian novel receives a wonderful reading in a recording as sumptuous as it is evocative. A riveting drama, starring Joan Fontaine as the orphan waif who becomes governess at Thornfield, a manor house, and falls in love with its owner, played by Orson Welles, the film elicited from Herrmann what may well have been his most romantic, and certainly most profuse work, a score clearly dominated by three essential motifs, one for the two principal characters, and the third for the love they feel for one another. In addition to its abundance of impassioned cues, and belying the darker tones they sometimes project, the score also contains musical themes that are poetic and inspiring, like "Valse Bluette," which contrasts the ominous moods in "Thornfield Hall," the lilting "Springtime," or the lovely "The Garden," beautifully expressive. As is so frequently the case with these recordings featuring the Slovak Radio Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Adriano, all the technical aspects deserve warm plaudits.

Jaws

1990, MCA Records; from the movie Jaws, Universal Pictures, 1975.

Selections: 1 Main Title (Theme From Jaws)(2:16); 2 Chrissie's Death (1:40); 3 Promenade (Tourists On The Menu)(2:46); 4 Out To Sea (2:27); 5 The Indianapolis Story (2:25); 6 Sea Attack Number One (5:24); 7 One Barrel Chase (3:04); 8 Preparing The Cage (3:24); 9 Night Search (3:29); 10 The Underwater Siege (2:31); 11 Hand To Hand Combat (2:32); 12 End Title (Theme From Jaws)(2:18).

Review: John Williams' classic suspense music was unavailable on CD for years until MCA finally relented and produced this crisp-sounding disk that resurrects Williams' original album arrangement of the score. The chopping, Stravinskyesque shark motif is justly famous, but just as enjoyable is the composer's mock-baroque stylings for "Tourists on the Menu," the bracing sea shanty tune developed for "Out to Sea" and "Two Barrel Chase," and the thrilling classical-styled fugue expanded on for "Building the Cage." Williams' supercharged "Sea Attack Number One" is one of the most exciting, sustained action cues ever heard in a movie, brilliantly playing the shark material off the adventuresome "counterattack" fugue to create a bold, modern pirate movie sound that hyped the thrills in Spielberg's brilliant movie to previously unheard-of proportions. Jaws is ultimately a kind of monster movie, but Williams' score is almost all adventure, and his tinkering with the original music for album presentation makes for one of the most thoroughly enjoyable soundtrack albums ever released.

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Jaws 2, Universal Pictures, 1978.

Selections: 1 Finding The "Orca" (Main Title)(3:15); 2 The Menu (1:49); 3 Ballet For Divers (2:56); 4 The Water Kite Sequence (2:52); 5 Brody Misunderstood (2:49); 6 The Catamaran Race (2:08); 7 Toward Cable Junction (3:45); 8 Attack On The Helicopter (1:58); 9 The Open Sea (2:03); 10 Fire Aboard and Eddie's Death (3:25); 11 Sean's Rescue (2:55); 12 Attack On The Water Skier (2:40); 13 The Big Jolt! (4:39); 14 End Title, End Cast (3:21).

Review: Following the huge success of the first film, Jaws 2 reunited John Williams with the story about the dangerous shark, prompting him to devise new music for this sequel that sounded as compelling and ominous as the first. In truth, Williams surpassed himself, writing a score that had the effectiveness of the first, and then some. Its cues develop and expand on the shark theme, but take it to new heights of creativity. Among the most interesting moments in the new score, "Ballet for Divers" is a splendid highlight; "Attack on the Helicopter" and "Attack on the Water Skier," both exemplify the composer's strong commitment to descriptive music that draws the listener into its melodic web; and "The Open Sea" stands out as an anthem to the sheer beauty of the spectacle it evokes. All in all, an important score in the composer's canon.

Cosway)(1:23) Simon Heyerick, Bernadette Charbonnier, David Bahanovich, Jory Vinikour; 15 Mormora (for voice and harp)(M. Cosway)(1:25) Mary Nichols, Jan Walters; 16 The Locket And The Third Estate (6:35); 17 Courante In C Minor For Harpsichord (J. Duphly)(2:42) Jory Vinikour; 18 End Credits (5:52).

Review: In a brilliant display of elegance and sophistication, the score for Jefferson in Paris combines together Richard Robbins' cues and music from the period to give the film a vivid musical illustration that is ultimately most winning. With a superb performance by Les Arts Florissants, the late 18th-century music of the French court sounds quite lovely with Corelli's "Violin Sonata," Charpentier's "In hoc festo," and Duphly's "Courante for Harpsichord" among the choice moments found here. In contrast, Robbins' score sounds more florid, more contemporary in a sense, though no less effective in conjuring up images that are both solidly evocative and musically attractive. In the notes he wrote about the score, the composer explains the role he saw between the musical play and the close relationship he tried to establish between the development of his cues and Jefferson's use of a pantograph (a machine which the American statesman used to make duplicate copies of his letters as he wrote them), a recurring theme throughout the film. The continuity and tension that result make the score an ideal companion to the story on the screen.

Review: Cleverly edited concept album where each musical cue is led off with an hilarious snippet of dialogue from this comedy about a gay man so afraid of contracting AIDS that he avoids any prospect of happiness. Much of Stephen Edelman's score ranges from an atypical workout piece for "The Gym" to transitional cues as performed by a small jazz combo. The music and the songs are pleasant enough, but the dialogue is so outrageous, particularly "Jeffrey Phones Home" where he discuses sex with his parents, it makes the score seem positively impotent in comparison.

Selections: 1 The Magic Bus (P. Townshend)(7:35) The Who; 2 Sitting Still Moving Still Staring Outlooking (W. Defever)(3:21) His Name Is Alive; 3 Gettin' In Tune (P. Townshend)(4:47) The Who; 4 Pocketful Of Rainbows (F. Wise/B. Weisman)(3:16) Elvis Presley; 5 World On A String (N. Young)(2:25) Neil Young; 6 We Meet Again (Theme from Jerry Maguire)(N. Wilson)(3:04) Nancy Wilson; 7 The Horses (R.L. Jones/W. Becker)(4:48) Rickie Lee Jones; 8 Secret Garden (B. Springsteen)(4:28) Bruce Springsteen; 9 Singalong Junk (P. McCartney)(2:36) Paul McCartney; 10 Wise Up (A. Mann)(3:28) Aimee Mann; 11 Momma Miss America (P. McCartney)(4:05) Paul McCartney; 12 Sandy (N. Wilson) (4:40) Nancy Wilson; 13 Shelter From The Storm (alternate version)(B. Dylan) (6:00) Bob Dylan.

Review: Proof that good, listenable soundtracks can be made from something other than already proven hits. Bruce Springsteen's "Secret Garden" deserves the boost it got from being this movie's love theme (though the radio programmer who came up with the idea of overlaying film dialogue on the song should be shot). Bob Dylan's alternate version of "Shelter from the Storm" adds a verse not heard in the original, while Beatles devotees will make a beeline for Paul McCartney's "Momma Miss America" and the aptly titled "Singalong Junk." Obscure tracks from Neil Young ("World on a String"), Elvis Presley ("Pocketful of Rainbows") and modern rockers His Name is Alive ("Sitting Still Moving Still Staring Outlooking") round out a compelling set.

The Jewel of the Nile

1985, Arista/Jive Records; from the movie The Jewel of the Nile, 20th Century-Fox, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Jack Nitzsche; Song Producers: Wayne Brathwaithe, Barry J. Eastmond, Bryan "Chuck" New, Hugh Masekela, The Willesden Dodgers, Larry Smith, Jon Astrop, Mark Shreeve, Pete Q. Harris, Richard Jon Smith, Michael Hoenig.

Selections: 1 When The Going Gets Tough, The Tough Get Going (W. Brathwaithe/B. Eastmond/R. Lange/B. Ocean)(5:43) Billy Ocean; 2 I'm In Love (J. Butler/S. May)(3:30) Ruby Turner; 3 African Breeze (J. Butler)(6:00) Hugh Masekela, Jonathan Butler; 4 Party (No Sheep Is Safe Tonight)(P. Harris/ N. Green/R. Smith)(5:10) The Willesden Dodgers; 5 Freaks Come Out At Night (L. Smith/J. Hutchins)(4:45) Whodini; 6 The Jewel Of The Nile (T. Britten/G. Lyle)(4:18) Precious Wilson; 7 Legion (Here I Come)(M. Shreeve/P. Harris/R. Smith)(4:49) Mark Shreeve; 8 Nubian Dance (P. Harris/R. Smith)(3:35) The Nubians; 9 Love Theme (J. Nitzsche)(2:26); 10 The Plot Thickens (J. Nitzsche) (4:15).

Review: On the screen, The Jewel of the Nile is a diverting adventure film that recalls some aspects of the Indiana Jones epics, a contemporary swashbuckler that exudes great moments of action and romance, subtly blended together for a nonstop rollercoaster. To pull off this kind of film, a strong score is usually de rigueur, and while Jack Nitzsche is not John Williams, the music he wrote on this occasion is serviceable and quite adequate. Although you wouldn't know it from listening to this so-called soundtrack album in which only two of his cues, "Love Theme" and "The Plot Thickens", have been included, for a total playing time of less than seven minutes. The rest of the "action" is taken by non-descript, and frequently boring, pop songs that may play a minor role in the film, but are totally uninspiring in this context.

JFK

1991, Elektra Records; from the movie JFK, Warner Bros., 1991.

Selections: 1 Prologue (4:00); 2 The Motorcade (5:14); 3 Drummers' Salute (arr. D.G. McCroskie)(2:55) The Royal Scots Dragoon Guards; 4 Theme From JFK (2:23); 5 Eternal Father, Strong To Save (For Those In Peril On The Sea)(W. Whiting/J.B. Dykes)(1:19); 6 Garrison's Obsession (2:33); 7 On The Sunny Side Of The Street (D. Fields/J. McHugh)(4:23) Sidney Bechet; 8 The Conspirators (4:04); 9 The Death Of David Ferrie (2:47); 10 Maybe September (P. Faith/J. Livingston/R. Evans)(4:03); 11 Garrison Family Theme (2:14); 12 Ode To Buckwheat (B. Lewis)(3:54) Brent Lewis; 13 El Watusi (R. Barretto)(2:41) Ray Barretto; 14 The Witnesses (2:46); 15 Concerto No. 2 For Horn and Orchestra, K. 417 (Allegro Maestoso)(W.A. Mozart)(6:29) Dale Clevenger, Franz Liszt Chamber Orchestra, Janos Rolla; 16 Arlington (6:29); 17 Finale (3:14); 18 Theme From JFK (reprise)(2:23).

Review: John Williams approached his score for Oliver Stone's paranoiac history lesson almost in the manner of Ennio Morricone, seemingly laying down a number of memorable themes and motifs to be placed at the director's whim throughout the movie rather than writing a truly programmatic score. Yet somehow this approach produces an outstandingly listenable album, provided the listener takes full advantage of the miracle of programmability. Williams' dissonant, harsh material involving the Kennedy assassination is pretty tough to sit through, but his JFK theme and variations, as well as melodies for Kevin Costner's family relationships in the film, are some of Williams' most beautiful and satisfying compositions. "The Conspirators," with its staccato piano line, is quickly gaining prominence as one of the most copied film music cues of all time, although as represented on this CD it's curiously thin-sounding, lacking the driving power and mystery of the film version.

Johnny Guitar

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Johnny Guitar, Republic Picture, 1954.

Album Notes: Music: Victor Young; Orchestra conducted by Victor Young.

Selections: 1 (1:29); 2 Johnny Guitar (V. Young/P. Lee)(2:04) Peggy Lee; 3 (3:33); 4 (:46); 5 (:28); 6 (5:54); 7 (1:32); 8 (5:11); 9 (1:32); 10 (3:13); 11 (3:57); 12 (3:12); 13 (2:29); 14 (4:35); 15 (1:43); 16 (2:05); 17 (2:09); 18 (6:01); 19 Johnny Guitar (1:06) Peggy Lee.

Review: An unusually bleak western with a neurotic direction by Nicholas Ray, Johnny Guitar is a lyrical masterpiece with baroque overtones. Joan Crawford, clad in black denim, gives one of her strongest performances as an aggressive, no-nonsense saloon owner whose only goal in life is to get rich. Mercedes McCambridge is the bitter, sexually frustrated leader of the little community opposing Crawford's plans for expansion. Even though the story itself could have played in any given context, much of the score Victor Young composed for the film is in the standard western idiom, solidly anchored by the title tune, written with and performed onscreen by Peggy Lee. The album, obviously taken from the original acetates (the surface noise on some tracks indicates this much), was initially released on LP in the early 1980s, without identifying the selections. The CD repeats the same mistake, making it difficult to associate a specific cue with a corresponding scene in the film.

Johnny Handsome

Album Notes: Music: Ry Cooder; Horns Arranger: Van Dyke Parks; Featured Musicians: Jim Keltner (drums/percussion), Ry Cooder (guitars/keyboards/bass/accordion/fiddle/percussion), Steve Douglas (saxophones); Horn Band: George Bohanon (trombone), Harold Battiste (soprano sax), Bobby Bryant (trumpet), John Bolivar, Ernie Fields, Herman Riley (saxophone); Album Producer: Ry Cooder; Engineer: Larry Hirsch.

Selections: 1 Main Theme (1:52); 2 I Can't Walk This Time/The Prestige (6:49); 3 Angola (2:01); 4 Clip Joint Rhumba (R. Cooder/J. Keltner)(3:18); 5 Sad Story (2:34); 6 Fountain Walk (2:17); 7 Cajun Metal (1:59); 8 First Week At Work (1:04); 9 Greasy Oysters (R. Cooder/J. Keltner)(1:52); 10 Smells Like Money (R. Cooder/J. Keltner)(2:26); 11 Sunny's Tune (2:53); 12 I Like Your Eyes (2:23); 13 Adios Donna (1:32); 14 Cruising With Rafe (3:01); 15 How's My Face (1:48); 16 End Theme (3:20).

Review: A downbeat contemporary drama about a convict whose violent demeanor is not the least bit altered after he undergoes plastic surgery to change his appearance, Johnny Handsome receives a flavorful, uplifting score from Ry Cooder, who performed it with splendid musical support from a handful of great jazz players. While the correlation between the music and the film seems less important in this context, the striking feature of the album is the number of cues that create an aura of their own and call for closer scrutiny. Essential to one's appreciation of the score is the expressive "I Can't Walk This Time/The Prestige," which allows the musicians to stretch and fully explore the many positive aspects of the music. Other tracks that also establish themselves include the rousing "Clip Joint Rhumba," with its bouncy zydeco flair, "Sunny's Tune," and "Cruising with Rafe."

Josh and S.A.M.

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Josh and S.A.M., Castle Rock Entertainment, 1993.

Selections: 1 Is You All A Problem (Main Title)(1:39); 2 Night Drive (1:44); 3 Ouagadougou (1:49); 4 In Her Care (1:39); 5 Utah Proper (1:18); 6 Saltwater Palace (1:31); 7 Trains (2:42); 8 Same Wish, Same Weather (1:05); 9 Toward The Settin' Sun (B. Bernstein/B. Badami)(1:12) The Drunks; 10 Bus To Canada (2:38); 11 Orchard (1:06); 12 Targhee Pass (1:00); 13 Shuttle (:46); 14 Brothers (2:44); 15 Cold Corner (1:43); 16 Nowhere (:58); 17 Food And Gas (1:19); 18 End Title (2:51).

Review: There are some winning moments in this otherwise uneven score by Thomas Newman for a touching story about two brothers (one of them thinks he is a robot) who steal a car and take a wild ride across the country. However, the overall impression is less than satisfying. Some cues seem to wander off into a netherland in which they fail to find a resolution, others trail off after having built some momentum that never really materializes. It may be that the score plays better with the film itself. Judged on its own merits, it is not so convincing.

The Joy Luck Club

1993, Hollywood Records; from the movie The Joy Luck Club, Hollywood Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Rachel Portman, John Neufeld; Music Editor: Bill Abbott; Orchestra conducted by J.A.C. Redford; Featured Musicians: Masakazu Yoshizawa, Chris Fu, Shufeng He (Chinese instruments), Karen Hua-Qi Han (Chinese violin), Jim Walker (concert and bamboo flutes); Album Producer: Rachel Portman; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 The Story Of The Swan (2:30); 2 Escape From Guilin (5:35); 3 Lindo's Story (1:50); 4 Best Quality Heart (2:27); 5 Upturned Chairs (1:58); 6 June Meets Her Twin Sisters (2:58); 7 His Little Spirit Had Flown Away (4:33); 8 An-Mei's Mother Returns (1:50); 9 Most Important Sacrifice (2:44); 10 Tiger In The Trees (3:23); 11 Lindo's Last Night (3:32); 12 The Babies (3:57); 13 An-Mei's New Home (2:38); 14 Swan Feather (:51); 15 End Titles (3:15).

Review: Not what you might think this is, The Joy Luck Club, about four sets of Chinese-American mothers and daughters and their diverse reactions to the different sets of values that define the world in which they live, prompted Rachel Portman to write a truly exquisite score. It is filled with great melodies, many in a very romantic vein, in which an occasional Chinese instrument provides the ethnic touch required by the story. Slowly unfolding and in the process setting the tone of the film, the cues explore the many dramatic possibilities suggested by the screenplay, with some great moments of expression finding a voice along the way. Strong romantic elements clearly dominate in the music, with the composer reaching new heights of lyricism in selections like "Best Quality Heart," "June Meets Her Twin Sisters," or "An-Mei's New Home." A lovely, prolific score, in which a deliberately slow pace may leave some listeners unfazed, but which should satisfy many fans of instrumental music.

Judge Dredd

1995, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Judge Dredd, Hollywood Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Orchestrations: William Ross; Music Editor: Kenneth Karman; The Sinfonia of London, conducted by Alan Silvestri; Album Producer: Alan Silvestri; Engineer: Dennis Sands; Assistant Engineers: Toby Wood, Charlie Paakkari.

Selections: 1 Dredd Song (Smith/Gallup/Bamonte/Cooper/O'Donnell) (4:16) The Cure; 2 Darkness Falls (M. Johnson) (3:43) The The; 3 Super-Charger Heaven (W. Zombie/R. Zombie) (3:36) White Zombie; 4 Need-Fire (Cocteau Twins) (4:14) Cocteau Twins; 5 Release The Pressure (N.Barnes/P. Daley/E. Daley) (7:39) Leftfield; 6 Judge Dredd Main Theme (4:56); 7 Judgement Day (5:53); 8 Block War (4:39); 9 We Created You (3:46); 10 Council Chaos (5:43); 11 Angel Family (5:36); 12 New World (9:13).

Review: If you haven't gone deaf after listening to the five mindless songs that lead off this soundtrack (only "Dredd Song" appears in the film), you'll realize that Alan Silvestri's "Judge Dredd Main Theme" is making good use of CD sonics with its quiet one-minute buildup of synth and chorus. Once it gets going, Silvestri's score is a powerful, addictive mix of driving percussion. This is particularly notable in "Block War." Dredd's own theme is a focused march, embodying the judge's own narrow view that says only the letter of the law matters. Silvestri seems to be having real fun recreating a twisted version of his Predator 2 theme for the cannibalistic, mutated "Angel Family." He uses several odd synth effects, including some warped whale songs. Jerry Goldsmith was originally scheduled to score this film and created the trailer music. It was recorded on the Hollywood '95 (q.v.) album and it's interesting to compare the approaches of these two composers to the same subject.

Judicial Consent

1995, Intrada Records; from the movie Judicial Consent, Rysher Entertainment, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Young; Orchestrations: Pete Anthony, Christopher Young; Music Editor: Doug Lackey; Orchestra conducted by Lex de Azevedo; Synthesizers and Electronic Programming: Mark Zimoski; Album Producer: Christopher Young; Engineer: Mark Siddoway.

Selections: 1 Judicial Consent (2:09); 2 Black Thorn (2:50); 3 Hot Mustard Leadpipe (4:40); 4 Double Sin (2:38); 5 The Horizontal Man (1:36); 6 Clue Glue (4:54); 7 Themus (5:29); 8 Gavel On (6:35); 9 Silence (3:23).

Review: This score is brimming with rhythmic mysteriousness: winds over piano, keyboard fingering tentative, a soft flurry of notes, pausing a few beats, to return in a new flurry, with string chords surging in, high register. Low, moaning Herrmannesque chords play off of high-end piano notes with reverbed harp, and always the sustained strings. Young maintains an orchestral sensibility—very little electronics make their presence known—but his instrumentation is wicked. Stabs of percussion echoed by a downward violin shriek punctuate a tonal ambiance of whispering strings, low moaning winds, shimmering bells and moody timpani. A harsh strum of chain-like drums slams down amid low pianistic echoes, sinewy string groans, and an incessantly chattering percussion rapping. In the end, Young's pretty main theme survives the horrors and closes the score on a note of melancholy. He captivates the listener, as he does the viewer, with a dominating musical permeation that creates an inescapable atmosphere of foreboding, excitement, suspense, horror and ultimate relief. Few modern composers do it as well.

Julia and Julia

1988, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Julia and Julia, Cinecom Entertainment, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Featured Musicians: Rick Marvin (keyboards), Judd Miller (E.V.I.); Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: 1 Julia (4:44); 2 The Old Lady (1:48); 3 Happy Days (8:35); 4 The Tunnel (3:31); 5 The Penthouse (3:30); 6 Daniel (3:08); 7 With Paolo, Forever (6:27).

Review: For this film about a woman who experiences a time-warp situation, one in which her husband is dead and she has a lover, the other in which her husband is still alive, Maurice Jarre wrote a score that attempts to match in musical terms the odd, dual situation in which the main character finds herself. That he doesn't entirely succeed is indicative of the problems that face the film itself. In his multi-layered electronic score, Jarre tries to convey the strange events that shape up the screen action. He partly succeeds in the long cue, "Happy Days," in which the moods projected manage to convey the sense of insecurity and disorientation Julia must feel when confronted with a perplexing situation she cannot explain. But the other cues, much less elaborated and thinly constructed, fail to convey the same impressions and dissolve into a noisy form of expression that has no fixed goal.

Julius Caesar

1995, Intrada Records; from the movie Julius Caesar, M-G-M, 1953.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; Orchestral Reconstruction: Daniel Robbins; The Sinfonia of London, conducted by Bruce Broughton; Featured Artists: Jane Emanuel (soprano), the Sinfonia Chorus, Jenny O'Grady, director; Album Producer:

Douglass Fake; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor; Assistant Engineer: Steve Orchard.

Selections: 1 Julius Caesar Overture (3:15); 2 Praeludium (3:38); 3 Caesar's Procession (2:45); 4 Flavius Arrested (:18); 5 Feast Of Lupercal (:44); 6 Caesar And His Train (:51); 7 The Scolding Winds (2:42); 8 Brutus' Soliloquy (6:34); 9 Brutus' Secret (2:11); 10 They Murder Caesar (1:08); 11 The Ides Of March (4:36); 12 Black Sentence (3:55); 13 Brutus' Camp (1:31); 14 Heavy Eyes (1:47); 15 Gentle Knave (2:07); 16 Ghost Of Caesar (1:42); 17 Most Noble Brutus (1:10); 18 Battle At Philippi (1:28); 19 Titinius Enclosed (:40); 20 Caesar Now Be Still (8:54); 21 Finale (1:10).

Review: Of all the Golden Age masters, Miklós Rózsa was the one who paid the least attention to catching on-screen action. His music has more of a through-composed quality which has survived the decades well. Julius Caesar, starring Marlon Brando, is one of his first "historical epic" scores, and one of his darkest, blending smaller period-type cues with the symphonic foreboding of his film noir period. For most of it, the string section simply seems to be playing lower than in his later, sunnier biblical epics, with cello soliloquies accompanying the Shakespearean portent on screen. It's not really "period" music—what did music in the 1st century B.C. really sound like?—but Rózsa's Eastern European romanticism conveys a certain Roman-ness which is appropriate. Between the shorter, distinctly Rózsa motifs, with their evocative intervalic leaps, and the longer lines which expand into entire pieces, it's one of his most absorbing historical scores. (Many of the cues were cut or abridged in the actual film.) Intrada's album, which goes on forever, is a new recording done in 1995, with Bruce Broughton conducting the Sinfonia of London and Sinfonia Chorus.

Jumanji 🦴🦴🦴🦴

1995, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Jumanji, Tri-Star Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Steve Bramson; Music Editors: Jim Henrikson; Assistant Music Editors: Christine Cholvin, Joe E. Rand; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Featured Instrumental Soloists: Michael Fisher, Ralph Grierson, Tony Hinnegan, James Horner, Randy Kerber, Qu-Chao Liu, Kazu Matsui, Mike Taylor, Ian Underwood; Album Producers: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineers: Andy Bass, Marc Gebauer, Dave Marquette, Jay Selvester, Kirsten Smith.

Selections: 1 Prologue and Main Title (3:42); 2 First Move (2:20); 3 Monkey Mayhem (4:42); 4 A New World (2:40); 5 "It's Sarah's Move" (2:36); 6 The Hunter (1:56); 7 Rampage Through Town (2:28); 8 Alan Parrish (4:18); 9 Stampede! (2:12); 10 A Pelican Steals The Game (1:40); 11 The Monsoon (4:48); 12 "Jumanji" (11:47); 13 End Titles (5:55)

Review: A thriller with grim overtones, Jumanji induced James Horner to write an unusual score filled with ominous sounds, midway between fantasy and horror. The name of the film refers to a very unusual board game with supernatural powers, whose surreal and potentially lethal aspects compel the player to enter into a world totally controlled by the game. As each roll of the dice brings out new elements that prove frightening as well as dangerously beautiful, Horner matches the action with musical themes well-studied to enhance it. "Monkey Mayhem," for instance, is a rollicking cue that underscores a scene in which an unruly group of apes disrupts the suburban New England home of the two youngsters who play the game. Similarly, "Rampage Through Town" evokes a herd of elephants suddenly creating havoc in the little town, smashing everything that happens to be in their path. Each incident in the film calls for (and gets) an inventive musical cue, with Horner conjuring up some chaotic fun along the way. Ultimately, not a very substantial score, but an entertaining one nonetheless.

The Jungle Book 🦴🦴🦴🦴

1994, Milan Records; from the movie The Jungle Book, Buena Vista Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie, Larry Ashmore, John Bell, Nick Ingman, Conrad Pope; Music Editor: Tom Villano; Orchestra conducted by David Snell; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Main Titles/The Caravan (4:23); 2 Shere Kahn Attacks (4:48); 3 Mowgli (3:40); 4 Monkey City (4:39); 5 Kitty (5:22); 6 Treasure Room (4:11); 7 Civilization (5:33); 8 Baloo (2:51); 9 Spoils (9:11); 10 Finale (3:29).

Review: For this umpteenth screen treatment of the Rudyard Kipling story about a boy raised by a pack of wolves in the Indian jungle, Basil Poledouris created a score that is rife with lush, colorful orchestral accents, in a way that takes it miles

> "We overhauled that score many, many times to get it right.... there were quite a few very tricky cues that played around dialog."
>
> Rachel Portman
> on the Academy-award winning score to Emma (The Hollywood Reporter, 1-15-97)

away from the music Miklos Rozsa wrote about the same subject (see above). In many ways, Poledouris' set of cues is very evocative of the screen action, with the selections devoted to the main characters ("Mowgli," "Baloo," "Shere Khan Attacks") striking a bold, sometimes overly rich vein. But this is also music that breathes and needs to express itself in broad terms, something the composer understood perfectly when he wrote the score. As a result, the sweep in the music is incredibly exciting and overpowering.

Jungle Fever

1991, Motown Records; from the movie Jungle Fever, Universal Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music & Lyrics: Stevie Wonder; Album Producer: Stevie Wonder; Engineers: Steve Van Arden, R.R. Harlan.

Selections: 1 Fun Day (4:40); 2 Queen In The Black (4:46); 3 These Three Words (4:54); 4 Each Other's Throat (4:17); 5 If She Breaks Your Heart (5:03); 6 Gotta Have You (6:26); 7 Make Sure You're Sure (3:31); 8 Jungle Fever (4:56); 9 I Go Sailing (3:58); 10 Chemical Love (4:26); 11 Lighting Up The Candles (4:09).

Review: Your reaction to this soundtrack album will largely depend on how you feel about Stevie Wonder, who wrote the songs heard in the film directed by Spike Lee and performs them. Generally speaking, the Wonder-man comes across most effectively in ballads ("These Three Words," "Make Sure You're Sure," "I Go Sailing"), possibly because the uptempo numbers seem too grating and abrasive, without much feeling.

Junior

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, James Newton Howard, Chris Boardman; Music Editor: Jim Weidman; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producers: James Newton Howard, Michael Mason; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Is There A Mother? (2:28); 2 Diana Moves In (1:14); 3 Main Titles (2:39); 4 The Lab (4:16); 5 Thunder And Lightning (2:33); 6 My Body, My Choice (2:08); 7 Natural Born Mother (1:34); 8 Labor (4:06); 9 First Pregnant Man (3:11); 10 It's A Girl (2:41); 11 Junior (2:57); 12 I've Got You Under My Skin (C. Porter)(3:06) Cassandra Wilson; 13 Are You In The Mood? (S. Grappelli/D. Reinhardt)(3:28) Stephane Grappelli.

Review: A minor (very minor!) comedy about a man who is pregnant (Arnold Schwarzenegger, if you can believe it), Junior received a much better score than it actually merited from the always inventive and interesting James Newton Howard. Though the action may not have deserved the attention it got, the composer wrote several cues that are quite enjoyable, musically speaking, with broad sonorous accents that compel the listener to pay close attention ("Main Titles," "First Pregnant Man," "Junior"). Adding a whimsical touch to the score, two source selections, "I've Got You Under My Skin," sung by Cassandra Wilson, and "Are You in the Mood?," exhilaratingly played by Stephane Grappelli, give a slightly different spin to this eloquent album.

Jurassic Park

1993, MCA Records; from the movie Jurassic Park, Universal Pictures, 1992.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles (:34); 2 Theme From Jurassic Park (3:28); 3 Incident At Isla Nublar (5:20); 4 Journey To The Island (8:53); 5 The Raptor Attack (2:49); 6 Hatching Baby Raptor (3:20); 7 Welcome To Jurassic Park (7:55); 8 My Friend, The Brachiosaurus (4:17); 9 Dennis Steals The Embryo (4:56); 10 A Tree For My Bed (2:12); 11 High-Wire Stunts (4:09); 12 Remembering Petticoat Lane (2:48); 13 Jurassic Park Gate (2:04); 14 Eye To Eye (6:32); 15 T-Rex Rescue and Finale (7:40); 16 End Credits (3:26).

Review: How do you musically spell "blockbuster"? The answer may well be in this sensational soundtrack, in which John

Williams makes no bones—prehistoric or otherwise—about his intentions from the first bars of the "Opening Titles." The lovely theme he develops, with oozing arpeggios and strong lyrical accents, belies the threat posed by the various monsters that eventually inhabit the film, something the composer clearly enjoys to define when he approaches such crucial scenes as "The Raptor Attack," "My Friend, The Brachiosaurus," or "Eye to Eye."

Also characteristic of his approach is the melodically strong themes Williams created for the occasion. Once again, we are in the presence of a composer who understands that film music must have a momentum of its own, and that the only way to provide it is to create themes that are essentially catchy. Even when the screen action demands a cue which may not call as much attention to itself, Williams succeeds in fulfilling his obligations while attracting the casual listener by the sheer power of the melody he has conceived for the moment. In every way, this is an outstanding score.

Just Cause

1995, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Just Cause, Warner Bros., 1995.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, Jeff Atmajian, Chris Boardman, James Newton Howard; Music Editor: Tom Dresher; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producer: James Newton Howard; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (1:37); 2 Searching For Clues (1:54); 3 Bobby Earl In The Elevator (1:20); 4 That's Laurie's Car (2:22); 5 Finding The Scimitar (2:26); 6 Bobby's Confession (3:02); 7 Ida Remembers (3:05); 8 Read The Signs (2:49); 9 Sullivan Phones (2:10); 10 The Execution (3:44); 11 Conviction Overturned (1:40); 12 Phony Message (1:58); 13 Case Closed (2:48).

Review: The confrontation between a law professor (Sean Connery), researching a case about a young man he believes has been falsely accused of a crime, and the small-town Florida cop (Laurence Fishburne) who obtained the confession, possibly through torture and coercion, Just Cause is a suspense-filled drama with plenty of twists to keep the audience on the edge of its seats. Contributing an element of strength to the whole brew is the score by James Newton Howard, whose cues slyly accent and modify the action on the screen, sometimes in bold, exciting terms. For once, however, the short playing time of the CD, which is slightly above 30 minutes, seems sufficient to have the music make its impression without overstaying its welcome.

Kafka

1992, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Kafka, Miramax Films, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Cliff Martinez; Album Producers: Cliff Martinez, Jeff Rona; Engineer: Leanne Ungar.

Selections: 1 Eddie's Dead (Main Title)(3:26); 2 Romanian Leave It To Beaver Music, Part 1 (:52); 3 Prelude To A Sneeze (4:22); 4 Walk With The Anarchists (2:00); 5 Romanian Leave It To Beaver Music, Part 2 (:52); 6 Goodnight Mr. Bizzlebek (1:17); 7 Bum Attack (1:52); 8 Hore Hronom, Dolu Hronom (trad.)(3:23) Josef Balaz Gypsy Band; 9 Snez (trad.)(3:13) Josef Balaz Gypsy Band; 10 The Abduction (1:15); 11 Allegiance To Something Other Than The Truth (1:21); 12 Burgel Goes To The Toilet (1:43); 13 He Came In Through The Bathroom Window (2:43); 14 Miller Time (4:40); 15 Son Of Balloon (1:15); 16 Wrong End Of The Microscope (7:35); 17 Meanwhile, Back At The Ranch (1:06); 18 Why Should Today Be Different? (2:27); 19 Let's Hit The Wall (End Title)(3:28).

Review: No doubt inspired by its subject matter and the defiant personality of the title character, Cliff Martinez wrote a greatly atmospheric score for Kafka, in which the cues are separated into two distinct categories, those that apply to the writer's real life, and those that underscore the arcane world in which his imagination often takes him. In the first, the cymbalom plays a vitally important role, suggestive of the Bohemian locale of the action, Prague shortly after the end of World War I, and the apparently impersonal but orderly existence of Kafka. In the second, however, Martinez chose to use an electronic underscoring that would have seemed out of place in 1919 but has a modern resonance that suits Kafka's moods of alienation in the presence of the unknowable ("Bum Attack," "Allegiance to Something Other Than the Truth," "Wrong End of the Microscope"). The combination of both reflects the narrative in its complex duality and provides the anchors upon which the story unfolds.

Kansas City

1996, Verve Records; from the movie Kansas City, Sandcastle 5/Ciby 2000, 1996.

Selections: 1 Blues In The Dark (W. Basie/J. Rushing)(4:53) James Carter, Joshua Redman; 2 Moten Swing (B. Moten/B. Moten)(3:42) Jesse Davis, James Carter; 3 I Surrender Dear (H. Barris/G. Clifford)(6:01) James Carter, Nicholas Payton, Cyrus Chestnut; 4 Queer Notions (C. Hawkins)(5:39) David Murray, Russell Malone, Cyrus Chestnut; 5 Lullaby Of The Leaves (J. Young/B. Petkere)(4:26) Jesse Davis, Clark Gayton, Geri Allen; 6 I Left My Baby (W. Basie/A. Gibson/J. Rushing)(7:24) Mark Whitfield, David "Fathead" Newman, Craig Handy, Curtis Fowlkes; 7 Yeah, Man (J. Russell Robinson/N. Sissle)(4:59) Craig Handy, Joshua Redman; 8 Froggy Bottom (J. Williams)(6:21) Geri Allen, David "Fathead" Newman, Mark Whitfield; 9 Solitude (E. DeLange/E.K. Ellington/I. Mills)(6:00) Joshua Redman; 10 Pagin' The Devil (W. Page/M. Gabler)(5:27) Don Byron, Olu Dara, Clark Gayton; 11 Lafayette (W. Basie/E. Durham)(4:04) Nicholas Payton, James Zollar, Olu Dara.

Review: Robert Altman's often muddled story of crime, race and politics in the 1930s is only temporarily relieved by some great jazz played in the background. Fortunately, the soundtrack album focuses on the music, and succeeds in evoking the era and the locale of the film, without the tedious action that makes it so painful to watch. There is indeed some great playing here, with several veterans (Joshua Redman, David "Fathead" Newman, Ron Carter, Curtis Fowlkes, Don Byron, James Carter, to name a few) displaying the essence of their unique talent in settings that obviously inspire them. Too bad the film could not reach the high quality levels of its soundtrack!

Kazaam

1997, Super Tracks Records; from the movie Kazaam, Touchstone Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Tyng; Orchestrations: Tim Simonec, Steve Zuckerman, Larry Kenton; Music Editor: Daryl Kell; Synths/Percussion/Programming: Christopher Tyng; Featured Musician: Bob Daspit (guitar); The London Film Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Tim Simonec; Album Producers: Christopher Tyng, Ford A. Thaxton; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Interscope Logo/Main Title (2:53); 2 First Wish Backfires (:43); 3 Junk Food From Here To The Sky (1:23); 4 Bike Chase (2:00); 5 DiJinn Explained (1:12); 6 Maljk's Way (1:40); 7 Max And Alice (1:43); 8 Lose The Pointy Shoes (2:20); 9 The Father/Stepfather Conflict (2:21); 10 Never Challenge A Genie (2:14); 11 Tape Theft (2:14); 12 Genie Groove (2:05); 13 Flying French Toast (:46); 14 Maljk Gets His (3:32); 15 The Transformation (4:53); 16 End Titles (3:17).

Review: Basketball star Shaquille O'Neal is the congenial genie who grants three wishes to a 12-year-old, setting the stage for this modern fairy tale unlikely set against a typically violent urban background. Before the relationship between the benevolent 3,000-year-old genie and his reluctantly cynical master finally yields an upbeat solution, much will have happened to both, and all of it is set to the score created by Christopher Tyng, a fresh voice on the film music scene. While the selections clearly indicate the potential of the composer, writing in a variety of styles, most of his cues sound incomplete, some stopping abruptly in the middle of a melodic phrase, others trailing off before they have a chance to reach a logical conclusion. This is all the more regrettable because Tyng is evidently gifted and comes up with attractive melodies whenever necessary, like "Max And Alice." On the screen, this shortcoming might not make much difference; on the album, however, it is too noticeable.

Keeper of the City

1991, Intrada Records; from the movie Keeper of the City, Viacom Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Leonard Rosenman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Music Editor: John Caper; The Utah Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Leonard Rosenman; Album Producer: Leonard Rosenman; Engineer: Mickey Crawford.

Selections: 1 Church (3:58); 2 The Keeper (1:41); 3 Cityscape (1:13); 4 Closet Shrine (4:28); 5 Reflections (:56); 6 Donetti Dies (:54); 7 Vince And Scotty (2:12); 8 Freeway Killing (3:59); 9 Kidnapped (1:27); 10 Vince And Dela (:59); 11 Frank Walks (2:53); 12 Closeted (3:24); 13 Endwrap (4:07).

Review: The "keeper of the city" in this contemporary drama set in a big city is a detective with definite notions about how to deal with criminals. Leonard Rosenman created a vibrant score, centered around two main themes — one to give an aural identity to the environment in which the hero of the film operates, the second to portray a criminal with pseudo-religious fanaticism who challenges the detective and the authority he represents. Heard throughout the score, the two themes collide with each other, complement each other, and eventually blend into one another in a climactic finale. Rosenman, an old hand at creating this type of music, is quite eclectic in his choice of themes and harmonies, and powerfully evokes the scene of the crime and the participants in it. The recording, oddly off-balanced in many cues with most of the musicians apparently regrouped on the right side, is otherwise clearly defined and appropriately dry.

A Kid in King Arthur's Court

1995, Walt Disney Records; from the movie A Kid in King Arthur's Court, Walt Disney Films, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: J.A.C. Redford; Orchestrations: Eric Schmidt, Carl Johnson, Larry Kenton, Christopher Guardino, Michael Harriton, Mark Gasbarro, Tim Kelly; Music Editors: Mark Green, David Cates; The City Of Prague Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by J.A.C. Redford; Featured Musician: Liona Boyd (classical guitar); Album Producer: J.A.C. Redford; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 A Kid In King Arthur's Court (Main Title)(2:46); 2 Strike Out/Earthquake (2:57); 3 Captured In Camelot (3:11); 4 Combat Rock 2:26); 5 Now Let Us Eat! (2:04); 6 Merlin's Lair (2:30); 7 Two Modest Proposals (2:36); 8 Successful Swording (1:24); 9 The Law Of The Land (1:55); 10 Calvin And Katie (2:54); 11 The Plot Thickens (4:30); 12 Between You And Me/ Under Arrest (2:34); 13 You Do Care (1:32); 14 Horses To Water (1:33); 15 Rescuing Katie (4:07); 16 The Fight In The Castle/Sir Calvin Of Reseda (3:37); 17 The Tournament (4:34); 18 Black Magic (1:59); 19 In Shining Armor (2:23); 20 Warm Goodbyes/ Home Run (4:16); 21 A Kid In King Arthur's Court (End Title)(3:04); 22 The Conscience Of The King (4:34).

Review: In a fresh, inventive variation on Mark Twain's classic "Connecticut Yankee" story, a kid with little mettle travels back in time to the days of Camelot, where his unusual appearance and bagful of odd contrivances (a portable CD player, rollerblades, a Swiss Army knife) immediately single him out as some sort of magician. Providing the musical peg on which the emotional balance of the action finds its fodder, J.A.C. Redford wrote a score that harkens back to the days of yore, when swashbucklers spoke of deadly deeds and courtly manners, but with a modern twist in keeping with the contemporary elements of the fantasy. Along the way, there are some nifty moments, including the abrasive "Combat Rock," the medieval-sounding "Now Let Us Eat!," the rousing "Successful Swording," and the love romance "Calvin and Katie." At times sounding a mite too profuse and lush for such a slight amusement, the score nonetheless delights and proves quite enjoyable. A theme for classical guitar ("The Conscience of the King") is particularly attractive.

The Killing Fields

1984, Virgin Records; from the movie The Killing Fields, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Mike Oldfield; Choral and Orchestral Arrangements: David Bedford; The Orchestra of the Bavarian State Opera and The Tolzer Boys Choir, conducted by Eberhard Schoener; Featured Musicians: Mike Oldfield (guitars, synthesizers), Preston Heyman (Oriental percussion), Morris Pert (percussion); Album Producer: Mike Oldfield; Engineers: Mike Oldfield, Geoff Young.

Selections: 1 Pran's Theme (:49); 2 Requiem For A City (2:11); 3 Evacuation (5:14); 4 Pran's Theme 2 (1:41); 5 Capture (2:24); 6 Execution (4:47); 7 Bad News (1:13); 8 Pran's Departure (2:08); 9 Worksite (1:16); 10 The Year Zero (:28); 11 Blood Sucking (1:22); 12 The Year Zero 2 (:34); 13 Pran's Escape/The Killing Fields (3:17); 14 The Trek (2:03); 15 The Boy's Burial/Pran Sees The Red Cross (2:43); 16 Good News (1:46); 17 Etude (4:41).

Review: Classic rock instrumentalist Mike Oldfield, whose "Tubular Bells" had played such an important function in the film The Exorcist, contributed an effective score to this Oscar-nominated film about Cambodia and the war-related horrors that have plagued the country over the past 20 years. The story of the friendship that binds an American journalist and the educated native who serves as his guide, the film focuses on the two men's journey through Khmer Rouge territory, their eventual arrest, and escape from a re-education camp in the Year Zero. Oldfield's score, an eerie mixture of electronic sounds (and tubular bells) augmented by a boys choir over an orchestral texture, seems like a necessary embellishment on the soundtrack. Away from the screen drama, it still conjure up images that may not all be related to the film itself but that are quite effective.

Kindergarten Cop

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Kindergarten Cop, Universal Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie, Mark McKenzie; Music Editor: Kathy Durning; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineer: Shawn Murphy, Elton Ahi.

Selections: 1 Astoria School Theme (1:07); 2 Children's Montage (3:22); 3 Love Theme (Joyce)(2:31); 4 Stalking Crisp

(3:40); 5 Dominic's Theme/A Rough Day (1:55); 6 The Line-Up/ Fireside Chat (2:57); 7 Rain Ride (1:56); 8 The Kindergarten Cop (1:27); 9 Poor Cindy/Gettysburg Address (2:07); 10 A Dinner Invitation (:48); 11 Love Theme Reprise (1:26); 12 A Magic Place (2:54); 13 Kimball Reveals The Truth (1:45); 14 The Tower/ Everything Is OK (2:30); 15 Fire At The School (5:40); 16 Closing (2:15).

Review: What a selling job Randy Edelman had—Schwarzenegger teaching kindergarten! But one listen to the sweet and gentle "Astoria School Theme" and you know he's succeeded in transforming "The Terminator" into a cream puff. The film does have its share of action music when Arnold acts like a cop ("Stalking Crisp," "Fire at the School"), but mostly breezes effectively through the upbeat comedic moments when he must perform his duties undercover as a teacher. Edelman performs the piano on the "Love Theme".

King Kong

1984, Southern Cross Records; from the movie King Kong, RKO Radio Pictures, 1933.

Album Notes: Music: Max Steiner; Orchestrations: Bernard Kaun, Christopher Palmer; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Fred Steiner; Album Producer: John Lasher; Engineers: Bob Auger, Joe Gastwirt.

Selections: 1 Main Title/A Boat In The Fog (3:37); 2 Forgotten Island/ Jungle Dance (4:50); 3 Sea At Night (2:23); 4 Aboriginal Sacrifice Dance (4:00); 5 Entrance Of Kong (4:18); 6 The Bronte/Log Sequence (4:34); 7 Cryptic Shadows (1:49); 8 Kong!/The Cave (9:30); 9 Sailors Waiting (1:33); 10 Return Of Kong (4:10); 11 King Kong Theatre March (1:30); 12 Kong Escapes/Aeroplanes/ Finale (4:40).

Review: The music for King Kong, is, in the words of Oscar Levant, "a Max Steiner concert illustrated by pictures," evidently an apt description of the importance of the score, the first of its kind ever written for a motion picture. An impressive achievement at the time, it continues to mesmerize by the sheer force of its musical power, particularly in this recording made in 1976, in which Fred Steiner (no relation to the composer) conducted the National Philharmonic Orchestra in a spirited reading of the score. Broadly dramatic and colorfully exotic, the music evokes the first and one of the best monster pictures ever made, with weird, dissonant chords contrasting pretty melodies for a multi-layered, effective score that endures.

King of Kings

1992, Sony Music; from the movie King of Kings, M-G-M, 1961.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The M-G-M Studio Orchestra, conducted by Miklos Rozsa; CD Producer: Dan Rivard.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:45); 2 Prelude (3:24); 3 Roman Legions (1:29); 4 Road To Bethlehem/Nativity (4:13); 5 Slaughter Of The Innocents (1:40); 6 Pilate's Arrival (2:42); 7 John The Baptist (1:26); 8 Revolt (2:39); 9 Temptation (4:40); 10 Herod's Feast (2:26); 11 Miracles (2:50); 12 Jugglers And Tumblers/ Herod's Desire (2:57); 13 Salome's Dance (1:45); 14 Mount Galilee/Sermon On The Mount (4:55); 15 The Lord's Prayer (2:38); 16 Entr'acte (4:20); 17 Jesus Enters Jerusalem (1:45); 18 Tempest In Judea/ Defeat/Phalanx (5:05); 19 The Feast Of Passover (2:53); 20 Gethsemane/ Agony In The Garden (3:44); 21 Scourging Of Christ/Crown Of Thorns (2:16); 22 Via Dolorosa (2:57); 23 Last Words Of Christ (1:28); 24 Pieta (2:49); 25 Resurrection (2:06); 26 Epilogue (2:08).

Review: Following Ben-Hur, Miklos Rozsa became known as the Hollywood composer best qualified to score Biblical films, a notion he could not dispel, despite the fact that he wrote King of Kings and El Cid almost back to back. Like Ben-Hur, however, King of Kings enabled the composer to write in an idiom in which he was by now thoroughly familiar, and in which he had pioneered the use of ancient instruments to give his music the authenticity he felt it needed. A dramatic retelling of the story of Christ, the film provided Rozsa with an extra difficulty, in that it covered essentially the same grounds the composer had already explored in Ben-Hur. Undaunted, Rozsa rose to the challenge and wrote a score which may not be up to the standards set by the previous film, but which exhibits nonetheless the same feelings of pious adoration and epic accents. This time, however, he relies on new Jewish themes to augment the Roman themes he had previously created for both Ben-Hur and Quo Vadis. In another significant departure, Rozsa also created a piece of 12-tone music to describe the temptation of Christ in the desert, the only time he wrote atonal music.

With its sweeping romantic themes and thrilling epic accents, the score is truly awe-inspiring, a splendid effort which ranks among Rozsa's most important contributions to the screen. As befits a score of this importance, the CD reissue includes many cues that were previously unreleased. The sound, however, leaves a lot to be desired. Frequently harsh and without the warmth usually associated with a good mastering job, it presents occasional distortion on some tracks, and overall uneven sonic qualities, and despite the claim that it is in stereo for the first time, some tracks are evidently in mono. These technical questions set aside, the CD is still a very important addition to any serious collection of film music.

King of the Wind

1990, JOS Records; from the movie King of the Wind, HTV International, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: John Scott; The Munich Studio Orchestra, conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineer: Bob Auger.

Selections: 1 The Birth Of Sham (2:51); 2 King Of The Wind (2:52); 3 The Royal Court At Tunis (2:48); 4 Race With Wild Horses (2:16); 5 Set Sail For France (2:40); 6 Death Of Ahmed (2:20); 7 Arrival In France (1:50); 8 Monsieur Richard: Chef Royale (1:08); 9 Agba And Sham At Versailles (1:08); 10 The Abduction Of Sham (4:44); 11 A New Life In England (2:00); 12 Sham Shows His Metal (1:20); 13 Death Of Coke (2:57); 14 Newgate Prison (3:18); 15 The Earl Of Godolphin (1:42); 16 Lord Granville (1:02); 17 Sham Fights For Roxanna (1:33); 18 Banishment To Hangman's Noose (3:16); 19 A Letter From Hannah (2:08); 20 The Newmarket Races (2:40); 21 Winning The King's Plate (3:07); 22 The Godolphin Arabian (End Titles)(3:16).

Review: The story of a mute Arab boy called Agba and a horse called Sham, and their adventures as they journey from Tunis to England in the early 18th century, King of the Wind gave John Scott a colorful tale and diversified background to write a score that is quite unusual. As exotic as the story itself and as complex as the many elements that constitute it, the cues follow the saga of the two friends through North Africa, across the Mediterranean Sea, and to the court of Louis XV. Further misadventures occur in England where Agba is imprisoned and Lath, the son of Sham, wins the King's Cup at Newmarket and becomes the forebear of the English racing thoroughbreds.

Strikingly evocative of the many territories covered, and the events that occur, the music is in turn Arabic and baroque, romantic and epic, with some pulse-racing moments in-between. The various cues explore all these elements in depth, in a brilliant musical tapestry that weaves its own tale. Among the striking cues assembled in this album, "Race with Wild Horses," "The Abduction of Sham," "The Earl of Godolphin," "The Newmarket Races," and "Winning the King's Plate" are notably effective, but the entire score is melodically outstanding.

King Rat

1995, Legacy Records/Sony Music Entertainment; from the movie King Rat, Columbia Pictures, 1965.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Chris Herles

Selections: 1 King Rat March (3:03); 2 Main Title (4:05); 3 Tuned In At Changi (1:58); 4 Just As You Were (3:13); 5 There Is A Radio In This Hut (3:29); 6 Just As You Were (2:43); 7 Touch And Go (2:57); 8 Grey's Day (3:57); 9 Just As You Were (2:14); 10 The Recovery Of Marlowe (3:17); 11 The End Is At Hand (1:44); 12 King Rat March (2:03).

Review: For director Bryan Forbes' dark film about prisoners of war confined in the notorious Japanese Changi Prison on Singapore Island, John Barry created a unique score which utilized unusual instrumentation and orchestration—techniques that effectively convey the images of humans involved in a struggle for survival in a completely oppressive, horrendous environment. The sparseness of the musical theme and the texture Barry achieves through careful use of exotic percussion instruments painfully underscores the glum tenseness of the plot, and serve to make this one of his most unusual and intriguing film works. The recording, newly remastered, is excellent.

King Solomon's Mines

1991, Intrada Records; from the movie King Solomon's Mines, Cannon Films, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; The Hungarian State Opera Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Mike Ross.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:26); 2 Welcoming Committee (:48); 3 No Sale (3:22); 4 The Mummy (1:10); 5 Have A Cigar (3:24); 6 Good Morning (2:23); 7 Under The Train (2:57); 8 Dancing Shots (3:25); 9 Pain (2:54); 10 Forced Flight (5:05); 11 The Chieftain (:58); 12 Pot Luck (3:30); 13 Upside Down People (4:44); 14 The Crocodiles (2:56); 15 The Mines (1:20); 16 The Ritual: Low Bridge (9:02); 17 Falling Rocks (4:05); 18 No Diamonds (4:07).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's broad and elaborate satire of Raiders of the Lost Ark will test your tolerance for large-scale action cues and hyperkinetic heroic fanfares as it clatters along with over an hour of hammering, non-stop adventure music. It will drive some listeners crazy, but if you're a fan of Goldsmith's action material you won't want to miss this effort, which was the composer's last completely orchestral score until 1996's First Knight. Goldsmith's bracingly old-fashioned opening cue makes brilliant use of African rhythmic effects, while the rest of the score mixes a broad take-off of Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries" with some of the most spectacular over-the-top, brassy action writing the composer has ever produced. It's not to be taken seriously but it's certainly a far more enjoyable romp than the film itself.

Kings Go Forth/ Some Came Running

1992, Cloud Nine Records, from the movies Kings Go Forth, United Artists, 1958, and Some Came Running, M-G-M, 1959

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestras conducted by Elmer Bernstein.

Selections: KINGS GO FORTH: 1 Kings Go Forth (2:11); 2 The Riviera (4:01); 3 Monique's Theme (1:27); 4 The Bunker (2:07); 5 Sam's Theme (1:40); 6 Sam And Monique (4:43); 7 Sam's Return (4:25); 8 Monique's Theme (1:27); 9 Le Chat Noir (2:55); 10 Quiet Drive (1:10); 11 Britt's Kiss (3:19); 12 Monique's Despair (3:18); 13 Displaced (4:15); 14 Finale (2:55);

SOME CAME RUNNING: 15 Prelude To Some Came Running (1:17); 16 To Love And Be Loved (2:30); 17 Dave's Double Life (2:01); 18 Dave And Gwen (1:52); 19 Fight (1:26); 20 Gwen's Theme (2:35); 21 Ginny (3:18); 22 Short Noise (1:49); 23 Live It Up (1:30); 24 Tryst (2:36); 25 Seduction (2:39); 26 Smitty's Place (2:32); 27 Rejection (2:44); 28 Pursuit (4:42); 29 Finale (2:24).

Review: While neither the scores for Kings Go Forth or Some Came Running ever had the commercial success of many other film compositions by Elmer Bernstein, they remain an important part of the composer's canon, and are of particular interest within the realm of the work of the films' star, Frank Sinatra.

With Kings Go Forth (set in war-torn Italy, circa 1944), Bernstein's task was to musically portray a love triangle between a sensuous femme (Natalie Wood), and two American soldiers enjoying a well-deserved furlough on the French Riviera (Frank Sinatra and Tony Curtis). As always, his music hits the mark, bringing a combination of dramatic themes and romantic interludes together to effectively depict the tensions of battle, and the relationship between the three main characters. The sound on this portion of the disc is monophonic.

The plot of Some Came Running is also cursed by a love triangle, however in this instance the setting is a small home town, instead of the European battlefront. The themes demand a dark, tragic overtone (Sinatra's character is a cynical, brooding type), and, once again, Bernstein deftly achieves this through the careful use of strings, sax, piano and percussion to create a bluesy, dissonant atmosphere that perfectly heightens the sense of gloom and despair. The score, which contains jazz-tinged pieces reminiscent of Bernstein's work for another Sinatra film, The Man with the Golden Arm and some utterly dramatic selections, is certainly one of the composer's most underrated efforts. It is heard here in full stereo.

It is interesting to note that both films yielded themes that went unsung by Sinatra on the screen, yet enjoyed commercial vocal recordings by the singer—"Monique" from Kings Go Forth, and "To Love and be Loved" from Some Came Running.

Kings Row

Album Notes: Music: Erich Wolfgang Korngold; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Charles Gerhardt; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: Robert Auger; CD Producers: Tom Null, Chris Kuchler; Engineer: Danny Hersch.

Selections: 1 Main Title/The Children (Parris and Cassie)/ Parris And Grandmother/Cassie's Party/Icehouse Operation/ Cassie's Farewell/Parris Goes To Dr. Tower/Winter/Grandmother's Last Will/Seduction/All Is Quiet/Grandmother Dies/ Sunset (23:38); 2 Parris Leaves Kings Row/Flirtation/Vienna And Happy New Year 1900/Dandy And Drake/Financial Ruin/ Accident And Amputation/Drake Awakens/Vienna/Cable/ Randy And Drake/Letters Across The Ocean/Parris Come Back/Kings Row/Elise/Parris' Decision/Finale (24:31).

Review: Even though he only composed 19 scores during the time he spent in Hollywood between 1935 and 1947, Erich Wolfgang Korngold made a profoundly indelible impression on film music which can still be felt on the scores created today. But while he is best remembered for the swashbucklers like The Adventures of Robin Hood or The Sea Hawk, for which he became justifiably famous, some of his other efforts, notably his music for Kings Row, are equally noteworthy.

Based on a popular novel by Henry Bellamann about life in a small town at the turn of the century, the film, starring Ronald Reagan, Robert Cummings and Ann Sheridan, is an engrossing drama covering several years in the life of his main protagonists, from childhood to adulthood, and the many changes they go through as their world is being transformed around them. Taking a cue from the story, Korngold delivers one of his most serene and affecting scores, in a superb display of his craft, with many leitmotifs detailing the various characters in the film and their interactions.

While not as flamboyant as some of his other creations, Kings Row is best remembered today for its main theme, a striking epic tune which Korngold composed before he had a chance to read the script, mistakenly thinking that the "King" in the title referred to another cape-and-dagger yarn. The recording, produced by the composer's son, and lovingly detailed by the National Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Charles Gerhardt, is essential.

Knight Moves Woof

1992, Milan Records; from the movie Knight Moves, Republic Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Anne Dudley; Orchestrations: Anne Dudley; The Pro Arte Orchestra of London, conducted by Anne Dudley; Featured Musicians: Phil Todd (saxophone), Anne Dudley (keyboards), Andy Pask (bass), Harold Fisher (drums), Luis Jardim (percussion); Album Producer: Anne Dudley; Engineer: Roger Dudley.

Selections: 1 I Put A Spell On You (3:25) Carol Kenyon; 2 1972 Washington State Chess Tournament (7:09); 3 Looking For Connections (1:52); 4 I Used A Variation (1:38); 5 The Shadow Of The Castle (2:19); 6 If You Met Him Could You Tell? (:58); 7 The Game Continues (1:47); 8 They Found The Third Girl (2:29); 9 The Prince Of Darkness (1:47); 10 The Tarakoss Opening (2:11); 11 You're Starting To Make Mistakes (:51); 12 You Like To Play Games Don't You (:51); 13 He'll Kill Again (3:51); 14 You Have No Idea What I Am (2:15); 15 Remember/Eventually Revenge (:56); 16 The Game's Over (3:50); 17 Fool That I Am (3:50) Carol Kenyon.

Review: Mindless collection of synthesized noises (including ambient sound effects) with no distinct melody or musical direction. Anne Dudley has the nerve to claim she composed, orchestrated and conducted this repetitive mess. Not nearly as exciting as watching paint dry. Best used by the F.B.I. to force militiamen out of their compounds by repetitive performance.

Knights of the Round Table

1983, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Knights Of The Round Table, M-G-M, 1953.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The M-G-M Studio Orchestra, conducted by Muir Mathieson; Album Producers: Harry Lojewski, Tony Thomas; CD Producers: Tom Null, Richard Kraft; Engineer: Daniel Hersch.

Selections: 1 Prelude – Mordred's Plot/Lancelot Meets Elaine, Lancelot Meets Arthur/Chivalry, First Battle, Sanctus/Cortege/Alleluia, Hawking (20:31); 2 Departure/Pict Battle/Return, Distant Thoughts And Dreams, The Death Of Arthur/Resignation, To The Death/Finale and End Title (19:57); Lydia (piano suite): 3 Love Theme (1:59); 4 Bubbling Stars (1:25); 5 Sleighride (1:49); 6 Waltz (2:59); 7 The Sea (2:14); 8 Farewell (3:18); 9 Concerto (Four Hands)(2:28) Albert Dominguez.

Review: Knights of the Round Table reunited composer Miklos Rozsa with the star, Robert Taylor, and the creative staff, director Richard Thorpe and producer Pandro S. Berman, who had presided over the success of Ivanhoe, two years before. But while this big screen epic retelling of the legend of King Arthur, based on Sir Thomas Mallory's Le Morte d'Arthur, seems to have everything going for it, its characters don't exhibit the spirit and dash of those in the previous film. There is quite a few scenes of battles and jousts to delight fans of the medieval epic genre, spectacularly filmed in CinemaScope, but the pageantry seems to lose some of its shine next to this story about the alleged infidelities of Queen Guinevere, smitten by the handsome Lancelot du Lac, and the web of deceit and villainy which her enemies, the malevolent Sir Mordred and the baleful Morgan Le Fay, spin around her.

True to form, Rozsa nonetheless delivered a score that has all the elements of bravura needed for this handsome spectacle, creating cues that cover every ground in the story, from the exciting battle scenes to the romantic sweep of the love scenes to the religious overtones that permeate some of the most inspirational moments in the medieval tale. The recording, an early transfer from the 1953 stereo master tapes, generally lacks warmth and would benefit from a better EQ to correct its harsh, hollow sound. The CD also contains a piano suite from Lydia, a 1941 drama starring Merle Oberon as an older woman reunited after 35 years with the inconsistent lover who deserted her.

1992, SCSE Records; from the movie Krull, Columbia Pictures, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: James Horner, Greig McRitchie; The London Symphony Orchestra and The Ambrosian Singers, conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: John Richards; CD Producer: Douglass Fake; CD Engineer: Robert Vosgien.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Colwyn's Arrival (7:34); 2 Slayer's Attack (9:17); 3 Quest For The Glaive (7:22); 4 The Seer's Vision (2:17); 5 The Battle In The Swamp (2:40); 6 Quicksand (3:37); 7

Leaving The Swamp (1:59); 8 The Widow's Web (6:17); 9 Colwyn And Lyssa (Love Theme)(2:34); 10 The Widow's Lullaby (5:01); 11 Ynyr's Death (1:39); 12 Riding The Fire Mares (5:21); 13 Battle On The Parapets (2:52); 14 Inside The Black Fortress (6:14); 15 Death Of The Beast/Destruction Of The Black Fortress (8:33); 16 Epilogue And End Credits (4:52).

Review: A fantasy tale of epic proportions about a young prince and the maiden-in-distress he has to rescue from a malevolent Beast and its dark forces before the closing titles, Krull exhibits all the swashbuckling ingredients dear to fans of the genre, including an impressive score composed for the occasion by James Horner, in one of his earliest efforts in this field. Using the huge forces at his disposal, the London Symphony Orchestra, one of the best orchestras in the world for this type of music, the Ambrosian Singers, another respected group, and the discrete contribution of synthesizers to add extra texture to his score, Horner created cues that underline the sweep of this sword-and-sorcery saga, in bold, exciting strokes. Many moments in this recording, an expanded version containing many selections that were previously unavailable, reveal the composer's genuine feel for the genre, an impression he confirmed in later years, with grand themes that unfold with all the power and majesty usually associated with this kind of musical expression.

La Bamba

Selections: 1 La Bamba (2:54) Los Lobos; 2 Come On, Let's Go (1:58) Los Lobos; 3 Ooh! My Head (1:43) Los Lobos; 4 We Belong Together (1:58) Los Lobos; 5 Framed (2:33) Los Lobos; 6 Donna (2:19) Los Lobos; 7 Lonely Teardrops (3:27) Howard Huntsberry; 8 Crying, Waiting, Hoping (2:20) Marshall Crenshaw; 9 Summertime Blues (2:40) Brian Setzer; 10 Who Do You Love (3:00) Bo Diddley; 11 Charlena (2:45) Los Lobos; 12 Goodnight My Love (3:16) Los Lobos

Review: O.K., so it's a little weird that this soundtrack from a film about the late Richie Valens doesn't include a single performance by him, nor is there a single songwriting credit for him in the booklet. That's legalities, for you. But if anyone is going to fill his spot, it should be Los Lobos, who do a masterful job on all of his hits and scored a smash of their own with the title track. But don't overlook ace performances by Marshall Crenshaw on Buddy Holly's "Crying, Waiting, Hoping," Brian Setzer on Eddie Cochran's "Summertime Blues," and Howard Huntsberry on Jackie Wilson's "Lonely Teardrops."

La belle et la bete

1996, Marco Polo Records; from the movie La belle et la bete, Gaumont Films, 1946.

Album Notes: Music: Georges Auric; The Moscow Symphony Orchestra and the Axios Chorus, conducted by Adriano; Album Producer: Betta International; Engineers: Edvard Shakhnazarian, Vitaly Ivanonv.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:04); 2 Beauty And Avenant (1:26); 3 In The Forest (3:16); 4 The Banquet Hall (3:36); 5 The Theft Of A Rose (1:49); 6 The Merchant's Return (1:00); 7 Beauty's Departure (1:38); 8 Mysterious Corridors (3:38); 9 Appearance Of The Beast (1:39); 10 In The Bedroom (1:19); 11 The Dinner (3:40); 12 Frightful Moments (4:14); 13 The Draper's Prank (2:52); 14 Conversations In The Park (4:01); 15 The Promise (2:07); 16 Beast's Jealousy (1:30); 17 Love's Despair (1:39); 18 The Five Secrets (4:04); 19 The Waiting (2:08); 20 Avenant's Proposal (1:26); 21 The Mirror And The Glove (3:30); 22 Diana's Pavilion (4:17); 23 Prince Charming (2:51); 24 Flying Upwards (2:23).

Review: French composer Georges Auric's music for Jean Cocteau's 1946 French version of Beauty and the Beast is sumptuously classical. In the early scenes in the haunted forest and in the Beast's castle, the music takes on a darker tonality. But much of the score, quiet and static, is delicate—non-moving figures and chords emphasizing the unusualness of the setting and the events, which contrast nicely with those moments when Auric lets loose with audible energy. At times, the music takes on an almost balletic quality, equally as impressionistic as Cocteau's direction and the marvelous sets designed by Christian Berard. Throughout, a choir is used to emphasize the monstrous nature of the Beast, echoing emotions he is unable to verbalize. The CD contains the complete score, including those cues deleted from either or both the American and French prints of the film. A 16-page booklet is included with plenty of black-and-white photos and notes on the film, the music, and the composer.

La dolce vita

1991, CAM Records; from the movie, La dolce vita, Cineriz Films, 1959.

Selections: 1 Main Title (5:08); 2 La dolce vita (a) Arrivederci Roma (R. Rascel/G. Garinei/G. Giovannini), (b) Caracolla's/La Bersagliera (5:41); 3 La dolce vita: Via Veneto (1:35); 4 Patricia (P. Prado)/Canzonetta/ Entrance Of The Gladiators/Waltz (3:45); 5 Lola/Yes Sir, That's My Baby (W. Donaldson)/ Waltz/ Stormy Weather (H. Arlen/T. Koehler)(4:22); 6 Via Veneto And The Nobles (1:23); 7 Blues (The "dolce vita" Of The Nobles) (5:42); 8 Nocturne Or Early Morning (1:30); 9 La dolce vita (3:01); 10 La dolce vita At The Villa di Fregene: Can Can/Jingle Bells/Blues/La dolce vita (6:21); 11 Why Wait (2:58).

Review: While they worked together before and subsequently, La dolce vita is the closest Federico Fellini and Nino Rota ever came to creating a film in which the images and the music are so intimately interwoven. In fact, it now seems difficult to separate one from the other, as the cues devised by the composer matched so beautifully the suggestive power of the film's best remembered scenes, from the dissonant three-note motif in "Via Veneto," to the wistful trumpet solo in "Lola," to the bluesy "La dolce vita dei nobili," with its organ counterpoint, to its wild Latin take on the Christmas standard "Jingle Bells." Truly a momentous film steeped in its own time period but as exciting today as it was at the time, La dolce vita yielded one of the most memorable soundtracks in Rota's extraordinarily active and prolific career. One word of warning: even though this CD claims that it was remastered in Dolby Surround, it is obviously a transfer from LP source, a fact confirmed by the apparent surface noise on some of the quieter selections.

La Femme Nikita

1990, Varese Sarabande; from the movie La Femme Nikita, Gaumont Films, 1990.

Review: Today, Eric Serra is perhaps better known in this country for his scores for GoldenEye and The Fifth Element, two efforts that called attention to his talent as a composer. In France, where his music for Luc Besson's Le grand bleu and La Femme Nikita have made him a household name, he is considered one of the most important film composers of the new generation. His artistic merits notwithstanding (his score for GoldenEye was roundly panned), there is no denying the feel that emanates from his contributions, in which the extensive use of synthesizers give a definite accent to his music. Nowhere is this more evident than in La Femme Nikita, a techno-pop effort with heavy-layered synthesizer melodies, set against various percussive effects that range from electronic drumming to finger-snapping. The music itself is meant to create an atmosphere that echoes the moods of this cloak-and-dagger story about a strikingly attractive criminal recruited by a secret government agency to carry off dangerous missions, including the elimination of enemies from the "other" side. Characteristic of Serra's contributions, the cues often match the screen action, but turn out to be dry and austere in a musical environment. They fail to really grab one's interest when taken on their own terms, though "The Last Time I Kiss You," an all-too-brief simple melody on the piano, makes a different and much more attractive statement.

Labyrinth

1986, EMI America; from the movie Labyrinth, 1986.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles (D. Bowie/T. Jones)(3:18) David Bowie; 2 Into The Labyrinth (2:10); 3 Magic Dance (D. Bowie) (5:11) David Bowie; 4 Sarah (3:10); 5 Chilly Down (D. Bowie) (3:44) David Bowie; 6 Hallucination (3:00); 7 As The World Falls Down (D. Bowie)(4:49) David Bowie; 8 The Goblin Battle (3:29); 9 Within You (D. Bowie)(3:29) David Bowie; 10 Thirteen O'Clock (3:06); 11 Home At Last (1:46); 12 Underground (D. Bowie) (5:57) David Bowie.

Review: Five new David Bowie songs are the selling point for this album, and none of them have popped up on any of his various career retrospectives – an indication of how crucial they are, even though Bowie was in the midst of a major commercial renaissance at the time. It's worth noting that he collaborated on these with lush popmaster Arif Mardin, and Bowie has always done better work with edgier, more adventurous cohorts.

Review: While this soundtrack album is probably best thought of as a Diana Ross album, the singer, portraying the great Billie Holiday in her screen debut, is only heard in about half the selections, arguably the best tracks here and the hits associated with her screen persona. Whether Ross was actually suited to impersonate Holiday is a matter better left to others, who may debate if the film should have emphasized Ross interpreting Holiday, rather than Ross as Holiday. The fact remains that Diana Ross did a most commendable job as an actress, and actually performed the songs created by Holiday with the passion and gusto that seemed required. Of course the styles of both singers are quite different, and where Holiday was more conversant in jazz, Ross' forte is pop and soul, a nuance that will more or less dictate where the listener's own reaction to the album may be.

The rest of the album, with a few exceptions, consists of instrumental selections written by Michel Legrand, often reduced to their simplest expression and masked by chunks of dialogue taken from the soundtrack, something of a disservice to a composer with an impressive track record. As a result, the rating here refers to Ross and her performance, and not to Legrand's contribution.

Ladyhawke

1995, GNP Crescendo; from the movie Ladyhawke, Warner Bros./20th Century-Fox, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Andrew Powell; Orchestrations: Andrew Powell; Orchestra conducted by Andrew Powell; Album Producer/Engineer: Alan Parsons.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:59); 2 Phillippe's Escape (1:40); 3 The Search For Phillippe (3:25); 4 Tavern Fight (Phillippe) (2:08); 5 Tavern Fight (Navarre) (2:38); 6 Pitou's Woods (4:04); 7 Phillippe Describes Isabeau (1:11); 8 Bishop Procession (2:50); 9 Wedding Music (1:41); 10 Navarre's Ambush (4:53); 11 Imperius Removes Arrow (1:33); 12 Chase/Fall/ Transformation (2:06); 13 Cesar's Woods (5:29); 14 She Was Sad At First (2:06); 15 Navarre Returns To Aquila (1:36); 16 Turret Chase/ The Fall (Film Version) (2:46); 17 Wolf Trapped In Ice (2:34); 18 Navarre And Isabeau's Dual Transformation (3:23); 19 Navarre And Marquet Duel (4:22); 20 Marquet's Death (1:59); 21 Bishop's Death (2:26); 22 Final Reunion/End Title (8:14); 23 Ladyhawke Theme (Single Version)(3:35).

Review: Andrew Powell's robust and energetic soundtrack for Richard Donner's romantic medieval adventure might sound dated to some with its very '80s synths, but most listeners aren't going to care. A powerful outing with memorable themes and enough passion to fill up several ordinary soundtracks, Ladyhawke is a stirring effort marked by potent orchestral passages, many of which are being heard on this expanded soundtrack CD for the first time. In fact, the music's then-contemporary roots are much less evident when listening to the entire score now than from the most egregiously "pop" sections memory instantly recalls. Producer Alan Parsons assisted Powell on the music's production, resulting in a score that's unabashedly romantic and melodramatic, a listener favorite that has weathered the years better than one might expect.

Land and Freedom

1995, DRG Records; from the movie Land and Freedom, Gramercy Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: George Fenton; Orchestrations: George Fenton; Orchestra conducted by George Fenton; Featured Musician: Anthony Pleeth (cello); Album Producers: George Fenton, Eliza Thompson; Engineer: Paul Hulme.

Selections: 1 Opening Credits: Land And Freedom (3:02); 2 No pasaran (2:24); 3 Journey To The Front (2:21); 4 Blanca's Theme (1:51); 5 The Common Cause (2:06); 6 Coogan's Funeral (1:21); 7 Taking The Village (5:43); 8 Divided (2:36); 9 Execution (2:16); 10 Consolation (2:10); 11 Leaving Barcelona (1:51); 12 The Attack (3:47); 13 Between The Bullet And The Lie (2:36); 14 Going Home (3:10); 15 The Price Of Freedom (1:25); 16 The Fight Goes On (:42); 17 Land And Freedom Main Title, Parts 1 & 2 (2:32).

Review: A sweeping contemporary drama set in the early days of the Spanish Civil War, Land and Freedom follows the personal saga of a young factory worker from Liverpool who goes to Spain in 1936 to fight fascism, only to find the Republicans bitterly divided into rival groups. Once he gets involved, he find himself torn between his loyalty to the Communist Party and the militia whom he has joined, with tragic consequences that result when he has to take sides. Adding strength to this personal struggle and the broader conflict in the background, George Fenton's music is at once eloquent and evocative. In contrast to the turmoil in the narrative, the score is mostly lyrical in its expression and seems at first understated, but eventually emerges as greatly powerful as a result. Songs from the period in Spanish add the right ethnic color to the soundtrack.

The Land Before Time

1988, MCA Records; from the animated feature The Land Before Time, Universal Picture, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Music Editor: Jim Henrickson; The London Symphony Orchestra and The King's College Choir, conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 The Great Migration (7:49); 2 Sharptooth And The Earthquake (10:33); 3 Whispering Winds (9:00); 4 If We Hold On Together (J. Horner/W. Jennings)(4:07) Diana Ross; 5 Foraging For Food (7:15); 6 The Rescue/ Discovery Of The Great Valley (12:43); 7 End Credits (6:22).

Review: Though the recording only contains six tracks of instrumental cues, the long playing time of these selections enables the music to evolve and gradually make its impact, providing the listener with better parameters to enjoy it and formulate an opinion than if the cues were shorter. The result is a score which, though written for an animated feature and possibly deemed a minor exercise because of it, is wonderful. It's filled with inventive melodic themes that involve the participation of various solo instruments, a large choir, and the vivid orchestral colors of the London Symphony. Horner, a master at this type of music, seems to know intuitively how to use each element in this broad canvas to come up with a music that is solidly attractive and consistently fun to listen to. In this context, it matters little if the music fits the narrative, or how it serves it. Judged on its own merits it does what any good score should do—provide hours of listening delight and invite repeat performances.

Larger Than Life

1996, Milan Records; from the movie Larger Than Life, United Artists, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Miles Goodman; Orchestrations: Oscar Castro-Neves; Music Editor: Nancy Fogarty; Orchestra conducted by Miles Goodman; Album Producers: Miles Goodman, Joel Moss; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: 1 Life Is A Carnival (R. Robertson/L. Helm/R. Danko) (3:56) The Band; 2 Psycho (L. Payne) (3:32) Jack Kittel; 3 Main Title (2:28); 4 Salad Bar (1:47); 5 Dad's Trunk (2:18); 6 Flying Elephant (3:31); 7 An Elephant Miracle (2:03); 8 Airport Chase (2:58); 9 Swimming (2:19); 10 The Magnificent Seven Theme (E. Bernstein) (2:46); 11 The Blue Danube (J. Strauss)(3:05).

Review: Sadly, this outrageous Bill Murray comedy about a man and the elephant he takes on a cross-country trip, was the last film composer Miles Goodman scored before he passed away at the age of 47. Goodman, an accomplished film composer and record producer, left a scant recorded legacy even though he wrote the scores for more than 35 films. Stylistically, his music is enjoyably lightweight and makes few demands on the intellect, though it proves suitably charming and melodious. The seven selections found here under his name denote a flair for broad comedy underscoring, with "Salad Bar," a rousing rag, "Flying Elephant," a brassy anthem, and "Airport Chase," a fast-paced ditty, among the most inspired moments.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Music Editor: Curtis Roush; The London Metropolitan Orchestra, conducted by Allan Wilson; Featured Soloist: Sally Haeth (piano); Album Producer: Basil Poledouris; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Lassie: Main Title (1:55); 2 Accident (3:14); 3 Morning Glory (2:27); 4 The Diary/Wolf Attack (4:58); 5 New Beginnings (2:51); 6 Commitment (2:40); 7 Lassie Protects The Herd (2:53); 8 Rustling (3:05); 9 Lassie Saves Matt (10:25); 10 Return/Reunion (3:20).

Review: The exploits of Lassie over the years have provided ample fodder for a stream of countless films and television series. Even though this new big screen incarnation didn't break any new grounds, with the notorious collie facing new challenges in the Virginia wild and overcoming them with its usual resolve,it enabled Basil Poledouris to write a score that sounds at times more important than its subject matter deserved. An old hand at this type of music, the composer essentially let the narrative dictate the direction his music would take. Low key, romantic themes line some of the story's quieter moments, while broad, dramatic cues accompany the action scenes, as an occasional theme for piano and orchestra make a different statement. Put together, it's quite effective and pleasantly attractive.

Last Action Hero

1993, Columbia Records; from the movie Last Action Hero, Columbia Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Orchestrations: William Ross, Jack Hayes, Brad Warnaar, Randy Kerber, Lolita Ritmanis, Danny Troob, Michael McCuistion, Jonathan Sacks; Music Editor: Eric Reasoner; The Los Angeles All-Stars Orchestra and The Los Angeles Rock and Roll Ensemble, conducted by Michael Kamen; Featured Musicians: Michael Kamen (oboe/keyboards), Buckethead, Chris DeGarmo, John Goux, Frank Simes, Rick Nielsen, John Shanks, Jerry Cantrell (guitar), Guy Pratt, Mike Inez, Mike Baird, Tom Petersson (bass), Scott Rockenfield (drums); Album Producers: Michael Kamen, Stephen McLaughlin, Christopher Brooks; Engineers: Bobby Fernandez, Andrew Warwick, Sue McLean.

Selections: 1 Jack And The Ripper (3:48); 2 Danny (4:24); 3 Jack Hamlet (1:14); 4 River Chase (2:49); 5 Benedict (2:46); 6 Practice (4:18); 7 Leo The Fart (4:33); 8 Benedict Gets The Ticket (3:20); 9 The Real World (3:44); 10 Premiere (3:20); 11 Saving Danny (1:39); 12 Big Mistake (4:51).

Review: The generally unfavorable reaction to this big screen adventure film starring Arnold Schwatzenegger, might have cast an unfair pall over the various ingredients in the movie, including Michael Kamen's original score. In keeping with the modern tones of this wild fantasy, about a kid who joins his favorite film hero and shares his on-screen adventures, Kamen wrote a series of themes that are solidly embedded in the contemporary rock tradition which are performed on the soundtrack and the album by various rock musicians, like Rick Neilson and Tom Petersson of Cheap Trick, Mike Inez and Jerry Cantrell of Alice in Chains, Chris DeGarmo of Queensryche, and Buckethead. Played against the structural canvas provided by a large orchestra, the selections throb with great energy and skill, some like "River Chase" and "Saving Danny," making a particularly strong impression.

The Last Butterfly

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Last Butterfly, HTV Films, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North, Milan Svoboda; The Prague Film Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Mario Klemens, Stepan Konicek; Musicians: The Prague Jazzfonic Orchestra: Milan Svoboda (piano), Vaclav Sykora (bass recorder), Ivan Zeaty (violin), Vida Skalska, Hana Hegerova (vocals); Album Producers: Robert Townson, Steven North; Engineer: Jiri Kriz.

Selections: 1 Main Title (A. North) (2:01); 2 Antoine's New Digs (A. North) (:27); 3 Foxtrot In Cabaret (M. Svoboda) (1:33); 4 Mr. Grondin Pantomime (M. Svoboda) (1:07); 5 Antoine's Playoff Music (M. Svoboda) (1:10); 6 Michelle's Demise (A. North) (:37); 7 The Flashback (A. North) (:19); 8 The Nightmare Begins (A. North) (1:23); 9 The Gordian Knot (H. Purcell) (1:22); 10 Afternoon Coffee (M. Svoboda) (3:19); 11 Things Don't, People Do (A. North) (:21); 12 Avinu Malkenu (Yiddish Song) (3:28); 13 Snow White Ballet (M. Svoboda) (3:23); 14 Signs Of Spring (A. North/M. Princi) (1:41); 15 The Hit (M. Svoboda) (2:44); 16 Butterfly (A. North) (2:51); 17 The Red Umbrella (A. North) (:24); 18 Ocarina Yiddish Dance (M. Svoboda) (:49); 19 Save Stella (A. North) (:42); 20 The Last Performance (A. North) (1:15); 21 Hansel And Gretel Ballet (M. Svoboda) (6:02); 22 Lulinka (Yiddish Song) (2:18); 23 End Title (A. North) (4:24).

Review: One of the grand masters of film music, Alex North wrote one of his last scores for this quirky European production, starring Tom Courtney in one of his most unusual screen roles. At times poignantly dramatic, at times exuberantly elegiac, the cues created by North reveal that the composer, aged 80 at the time he composed this score, had lost none of his verve or his creative energy. While songs like "Michelle's Demise," "The Flashback," and "The Red Umbrella," too short to make more than a passing impact, might be considered charming musical miniatures at best, others like "Main Title," "Butterfly," "The Last Performance," and "End Title" are sufficiently expanded to make a stronger impression and show the composer at his best. North's selections are supplemented by original compositions written and performed by Milan Svoboda in a standard jazz style that will seem old-fashioned but which has its attractive merits.

Last Dance

1996, Hollywood Records; from the movie Last Dance, Touchstone Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Orchestrations: Ken Kugler; Music Editor: Craig Pettigrew; The London Metropolitan Orchestra, conducted by Ken Kugler; Featured Musicians: David Goldblatt (piano), Sally Dworsky (voice), Mark Isham (electronics); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineer: Stephen Krause.

Selections: 1 Last Dance (2:42); 2 Twenty-three And One Half Hours A Day (2:48); 3 What Do You Have To Lose? (2:40); 4 Keep Your Distance (1:32); 5 Last Dance (reprise)(2:34); 6 Nothing Except Justice (2:02); 7 The Killing Machine (3:18); 8 Almost The Girl Next Door (1:52); 9 Death Warrant (2:01); 10 We'll Always Be Brother And Sister (3:50); 11 On My Terms (1:37); 12 His Sole Power (1:09); 13 Taj Mahal (5:59).

Review: A crime drama, starring Sharon Stone as a murderess on death row who gets an eleventh hour reprieve after a young lawyer on the review board detects a flaw in her conviction, Last Dance got a provocative and appropriately somber score from Mark Isham, who delves into a contemporary field in which he is totally confident and comfortable. The attractive main theme ("Last Dance") with its broad orchestral lines, over which a piano and a wordless vocalist trade occasional riffs, is quite catchy and satisfyingly anchors the whole score. "On My Terms," a self-assertive comment made by Sharon Stone who demands to die when she wants to, "because that's all I've left," is also a poignant statement, admirably expressed in Isham's underscoring.

The Last Emperor

1987, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie The Last Emperor, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Ryuichi Sakamoto, David Byrne, Cong Su; Album Producer: Ryuichi Sakamoto; Mixing Engineer: Steve Nye; Engineers: Shigeru Takise, Shinichi Tanaka, Mike Jarrat, Haydn Bendall; Album Producer: David Byrne; Engineer: Clive Martin.

Selections: THE LAST EMPEROR (R. SAKAMOTO): 1 First Coronation (1:47); 2 Open The Door (2:54); 3 Where Is Armo? (2:26); 4 Picking Up Brides (2:40); 5 The Last Emperor—Theme Variation 1 (2:19); 6 Rain (I Want A Divorce) (1:49); 7 The Baby (Was Born Dead)(:56); 8 The Last Emperor—Theme Variation 2 (4:29); 9 The Last Emperor—Theme (5:54);

THE LAST EMPEROR (D. BYRNE): 10 Main Title Theme (4:01); 11 Picking A Bride (2:00); 12 Bed (5:01); 13 Wind, Rain And Water (2:19); 14 Paper Emperor (1:48); 15 Lunch (C. Su)(4:54) Cong Su; 16 Red Guard (trad.)(1:21) The Red Guard Accordion Band; 17 The Emperor's Waltz (J. Strauss)(3:07) The Ball Orchestra of Vienne, Leopold Schnell; 18 The Red Guard Dance (trad.)(:39) The Girls Red Guard Dancers.

Review: The Last Emperor musically is a strange bird. Bernardo Bertolucci's film chronicled the life of China's last emperor—from ascending the Imperial throne at the age of three in the Forbidden City, through revolution and war and his eventual life as a gardener—and it's pretty enchanting. Japanese composer Ryuichi Sakamoto (also an actor in the film), occasional film contributor David Byrne, and the mysterious

Cong Su won an Oscar for their efforts, but hardly seem to have worked together. The lion's share of the music is by Sakamoto, whose style blends Chinese gestures with accessible melodies. His themes are deeply romantic, sometimes melodramatic, characterizing the opulence, mystery and ultimate sadness of the emperor's life. They also brim with a very western symphonic flavor, casting an epic scope upon the story, and recalling a time when western culture was admired around the world for its luxury and inventiveness.

David Byrne's five tracks on the album include the insidiously catchy "Main Title," which is probably what won the score its Oscar, and more intimate synth-and-Chinese-instruments cues for life inside the Forbidden City. There is one track from Cong Su—who now has the same number of Oscars as Bernard Herrmann and Jerry Goldsmith—a bit of traditional Chinese plinking and plunking. Two communist sing-alongs and a Strauss waltz round out this unusual but memorable soundtrack.

Last Exit to Brooklyn

1989, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Last Exit to Brooklyn, Neue Constantin Film, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Knopfler; Performed by: Guy Fletcher; Featured Musicians: David Nolan, Irvine Arditti (violin), Chris White (saxophone), Mark Knopfler (guitar); Album Producer: Mark Knopfler; Engineer: Bill Schnee.

Selections: 1 Last Exit To Brooklyn (4:59); 2 Victims (3:30); 3 Think Fast (2:46); 4 A Love Idea (3:04); 5 Tralala (5:28); 6 Riot (6:20); 7 The Reckoning (7:12); 8 As Low As It Gets (1:28); 9 Finale: Last Exit To Brooklyn (6:18).

Review: Based on Hubert Selby's 1964 novel, Last Exit to Brooklyn takes a close look at life in one of New York's least attractive boroughs in a rundown working class neighborhood near the navy yards, plagued by an ungoing strike against a local factory. To give meaning to this gritty tale, Mark Knopfler wrote a diversified score in which striking melodies ("Last Exit to Brooklyn," "A Love Idea") contrast with tunes in which the desperate atmosphere that pervades the film find a remarkable echo. One cue, "Victims," starts with what resembles the sound of machinery interrupted by the horn of a ship, strongly evocative of the background against which the story unfolds. The film's centerpiece, a sensational action scene that opposes the strikers against police forces, gives way here to a spectacular cue called "Riot", boldly expressive and superbly realistic. There are, along the way, many other musical moments that evoke specific scenes in the film, notably "Tralala" and "As Low as It Gets," but the whole recording is one outstanding track after another.

Last of the Dogmen

1995, Atlantic Records; from the movie Last of the Dogman, Savoy Pictures, 1995.

Selections: 1 Last Of The Dogmen (3:17); 2 The Wilderness (1:50); 3 Somebody's Out There (2:46); 4 The First Arrow (1:50); 5 The Story Of Jacko (1:43); 6 War Party (3:04); 7 Medicine Run (2:51); 8 Cheyenne Valley (2:46); 9 The County Line (1:59); 10 The Truth (2:12); 11 Go In A Good Way (1:57); 12 Leaving Forever (3:58); 13 Faith And Courage (3:55); 14 The Last Arrow (1:55).

Review: Immediately after completing Stargate, David Arnold took on this epic story of the discovery of a lost tribe of Cheyenne. Although the story begins with tracker Tom Berringer searching for a group of escaped convicts, at the core of the film, and the score, is an aura of romance. Director Tab Murphy treats his North American wilderness setting, the last unspoiled, untamed land, with reverence and awe. While Berringer's character finds love with Native American expert Barbara Hershey, she in turn finds it in the culmination of her life's dream with the discovery of the simple lifestyle of the Cheyenne, who have remained unexposed to modern civilization for centuries. There are gentle hints of western motifs with Arnold's score, but only enough to reinforce the notions of an earlier age. The film is, after all, about the clash of cultures. Arnold remarkably captures all this in a score that deftly shifts through the film's ever-changing moods, providing a solid foundation that makes even the tiniest emotion an epic experience. While his work on Stargate, and later Independence Day, are also of epic quality, it is the smaller, personal moments in Last of the Dogmen that sets it above the rest. It is a score that truly comes from his heart.

The Last of the Mohicans

1992, Morgan Creek Records; from the movie The Last of the Mohicans, 20th Century-Fox, 1992.

Album Notes: (tracks 1-9) Music: Trevor Jones; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, Jack Smalley, Bobby Muzingo, Guy Dagul; orchestra conducted by Daniel A. Carlin; Producer: Trevor Jones; Engineer: John Richards John Whynot, Dennis Sands; (tracks

10-15) Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineer: Elton Ahi.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:44); 2 Elk Hunt (1:49); 3 The Kiss (2:47); 4 The Glade, Part II (2:34); 5 Fort Battle (4:20); 6 Promontory (6:13); 7 Munro's Office/Stockade (2:30); 8 Massacre/Canoes (6:52); 9 Top Of The World (2:44); 10 The Courier (2:27); 11 Cora (2:30); 12 River Walk and Discovery (5:30); 13 Parlay (3:46); 14 The British Arrival (2:00); 15 Pieces Of A Story (4:58); 16 I Will Find You (C. Brennan)(1:42)Clannad.

Review: With The Last of the Mohicans, we are given a poignant sense of orchestral drama from two notable composers. The first nine cues on the CD are by Jones, the remaining six by Edelman. Though their styles are different and thematically unrelated, they complement each other. Jones' theme sounds solid and steadfast amid the myriad of orchestral figures he sets against it in the battle scenes. Edelman's music is less exhilarating but equally effective, built around a very pretty melody for synth and accordion over acoustic guitar and strings, growing in force and tone. Where Jones uses electronics as a minor member of the orchestra for textural purposes, Edelman relies on synths more dominantly as lead instruments. Trevor Jones introduces his main theme out of native drums, a grandly sweeping music for brass, strings and timpani, counterpointed in "Elk Hunt" by perpendicular strokes of strings and rapidly-toned synth. It's an immensely powerful opening. Edelman is an accomplished synthesist and his score is strident and evocative. This is forceful and compelling music, lofty and earthy and at the same time gloriously romantic, brimful of the romance of adventure as well as the romance of love.

The Last Picture Show

1971, Columbia Records; from the movie The Last Picture Show, Columbia Pictures, 1971.

Album Notes: Featured Performers: Tony Bennett, Eddie Fisher, Lefty Frizzell, Pee Wee King, Frankie Laine, Johnnie Ray, Hank Snow, Jo Stafford; Album Producer: Thomas Z. Shepard; Engineer: John Guerriere.

Selections: 1 Cold Cold Heart (H. Williams)(2:41) Tony Bennett; 2 Give Me More, More, More Of Your Kisses (L. Frizzell/R. Price/J. Beck)(2:18) Lefty Frizzell; 3 Wish You Were Here (H. Rome)(2:57) Eddie Fisher; 4 Slow Poke (P. King/R. Stewart/C. Price)(3:02) Pee Wee King; 5 Blue Velvet (B. Wayne/L. Morris)(3:02) Tony Bennett; 6 Rose, Rose, I Love You (W. Thomas/C. Langdon) (2:35) Frankie Laine; 7 You Belong To Me (P. King/R. Stewart/ C. Price) (3:05) Jo Stafford; 8 A Fool Such As I (B. Trader)(2:32) Hank Snow; 9 Please, Mr. Sun (S. Frank/R. Getzov)(3:01) Johnnie Ray; 10 Solitaire (R. Borek/C. Nutter/K. Guion)(3:18) Tony Bennett.

Review: A nostalgic trip to the '50s via a collection of hits from that period, performed by the stars who made them famous, this soundtrack album to the film directed by Peter Bogdanovich has one serious drawback. For the money, the playing time is quite short and its sound quality is seriously deficient. Since the same selections can often be found in many other remastered compilations, this collection seems a bit redundant.

The Last Starfighter

1995, Intrada Records; from the movie The Last Starfighter, Universal Pictures, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: Craig Safan; Orchestrations: Al Clausen, Joel Rosenbaum, Craig Safan; Orchestra conducted by Craig Safan; Album Producer: Craig Safan; Engineers: Lyle Burbridge (orchestra), Rick Riccio (electronics).

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:31); 2 Alex Dreams (1:44); 3 Centauri Into Space (5:59); 4 Rylos (2:01); 5 Centauri Dies (6:51); 6 Target Practice (2:17); 7 Alex's First Test (2:51); 8 Beta's Sacrifice (6:07); 9 Death Blossom/Ultimate Weapon (4:44); 10 Big Victory March/Alex Returns (5:44); 11 Into The Starscape (7:21).

Review: One of the few post-Star Wars blockbuster scores to approach the heights of John Williams' Korngoldesque space opera scores is this spectacular effort from Craig Safan for the agreeable Nick Castle space shoot-em-up that's primarily remembered now for its early, ground-breaking CGI effects. Although there is scope and bombastic action material galore in this incredibly brassy, sharply-performed score, Safan's greatest achievement is the emotional accessibility of this score. It's actually quite touching for a space opera, dealing movingly with its hero's Luke Skywalker-like wanderlust as he stumbles onto a video game that's designed to train real star warriors for an interstellar conflict. Safan's opening theme, while bearing comparison to Williams' in its martial brassiness, achieves its own distinctive power through a couple of thrilling repeating horn figures and a primary melody that is just as effective generating feelings of compassion and tenderness in its more intimate settings as it is whipping up a frenzy of rah-rah excitement here. This Intrada release showcases the entire score, expanding the music heard on an old Southern Cross CD and providing improved sound for what was already a barnstorming recording.

The Last Unicorn

1982, Virgin Records; from the animated feature, The Last Unicorn, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Jimmy Webb; The London Symphony Orchestra conducted by Jimmy Webb; Featured Performers: America (Dan Peek, Gerry Beckley, Dewey Bunnell).

Selections: 1 The Last Unicorn (3:07); 2 Man's Road (3:23); 3 In The Sea (3:15); 4 Now That I'm A Woman (2:36); 5 That's All I've Got To Say (2:42); 6 The Last Unicorn, Part 2 (3:07); 7 The Forest Awakens: The Unicorn/The Forest/ The Hunters (2:09); 8 Red Soup (:30); 9 The Red Bull Attacks (3:36); 10 The Cat (1:39); 11 The Tree (1:19); 12 Haggard's Unicorns (2:10); 13 Bull/Unicorn/ Woman (2:46); 14 Unicorns In The Sea (1:50); 15 Unicorn And Lear (3:28).

Review: The rock group America is prominently featured in this soundtrack album to an animated film, with a score by Jimmy Webb. The songs, an attractive lot with good melodic lines and pleasant lyrics, were quite effective on the soundtrack and also make a favorable impression on a pure audio level. The combination of the rock band with a large orchestra usually works very well and makes this a most enjoyable album.

The Last Waltz

1978, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie The Last Waltz, Filmways, 1978.

Album Notes: Featured Musicians: The Band featuring Rick Danko (bass, violins, vocals), Levon Helm (drums, mandolin, vocals), Garth Hudson (organ, accordion, saxophone, synthesizers), Richard Manuel (piano, keyboards, drums, vocals), Robbie Robertson (guitar, piano, vocals); Guest Artists: Paul Butterfield, Eric Clapton, Neil Diamond, Bob Dylan, Emmylou Harris, Ronnie Hawkins, Dr. John, Joni Mitchell, Van Morrison, The Staples, Ringo Starr, Muddy Waters, Ron Wood, Neil Young; Album Producer: Robbie Robertson; Engineers: Terry Becker, Tim Kramer, Elliot Mazer, Wayne Neuendorf, Ed Anderson, Neil Brody.

Selections: CD 1: 1 Theme from The Last Waltz (R. Robertson)(3:28); 2 Up On Cripple Creek (R. Robertson)(4:44); 3 Who Do You Love (E. McDaniels)(4:16); 4 Helpless (N. Young)(5:47) Neil Young, Joni Mitchell,; 5 Stagefright (R. Robertson)(4:25); 6 Coyote (J. Mitchell)(5:50) Joni Mitchell, Dr. John; 7 Dry Your Eyes (N. Robertson)(3:27); 13 Evangeline (R. Robertson)(3:17) Emmylou Harris; 14 Out Of The Blue (R. Robertson)(3:08); 15 The Weight (R. Robertson)(4:38) The Staples; 16 The Last Waltz Refrain (R. Robertson)(1:28); 17 Theme from The Last Waltz (with orchestra)(R. Robertson)(3:22).

Review: The farewell concert by the Band, Bob Dylan's onetime backup group, brought together as fine an assortment of rock stars as we are ever likely to see on one stage, and the Martin Scorsese documentary that resulted ranks among the best concert films. The two-CD soundtrack compilation boasts performances cut from the movie, most notably a Van Morrison-Richard Manuel duet on "Tura-Lura-Lural." Other highlights come from Neil Young, Muddy Waters, Eric Clapton, and Dylan. The Band itself had better nights. Singer Levon Helm lost his voice during the show, which may explain why several of the group's favorites were re-recorded on a soundstage after the fact, then stitched into a less-than-stellar dream sequence.

Laura/Jane Eyre

1993, Fox Records; from the movies Laura, 20th Century-Fox, 1944; and Jane Eyre, 20th Century-Fox, 1943.

Album Notes: Music: David Raksin, Bernard Herrmann; The 20th Century-Fox Orchestra, conducted by Alfred Newman, Bernard Herrmann; CD Producer: Nick Redman.

Selections: 1 20th Century-Fox Fanfare (A. Newman)(:13); 2 Laura: Theme and Variations (27:16); 3 Jane Eyre: Main Title

(2:38); 4 Jane's Departure (2:32); 5 Elegy and Jane's Sorrow (2:26); 6 Thornfield Hall (1:42); 7 The Piano 2:12); 8 Rochester's Past (2:04); 9 The Fire (2:54); 10 Mr. Mason (3:26); 11 The Garden (3:43); 12 The Storm (2:28); 13 The Wedding (1:24); 14 Jane's Farewell (4:14); 15 Jane's Return (2:42); 16 The Finale (2:39).

Review: Of all the romantic murder mysteries born of the 1940s, Laura reigns supreme as the regal Queen—elegant, romantic, suspenseful, sad. Director Otto Preminger's classic is one of a handful of films of this genre that hold up remarkably well today, over 50 years after its initial release in 1944. Resilient, too, has been David Raksin's original score, the one that transformed a simple musical theme into a vocal pop standard and made the composer's name a household word.

Originally, Preminger had planned to use Duke Ellington's "Sophisticated Lady" as the main theme for the picture whose story turns a murder victim into the prime suspect. However, with Raksin's intervention and personal struggle over a long weekend, a new theme was developed. "Laura" emerged as one of the most mysterious, intriguing melodies of all-time. Once lyricist Johnny Mercer added the lyrics, it became an instant sensation and one of the most recorded tunes in history.

That hauntingly romantic theme, dressed in a variety of disguises, is what underscores and creates the atmosphere for this wonderful film. A 1975 recording featuring the New Philharmonia Orchestra, conducted by David Raksin, is available on RCA Victor. This reissue has been newly remixed by the composer himself and contains a six-minute segment titled "Laura." While it is nice to hear the theme in glorious, modern stereo, this small sampling leaves you aching for more.

For this, nothing surpasses the original 1944 soundtrack (20th Century Fox Film Scores), which is comprised of a 28-minute composition titled "Suite for Laura: Theme and Variations." It is here that you can really appreciate the subtle textures and nuances in Raksin's score. The monophonic film track sound is very good, with a remarkable amount of detail noted among the individual instruments, and the recording has a nice, warm 1940s sound and feel to it.

Lawnmower Man 2: Beyond Cyberspace

1996, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Lawnmower Man 2: Beyond Cyberspace, Allied Film Productions, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Robert Folk; Orchestrations: Robert Folk, Peter Tomashek, Jon Krull; The London Sinfonia, conducted by Robert Folk; Album Producer: Robert Folk.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:14); 2 The City (2:48); 3 Kids In Cyberspace (3:35); 4 Virtual Light Tour (3:02); 5 Jobe's Memory (1:40); 6 Jobe's Realization (1:57); 7 The Train (5:52); 8 Jobe's Theme (2:03); 9 Institute Recon (5:04); 10 Stealing The Kicon Chip (6:34); 11 The Alarm (4:54); 12 Inspecting The Kiron Chip (2:10); 13 The President (2:58); 14 Jobe's War (4:00); 15 Streets Of Anarchy (3:46); 16 Virtual Reality Battleground (4:56); 17 The Kiron Explosion (2:18); 18 Finale (2:41).

Review: For this high-tech cyberthriller, Robert Folk has based his score around a romantic melody for full orchestra. That theme brackets the ferocious action music that makes up the bulk of this score. This is a heavy action score, but it's all very tonal and under control. Folk uses straightforward orchestration, synths mixed with symphonics, to color this world of cyberspace and virtual reality. By doing so—and avoiding the complete plunge into computerized music that the story might have suggested—Folk humanizes the film and its characters, linking them to the real world even in the midst of their virtual adventures, even in the midst of his furious action music. And in the end, Folk's main theme returns, glorious and magnificent, wrapping up the frantic activity of the middle section with a purposeful resolve, shutting the doors on cyberspace and enfolding the characters in the warm embrace of the real world.

Lawrence of Arabia

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Lawrence of Arabia, Columbia Pictures, 1962.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestrations: Gerard Schurmann; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Sir Adrian Boult.

Selections: 1 Overture (4:17); 2 Main Title (1:57); 3 Miracle (3:09); 4 Nefud Mirage (2:24); 5 Rescue Of Gasim (2:13); 6 Bringing Gasim Into Camp (3:36); 7 Arrival At Auda's Camp (2:03); 8 The Voice Of The Guns (K. Alford)(2:01); 9 In Whose Name Do You Ride? (1:25); 10 Continuation Of The Miracle (2:18); 11 Sun's Anvil (3:12); 12 Lawrence And Body Guard (2:08); 13 That Is The Desert (2:54); 14 End Title (3:42).

Review: Has there ever been an orchestrated film soundtrack more beautiful, more evocative? Here begins Maurice Jarre's string of Oscars and his memorable collaboration with the British director David Lean. Thirty-five years on, this landmark work stands in the company of the best "classical music" ever written for Hollywood. Lean's film, perhaps the greatest of the bigger-than-big movie epics of the late '50s and early '60s, is unimaginable without this music, particularly in its first half, and especially in those sweeping long shots of the desert. A fan can only wish for more, and in the CD era, there should be. At 37 minutes, this soundtrack recording offers nothing more than the original LP. Monsieur Jarre, where are those master tapes?

Lawrence of Arabia

1989, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Lawrence of Arabia, Columbia Pictures, 1962.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The Philharmonia Orchestra, conducted by Tony Bremner; Album Producer: Geoffrey Alexander; Engineer: Dick Lewzey.

Selections: 1 Overture (4:22); 2 Main Titles (2:13); 3 First Entrance To The Desert/Night And Stars/Lawrence And Tafas (9:37); 4 Miracle (2:27); 5 That Is The Desert (2:51); 6 Nefud Mirage/The Sun's Anvil (5:24); 7 Rescue Of Gasim/Bringing Gasim Into Camp (4:07); 8 Arrival At Auda's Camp (2:09); 9 On To Akaba/The Beach At Night (4:40); 10 Sinai Desert (1:06); 11 The Voice Of The Guns (K. Alford)(2:01); 12 Horse Stampede/Ali Rescues Lawrence/Lawrence And His Bodyguard (5:15); 13 The End/Playoff Music (4:34).

Review: Besides restoring the cues in the order in which the plot unfolded on the screen, this re-recording introduces several selections not available on the soundtrack album. This would be everything fans have been waiting for were it not for the fact that when all is said and done, the performance by The Philharmonia, while sonically spectacular, doesn't match in excitement and fire the London Philharmonic in the original. To actually pinpoint the differences is a subtle exercise that requires a sensitivity few won't care about, but the playing often sounds stilted, studied, and at times a bit too reverential. Casual listeners, more interested in the sweep of the music than in academic disputes over the way it should be performed, will no doubt enjoy the recording in all its splendor.

A League of Their Own

1992, Columbia Records; from the movie A League of Their Own, Columbia Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Orchestrations: Bruce Fowler; Music Editor: Laura Perlman; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker; Producers: Hans Zimmer, Jay Rifkin; Engineers: Armin Steiner, Jay Rifkin; Assistant Engineer: Michael Stevens; Featured Soloists: Jim Kanter (clarinet), Rick Baptist (trumpet), Mike Lane (piano), Kurt McGettrick (baritone sax), Kathy Lenski (violin), Phil Ayling (cor anglais); Featured Performers: Carole King, The Manhattan Transfer, James Taylor, Billy Joel, Art Garfunkel, Doc's Rhythm Cats, The Rockford Peaches; Album Producer: Jay Landers; Engineer: Bernie Grundman.

Selections: 1 Now And Forever (C. King)(3:17) Carole King; 2 Choo Choo Ch'Boogie (V. Harton/D. Darling/M. Gabler)(2:58) The Manhattan Transfer; 3 It's Only A Paper Moon (B. Rose/E.Y. Harburg/H. Arlen)(2:51) James Taylor; 4 In A Sentimental Mood (E.K. Ellington/E. Kurtz/I. Mills)(4:04) Billy Joel; 5 Two Sleepy People (H. Carmichael/F. Loesser)(3:39) Art Garfunkel; 6 I Didn't Know What Time It Was (R. Rodgers/L. Hart)(3:38) James Taylor; 7 On The Sunny Side Of The Street (D. Fields/J. McHugh)(3:19) The Manhattan Transfer; 8 Flying Home (B. Goodman/L. Hampton)(2:58) Doc's Rhythm Cats; 9 Life Goes On (H. Zimmer)(6:10); 10 The Final Game (H. Zimmer)(9:31); 11 The All American Girls Professional Baseball League Song (L.P. Davis)(1:24) The Rockford Peaches.

Review: As compilations of this kind go, this is quite an enchanting one. Some of today's most recognizable frontline performers deliver a handful of classic tunes in a program that is as beguiling as it is familiar. Hans Zimmer's two longer selections add a zest of instrumental class that tops off this soundtrack album with a delicious touch.

Leap of Faith woof

1992, MCA Records; from the movie Leap of Faith, Paramount Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Don Henley, George Duke, Tony Brown, Brian Tankersley, Lyle Lovett, Todd Rundgren; Album Producer: Kathy Nelson; Engineer: David Collins.

Selections: 1 Sit Down You're Rockin' The Boat (F. Loesser)(4:34) Don Henley; 2 Ready For A Miracle (A. Reynolds/B. Hull)(3:38) Patti LaBelle; 3 Change In My Life (B. Straits)(3:16) John Pagano; 4 Stones Throw From Hurtin' (E. John/B. Taupin)(4:33) Wynonna; 5 King Of Sin Medley: Lord Will Make A Way (Somehow)(T. Dorsey)/God Said He Would See You Through (Rev. M. Biggham)/God Will Take Care Of You (E. Hawkins)/Psalm 27 (arr.: W. Whitman) (5:19) The Angels Of Mercy, YaDonna Wise, Lizz Lee, Lynette Hawkins Stephens, Lawrence Matthews; 6 Pass Me Not (F. Crosby/W. Doane)(5:01) Lyle Lovette, George Duke; 7 Rain Celebration Medley: Jesus On The Mainline (arr.: E. Hawkins/G. Duke)/ Ready For A Miracle (A. Reynolds/B. Hull)/ It's A Highway To Heaven (M. Gardner/T. Dorsey)(5:03) The Angels Of Mercy, Lizz Lee, Delores Hall, Leon P. Turner, Patti LaBelle, Gheri LeGree-McDonald; 8 Blessed Assurance (F. Crosby/J.

Knapp)(2:38) Albertina Walker; 9 Paradise By The Dashboard Light (J. Steinman)(8:24) Meat Loaf.

Review: Whoever thought it would be a great idea to have Don Henley sing "Sit Down You're Rocking the Boat," from Guys and Dolls should have his/her head examined. Not only is the singer out of his league with this song, but his delivery is totally wrong for it. That's not the only thing wrong with this soundtrack album in which there is too much of too many things to please even the least discriminating listener. The moods in this album move from rock to gospel to blues to country without much rhyme or reason. Of course, there might have been a reason in the film, about one of those evangelists who proliferate in the South, but sad to say not here.

Legend

Legend 🦴🦴🦴🦴🦴

1992, Silva Screen; from the movie Legend, 20th Century-Fox, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Lyrics: John Bettis; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith.

Selections: 1 Main Title/The Goblins (5:45); 2 My True Love's Eyes/The Cottage (5:04); 3 The Unicorn (7:53); 4 Living River/ Bumps & Hollow/The Freeze (7:21); 5 The Faeries/The Riddle (4:52); 6 Sing The Wee (1:07); 7 Forgive Me (5:13); 8 Fearie Dance (1:51); 9 The Armour (2:16); 10 Oona/The Jewels (6:40); 11 The Dress Waltz (2:47); 12 Darkness Fails (7:27); 13 The Ring (6:28); 14 Re-United (5:18).

Review: Ridley Scott's striking fairy tale didn't fare too well at the box office in the U.S., nor did Jerry Goldsmith's superb score which was dropped in favor of a selection of pop tunes by Tangerine Dream. The substitution did not help the film, but it deprived American filmgoers from enjoying one of the great scores written for the screen. In it, Goldsmith eloquently captured the cinematic vision of the director and transposed it in strikingly beautiful musical terms. The recording does it full justice.

Legend 🦴🦴🦴

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Legend, 20th Century-Fox, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Tangerine Dream; Album Producers: Tangerine Dream; Engineers: Tangerine Dream.

Selections: 1 Our Love Strong Enough (5:10) Bryan Ferry; 2 Opening (2:53); 3 Cottage (3:19); 4 Unicorn Theme (3:27); 5 Goblins (3:00); 6 Fairies (2:55); 7 Loved By The Sun (5:56) Jon Anderson; 8 Blue Room (3:22); 9 The Dance (2:22); 10 Darkness (3:03); 11 The Kitchen/Unicorn Theme (reprise) (4:53).

> on scoring One Fine Day (The Hollywood Reporter, 1-15-97)

Review: This pleasant synthesized alternate score by the German pop group replaced Jerry Goldsmith's work composed for the film in the U.S. when studio heads thought they needed music that "the kids could relate to better." The film suffered more from their decision to edit 20 minutes from the original Ridley Scott's cut, than the replacement of Goldsmith's inventive composition. Tangerine Dream's work is certainly effective, to a lesser degree, but also gives the film a more claustrophobic feel, as synthesized scores often do. It holds up much better on the album as an independent musical piece than as movie music.

Legends of the Fall 🦴🦴🦴🦴🦴

1994, Epic Soundtrax/Sony Classical; from the movie Legends of the Fall, Tri-Star Pictures, 1994.

Selections: 1 Legends Of The Fall (4:17); 2 The Ludlows (6:40); 3 Off To War (5:55); 4 To The Boys... (2:49); 5 Samuel's Death (8:24); 6 Alfred Moves To Helena (3:01); 7 Farewell/Descent Into Madness (8:13); 8 The Changing Seasons/Wild Horses/ Tristan's Return (5:11); 9 The Wedding (3:06); 10 Isabel's Murder/Recollections Of Samuel (3:58); 11 Revenge (6:20); 12 Goodbyes (3:12); 13 Alfred, Tristan, The Colonel, The Legend... (15:09).

Review: For this poignant romantic drama set during World War I and in the years following about two brothers, their father, and the beautiful, compelling young woman who irrevocably changes each of their lives, James Horner wrote a superb score. "At once brooding and lush, redolent of both love and loss," in director Ed Zwick's own comments. In it, the composer evoked the wilds of Montana, where the action takes place, its native rhythms and its wilderness, and Cornwall, where the main protagonists came from initially. As a result, his composition is filled with sweeping melodies, made even more striking with the use of a fiddle and a shakuhachi that give it its unusual colors and flavor. As is often the case in Horner's expansive scores, the last track, "Alfred, Tristan, The Colonel, The Legend..." is an expressive piece of orchestral music that slowly evolves and builds into a magnificent tone poem of impressive magnitude and character.

The Leopard Son

1996, Ark 21 Records; from the movie The Leopard Son, Discovery Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Stewart Copeland; Orchestrations: Michael T. Andreas; The Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra conducted by Michael T. Andreas; Featured Musicians: Stewart Copeland (piano, drums & percussion), Stanley Clarke (acoustic bass), Judd Miller (ethnic wind instruments), Michael Thompson (guitars); Album Producers: Stewart Copeland, Jeff Seitz; Engineers: Joseph Magee, Jeff Seitz.

Selections: 1 Baboon Gang (3:30); 2 Cub Explores (2:17); 3 Changing Skies (1:41); 4 Hyena Family (2:27); 5 The Lion Bitches (2:30); 6 The Mud Lions (2:11); 7 Cheetah Gang (2:37); 8 Familiar World (1:15); 9 Childhood Friends (1:42); 10 Eagle Flies (2:11); 11 Leopard Twins (3:34); 12 Mother Is Dead (5:16); 13 Cub Riff (1:40); 14 Leopard Love (3:06).

Review: A compelling documentary about a cub growing up on the Seregenti Plain, The Leopard Son strongly benefitted from Stewart Copeland's eclectic score, solidly anchored by Stanley Clarke's lively bass work. Since much of the screen action is reduced to scenes involving the cub, his environment, and other animals (a family of hyenas, some lions, a gang of cheetahs) Copeland's engaging score, which frequently mixes sounds effects, remains purely naturalistic with cues that help detail what happens in simple, easy to appreciate terms. As a result, the music is constantly enjoyable and includes many delightful moments such as "Cub Explores," "Changing Skies," a muscular "The Lion Bitches" (in which the animal's roar gives added strength to the music) or even the mournful "Mother Is Dead," a touching moment in the film and in this recording.

Leprechaun

1992, Intrada Records; from the movie Leprechaun, Trimark Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Kevin Kiner; Orchestrations: Kevin Kiner; Album Producer: Kevin Kiner; Engineer: Mark Evans.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:37); 2 O'Grady (3:24); 3 The Crate (2:29); 4 Ozzie Attacked (4:06); 5 Rainbow (1:04); 6 Ozzie And Alex (:53); 7 The Cat (2:46); 8 Endless Chase (7:46); 9 Bear Trap (4:34); 10 The Truck (3:30); 11 Rambo (4:51); 12 The Gold (2:04); 13 The Fence (3:16); 14 Hospital Chase (3:37); 15 Clover's End (7:39); 16 Leprechaun (2:13).

Review: With just a hint of Irish through prominent featuring of piccolo as a lead instrument throughout the score, Kevin Kiner's music for this malevolent movie of minuscule mayhem is full of chilling charm. A fluidly orchestral composition, Leprechaun counterpoints a very pleasant, almost American theme for its main characters (Ozzie and Alex) against the dark music signifying the evil leprechaun. The score is almost entirely orchestral, and its many layers belie its reliance upon the two motifs for its thematic base. Kiner's suspenseful sonorities and aggressive arpeggios give the score most of its energy and keep its orchestration and tonality interesting. His chase music races along, driven by frantic string pulses and keyboard, the ever present piccolo signifying the dangerously playful menace of the leprechaun. A workable score on film, Kiner's music is an enjoyable suspenseful-dramatic score on CD.

Les Miserables

1989, Marco Polo Records; from the movie Les Miserables, 1934.

Album Notes: Music: Arthur Honegger; The Slovak Radio Symphony Orchestra of Bratislava, conducted by Adriano; Album Producer: Martin Sauer.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:41); 2 Jean Valjean On The Road (3:47); 3 Evocation Of The Chain Gang (1:55); 4 Storm Inside A Brain (6:43); 5 Fantine (4:11); 6 Jean Valjean Escapes (1:01); 7 Cosette And Marius (2:09); 8 Fair At Montfermeil (7:39); 9 The Luxembourg (2:32); 10 The Garden Of Rue Plumet/The Night Convoy (5:12); 11 The Riot (2:46); 12 Death Of Eponine (2:18); 13 The Assault (2:15); 14 In The Sewers (5:39); 15 Music At Gillenormand (1:55); 16 Solitude (1:39); 17 Death Of Jean Valjean (2:47).

Review: The dramatic breadth and scope in Victor Hugo's classic tale of revenge and passion, Les Miserables, has been translated into numerous stage or screen adaptations (including, of course, the current musical hit still playing on Broadway, in London and elsewhere around the world). In addition to the various plays built around the descriptive story of Jean Valjean, his flight from justice, and his eventual redemption in the 1848 street riots in Paris, the drama inspired more than half a dozen screen versions, with some of the most polished actors of their generation essaying the role of Valjean, the former escaped convict forever one step ahead of the relentless police officer Javert.

One of the most successful films is a French version made by Raymond Bernard in 1934, with Harry Baur, unforgettable as Valjean, a powerful drama heightened by Arthur Honegger's remarkably evocative score. Painstakingly reconstructed by Swiss musicologist and conductor Adriano and solidly performed by the Slovak Radio Symphony Orchestra of Bratislava, Honegger's music underlines all the passion and drama in Hugo's tale, and reveals itself a striking composition with great appeal when taken on its own terms. A revelation, as well as a reminder that film music can often reach the loftiest heights in the hands of creative composers.

Lethal Weapon 3

1992, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Lethal Weapon 3, Warner Bros. 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen, Eric Clapton; Orchestrations: Michael Kamen, Jonathan Sacks, William Ross, Brad Warnaar; The Greater Los Angeles Orchestra and The Greater New York Alumni Orchestra, conducted by Michael Kamen; Album Producers: Michael Kamen, Stephen P. McLaughlin, Christopher S. Brooks; Engineer: Stephen P. McLaughlin, Bobby Fernandez.

Selections: 1 It's Probably Me (M. Kamen/E. Clapton/Sting) (6:22) Sting; 2 Runaway Train (E. John/B. Taupin/O. Romo) (5:25) Elton John, Eric Clapton; 3 Grab The Cat (M. Kamen/E. Clapton/D. Sanborn) (1:35); 4 Leo Getz Goes To The Hockey Game (M. Kamen) (2:57); 5 Darryl Dies (M. Kamen) (4:54); 6 Riggs And Rog (2:55); 7 Roger's Boat (M. Kamen/E. Clapton/D. Sanborn) (5:00); 8 Armour Piercing Bullets (4:33); 9 God Judges Us By Our Scars (1:57); 10 Lorna—A Quiet Evening By The Fire (3:34).

Review: One of the most interesting elements in the Lethal Weapon films has been the scores devised by Michael Kamen, with assist and support from Eric Clapton and David Sanborn. Writing in a style that reflects the films' urban contemporary setting and the volatile action in them, Kamen's scores are particularly strong and imaginatively descriptive. The point is made in these two albums (the soundtrack album of the first film has never been released on compact disc) in which Sanborn's soulful saxophone and Clapton's doleful guitar work set off the melodies written by the composer. Augmenting the impression made by the instrumental cues, all are more or less reflective of the fast-paced action on the screen and the feuding friendship that binds the two cops portrayed by Mel Gibson and Danny Glover, but equally effective in a purely aural setup. Both CDs contain performances by well-known vocalists, George Harrison, The Beach Boys and Randy Crawford in the first, Sting and Elton John in the second. First class all the way!

Leviathan

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Leviathan, M-G-M, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton, Nancy Beach; The Orchestra di Santa Cecilia di Roma, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Alan Snelling.

Selections: 1 Underwater Camp (3:23); 2 Decompression (3:16); 3 Discovery (5:24); 4 One Of Us (1:41); 5 The Body Within (4:33); 6 Escape Bubbles (5:37); 7 Can We Fix It (3:25); 8 Situation Under Control (1:49); 9 It's Growing (3:10); 10 Too Hot (3:27); 11 A Lot Better (3:31).

Review: This rotten 1986 film is a cross between Alien and the 1981 Sean Connery space film Outland, and unfortunately, so is Goldsmith's rather simplistic score. The opening, with its distorted whale calls and melancholy woodwind theme, works well enough, as do later cues like "Situation Under Control" and "Escape Bubbles" which make good use of the main theme. But the film's action cues ("Decompression," "Discovery," "Too Hot") rely on a maddening two note rhythmic device that just repeats and repeats without any of Goldsmith's usual complex development and ornamentation, making the album's slight 30-minute running time seem like an eternity. And Goldsmith's upbeat, heroic finale, although listenable on its own, was completely at odds with the mood of the film.

Jeff Bond

Liar Liar

1997, MCA Records; from the movie Liar, Liar, Universal Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: John Debney; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, Frank Bennett, Don Nemitz; Music Editor: Mark Ryan; Orchestra conducted by John Debney; Album Producers: John Debney, Mick Stern; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 My Dad's A Liar (2:40); 2 To Court (1:04); 3 The Pen Is Blue (3:02); 4 I'm A Bad Father (1:46); 5 Pulled Over (1:16); 6 The Unwish (1:41); 7 Bathroom Folly (1:47); 8 I Love My Son (2:36); 9 Airport Chase (1:45); 10 It's Fletcher (1:30); 11 Together (2:25); 12 The Claw Returns (1:39); 13 End Credits (3:36); 14 Outtake Montage (2:34).

Review: A very funny comedy, starring Jim Carrey as a chronic liar who is forced to tell the truth in spite of himself for 24 hours, Liar Liar elicited a score from John Debney, which proved right on the money when heard along with the screen action, but fails to make the grade in one's living room. The reason is simple. The cues were written for a fast-paced action, with all the quirks and turns usually found in a comedy, with the music matching the moves with similar sharp turns and oddball thrusts. On their own, however, the cues often sound too disjointed, as if the composer had chosen to write down one idea, only to abandon it the second after for another, totally different. As a result, the music is all too often jumpy, all over the place, without real focus. This is too bad, because Debney, an excellent scorer, has written some themes that are vibrant and exciting, when they are given a chance to be developed. A clear case of a score which needed to be rethought and reconstructed for its soundtrack album.

License to Kill

1989, MCA Records; from the movie License to Kill, United Artists, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Michael Kamen; Album Producer: Michael Kamen.

Selections: 1 Licence To Kill (5:13) Gladys Knight; 2 Wedding Party (3:53) Ivory; 3 Dirty Love (3:45) Tim Feehan; 4 Pam (3:50); 5 If You Asked Me To (3:58) Patti LaBelle; 6 James And Felix On Their Way To Church (3:53); 7 His Funny Valentine (3:26); 8 Sanchez Is In The Bahamas/Shark Fishing (2:06); 9 Ninja (6:03); 10 Licence Revoked (9:11).

Review: Once again, the point is clearly made that John Barry is the only composer whose music perfectly captures and matches the moods and slyly ridiculous situations in which agent 007 usually finds himself. Without taking anything away from Michael Kamen's own artistic bend, magnificently evident in other soundtrack recordings, his score for License to Kill in which the dashing James Bond was portrayed by Timothy Dalton, simply doesn't have the characteristic flair one can find in Barry's own scores. This said, Kamen's music has its moments of panache and glory, with cues that are evocative and can stand against any other music written for a motion picture. But even though he quotes from Barry's "Bond Theme" and provides a new, fresh approach to the musical concept of a James Bond film, his score ultimately sounds anything but. Because of that, the rating reflects the quality of the music itself, not the fact that this is a James Bond score, which would automatically lower the rating.

Life and Nothing But

1989, DRG Records; from the movie Life and Nothing But, Orion Classics, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Oswald d'Andrea.

Selections: 1 Horseriders On The Beach (Main Title)(3:24); 2 The Grezaucourt Suite (12:17); 3 Bliss (1:42); 4 Irene And Dellaplane (2:15); 5 Meandering (2:13); 6 The Shell (2:16); 7 The Cart (1:54); 8 The Two Fighters (2:33); 9 God, Do You Believe? (3:04); 10 Blackboat (1:38); 11 The Letter (End Credits)(7:02).

Review: A sobering, unglorified look at the devastating effects of war in general, Bertrand Tavernier's scathing film follows the efforts by the French military command to find at the end of World War I, a suitable "unknown soldier" worthy of receiving the nation's undying respect and admiration. The score, by Oswald d'Andrea, equally stern and unfussy, italicized the unfolding drama, justifiably earning a Cesar, France's equivalent to the Oscar, for "Best Musical Score" in 1990. Two selections in particular, "The Grezaucourt Suite" and "The Letter" clearly explain the reasons for its success.

Lifeforce

1989, Milan Records; from the movie Lifeforce, Cannon Films, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Henry Mancini; Album Producer: Emmanuel Chamboredon.

Selections: 1 The Lifeforce Theme (3:32); 2 The Discovery (4:43); 3 Space Walk (3:06); 4 Into The Alien Craft (2:48); 5 Exploration (2:58); 6 Sleeping Vampires (2:21); 7 Evil Visitation (4:12); 8 Carlson's Story (3:28); 9 The Girl In The Raincoat (2:54); 10 The Web Of Destiny (2:53); 11 End Titles (4:11).

Review: Lifeforce is Henry Mancini's Star Wars, a symphonic sci-fi epic. Actually that's not entirely true. Star Wars is a good and popular film, and Lifeforce is a laughably awful 1985 Tobe Hooper space-vampire flick. Furthermore, John Williams' score for Star Wars emphasizes leitmotives, whereas Mancini's Lifeforce is through-composed, a tone-poem of symphonic moods. But they are both incredibly good. Lifeforce brought Mancini, best known for catchy pop hits, back to the science fiction and horror genres, where he started as a staff composer for Universal in the 1950s. The score is romantic and huge, a sweeping epic bristling with the orchestrational know-how and chord structures that Mancini carried inside his amazing brain. The most flashy piece is the end title, an unusual march in 3/4, but the rest of the score has a moody richness as haunting in the subtle sequences as it is propulsive in the climactic ones. There are few themes per se; rather, the whole thing has a unified feeling, whereby certain gestures and contrapuntal blends become associated with the story. One of the best sequences is the film's opening "Discovery" suite running 14-minutes, in which a space shuttle discovers a vampire ship inside a comet – the film is largely a showcase for Mancini's music. Alas, this was cut from the final print, as were certain other scenes, Mancini's music abridged and selectively replaced with synthesizer music by Michael Kamen. (There is a restored version available on laserdisc.) It is unfortunate that Mancini rarely revisited the "John Williams" genres for the latter portion of his career, because Lifeforce is a knockout.

Lightning Jack

1994, Festival Records/Australia; from the movie Lightning Jack, Village Roadshow Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Rowland; Orchestrations: Bruce Rowland, Nerida Tyson-Chew; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Rowland; Featured Musicians: Peter Harper (harmonica), Tony Naylor, Doug DeVries, Simon Paterson, Don Stevenson (guitars), Roger McLaughlin, Mike Grabowski (electric bass), Ron Sandilands (drums); Album Producer: Bruce Rowland; Engineer: Robin Grey.

Selections: 1 Opening (:25); 2 The Bad Guys (2:18); 3 Meet Lightning Jack Kane (2:11); 4 Kane's Escape (1:28); 5 Jack Takes A Hostage (2:56); 6 Kane Rides Away (1:35); 7 A Snake Bite Bonding (1:42); 8 Ben's First Job (1:38); 9 Kane – Alive Or Dead (2:04); 10 It's Been A Long Time Jack (1:07); 11 Teaching Ben To Shoot (1:04); 12 Arizona Chicken (2:00); 13 On The Lookout For Kane (2:19); 14 A Greenhorn Like You/Monument Montage (2:44); 15 They're Comanches (3:38); 16 Who's There (1:38); 17 The Fire (2:31); 18 Lightning Rag (1:28); 19 Ben's First Poke (1:27); 20 I'm Scared (1:33); 21 John T Coles/Two Riders (5:33); 22 Ben's Betrayal (1:05); 23 $10,000 Reward (1:45); 24 Closing Credits (2:12).

Review: An exhilarating Australian western, Lightning Jack takes its subject humorously, providing star Paul Hogan with a vehicle that has the wacky appeal of his Crocodile Dundee films, while taking him to a new environment, the American West. Indicative of the tone adopted in this frequently diverting film, Hogan's Jack, quick on the draw but slightly nearsighted about his own possibilities, teams with a riding partner, a taciturn character whose laconism is only due to the fact that he is a mute. As for the slightly inconsequential story itself, it gives the star enough rope to enable him to display another facet of his congenial personality, in a plot with enough twists and turns to delight his fans. Making sly comments of its own, Bruce Rowland's music at times evoked his own Man from Snowy River scores, with a tongue-in-cheek discordant note that echoed the antics on the screen. Heard in this flavorful soundtrack album, some expository cues, like "A Snake Bite Bonding" and "They're Comanches," not so subtly enhanced by the harmonica in yet another concession to a tried-and-true formula, display the right thematic approach and make this score a thoroughly enjoyable effort.

Lilies of the Field

1997, P.E.G. Recordings; from the movie Lilies of the Field, United Artists, 1963.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Featured Vocalist: Jester Hairston.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:49); 2 Homer Returns (1:32); 3 The Roof (1:15); 4 Homer Awakes/Breakfast (3:09); 5 Feed The Slaves/Drive To Mass (1:35); 6 Amen/Sunday Morning/Amen (3:56); 7 The Contractor (2:26); 8 Out Of Bricks (1:05); 9 No Hammer/Return Of The Prodigal (4:18); 10 Lots Of Bricks/Aid Given/Aid Rejected (6:51); 11 Amen (2:15); 12 End Title/End Cast (1:25).

Review: Anchored by the main theme, a variation on the choral "Amen," also heard, this wonderful Americana-bathed score by Jerry Goldsmith resonates with joyous accents, punctuated by various acoustic instruments (a harmonica, a guitar, a banjo, an accordion) often playing over a jaunty string section. Written for a minor comedy, about a former G.I. on the loose, who comes upon and helps five nuns, refugees from behind the Iron Curtain, in building a chapel in the middle of the Arizona desert, the score captures the funny, warm-hearted moods of the story, giving it an extra, most winning dimension. Available for the first time since its release in 1963, the album suffers from an almost intolerable hiss, all the more noticeable because the sparse instrumentation cannot hide it.

The Linguini Incident

1992, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Linguini Incident, Academy Entertainment, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Thomas Newman; Music Editors: Bill Bernstein, Virginia Ellsworth, Paul O'Bryan; Orchestra conducted by Thomas Newman; Featured Musicians: John Beasley (piano), Chuck Domanico (string bass), Harvey Mason (drums), Sal Marquez (trumpet), George Thatcher (trombone), Jim Self (tuba), Bill Bernstein (flute), Jeff Elmassion (single reeds), Michael Fisher (percussion), Thomas Newman (ukulele, piano); Album Producers: Thomas Newman, John Vigran, Bill Bernstein.

Selections: 1 Cruel, Cruel World (1:57); 2 El Gran Pescado (Pray For Rain) (3:49) Dan Wool, Jim Woody, Gary Brown, Jeff Beal, Karl Parazzo, Tom Yoder; 3 Houdini's Bimbo (1:13); 4 Habanera (3:13); 5 Lethal Cleavage (1:30); 6 Lucy The Ethereal (1:44); 7 Piano Sobre Mi Pia (Pray For Rain)(3:49) Dan Wool, Jim Woody, Gary Brown, Jeff Beal, Karl Parazzo, Tom Yoder; 8 Trigger Man (1:09); 9 Platinum Bezel (1:32); 10 Perdida en Arabia (3:24) (Pray For Rain)(3:49) Dan Wool, Jim Woody, Gary Brown, Jeff Beal, Karl Parazzo, Tom Yoder; 11 Shut Up Pedro (2:04); 12 Coney Island (2:41); 13 Bad Acid (R. Cox/J. Elmassion/T. Newman) (2:07); 14 Drip Goes The Clock (1:02); 15 The Linguini Incident (1:45); 16 Mas O Menos Salsa (2:52) (Pray For Rain)(3:49) Dan Wool, Jim Woody, Gary Brown, Jeff Beal, Karl Parazzo, Tom Yoder; 17 Aquarium Escape (2:11); 18 Straight Jacket (2:24); 19 Many Happy Returns (2:04).

Review: The explosive contemporary jazz accents in Thomas Newman's diversified score underline the ferocious aspects of this biting satire starring David Bowie, Julian Lennon, Rosanna Arquette and Buck Henry as wacky characters in a swanky restaurant whose conversation turns to the meaning of life. Performed by many excellent musicians and developed along varied rhythmic lines, the music is consistently surprising, sometimes corrosive, and sometimes plain entertaining. There are many changes that will delight adventurous listeners unwilling to settle for the ordinary. With a predominance of Latin tunes, but not exclusively limited to this type of expression, the score is totally enjoyable, with Newman pulling all stops in a dazzling display of his creative streak and talent as an instrumentalist.

Link

1986, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Link, Cannon Screen Entertainment, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Mike Ross.

Selections: 1 Main Link (1:35); 2 Welcome Link (3:04); 3 Helpful Link (4:56); 4 Bravo Link (4:38); 5 Swinging Link (6:19); 6 Missing Link (4:43); 7 Peeping Link (3:02); 8 Mighty Link (2:39); 9 Angry Link (2:06); 10 Flaming Link (3:19); 11 End Link (3:01).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's approach to this odd suspense film about a trained orangutan is one of the composer's strangest—a goofball, circus-like approach featuring a quasi-calliope tune and heavy use of synthesized rhythms, stacked against the composer's usual modernistic action writing. It's a wildly uneven listen, mixing cringe-inducing slapstick comedy with powerful orchestral treatments of suspense and action, and a beautiful, lyrical melody of strings and electronic effects. For every moment of vintage Goldsmith there's something that will have you clutching for the "skip" button on your CD player, but you have to give Goldsmith some points for audaciousness here. The biggest problem with the score is the drum machines, which just drown out too much of the orchestra.

The Lion in Winter

1995, Legacy Records/Sony Music Entertainment; from the movie The Lion in Winter, Avco Embassy, 1968.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Chris Herles.

Selections: 1 Main Title/The Lion In Winter (2:39); 2 Chinon/ Eleanor's Arrival (3:28); 3 Allons Gai Gai Gai (1:50); 4 To The Chapel (1:48); 5 The Christmas Wine (2:44); 6 God Damn You (4:15); 7 To Rome (4:06); 8 The Herb Garden (4:40); 9 Eya, Eya, Nova Gaudia (2:11); 10 How Beautiful You Make Me (3:01); 11 Media vita in morte sumus (In The Midst Of Life We Are In Death)(2:15); 12 We're Jungle Creatures (2:46).

Review: John Barry's quasi-medieval Academy Award winning score for The Lion in Winter, starring Katharine Hepburn and Peter O'Toole, truly demonstrates the composer's incredibly versatile perspective. With a daunting task at hand (creating an original musical score for a historical drama that occurs in the year 1183), Barry devised with "great trepidations" (his own words) a beautiful, harmonically complex set of compositions which are rich with texture and substance, and still hold up remarkably well nearly 30 years later. The themes depicting the Catholic church are particularly powerful, and two original "period" songs (composed by Barry and James Goldman) stand out as brilliant examples of the composer's willingness to integrate new forms into his repertoire of musical stylings. With the current, renewed interest in Gregorian chant, this disc becomes a fascinating example of the power found in this type of liturgical expression, used to such gratifying results in this score. The meticulous stereo remastering allows the full breadth of the rich original recording (made at Cine Tele Studios in London) to shine through with unequaled brilliance.

Review: A film of epic proportions, Lionheart, directed by Franklin J. Schaffner, is a big screen retelling of the 12th century Children's Crusade, a dark episode in medieval times which saw youngsters organize an expedition in search of Richard the Lion-hearted, whose adventures, real or imaginary, became the grist for so many swashbucklers set in Sherwood Forest. Richard, who set out to reclaim the Holy Land invaded by the Moors, was subsequently taken prisoner. The screenplay, taking some liberties with historical facts, focuses on a young knight and two circus performers he has befriended, and their efforts to thwart the threat of a malevolent Black Knight whose henchmen have received instructions to round up the children and sell them as slaves.

The most interesting thing about the film, which received theatrical release in Canada only but has been available on video and laserdisc, is the fact that its profuse score was composed by Jerry Goldsmith, whose working relationship with Schaffner had already extended over six previous films.

Goldsmith found in this film an occasion to express himself in an idiom in which he has seldom found a voice. In fact, so extensive was Goldsmith's contribution that the score had to be spread over two albums, with the third volume listed here combining together the most significant highlights from the other two.

With a central three-note motif recurring throughout, and binding the cues together, the score comes across as a cohesive, wonderfully vivid effort with a full contingent of big epic moments, romantic themes, exciting battles and pulse-racing action scenes. It is all neatly wrapped up in a broad, colorful orchestral canvas fleshed out by the subtle use of electronics, dramatically played by the Hungarian State Opera Orchestra. The recording, broad and spacious, enhances all the positive aspects of the score and makes them even more impressive and grander-than-life.

Lionheart

1990, Intrada Records; from the movie Lionheart, Universal Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: John Scott; The Munich Symphony Orchestra, conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 North Africa: The Burn/North Africa (7:20); 2 The Voyage (3:11); 3 New York Streets (2:53); 4 Meet The Lady (3:55); 5 Joshua And Lyon (1:45); 6 The Wrong Hood (1:31); 7 The Big Orange (:57); 8 Lyon's Grief (2:37); 9 Partners (:47); 10 The Lady's Apartment (3:29); 11 Dating The Lady (3:31); 12 Fighting The Scot (4:14); 13 Helping Hand (1:27); 14 Nicole (2:38); 15 Fighting The Brazilian (3:06); 16 The Foreign Legion (3:14); 17 Attila The Killa (1:04); 18 The Wrong Bet (9:06); 19 Farewell (2:07); 20 Freedom For Lyon (:54); 21 Lionheart (4:12).

Review: For this contemporary adventure film (not to be confused with Schaffner's medieval epic), John Scott develops a series of cues that reflected the various locales in which the action took place – North Africa, Los Angeles, New York City – as well as the character of the story's main protagonist, a kickboxing soldier of fortune named Lyon (Jean-Claude Van Damme), bent on avenging his brother killed by drug dealers. As is often the case in films of this nature, the score is much better than the film itself, with the symphony orchestra giving a distinct and powerful color to the cues. An occasional jazz track, performed by a quintet, provides a different perspective on Scott's creativity, while it also fits the sometimes explosive action scenes in the film.

Little Buddha

1993, Milan Records; from the movie Little Buddha, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Ryuichi Sakamoto; Orchestrations: David Arch, Kevin Townend, Gil Goldstein; Music Editor: Michael Connell; Orchestra conducted by Ryuichi Sakamoto; Featured Soloists: The Ambrosian Singers, John McCarthy, dir., Catherine Bott (soprano), L. Subramaniam, Zakir Hussain, Nishat Khan, Shahee Samad, Kanika; Album Producer: Ryuichi Sakamoto; Engineers: Steve Price; Assistant Engineers: Niall Acott, Jamie Cullum, Brian Tibberts.

Selections: 1 Main Theme (2:50); 2 Opening Titles (1:47); 3 The First Meeting (1:50); 4 Raga Kirvani (1:28) L. Subramaniam; 5 Nepalese Caravan (3:01); 6 Victory (1:43); 7 Faraway Song (3:17); 8 Red Dust (4:38); 9 River Ashes (2:24); 10 Exodus (2:31); 11 Evan's Funeral (4:28); 12 The Middle Way (1:50); 13 Raga Naiki Kanhra/The Trial (5:24) Shruti Sadolikar; 14 Enlightenment (4:28); 15 The Reincarnation (1:51); 16 Gompa-Heart Sutra (2:38); 17 Acceptance – End Credits (8:58).

Review: For this story that combines the tales of a Tibetan monk who believes an American born child is the reincarnation of his mentor and the life of Prince Siddhartha, Ryuichi Sakamoto integrates a standard Hollywood-style film underscore with several Indian motifs. The result is disappointing if you don't enjoy the somewhat abrasive contrast of cultures.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Arrangements: Ken Kugler, Mark Isham; Featured Musicians: Bob Sheppard (tenor sax), David Goldblatt (piano), Tom Warrington (bass), Mark Isham (trumpet), Sid Page (violin), Kurt Wortman (drums), Ken Kugler (trombone); Engineer: Stephen Krause.

Selections: 1 Little Man Swing (2:13); 2 Little Man Lost (6:37); 3 With And Without Science (2:17); 4 A Walk On The Cool Side (3:12); 5 Fred And Dede (4:32); 6 Shadowplay (2:01); 7 Missing You Too (1:10); 8 Clipper Ships (2:04); 9 White Iris (1:42); 10 Kids And Grownups (2:33); 11 The Combustion Bounce (1:01); 12 Books, Dreams And Shadows (3:05); 13 Home And Not Alone (1:23); 14 The Little Man Swing (reprise)(2:44).

Review: This soundtrack album engagingly begins on a finely sketched swing track that augurs well for the overall feel of the score. The promises held in that first track are confirmed in the others with Mark Isham's upbeat score for this heart-tugging story about a 7-year-old little genius evidencing all the elements that contribute to turn a modest effort into an enjoyable listening experience. The moods set forth are strictly in a jazz mode, something that might deter potential listeners. But when the music is that good and that gratifying, one only has to turn on the volume, relax and savor.

(2:29); 28 The Goodbye (4:18).

Review: Recalling in a way some of the incidents in The Secret Garden, by the same author, Frances Hodgson Burnett's A Little Princess is a touching story about a little girl sent to a strict boarding school during World War I, who is forced to become a maid to the austere headmistress when her father is reported missing in action. Subtly limning this heartwarming tale in its screen transfer, Patrick Doyle contributed a score that oozes charm and loveliness in every track. Following the little heroine from India, where she shares a life of wonder to the boarding school in New York to the fantasyland in which she takes refuge in order to escape the hardships that come her way, the score reflects with imagination the diverse situations that shape the story, providing sounds that recall these different backgrounds and also evoke the various states of mind of the "little Princess" herself. Despite the disparate elements that contribute to its final makeup, it comes across as an inventive, often inspired score, quite exquisite and enjoyable.

A Little Romance

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie A Little Romance, Orion Pictures, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: Georges Delerue; Orchestra conducted by Georges Delerue; Album Producers: Tom Null, Robert Townson; Engineer: Richard Simpson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:10); 2 Love's Not Like That (1:00); 3 Paris Montage (2:32); 4 Julius Edmond Santorin (3:45); 5 The Young Lovers (1:49); 6 Off To Italy (2:15); 7 Birthday Party (2:40); 8 Outdoor Cafe/Moving On (3:10); 9 A Little Romance (1:25); 10 The Bicycle Race (4:30); 11 The Lovers' Decision (1:00); 12 Venice (1:25); 13 Hiding In The Movies (2:21); 14 No Turning Back (1:07); 15 The Gondola (2:00); 16 Farewell... For Now/End Titles (5:29).

Review: Directed by George Roy Hill, A Little Romance recounts the adventures of a young French boy and his American girlfriend who decide, at the behest of a mysterious old man whom they follow, to relive the legend of two Venetian youths who swore their love to each other in a gondola. In one of his most spirited efforts, Georges Delerue took a cue from the many lighthearted moods in the story and wrote a score that teems with a multitude of diversified cues, in turn exuberant ("Paris Montage," "The Bicycle Race"), and romantic ("A Little Romance," "The Gondola"), with a little touch of jazz along the way ("Birthday Party"). The whole thing is imaginatively laid out and performed for all its worth. Signature themes, like "The Young Lovers" and "Off to Italy," are also found in abundance in this richly entertaining score, which won a well deserved Academy Award in 1979.

Review: Based on the classic 1868 novel by Louisa May Alcott about love, family and becoming a woman, this retelling of Little Women received its fair share of accolades for its splendid treatment of the romantic dramas and adventures of Mrs. March and her four "little women" – spirited Jo, beautiful Meg, fragile Beth, and romantic Amy. Among the technical elements that contributed to the success of the film was Thomas Newman's score, which masterfully italicizes some of the most striking moments in the narrative, giving them an extra perspective through the illuminating support of his sensitively detailed music. The cues assembled in this soundtrack album give a general idea of the real beauty of the score, but its strengths are somewhat undermined by the fact that many of the cues are much too short, and probably would have gained at being presented in longer suites.

Live and Let Die

1988, EMI Manhattan Records; from the movie Live and Let Die, United Artists, 1973.

Album Notes: Music: George Martin.

Selections: 1 Live And Let Die (Main Title)(P. & L. McCartney)(3:10) Paul McCartney, Wings; 2 Just A Closer Walk With Thee (trad.)/New Second Line (M. Batiste)(2:13) Harold A. ''Duke'' Dejan & The Olympia Brass Band; 3 Bond Meets Solitaire (2:15); 4 Whisper Who Dares (1:42); 5 Snakes Alive (2:24); 6 Baron Samedi's Dance Of Death (1:15); 7 San Monique (1:57); 8 Fillet Of Soul/New Orleans/Live And Let Die (P. & L. McCartney)/Fillet Of Soul (3:17) BJ Arnau; 9 Bond Drops In (3:28); 10 If He Finds It, Kill Him (1:21); 11 Trespassers Will Be Eaten (2:45); 12 Solitaire Gets Her Cards (1:49); 13 Sacrifice (2:30); 14 James Bond Theme (M. Norman)(1:28).

Review: Listening to the soundtracks to Live and Let Die and The Living Daylights one after the other, one gets a clearer perspective about the reasons why John Barry's scores for the James Bond pictures work so well where other composers' do not. George Martin's music for Live and Let Die, propelled by Paul and Linda McCartney's terrific title tune (the first time a rock number was used in the series), is serviceable at best but not terribly memorable. The tracks actually worked much better behind the action than they do on a purely audio level, with their strongly accented guitar riffs reminiscent of other scores from the same period, notably Shaft.

The Living Daylights

1987, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie The Living Daylights, United Artists, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Orchestrations: John Barry; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: John Barry; Engineer: Dick Lewzey.

Selections: 1 The Living Daylights (4:14) a-ha; 2 Necros Attacks (2:00); 3 The Sniper Was A Woman (2:27); 4 Ice Chase (4:00); 5 Kara Meets Bond (2:43); 6 Koskov Escapes (2:20); 7 Where Has Every Body Gone (3:33) The Pretenders; 8 Into Vienna (2:44); 9 Hercules Takes Off (2:12); 10 Mujahadin And Opium (3:09); 11 Inflight Fight (3:08); 12 If There Was A Man (2:44) The Pretenders.

Review: Conversely, even though it was Barry's eleventh James Bond score, The Living Daylights displays the same inventiveness and fresh approach to its subject matter that had marked the composer's previous efforts. Without repeating himself, but displaying the signature accents that tie together all his contributions to the series, the score is another dazzling effort in which Barry explores the myriad possibilities offered by the action and finds new ways to tread over old grounds. While acknowledging some of the changes that occurred in music since he first began to score these films (the new electronic beat in "Ice Chase," for instance), Barry remains true to the spirit of excitement that permeates the series, and true to himself by reinventing and renovating the themes that singled him out as the composer of choice for the films. The pop selections by a-ha and The Pretenders are also quite effective within the context.

Review: A quirky collection of tunes masterfully captures the odd nature of a tiny seaside Scottish village in this film that was the acknowledged inspiration for the Northern Exposure TV series. An early film score for Dire Straits guitarist Mark Knopfler, it is filled with wonderful moments, particularly the infectious "Theme of the Local Hero." But the oddly sequenced album, with several tracks split into three suites, was most likely done to combine all the music related to the town party, though the opening suite seems a bit disjointed. Sounds of waves crashing against the shore are incorporated into several tracks. It adds a melancholy touch, but also serves to represent how utterly isolated the village is from the rest of the world.

Logan's Run

1990, Bay Cities; from the movie Logan's Run, M-G-M, 1976.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Harry V. Lojewski; Engineer: Aaron Rochin; CD Producer: Nick Redman.

Selections: 1 The Dome (2:08); 2 On The Circuit (3:45); 3 The Sun (2:11); 4 Flameout (3:26); 5 The Monument (8:13); 6 You're Renewed (2:50); 7 Ice Sculpture (3:36); 8 Love Shop (3:45); 9 The Truth (2:08); 10 Intensive Care (4:00); 11 End Of The City (2:25); 12 Love Theme From "Logan's Run" (2:27).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith produced a seminal science fiction effort for Michael Anderson's watered-down adaptation of the pop sci-fi novel about a future society where no one is allowed to live past the age of 30. Opening with a pulsating electronic figure that symbolized the omnipresent threat of "Lastday" termination, Goldsmith wrote a richly evocative harmonic brass piece for the movie's futuristic, domed city, while the rest of the score features some of Goldsmith's most supercharged and idiosyncratic action music, kind of a mix of Bartok and Leonard Bernstein for the film's numerous fights and chases. "The Sun" is an incredibly vivid, melodically brilliant characterization of the protagonist's first sight of the outside world after escaping from the dome, while "The Monument" mixes aspects of Stravinsky and Copland in an unforgettably atmospheric sketch of both the mystery and beauty of nature, as well as the haunted echoes of patriotism that hang over the ruined city of Washington, D.C. Somewhat less effective are some purely electronic passages inside the city that date what is otherwise a timeless, vivid work that's among Goldsmith's finest scores.

Lone Wolf McQuade

1983, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Lone Wolf McQuade, Orion Pictures, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: Francesco de Masi; Orchestrations: Francesco de Masi; Orchestra conducted by Francesco de Masi; Featured Soloist: Alessandro Alessandroni (whistler).

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:42); 2 Observation Of Jefe (4:32); 3 Jefe Loses Teeth (3:25); 4 Cuban Connection (1:46); 5 Nice Wolf (:26); 6 Guns And Super Chargers (2:32); 7 Lola's Theme (2:47); 8 Party Brawl (:43); 9 Highway Hijack (2:20); 10 Sally Bedside (:32); 11 Snow's Place (:48); 12 A Meeting With Snow (3:02); 13 Lola And McQuade (1:28); 14 The Deadly Hand (1:01); 15 It's OK, Kid (1:27); 16 Lola Comforts McQuade (4:27); 17 I'm Going To Miss You, Honey (:36); 18 Rawley's Arsenal (3:05); 19 McQuade's Short Burial (5:27); 20 Mountain Climbing (1:15); 21 Quiet Arrival At Fort (1:05); 22 The Big Fight (3:30); 23 The Final Conflict (4:37); 24 Lone Wolf End Credits (3:27).

Review: A superior action adventure score by Francesco de Masi, Lone Wolf McQuade harkens back to the days when Italian westerns were at the peak of their popularity, with scores that were at once representative of the screen action and had a life of their own when removed from it. Though solidly anchored in today's world, but obviously inspired by the westerns of Sergio Leone, Lone Wolf McQuade stars Chuck Norris as a kickboxing Texas Ranger, engaging in a fight to the death with some arms smugglers on the wrong side of the law. To give this 1983 modern western the proper feel, de Masi revisited the type of music he and others, like Ennio Morricone, had pioneered in the early days of the spaghetti westerns, complete with a mournful harmonica wailing in the distance, solid steel guitar riffs, and lonely whistling to add an extra forlorn feel to the proceedings. It may sound like a throwback to the days of yore, but it is still quite effective and it makes its point, with the only concession to the modern setting of the story being the use of some electronic instruments in the mix. This profuse score, with many exciting cues to detail the rough screen action, is totally enjoyable.

The Long Riders

1980, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie The Long Riders, United Artists, 1980.

Album Notes: Music: Ry Cooder; Featured Musicians: Curt Bouterese (dulcimer), Jim Dickinson (harmonium/piano), Billy Bryson (bass), David Lindley (banjo/mandolin/fiddle/electric guitar), Tom Sauber (banjo/guitar), Milt Holland, Baboo Pierre (percussion), Jim Keltner (drums), Ry Cooder, Mitch Greenhill (guitar); Album Producer: Ry Cooder; Engineer: Les Herschberg.

Selections: 1 The Long Riders (3:13); 2 I'm A Good Old Rebel (2:18) Mitch Greenhill; 3 Seneca Square Dance (1:58); 4 Archie's Funeral (Hold To God's Unchanging Hand)(2:40); 5 I Always Knew That You Were The One (3:04); 6 Rally 'Round The Flag (4:20) Pico Payne, Joe Chambers, Lester Chambers, Ry Cooder; 7 Wildwood Boys (4:10) Jim Keach; 8 Better Things To Think About (1:24); 9 Jesse James (2:33); 10 Cole Younger Polka (2:22); 11 Escape From Northfield (1:14); 12 Leaving Missouri (:57); 13 Jesse James (5:04).

Review: An inventive retelling of the notorious James gang's ride to fame, The Lone Riders is special in many ways, not the least being the casting of real-life brothers David and Keith Carradine and Stacy and James Keach to portray the screen outlaws and their gang. Another is the use of Ry Cooder's flavorful score to enhance the screen action and give it its period flavor. Cooder, an exponent of early American music, brought together several musicians with similar likings (notably David Lindley, a frequent collaborator), and provided them with themes ("Seneca Square Dance," "I Always Knew That You Were the One," "Cole Younger Polka") that strongly evoke the frontier at the turn of the century. The screen action itself suggests other tunes that also make a striking comment ("Escape From Northfield," "Jesse James") for what amounts to a most engaging soundtrack album.

The Long Walk Home

1991, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Long Walk Home, Miramax Films, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: George Fenton; Orchestrations: George Fenton, Simon Chamberlain; Music Editor: Chuck Martin; Orchestra conducted by George Fenton; Featured Musicians: Gary Foster (alto sax), Michael Lang (piano), Michael Melvoin (Hammond organ), Tim May (guitar), Neil Stubenhaus (bass guitar), Gary Coleman, Bob Zimmitti (percussion); The Long Walk Home Gospel Choir, conducted by Dr. Clifford Bibb; Album Producer: George Fenton; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 Jordan River (trad.)(2:57) The Long Walk Home Gospel Choir; 2 The Long Walk Home Main Title (2:35); 3 The First Empty Bus (3:00); 4 Leaning On The Everlasting Arms (trad.)(1:15) The Long Walk Home Gospel Choir; 5 Mary Catherine And Odessa's Theme (2:58); 6 Selma Breaks The Boycott (4:36); 7 No Not One (trad.)(3:13) The Long Walk Home Gospel Choir; 8 Don't Pass Montgomery By (2:50); 9 Happy To Walk (1:46); 10 Do Not Pass Me By (trad.)(2:42)) The Long Walk Home Gospel Choir; 11 A Deeper Divide (2:52); 12 Norman Joins The Citizens' Council (3:02); 13 The Carpool (1:18); 14 I Stretch My Hands To Thee (Pugh)/The Posey Parking Lot (7:25) The Long Walk Home Gospel Choir; 15 I'm Going Through (trad.)(2:22) Dorothy Love Coates; 16 The Long Walk Home End Credits (Marching To Zion)(trad.)(4:38) The Long Walk Home Gospel Choir.

Review: The 1955 setting of this drama about two Southern families, one white, one black, caught in the social turmoil of the civil rights movement resulted in a profoundly affecting score from composer George Fenton. With several gospel songs adding a definite flavor to the soundtrack, Fenton wrote a series of cues in which the sparse instrumentation helps to create a specific aura. Echoing the moods in the film, which avoid the maudlin sentimentality the subject might have suggested, the composer settles for a no-nonsense approach, all the more effective because it is controlled and straightforward.

Looking for Richard

1996, Angel Records; from the movie Looking for Richard, 20th Century-Fox, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Howard Shore; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian; Music Editor: Suzana Peric; Latin Text: Elizabeth

Cotnoir; The London Philharmonic Orchestra and The London Voices, conducted by Howard Shore; Album Producer: Howard Shore; Engineer: John Kurlander.

Selections: 1 Richard, Duke Of York (4:09); 2 Queen Margaret (3:13); 3 Lady Anne Neville (10:29); 4 George, Duke Of Clarence (11:42); 5 William, Lord Hastings (5:22); 6 Ghosts (4:05); 7 Henry, Earl Of Richmond (6:02).

Review: Al Pacino's revisionist "Richard III," a combination of lectures about the play and performances of some of the most important scenes in full costume regalia, is an offbeat, unusual way to approach one of the Bard's most powerful dramas. Adding support and great vitality to the project is the score Pacino commissioned from composer Howard Shore. Freed from the usual constraints of action-related cues, the composer created a medieval-sounding music that seems totally appropriate for the somber aspects in Shakespeare's play, while adding to it a more modern sound for the documentary scenes in the film. The result is a music that is at once reminiscent of the dual screen action and particularly suggestive when appreciated on its own terms.

The Lord of the Rings

1991, Intrada Records; from the animated feature The Lord of the Rings, Fantasy Films, 1978.

Album Notes: Music: Leonard Rosenman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by Leonard Rosenman; Engineer: Grover Helsley.

Selections: 1 History Of The Ring (6:31); 2 Gandalf Throws Ring (3:55); 3 The Journey Begins: Encounter With The Ringwraiths (4:28); 4 Trying To Kill Hobbits (3:03); 5 Escape To Rivendell (6:22); 6 Company Of The Ring (1:39); 7 Mines Of Moria (6:10); 8 The Battle In The Mines/The Balrog (5:08); 9 Mithrandir (3:17); 10 Frodo Disappears (2:38); 11 Following The Orcs (3:16); 12 Fleeing Orcs (2:31); 13 Attack Of The Orcs (4:04); 14 Gandalf Remembers (2:19); 15 Riders Of Rohan (3:43); 16 Helm's Deep (7:02); 17 The Dawn Battle: Theoden's Victory (5:34); 18 The Voyage To Mordor: Theme From The Lord Of The Rings (4:43).

Review: This opulent orchestral score for an animated feature by Ralph Bakshi, based on J.R.R. Tolkien's fantasy novels "The Fellowship of the Ring" and "The Two Towers," gave composer Leonard Rosenman a rare opportunity to prepare a work that blended many varied elements, "violence, eerie marches, chases, and wild battle scenes." Combining together traditional triadic harmonies with dissonant and serial lines, he created for the early scenes an almost surrealistic mood, representative of the other-worldly nature of the film's story. He contrasted them, as the script suggested, with lyrical passages that set them off and gave them added power. As a result, his score magnificently underlines the specific dark moods in the narrative, and illuminates the story's lighter aspects, making his contribution a superb complement to Bakshi's designs. It is little wonder then that his score, released on LP by Fantasy but not available after that for many years, should have become a prized collector's item. Its reissue on compact disc, with enhanced sonics that properly detail its many assets, again emphasizes its importance in the film music canon. Clearly, it is not a score that will attract everybody—the ominous tones in some of the tracks like "Escape to Rivendell" may deter some listeners to pursue any further. Those who do, however, will be amply rewarded by the riches the score contains and will find further exhilaration in the final pages, with rousing moments coming out of "Helm's Deep" and "Lord of the Rings."

The Lost Boys

1987, Atlantic Records; from the movie The Lost Boys, Warner Bros., 1987.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Mark Opitz, Pat Moran, Lou Gramm, Beau Hill, Ray Manzarek, Michael Mainieri, B.A. Robertson, Richie Zito, Hugh Padgham; Album Producer: Joel Schumacher; Engineer: Dennis King.

Selections: 1 Good Times (G. Young/H. Vanda)(3:49) INXS, Jimmy Barnes; 2 Lost In The Shadows (The Lost Boys)(P. Moran/L. Gramm)(6:17) Lou Gramm; 3 Don't Let The Sun Go Down On Me (E. John/B. Taupin)(6:09) Roger Daltrey; 4 Laying Down The Law (M. Hutchence/A. Farris/J. Farris/K. Pengilly/G. Beers/J. Barnes)(4:24) INXS, Jimmy Barnes; 5 People Are Strange (The Doors)(3:36) Echo & The Bunnymen; 6 Cry Little Sister (Theme From The Lost Boys)(G. McMann/ M. Mainieri)(4:03) Gerard McMann; 7 Power Play (B. Robertson/P. Pickett) (3:57) Eddie & The Tide; 8 I Still Believe (M. Been/J. Goodwin)(3:42) Tim Cappello; 9 Beauty Has Her Way (D. Banks/P. Brook)(3:56) Mummy Calls; 10 To The Shock Of Miss Louise (T. Newman)(1:21) Thomas Newman.

Review: This pop compilation, put together for a modern-day vampire film set in a West coast community, is actually better than most if only because it features performances by rock groups that are interesting: INXS, Roger Daltrey, Lou Gramm, and Echo & The Bunnymen among them. The recording will appeal primarily to fans of the respective individuals and groups represented, but they will find many rewards in the songs performed. Thomas Newman, incidentally, scored the film, and is represented here by one track with a relatively modest playing time that can hardly do justice to his contribution.

Lost Highway

1996, Interscope Records; from the movie Lost Highway, October Films, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Angelo Badalamenti; The City Of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by Angelo Badalamenti; Featured Musicians: Bob Sheppard (saxophone), Ernest Hamilton (bass), Ralph Penland (drums), Ronald Brown, Henry Kranen (baritone sax); Album Producer: Trent Reznor; Album Engineers: Charlie Clouser, Trent Reznor.

Selections: 1 I'm Deranged (D. Bowie/B. Eno)(2:38) David Bowie; 2 Videodrones, Questions (T. Reznor/P. Christopherson)(:44) Trent Reznor; 3 The Perfect Drug (Nine Inch Nails)(5:16) Nine Inch Nails; 4 Red Bats With Teeth (2:57); 5 Haunting And Heartbreaking (2:09); 6 Eye (B. Corgan)(4:51) The Smashing Pumpkins; 7 Dub Driving (3:43); 8 Mr. Eddy's Theme 1 (B. Adamson) (3:32) Barry Adamson; 9 This Magic Moment (D. Pomus/M. Shuman)(3:23) Lou Reed; 10 Mr. Eddy's Theme 2 (B. Adamson)(2:14) Barry Adamson; 11 Fred And Renee Make Love (2:05); 12 Apple Of Sodom (M. Manson)(4:27)Marilyn Manson; 13 Insensatez (A.C. Jobim/V. De Moraes)(2:53) Antonio Carlos Jobim; 14 Something Wicked This Way Comes (B. Adamson)(2:55) Barry Adamson; 15 I Put A Spell On You (J. Hawkins)(3:31) Marilyn Manson; 16 Fats Revisited (2:32); 17 Fred's World (3:01); 18 Rammstein (Kruspe/Lindermann/Lenders/Lorenz/Schneider/ Riedel)(3:26) Rammstein; 19 Hollywood Sunset (B. Adamson)(2:01) Barry Adamson; 20 Hierate Mich (Kruspe/Lindermann/Lenders/Lorenz/Schneider/Riedel) (3:03) Rammstein; 21 Police (1:40); 22 Driver Down (T. Reznor)(5:18) Trent Reznor; 23 I'm Deranged (reprise)(D. Bowie/B. Eno)(3:48) David Bowie.

Review: David Bowie's strange, erratic "I'm Deranged" bookends this uneven score, in which hard-rock performers (Nine Inch Nails, The Smashing Pumpkins, Lou Reed) vie for the listener's attention with Antonio Carlos Jobim's "Insensatez," or Angelo Badalamenti's weird-sounding and not-too-terribly-engaging instrumental cues, and Barry Adamson's evocations of Henry Mancini's "Peter Gunn." It's too much of a hodgepodge without focus to really satisfy anyone. Perhaps the David Lynch film justified this type of music combination, but programmed on an album it makes very little sense.

Lost in Yonkers

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Lost in Yonkers, Columbia Pictures, 1993

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Emilie A. Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: Emilie A. Bernstein.

Selections: 1 Beginnings (3:19); 2 The Candy Store (1:25); 3 Street Walk (1:18); 4 Meeting Grandma (1:20); 5 Train (1:36); 6 Harry (2:00); 7 The Boys (3:04); 8 Campfire (1:07); 9 Bad Day (2:05); 10 Bella Speaks (2:53); 11 Communications (4:16); 12 Leaving Yonkers (1:43); 13 Endings (5:57).

Review: Like the films of Woody Allen, the plays of Neil Simon have an aura that places them squarely within a definite time and place. Because of that, scoring any of them proves a challenge to any composer, and a strong reward as the moods explored have to reflect the specificity of their locale. While perhaps not exactly "right," the score Elmer Bernstein created for Lost in Yonkers successfully evokes the 1920s-1930s feel of the film based on the play, about two boys sent to live with their grandmother when their father goes away on business, and suggests images that capture the moods of the period. Some of the cues devised by the composer are actually quite delightful ("The Candy Store," "Leaving Yonkers"), but others may seem a little too dark for what is essentially a light romantic comedy. Though he may be amiss, Bernstein remains intelligently challenging, however, and his cues are still quite enjoyable where music is concerned.

The Lost World

1997, MCA Records; from the movie The Lost World, Universal Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Orchestrations: Kenn Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 The Lost World (3:34); 2 The Island Prologue (5:03); 3 Malcolm's Journey (5:44); 4 The Hunt (3:30); 5 The Trek (5:24); 6 Finding Camp Jurassic (3:03); 7 Rescuing Sarah (4:01); 8 Hammond's Plan (4:31); 9 The Raptors Appear (3:43); 10 The Compys Dine (5:07); 11 The Stegosaurus (5:20); 12 Ludlow's Demise (4:27); 13 Visitor In San Diego (7:38); 14 Finale and Jurassic Park Theme (7:54).

Review: Guaranteed to keep you on the edge of your seat, or at least intensely rapt, the score John Williams wrote for this second installment in the Jurassic Park saga teems with exciting new themes and motifs, broadly announced by thundering thumping in "The Lost World." The first selections serve as a preamble to the action that will materialize later on, with the various cues detailing plans for a visit to Site B, another part of Jurassic Park, also inhabited by giant predators, who soon turn the intruders into their prey. With an abundance of drums and percussion instruments (maracas and the like) punctuating the appearance of the Raptors, and weird, shrieking noises supposed to imitate their cries, the feast starts off with great orchestral sounds that seldom lessen after that. With skill, Williams creates ominous moods, interrupted by pulsing flashes, somewhat reminiscent of the famous theme he devised for "Jaws," but dealing here with animals that are even bigger, more ferocious, and thankfully extinct. The score's moments of bravura, "Visitor in San Diego" and the long "Finale," are alone worth the price of admission, and are terrific in every sense of the word.

Love Affair

1994, Reprise Records; from the movie Love Affair, Warner Bros., 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; The Unione musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Featured Soloists: Gilda Butti (piano), Vincenzina Capona (harp), Paolo Zampini (flute), Stefano Novelli (clarinet), Luciano Giuliani (horn); Featured Vocalist: Edda Dell'Orso; Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineer: Franco Patrignani.

Selections: 1 Never Let Your Left Hand Know What Your Right Hand's Doin' (T. Delaney)(2:40) Louis Jordan; 2 Changes (W. Donaldson)(3:06) Bobby Short; 3 Life Is So Peculiar (J. Burke/J. Van Heusen)(3:23) Louis Jordan, Louis Armstrong; 4 The Christmas Song (Chestnuts Roasting On An Open Fire)(M. Torme/R. Wells)(4:32) Ray Charles; 5 For Annette And Warren (3:03); 6 A Promise In The Air (4:53); 7 Waiting For That Day (1:54); 8 Anxiety And Joy (2:41); 9 Piano Solo (2:14); 10 Sentimental Walk (2:27); 11 Journey Of Love (1:47); 12 Return (1:48); 13 Finding Each Other Again (5:10); 14 Love Affair (End Credit)(4:13).

Review: Louis Jordan's whimsical "Never Let Your Left Hand Know What Your Right Hand's Doin'" is a great opener for this soundtrack album, but it would have been largely sufficient to set the necessary moods before moving on to the Morricone selections. Instead, we are treated to Bobby Short's rendition of "Changes," Jordan and Louis Armstrong's duet in "Life is So Peculiar," and (why not!) Ray Charles singing "The Christmas Song." Someone with little A&R imagination put those together and figured out it would be alright. The point is, when you have a composer of Morricone's caliber, you don't treat his music like second-rate stuff.

Fortunately, the score, true to the composer's usual impeccable standards, easily overcomes this shabby treatment and makes itself heard powerfully. The film starring Warren Beatty as a fading sports figure and Annette Bening as a performer who find themselves stranded on an island and discover they're made for each other, despite their engagement to others, inspired Morricone to write some low-key themes that perfectly match the moods of this weepy tearjerker. Beautifully sketched, with lush romantic touches sparkling throughout, it is a gorgeous and supremely eloquent score, evidencing many Morricone characteristics, like a three-note motif repeated on the piano behind elongated orchestral lines. As its title suggests, "Piano Solo" is a track that is superb in its simplicity, with a singer humming the theme played by the piano. "Sentimental Walk" is another selection for piano and orchestra that's really beautiful and the lovely "For Annette and Warren" catches the overall moods in this score in a single tune that's exquisitely detailed.

Love at Large

1990, Virgin Records; from the movie Love at Large, Orion Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Featured Musicians: Mark Isham (saxophone/electronics/trumpet), Peter Maunu, David Torn (guitar), Dorothy Remsen (harp), Kurt Wortman (drums); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineer: Steve Krause.

Selections: 1 Let's Begin (:43); 2 Ain't No Cure For Love (L. Cohen)(4:48) Leonard Cohen, Anjani; 3 The Principal Piece In A Game Of Chess (1:46); 4 Looking For A Sign (2:40); 5 You Don't Know What Love Is (G. DePaul/D. Raye)(2:28) Anne Archer; 6 Variation On A Popular Theme (#3) For Solo Harp (2:51); 7 But We Never Talk (1:58); 8 Don't Cry For Me (G. & G. Walker)(2:34) Grady Walker; 9 What If I Said I Loved You (2:36); 10 Here Comes Rick! (1:20); 11 Love At Large (2:16); 12 You Don't Know What Love Is (G. DePaul/D. Raye)(1:52) Warren Zevon; 13 And Love Is My Value (1:14); 14 Variation On A Popular Theme (#87) For Solo Guitar(3:59); 15 Out On A Limb (Where The Fruit Is)(1:26); 16 Moves On A Board (2:17); 17 Searching For A Heart (W. Zevon)(4:09) Warren Zevon.

Review: A humorous sendup of the detective films of the 1940s, Love at Large slyly makes fun of the Raymond Chandler thrillers, while adding some tongue-in-cheek comments of its own about the whole genre. Taking a hint from the story, about a gumshoe hired by a beautiful blonde to find her missing lover and the wrong trail he follows that leads to a totally different case with amusing complications, Mark Isham developed several cues that are pleasantly catchy and amusingly entertaining. Warren Zevon and Anne Archer have fun with the standard "You Don't Know What Love Is," while Leonard Cohen gleefully adds his two cents with "Ain't No Cure for Love," a real delight.

Love Field

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Love Field, Orion Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Bostnick.

Selections: 1 Family Album (1:48); 2 The Posters (1:37); 3 The Assassination (2:25); 4 Lost Luggage (3:22); 5 Roadside Incident (2:43); 6 Pretending (2:06); 7 We're Not Alone (2:31); 8 The Motel (6:23); 9 Together Again (5:36).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's score to this all-but-forgotten Michelle Pfeiffer period vehicle benefits from a blues influence that gives what might otherwise be an entirely bland romantic drama score a needed stylistic edge. Like his Not Without My Daughter music, Love Field suffers from a simple melody of flute, piano and strings that's just too ordinary. But an early cue, "The Posters" is a welcome return to the kind of busy, bucolic writing Goldsmith excelled in during the '60s in scores like A Patch of Blue. There's an anguished string elegy for the death of President Kennedy, and a tough, throbbing chase climax that comes out of nowhere but does illustrate why Goldsmith has long been sought out for this kind of music. It all resolves itself in a beautiful finale reminiscent of The Secret of NIMH. This still reflects a weak period for Goldsmith, but it's an enjoyable listen.

Review: A breezy, sexy romantic comedy set among the overeducated and underemployed in downtown Chicago, Love Jones deftly captured the rhythms of modern courtship, while asking the age-old question—is love forever? Reflecting the smart urban sounds heard among today's better educated youths, this soundtrack album compilation places the spotlight on various frontline performers, including Dionne Farris, Maxwell, Xscape, Cassandra Wilson, Kenny Lattimore, and Me'Shell NdegeOcello. A slightly more sophisticated touch is provided by the addition of "Jelly, Jelly," performed by the Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra, an organization presided over by Wynton Marsalis, and of "In a Sentimental Mood," featuring John Coltrane and Duke Ellington. The film's two stars, Larenz Tate and Nia Long, also appear framing the album, Tate with a reading of the poem his character, Darius, has written in celebration of Long's character, Nina; and Long in another piece, written about Tate, with both being read in front of the audience at the Sanctuary, the night spot where the two initially met and fell in love.

Lust for Life

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Lust for Life, 1956.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The Frankenland State Symphony Orchestra conducted by Miklos Rozsa; Album Producers: Robert Townson, Dub Taylor.

Selections: LUST FOR LIFE SUITE: 1 Prelude (3:06); 2 Summer (Pastorale) (4:18); 3 Brotherly Love (3:03); 4 Sunflowers (4:57); 5 Postman Roulin (1:40); 6 Madness (2:30); 7 Finale (2:32);

BACKGROUND TO VIOLENCE SUITE: 8 Prelude To Murder (from Brute Force)(4:49); 9 Nocturno (from Brute Force)(5:12); 10 Scherzo (from Brute Force)(2:07); 11 Despair (from The Killers)(3:16); 12

Pursuit (from The Naked City)(2:28); 13 Epilogue: The Song Of A City (from The Naked City)(3:10).

Review: The story of Vincent Van Gogh (portrayed by Kirk Douglas), Lust for Life is a big Hollywood biography that elicits a splendid score from Miklos Rozsa, taking a break from the swashbucklers and Roman epics he had scored recently. The music, robust and lyrical, is strikingly evocative and colorful, as befits a film about a painter. The manic sonorities in "Madness" further enhance the composer's naturalistic approach to this subject.

Consisting of selections from Rozsa's score for The Killers (1946), Brute Force (1947), and Naked City (1948), all three realistic urban dramas and prime examples of films noir, the "Background to Violence Suite" presents another facet of Rozsa's talent, one that has often been celebrated and admired. In stark melodic themes that contrast with the more florid style he used in the period dramas and adventure films he scored, Rozsa detailed with admirable sensitivity the darker aspects of life in the big cities, and the violence that often resulted from the confined environment in which people live. Using pulsating rhythms, brutal brass chords, dramatic accents that all reflect the contained violence in these films, Rozsa conceived powerful scores which reflect the screen action as much as they expand on it. This suite presents an overview of his concepts in a searing, dramatic display of his writing at its most eloquent.

M Butterfly

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie M Butterfly, Geffen Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Howard Shore; Orchestrations: Howard Shore; Music Editor: Suzana Peric; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Howard Shore; Album Producers: Howard Shore, Suzana Peric; Engineer: John Kurlander.

Selections: 1 M Butterfly (2:03); 2 Concubine (4:10); 3 Entrance Of Butterfly (G. Puccini)/Drunken Beauty (3:03) Michelle Couture, John Lone; 4 Dragonfly (3:18); 5 The Great Wall (1:49); 6 Even The Softest Skin (4:39); 7 Sha Jia Bang (trad.)(2:10); 8 Bonfire Of The Vanities/Cultural Revolution (3:27); 9 He Was The Perfect Father (:54); 10 Are You My Butterfly? (2:19); 11 The Only Time I Ever Really Existed (4:08); 12 What I Loved Was The Lie (1:04); 13 Everything Has Been Destroyed (1:45); 14 Un bel di (G. Puccini) (4:15) Maria Tereza Uribe; 15 My Name Is Rene Gallimard (3:35).

Review: The somewhat incredible true story of a French diplomat in China and the long-lasting love affair he enjoyed with a diva from the Beijing opera, unaware of the fact that she was in fact a man, M Butterfly found in Howard Shore a composer whose talent and creative sensitivity compelled him to write a score which overflows with striking romantic themes, played by the harp and backed by an ensemble of strings and wind instruments. Adding a different color, arias from some well-known operas and traditional Chinese songs provide the background for a tale that straddles different worlds and different cultures, in an album that is frequently challenging and musically surprising.

MacArthur

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie MacArthur, Universal Pictures, 1977.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Sonny Burke; Engineer: John Neal; CD Producers: Robert Townson, Tom Null.

Selections: 1 MacArthur March (Main Title)(2:48); 2 I Shall Return (3:57); 3 The Treaty (2:34); 4 The Tunnel (2:35); 5 Statistics (3:03); 6 Stand By (2:04); 7 A Last Gift (2:22); 8 New Era (3:25); 9 The Landing (3:40); 10 The Minefield (2:30); 11 I Bid You Farewell/MacArthur March (4:20).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's second military biography after Patton suffers from comparisons to his earlier, classic work for director Franklin Schaffner. The opening theme makes some interesting use of low-end pedal piano notes as a rhythmic device, but Goldsmith's brassy, strident theme for MacArthur sounds too much like a standard John Philips Sousa march to make for pleasant listening. There is one exciting battle sequence, but the film's real strength is in its surprisingly lyrical and quieter moving passages and in a rich arrangement of the traditional Japanese melody "Cherry Blossoms" for low strings and the harp. The underscoring of MacArthur's final farewell speech is quite beautiful as well. Unfortunately, it leads back into that overbearing march again!

Mad Dog and Glory

1992, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Mad Dog and Glory, Universal-International, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Emilie A. Bernstein; Music Editor: Joe Debeasi; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Musician: Lawrence Feldman (alto sax solos); Album Producer: Emilie A. Bernstein

Selections: 1 Cops And Robbers (6:44); 2 The Lonely Guy Theme (2:43); 3 Frank And Wayne (3:08); 4 Mad Dog And Glory (3:53); 5 Window Magic (4:07); 6 Just A Gigolo (I Ain't Got Nobody)(I. Caesar/L.N. Casucci/S. Williams/R. Graham)(4:42) Louis Prima; 7 That Old Black Magic (H. Arlen/J. Mercer)(2:55) Louis Prima, Keely Smith.

Review: When the best selections in a soundtrack album happen to be the pop tunes, you know something is definitely wrong. Sad to say, but the most enjoyable moments in this album are the two vocals by Louis Prima and Keely Smith. Evidently, this tired comedy starring Bill Murray as a police photographer, Robert De Niro as a gangster, and Uma Thurman as the gangster's moll, did not inspire Elmer Bernstein much. With the exception of a few moments within the tracks "Frank and Wayne" and "Window Magic," his music is rather forgettable, a series of riffs that go nowhere and mean even less. The listener is not inspired, either.

Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome

1985, EMI Records; from the movie Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre.

Selections: 1 We Don't Need Another Hero (Thunderdome)(T. Britten/G. Lyle) (6:07) Tina Turner; 2 One Of The Living (H. Knight) (5:58) Tina Turner; 3 We Don't Need Another Hero (Thunderdome)(T. Britten/G. Lyle)(instrumental) (6:30) Tina Turner; 4 Bartertown (8:27); 5 The Children (2:12); 6 Coming Home (15:12).

Review: For the third and final Mad Max installment, styled as a Lawrence of Arabia desert adventure, director George Miller turned to none other than the composer of Lawrence, Maurice Jarre. The resultant score is large, sweeping and distinctly Jarre, featuring orchestra, choir, an Ondes Martenot (an early electronic instrument), Australian didgeridoo, a few pop elements, and a variety of percussion. Fortunately, Jarre is the kind of composer whose style is distinct enough to focus this kind of kitchen-sink scale, and Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome is one of the most exciting scores of the past two decades. Jarre eschews the machinery-and-gasoline grit of Brian May's sound world, and follows Max's turn as a leader of lost children to their promised land with symphonic grandeur. With Tai-Pan and Enemy Mine, this soundtrack forms a triptych of somewhat clunky but exciting mid-'80s Jarre scores, orchestrated to the brim by the late Christopher Palmer. The album includes three pop songs along with the 25 minutes of score, including the Tina Turner hit "We Don't Need Another Hero" (she's also the villain in the film), but unfortunately leaves off Jarre's pumped-up and slightly deranged "two men enter, one man leaves" fanfare and battle music for the Thunderdome duel itself.

The Madness of King George

1994, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie The Madness of King George, Samuel Goldwyn Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Georg-Friedrich Handel; Arranged and adapted by George Fenton; Orchestrations: George Fenton; Baroque Orchestra, conducted by Nicholas Kraemer; Album Producer: George Fenton, Eliza Thompson; Engineers: Keith Grant, Peter Mew.

Selections: 1 Opening The Houses Of Parliament (4:11); 2 Prelude (1:25); 3 The Madness Of King George Front Titles (3:09); 4 Smile, It's What You're Paid For (1:00); 5 The King Goes Riding (2:23); 6 A Family Matter (2:25); 7 The Cricket Match (1:35); 8 The King Wakes Up Early/Do It, England (3:38); 9 The Concert (2:51); 10 We Have No Time (1:48); 11 He Will Be Restrained (2:20); 12 London Is Flooded (3:56); 13 Going To Kew (1:47); 14 Starting To Recover (2:52); 15 The Chancellor Drives To London (2:07); 16 The Prince Regent (1:37); 17 Mr. And Mrs. King (3:04); 18 The Madness Of King George End Credits (4:48).

Review: When he made this historic drama about the court of George III of England and the King's slow descent into obsession and madness, director Nicholas Hytner felt intuitively that only the music of Handel would seem appropriate for his film. But in order to give the music a cinematic edge, he asked George Fenton to select the various pieces that eventually were shaped into the score, and to adapt and arrange them. Fenton, who deliberately took a back seat to his illustrious predecessor, succeeded in giving Handel's compositions a slightly modern sound and made them more appropriately cinematographic. As such, they remain sufficiently close to their origins to please classicists and dramatic enough to attract fans of film music. Lovers of baroque music, in particular, will appreciate what Fenton has done with the well-known extracts from "Music for the Royal Fireworks" and "Water Music." In only one case, "A Family Matter," did Fenton write his own cue, using themes by Handel, in a way that doesn't betray the style of the score, but in fact enhances it. The only reservation one can formulate about the album is that the playing sometimes lacks excitement.

Magdalene

1992, Intrada Records; from the movie Magdalene, Tat Films, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Cliff Eidelman; Orchestrations: Mark Watters; The Munich Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Cliff Eidelman; Album Producer: Cliff Eidelman; Engineer: Alan Snelling.

Selections: 1 The Revolution (2:22); 2 The Death Of Hans (4:07); 3 Magdalene In Love (1:06); 4 Father Mohr (3:45); 5 Going To Heaven (2:32); 6 The Archbishop's Entertainment (1:52); 7 The Aftermath Of War (4:45); 8 Christmas Time (1:59); 9 Absolve Me Of My Sins (4:01); 10 Temptation (4:42); 11 Silent Night (:48); 12 Freedom In Salzburg (1:56); 13 Magdalene's Prayer (5:11); 14 Kyrie Eleison (1:31); 15 Will You Forget Me (1:10); 16 Mohr's Farewell (4:32).

Review: Cliff Eidelman's first score is a magnificent example of his understanding about what makes film music fulfill its function on the screen and as an audio-only experience. The story of an 18th-century prostitute willing to change her ways after she meets a dedicated priest, the story prompted Eidelman to write a strongly inspirational score, permeated with the music of the Church, "the all empowered force in the lives of all the characters," but also reflective of the young composer's beautiful melodic sense. Several cues attract particularly, "Magdalene in Love," a short but expressive piece, and "Father Mohr," in which Eidelman paints the serene portrait of a man of the cloth suddenly caught in a very human love dilemma; also "The Archbishop's Entertainment," written in the style of the period, around a theme that's pleasantly understated but quite effective, and the mournful "Mohr's Farewell," passionately romantic and florid. Quite impressive for a 22-year-old.

Magic in the Water

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Magic in the Water, Tri-Star Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: David Schwartz; Orchestrations: William T. Stromberg, Lennie Moore; Music Editor: Sharon H. Smith; Orchestra conducted by William T. Stromberg; Album Producer: David Schwartz; Engineer: Jeff Vaughn, Glen Neibaur.

Selections: 1 Clouds/Frank Gets Orked (4:04); 2 Ride To Glenorky (1:00); 3 Uncle Kipper (1:36); 4 Oreos For Orky (2:02); 5 Ashley Gets A Grip (5:09); 6 Grow Up (2:47); 7 Come, Must Hurry (3:57); 8 Sand Castles/The Lake (2:16); 9 Damn Monster Huggers (2:24); 10 Joe Pickletrout (1:06); 11 The Kids Chase Orky/Dorky Sinks (5:10); 12 Orky's Cave (3:50); 13 Ashley And Jack/ Transformation (4:58).

Review: Disappointing effort by David Schwartz, who has done much more creative things on the TV series "Northern Exposure." Pretty and pleasant enough to service this minor kiddie feature, this score is so average that little of it remains after you've listened to it. Uninspiring.

The Magnificent Ambersons

1990, Preamble Records; from the movie The Magnificent Ambersons, RKO Radio Pictures, 1942.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; The Australian Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Tony Bremner; Featured Musicians: Neville Taweel (violin), Henry Wenig (cello), Janet Perkins (organ); Album Producer: Maria Vandamme; Engineer: Robin Gray; Assistant Engineer: Adam Rowland.

Selections: 1 Theme & Variations/George's Homecoming (7:14); 2 Snow Ride (3:00); 3 The Door/Death & Youth (1:01); 4 Toccata (1:07); 5 Pleasure Trip (1:01); 6 Prelude (1:25); 7 First Nocturne (4:03); 8 Garden Scene (1:09); 9 Fantasia (2:05); 10 Scene Pathetique (2:14); 11 Waiting 1 and 2 (1:27); 12 Ostinato (1:47); 13 First Letter Scene (3:20); 14 Second Letter Scene/ Romanza (2:07); 15 Second Nocturne (3:17); 16 Departure/ Isabel's Death (1:43); 17 First Reverie/Second Reverie (2:35); 18 The Walk Home (2:44); 19 Garden Music (2:54); 20 Elegy (1:18); 21 End Title (2:19).

Review: A companion volume to the complete Citizen Kane (q.v.), this magnificent recording brings together the same team—producer John Lasher, conductor Tony Bremner, and the players of the Australian Philharmonic Orchestra—in a reading of another early score by Bernard Herrmann, skillfully reconstructed for this occasion. As would be expected, the results are nothing less than splendid. Next to Citizen Kane, The Magnificent Ambersons, also directed by Orson Welles, was probably one of Herrmann's most impressive achievements, even though, like the film itself, the composer's original music was treated with total disregard by studio executives who discarded many of the cues as the film was being recut to fit their own concept of it.

Compared with the brooding aura that pervaded his earlier score, however, the music for Magnificent Ambersons reveals Herrmann in a somewhat lighter mood, with the chamber music approach resulting in a texture that strikes for its sheer simplicity. Throughout individual instruments are called upon to provide an anchor for themes that are catchy and melodic, with the whole score emerging at once as a brilliant

HENRY MANCINI

Henry Mancini was a composer, songwriter, and recording artist who became one of the most prolific composers of film scores of the 1960s and 1970s. He was a staff composer for Universal in the early 1950s, working on the jazz-oriented movies The Glenn Miller Story (for which he received his first Oscar nomination in 1954) and The Benny Goodman Story (1956). But it was his work in television, with theme songs for the series "Peter Gunn" and "Mr. Lucky" that first brought him fame. Those series marked the beginning of an association with director Blake Edwards that was to be very productive for both men.

Mancini's work on Edwards' Breakfast at Tiffany's (1961) earned him his first two Academy Awards, one for the score and one for Best Song, "Moon River," with lyrics by Johnny Mercer. Mercer and Mancini teamed up the following year for another Academy Award-winning song, the title tune from Edward's Days of Wine and Roses.

Mancini's most famous film theme was the score for Blake Edwards' The Pink Panther (1964). Like "Inspector Clouseau," the bumbling hero of the series, the animated animal (complete with theme song) had a long and prosperous life in six films, a cartoon series, and advertisements. The theme won 1964 Grammy awards for Best Instrumental Arrangement, Best Instrumental Composition, and Best Instrumental Performance in the non-jazz categories. Among his other Edward's collaborations have been the backstage musicals Darling Lili and Victor-Victoria.

Born in Cleveland, Ohio, on April 16, 1924, Mancini studied flute and taught himself piano as a child. He continued composing film scores up until a few years before his death in 1994.

and thoroughly compelling effort. The recording itself is for the most part superb, with just a slight distortion on the left channel in a couple of tracks and studio noises to make it slightly less than perfect.

The Magnificent Seven

1996, Koch International; from the movie The Magnificent Seven, United Artists, 1962.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Elmer Bernstein, Christopher Palmer; The Phoenix Symphony Orchestra, conducted by James Sedares; Album Producer: Michael Fine; Engineer: Michael Fine.

Selections: 1 Main Titles and Calvera's Visit (4:01); 2 Council Of War (3:40); 3 Strange Funeral (4:46); 4 After The Brawl (2:28); 5 The Journey (3:51); 6 Toreador (2:15); 7 Training (1:34); 8 Fiesta and Celebration (1:59); 9 Calvera's Return (2:11); 10 Calvera Routed and Petra's Declaration (3:49); 11 Ambush (3:06); 12 Surprise and Crossroads (7:27); 13 Enemy Camp and Nightmare (1:50); 14 Defeat (3:41); 15 Showdown and Finale (10:31); 16 The Hallelujah Trail: Overture for Chorus and Orchestra (6:54) Arizona State University Concert Choir.

Review: Amazingly, this popular western never actually yielded a soundtrack album. When it originally came out, United Artists included the main theme in a compilation album. Later on, the label did release the soundtrack from Return of the Seven, also composed by Bernstein, which reprised the main theme from the first film. Neither of these has been reissued on compact disc at this writing.

The 1993 Koch recording, reconstructed and edited by the composer with musicologist Christopher Palmer, includes many cues from the original score new to the recorded medium, played in breathtaking fashion by the Phoenix Symphony, a recent comer on the film music scene. It is everything a western score should be, fiery, exciting, and open-spaced, a superb demonstration of everything that makes this kind of film music so vibrant and entertaining. This CD is another essential addition to any collection.

The Main Event

1989, Columbia Records; from the movie The Main Event, Warner Bros., 1979.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Melvoin; Orchestra conducted by Michael Melvoin; Album Producer: Barwood Films Ltd.; Engineer: John Arrias.

Selections: 1 The Main Event (P. Jabara/B. Roberts)/Fight (P. Jabara/B. Esty)(11:40) Barbra Streisand; 2 The Body Shop (G. Michalski/N. Oversteen) (5:15) Michalski & Oversteen; 3 The Main Event (P. Jabara/B. Roberts)/Fight (P. Jabara/B. Esty)(short version)(4:55) Barbra Streisand; 4 Copeland Meets The Coasters/Get A Job (:57); 5 Big Girls Don't Cry (B. Crewe/B. Gaudio)(2:28) Frankie Valli, The Four Seasons; 6 It's Your Foot Again (3:09); 7 Angry Eyes (K. Loggins/J. Messina)(2:26) Loggins & Messina; 8 I'd Clean A Fish For You (1:03); 9 The Main Event (P. Jabara/B. Roberts)(ballad)(4:17) Barbra Streisand.

Review: Barbra Streisand is always good for a moment, even when she wants to spar with beau hunk Ryan O'Neal, as is the case in this 1979 film in which Streisand tries to recover the money she'd lost on boxer O'Neal by getting him back in shape for a championship match. Lucky for her fans, she also had Paul Jabara to write a knockout of a song ("The Main Event") for her, even though she overstated it by recording it three times, in case the loooong first version was not enough. Loggins & Messina and Frankie Valli & The Four Seasons also contributed shorter songs for an album that's relatively pleasant, all things considered.

Malcolm X

Malcolm X

1992, Qwest Records; from the movie Malcolm X, Warner Bros., 1992.

Album Notes: Album Executive Producers: Quincy Jones, Spike Lee; Engineer: Lee Herschberg.

Selections: 1 Revolution (T. Thomas/T. Aerle Jones)(4:49) Arrested Development; 2 Roll 'Em Pete (P. Johnson/J. Turner)(3:45) Joe Turner; 3 Flying Home (B. Goodman/L. Hampton)(3:15) Lionel Hampton; 4 My Prayer (J. Kennedy/G. Boulanger)(3:16) The Ink Spots; 5 Big Stuff (L. Bernstein)(2:29) Billie Holiday; 6 Don't Cry Baby (J. Johnson/S. Unger/S. Bernie)(3:21) Erskine Hawkins; 7 Brass And Cornbread (F. Clark/E. Moore)(2:51) Louis Jordan; 8 Azure (E.K. Ellington)(2:22) Ella Fitzgerald; 9 Alabama (J. Coltrane)(2:26) John Coltrane; 10 That Lucky Old Sun (Just Rolls Around Heaven)(D. Gillespie/B. Smith)(4:23) Dizzy Gillespie; 11 Arabesque Cookie (E.K. Ellington/B. Strayhorn)(5:47) Duke Ellington; 12 Shotgun (A. DeWalt) (3:03) Jr. Walker & The All-Stars; 13 Someday We'll All Be Free (D. Hathaway/E. Howard)(8:21) Aretha Franklin.

Malcolm X

1992, Columbia Records; from the movie Malcolm X, Warner Bros., 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Terence Blanchard; Orchestra conducted by Terence Blanchard; Featured Musicians: Terence Blanchard, James Hynes, John Longo (trumpet), Mike Davis, Britt Woodman, Timothy Williams (trombones), Jerry Dodgion, Jerome Richardson, Branford Marsalis (saxophone), Sir Roland Hanna, Bruce Barth (piano), Tarus Mateen, Nedra Wheeler (bass), Eugene Jackson, Jr. (drums); Album Producer: Terence Blanchard; Engineer: James P. Nichols.

Selections: 1 Opening Credits (2:15) The Boys Choir Of Harlem; 2 Young Malcolm (2:16) The Boys Choir Of Harlem; 3 Cops And Robbers (:45); 4 Earl's Death (:38); 5 Flashback (4:19); 6 Numbers (1:12); 7 Fire (1:43); 8 Back To Boston (1:00); 9 Malcolm Meets Baines (3:05); 10 Black And White (3:56); 11 Little Lamb Vision (3:47); 12 Malcolm's Letter (1:40); 13 Malcolm Meets Elijah (1:55); 14 The Old Days (4:00); 15 Betty's Theme (1:03); 16 Fruit Of Islam (3:51); 17 First Minister (2:28) The Boys Choir Of Harlem; 18 Betty's Conflict (3:33); 19 Malcolm Speaks To Secretaries (1:42); 20 Malcolm Confronts Baines (2:16); 21 Chickens Come Home (1:03); 22 Going To Mecca (1:51); 23 Firebomb (2:51); 24 Assassins (:48); 25 Assassination (:46); 26 Eulogy (3:51) The Boys Choir Of Harlem.

The Malcolm X Jazz Suite

1992, Columbia Records; from the movie Malcolm X, Warner Bros., 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Terence Blanchard; Featured Musicians: Terence Blanchard (trumpet), Sam Newsom (tenor saxophone), Bruce Bath (piano), Troy Davis (drums), Tarus Mateen (bass); Album Producer: Terence Blanchard; Engineer: James P. Nichols.

Selections: 1 The Opening (8:30); 2 Melody For Laura (6:26); 3 Theme For Elijah (5:24); 4 Blues For Malcolm (12:06); 5 The Nation (4:54); 6 Malcolm's Theme (6:07); 7 Betty's Theme (7:39); 8 Malcolm Makes Hajj (4:37); 9 Malcolm At Peace (11:22); 10 Perpetuity (4:30); 11 Malcolm's Theme (1:47).

Review: Musically, Spike Lee's impressive cinematographic portrait of Malcolm X is solidly rooted in the sights and sounds of the 1960s, and in the flavorful jazz themes Terence Blanchard created for the film.

The first aspect of this musical background can be found in the compilation released by Quincy Jones' Qwest label. Dismissing the first track, "Revolution," which is too contemporary to even suggest the period when Malcolm X thrived (a better, and more historically appropriate choice would have been a recording by The Last Poets), the rest of the album presents various gratifying performances by some of the top black entertainers from the 1940s through the 1960s, including Lionel Hampton, The Ink Spots, Billie Holiday, Ella Fitzgerald, John Coltrane, Ray Charles, Duke Ellington, and Aretha Franklin, in a compilation that astutely combines rhythm and blues and jazz. It's an excellent cross-section of both genres, and it effectively reflects the historic background of the film itself.

The two recordings from Columbia, on the other hand, present Terence Blanchard's underscoring for the film, the first volume as it was in the original score, the second volume in a more jazz-flavored rearrangement that brings together many of the cues into a consistent programming concept. Featuring several vocals by the Boys Choir Of Harlem, the score is a strong, evocative affair. Instrumental cues played by a symphonic orchestra are sometimes augmented by soloists Branford Marsalis or Blanchard himself, and interspersed with more jazz-oriented numbers in which Blanchard leads a group of seasoned musicians, which includes Marsalis, Sir Roland Hanna, Jerome Richardson, and Jerry Dodgion, among others. Those various elements combine to create a music that is diversified, strongly eloquent, and a fitting complement to the screen action.

The "Malcolm X Jazz Suite" presents a more coherent and unified picture of the music Blanchard wrote, with the cues reorganized into a seamless series of themes, performed by a jazz combo. It's another innovative approach to what is a profuse score to begin with, with many undertones that truly deserve to be fully exploited and expressed in as many modes as possible. Listeners who may not be inclined to sit through the score album itself, might delight in this musical extrapolation which fills a gap and adds new textures to the original music.

Malice

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Malice, Castle Rock Entertainment, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton, Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:31); 2 A Lift Home (1:45); 3 No Friends (1:33); 4 With Malice (2:54); 5 The Handyman (2:45); 6 Clues (7:15); 7 No Choice (2:39); 8 The Body (10:43).

Review: Made in the wake of Basic Instinct, Malice co-opted the earlier film's mix of eroticism and moral confusion and Goldsmith's score for it ranges from extensions of Basic Instinct's pulsing chase music to some climactic brass chords that might have been more at home in a science fiction movie. The best thing about the album is the opening theme, built off a hesitant, simple keyboard melody with a tense, building string chord that gives way to a haunting female chorus singing a beautiful title melody; it's the flip side of Goldsmith's lullaby-like Poltergeist title theme. Unfortunately much of the later suspense cues give in to the current "less-is-more" school of droning, textureless monotony that just doesn't make for very interesting listening.

Glimcher)(4:26) Los Lobos.

Review: Percolating Caribbean polyrhythms are the order of the day here, played by some of the finest progenitors of the form. You may not recognize a single name in the Mambo All-Stars, but you won't be thinking about that as you soak in the group's crisp performances. Tito Puente's rendition of "Cuban Pete" will make you forget about Jim Carrey's campy hit version from The Mask, while Linda Ronstadt, Arturo Sandoval, Celia Cruz and Los Lobs make valuable contributions to this mambo music primer.

A Man and a Woman/ Live for Life

1996, DRG Records; from the movies A Man and a Woman, Allied Artists, 1965, and Live for Life, United Artists, 1967.

Album Notes: Music: Francis Lai, Baden Powell, Vinicius de Moraes.

Selections: A MAN AND A WOMAN: 1 A Man And A Woman (2:39); 2 Samba Saravah (B. Powell/V. De Moraes/P. Barouh)(4:33) Pierre Barouh, with Baden Powell and Orchestra; 3 Aujourd'hui c'est toi (F. Lai/P. Barouh)(2:07) Nicole Croisille; 4 Un homme et une femme (F. Lai/P. Barouh)(2:36) Nicole Croisille, Pierre Barouh; 5 Stronger Than Us (3:16); 6 Today It's You (2:31); 7 A l'ombre de nous (F. Lai/P. Barouh)(4:54) Pierre Barouh; 8 Plus fort que nous (F. Lai/P. Barouh)(3:43) Nicole Croisille, Pierre Barouh; 9 124 Miles An Hour (2:28);

LIVE FOR LIFE: 10 Live For Life (3:05); 11 Theme To Catherine (2:53); 12 Theme To Candice (1:44); 13 Live For Life (3:07); 14 Des ronds dans l'eau (R. Le Senechal/P. Barouh/S. Miller)(3:14) Nicole Croisille, Annie Girardot; 15 Theme To Catherine (2:00); 16 Theme To Robert (3:18); 17 Live For Life (2:26); 18 Aujourd'hui c'est toi (F. Lai/P. Barouh/J. Keller)(2:39) Louis Aldebert; 19 Zoom (2:12); 20 Live For Life (2:49).

Review: Francis Lai achieved international fame for the first score, driven by the theme that permeates Claude Lelouch's sensitive study of a widow with a child (Anouk Aimee), and the car racer (Jean-Louis Trintignant), who meet, fall in love, separate and eventually get back together. The Oscar-winning film launched the career of Lelouch, and helped establish Lai as another French composer (after Michel Legrand and Maurice Jarre) whose music struck a responsive note worldwide. Live for Life, Lelouch's follow-up failed to get the same recognition, though Lai again delivered another fine, compelling score. In both, the songs performed in both French and English contribute enormously to the overall appreciation of the music.

The Man from Snowy River

1982, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Man from Snowy River, 20th Century-Fox, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Rowland; Orchestrations: Bruce Rowland; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Rowland; Album Producers: Tom Null, Chris Kuchler; Engineers: Roger Savage, Ian McKenzie.

Selections: 1 Main Theme (1:23); 2 Jim's Ride (1:28); 3 The Chase (4:59); 4 Jessica's Theme (Breaking In The Colt)(3:18); 5 Henry Dies/Farewell To Frew (1:45); 6 Rosemary Recalls (1:22); 7 Mountain Theme (1:51); 8 Jessica's Sonata (:47); 9 Jim Brings In The Brumbies (1:58); 10 Clancy's Theme (trad.)(2:06); 11 The Brumbies (2:09); 12 Harrison Homestead/Jim Gets His Horse (2:28); 13 Searching For Jessica (3:58); 14 End Titles (3:54).

Review: A western made down under, The Man from Snowy River, based on a well-known poem, found Kirk Douglas in a dual role as two brothers, one a respected landowner, the other a gruff prospector, engaged in a fratricidal struggle on the wild Australian range. The spectacular film sports a sensational score by Bruce Rowland, evidently tailored after the scores written by Hollywood composers for this type of film, but with a definite touch of originality and themes that are stimulating to the extreme. Amid the pulse-racing, throbbing action cues developed by the composer, magnificently performed in a recording that has a booming, resonant sound to it well-suited for this kind of music, Rowland strikes a more romantic note in cues like the gorgeous "Jessica's Theme (Breaking in the Colt)," or the equally lovely "Rosemary Recalls," which gave his score greater depth and sentimental appeal.

The Man in the Moon

1991, Reprise Records; from the movie The Man in the Moon, M-G-M, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter; Orchestra conducted by Marty Paich; Featured Musicians: Dean Parks (guitar), David Grisman (mandolin), Michael Fisher (percussion), James Newton Howard (piano), Jay Rosen (violin); Album Producers: James Newton Howard, Michael Mason; Engineer: Robert Schaper, Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineers: Sue MacLean, Sharon Rice, Charlie Paakkari.

Selections: 1 Dani Brings Court Water (3:36); 2 Back Door (1:18); 3 First Kiss (1:48); 4 Lovemaking (1:02); 5 My Goodness (1:14); 6 The Walk (1:13); 7 The Pond (:56); 8 Dani Remembers (1:31); 9 The Funeral (2:54); 10 Daydreaming (1:20); 11 Court's Accident (3:00); 12 End Titles (2:32); 13 Go Home (1:09); 14 Girls In Hallway (:30); 15 Dani And Dad (:27); 16 Swimming Hole (1:23); 17 Dani Sees Court (1:20); 18 Graveyard (3:10).

Review: A lovely score by James Newton Howard accompanies Robert Mulligan's beautiful examination of the trials and tribulations of a young girl growing up in 1957 Louisiana farm country. Howard interpolates some atmospheric guitar riffs into his score, giving the music a "down home" feel while at the same time it uses the orchestra poignantly to accentuate the drama of the story. The music feels small and intimate in nature, a perfect score for a character-driven piece, and also an ideal listening experience for anyone searching for strong themes that aren't overwhelmingly melodramatic or saccharine in emotional quality. At times the music has a wistful, melancholic edge to it, but perhaps that's unsurprising given Mulligan's previous cinematic portrayals of growing up—classics which include Summer of '42 and To Kill a Mockingbird. Both of those pictures have outstanding scores, and Howard's music for The Man in the Moon is not at all out of place in their company.

Man on Fire

1987, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Man on Fire, Tri-Star Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: John Scott; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineer: Peter Kramper.

Selections: 1 Man On Fire (4:43); 2 The Bomb (2:50); 3 Snake's First Victim (2:03); 4 Sam Wins The Race (2:00); 5 The Villa At Night (1:40); 6 The Ransom Drop (1:47); 7 Start Of The Search (2:38); 8 Death Of Creasy (2:52); 9 Becoming Friends (1:49); 10 The Kidnapping (1:09); 11 We've Got Each Other (1:56); 12 Rabbia Must Die (3:07); 13 Sam Runs Into Danger (1:11); 14 Reconciliation (1:44); 15 Premature Death (1:45); 16 Reunited (3:14).

Review: John Scott fashions some of his more memorable romantic themes and terrifying suspense cues in this score. Dealing with the relationship between a bodyguard and the young girl he is assigned to protect, the film has been forgotten, but John Scott's music remains effective and highly listenable. Most suspense scores during the '80s are little more than dreary electronic noise, but Scott went against the grain of the time by scoring Man of Fire with a surging, powerful orchestral score. Even the subdued passages grab the listener. The first track, "Man of Fire" opens with tremolo violins beneath a tender flute melody, which at once evokes delicacy and trepidation. This opens up into the main theme, a beautiful, lushly romantic piece. Some of the score's other highlights include "Start of the Search" with its snarling rock and roll drums and marimba, and the surging and triumphant "Sam Wins the Race". Scott's skillful and adroit gift for orchestration pervades the score. The music works beautifully on disc, cues often flowing together seamlessly. Track changes are often not noticed. So effective was this score that some of it was actually later used in Die Hard.

Man Trouble

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Man Trouble, 20th Century-Fox, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Georges Delerue; Music Editor: Curtis Roush; Orchestra conducted by Georges Delerue; Album Producer: Georges Delerue; Engineer: Robert Fernandez.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:48); 2 Duking It Out With The Duke (1:04); 3 Love Theme (2:13); 4 Joan Throws A Fit (3:00); 5 Introducing June (:51); 6 Making Love (1:55); 7 Nocturne in E-Flat, Op. 9, No. 2 (F. Chopin) (4:40); 8 Romance And Garage Assault (4:37); 9 The Red Negligee (2:38); 10 Hospital Scam (5:41); 11 Harry Searches For The Book (1:50); 12 It's Over (1:38); 13 Through The Hospital (1:44); 14 Harry And Eddie Fight (1:11); 15 The Helicopter (1:36); 16 Man Trouble End Titles (2:45).

Review: Throughout his life, Georges Delerue particularly excelled at catching the varied moods in romantic comedies, all at once exhibiting the drama and passion usually needed for this type of screen fare, and informing the audience without being necessarily obvious about the general intent. Man Trouble, about a well-known musician pursued by an admirer who decides to acquire a guard dog and gets involved with its trainer, elicited a score that reflects both aspects, in a rich display of melodic themes in "Love Theme" and "Making Love" and pleasantly lilting cues in "Joan Throws a Fit" and "Harry and Eddie Fight." A fitting coda to his career, Delerue died shortly after completing this score.

The Man Who Would Be King

1990, Bay Cities; from the film The Man Who Would Be King, Allied Artists, 1975.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: Carl Prager; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 The Man Who Would be King (3:08); 2 Sikandergul (2:36); 3 Journey To Kafiristan (5:20); 4 The King's March (1:58); 5 Bashkai's (2:08); 6 Pushtukan (3:14); 7 The Dream (2:36); 8 Roxanne (3:15); 9 Dravor's Farewell (trad.)(3:40) Sean Connery, Michael Caine; 10 End Title (2:31).

Review: Maurice Jarre always seems at his best when he scores epic films, and this was again clearly the case when he wrote the music for John Huston's hearty account of Rudyard Kipling's story about two English con men in late 18th-century India who journey to distant Kafiristan, a remote Himalyan kingdom, where they become de facto rulers after they take control of the country's warring tribes. Happily mixing Hindu sounds with swashbuckling accents, Jarre wrote a score that, like the film, never takes itself too seriously, while it details the action on the screen with its broad, grander-than-life posturing. The whimsical main theme, heard throughout, further enhances the frequently rollicking aspects of this entertaining rags-to-riches tale of friendship and adventure.

The Man with the Golden Gun

1988, EMI-Manhattan Records; from the movie The Man with the Golden Gun, United Artists, 1974.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Lyrics: Don Black; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: John Barry.

Selections: 1 Main Title: The Man With The Golden Gun (2:38) Lulu; 2 Scaramanga's Fun House (4:40); 3 Chew Me In Crisly Land (4:02); 4 The Man With The Golden Gun (2:33); 5 Getting The Bullet (2:46); 6 Goodnight Goodnight (5:25); 7 Let's Go Get 'Em (3:45); 8 Hip's Trip (3:22); 9 Kung Fu Fight (1:58); 10 In Search Of Scaramanga's Island (2:32); 11 Return To Scaramanga's Fun House (6:30); 12 End Title: The Man With The Golden Gun (3:06) Lulu.

Review: Despite more than ten years scoring the James Bond series, John Barry never fell prey to creative staleness. Of all his Bond scores, The Man with the Golden Gun is his most fun and tongue-in-cheek. The score is colorful and broad, encompassing a wide array of styles. The album kicks off with a wildly nutty title song, sung by Lulu, with typically hokey lyrics by Don Black. The ensuing score has beautifully exotic passages evoking the Hong Kong setting of the film, invested with ethnic instrumental color. "Kung Fu Fight" is a giddy romp and something of an homage to Albert Kettelby's "In a Chinese Temple." Also fun is Barry's dixieland arrangement of the main theme.

The score is of course not without the more dangerous moments, which mark it as a 007 score. Barry pulls out the James Bond theme in "Lets Go Get 'Em", and furnishes a suspenseful, almost chilling climax in "Return to Scaramanga's Fun House." The album closes with a reprise of the title song,this time with even sillier lyrics. Anyone expecting the hard edge of Goldfinger will be disappointed, but The Man With The Golden Gun score is a highly entertaining and fun soundtrack.

After skipping out on the first Roger Moore 007 epic, Live and Let Die, John Barry returned to the series for this sub-par outing that suffers from a too-eclectic mix of musical styles. Barry's rich, majestic main theme, often played by low strings, is a melodically beautiful yet manly Orientalism that functions well in both broad orchestral statements, to color the film's lush tropical settings, and during some staccato chase sequences. Unfortunately it's a washout as belted out by British pop crooner Lulu in the film's title song, an incredibly cheesy pop/rock anthem that doesn't exactly conjure up memories of Shirley Bassey in her prime. Elsewhere the chase and suspense cues are often compromised by the tongue-in-cheek intrusion of off-kilter comic and atmospheric effects, like a hideous slide whistle in the middle of an otherwise exciting car chase cue and excruciating honky-tonk piano and jazz band sections during Bond's final showdown with the villain Scaramanga.

The Man Without a Face

1992, Philips Records; from the film The Man Without a Face, Warner Bros., 1992.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Tom Pasatieri; Music Editors: Jim Henrikson; The London Symphony Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 A Father's Legacy (6:14); 2 Chuck's First Lesson (2:49); 3 Flying (3:49); 4 McLeod's Secret Life (1:58); 5 Nightmares and Revelations (4:22); 6 McLeod's Last Letter (2:58); 7 Lost Books (1:57); 8 The Merchant Of Venice (2:55); 9 The Tutor (3:21); 10 No Compromise (4:56); 11 "Ch'ella mi creda" (G. Puccini) (2:26) Jussi Bjoerling; 12 Lookout Point/End Credits (7:57).

Review: The compelling story of a man whose scarred face and taciturn behavior have made him an outcast in a small Maine community and the fatherless 12-year-old who befriends him, The Man Without a Face prompted James Horner, writing in an uncharacteriscally low-key mode, to create a very sensitive, admirably nuanced score. Quickly establishing the moods that pervade the film, "A Father's Legacy" is a romantic theme, with the piano playing a quiet melody against soft orchestral textures, a device repeated in various cues, most effectively in "Chuck's First Lesson," "The Merchant of Venice," and "Lookout Point."

Mandela: Son of Africa, Father of a Nation

1996, Mango Records; from the documentary Mandela: Son of Africa, Father of a Nation, Island Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Cedric Gradus Samson.

Selections: 1 Robben Island Ambiance (:30); 2 Father Of Our Nation (3:30) Jennifer Jones, Hugh Masekela; 3 Childhood (1:36); 4 Sign n' Fly (N.Piliso) (4:11) The African Jazz Pioneers; 5 In The Queue (T. Matshikizo/P. Williams) (2:15) Original Cast of the All-African Jazz Opera ''King Kong''; 6 Yiyole (E. Nomvete) (2:37) The Havana Swingers; 7 Oula Kgosi Seretse (M. Schume) (2:30) Manhattan Brothers; 10 De Makeba (M. Davashe) (2:46) The Jazz Dazzlers; 11 Lalelani (M. Makeba) (2:50) The Skylarks; 12 Mandela – Madiba (:57); 13 Toyi Toyi Mix (trad.) (2:30) The African National Congress Choir; 14 Heavyweight (W. Swinney/ L. Rampolokeng) (2:56) The Kalahari Surfers, Lesego Rampolokeng; 15 Wars Of Old (:56); 16 Asimbonanga (Mandela) (J. Clegg) (4:47) Johnny Clegg, Savuka; 17 Family Theme (1:16); 18 Nelson Mandela (J. Dammers) (4:29) The Specials; 19 Rest In Peace (:34); 20 When You Come Back (V. Mahlasela) (4:05) Vusi Mahlasela; 21 Transkei (1:01); 22 Guns And Pangas (W. Swinney/S. Naidoo) (4:11) The Kalahari Surfers, Shaun Naidoo; 23 Sad Song (:42); 24 Phansi Ngodlame (B. Mlangeni) (4:13) Babsy Mlangeni; 25 Mmalo-we (J. Khanyile/T. Khomo) (6:19) Bayete and Jobu Khanyile; 26 Black President (B. Fassie/S. Chicco Twala) (4:28) Brenda Fassie.

Review: A documentary that lionizes Nelson Mandela while chronicling his life struggle and eventual victory against apartheid (but at what cost!), Mandela, Son of Africa, Father of a Nation offers an uncompromising portrait of the South African leader. Making the film even more vibrant is its soundtrack, in which a large number of South African performers add their voices to create an exciting musical portrait of the man and his time. There are many remarkable moments in this recording, some a little too brief, that all add up to a vivid description of a moment in humanity's long-winded history.

The Marrying Man

1991, Hollywood Records; from The Marrying Man, Hollywood Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: David Newman; Music Editor: Tom Villano; Scoring Engineer & Mixing: Tim Boyle; Featured Artists: Stan Getz (tenor sax), Don Menza (tenor sax), Jack Sheldon (trumpet), Chuck Findley (trumpet); Album Producer: Tim Hauser; Engineer: Gary Lux.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:50); 2 Let's Do It (C. Porter)(3:33) Kim Basinger; 3 L.D.'s Bounce (T. Hauser)(2:05); 4 "Murder" He Says (J. McHugh/F. Loesser)(2:33) Kim Basinger; 5 Honeysuckle Rose (T. Waller/A. Razaf)(3:12) Kim Basinger; 6 You're Driving Me Crazy (What Did I Do?)(W. Donaldson)(2:00) Alan Paul; 7 Backstage Beat-Up (3:30); 8 Why Can't You Behave (C. Porter) (3:37) Kim Basinger; 9 Satisfy My Soul (B. Johnson)(2:57) Kim Basinger; 10 Let's Do It (reprise)(C. Porter)(2:29) Kim Basinger; 11 Run, Charley, Run (4:48); 12 Mama Look A Boo Boo (L. Melody)(2:49) Tim Hauser; 13 Love Is The Thing (V. Young/N. Washington)(4:45) Kim Basinger.

Review: Though an inconsequential little comedy set in 1948 Las Vegas, The Marrying Man resulted in a great jazz album. With stalwarts Stan Getz, Don Menza, Jack Sheldon and Chuck Findley providing the solos, and Manhattan Transfer's Tim Hauser producing the album and contributing a fancy rendition of "Mama Look A Boo Boo," the flavor of the album is unmistakable and a total gas. Even Kim Basinger, not known previously as a singer, reveals a new side of her talent as a vocalist in several standards in which her delivery is quite acceptable, though her version of "Honeysuckle Rose" seems a trifle lifeless. David Newman, writing in a style also unusual for him, turns in some terrific big band cues with "Backstage Beat-Up," "Run, Charley, Run," and the "Main Title."

Mars Attacks!

1996, Atlantic Classics Records; from the movie Mars Attacks!, Warner Bros., 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek, Edgardo Simon, Mark McKenzie; Music Editors: Ellen Segal, Bob Badami; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producers: Danny Elfman, Steve Bartek, Ellen Segal; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Introduction (1:40); 2 Main Titles (2:22); 3 First Sighting (1:26); 4 The Landing (6:01); 5 Ungodly Experiments (:53); 6 State Address (3:06); 7 Martian Madame (3:02); 8 Martian Lounge (2:54); 9 Return Message (2:17); 10 Destructo X (1:17); 11 Loving Heads (1:20); 12 Pursuit (2:55); 13 The War Room (1:31); 14 Airfield Dilemma (2:05); 15 New World (1:45); 16 Ritchie's Speech (3:09); 17 End Credits (3:53); 18 Indian Love Call (R. Friml/O. Harbach/O. Hammerstein II)(3:08) Slim Whitman; 19 It's Not Unusual (G. Mills/L. Reed)(2:00) Tom Jones.

Review: Danny Elfman has composed a suitably over-the-top score for Tim Burton's broad science fiction comedy, Mars Attacks! From the eerily furtive moments preceding the stampede of burning cattle to the raucous battle music against the Martian invaders, Elfman captures the film's manic sense of nostalgic '50s sci-fi, best summed up in the relentless, brassy main theme, driven by the soaring strains of the omnipresent theremin and frequent use of choir. The score, full of bizarre and nostalgic orchestrations and plenty of musical tongue-in-cheek, is pure fun and excitement in an emerald cranium. It supports Burton's bizarre visions on-screen and splashes like a crimson death ray across home speaker systems.

Marvin's Room

1996, Miramax/Hollywood Records; from the movie Marvin's Room, Miramax Films, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Rachel Portman, Jeff Atmajian; Music Editor: Dan Lieberstein; Orchestra conducted by Michael Kosarin; Featured Musicians: Ken Bichel (piano), Jesse Levy (cello); Album Producers: Rachel Portman, Scott Rudin; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 Two Little Sisters (C. Simon)(3:25) Carly Simon; 2 Main Titles (3:03); 3 The Wig (3:33); 4 Burning Down The House (3:36); 5 Reflections (1:11); 6 The Loony Bin (1:55); 7 Florida (2:56); 8 The Toolbox (2:16); 9 I've Been So Lucky (2:30); 10 End Title (3:48); 11 The Toolbox II (1:13); 12 The Beach (2:24); 13 Tall Tales (3:03); 14 Clarence James (1:49); 15 Someplace Else (1:24); 16 Marvin's Room (3:37).

Review: In a narrative that sometimes finds deep, emotional accents to convey its story about two estranged sisters who are brought together after 20 years when one is diagnosed with having leukemia that can only be controlled with a bone marrow transplant from a close relative, Marvin's Room is an engaging, serious film with funny overtones. It avoids the usual pitfalls of melodrama or overbearing sentimentality to spin its tale in rich, down-to-earth details that make it both spirited and heartwarming. Adding the right colors to the story is Rachel Portman's excellent score, a delightful collection of cues, both serious and exhilarating, with catchy themes that perfectly match the tones of the story itself. Though presented here in a sequencing that doesn't follow the storyline, it easily makes its point, and proves essentially attractive and compelling. Carly Simon's "Two Little Sisters" is another nice touch in a thoroughly winning album.

Mary Reilly

1996, Sony Classical; from the movie Mary Reilly, TriStar Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: George Fenton; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian, Geoffrey Alexander; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by George Fenton; Featured Musicians: Lucia Lin, Janice Graham (violin); Album Producers: George Fenton, Eliza Thompson; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 The House Of Henry Jekyll (Opening Credits)(5:16); 2 The Birth Of Hyde (2:11); 3 The Announcement (1:43); 4 The Story Of The Scars (3:54); 5 Mary's Errand (2:16); 6 Mrs. Farraday's (2:35); 7 It Comes In Like The Tide (3:37); 8 Mary Meets Hyde (3:55); 9 The Shopping Trip (2:44); 10 Butler's Night Off (1:58); 11 Haffinger's (5:31); 12 The Transformation (6:45); 13 Mary Reilly (End Credits)(3:05).

Review: An interesting spin-off on the Gothic story about staid Dr. Jekyll and his murderous alter ego, Mr. Hyde, as seen from the point of view of Mary Reilly, a housemaid working for Dr. Jekyll with a secret as murky as her employer's, the film was mostly distinguished by the dark tones that pervaded it, something reflected in George Fenton's relentlessly somber score. With a few exceptions ("Mrs. Farraday"), most of the cues are densely lugubrious, and fail to really attract in a strictly listening program, because very little in them contains the spark that would ignite one's interest.

M*A*S*H

1995, Sony Legacy; from the movie *M*A*S*H*, 20th Century-Fox, 1970.

Album Notes: Music: Johnny Mandel; "Moments and minutes of music, madness and melodrama" featuring Hawkeye, Trapper, Duke, Lt. Dish, Hot Lips, Henry, Radar O'Reilly, Dago Red, Painless, Spearchucker and Radio Tokyo; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Chris Herles.

Selections: 1 Suicide Is Painless (2:52) The MASH; 2 Duke And Hawkeye Arrive At M*A*S*H (10:38); 3 The Operating Theater (1:07); 4 Major Houlihan And Major Burns (6:35); 5 Painless' Suicide, Funeral And Resurrection (7:56); 6 "Hot Lips" Shows Her True Colors (3:46); 7 Moments To Remember (1:12); 8 The Football Game (7:59); 9 Going Home (3:31); 10 M*A*S*H Theme (2:48) Ahmad Jamal; 11 Dedication Scroll/Jeep Ride (1:04); 12 The Jig's Up (:56); 13 To Japan (:54); 14 Japanese Children's Hospital (1:51); 15 Tent Scene (1:56); 16 Kill 'Em Galop (3:25).

Review: Most die-hard fans of the film (starring Donald Sutherland and Elliott Gould, among others) will thoroughly enjoy this CD reissue of the original soundtrack, complete with bits of dialog, underscored and joined together by instrumental themes. Others may find the whole thing tedious after one listening—if they even listen to the whole disc!

Whatever your feeling, the soundtrack from *M*A*S*H* fairly drips with the madcap comedic highjinks that make the film such a delight. However, it may not be nearly as effective, or enjoyable, without the benefit of the full story and its accompanying visuals. As a record, it's more a curiosity than an experience you'll want to relive again and again. On the positive side, in addition to the theme song "Suicide is Painless," sung by The MASH and performed as a jazz instrumental by Ahmad Jamal, the disc also includes six instrumental cues, sans dialogue.

Review: Rare instance where both the song and score albums work well in concert with each other. Both capture the manic pace of the film, but the song compilation more so. It starts off strong with the radio version of "Cuban Pete," Jim Carrey's show-stopping musical number in the film which contains dialogue snippets. The film version concludes the album. Other songs that follow all have the characteristics of escapees from some 1940s Tex Avery cartoon (the film's effects were inspired by Avery's style). Bouncy '90s versions of Cab Calloway's 'Hi De Ho" share the spotlight with Vanessa Williams' steamy and romantic "Would You Be My Baby."

Randy Edelman's orchestral score alternates mainly between the calmer and darker moments of the film. However, when the Mask is on screen, Edelman's music becomes just as off the wall as Carrey's green goblin ("Out of the Line of Fire"). Warning! Both CDs feature the same cover art. The song album has a black border, while purple is the color for the score.

Masters of the Universe

1992, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Masters of the Universe, Cannon Films, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Bill Conti; Orchestrations: Bill Conti, Ralph Ferraro, Joel Rosenbaum; Music Editor: Steve Hope; The Graunke Orchestra of Munich, conducted by Harry Rabinowitz; Album Producer: Bill Conti; Engineer: Mike Ross.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Eternia Besieged (7:25); 2 Gwildor's Quadrille (1:51); 3 Quiet Escape (2:39); 4 Earthly Encounter (4:23); 5 Battle At The Gym (6:29); 6 Procession Of The Mercenaries (2:50); 7 Evilyn's Deception (2:43); 8 Centurion Attack (5:52); 9 Skeletor The Destroyer (3:11); 10 He-Man Enslaved (4:42); 11 Transformation Of Skeletor (2:30); 12 Kevin's Plight/After Them (9:13); 13 Julie's Muzak (1:47); 14 The Power Of Greyskull (3:33); 15 Good Journey (4:40); 16 He-Man Victorious/End Titles (5:13).

Review: A sword-and-sorcery film, opposing an impossibly handsome he-man and a fiendish looking ghoul, named Skeletor, in a fight to the death for control of the Universe, Masters of the Universe received an appropriately epic score from Bill Conti. The composer gleefully uses all the tenets of the genre to write cues that are all at once amusingly exhilarating and grandly representative of the screen action. Very few surprises here, just a rock solid score that delivers the goods, with the Graunke Orchestra doing a bang-up job in this spirited recording.

Matinee

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Matinee, Universal Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Coming Attraction (2:09); 2 Hold On (3:08); 3 Brother To Brother (2:27); 4 Real People (2:13); 5 The Scam (4:08); 6 Halfway Home (3:45); 7 Showtime (4:33); 8 The Wrong Business (3:39); 9 This Is It (3:51); 10 The Next Attraction (7:56).

Review: This warm, nostalgic score for one of Joe Dante's best—and least-known—movies effectively captures the film's '50s setting and offers a couple of amusing send-ups of the horror film scores of the period. Unfortunately it's all so low-key and repetitive, particularly in its parody of the old prom standard "Theme to a Summer Place," that it just can't stand on its own as a listening experience, even though Goldsmith's rambunctious theme for John Goodman's William Castle-like character is perfect.

Maurice

1987, RCA Victor; from the movie Maurice, Cinecom and Merchant Ivory Productions, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Richard Robbins; Orchestra conducted by Harry Rabinowitz; Recording Engineer: Brian Masterson; Remix Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 Prologue: The Lesson (5:05); 2 At The Pianola (1:33); 3 Two Letters (1:30); 4 In Greece/The Wedding (2:39); 5 Miserere (G. Allegri)(7:10) King's College Choir of Cambridge, David Willcocks; 6 Pendersleigh In Gloom (:59); 7 The Cafe Royale (1:30); 8 Miss Edna Mae's Surprise/The Train (4:38); 9 The Moonlit Night (3:46); 10 In The Renault (1:12); 11 Alec's Farewell (1:13); 12 The Boathouse (2:26); 13 Clive And Anne (1:59); 14 End Titles (3:28).

Review: A surprisingly sensitive screen treatment of E.M. Foster's Edwardian novel, Maurice details a young man's awakening to his own homosexuality when he finds himself attracted and responding to the attentions of another student at Cambridge. As is frequently the case with Merchant Ivory, the production company specializing in magnificently reconstructed period films, the delicately chiseled score crafted by Richard Robbins gives Maurice its proper atmosphere and evokes a period which overflows with romantic accents. The music, incredibly rich and versatile, features transpositions of themes by Tchaikovsky, "At the Pianola" and "In the Renault," a superb period waltz, "The Cafe Royale," and a bouncy piano rag, "Miss Edna Mae's Surprise," among its many highlights. It all adds up to a catchy, enjoyable album that compels the listener to return to it frequently.

> on Independence Day (The Hollywood Reporter, 1-15-97)

Selections: 1 Opening (5:37); 2 Annabelle (2:28); 3 Fight (2:06); 4 Coop (:41); 5 Money In The Bank (1:07); 6 In And Out Of Trouble (1:27); 7 Magic Cards, Maybe/Lucky Shirt (1:32); 8 Headed For The Game (1:31); 9 Runaway Stage (4:49); 10 Sneakin' Around (:47); 11 Maverick (:56); 12 Joseph And The Russian (1:08); 13 Oh Bret (2:06); 14 A Noble Aims (:49); 15 Trap (1:51); 16 The Hanging (2:01); 17 Bret Escapes (1:26); 18 Bret's Card/Sore Loser (1:28); 19 Coop Sails Away (1:33); 20 Annabelle Toodleoo (1:56); 21 The Commodore (1:24); 22 Pappy Shuffle (1:11); 23 Bath House (:40); 24 Tartine De Merde (1:34).

Review: Randy Newman's western score is grandly expansive and as jaunty and spry as the film's easygoing charm. Newman frequently switches gears from heavy dramatics to amusing pomp and bombast, to high Coplandesque adventure. His main theme takes its cue from the high-spirited, fast-moving Maverick character. The theme is pure Americana and steeped in Hollywood tradition. In contrast is a slightly deceptive theme for Annabelle, a lilting, old-fashioned cue for violins. These primary themes are central to the score, which remains cleverly playful in orchestration and tone. Newman's baton is planted firmly in his cheek as he concocts a spirited and likable exercise in Hollywood western musicology. As obvious and occasionally over-the-top the themes and their interplay may be, the score remains contagiously likable.

Review: Country music soundtracks have generally come up short (and if you think Urban Cowboy is country, you're wrong). This does a better job than most, with a group of established veterans and fresh up-and-comers performing new songs written for or old songs chosen for this film. "Dream on Texas Ladies" proves that John Michael Montgomery is a gifted singer, even when presented with so-so material. Patty Loveless and Radney Foster do a nice duet turn on "Rainbow Down the Road," but it's three old hats, Waylon Jennings, Clint Black and Randy Newman, who are responsible for "Maverick's" best tracks.

Max and Helen

1991, Bay Cities Records; from the movie Max and Helen, Turner Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Young; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian, Christopher Young; Featured Musicians (in Black Dragon): Christopher Young (pianos/deowas), Masa Yoshizawa (hichiriki/nokan/shakuhachi/voice), Hiromi Hashibe (featured voice/bass koto), Tateo Takahashi (shamisen), Suenobu Togi (sho), Daniel Licht (bass suling/bansuri flute/genggong), Bob Fernandez, John Fitzgerald, David Johnson, Mark Zimoski (Japanese percussion); Album Producer: Nick Redman; Engineers: Jeff Vaughn, Mark Zimoski.

Selections: MAX AND HELEN: 1 In Memory (1:45); 2 Piano Etude No. 3 in E (excerpt) (F. Chopin) (1:36); 3 Stories Must Be Told (3:33); 4 Heart Lost (4:30); 5 Zloczow Square (1:39); 6 Zalesie (4:50); 7 Must Continue (3:01); 8 Forgiveness (2:39); 9 Masses (32:52);

BLACK DRAGON: 10 Koku-ryu (Black Dragon)(18:05).

Review: Though presented under the title of Max and Helen, from a 1990 film starring Treat Williams and Alice Krige, about a pair of lovers separated by World War II and brought back together fortuitously several years later, the CD actually gives an inordinately long playing time to two other, non-film related works, the 33-minute Masses, and the 18-minute Koku-ryu (Black Dragon), an avant-garde composition that may prove off-putting to some listeners. A riveting combination of solo voices, sonic manipulations, and ethnic folk music, Max and Helen aims to create a multi-layered tapestry which reinforces the screen action and gives it a stronger emotional tug.

Maximum Risk

1996, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Maximum Risk, Columbia Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Robert Folk; Orchestrations: Robert Folk, Peter Tomashek, Jon Kull; Music Editor: Jay Richardson; Album Producer: Robert Folk; Engineer: Hal Sachs.

Selections: 1 Tour de Nice (4:42); 2 Mikhail's Diary (3:33); 3 Maximum Conflagration (3:21); 4 Brighton Beach Mob Wars (2:35); 5 Maximum Erotica (1:45); 6 Cirque du Cernivore (2:40); 7 Extreme Reaction (4:40); 8 Terminal Betrayal (4:31); 9 Unchained Heart (2:02); 10 Without You (R. Folk/T. Wood/G. Wells)(3:18) Terry Wood.

Review: An otherwise solid actioner starring Jean-Claude Van Damme, about the strong spiritual connection that exists between twins, set against the backdrop of violent life in a big city, Maximum Risk inspired Robert Folk to write a constantly driven score that may have been quite effective on-screen to illustrate and underline the action in the scenes, but fails to make much of a statement when heard in one's living room. A collision of synthesizer chords and percussive effects that lead nowhere, the cues often tend to sound limited and dry, with incredible energy being wasted on very little. Or, as someone else would have said in other times, much ado about nothing.

Medicine Man

1992, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Medicine Man, Cinergi Productions, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Music Editor: Ken Hall; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Mike Ross.

Selections: 1 Rae's Arrival (5:06); 2 First Morning (3:46); 3 Campbell And The Children (1:57); 4 The Trees (6:01); 5 The Harvest (3:11); 6 Mocara (3:36); 7 Mountain High (2:41); 8

Without A Net (4:19); 9 Finger Painting (2:30); 10 What's Wrong (1:52); 11 The Injection (2:09); 12 The Sugár (2:08); 13 The Fire (2:10); 14 A Meal And A Bath (8:03).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's music for Medicine Man is an evocative tapestry of orchestral color, vibrantly splashed with expert strokes and subtle undercurrents onto his musical canvas. The scene is set with a bouncy, Latin American-styled motif with flutes, marimba, and percussion embellished by synth. The real theme emerges half-way through, altering the jaunty tempo and texture with a dark, evocative ambiance of rustling electronics and harsh, primitive percussion. Violins foreshadow the film's main theme, a graceful melody which captures all the majesty, mystery and tragedy of the tropical rain forest in which the action takes place. That theme reappears frequently, through quotations or variations, in several succeeding cues, associated with both the rain forest and the noble cancer research undertaken therein.

Throughout, Goldsmith superbly captures the alternating moods in the storyline—exhilaration to despair—through a moment's orchestral counterpoint. The frequent use of water-droplet synth sounds as a rhythmic measure is an effective and clever device to suggest the humid wetness of the rain forest.

Memoirs of an Invisible Man

1992, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Memoirs of an Invisible Man, Warner Bros., 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Shirley Walker; Orchestrations: Shirley Walker, Larry Rench, Lisa Bloom, Bruce Fowler; Synthesizer Programmer: Hans Zimmer; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker; Album Producer: Shirley Walker; Engineers: Robert Fernandez, Doug Bostnick.

Selections: 1 Theme Medley (3:22); 2 In A State Of Molecular Flux (4:00); 3 Fear Creeps In (3:09); 4 Love In The Rain (1:38); 5 Nick Escapes The Apartment Siege (3:31); 6 The Final Chase (3:14); 7 Nick And Alice In Love (2:28); 8 Jenkins Closes In (4:37); 9 The Invisible Man Reveals Himself (1:40); 10 You're Not Alone Anymore (2:11).

Review: Shirley Walker's first feature film score is one of the best elements of this John Carpenter/Chevy Chase misfire. The album opens with a "suite" (actually the film's end credit music) that blends the score's primary material with great showmanship, from a heartbreakingly beautiful love theme to the foreboding, crashing sounds of science gone awry and some pulse-pounding, rapid-fire pursuit music. Walker's skill at writing portentous, complex and heavily-textured action music is unquestioned (what is questionable is why she doesn't get more high-profile assignments like this), but what's really surprising is that someone so adept at underscoring the testosterone-pumped world of action movies can also produce such wonderfully touching romantic melodies.

Memphis Belle

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Memphis Belle, Warner Bros., 1990.

Selections: 1 The Londonderry Air/Front Titles Memphis Belle (3:50); 2 Green Eyes (N. Mendez/E. Rivera/E. Wood)(3:25); 3 Flying Home (B. Goodman/L. Hampton)(2:57); 4 The Steel Lady (1:44); 5 Prepare To Take Off (Amazing Grace)(trad.)(2:39); 6 The Final Mission (3:51); 7 With Deep Regret (2:02); 8 I Know Why (And So Do You)(M. Gordon/H. Warren)(2:55) Glenn Miller and His Orchestra; 9 The Bomb Run (1:30); 10 Limping Home (2:25); 11 Crippled Belle: The Landing (3:26); 12 Resolution (1:06); 13 Memphis Belle End Title Suite (7:37); 14 Danny Boy (trad.)(3:20) Mark Williamson.

Review: Set during World War II, amid the gallant pilots who flew the US Air Force B-17 bombers, the film chronicles the 25th and last mission of the Memphis Belle and its crew, in a final flight over Germany for a bombing that was to decide the conclusion of the war. In the cues he wrote for the film, George Fenton deftly evokes the moods of suspense and drama, fun and exhilaration, heroism and glory that marked the mission. Setting the score into its time period, rerecordings of standards, like "Green Eyes," "Flying Home," and "I Know Why," provide an occasional bow to the musical trends of the era, resulting in a strongly suggestive score. The long "Memphis Belle End Title Suite" regroups the most important themes into a striking cohesive musical coda.

Meridian

1991, Moonstone Records; from the movie Meridian, Full Moon Entertainment, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Pino Donaggio; Synthesizers Programming: Paolo Steffan; The Sinfonica di Milano, conducted by Natale Massara; Album Producer: Pino Donaggio; Engineer: Paolo Bocchi.

Selections: 1 Meridian Overture (3:14); 2 Unholy Seduction (4:05); 3 You Are The One (1:06); 4 Forbidden Love (5:05); 5 Dangerous Dimensions (4:19); 6 Blood Brothers (3:26); 7 Confessional (2:17); 8 Beast To The Rescue (4:40); 9 Life Into Stone (1:12); 10 Animal Passion (3:58); 11 Catherine's Theme (:47); 12 Revelations (2:55); 13 Circus From The Past (3:09); 14 Trip To The Castle (:49); 15 It's Just A Dream (1:12); 16 Kill This Beast (6:19).

Review: This dark version of the classic "Beauty and the Beast" tale got an equally gloomy score from acknowledged horror music master Pino Donaggio. Unfortunately, the score's pace is just as pedestrian as the film and therein lies the problem. Despite lovely melodies like "Catherine's Theme" (too short!) or "Beast to the Rescue," there are just too many others that crawl along. "Unholy Seduction," a synthesized cue whose primary melody was cleverly created by sampled voices, ends up being too repetitive. And why was "Circus from the Past" played by synthesizers when they had an orchestra that could have made it not sound so embarrassingly primitive? Although it works effectively on film, this score is just too bland and lacking in anything substantial to support the soundtrack's almost 50-minute running time.

Mermaids

1990, Geffen Records; from the movie Mermaids, Orion Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Album Producer: John David Kalodner; Engineer: Dan Hersch.

Selections: 1 The Shoop Shoop Song (It's In His Kiss)(R. Clark)(2:51) Cher; 2 Big Girls Don't Cry (B. Crewe/B. Gaudio)(2:23) Frankie Valli & The Four Seasons; 3 You've Really Got A Hold On Me (W. Robinson)(2:57) Smokey Robinson & The Miracles; 4 It's My Party (H. Wiener/J. Gluck/W. Gold)(2:21) Lesley Gore; 5 Johnny Angel (L. Pockriss/L. Duddy)(2:22) Shelley Fabares; 6 Baby I'm Yours (V. McCoy)(3:19) Cher; 7 Just One Look (G. Carroll/D. Payne) (2:26) Doris Troy; 8 Love Is Strange (S. Robinson/M. Baker/E. McDaniel) (2:55) Mickey & Sylvia; 9 Sleepwalk (S. Farina/J. Farina/A. Farina)(2:21) Santo & Johnny; 10 If You Wanna Be Happy (C. Guida/F. Guida/J. Royster)(2:11) Jimmy Soul.

Review: A quirky little comedy, about an ever so slightly eccentric woman and her two equally unconventional daughters, Mermaids is considerably brightened up by its cheerful soundtrack, which includes many songs from the early 1960s, time period of the action. While offering little that's new in terms of music (with the possible exception of "The Shoop Shoop Song," and a surprisingly laid-back version of "Baby, I'm Yours," performed by Cher, who also stars), the album compiles together various songs that are bound to evoke many pleasant memories of a time when things seemed much less complicated and easier to enjoy, with performances by Frankie Valli and The Four Seasons, Smokey Robinson and The Miracles, Lesley Gore, Mickey and Sylvia, and Shelley Fabares, among its better moments. Nothing earthshaking, just a nifty combination of a few memorable tunes that goes a long way in creating the right atmosphere.

Merry Christmas Mr. Lawrence

1985, London Records; from the movie Merry Christmas Mr. Lawrence, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Ryuichi Sakamoto; Album Producer: Ryuichi Sakamoto; Engineers: Shinichi Tanaka, Seigen Ono, Ryuichi Sakamoto.

Selections: 1 Merry Christmas Mr. Lawrence (4:37); 2 Batavia (1:19); 3 Germination (1:49); 4 A Hearty Breakfast (1:24): 5 Before The War (2:15); 6 The Seed And The Sower (5:03); 7 A Brief Encounter (2:23); 8 Ride Ride Ride (Celliers' Brother's Song)(1:04); 9 The Fight (1:33); 10 Father Christmas (2:09); 11 Dismissed! (:10); 12 Assembly (2:18); 13 Beyond Reason (2:01); 14 Sowing The Seed (1:55); 15 23rd Psalm (2:00); 16 Last Regrets (1:47); 17 Ride Ride Ride (reprise)(1:06); 18 The Seed (1:05); 19 Forbidden Colours (4:46) David Sylvan.

Review: Composer Ryuichi Sakamoto stars along with David Bowie in this film set during World War II in a Japanese prison camp. Two years earlier, Vangelis had shown that modern synthesized music could work in context with the period setting of Chariots of Fire. Sakamoto follows his lead, but creatively infuses some of his work here with sound effects in "Ride, Ride, Ride" and unusual musical colors in "A Brief Encounter." He also relies on traditional orchestral music for one standout cue called "Germination."

Wilson)(2:18) Andie MacDowell; 11 Spirit In The Sky (N. Greenbaum)(3:59) Norman Greenbaum.

Review: A romantic fable about a photogenic mutt, an angel (John Travolta, in another winning screen performance), and the journalists who are after him for a scoop, Michael is the occasion for a festive music celebration with several songs, heard on the soundtrack, that deal with love, happiness, elation, or just simply good feelings. This compilation brings it all back home, with performances by many enjoyable singers, like Van Morrison, Bonnie Raitt, Willie Nelson, Aretha Franklin, and Don Henley. An ingratiating collection that makes few demands on the intellect but is guaranteed to provide a good time.

MacMurrough/J. Rowe) (3:30) The Cafe Orchestra.

Review: A film that exudes tremendous energy and transcends its bleak subject of political activism in Ireland, Michael Collins owes a lot of its impact on the screen to director Neil Jordan's deft handling of the struggle for independence from the British and his understanding that the topic needed an uplifting cinematic approach to reach a broad audience. He achieved his goal by staging this account of the campaign waged in 1916 by Michael Collins, an early pioneer in the fight against Britain, with all the ingredients usually found in contemporary dramas—fast-paced action scenes and rousing dramatic performances. Adding a specific comment of its own to the story, Elliot Goldenthal wrote a robust, compelling score, rife with great themes that unfold with force and persuasion, with an occasional Irish sonority to anchor the music into its specific ethnic background, something further complemented through the addition of various vocals by Sinead O'Connor. From the first track, "Fire and Arms," the tone is readily apparent that this is going to be a vibrant essay, filled with great orchestral sounds and strong melodic ideas. Goldenthal doesn't disappoint. The score throbs with excitement, occasionally pausing for a softer, reflective theme, but keeping the listener on edge most of the time.

HOUSE AFTER 5 YEARS OF LIVING: 14 Prologue and Elements (:52); 15 Setting (1:58); 16 Living Room (2:07); 17 Upstairs (1:44); 18 Studio (1:43); 19 Conclusion (1:58); 20 Reflections (:44);

THE NIGHT VISITOR: 21 Suite (18:00).

Review: Written for a film starring Fred Astaire as a charming British agent who steals a large shipment of government gold on its way to Tanzania from Zurich and Italy, Midas Run was a total disaster at the box office, though it enabled Elmer Bernstein to write a straightforward little score that was immensely appealling, the sort Henry Mancini was quite famous for. Shot on locations in London, Milan, Venice and Rome, the locales of the action provided the composer with the proper scenic colors, while the action itself suggested some of the most virile accents in the score. As Tony Thomas points out in his liner notes, it is a clear example of "film music being better than the picture for which it was designed."

House: After 5 Years of Living was an assignment of another kind which came in 1955 from furniture designers Charles and Ray Eames, who asked Bernstein to score an art film about the house they had designed. As for The Night Visitor, starring Max Von Sydow as a farmer wrongly accused of murder by his sister and her husband, and subsequently committed to an asylum, it also is an obscure film that failed to find an audience. It elicited a taut, hypnotic score from Henry Mancini, writing for a synthesizer and 17 instruments, in a style that seems miles away from the comedies he was mostly scoring at this stage in his career. It is also in sharp contrast to what precedes it and as a result seems a rather odd choice in this context.

Midnight Cowboy

1985, EMI-Manhattan Records; from the movie Midnight Cowboy, United Artists, 1969.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Orchestrations: John Barry; Orchestra conducted by John Barry.

Selections: 1 Everybody's Talkin' (F. Neil)(2:30) Nilsson; 2 Joe Buck Rides Again (3:46); 3 A Famous Myth (J. Comanor)(3:22) The Groop; 4 Fun City (3:52); 5 He Quit Me (W. Zevon)(2:46) Leslie Miller; 6 Jungle Gym At The Zoo (R. Sussman/R. Frank/S. Bronstein) (2:15) Elephants Memory; 7 Midnight Cowboy (2:34); 8 Old Man Willow (R. Sussman/M. Shapiro/M. Yules/S. Bronstein)(7:03) Elephants Memory; 9 Florida Fantasy (2:08); 10 Tears And Joy (J. Comanor)(2:29) The Groop; 11 Science Fiction (1:57); 12 Everybody's Talkin' (F. Neil)(1:54) Nilsson.

Review: While Nilsson's evocative rendition of "Everybody's Talkin'" might have clouded John Barry's own achievements, the soundtrack of Midnight Cowboy has always been a deft combination of both, the song and Barry's cues, and that's what ultimately subsists after one has listened to the album. Certainly, the instrumental selections, particularly "Joe Buck Rides Again" and "Fun City," do much to capture the squalid moods in John Schlesinger's film about a young hustler from Texas who becomes a boy prostitute in New York City and befriends a seedy, tuberculous-stricken street character with whom he moves to Florida. The pop songs, notably "A Famous Myth" by The Groop (sounding like a clone of The Mamas and The Papas) and "Jungle Gym at the Zoo" by Elephants Memory, are also very much a part of this memorable film, even though they sound dated by now.

Midnight Run

1988, MCA Records; from the movie Midnight Run, Universal Pictures, 1988.

Selections: 1 Walsh Gets The Duke (1:47); 2 Main Titles (2:21); 3 Stairway Chase (:54); 4 J.W. Gets A Plan (1:41); 5 Gears Spin I (:54); 6 Dorfler's Theme (1:24); 7 F.B.I. (1:16); 8 Package Deal (1:07); 9 Mobocopter (2:42); 10 Freight Train Hop (1:18); 11 Drive To Red's (1:04); 12 In The Next Life (1:06); 13 The River (1:19); 14 The Wild Ride (1:31); 15 Amarillo Dawn (:26); 16 Potato Walk (1:09); 17 Desert Run (4:45); 18 Diner Blues (1:19); 19 Dorfler's Problem (1:01); 20 Gear's Spin II (1:30); 21 The Confrontation (2:30); 22 The Longest Walk (1:32); 23 Walsh Frees The Duke (2:44); 24 End Credits: "Try To Believe" (4:16) Mosley & The B-Men.

Review: In one of his earliest scoring efforts, Danny Elfman hit the right note with his music for Midnight Run, an iconoclastic comedy starring Robert De Niro as a gruff bounty hunter ready to throw in the towel, but accepts for his last job the task of bringing back to a Las Vegas mobster an accountant who has embezzled millions of dollars. Elfman, who was still recording with his group Oingo Boingo at the time, wrote a fast-paced, rock score that reflects his intentions of moving away from the kind of music that had made him famous, while keeping a foot firmly planted in a genre that was familiar to him. With bouncy, cheerful little themes—some combining the harmonica and the accordion for an unusual, slightly unorthodox sound—the score is a constant delight, its effectiveness only slightly defeated by the short playing time of some of the selections.

Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: The Movie

Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: The Movie

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: The Movie, 20th Century-Fox, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Graeme Revell; Orchestrations: Tim Simonec, Ken Kugler, Larry Kenton, Mark Gasbarro; Music

Editor: Josh Winget; The West Australian Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Tim Simonec; Album Producer: Graeme Revell; Engineer: Dan Wallin.

Selections: 1 Prologue (:58); 2 Ivan Ooze (2:07); 3 The Great Power (2:15); 4 The Tengu's Attack (1:34); 5 Zordon Is Dying (1:49); 6 The Rangers On Phaedros (1:17); 7 Dolcea To The Rescue (:57); 8 Journey To The Plateau (1:23); 9 Summoning The Ninjetti (3:26); 10 Jurassic Ride (2:55); 11 The Monolith (1:26); 12 Battle With The Gatekeepers (3:43); 13 Metamorphicons Confront The Rangers (2:22); 14 The Megazord Battle (2:12); 15 Leap To Our Doom (1:46); 16 Power Rangers Triumph (1:26); 17 Freddy To The Rescue (:57); 18 Zordon Is Saved (2:35).

Review: "Balls to the wall" orchestral score by Graeme Revell unexpectedly provides more fun and excitement than this silly film ever could muster. Certainly, Revell manages to give the story a more mystical air (the use of a chorus in "Summoning the Ninjetti" for example) and the desperation of the Rangers' plight is endowed with a real sense of urgency in "Zordon is Dying." Even the bombastic brass arrangements of the battle cues, like "The Megazord Battle," give the film a spectacular scope it could not achieve on its own. Revell has a real flair at creating dramatic scores for these types of effects-laden action films.

Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: The Movie

1995, Atlantic/Fox Records; from the movie Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: The Movie, 20th Century-Fox, 1995.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Ron Nevison, Michael Beinhorn, Con, Devo, Snap, Fun Tomas, Kid Capelli, Van Halen, Mick Jones, Donn Landee, Neil Dorfsman, Dan Hartman, Rick Parker, Power Jet, Graeme Revell, Ron Wasserman, Ron Kenan; Engineers: Ron Nevison, Robert Casale, Snap, Jeo, Neil Dorfsman, Michael Barbiero, Rick Parker, Ron Wasserman, Mark Ettel; Album Executive Producers: Happy Walters, Pilar McCurry; Engineer: Dave Collins.

Selections: 1 Go Go Power Rangers (S. Levy/K. Mahchi)(5:04) The Power Rangers Orchestra; 2 Higher Ground (S. Wonder)(3:22) Red Hot Chili Peppers; 3 Trouble (J. Blake/C. Askew/C. Fitzpatrick)(3:20) Shampoo; 4 Are You Ready? (M. Mothersbaugh/G. Casale)(3:01) Devo; 5 The Power (B. Benitez/J. Garrett/ Toni C.)(5:44) Snap; 6 Kung Fu Dancing (F. Tomas/K. Cappelli/C. Douglas) (3:46) Fun Tomas, Carl Douglas; 7 Dreams (E. Van Halen/S. Hagar/M. Anthony/A. Van Halen)(4:51) Van Halen; 8 Free Ride (D. Hartman)(7:03) Dan Hartman; 9 SenSurround (J. Flansburgh/J. Linnell)(3:05) They Might Be Giants; 10 Ayeyaiyai (Alpha Song)(L. Tierney/T. Cullen)(3:48) Power Jet; 11 Firebird (G. Revell)(3:40) Graeme Revell; 12 Cross My Line (R. Wasserman/R. Kenan)(3:10) Aaron Waters (The Mighty Raw).

Review: Hard to believe, but these teen superheroes were once hotter than Beanie Babies, and they're destined to become favorites at '90s dress-up parties. The music for their first feature film is fairly mundane, making use of some proven hits, like Red Hot Chili Peppers' funky take on "Higher Ground" and Van Halen's Teflon-smooth "Dreams," and oddball adaptations, such as Carl Douglas joining Fun Tomas for something called "Kung Fu Dancing." But, never fear, it does have the "Go Go Power Rangers" theme, if it isn't already plastered in your memory.

The Mighty Quinn

1989, A&M Records; from the movie The Mighty Quinn, M-G-M, 1989.

Album Notes: Song Producers: UB40, Ray "Pablo" Falconer, Alphonsus Cassell, Tyrone Downie, Michael Rose, Yello, Daniel Lanois, Lloyd James, Cecil Forbes; Album Producer: David Anderle; Engineer: Arnie Acosta.

Selections: 1 I Gotta Keep Moving On (C. Mayfield)(4:36) UB40; 2 Groove Master (A. Cassell)(6:02) Arrow; 3 Guess Who's Coming To Dinner (M. Rose) (3:39) Michael Rose; 4 (I'm) Hurting Inside (B. Marley)(4:43) Sheryl Lee Ralph, Cedella Marley, Sharon Marley Prendergast; 5 Giving/Sharing (L. Roberts)(3:30) Half Pint; 6 La Habanera (B. Blank/D. Meier)(5:11) Yello; 7 Yellow Moon (A. Neville/J. Neville)(4:04) The Neville Brothers; 8 Send Fi Spanish Fly (L. James)(3:18) Little Twitch; 9 Mary Jane (J. Engerman/J. Engerman/F. Gumbs)(6:14) Seventeen Plus; 10 The Mighty Quinn (B. Dylan) (2:39) Sheryl Lee Ralph, Cedella Marley, Sharon Marley Prendergast.

Review: An odd compilation for a murder mystery set in the Caribbean, with some happy rhythms (UB 40's "I Gotta Keep Moving On," Michael Rose's "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," Neville Brothers' "Yellow Moon"), some okay tracks (Arrow's "Groove Master," Half Pint's "Giving/Sharing," Yello's "La Habanera"), and some dispensable (Little Twitch's "Send Fi Spanish Fly"). Bob Dylan's "The Mighty Quinn" gets an abrasively funny reading by Sheryl Lee Ralph, Cedella Marley and Sharon Marley Prendergast.

Miller's Crossing

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Miller's Crossing, 20th Century-Fox, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Carter Burwell; Orchestrations: Sonny Kompanek; Album Producer: Carter Burwell; Engineer: Michael Farrow.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles (1:54); 2 Caspar Laid Out (1:57); 3 A Man And His Hat (:56); 4 King Porter Stomp (F. Morton/S. Burke/S. Robin)(2:10); 5 The Long Way Around (1:39); 6 Miller's Crossing (2:36); 7 After Miller's Crossing (:42); 8 Running Wild (J. Grey/L. Wood/A. Gibbs)(3:06); 9 Rage Of The Dane (:06); 10 All A You Whores (sic)(:24); 11 Nightmare In The Trophy Room (1:37); 12 He Didn't Like His Friends (:22); 13 Danny Boy (p.d.)(4:07) Frank Patterson; 14 What Heart? (:50); 15 End Titles (4:44); 16 Goodnight Sweetheart (R. Vallee/R. Noble/J. Campbell/R. Connelly)(:55) Frank Patterson.

Review: Some soundtrack albums aren't helping the cause of their composers or film music in general. Take, for instance, this album, which, even though it has 16 tracks, clocks in at 28 minutes, with four totally dispensable pop selections taking up more than 10 minutes of playing time. Carter Burwell's score gets literally lost in the process and certainly deserved better than the shoddy treatment it gets here.

Miracle on 34th Street

1994, Fox Records; from the movie Miracle on 34th Street, 20th Century-Fox, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Orchestrations: Bruce Broughton; Music Editor: Patricia Carlin; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Broughton; Score Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineer: Armin Steiner; Song Producers: Tommy LiPuma, Jeremy Lubbock & Elliot Lurie, Kenny G, Randy Nicklaus & Steve Barri, Pierre Marchand; Arrangers: John Clayton, Jr., Jeremy Lubbock, Kenny G & Walter Afanasieff, John Schreiner, Sarah McLachlan.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:40); 2 Jingle Bells (J. Pierpont)(3:32) Natalie Cole; 3 It's Beginning To Look A Lot Like Christmas (M. Willson)(2:21) Dionne Warwick; 4 Have Yourself A Merry Little Christmas (H. Martin/R. Blane) (3:54) Kenny G; 5 Santa Claus Is Comin' To Town (H. Gillespie/J.F. Coots) (3:02) Ray Charles; 6 Joy To The World (I. Watts/G.F. Handel)(3:01) Aretha Franklin & Members Of The Fame Freedom Choir; 7 Santa Claus Is Back In Town (J. Leiber/M. Stoller)(2:03) Elvis Presley; 8 Signing (2:03); 9 Bellevue Carol (2:13); 10 Song For A Winter's Night (G. Lightfoot)(3:46) Sarah McLachlan.

Review: Instead of trusting his composer, Bruce Broughton, and give him an opportunity to write Christmas music for this remake of Miracle on 34th Street in the manner in which he had let John Williams write an instant classic score for Home Alone, John Hughes chose instead to stuff his soundtrack with covers of some well-known Christmas songs by Natalie Cole, Dionne Warwick, Ray Charles, Elvis Presley, Aretha Franklin and (eeech!) Kenny G.

Broughton's contribution is reduced in this CD to three little cues that denote a wonderful feel for the action in progress, but can only whet one's appetite for a longer expression. Another missed opportunity for lovers of film music.

The Mirror Has Two Faces

1996, Columbia Records; from the movie The Mirror Has Two Faces, Tri-Star Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Marvin Hamlisch; Orchestrations: Jack Hayes, Torrie Zitto, Brad Dechter; Music Editor: Charles Martin Inouye; Orchestra conducted by Marvin Hamlisch; Album Producer: Barbra Streisand; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineer: Sue McLean.

Selections: 1 Main Title/In Questa Reggia (G. Puccini) (3:44); 2 Got Any Scotch? (B. Streisand/M. Hamlisch) (2:31); 3 An Ad? (:43); 4 In A Sentimental Mood (E.K. Ellington) (2:37); 5 Rose Sees Greg (B. Streisand/M. Hamlisch) (:43); 6 Alex Hurts Rose (B. Streisand/M. Hamlisch) (1:14); 7 The Dating Montage (B. Streisand/M. Hamlisch) (1:51); 8 My Intentions? (B. Streisand) (1:07); 9 You Picked Me! (:31); 10 A Funny Kind Of Proposal (B. Streisand/M. Hamlisch) (1:10); 11 Picnic In The Park (1:33); 12 Greg Falls For Rose (B. Streisand/M. Hamlisch) (3:23); 13 Try A Little Tenderness (H. Woods/J. Campbell/R. Connelly) (3:11) David Sanborn; 14 The Mirror (B. Streisand/M. Hamlisch) (1:02); 15 Going Back To Mom (B. Streisand/M. Hamlisch) (1:09); 16 Rocking In The Chair (B. Streisand) (:49); 17 The Power Inside Of Me (K. Thomas/R. Marx) (3:06) Richard Marx; 18 Rose Leaves Greg (B. Streisand/M. Hamlisch) (1:47); 19 Ruby (M. Parish/H. Roemheld) (3:14); 20 Rose Dumps Alex (B. Streisand) (:57); 21 Greg Claims Rose (1:29); 22 The Apology/Nessun Dorma (G. Puccini) (3:17) Luciano Pavarotti; 23 I Finally Found Someone (B. Streisand/ M. Hamlisch/R.J. Lange/B. Adams) (3:42) Barbra Streisand, Bryan Adams; 24 All Of My Life (B. Streisand/M. Hamlisch/A. & M. Bergman) (3:34) Barbra Streisand.

Review: This romantic comedy was produced and directed by Barbra Streisand, who also starred, as an exploration of "the modern myths of beauty and sex and how they complicate relationships," with beau-hunk Jeff Bridges as the object of Ms. Streisand's lust. If this doesn't sound too convincing, try the soundtrack album, in which Streisand shares composing credits with Marvin Hamlisch, a lightweight but nonetheless interesting writer, and performs a couple of songs (noblesse oblige!). It is difficult in a case like this to properly assess the amount of work done by one or the other in the collaboration. For the sake of argument, the score is mindlessly pleasant, somewhat reminiscent of the type of music Henry Mancini did so much better, with lilting melodies receiving the piano-cum-orchestra treatment. To what extent did Streisand contribute musical ideas is a question only she and Hamlisch can answer, though the "Love Theme" for which she takes full credit is virtually undistinguishable stylistically from the tracks composed by Hamlisch himself. David Sanborn and Luciano Pavarotti are the star's other odd partners in this minor effort.

Misery

1990, Bay Cities Records; from the movie Misery, Columbia Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Dennis Dreith, Hummie Mann, Bruce Fowler; Music Editor: Scott Stambler; Orchestra conducted by Dennis Dreith; Album Producer: Marc Shaiman; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Number One Fan (6:40); 2 She Can't Be Dead (6:16); 3 Open House (4:17); 4 Go To Your Room (2:28); 5 Buster's Last Stand (4:14); 6 Misery's Return (6:04).

Review: Interestingly, Misery is the first score Marc Shaiman ever wrote for a full-length feature, an impressive debut that marked the start of a great career which has since seen the creation of many important scores, including Addams Family, City Slickers, Ghosts of Mississippi. It was an even greater achievement, considering the fact that this claustrophobic two-character film—based on a Stephen King novel about a famous writer, the victim of a car accident, who finds himself immobilized and tended to by his "number one fan," a nurse with murderous instincts—called for a score that enhanced a study in psychological terror. Shaiman conceived a carefully constructed full-scale dramatic score as a series of ominous-sounding themes, in which the low strings create the oppressive atmosphere reflective of the action and the locale, a secluded house further isolated from the outside world by a raging snowstorm. Bold, assertive outbursts mark the writer's rebellion and the end of his ordeal. A strong, highly competent first effort.

The Mission

1986, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie The Mission, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Indian instrumentation: Incantation; Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineer: Dick Lewzey; Assistant Engineer: Steve Price.

Selections: 1 On Earth As It Is In Heaven (3:48); 2 Falls (1:53); 3 Gabriel's Oboe (2:12); 4 Ave Maria Guarani (2:48); 5 Brothers (1:30); 6 Carlotta (1:19); 7 Vita Nostra (1:52); 8 Climb (1:35); 9 Remorse (2:46); 10 Penance (4:00); 11 The Mission (2:47); 12 River (1:57); 13 Gabriel's Oboe (2:38); 14 Te Deum Guarani (:46); 15 Refusal (3:28); 16 Asuncion (1:25); 17 Alone (4:18); 18 Guarani (3:54); 19 The Sword (1:58); 20 Miserere (:59).

Review: Themes from this Academy Award-winning score have been so widely quoted and imitated that it almost seems redundant to introduce it again. Certainly, Ennio Morricone surpassed himself when he wrote this score for the powerful epic starring Robert De Niro as a man of the sword and Jeremy Irons as a man of the cloth in 18th-century South America, who team to protect an Indian tribe from being wiped out by invading colonialists. Visually resplendent, breathtakingly beautiful, the film is further enhanced by its haunting music in which "Gabriel's Oboe" and "On Earth as It Is in Heaven" soon emerged as unlikely, given the solemnity of the writing, popular hits. With its inspired blend of instrumental themes, liturgical anthems, Indian chanting, drumming and flute playing, the soundtrack album is a wonderful musical treat from beginning to end.

Mission: Impossible

Mission: Impossible

1996, Point Records; from the movie Mission: Impossible, Paramount Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek, Mark McKenzie, Steven Scott Smalley; Music Editor: Ellen Segal; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producers: Danny Elfman, Ellen Segal, Shawn Murphy; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineers: Sue McLean, Patrick Weber, Greg Dennen, Mark Eshelman.

Selections: 1 Sleeping Beauty (2:29); 2 Mission: Impossible Theme (L. Schifrin) (1:03); 3 Red Handed (4:21); 4 Big Trouble (5:33); 5 Love Theme? (2:22); 6 Mole Hunt (3:02); 7 The Disc (1:54); 8 Max Found (1:03); 9 Looking For "Job" (4:38); 10 Betrayal (2:56); 11 The Heist (5:47); 12 Uh-Oh! (1:29); 13 Biblical Revelation (1:33); 14 Phone Home (2:25); 15 Train Time (4:12); 16 Menage a trois (2:55); 17 Zoom A (1:53); 18 Zoom B (2:54).

Review: Danny Elfman's Mission: Impossible is one of the best "event movie" scores of the '90s. The completely incoherent film, a virtual Tom Cruise rape of the original TV series, did sport interesting Brian de Palma direction, and Elfman, replacing a more traditional Alan Silvestri score at the last minute, found a perfect blend of contemporary suspense and retro grooves. The '60s Lalo Schifrin theme is there in the beginning and end—a little more bombastic than before—and Elfman weaves fragments of it into his own, prickly motives and colors. Technically, it's one of Elfman's most accomplished works, taking the Schifrin tradition of woodwinds and percussion, and updating it with modern samples—a constant tiki tiki tiki in the background that lends forward motion to it all. If you want style, this has it by the buckets, but the quirks are shaped with impressive subtlety. One of the film's most suspenseful setpieces, an infiltration of a top-secret CIA computer room, not only features no music, but virtually no sound! When the action finally breaks out in the climactic helicopter-and-train chase, it builds and builds, until it finally explodes into the classic Schifrin theme.

Mission: Impossible

1996, Mother Records; from the movie Mission: Impossible, Paramount Pictures, 1996.

Selections: 1 Theme From Mission: Impossible (L. Schifrin) (3:27) Larry Mullen, Adam Clayton; 2 Spying Glass (Vowles/Del Naja/Marshall/N. Hooper/H. Hinds) (5:20) Massive Attack; 3 I Spy (N. Banks/J. Cocker/C. Doyle/ S. Mackey/R. Senior/M. Webber) (5:56) Pulp; 4 Impossible Mission (D. Elfman) (5:35) Danny Elfman; 5 Headphones (B. Gudmundsdottir/ Tricky) (5:40) Bjork; 6 Weak (Skin/Ace/Cass/France) (3:31) Skunk Anansie; 7 On And On (Hunt) (4:11) Longpigs; 8 Claire (D. Elfman) (2:55) Danny Elfman; 9 Dreams (D. O'Riordan/N. Hogan) (4:13) The Cranberries; 10 You, Me And World War III ("Big" Single Remix) (G. Friday/M. Seezer) (4:28) Gavin Friday; 11 So (Salt) (3:33) Salt; 12 Trouble (D. Elfman) (3:32) Danny Elfman; 13 No Government (Nicolette) (5:31) Nicolette; 14 Alright (J. Power) (3:35) Cast; 15 Mission: Impossible Theme (Mission Accomplished) (L. Schifrin) (3:05) Adam Clayton, Larry Mullen.

Review: Interestingly, the song album adds another 12 minutes from Elfman's score, with the rest being turned over to various pop selections.These include two versions of Lalo Schifrin's theme for Mission: Impossible updated by Adam Clayton and Larry Mullen, who probably couldn't leave well enough alone, but who contributed nothing really novel to the tune and various pop/rock tunes by Massive Attack, Bjork, The Cranberries, Salt, and Nicolette. Even though most of these were not in the film, they succeed in conveying the tense atmosphere in some of the action-driven scenes ("Spying Glass," "I Spy"), or evoking the specific moods in it. But even though the album claims that it contains "music from and inspired" by the film, there is something quite amoral and deceptive in peddling ten selections that have no relation whatsoever with the film advertised, and try to make it pass as a soundtrack album.

Mississippi Burning

1989, Antilles Records; from the movie Mississippi Burning, Orion Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Trevor Jones; Orchestrations: Trevor Jones; Album Producer: Trevor Jones; Engineer: Paul Hulme.

Selections: 1 Take My Hand Precious Lord (T. Dorsey)(2:40) Mahalia Jackson; 2 Murder In Mississippi, Part 1 (3:08); 3 Some Things Are Worth Dying For (2:11); 4 Murder In Mississippi, Part 2 (1:06); 5 Anderson And Mrs. Pell (3:04); 6 When We All Get To Heaven (E. Wilson/E. Hewitt)(2:13) Choral; 7 Try Jesus (R. Martin)(2:17) Vesta Williams; 8 Abduction (2:40); 9 You Live It, You Breathe It, You Marry It (3:03); 10 Murder In Mississippi, Part 3 (:57); 11 Requiem For Three Young Men (3:49); 12 Burning Cross (1:32); 13 Justice In Mississippi (4:20); 14 Walk On By Faith (vocal)(J. Cleveland)(2:43) Lannie McBride; 15 Walk On By Faith (J. Cleveland)(5:70) Lannie McBride.

Review: A striking, provocative drama about the civil rights movement, and the hidden demons thriving in our society, Mississippi Burning evoked in stark, uncompromising terms the investigation into the outright murder of three civil rights workers by a local Mississippi sheriff, portrayed by Gene Hackman. The somber tones in the story receive additional support from the score written by Trevor Jones, a powerful set of cues in which the obsessive "Murder in Mississippi" mixes sound effects and lines from the dialogue with a relentless beat over percolating synth lines. Often poignant in its stark expression, the music never attempts to explain or underline a scene, but aims instead to create an "effect," an atmosphere that won't let go. Ultimately, it is disturbing, but musically very compelling, though this is the kind of cerebral score that demands a lot from any listener.

Mrs. Doubtfire

1993, Fox Records; from the movie Mrs. Doubtfire, 20th Century-Fox, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Howard Shore; Orchestrations: Howard Shore; Music Editor: Ellen Segal; Orchestra, conducted by Howard Shore; Album Producer: Howard Shore; Engineer: Dan Wallin.

Selections: 1 Mrs. Doubtfire (2:58); 2 Divorce (2:56); 3 My Name Is Elma Immelman (2:55); 4 Meeting Mrs. Doubtfire (2:14); 5 Tea Time With Mrs. Sellner (3:58); 6 Dinner Is Served (2:18); 7 Daniel And The Kids (2:29); 8 Cable Cars (4:56); 9 Bridges Restaurant (6:13); 10 The Show's Over (3:26); 11 The Kids Need You (3:21); 12 Figaro (G. Rossini)/Papa's Got A Brand New Bag (J. Brown) (3:23).

Review: Robin Williams has a field day in this comedy in which he portrays a divorced man who turns himself into the matronly Mrs. Doubtfire, an indispensable housekeeper, in order to stay close to his kids. But while the film thrived on the comedian's broad antics as the irrepressible title character, it elicited a surprisingly low-key score from Howard Shore who chose to ignore the farcical side of the story and concentrate instead on its more romantic aspects. As a result, the cues, with a few exceptions which essentially repeat the same theme ("Tea Time with Mrs. Sellner," "Bridges Restaurant"), are very lovely but seem to miss an important point made by the film. On a pure audio level, however, they add up to a generously pleasant album.

Mrs. Winterbourne

1996, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Mrs. Winterbourne, Tri-Star Pictures, 1996

Album Notes: Music: Patrick Doyle; Orchestrations: Lawrence Ashmore; Music Editor: Roy Prendergast; Musicians: Bruce Dukov (violin solo), Randy Kerber (piano); Orchestra conducted by Mark Watters; Album Producers: Patrick Doyle, Maggie Rodford; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 Connie's Story (1:07); 2 Connie And Steve's Life (1:27); 3 Homeless Blues (1:12); 4 Train To Boston (1:59); 5 Where's My Baby (2:26); 6 Ride To The Mansion (1:53); 7 Bill's Tour Of Boston (3:50); 8 You're A Winterbourne (4:01); 9 Wedding Prep Montage (:40); 10 Steve's Back (1:59); 11 (It's De Different (1:14); 12 Dead Steve (2:20); 13 Bill And Connie Come Clean (1:35); 14 Remembering New York (1:33); 15 Connie Tells Grace (3:23); 16 Connie's Song (2:19).

Review: Based on a novel by Cornell Woolrich, about a pregnant single woman mistaken for the widow of the heir to the Winterbourne family fortune, this romantic comedy succeeded primarily because of Shirley MacLaine's superb performance as an old dowager, and Ricki Lake's winsome appeal as the young woman whose unconventional behavior clashed with the stultified old-fashioned family clan forced to accept her. Trying to match in the score the basic moods projected in the picture, Patrick Doyle provided a competent effort that is at times a bit too schmaltzy for its own good, but in which some cues like "Connie and Steve's Life" bring a different, welcome change. Interesting, but the composer has been known to do better.

> "The fact that this film will be listened to for the next 40 years, I took very seriously.... The music spoke for the animals, similar to 'Peter and the Wolf,' a story told by music."

Mr. & Mrs. Bridge

1990, Novus Vision/BMG; from the movie Mr. & Mrs. Bridge, Cineplex Odeon Films and Merchant Ivory Productions, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Richard Robbins; Orchestrations: Robert Stuart; Album Producer: John Snyder; Engineers: Sue Fisher, Mike Farrow.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles (2:51); 2 Boogie Woogie (C. Smith)(3:08) Tommy Dorsey and His Orchestra; 3 The Painting Class (1:13); 4 String Of Pearls (J. Gray)(3:13) Glenn Miller and His Orchestra; 5 Little Brown Jug (J. Wilnner)(2:52) Glenn Miller and His Orchestra; 6 The Rhumba Jumps (H. Carmichael/J. Mercer)(2:48) Glenn Miller and His Orchestra, Marion Hutton & Tex Beneke); 7 Ruth's Journey (2:12); 8 Jeepers Creepers (J. Mercer/ H. Warren)(2:47) Ethel Waters, Edward Mallory and His Orchestra; 9 Blues In The Night (H. Arlen/J. Mercer)(3:08) Dinah Shore; 10 Stormy Weather (H. Arlen/T. Koehler)(3:46) Lena Horne, Lou Bring and His Orchestra; 11 She Was My Best Friend (1:41); 12 Take Me, I'm Yours (1:38) Allison Sneegas; 13 Choo Choo Conga (1:46); 14 Down On The Farm (trad.)(4:22) Charles Perkins, Richard Ross, Allen K. Monroe, Milt Abel; 15 Locking Up (1:54); 16 Closing Credits (3:00).

Review: The story of a stiff American couple living in Kansas during the great depression, Mr. & Mrs. Bridge brought the occasion for Richard Robbins to write a sensitive score suffused with sadness and joy, reflecting the varied moods of the film itself, and the drab existence of the film's central characters. His contribution, however, is limited here to about half the tracks, with themes that seem attractive but don't have much of a chance to make any kind of impact given their short playing time. Several standard selections ("String of Pearls," "Little Brown Jug," "The Rhumba Jumps," all performed by Glenn Miller; "Blues in the Night," by Dinah Shore; "Stormy Weather," by Lena Horne) add a period touch to the recording, though it should be noted that no effort has been made to clean these sides and make them sonically acceptable, something particularly noticeable in Tommy Dorsey's "Boogie Woogie," which has a lot of surface noise, distortion, image shifts, and dropouts, among its detrimental ills.

Mr. Baseball

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Mr. Baseball, Universal Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage, Arthur Morton; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Mr. Baseball (2:33); 2 First Night Out (1:54); 3 Acceptance (1:54); 4 New Apartment (:45); 5 The Dragons (1:04); 6 Call Me Jack/A Wise Brain (2:45); 7 Winning Streak/The Locker Room (1:06); 8 The Bath (3:07); 9 Training (2:31); 10 Go Get 'Em/He's Still Got It (1:25); 11 Team Effort (2:50); 12 Swing Away (1:46); 13 Final Score (5:04); 14 Shabondama Boogie (You/S. Toda)(4:23) Fairchild.

Review: Jerry Goldsmith must have enjoyed writing this score for a comedy starring Tom Selleck as the American coach of a Japanese baseball team, if one is to believe the rollicking accents he found for the rambunctious title tune. Expressing himself in a style in which he excels but he seems to seldom approach these days, Goldsmith delivered a flavorful set of cues, in which jazz touches, like "First Night Out" and "Team Effort," mix with electronic rock, like "Training" and "Final Score," and some romantic interludes to create a delicious souffle, light as the film itself, and devilishly enjoyable. It's nothing like the composer's most noteworthy efforts, but something to listen to when the moods need to be slightly buoyant and easy on the mind. "Shabondama Boogie," performed by Fairchild, is a hilarious rock number, the kind only the Japanese can write when they try to imitate their American counterparts.

Mr. Destiny

1990 , Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Mr. Destiny, Touchstone Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: David Newman; Orchestra conducted by David Newman; Album Producers: David Newman, Tim Boyle; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Mr. Destiny (5:05); 2 Main Title (1:45); 3 Larry's Life Is Changed (3:43); 4 Cindy Joe's Present (1:14); 5 Larry Sees His Office (:50); 6 Larry Sees The House (1:56); 7 Leo Sneaks Around (:30); 8 Larry Meets Jerry (4:17); 9 Larry Looks For Ellen (3:53); 10 Larry Punches Out Niles (1:07); 11 Going Back Home (:48); 12 Larry Is Home (5:07).

Review: A light comedy evoking Angels in the Outfield and Field of Dreams, among other inspirational romantic comedies about baseball and angels, Mr. Destiny dealt with yet another misfit whose guardian angel helped him rebuild his life and win the big game, in a formula that never fails to elicit strong emotional reactions in the audience. David Newman scored the whole thing with obvious empathy for the subject, developing broad instrumental themes that capture the moods in the film, soaring to a climax when the action required it, playing it soft and low when necessary. The contrasted effort is pleasantly listenable, generally attractive, but altogether not too terribly memorable, the type of music that may play in any given situation as long as it doesn't require too much attention.

Mr. Holland's Opus

Mr. Holland's Opus

1995, London Records; from the movie Mr. Holland's Opus, Hollywood Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Orchestrations: Michael Kamen, Stephen McLaughlin, Christopher Brooks; Music Editors: Michael Ryan, David Olson; The Seattle Symphony Orchestra and The London Metropolitan Orchestra, conducted by Michael Kamen; Featured Soloists: Jonathan Snowden (flute), Dominic Miller (guitar), Pino Paladino (bass), Jim Keltner (drums); Album Producers: Michael Kamen, Stephen McLaughlin, Christopher Brooks; Engineer: Stephen McLaughlin.

Selections: 1 Mr. Holland Begins (2:56); 2 Iris And Glen (2:28); 3 Practice, Practice, Practice (3:51); 4 New Baby/Coltrane/Children Should Listen To Mozart (3:17); 5 Rush To Hospital (3:17); 6 Symphony No. 7 (Allegretto) (L. Van Beethoven) (11:06); 7 Cole's Tune (4:18); 8 Vietnam (4:30); 9 Rowena (6:11); 10 Concerto For Three Harpsichords in C (1st movement) (J.S. Bach) (7:50) George Shangrow, Jillon Stoppels Dupree, Robert Kechley; 11 Thank You, Mr. Holland (5:08); 12 An American Symphony (Mr. Holland's Opus) (8:27); 13 Cole's Song (M. Kamen/ J. Lennon/J. Clayton) (3:49) Julian Lennon.

Review: A joyous score by Michael Kamen was the perfect complement to this highly entertaining Richard Dreyfuss picture about a high school music instructor who offered more than a little inspiration to the students he taught. Centering his score around an "Opus" that is never fully revealed until its concert performance at the very end, Kamen has written a melodic score that makes for an ideal soundtrack album, thanks to a fine mixture of cues ranging from poignant orchestral accompaniment to bold themes that reflect the many special moments in Mr. Holland's life. Kamen further grounds his score in an emotional vein with an elegy to "Vietnam" that gives the music an extra dimension before concluding with the rousing, Grammy-winning "An American Symphony," heard in its entirety only on the score album. Like the film, Kamen's music could have been merely simplistic and sappy, yet the composer is able to walk that thin line between emotion and sentimentality perfectly. And kudos to the producers for including Julian Lennon's vocal performance of "Cole's Tune" on the London CD, making this album fully representative of Kamen's complete work on the film.

Mr. Holland's Opus

1995, Polydor Records; from the movie Mr. Holland's Opus, Hollywood Pictures, 1995.

Selections: 1 Visions Of A Sunset (S. Stockman)(4:31) Shawn Stockman; 2 One, Two, Three (B. Holland/E. Holland/L. Dozier/J. Madara/D. White/L. Broisoff)(2:25) Len Barry; 3 A Lover's Concerto (S. Linzer/D. Randell)(2:38) The Toys; 4 Keep On Running (J. Edwards)(2:42) Spencer Davis Group; 5 Uptight (Everything's Alright)(H. Cosby/S. Moy/S. Wonder)(2:53) Stevie Wonder; 6 Imagine (J. Lennon)(3:01) John Lennon & The Plastic Ono Band; 7 The Pretender (J. Browne)(5:52) Jackson Browne; 8 Someone To Watch Over Me (G. & I. Gershwin)(3:32) Julia Fordham; 9 I Got A Woman (R. Charles) (2:50) Ray Charles; 10 Beautiful Boy (Darling Boy)(J. Lennon)(4:00) John Lennon, Yoko Ono; 11 Cole's Song (J. Lennon/J. Clayton/M. Kamen)(3:48) Julian Lennon; 12 An American Symphony (Mr. Holland's Opus)(M. Kamen)(3:14) The London Metropolitan Orchestra, Michael Kamen.

Review: A time travelogue not unlike Forrest Gump, Mr. Holland's Opus takes pieces of assorted eras for a pleasant if not entirely cohesive package. The individual selections are good, though, if a little tame—a couple of pieces by John Lennon ("Imagine," "Beautiful Boy (Darling Boy)"), Ray Charles' "I Got a Woman," Jackson Browne's "The Pretender." What it cries for is some tougher-edged music, the kind of stuff high school kids really listened to.

Mr. Saturday Night

1992, Giant Records; from the movie Mr. Saturday Night, Columbia Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Mark McKenzie, Brad Dechter, Tom Sharp; Music Editors: Hummie Mann, Scott Stambler; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Featured Musicians: Jack Sheldon, Bruce Dukov, Jerry Goodman, Abe Most, Dan Higgins, Randy Kerber, Steve Schaeffer; Featured Vocalists: Randy Crenshaw, Geoff Koch, Steve Lively, Rick Logan; Album Producers: Marc Shaiman, Hummie Mann; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: 1 The Coleman Comedy Hour: Buddy, Buddy (M. Shaiman/B. Crystal/ L. Ganz/B. Mandel)/My Buddy (G. Kahn/ W. Donaldson (3:32) The Big Chief Dancers; 2 Main Title: My Buddy (G. Kahn/W. Donalson)(2:37); 3 Amateur Night (1:38); 4 Elaine (1:39); 5 See What I Did/Roumania, Roumania (A. Lebedeff) (2:12) Aaron Lebedeff, Billy Crystal; 6 Table Eight, Polka Dot Dress (2:11); 7 Fantastic, That's You (B. Thiele/M. Greene/G. Cates)(2:55) Louis Armstrong; 8 Mama (2:30); 9 Buddy's Blue (1:55); 10 It Should Have Been You (3:12); 11 Susan, Where's That Doubletake (3:36); 12 Brothers (2:57); 13 When You're Smiling (The Whole World Smiles With You)(M. Fisher/J. Goodwin/L. Shay)(3:11) Louis Prima.

Review: Billy Crystal had one of his most pleasant screen roles in this film in which he played a congenial entertainer, raised in New York's Jewish East Side, who got his start in vaudeville, and ended as a television host, a cigar-chomping character he created early in his nightclub act and which he polished up for this big screen debut. If the film, an affectionate tribute to an era long gone, is a romp from beginning to end, with Crystal absolutely devilish as the ebullient old-timer with a tart tongue and a sharp sense of humor, it finds an equally inspired echo in composer Marc Shaiman's vibrant score, a special blend of subtle ethnic elements, not-so-subtle showbiz chutzpah, and just great themes to enjoy and delight in. Several well-chosen vocals, including Louis Armstrong's "Fantastic, That's You," and Louis Prima's "When You're Smiling," add the right element of nostalgia to the musical background, evoking an era when vaudeville was king and borscht belt comedians were at the peak of their popularity.

Mr. Wrong

1996, Hollywood Records; from the movie Mr. Wrong, Touchstone Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Craig Safan; Song Producers: Wayne Kirkpatrick, John Leventhal, Steve Addabbo, Scott Hendricks, Joan Osborne, Eric Jacobson, Kenny Laguna, Thom Panunzio, Joe Bashuron, Ben Folds, Tony Berg, Arturo Sandoval, Richard Eddy.

Selections: 1 The Things We Do For Love (E. Stewart/G. Gouldman) (3:22) Amy Grant; 2 Nothin' On Me (S. Colvin/J. Leventhal) (3:58) Shawn Colvin; 3 Kisses Good (J. Freeman) (3:19) Once Blue; 4 Since I Laid Eyes On You (E. Shipley/B. Steinberg/S. Stewart) (4:11) Faith Hill; 5 Strenuous Acquaintances (J. Osborne) (5:23) Joan Osborne; 6 I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry (H. Williams) (2:36) Chris Isaak; 7 Crazy Little Thing Called Love (F. Mercury) (2:45) Queen; 8 Love Stinks (P. Wolf/S. Justman) (3:32) Joan Jett and The Blakhearts; 9 I Gotcha (J. Tex) (3:42) Sophie B. Hawkins; 10 Song For The Dumped (B. Folds/D. Jessee) (3:32) Ben Folds Five; 11 It's Not Unusual (L. Reed/G. Mills) (5:15) The Wild Colonials; 12 Suavito (M.A. Gomez) (3:38) Arturo Sandoval; 13 Mr. Wrong Main Title (C. Safan) (2:21).

Review: The soundtrack for Ellen DeGeneres' pre-coming out star vehicle hit a few right notes, with a modest collection of modern rock focused on a falling-in-love theme. Amy Grant's remake of 10cc's "The Things We Do For Love" is perky, while Joan Osborne and Sophie B. Hawkins bring a bit of sultriness via "Strenuous Acquaintances" and "I Gotcha," respectively. Men have their say, too, with contributions such as Ben Folds Five's hilarious "Songs for the Dumped"), Chris Isaak's cover of Hank Williams' "I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry" and Arturo Sandoval's "Suavito."

Mo' Better Blues

1990, Columbia Records; from the movie Mo' Better Blues, Universal Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Strings Arranger: Clare Fisher; Orchestra conducted by Clare Fisher; Featured Musicians: Branford Marsalis (tenor/ soprano sax), Kenny Kirkland (piano), Robert Hurst (bass), Jeff "Tain" Watts (drums), Terence Blanchard (trumpet); Album Producers: Bill Lee, Delfeayo Marsalis, Raymond Jones; Engineers: Larry DeCarmine, Patrick Smith, Rob Hunter.

Selections: 1 Harlem Blues (W.C. Handy)(4:51) Cynda Williams; 2 Say Hey (B. Marsalis)(3:19); 3 Knocked Out The Box (B. Marsalis)(1:35); 4 Again Never (B. Lee)(3:55); 5 Mo' Better Blues (B. Lee)(3:40); 6 Pop Top 40 (S. Lee/B. Marsalis)(5:40) Denzel Washington, Wesley Snipes; 7 Beneath The Underdog (B. Marsalis)(5:07); 8 Jazz Thing (L.E. Elie/B. Marsalis/C. Martin/K. Elam) (4:50) Gangstarr; 9 Harlem Blues (Acapulco version)(W.C. Handy)(4:48) Cynda Williams.

Review: A film about the New York jazz scene, starring Denzel Washington as a self-centered trumpet player, Mo' Better Blues already had a striking musical expression that eventually resulted in this highly satisfying soundtrack album, featuring Terence Blanchard, Branford Marsalis and Kenny Kirkland, among its better known performers. Cynda Williams, who also appeared in the film as one of the central character's "main squeezes," does a standout rendition of W.C. Handy's "Harlem Blues," and Washington and Wesley Snipes read a somewhat dispensable "Pop Top 40" against musical accompaniment. The album will please jazz fans and those interested in adventurous musical fares.

Mobsters

1991, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Mobsters, Universal Pictures, 1991.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (2:00); 2 Charlie's New York (4:12); 3 Confrontations (5:03); 4 Theme For Mare (4:40); 5 Whiskey Business (1:19); 6 Ice Pick Love (1:09); 7 Doublecross (3:50); 8 Mara's Murder (3:43); 9 The Don Is Dead (1:23); 10 Finale (2:28).

Review: Lucky Luciano, Meyer Lansky, Bugsy Siegel and Frank Costello are glorified once again on the big screen in Mobsters, a film that's interesting for its clear-eyed view of the reasons why these men succeeded so well in their life of crime. Viewing the gangsters as they began to assert themselves and take control of their specific territories, the film, with a solid dramatic screenplay by Michael Mahern and Nicholas Kazan, detailed the rise and fall of the four men in terms that made few concessions to romantic attitudes. An interesting side aspect of the film is its score, written by Michael Small, an attractive mixture of stark-sounding orchestral riffs, occasionally interrupted by big band outbursts like "Whiskey Business," suggestive of the days of Prohibition. With the "Theme for Mara," a lovely, expansive cue for piano, clarinet and orchestra, one of the highlights, much of the music gives the action on the screen a dramatic, sometimes explosive expression, that translates very well in this soundtrack album.

The Moderns

1988, Virgin Movie Music Records; from the movie The Moderns, Nelson Films, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Arrangements: Mark Isham, Ken Kugler, Rick Ruttenberg; L'Orchestre Moderne: Mark Isham (trumpet, electronics), Peter Maunu (violin, mandolin, electric guitar), Ed Mann (vibraphone, marimba, snare drum), Dave Stone (acoustic bass), CharlElie Couture (vocals, piano), Rick Ruttenberg (piano), Patrick O'Hearn (acoustic and electric bass), Michael Barsimanto (drum machine), Suzie Katayama (cello); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineer: Stephen Krause.

Selections: 1 Les Modernes (6:00); 2 Cafe Selavy (4:25); 3 Paris La Nuit/ Selavy (3:32); 4 Really The Blues (3:37); 5 Madame Valentin (5:50); 6 Dada Je Suis (1:10); 7 Parlez-moi d'amour (retro)(2:55); 8 La Valse Moderne (2:49); 9 Les Peintres (2:24); 10 Death Of Irving Fagelman (1:53); 11 Je ne veux pas de tes chocolats (2:14); 12 Parlez-moi d'amour (moderne)(8:28).

Review: A tale of betrayal and deceit, set against the backdrop of late 1920s art world in Paris, The Moderns stars Keith Carradine as an American painter with enough talent to forge a convincing Cezanne, Linda Fiorentino as a beautiful brunette who motivated him, and John Lone as her ruthless, art collecting husband. Beautifully matching the tones of this triangular comedy and capturing the moods of the period itself, Mark Isham devised a score that is at once vibrant and evocative, a sensational music that speaks volumes. Essential to the feel of the score is its unusual instrumentation, with the violin, vibraphone and marimba creating a sound that evokes the period itself and gives its cachet to the whole album. The vocal contribution of CharlElie Couture, a French composer and performer, whose occasional interventions "Paris la nuit/Selavy" and "Parlez-moi d'amour (moderne)" give the score a specific Parisian flavor. It all adds up to a sensational album, and one of the best scores devised by Isham.

Moll Flanders

1996, London Records; from the movie Moll Flanders, M-G-M, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Mancina; Orchestrations: Mark Mancina, John Van Tongeren, Don Harper; Orchestra conducted by Don Harper; Album Producer: Don Harper; Engineer: Scott Hull.

Selections: 1 Moll Flanders (4:18); 2 Moll's Jig (2:11); 3 Flesh And Blood (3:31); 4 A New World (3:25); 5 Devil Woman (4:48); 6 We Were One (1:26); 7 Voyage (1:52); 8 Hibble's Tale (1:48); 9 Life Begins (3:31); 10 Sparrows (3:24); 11 Flora's Choice (1:35); 12 Full Of Grace (S. McLachlan)(3:38) Sarah McLachlan; 13 Belle nuit, o nuit d'amour (from The Tales Of Hoffman)(J. Offenbach)(4:08) L'orchestre de la Suisse Romande, Richard Bonynge; 14 Air (from Suite No. 3 in D Major, BWV 1068) (J.S. Bach)(5:11) Academy of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, Neville Marriner; 15/16 Allegro/Largo (from Concerto in C, RV 425)(A. Vivaldi)(2:33/3:32) Pepe Romero; 17 Allegro (from Brandenburg Concerto No. 3 in G Major, BWV 1048)(6:48) English Chamber Orchestra, Benjamin Britten, cond.; 18 Hornpipe and Andante (from Water Music Suite No. 1 in F Major (G.F. Handel)(8:02) Academy of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, Neville Marriner; 19 Moll Reprise (3:05).

Review: The notorious 18th-century English wench, already the subject of a 1965 romp starring Kim Novak, is on a rampage again in this loose screen adaptation of Daniel Defoe's 1722 novel, a picaresque tale about an attractive, fiercely independent woman, aware of her powers and ready to use them to elevate herself above her menial condition. Giving the tale a lift of its own, Mark Mancina provided a vibrant and lively score that chronicles the myriad incidents in Moll's rise from rags to riches, while detailing some of the many characters she encounters on the way – Mrs. Allworthy, owner of a classy bordello where Moll starts her "career" in earnest; a mysterious character only identified as The Artist, who rescues Moll when she is at her lowest, and makes her a model; Hibble, Mrs. Allworthy's servant, and Moll's only loyal friend; and Flora, Moll's daughter. Interestingly, the soundtrack album regroups Mancina's various cues in such a way that those pertaining to a given character are presented together, while more or less following the film's narrative. It is an acceptable device that gives greater strength and credibility to the score as a listening device.

The score itself is enriched with the addition of several selections from the classical repertoire, including an anachronistic aria from Offenbach's "The Tales of Hoffman," which had not been composed (and would not be for many moons) at the time when the story takes place.

The Molly Maguires

1990, Bay Cities Records; from the movie The Molly Maguires, Paramount Pictures, 1970.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestrations: Henry Mancini; Orchestra conducted by Henry Mancini; Album Producer: Tom Mack.

Selections: 1 Theme From The Molly Maguires (Pennsylvania, 1876)(4:18); 2 The Mollys Strike (2:45); 3 Main Title (1:44); 4 Fiddle And Fife (1:53); 5 Work Montage (2:13); 6 Jamie And Mary (The Hills Of Yesterday)(2:42); 7 Room And Board (Theme From The Molly Maguires)(1:54); 8 The Hills Of Yesterday (1:40); 9 Pennywhistle Jig (1:00); 10 Sandwiches And Tea (Theme From The Molly Maguires)(2:08); 11 Trip To Town (1:45); 12 The Mollys Strike Again (2:09); 13 A Brew With The Boys (1:38); 14 A Suit For Grandpa (2:09); 15 The End (Theme From The Molly Maguires)(:43).

Review: Based on a true story, and set in the Pennsylvania coal mining country in 1876, The Molly Maguires finds Henry Mancini writing in a dramatic vein, and relying on a variety of unusual instruments, such as the Irish harp, a button accordion, a pennywhistle and an ocarina, to convey the proper moods. To depict the drama and the screenplay's side elements about a rebellion of the miners, mostly Irish immigrants, led by Sean Connery, against the mine owners, Mancini essentially developed three themes—the main title, which sets the action and the bleak landscape where it happens; another, with specific Irish tonalities, to portray the Molly Maguires, an underground militant group whose only effective mean of fighting the abusive mine owners was through violent raids; and a third, a love theme describing the tender relationship between an Irish girl, Mary, played by Samantha Eggar, and a detective hired by the owners to infiltrate the workers' ranks, portrayed by Richard Harris.

All three themes provide the gist for the score, sometimes played independently, sometimes collapsing together, always attracting for their striking beauty and effectiveness. Mancini was particularly fond of this score and listening to it one can understand his reaction. The album, released on the now defunct Bay Cities label, may be hard to find, but is well worth looking for.

Mom and Dad Save the World

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Mom and Dad Save the World, Warner Bros., 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Mike Ross.

Selections: 1 Meet Spengo (2:42); 2 The Death Ray Laser (2:28); 3 Morning Paper/The Abduction (4:17); 4 Photo Session (1:46); 5 Family Talk (1:21); 6 Tod, The Destroyer (:41); 7 The Lub-lubs (2:47); 8 True Power (2:23); 9 The Needle (3:18); 10 Target Practice (1:59); 11 Rebel Dance (1:08); 12 I Love My Wife (1:38); 13 Gathering Forces (5:46); 14 Misunderstood (4:44); 15 The Flight Home (2:10); 16 On The Roof (:56).

Review: A minor little comedy, about an urban American family suddenly responsible for saving the Earth from the somber designs of a galactic villain, Mom and Dad Save The World would be easily dismissed were it not for the fact that its composer happened to be Jerry Goldsmith, not one to ignore no matter what project he finds himself involved with. Indeed, his score for this fantasy is a real musical romp, rife with grandiose themes that don't seem to take themselves too seriously, and that are played with the right sense of humor by no less a formidable group than the National Philharmonic Orchestra. Talk about class! Flash Gordon never had it so good. Particularly delightful in the context is the anthem "Tod, The Destroyer," amusingly sung by a chorus, and brief enough to make its point while not stretching it and a lively "Rebel Dance," silly enough to evoke more than its simple tune might suggest. When Jerry Goldsmith has fun scoring a film, everyone has a ball. Such is the case here.

Money Train

1995, 550 Music/Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Money Train, Columbia Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Mancina; Song Producers: Robert Livingston & Shaun Pizzonia, Walter Kahn & Skee-Lo, Sean Combs, Teddy Riley, Dave Hall, Tim Kelley & Bob Robinson, Jimmy Jam & Terry Lewis, Mark C. Selections: 1 The Train Is Coming (K. Boothe/O. Burrell) (4:06) Shaggy, Ken Boothe; 2 Top Of The Stairs (Skee-Lo) (4:31) Skee-Lo; 3 Do You Know (T. Robinson) (3:24) Total; 4 Show You The Way To Go (K. Gamble/L. Huff) (5:29) Men Of Vizion; 5 Hiding Place (D. Hall/G. Chambers/Patra) (4:32) Assorted Phlavors, Patra; 6 Making Love (T. Kelley/B. Robinson/K. Wales/M. Keith/D. Jones/M. Scandrick/Q. Parker) (5:44) 112; 7 The Thrill I'm In (J. Harris/T. Lewis) (4:12) Luther Vandross; 8 Still Not Over You (T. Lorenz/M. Rooney/M. Morales) (4:50) Trey Lorenz; 9 It's Alright (J. Oliver/ Heavy D/T. Robinson) (4:32) Terri & Monica; 10 Oh Baby (A. Richbourg/M. Horton/T. Hightower/S. Crumbley/J. Sylvain/R. Jackson) (3:58) 4.0; 11 Merry Go Round (M. Bell/B. Edwards/R. Finks/F. Thomas/L. Troutman/R. Troutman) (4:06) Ubu; 12 Hold On I'm Coming (I. Hayes/D. Porter) (3:37) The Neville Brothers; 13 Money Train Suite (M. Mancina) (4:50).

Review: Another case of a composer whose contribution to a film receives an all too short selection. Mark Mancina, whose considerable talent has enlightened many excellent films in recent years, (Moll Flanders, Speed, Twister,) is represented here by the short "Money Train Suite," an expressive cue that might have gained at being presented as part of a more comprehensive instrumental album. The other selections in the album, all pop vocals, range from the okay in songs like "The Thrill I'm In," "Hold On I'm Coming," and "Merry Go Round" to the so-what in "Hiding Place," "Do You Know," and "Oh, Baby." Is it what a film soundtrack is really all about?

Monterey Pop

1992, Rhino Records; from the documentary The Monterey International Pop Festival, 1967.

Selections: CD 1: 1 Festival Introduction (:52) John Phillips; 2 Along Comes Mary (2:47) The Association; 3 Windy (3:00) The Association; 4 Love Is A Hurtin' Thing (3:29) Lou Rawls; 5 Dead End Street (4:27) Lou Rawls; 6 Tobacco Road (6:20) Lou Rawls; 7 San Franciscan Nights (4:17) Eric Burdon & The Animals; 8 Hey Gyp (7:11) Eric Burdon & The Animals; 9 Rollin' And Tumblin' (4:19) Canned Heat; 10 Dust My Broom (5:02)Canned Heat; 11 Bullfrog Blues (3:01)Canned Heat; 12 Not So Sweet Martha Lorraine (5:38)Country Joe & The Fish; 13 Down On Me (3:26) Big Brother & The Holding Company; 14 Combination Of The Two (5:23) Big Brother & The Holding Company; 15 Harry (:37) Big Brother & The Holding Company; 16 Road Block (6:18)Big Brother & The Holding Company; 17 Ball And Chain (8:15)Big Brother & The Holding Company.

Review: The summer of love, and much else, truly began with this pioneering pop/rock festival. It was put together around The Mamas and the Papas (!), who were on their way out, but it wound up enshrining Jefferson Airplane, Otis Redding, Janis Joplin, The Who, and Jimi Hendrix on their way in, as folk-rock gave way to something darker and, you bet, louder. Rhino's four-CD boxed set goes far beyond the performances preserved in the movie—which created the "rockumentary" form—and makes it clear that, song for song, artist for artist, raindrop for raindrop, this was better than Woodstock.

Monty Python and the Holy Grail

1997, Arista Records; from the movie Monty Python and the Holy Grail, Tristar Pictures, 1975.

Album Notes: Music: De Wolfe; Songs: Neil Innes; Album Producers: Andre Jacquemin, Dave Howman, Michael Palin, Terry Jones, Terry Gilliam; Engineers: Garth Marshall, Terry Gilliam; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Kevin Hodge.

Selections: 1 Introduction To The Executive CD Edition (1:08); 2 Tour Of The Classic Silbury Hill Theatre (:12); 3 Live Broadcast From London/Premier Of The Film (3:57); 4 Narration From The Silbury Hill Gentlemen's Room/"You're Using Cocoanuts" (2:56); 5 "Bring Out Your Dead" (1:03); 6 King Arthur And The "Old Woman"/A Lesson In Anarcho-Syndicated Commune Living (2:57); 7 "A Witch" (2:47); 8 A Lesson In Logic (2:51); 9 "Camelot" (1:35); 10 "The Quest For The Holy Grail" (1:11); 11 Live From The Parking Lot At The Silbury Hill Theatre (1:02); 12 The Castle Of Louis de Lombard/"A Strange Person" (2:25); 13 Bomb Scare (:44); 14 Executive CD Edition Announcement (:17); 15 Another Executive CD Edition Announcement (:30); 16 The Story Of The Film So Far (2:12); 17 The Tale Of Sir Robin (1:54); 18 The Knights Who Say "Ni!" (2:35); 19 Interview With Filmmaker Carl French (2:38); 20 The Tale Of Sir Lancelot: At Swamp Castle (4:08); 21 Tim, The Enchanter/A Shakespearean Critique (3:30); 22 "A Foul-Tempered Rabbit" (2:33); 23 The Bridge Of Death (3:59); 24 Executive CD Edition Addendum (:55); 25 The Castle Aaargh/The End (2:47).

Review: The saga of Arthur and his valiant Knights of the Round Table will probably never survive this delirious send-up in which the Monty Python comedians thoroughly destroyed the legend to create a film (and soundtrack recording) that has long since become a cult favorite. Many scenes, like "You're Using Cocoanuts," "Old Woman," "A Strange Person," or "The Knights Who Say 'Ni!,'" are oft-quoted classics in their own right and rib-ticklers that never fail to elicit a smile from the cognizant. The CD version incorporates additional moments of zany outbursts that were not on the LP.

Moon 44

1990, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Moon 44, Spectrum Entertainment, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Joel Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Christopher L. Stone, Jack Smalley; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra conducted by Christopher L. Stone; Featured Vocalist: Heather Forsyth; Album Producer: Joel Goldsmith; Engineer: Keith Grant; Assistant Engineers: Gerry O'Riordan, Peter Fuchs.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Felix The Cop (3:05); 2 First Training Flight (5:14); 3 So Long Felix (4:08); 4 Navigator's Hang Up (1:28); 5 Armed And Dangerous No. 1 (3:30); 6 Drones, Drones (But Not A Drop To Drink)(2:53); 7 Sykes Gets Caught (2:10); 8 Armed And Dangerous No. 2 (4:28); 9 So You Like It Fast (Hard And Rough)(1:47); 10 Jake To The Rescue/Joel's Outlandish Adventure (2:25); 11 Lee Bombs Out (3:02); 12 Welcome To Moon 44 (:50); 13 Taxi Driver ("You Talkin' To Me")(2:49); 14 The Cookie Crumbles/Bumpy Taxi Ride/The End Of Moon 44 (8:08); 15 Afertmath (1:15); 16 Heading For Earth (:59); 17 Terry On The Moon/Finale (1:13); 18 Shut Out (1:34).

Review: This dynamic and exciting film score from Jerry Goldsmith's son is Joel Goldsmith's first large orchestral recording after many years of low-budget film and TV music. The music for this futuristic science fiction thriller is heavy on action, with no real melodies. Goldsmith keeps firm control over the orchestra even in the most furious of orchestral moments. His dissonances remain tonal and fluid and they continue to drive the action ahead. Naturally, some of these action cues are reminiscent of his father's, especially in the low horn phrases over snare drum and counterpointed strings melodies, but for the most part Joel Goldsmith is developing into a talented filmscorer in his own right. The CD is well-produced with an informative 8-page booklet. The only real drawback is the inclusion of the loud, raucous punk rock vocal, which is quite out of sync with the rest of the music—and quite a jolt after all the dynamic symphonics.

Moon over Parador

1988, MCA Records; from the movie Moon over Parador, Universal Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestra conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Joel Moss; Assistant Engineer: Scott MacPherson.

Selections: 1 Parador (2:00); 2 Madonna's Tango (3:08); 3 History Lesson (6:36); 4 Momma's Back (3:32); 5 Carnival (2:43); 6 Dictator's Workout (2:56); 7 The Part Of A Lifetime (2:43); 8 Flyaway (6:38).

Review: Maurice Jarre provided a wholly symphonic and wholly delightful score for this Paul Mazursky comedy about an actor masquerading as the dictator of an obscure Latin American country. The score is lively, often comic and often romantic, always vibrant. It captures Jarre's strongest symphonic capabilities and allows them to breathe. Moon over Parador lets its themes shine, giving both a Latin flavor through acoustic guitars, solo trumpets, tambourines, and Latin rhythms to its broad musical landscape, embellished with full orchestrations. The "Parador" theme is one of Jarre's most likable themes, a tuneful, inescapable rhythm that captures all of the film's many moods in a single melody. This is an invigorating score and among Jarre's best cinematic endeavors.

Moonraker

1988, EMI-Manhattan; from the movie Moonraker, United Artists, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Lyrics: Hal David; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: John Barry.

Selections: 1 Main Title: Moonraker (3:12) Shirley Bassey; 2 Space Lazer Battle (2:50); 3 Miss Goodhead Meets Bond (2:49); 4 Cable Car and Snake Fight (3:10); 5 Bond Lured To Pyramid (2:06); 6 Flight Into Space (6:33); 7 Bond Arrives In Rio and Boat Chase (2:39); 8 Centrifuge and Corrine Put Down (2:38); 9 Bond Smells A Rat (2:26); 10 End Title: Moonraker (2:30) Shirley Bassey.

Review: One of the best Bond films starring Roger Moore, Moonraker also got a great boost from John Barry, evidently in much better form than in the previous Man with the Golden Gun, and determined to have fun with it. The cues, more clearly detailed and using instrumentations that seem better suited, sound a bit more sedate than the throbbing cues in the Sean Connery films. The new addition of a distant choir confers to several of the cues an aura that is most attractive. The best moments here, as in the film, are the vibrant action scenes, with cues including "Cable Car and Snake Fight" and "Bond Arrives in Rio and Boat Chase," but a magnificent highlight is the poetic "Flight into Space," as effective in the album as it is in the film. Shirley Bassey's vocals seem almost as essential as Barry's score.

Moonstruck

1987, Capitol Records; from the movie Moonstruck, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Dick Hyman; Orchestrations and Arrangements: Dick Hyman; Orchestra conducted by Dick Hyman; Orchestra and Chorus of the Academy of Santa Cecilia of Rome, conducted by Tullio Serafin; Featured Performers: Jack Zaza (mandolin), Dominic Cortese (accordion), Ed Bickert (guitar), Moe Koffman (alto sax), Nora Shulman (flute), Dick Hyman (piano); Album Producers: Dick Hyman, Patrick Palmer, Norman Jewison; Engineer: Andrew S. Hermant.

Selections: 1 That's Amore (H. Warren/J. Brooks)(3:09) Dean Martin; 2 Canzone per Loretta/Addio, Mulberry Street (2:57); 3 Mr. Moon (1:01); 4 It Must Be Him (G. Becaud/M. Vidalin/M. David)(2:52) Vikki Carr; 5 Old Man Mazurka (2:29); 6 Lament For Johnny's Mama (1:14); 7 Che gelida manina (G. Puccini)(1:47); 8 Donde lieta usci (G. Puccini)(3:32) Renata Tebaldi; 9 Canzone per Loretta (:58); 10 O soave fanciulla (G. Puccini)(4:01) Carlo Bergonzi, Renata Tebaldi; 11 Musetta's Waltz (G. Puccini)(4:29); 12 Musetta's Entrance (G. Puccini)(1:20); 13 Instrumental Excerpts From La Boheme (G. Puccini)(3:32); 14 Gettin' Ready (1:47); 15 Brooklyn Heights Stroll (3:16); 16 Beautiful Signorina (3:17); 17 Moonglow (W. Hudson/E. DeLange/I. Mills)(2:54); 18 Canzone per Loretta/Gioventu mia, tu non sei morta (G. Puccini)(2:16) Gianna D'Angelo, Renata Tebaldi, Carlo Bergonzi, Fernando Corena, Ettore Bastiani, Renato Cesari, Cesare Siepi.

Review: Talk about a film that started modestly enough and ended up a surprise hit among both audiences and critics. Cher stars in a fetching Oscar-winning performance as a widow resigned to a life of mediocrity suddenly torn between two suitors, a bland neighbor, Johnny (Danny Aiello), and his beguiling brother, Ronny (Nicholas Cage). Much of the film's atmosphere came from the judicious choice of musical selections put together for the occasion, from the various vocal and instrumental opera tunes, to the pop songs, to the light jazzy touch provided by Dick Hyman. These apparently disparate elements blend together to create an aura that reflects the Italian background of the Brooklyn neighborhood where the action took place and of the characters who peopled the film. The soundtrack album reflects the same aura in a way that does not come across as cohesively here as it did in the film, though it provides a musical programming that has more ups than downs.

More

1989, Capitol Records; from the movie More, 1969.

Album Notes: Music: Pink Floyd (Roger Waters/David Gilmour/Nick Mason/Rick Wright).

Selections: 1 Cirrus Minor (5:15); 2 The Nile Song (3:26); 3 Crying Song (3:34); 4 Up The Khyber (2:13); 5 Green Is The Colour (2:59); 6 Cymbaline (4:50); 7 Party Sequence (1:10); 8 Main Theme (5:32); 9 Ibiza Bar (3:17); 10 More Blues (2:12); 11 Quicksilver (7:11); 12 A Spanish Piece (1:05); 13 Dramatic Theme (2:16).

Review: The touching love story of a German youth and an American girl, set against the psychedelic culture of the late 1960s, much of the actual flavor in More is due to Pink Floyd's trend-setting, atmospheric score. A cult favorite since its initial release, this soundtrack album continues to exert its spellbinding attraction, evoking not only an era that seems, in retrospect, simpler and more poetic, but making a musical statement which, decades later, has lost none of its immediacy and importance.

Mortal Kombat

Mortal Kombat

1995, TVT Records; from the movie Mortal Kombat, New Line Cinema, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: George S. Clinton; Orchestrations: George S. Clinton; Orchestra conducted by George S. Clinton; Featured Musician: Buckethead (guitar).

Selections: 1 A Taste Of Things To Come (:47); 2 Demon Warriors/Final Kombat (3:49); 3 Goro vs. Art (3:00); 4 Goodbye (Gravity Kills)(3:10) Gravity Kills; 5 Juke-Joint Jezebel (E. Esch/S. Konietzko/G. Schulz/R. Watts) (5:17) KMFDM; 6 Unlearn (D. Lenz/P. Sebastien)(7:29) Psykosonik; 7 Control (Juno Reactor Instrumental)(T. Lords/B. Watkins)(6:28) Traci Lords; 8 Halcyon + On + On (P. Hartnoll/P. Hartnoll/E. Barton)(9:28) Orbital; 9 Utah Saints Take On The Theme From Mortal Kombat (The Utah Saints/O. Adams)(3:00) Utah Saints; 10 The Invisible (G. Butler)(4:30) GZR; 11 Zero Signals (D. Cazares/R. Herrera/B. Bell)(5:58) Fear Factory; 12 Burn (Sister Machine Gun)(4:40) Sister Machine Gun; 13 Blood & Fire (Out Of The Ashes Mix)(Steele)(4:35) Type O Negative; 14 I Reject (C. Liggio)(2:57) Bile; 15 Twist The Knife (Slowly)(M. Harris/S. Embury)(2:53) Napalm Death; 16 What U See/We All Bleed Red (M. Moore/L. Branstetter)(4:09) Mutha's Day Out; 17 Techno-Syndrome 7;dp Mix (O. Adams)(3:22) The Immortals.

Review: What kind of music do you program for the film version of one the most popular video game bloodlettings of all time? Check out the song titles: "Blood & Fire," "Burn," "Demon Warriors," "Twist the Knife Slowly." Check out the band names: Type O Negative, Napalm Death, Fear Factory, Sister Machine Gun. Sounds like a match to us. And it should be noted that Kombat used techno, Orbital's "Halcyon + On + On," a couple of years before it became the hip thing to do.

Mortal Kombat

1995, TVT Records; from the movie Mortal Kombat, New Line Cinema, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: George S. Clinton; Orchestrations: George S. Clinton; Music Editor: Joanie Diner; The Testosterone Orchestra conducted by George S. Clinton; Featured Musicians: Buckethead (guitar), Brain (drums), Scott Breadman, Scott Higgins (percussion), Brice Martin (shakuhachi), Arjuna (resonator), George S. Clinton (keyboards); Engineer: John Whynot.

Selections: 1 A Taste Of Things To Come (1:19); 2 Liu vs. Sub-Zero (2:13); 3 It Has Begun; 4 The Garden (1:16); 5 Goro vs. Art (3:10); 6 Banquet (1:11); 7 Liu vs. Katana (1:35); 8 Liu's Dream (1:24); 9 Liu vs. Reptile (1:40); 10 Stairway (:43); 11 Goro Goro (:41); 12 Kidnapped (1:21); 13 Zooom (:17); 14 Johnny vs. Scorpion (1:20); 15 Hand And Shadow (2:40); 16 Scorpion And Sub-Zero (:50); 17 Soul Snatchin' (:37); 18 On The Beach (1:24); 19 Johnny Cage (1:06); 20 Goro Chase (1:27); 21 Evening Bells (:55); 22 Monks (:56); 23 Friends (1:51); 24 Flawless Victory (6:23); 25 Farewell (1:10); 26 Kids (1:18).

Review: Relentlessly energetic action score by George S. Clinton just erupts with its hard and heavy percussion, pounding like a primitive war dance. This was never going to be a quiet soundtrack as the film gave Clinton little opportunity to do anything else. He makes inventive use of his synthesizers and ethnic instruments, giving his orchestra several layers of dark and eerie musical textures. The album's one failing is that many tracks are under two minutes (one only 17 seconds!) and this makes the album prone to start and stop fits, giving little time to develop an overall feeling for the score.

The Mosquito Coast

1986, Fantasy Records; from the movie The Mosquito Coast, Fantasy Films, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Electronic Ensemble: Michael Boddicker, Michael Fisher, Ralph Grierson, Judd Miller, Nyle Steiner, Ian Underwood; conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: 1 The Mosquito Coast (5:44); 2 Goodbye America (And Have A Nice Day)(9:04); 3 Gimme Soca (A. Carter)(1:46) Byron Lee & The Dragonaires; 4 Up The River (1:43); 5 Jeronimo (4:35); 6 Fat Boy (7:30); 7 Destruction (5:23); 8 The Storm (1:37); 9 Allie's Theme (8:09).

Review: Maurice Jarre, writing for an electronic ensemble, delivered a superbly atmospheric score for this film by Peter Weir, starring Harrison Ford as a man with a utopian vision, who decides to leave modern civilization and moves with his wife and four kids to the jungle of a remote Caribbean island. The music, generally very attractive and poetic, benefits from the synthesizer sound up to a point, but the overall effect tends to be overpowering after a while. The exuberant "Gimme Soca," short as it may be, relieves the sullen moods and confirms one's impression that the score would have been stronger with the addition of another tune or two with that kind of drive and energy.

Mother

1996, Hollywood Records; from the movie Mother, Paramount Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian; Music Editor: Scott Stambler; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producer: Marc Shaiman; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Mrs. Robinson (P. Simon)(3:51) Steve Lively, Jess Harnell; 2 Main Title (3:22); 3 Such A Surprise (1:06); 4 In My Room (B. Wilson/G. Usher)(2:14) The Beach Boys; 5 Circling The Market (2:00); 6 Berate Me Tomorrow/The Blank Screen (1:42); 7 Trip To The Mall (4:23); 8 Land Of A Thousand Dances (C. Kenner)(2:26) Wilson Pickett; 9 At The Zoo (2:34); 10 The Hat Box (3:05); 11 Understanding Mother (4:48); 12 Look Who's Writing (1:14); 13 Across The Line (R. Cray/R. Cousins/P. Boe/D. Olson/D. Amy/J.L. Walker/H. Oden)(4:07) The Robert Cray Band; 14 Keep On Movin' (Jazzie B) (6:00) Soul II Soul.

Review: The delightful spoof of Paul Simon's "Mrs. Robinson," retitled here "Mrs. Henderson," to fit the character portrayed by Debbie Reynolds, augurs well for this soundtrack album to a charming comedy about a grownup man (Albert Brooks) who moves back in with "Mother" when his marriage ends up in divorce... again! The same whimsical moods pervade the cues written by Marc Shaiman, gently amusing and catchy, culminating in an exuberant "Understanding Mother," that sums up everything in the score that's so endearing. Selected pop tunes, wisely chosen, add a definite flair to the whole album.

Mother Night

1997, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Mother Night, Fine Line Features, 1996.

Album Notes: Michael Convertino; Orchestrations: John Neufeld, Bobby Muzingo, Michael Convertino; Music Editor: Ken Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producer: Michael Convertino; Engineers: Shawn Murphy, Dave Marquette.

Selections: 1 Spiegel I'm Spiegal/A Nation Of Two (5:17); 2 The Jews Are Eating The Future (2:15); 3 You Are What You Pretend To Be (4:15); 4 A New No-Life (3:38); 5 The Hanging Man (3:50); 6 Cantus In Memoriam (B. Britten) (6:06); 7 Allegro (from The Four Seasons: Autumn)(A. Vivaldi)(5:08) The Bournemouth Sinfonietta, Richard Studt; 8 Fratres (A. Part)(11:13); 9 Love Raises The Dead (1:36); 10 Leichentrager zur Wache (2:34); 10 Spiegel I'm Spiegal/War (4:48).

Review: A complex character study, Mother Night, based on a novel by Kurt Vonnegut, touches upon questions that transcend its subject matter even as it delves into different cinematographic genres. It is all reflective of the widespread screen action that takes its main protagonist, an American radio announcer (Nick Nolte) caught in the maelstrom of Nazi Germany, whose sympathies for the regime eventually owe him to be hunted after the war, and brought to Israel to be tried as a criminal. In turns a gritty black comedy, a political thriller, and a romantic drama, one of the film's unifying threads is Michael Convertino's low-key score, a collection of long orchestral themes that aim to underscore specific scenes while providing a musical atmosphere common to all of them. Two classical selections, Britten's "Cantus in Memoriam," and an excerpt from Vivaldi's The Four Seasons, add an extra element of beauty that's welcome. Missing, however, is Bing Crosby's rendition of "White Christmas" which was essential to the opening sequence in the film.

Mountains of the Moon

1990, Polydor Records; from the movie Mountains of the Moon, Carolco Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Small; Orchestrations: Christopher Dedrick; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Allan Wilson; Featured Musicians: Foday Muso Suso (Karinya, Tama, Nyanyeri, percussion), Gordon Gottlieb (percussion), "Crusher" Bennett (percussion), Tony Hajar (Arabic flute), Bill Ochs (Uillean pipes); Album Producer: Michael Small; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:41); 2 Journey (1:15); 3 Sandy Camp (1:36); 4 The Market (2:03); 5 Escape To England (2:31); 6 Isabelle (2:38); 7 Return To Africa (2:14); 8 Mabruki And The Lion Shoot (3:54); 9 The Long Walk (1:37); 10 Burton Sings (The Lone Rock)(1:51) Patrick Bergin; 11 Desert Trek (4:12); 12 It's The Lake (:50); 13 Poison Water (1:41); 14 Dark Caravan (3:12); 15 Ambush (:45); 16 Ngola's Court (1:44); 17 Speke And The Great Lake (4:03); 18 Farewell To Mabruki (1:42); 19 Journey Home (2:06); 20 The Wedding (Isabelle's Theme)(1:26); 21 The Decision (2:11); 22 Burton's Theme (2:02); 23 Journey Finale (2:22).

> "A funny thing happens when you're a film composer. You actually take on the role of director when it comes to the music because you know the director is very much in charge."
>
> Hans Zimmer
> (The Hollywood Reporter, 1-15-97)

Review: Composer Michael Small is primarily known for his adept scoring of some classic "paranoia" thrillers of the '70s like The Parallax View, Klute, The Stepford Wives and Marathon Man, but here he showcases an unexpected talent for the broader canvas of this historical adventure film about the explorer Sir Richard Burton. Small strays from his psychological approach of his earlier scores, here adopting a style more in keeping with John Williams or Georges Delerue, but what he lacks in originality he more than makes up for in melodic inventiveness. Several sweeping, gorgeous tunes fill out the epic scope of the story, from a noble, adventuresome theme for Burton to a beautiful waltz-like melody for Burton's romance with an English noblewoman. It makes for great listening, although the 18th-century romanticism often stands uncomfortably next to native African songs and percussion lines, with no attempt to integrate the two disparate styles. The score's immensely satisfying emotional qualities squash any other quibbles.

Much Ado about Nothing

1993, Epic Soundtrax/Sony Music; from the movie Much Ado about Nothing, Samuel Goldwyn Pictures, 1993.

Selections: 1 The Picnic (2:58); 2 Overture (4:22); 3 The Sweetest Lady (2:07); 4 The Conspirators (2:43); 5 The Masked Ball (1:57); 6 The Prince Woos Hero (1:20); 7 A Star Danced (2:47); 8 Rich She Shall Be (1:44); 9 Sigh No More Ladies (1:59); 10 The Gulling Of Benedick (3:13); 11 It Must Be Requited (2:01); 12 The Gulling Of Beatrice (1:41); 13 Contempt Farewell (1:38); 14 The Lady Is Disloyal (2:18); 15 Hero's Wedding (:48); 16 Take Her Back Again (3:12); 17 Die To Live (4:45); 18 You Have Killed A Sweet Lady (3:04); 19 Choose Your Revenge (1:51); 20 Pardon Goddess Of The Night (4:35); 21 Did I Not Tell You (1:42); 22 Hero Revealed (1:28); 23 Benedick The Married Man (2:09); 24 Strike Up Pipers (2:42).

Review: A grand, glorious score by Patrick Doyle, Much Ado about Nothing is one of those magical soundtracks whose popularity seems to grow as time goes on. You can't turn on any Olympic competition without hearing the majestic "Overture" at least once or twice, nor can one easily forget the soaring chorus of "Sigh No More Ladies," a track which gives this second Kenneth Branagh adaptation of Shakespeare its musical soul. Unlike his superb though sometimes over-the-top Henry V or the context-heavy score for Hamlet, Doyle's Much Ado is pretty much a stand-alone classic, and is certainly the most accessible score of the three Branagh-Doyle Shakespeare efforts. In fact, it is very hard to find fault with any of Doyle's compositions, or their sequencing as an album. The music flows splendidly from one track to the next, offering sweeping, memorable themes that linger in the mind long after they have finished. The cumulative effect is that of a superior listening experience that is rare at the cinema now. Indeed, when looking at how derivative and vapid most movie music currently is, Much Ado truly stands out as one of the finest film scores composed in the last decade.

Mulholland Falls

1996, edel America Records; from the movie Mulholland Falls, M-G-M, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Dave Grusin; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter; Orchestra conducted by Dave Grusin; Album Producer: Dave Grusin; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Mulholland Falls (4:33); 2 Just A Girl... (2:46); 3 Hurting For Allison (3:31); 4 Flashback And Revelation (3:03); 5 Kate's Theme/The End Of Jimmy (3:04); 6 Nuclear Madness/ Hats In The Desert (4:14); 7 Home Movies (1:41); 8 It's Over/ Flashback (2:59); 9 Separation (1:32); 10 To The Base/ Fallout For Timms (3:24); 11 Finale: Hats Off (2:55); 12 No Common Ground/End Credits (6:49); 13 Harbor Lights (J. Kennedy/H. Williams)(3:23) Aaron Neville.

Review: The true story of four LAPD detectives whose taste for expensive clothes and rough handling of criminals earned them the name of the "Hat Squad" in the early '50s, and the personal involvement of one of them with a young woman and crime victim, Mulholland Falls is a drama that never really attains the lofty heights to which it aspired. Possibly reflective of the uncertainties about the narrative itself, which, despite strong performances by Nick Nolte, Melanie Griffith, Chris Penn and John Malkovich, never gets off the ground and turns introspective instead of focusing on action, Dave Grusin's score, as heard in this soundtrack album, remains grounded in banalities. With little of the urgency or drive evidently needed for a film of this nature, it wanders aimlessly from one cue to another, with only "Kate's Theme" attracting for its melodic content.

The Muppet Movie

1993, Jim Henson Records; from the animated feature The Muppet Movie, Jim Henson Productions, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Paul Williams; Songs: Paul Williams & Kenny Ascher; Orchestrations: Ian Freebairn-Smith; Orchestra conducted by Ian Freebairn-Smith; Cast: Jim Henson (Kermit The Frog, Dr. Teeth, Rowlf, Swedish Chef, Waldorf), Frank Oz (Fozzie Bear, Miss Piggy, Animal), Jerry Nelson (Floyd, Robin The Frog, Crazy Harry), Richard Hunt (Scooter, Sweetums, Statler, Janice, Beaker), Dave Goelz (The Great Gonzo, Zoot, Dr. Bunsen Honeydew); Album Producer: Paul Williams; Engineers: Garry Ulmer, Danny Wallen.

Selections: 1 Rainbow Connection (3:16) Jim Henson; 2 Movin' Right Along (2:58) Jim Henson, Frank Oz; 3 Never Before, Never Again (2:30) Frank Oz; 4 Never Before, Never Again (3:53); 5 I Hope That Somethin' Better Comes Along (3:58) Jim Henson; 6 Can You Picture That? (2:31) Jim Henson; 7 I Hope That Somethin' Better Comes Along (2:30); 8 I'm Going To Go Back There Someday (2:52) Dave Goelz; 9 America (:53) Frank Oz; 10 Animal... Come Back Animal (1:31); 11 Finale: The Magic Store (5:17)Cast.

Review: The first, and to many, the best Muppet film, The Muppet Movie brings to the big screen the lovable gang in a story that doesn't make too much sense, but gives equal time to all the familiar characters, and proves thoroughly enjoyable from beginning to end. This is also due, to a large extent, to the wonderful score and songs created by Paul Williams, which includes the Grammy Award-winning "Rainbow Connection." In a case like this, little can be said: all you have to do is sit down, take the scene, and revel in the silly nonsense.

Muppet Treasure Island

1996, Angel Records; from the animated feature Muppet Treasure Island, Walt Disney Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Songs: Barry Mann, Cynthia Weil; Orchestrations: Bruce Fowler, Suzette Moriarty, Ladd McIntosh, Walt Fowler, Steve Fowler, Conrad Pope, Elizabeth Finch; Music Editor: Adam Smalley; Orchestra conducted by Harry Gregson-Williams; Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Adam Smalley; Engineer: Paul Hulme; Assistant Engineers: Gregg Silk, Slamm Anders.

Selections: 1 Treasure Island (1:08); 2 Shiver My Timbers (2:25) Dave Goelz, Steve Whitmire, Jerry Nelson, Kevin Clash, Bill Barretta, Barry Mann, Frank Oz; 3 Something Better (3:00) Dave Goelz, Steve Whitmire, Kevin Bishop; 4 Sailing For Adventure (2:59) Tim Curry, Dave Goelz, Steve Whitmire, Jerry Nelson, Kevin Clash, Bill Barretta, Mak Wilson, Barry Mann, Kevin Bishop, Frank Oz; 5 Cabin Fever (2:18) Dave Goelz, Steve Whitmire, Jerry Nelson, Kevin Clash, Bill Barretta, Barry Mann, Frank Oz; 6 A Professional Pirate (3:15); 7 Boom Shakalaka (1:22); 8 Love Led Us Here (2:23) Steve Whitmire, Frank Oz; 9 The Map (4:35); 10 Captain Smollet (2:04); 11 Land Ho (2:39); 12 Compass (1:07); 13 Long John (3:57); 14 Rescue (7:01); 15 Honest Brave And True (3:55); 16 Love Power (3:42) Ziggy Marley and The Melody Makers; 17 Love Led Us Here (3:45) John Berry, Helen Darling.

Review: A retelling of Robert Louis Stevenson's classic story, but with many liberties taken during the course of the action with the original, Muppet Treasure Island gives the Muppets an opportunity to interact with human actors, sail the high seas in search of a treasure, and throw in a couple of song-and-dance numbers even Stevenson with his wild imagination couldn't have dreamed up. The sum total is an entertaining lark, spiced up with some good musical moments, and the antics of the always engaging furry characters. If the kids will enjoy it for what it is, adults will also be amply rewarded, as long as they are not looking for Traviata or The Pirates of Penzance. Tim Curry, among the humans involved in this swinging swashbuckler, is outstanding as a singing Long John Silver.

Muriel's Wedding

1995, Polydor Records; from the movie Muriel's Wedding, Miramax Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Peter Best; Album Executive Producer: Chris Gough; Engineer: David Hemming.

Selections: 1 Bridal Dancing Queen (B. Anderson/S. Anderson/B. Ulvaeus) (1:10) The Wedding Band, Blazey Best; 2 Sugar Baby Love (W. Bickerton/T. Waddington)(3:28) The Rubettes; 3 We've Only Just Begun (P. Williams/R. Nichols)(3:03) The Carpenters; 4 Lonely Hearts (P. Best)(1:02) The Wedding Band; 5 The Tide Is High (J. Holt/T. Evans/H. Barrett)(4:34) Blondie; 6 Waterloo (B. Anderson/S. Anderson/B. Ulvaeus)(2:42) ABBA; 7 I Go To Rio (P. Allen/A. Anderson)(3:16) Peter Allen; 8 Bean Bag (P. Best)(2:09) The Wedding Band, John Barrett; 9 T-Shirt And Jeans (G. McLean/J. Thorpe/K. Djalkovsky)(4:08) Razorbrain; 10 I Just Don't Know What To Do With Myself (B. Bacharach/H. David)(3:00) Dusty Springfield; 11 Bridal Dancing Queen (B. Anderson/S. Anderson/B. Ulvaeus)(3:05) The Wedding Band, Blazey Best; 12 I Do, I Do, I Do, I Do, I Do (B. Anderson/S. Anderson/B. Ulvaeus)(3:16) ABBA; 13 Happy Together (G. Bonner/A. Gordon)(2:53) The Turtles; 14 Muriel's Wedding (P. Best)(3:31) The Wedding Band; 15 Dancing Queen (B. Anderson/S. Anderson/B. Ulvaeus)(3:49) ABBA.

Review: How you'll feel about this soundtrack depends on your taste for Abba, who account for three songs, and cheesey wedding band music, which accounts for four songs. It's another hodgepodge collection, loosely based around reception ditties such as the Carptenters' syrupy "We've Only Just Begun," the Turtles' "Happy Together" and Peter Allen's limbo-provoking "I Go to Rio." But without "Proud Mary" or "Celebrate," there's no way this can claim to be authentic.

Music Box

1989, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Music Box, Carolco Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Philippe Sarde; Orchestrations: Bill Byers, Hubert Bougis; The Hungarian State Symphony Orchestra and The Muzsikas, conducted by Harry Rabinowitz; Album Producer: Philippe Sarde; Engineer: William Flageollet.

Selections: 1 Ann's Theme (2:30); 2 Blood Red Danube (1:42); 3 Federal Building (3:19); 4 Departure From Court (:56); 5 Ann Studies Documents (2:09); 6 Journey To Budapest (4:27); 7 The Scar (1:11); 8 Ann And Georgina In Talbot's Library (2:27); 9 The Mirror (1:43); 10 Cemetery (2:19); 11 Candor (The Gendarmes)(3:45); 12 Remembering Of Ann's Mother (3:11); 13 Music Box (3:41); 14 The Newspaper (:55); 15 Finale (1:02).

Review: A powerful drama, enhanced by Jessica Lange's sensitive portrayal as a successful Chicago lawyer forced to defend her own father, facing deportation to Hungary for crimes he allegedly committed during World War II, Music Box could have benefitted from a stronger score than the one created here by Philippe Sarde. Not that the composer failed director Costa-Gavras, but saddled with little physical screen action and a poorly developed screenplay, all Sarde could do was provide cues that try to make a point when there is none to make. The only times the score comes alive is when the vivacious accents of a Hungarian csardas kick in as in "Departure from Court" and "Journey to Budapest," in a bit of local color that's particularly welcome.

My Best Friend's Wedding

1997, Work Records; from the movie My Best Friend's Wedding, TriStar Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, James Newton Howard; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Song Producers: Andy Marvel, Ani DiFranco, Jann Arden & Ed Cherney, Jimmy Bralower & Jeff Bova, Marc Tanner, Danny Bennett, Mary Chapin Carpenter, Lars Halapi, Eddie Arkin; Album Executive Producers: Glen Brunman, Bonnie Greenberg; Engineer: Bernie Grundman.

Selections: 1 I Say A Little Prayer (B. Bacharach/H. David)(3:38) Diana King; 2 Wishin' And Hopin' (B. Bacharach/H. David)(3:18) Ani DiFranco; 3 You Don't Know Me (C. Walker/E. Arnold)(3:27) Jann Arden; 4 Tell Him (B.R. Berris)(2:37) The Exciters; 5 I Just Don't Know What To Do With Myself (B. Bacharach/H. David)(4:21) Nicky Holland; 6 I'll Be Okay (T. Clark/G. Wells) (4:59) Amanda Marshall; 7 The Way You Look Tonight (D. Fields/J. Kern) (3:26) Tony Bennett; 8 What The World Needs Now (B. Bacharach/H. David) (3:15) Jackie DeShannon; 9 I'll Never Fall In Love Again (B. Bacharach/H. David)(3:53) Mary-Chapin Carpenter; 10 Always You (S. Zelmani/Q. Starkie) (2:52) Sophie Zelmani; 11 If You Wanna Be Happy (C. Guida/F. Guida/J. Royster)(2:23) Jimmy Soul; 12 I Say A Little Prayer (B. Bacharach/H. David) (2:31) The Cast Of "My Best Friend's Wedding"; 13 Suite From "My Best Friend's Wedding)(J. Newton Howard)(6:12).

Review: What a bright, cheerful little album! Featuring many songs written by Burt Bacharach and Hal David, and performances by a host of pop performers, including Jackie DeShannon, Mary Chapin Carpenter, and the ubiquitous Tony Bennett, the album plays like a wonderful, joyous celebration to the best of pop music in the 1960s. Even the cast of the film, including Julia Roberts, Dermot Muroney and Cameron Diaz, join in the fun, with James Newton Howard providing six minutes (not much, but enough to appreciate his contribution) of instrumental merriment.

My Cousin Vinny

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie My Cousin Vinny, 20th Century-Fox, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Music Editor: Kathy Durning; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineers: Elton Ahi, Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Something's Wrong (2:43); 2 Meeting The Judge (1:07); 3 Booked For Murder (1:03); 4 Life On The Open Road (1:03); 5 Brooklyn Reflections (:29); 6 Pig Squawk And Prison Talks (1:27); 7 Sworn Testimony (2:25); 8 Stiffled (1:13); 9 Lisa's Theme (1:31); 10 Shakey Vinny Takes The Case (2:16); 11 Trotter Unfolds The Tale (1:52); 12 Kicking J.T.'s Butt (1:44); 13 Wazoo Junction (2:08); 14 The Tide Turns (1:20); 15 Hot Wheels (1:58); 16 Mud Slide Vin (1:00); 17 Norton Gets Nuked (2:05); 18 Brainstorm (1:41); 19 Victory (1:24); 20 Closing and Reprise Of Wazoo Junction (3:09).

Review: Randy Edelman has teamed with director Jonathan Lynn a number of times over the years, but their most fruitful collaboration turned out to be My Cousin Vinny, the Joe Pesci comedy that earned Marisa Tomei an Oscar for her hilarious comedic performance. Edelman's score is typical of the composer, interspersing synths with orchestra and a small acoustic ensemble that simultaneously echoes both the street-savvy New Yorker who heads down to Alabama to handle a court case and the down home, decidedly Southern lifestyle that he runs into. The score is frequently bouncy and always energetic, though it's hard to believe that listeners who haven't seen the film will find the music of great interest, thus leaving the album recommended most strongly for fans of the movie. By the way, anyone looking for the two Travis Tritt songs that open and close the film will have to look elsewhere, as the record label opted not to include them here.

My Fellow Americans

1996, TVT Records; from the movie My Fellow Americans, Warner Bros., 1996.

Album Notes: Music: William Ross; Orchestrations: Scott Smalley, Conrad Pope, Chris Boardman; Engineer: Robert Fernandez; Featured Artists: Lipps, Inc., Stevie Wonder, Wilson Pickett, Elvis Presley, Creedence Clearwater Revival, ZZ Hill, The Tweezers & Jen, Louis Jordan with Louis Armstrong, Ella Fitzgerald, Dorothy Norwood, Peter Segal, Mihoko Toro; Album

Producers: Jon Peters, Tracy Barone, Peter Segal, Michael Dilbeck; Engineer: Kevin Hodge.

Selections: 1 Funkytown (S. Greenberg)(4:05) Lipps Inc.; 2 Superstition (S. Wonder)(4:27) Stevie Wonder; 3 In The Midnight Hour (W. Pickett/S. Cropper)(2:33) Wilson Pickett; 4 Treat Me Nice (J. Leiber/M. Stoller)(2:13) Elvis Presley; 5 Bad Moon Rising (J. Fogerty)(2:20) Creedence Clearwater Revival; 6 Down Home Blues (G. Jackson)(5:14) ZZ Hill; 7 Macarena (A. Romero/R. Ruiz/C.A. de Yarza/M. Triay)(3:53) The Tweezers & Jen; 8 Life Is So Peculiar (J. Burke/J. Van Heusen)(3:23) Louis Jordan, Louis Armstrong; 9 Don't Be That Way (M. Parrish/B. Goodman/E. Sampson)(4:06) Ella Fitzgerald; 10 Brick House (L. Richie/W. Orange/T. McClary)(3:34) Dorothy Norwood; 11 Presidential Booty (aka White Men Can't Rap)(C. Magness/P. Segal) (1:55) Peter Segal; 12 We're In The Money (H. Warren/A. Dubin)(1:02) Mihoko Toro; 13 Main Title/Country Club Stomp/ Trouble At The White House/ Finale (10:39).

Review: An odd mixture of genres—techno-pop with "Funkytown," R&B with "Superstition," country-rock with "Down Home Blues," pop-jazz with "Don't Be That Way," standard with "Life Is So Peculiar," rock with "Treat Me Nice"—this soundtrack album sounds as if it were trying to be too many things to too many people, at least creatively speaking. After a while, it sounds as if it were on overdrive, something that might reflect the tone of this frantic comedy, starring Jack Lemmon, James Garner, Dan Aykroyd and Lauren Bacall. William Ross' "original motion picture score" (sic), reduced to a 10-minute suite put together by splicing four cues with no connective thread, is not bad and reminiscent of the type of music Elmer Bernstein might write on an off-day. If you don't mind jumping from one style to another in the space of a few minutes, you might actually take a shine to this unorthodox album.

My Girl

My Girl

1991, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie My Girl, Columbia Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Featured Performers: The Temptations, Spiral Starecase, Sly and The Family Stone, The Fifth Dimension, Manfred Mann, Todd Rundgren, The Rascals, Creedence Clearwater Revival, Harold Melvin and The Blue Notes, The Flamingos, Chicago; Album Producers: Brian Grazer, David T. Friendly.

Selections: 1 My Girl (R. White/W. Robinson, Jr.)(2:43) The Temptations; 2 More Than Yesterday (P. Upton)(2:55) Spiral Starecase; 3 Hot Fun In The Summertime (S. Stewart)(2:37) Sly and The Family Stone; 4 Wedding Bell Blues (L. Nyro)(2:42) The Fifth Dimension; 5 Do Wah Diddy Diddy (J. Barry/E. Greenwich)(2:22) Manfred Mann; 6 I Saw The Light (T. Rundgren)(2:59) Todd Rundgren; 7 Good Lovin' (A. Resnick/R. Clark)(2:29) The Rascals; 8 Bad Moon Rising (J. Fogerty)(2:18) Creedence Clearwater Revival; 9 If You Don't Know Me By Now (K. Gamble/L. Huff)(3:25) Harold Melvin and The Blue Notes; 10 I Only Have Eyes For You (H. Warren/A. Dubin)(3:21) The Flamingos; 11 Saturday In The Park (R. Lamm)(3:53) Chicago; 12 Theme From My Girl (J. Newton Howard)(3:35).

Review: The film is about pre-pubescents in the early '60s, and the songs on the soundtrack follow that lead. They're all Top 20 hits and all love songs, from Sly & the Family Stone's "Hot Fun in the Summertime" to Manfred Man's "Do Wah Diddy Diddy" to the Young Rascals' "Good Lovin'" and Spiral Starecase's "More Today Than Yesterday." Oops, almost forgot—and the Temptations' "My Girl." Duh.

My Girl 2

1994, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie My Girl 2, Columbia Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Cliff Eidelman; Orchestra conducted by Cliff Eidelman; Featured Performers: Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young, Johnny Rivers, The Supremes, Jackson Browne, Steve Miller Band, Elton John, Rick Price, Rod Stewart, The Beach Boys, The Temptations; Album Producers: Brian Grazer, David T. Friendly.

Selections: 1 Our House (G. Nash)(2:58) Crosby Stills Nash & Young; 2 Rockin' Pneumonia & The Boogie Woogie Flu (H.P. Smith)(3:11) Johnny Rivers; 3 Baby Love (B. Holland/L. Dozier/ E. Holland)(2:35) The Supremes; 4 Doctor My Eyes (J. Browne)(3:13) Jackson Browne; 5 Swingtown (S. Miller/C. McCarty) (3:27) Steve Miller Band; 6 Bennie And The Jets (E. John/ B. Taupin)(5:22) Elton John; 7 Tiny Dancer (E. John/B. Taupin)(6:14) Elton John; 8 Walk Away Renee (M. Lookofski/A. Sansone/R. Calilli)(4:25) Rick Price; 9 Reason To Believe (T. Hardin)(4:06) Rod Stewart; 10 Don't Worry Baby (B. Wilson/R. Christian)(2:45) The Beach Boys; 11 My Girl (R. White/W. Robinson, Jr.) (2:41) The Temptations; 12 Orchestral Suite From My Girl 2 (C. Eidelman) (6:36).

Review: The sequel begins in the '60s—Crosby Stills, Nash & Young's "Our House," the Supremes' "Baby Love," a repeat of the Temptations' title song—but moves into the early and mid-'70s to follow the characters. It makes its musical point with some of the biggest artists of the era, including Jackson Browne ("Doctor My Eyes"), the Steve Miller Band ("Swingtown"), Rod Stewart ("Reason to Believe") and Elton John ("Tiny Dancer," "Bennie and the Jets"). But what this lacks is the forgotten gem or surprise cut. Johnny Rivers' rendition of "Rockin' Pneumonia & the Boogie Woogie Flu" comes close, but we'd rather have Professor Longhair, anyway.

My Left Foot/Da

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movies My Left Foot, Miramax Films, 1989, and Da, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Featured Musician: Cynthia Millar (Ondes Martenot solos); Album Producer: Cynthia Millar; Engineer: Brian Masterson.

Selections: MY LEFT FOOT: 1 Mother (3:40); 2 Unspoken Fear (4:23); 3 Therapy (2:55); 4 Church And Witches (2:52); 5 Study For Christy (3:05); 6 Happy Moment (2:33); 7 Gift For Mother/Cold (2:54); 8 Struggle And Frustration (3:52); 9 Love Spoken (4:49);

DA: 10 Da And Memories (2:35); 11 Temptress (2:00); 12 Drown The Dog! (2:52); 13 Secrets (1:28); 14 Old Matters (2:15); 15 Goodbyes (1:00); 16 Resolution (3:58).

Review: Two scores by the always reliable Elmer Bernstein combined together on one CD have two somewhat similar moods of personal struggle and emotional recovery and both are included for the price of one. Who could complain? Taking things sequentially, My Left Foot is a warm, affectionate look at the lifestory of Christy Brown (played by Daniel Day-Lewis), an Irish artist born with cerebral palsy, a debilitating disease, into a poor family, who overcame all odds to become a writer and painter. Eschewing the sappy sentimentality that could have destroyed its fragile dramatic balance, the film states its case with little embellishments, relying instead on the fabric of the story itself to make its impact. The moods are beautifully sustained by the score, in which Cynthia Millar's Ondes Martenot provides a specific atmosphere in "Mother," the first word the handicapped Christy wrote with a piece of chalk in his left foot to the amazement of his relatives.

Based on the book and eponymous play by Hugh Leonard, Da recountes the emotional journey of an Irish playwright (Martin Sheen) living in New York who attends the funeral of his father in Ireland and goes through a regenerative self-discovery trip. Once again, Bernstein's score finds new accents to underline the spiritual adventure of the film's hero, with the Ondes Martenot adding their unusual nostalgic sonorities to this wonderfully delineated music.

My Life

1993, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie My Life, Columbia Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Music Editor: Clif Kohlweck; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; Featured Soloist: Michael Lang (piano); Album Producer: John Barry; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:37); 2 A Childhood Wish (2:40); 3 Pictures From The Past (1:26); 4 I'm Still In The Game (3:12); 5 My Life: Love Theme (1:35); 6 The Old Neighborhood (1:51); 7 I Used To Hide In There (2:02); 8 You're A Believer (1:42); 9 My Last Trip Home (1:53); 10 Moments (2:58); 11 D-Day (1:53); 12 Child's Play (2:57); 13 The Circus (2:15); 14 Nice To Meet You Brian (2:19); 15 The Roller Coaster (2:04); 16 End Title (3:20).

Review: John Barry's propensity for long, romantic orchestral lines is particularly suited for this story of a man who finds out he is dying of cancer, and decides to make a video that will explain to his unborn child who he was and where he came from. The topic must have hit a particularly sentimental chord with the composer who wrote a gorgeous, low-key score, filled with emotional and beautifully tender moments. Subtly shaded, the music unfolds with striking grace, revealing themes that are stated with warmth and played for all their worth. This one must have come from the heart.

Mysterious Island

1993, Cloud Nine Records; from the movie Mysterious Island, Columbia Pictures, 1961.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; Orchestra conducted by Bernard Herrmann; CD Supervision: David Wishart; Digital Editing: Gus Shaw.

Selections: 1 Fanfare (:39); 2 Prelude (1:26); 3 Civil War (1:05); 4 Escape To The Clouds (7:58); 5 The Island (5:13); 6 The Giant Crab (2:49); 7 The Granite House (4:19); 8 The Phorarhacos (3:20); 9 Pirates! (3:13); 10 Nemo/The Grotto (1:53); 11 The Cephalopod (4:13); 12 Escape From The Island (5:48).

Review: Bernard Herrmann struck a particularly pleasant note in his relationship with Ray Harryhausen, writing wonderfully animated scores for the filmmaker's flights of cinematographic fantasy, The Three Worlds of Gulliver, Jason and the Argonauts, The Seventh Voyage of Sinbad, and Mysterious Island. Of these, Mysterious Island may be the most interesting, because of the colorful orchestral textures and brilliant themes that add musical life to Harryhausen's wonderful dynamation creatures ("The Giant Crab," "The Phorarhacos," "The Cephalopod"). As was true of Herrmann's previous contributions to these fantasy films, the music for Mysterious Island is a vibrant testimony to his unbridled imagination and his sense of action and movement, splendidly illustrated in this recording, available for the first time in stereo. Even though the CD evidences some audio problems, inherent, we are told, to the original recording itself, the effect achieved is often unique and sensational, making the album an essential addition to any collection.

The Mystery of Rampo

1995, Discovery Records; from the movie The Mystery of Rampo, Samuel Goldwyn, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Akira Senju; The Czech Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Vaclav Neumann, Mario Klemens; Album Producers: Kazuyoshi Okuyama, Hiroshi Hirai; Engineers: Michal Petarek, Lubomir Novacek, Tomoyoshi Ezaki.

Selections: 1 Love Theme For Rampo (4:19); 2 Fantasy (3:07); 3 Main Title (2:19); 4 Love Theme For Rampo (music box version)(1:35); 5 Silent Stream (1:43); 6 The Castle (2:03); 7 Love Theme For Rampo I (2:23); 8 Epilogue (3:17); 9 Introduction (2:31); 10 Illusion I (1:24); 11 The Shade Of The Tree (:23); 12 Making Love In The Foggy (1:56); 13 The Back Of The Mirror (3:01); 14 Love Theme For Rampo II (2:57); 15 Illusion II (2:03); 16 Theme Of Akechi (2:49); 17 Theme Of Marquis (5:13); 18 Amazing (1:35); 19 Showdown (:56); 20 Love Theme For Rampo (4:20).

Review: The musical setting for a film dealing with a Japanese novelist whose fictional characters find a strange echo in real life, The Mystery of Rampo elicited a strikingly beautiful Westernized score from composer Akira Senju, which at times recalls some of the most inspired moments from Ennio Morricone. Romantic elements pervade this elegant music, dominated by the nominal cue "Love Theme for Rampo," played in a variety of forms throughout, with the Czech Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Vaclav Neumann (no less!) and by Mario Klemens, bringing its own sensitivity to the flawless performance. A surprising recording well worth a detour.

Mystery Train

1989, RCA Victor Records; from the movie Mystery Train, Orion Classics, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: John Lurie; Featured Musicians: John Lurie (guitar, harmonica), Marc Ribot (guitar, banjo), Tony Garnier (bass), Douglas Browne (drums); Album Producer: Emmanuel Chamboredon; Engineer: Tom Lazarus.

Selections: 1 Mystery Train (S. Phillips)(2:23) Elvis Presley; 2 Mystery Train (S. Phillips)(2:22) Junior Parker; 3 Blue Moon (R. Rodgers/L. Hart) (2:38) Elvis Presley; 4 Pain In My Heart (N. Neville)(2:22) Otis Redding; 5 Domino (S. Phillips)(2:15) Roy Orbison; 6 The Memphis Train (M. Rice/R. Thomas/W. Sparks)(2:30) Rufus Thomas; 7 Get Your Money Where You Spend Your Time (T. Tate/J. Palmer)(3:47) Bobby Blue Bland; 8 Soul Finger (J. King/J. Alexander/T. Jones/R. Cauley/R. Caldwell/C. Cunningham)(2:19) The Bar-Kays; 9 Mystery Train (suite): Long Spell Of Cold Day/Banjo Blues/Chaucer Street (2:07); 10 Tuesday Night In Memphis/To Be Alive And In A Truck (3:20); 11 Girls/Random Screamin' Jay (1:21); 12 Italian Walk (:55); 13 A Lawyer Can't Take You To Another Planet (suite): Groove Truck/Drunk Blues/Big Harmonica Escape (4:27); 14 Dream Sun King (:13); 15 Chaucer Street (3:44); 16 Tuesday Night In Memphis (2:29).

Review: Two versions of the title song,one by Elvis Presley and one by Junior Parker, plus a "Mystery Train Suite," just in case you forgot the film's title are included. Memphis is dutifully represented on this soundtrack with the likes of Otis Redding, Roy Orbison, Rufus Thomas, Bobby Blue Bland and the Bar-Kays, and it would be nice to have more of that and less of John Lurie's Memphis via Hollywood score.

The Naked Gun 2½: The Smell of Fear

1991, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Naked Gun 2½: The Smell of Fear, Paramount Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Ira Newborn; Orchestrations: Alf Clausen, Don Nemitz; Music Editor: Jeff Carson; Orchestra conducted by Ira Newborn; Album Producer: Ira Newborn; Engineer: Gary Ladinsky.

Selections: 1 Beirut Vacation (:57); 2 Drebin—Hero! (1:04); 3 Main Title (2:01); 4 Meat Miss Spencer (5:28); 5 There's Been A Bombing (:48); 6 The Exciting Chase (2:44); 7 Bad Boys And Meinheimers (2:45); 8 Miss Spencer (1:01); 9 Hey Look At These (:45); 10 On The Ledge (1:37); 11 Thinking Of... Him! (2:33); 12 The Date (:57); 13 Roof, Roof!! (4:14); 14 I Must Kill Frank (3:11); 15 I Want A World (1:48); 16 End Credits (4:33).

Review: It was only natural that Ira Newborn would adapt his effective "Police Squad!" TV scores to the Naked Gun films. A lampoon of the 1950s cop shows, particularly M-Squad, the short-lived TV series enabled Newborn to borrow from the jazz style of that era and to create a memorable body of work. The main theme for "Police Squad!" is a boisterous big band style tune inspired by M-Squad's main title, while bumbling cop Frank Drebin's theme is a shameless march. The CD successfully mixes up cues from both the sequel and the first film, The Naked Gun: From the Files of Police Squad! into a surprisingly cohesive presentation.

Naked in New York

1994, Sire Records; from the movie Naked in New York, Fine Line Features, 1994.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Tony Bongiovi, Thomas Erdelyl, Michael Phillip-Wojewoda, Scott Billington, Mike McMackin, Kevin Maloney, Joe R. Brown, Andy Paley, Acid Test, Lenny DeRose, D-Ream, Tom Frederikse, Ted Ottaviano, Trevor Horn, Gary Wilkinson; Album Producer: Andy Paley.

Selections: 1 Rockaway Beach (J. Hyman/J. Cummings/D. Calvin/T. Erdelyl) (2:07) The Ramones; 2 Palomar (D. Bidini/M. Tielli/T. Vesley/D. Clark) (4:20) Rheostatics; 3 Feel Like Going Home (C. Bailey) (4:04) David Rudder; 7 Simple Brain (J. Plumb/A. Paley) (5:46) The Waltons; 8 Shake (L. DiSanto) () Acid Test; 9 U R The Best Things (P. Cunnah) (4:45) D:Ream; 10 Ugly On The Outside (J. Heiskell/J. Sughrue/D. Jenkins/E. Winters/P. Noe) (3:48) The JudyBats; 11 Conga Te (T. Ottaviano/B. Lucas) (3:36) Doubleplusgood; 12 Enchanted (S. Ottaviano/T. Ottaviano) (3:58) Book Of Love; 13 Crazy (S. Samuel/G. Sigsworth) (4:31) Seal; 14 Crash (D. Schelzel) (3:29) The Ocean Blue; 15 Comfort (P. Hooton/K. Mullin/C. Hunter) (4:51) The Farm; 16 Too Good To Be True (A. Paley) (3:10) The Greenberry Woods.

Review: Anything that starts with the Ramones' "Rockaway Beach" is bound to be at least interesting and this set is better than that. Mostly it's a modern rock sampler, self-serving in that it's loaded with Sire/Reprise artists, but at least they deliver the goods. Rheostatics' "Palomar" is good fun, while the Farm and Greenberry Woods kick it on "Comfort" and "Too Good to Be True," respectively. Judybats' "Ugly on the Outside" is an under-appreciated gem, and Seal's "Crazy" is always nice to have around.

Naked Lunch

1992, Milan Records; from the movie Naked Lunch, 20th Century-Fox, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Howard Shore; Orchestrations: Homer Denison; Music Editor: Suzana Peric; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Howard Shore; Featured Musicians: Ornette Coleman (saxophone); Denardo Coleman (drums), Barre Phillips (bass), J.J. Edwards (Sintir), Aziz Bin Salem (Nai), David Hartley (piano); Album Producer: Howard Shore; Engineer: Alan Snelling.

Selections: 1 Naked Lunch (2:27); 2 Hauser And O'Brien/Bugpoweder (O. Coleman)(2:39); 3 Mugwumps (2:54); 4 Centipede (2:03); 5 The Black Meat (1:24); 6 Simpatico/Misterioso (T. Monk)(1:34); 7 Fadela's Coven (3:31); 8 Interzone Suite (5:11); 9 William Tell (1:43); 10 Mujahaddin (1:54); 11 Intersong (O. Coleman)(3:45); 12 Dr. Benway (3:11); 13 Clark Nova Dies (2:03); 14 Ballad: Joan (O. Coleman)(2:37); 15 Cloquet's Parrots/Midnight Sunrise (O. Coleman)(1:43); 16 Nothing Is True, Everything Is Permitted (1:55); 17 Welcome To Annexia (3:33); 18 Writeman (O. Coleman)(3:53).

Review: Based on the sci-fi cult novel by William S. Burroughs, and mixing elements of his personal life, like the accidental death of his wife during a wild party, The Naked Lunch is distinguished by an abrasive Howard Shore score, performed by Ornette Coleman. Quoting Coleman, "the voicings of the woodwinds, brass, strings, percussion, non-tempered instruments and the uses of the alto soloist work so that one can hear these instruments creating harmonies, melodies, rhythms, modulations and dynamics mirroring each other categorically." Ultimately, acceptance of the album will largely depend on the reaction to Coleman's grating, iconoclastic playing, deemed awful by some, genial by others. The fact is that this soundtrack album is bound to find as many admirers as it will find detractors. On a purely listening basis, it may be uncompromising musically but difficult at times to really appreciate, Ornette Coleman's playing notwithstanding.

The Name of the Rose

1986, Teldec; from the movie The Name of the Rose, 20th Century-Fox, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Featured Artists: Charles Brett, Counter Tenor and The Choir of the Choir School, Maria Schulz, Kurt Rieth, director; Album Producer: James Horner.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (3:00); 2 Beata viscera (trad.)(2:19) Charles Brett; 3 First Recognition (2:27); 4 The Lesson (4:20); 5 Kyrie (trad.)(2:23) Choir of The Choir School Maria Schulz; 6 The Scriptorium (3:52); 7 Veni Sancte Spiritus (trad.)(3:13) Choir of The Choir School Maria Schulz; 8 The Confession (3:10); 9 Flashbacks (2:04); 10 The Discovery (2:28); 11 Betrayed (2:56); 12 Epilogue (6:05); 13 End Titles (3:12).

Review: An odd murder mystery, set in an isolated Italian monastery in medieval time, The Name of the Rose received scant distribution at the time of its release and little publicity, despite superb portrayals by Sean Connery, as a sly monk with a detective instinct, and F. Murray Abraham, as a ruthless inquisitor. Providing an extra ounce of symbolism to the occult drama is James Horner's cleverly enigmatic score, in which tintinnabulating bells ominously announce the next victim. Mixing strange sonorities and Gothic plainchant to create an oppressive atmosphere with mysterious undertones, the score is wonderfully imaginative and well-suited for this story based on a novel by Umberto Eco. Unfortunately, the soundtrack album was only released in Germany, on the Teldec label, and may prove difficult to find. But it's well worth the effort.

Napoleon

Napoleon

1994, Erato Records; from the movie Napoleon, 1926-27.

Album Notes: Music: Arthur Honegger, Marius Constant; The Orchestra Philharmonique de Monte Carlo, conducted by Marius Constant; Album Producer: Michel Garcin; Engineers: Jacques Doll, Jean-Marie Golaz.

Selections: 1 Opening Credits (M. Constant)(3:23); 2 The Night Of August 10th (M. Constant)(1:39); 3 The Storm (A. Honegger)(4:21); 4 Calm (A. Honegger)(3:56); 5 The Siege Of Toulon (M. Constant)(3:22); 6 Admiral Hood (M. Constant)(:58); 7 The English Army (M. Constant)(2:58); 8 The Attack (M. Constant)(4:34); 9 After The Battle (M. Constant)(2:58); 10 Violine (A. Napoleon

1981, CBS Records; from the movie Napoleon, Images Film Archive, 1927.

Album Notes: Music: Carmine Coppola; The Milan Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Carmine Coppola; Album Producers: Mike Berniker, Carmine Coppola; Engineer: Paolo Bocchi.

Selections: 1 Napoleon's March (2:03); 2 Officers Waiting and Love Theme (3:51); 3 Snow Fight (3:59); 4 Fort Carre Prison (3:39); 5 Pozzo Theme (Enemy Theme)(3:45); 6 Cafe Scene (General Carteaux)(4:31); 7 Exit Music (2:21); 8 Carriage Ride and Love Theme (2:28); 9 Family Theme (2:40); 10 The Wedding (4:23); 11 Les Victimes Ball (4:46); 12 Victorious In Italy and Finale (6:04).

Review: Abel Gance's sweeping Napoleon continues to inspire awe and admiration more than 70 years after it was made. A five-hour drama of epic proportions, this silent film "speaks" volumes, both in terms of dramatic performances (Albert Dieudonne as young Bonaparte is unforgettable), and as a visual spectacle in which Gance pioneered many modern techniques, including multiple-screen projection (30 years before Cinerama), and camera movements to follow the action.

Throughout the years, various composers have attempted to capture in musical terms the visual excitement of this extraordinary film. Arthur Honegger was the first to do so for the film's initial presentation, in a score that only exists today in fragmented sketches. When a restored version of the film was shown in Paris in 1979, Marius Constant contributed new cues which, together with the selections from the Honegger score, can be heard on the excellent recording he subsequently made for Erato.

For a gala performance at the Empire in London in 1980, British composer Carl Davis also created a new set of cues said to closely match the director's intentions. His score, another impressive achievement, finds the composer conducting the Wren Orchestra, in a reissue from Silva Screen Records. (see also Compilations)

Finally, Carmine Coppola introduced his own variations on the theme for another roadshow presentation in 1981, in what is ultimately a downright tedious and derivative score, lacking real dramatic substance.

The point between all three scores, of course, is how the same subject matter inspired four different composers, and how they each approached the same epic film with varying ideas.

The Natural

1986, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie The Natural, Tri-Star Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Newman; Orchestrations: Jack Hayes; Music Editor: Joe Tuley; Orchestra conducted by Randy Newman; Album Producer: Lenny Waronker; Engineers: Lyle Burbridge, Lee Herschberg.

Selections: 1 Prologue 1915-1923 (5:20); 2 The Whammer Strikes Out (1:56); 3 The Old Farm 1939 (1:07); 4 The Majors: The Mind Is A Stranger Thing (2:14); 5 "Knock The Cover Off The Ball" (2:17); 6 Memo (2:02); 7 The Natural (3:33); 8 Wrigley Field (2:13); 9 Iris And Roy (:58); 10 Winning (1:00); 11 A Father Makes A Difference (1:53); 12 Penthouse Party (1:10); 13 The Final Game (4:37); 14 The End Title (3:22).

Review: Writing in a style that irresisitibly evokes some of the best pages by Aaron Copland, Randy Newman created a wonderful Americana-tinged score for this film, starring Robert Redford as a baseball player finally making the big time in his last season, after having shown great promises that never materialized throughout his career. One of Newman's earliest scores, the music flows with grace and charm, all bathed in a faint echo of nostalgia, in what was and still remains a very endearing effort. Subsequently, Newman continued in the same vein and scored other films with equal success, but this one is a real gem.

Near Dark

1987, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Near Dark, DeLaurentiis Entertainment, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Tangerine Dream; Arrangements: Tangerine Dream; Album Producers: Tangerine Dream; Engineers: Tangerine Dream.

Selections: 1 Caleb's Blues (3:10); 2 Pick Up At High Noon (4:56); 3 Rain In The Third House (2:56); 4 Bus Station (includes Mae's Theme)(8:38); 5 Good Times (2:35); 6 She's My Sister (Resurrection I)(7:20); 7 Mae Comes Back (2:00); 8 Father And Son (Resurrection II)(2:55); 9 Severin Dies (2:45); 10 Fight At Dawn (4:40); 11 Mae's Transformation (4:20).

Review: Propelled by an exciting score by Tangerine Dream, Near Dark is a vampire film of another sort, about a group of nasty-looking bikers with a mean streak in them that compels them to roam the countryside in a rural community and kill for fun once the sun has set. Punctuating the action and giving it an extra edge of vibrancy whenever needed, Tangerine Dream's score, an electronic concoction with emphasis on the beat, succeeded in enhancing the terror in the visuals. Taken on its own terms, it proves somewhat less ingratiating, though "Caleb's Blues" and "Good Times" are great rocking numbers.

Needful Things

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Needful Things, Castle Rock Entertainment, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Patrick Doyle; Orchestrations: Lawrence Ashmore, John Bell; Music Editor: Roy Prendergast; Orchestra and Choir conducted by David Snell; Featured Vocalist: Nicole Tibbels; Album Producers: Patrick Doyle, Maggie Rodford; Engineer: Paul Hulme.

Selections: 1 The Arrival (2:56); 2 To My Good Friend Brian (5:29); 3 Needful Things (2:37); 4 Brian's Deed (1:38); 5 More Deeds (2:23); 6 Art And The Minister (1:43); 7 Gaunt's Web (2:51); 8 Racing Towards Apple Throwing Time (4:43); 9 Nettie Finds Her Dog (1:49); 10 Ave Maria (F. Schubert)(3:51); 11 Peer Gynt: Hall Of The Mountain King (E. Grieg)(2:14); 12 Go Upstairs (2:58); 13 The Turning Point (12:08); 14 They Broke The Law (1:56); 15 The Devil's Here (4:31); 16 Just Blow Them Away (2:46); 17 End Titles (3:53).

Review: Even when he writes a horror film score, Patrick Doyle can't avoid being more elegant and sophisticated than most. His music for this scary concoction about an olde shoppe in Maine that may harbor some evil force, if one is to believe that people who shop there end up being haunted by the objects they purchase, is as malevolent as it is delicious. Broadly announced by a choir in what sounds like an ominous pronouncement of things to come, the music, at first gracious and quite lovely, but becoming increasingly dark and brooding, unfolds with great charm, before exploding in a climactic cue ("Just Blow Them Away") that marks all at once the end of the spell, of the shop, and of the movie. In-between, some elements create strong images, like the use of a music box theme that recurs at intervals throughout the score and belies some of the subjacent horror in the story, or the choral writing that evokes both good and evil pitted in an endless struggle, something that the two classical selections included here also denote.

Nemesis

1992, High Tide Recordings; from the movie Nemesis, Imperial Entertainment, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Michel Rubini; Orchestrations: Michel Rubini, Kevin Maloney; The Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Michel Rubini; Album Producer: Michel Rubini; Engineer: Brian Vessa.

Selections: 1 Jared's Theme (4:04); 2 Main Titles (1:20); 3 On The Hunt (3:33); 4 Big Rocket (3:44); 5 Down The Slide (1:00); 6 Desert Run (3:42); 7 Shang Loo (2:11); 8 Blue Julian (2:41); 9 Hammerheads (3:04); 10 Robotomaniac (2:28); 11 Exit Anji (3:01); 12 Cable Ride (3:19); 13 Marion Face (2:20); 14 Jared's Theme (Blue Alex)(2:30); 15 Volcano Run (3:14); 16 Time To Go (:42); 17 End Credits (3:23).

Review: A futuristic film that had a short existence in movie theatres and didn't make much of a dent afterwards, Nemesis is somewhat enlivened by the score Michel Rubini wrote for the occasion. With an abundance of electronic sounds and effects attempting to evoke the moods in the film, only those tracks that feature acoustic instruments over orchestral themes actually succeed in creating some enjoyment when judged on their own merits. "Jared's Theme" is a case in point, with its flavorful images strikingly painted by a heavily-echoed guitar, but the rest of the "score" is nothing more than electronic mush that means little outside of its screen context.

The Net

1995, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Net, Columbia Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Orchestrations: Ken Kugler, Kim Scharnberg, Dell Hake, Larry Blank; Programming: Jeff Rona; conducted by Ken Kugler; Featured Musicians: David Goldblatt, Rich Ruttenberg (piano solos); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineer: Stephen Krause.

Selections: 1 Act I (3:42); 2 Act II (11:53); 3 Act III (3:20); 4 Act IV (10:34).

Review: A powerful suspense thriller starring Sandra Bullock as a lonely Internet surfer and her involvement in murky government dealings, The Net reveals some dark Hitchcockian undertones in its standard story about an apparently innocent victim of circumstances being sucked into a maelstrom of criminal activities and almost losing her life as a result. While Mark Isham is a reliable composer, whose scores always keep the listener interested, he is not Bernard Herrmann, something that is plainly evidenced here. The selections, broken down in four parts, follow the story, gradually becoming more threatening as the Bullock character finds herself more and more in serious danger, with increasingly somber orchestral textures occasionally interrupted by percussion elements, synthesized sounds, and weirdly ominous sonorities. It may work very well on the screen, as a complement to the action, but as pure audio programming, it often leaves a lot to be desired. The CD is unusually short (29:30 minutes of music!) but given the low impact of the music, it seems largely sufficient.

> "(Director) Tim (Burton) and I both grew up on the same kind of movies, and it was fun to do like a pure science-fiction old-fashioned score like this, with big brass and all these inspirations from those cheesy old movies, blurting out these dissonant chords."

Netherworld

1991, Moonstone Records; from the movie Netherworld, Paramount Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: David Bryan, Larry Fast; Music Editor: Carl Zittrer; Song Performers: Edgar Winter, John Duva, Bernie Pershey, Bobby Gianetti, Tonk's House Band: Edgar Winter (vocals/sax), David Bryan (piano/backing vocals), Troy Turner (guitar), Harold Scott (bass), Stanley Watson (drums), Nancy Buchan (violin); Album Producers: David Bryan, Larry Fast; Engineers: John Bogosian, Michael Polopolus.

Selections: 1 Stranger To Love (D. Palotta)(4:41) Edgar Winter; 2 Tonk's Place (2:31); 3 Birds Of A Feather (2:50); 4 Black Magic River (2:38); 5 Open Door Policy (J. Adams)(3:41); 6 My Father's Sins 3:10); 7 The Ceremony (5:05); 8 Into The Netherworld (3:38); 9 If I Didn't Love You (J. Turnbow/J. Wachbrit) (4:55) Edgar Winter; 10 Inherit The Dead (2:50); 11 Mirror Image (3:39); 12 What's Your Plesure? (4:45); 13 100 Reasons (J. Adams); 14 Netherworld Waltz (5:25).

Review: Full Moon movies often feature obnoxious musical scores by the likes of Richard Band, but here's one that's refreshingly different. For Netherworld, rock artist Edgar Winter croons a number of his original songs and offers a similarly rock/R&B tinged score for a typically unappealing Charles Band-produced direct-to-video genre feature (one that's still a bit better than most efforts from this studio!). Winter is well-known in pop music circles and his music here certainly gives more to the movie than the film does for him—the solo piano that performs the final track is elegant and graceful, probably working better on its own than it does in the laughable movie. Unlike most Full Moon projects, the music surprisingly doesn't sound like a video-game underscore. Winter fans especially should definitely give this one a listen.

Never Say Never Again

1993, Silva America; from the movie Never Say Never Again, Taliafilm, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: Michel Legrand; Orchestra conducted by Michel Legrand; Album Producer: Michel Legrand; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 Bond Back In Action (:50); 2 Main Title: Never Say Never Again (M. Legrand/A. & M. Bergman)(3:10) Lani Hall, Herb Alpert; 3 Prologue/Enter 007 (:27); 4 Fatima Blush/A Very Bad Lady (3:46); 5 Dinner With 007 (1:08); 6 Bahama Island (2:49); 7 Bond Smells A Rat/Nurse Blush? (1:27); 8 Plunder On A Nuclear Missile (1:55); 9 The Big Band Death Of Jack Petachi (1:43); 10 Bond And Domino (2:03); 11 Fight To The Death With The Tiger Sharks (4:50); 12 Une chanson d'amour (M. Legrand/S. Della/J. Drejac)(4:24) Sophie Della; 13 Video Duel/Victory (1:41); 14 Nuclear Nightmare (1:06); 15 Tango To The Death (2:21); 16 Bond Returns Home (:25); 17 The Death Of Nicole/Chase Her (1:20); 18 Felix And James Exit (:36); 19 Jealousy (3:15); 20 Largo's Waltz (1:26); 21 Bond To The Rescue (4:42); 22 The Big Escape (1:19); 23 Tears Of Allah (2:21); 24 The Underwater Cave (4:37); 25 Fight To The Death (2:21); 26 Bond In Retirement/End Title: Never Say Never Again (M. Legrand/A. & M. Bergman)(4:53) Lani Hall.

Review: After having sworn off his James Bond screen persona for the second time following Diamonds are Forever (he already had left the series once before, after filming You Only Live Twice), Sean Connery relented one last time and agreed to portray the apparently invincible 007 in Never Say Never Again, a thinly disguised remake of Thunderball. That film, however, was significantly different from the other James Bond films. It was not produced by Albert R. Broccoli and Harry Saltzman, who had succeeded in cornering the market by purchasing the rights to all the stories written by Ian Fleming save two (the other was Casino Royale), and the film producers Jack Schwartzman and Kevin McClory could not secure the services of the James Bond composer-in-residence, John Barry.

Instead, they turned to Michel Legrand who wrote a strongly evocative score, even though it failed to evoke James Bond in the way John Barry managed so effectively in the many outings he scored. Comparisons with Barry's Thunderball in fact are unavoidable, with Legrand's music suffering as a result. Taken on its own terms, however, it is a series of action cues that match the pace of the film itself, with some excellent locale-suggestive moments ("Bahama Island," "Big Band Death of Jack Petachi," "Tango to the Death," Tears of Allah"), and strongly-flavored cues ("Bond and Domino," "Bond Returns Home," "Felix and James Exit," "Largo's Waltz"). Two vocal tracks, the main title performed by Lani Hall with Herb Alpert, and "Une chanson d'amour," by Sophie Della, add a different touch.

The NeverEnding Story

The NeverEnding Story

1984, EMI Records; from the movie The NeverEnding Story, Neue Constantin Films, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Giorgio Moroder, Klaus Doldinger.

Selections: 1 NeverEnding Story (3:33) Limahl; 2 Swamps Of Madness (1:57); 3 Ivory Tower (3:10); 4 Ruined Landscapes (3:04); 5 Sleepy Dragon (3:58)(G. Moroder); 6 Bastian's Happy Flight (3:16); 7 Fantasia (:56); 8 Atreju's Quest (2:52); 9 Theme Of Sadness (2:43); 10 Atreju Meets Falkor (2:31); 11 Miprorgate/Southern Oracle (3:10); 12 Gmork (:29); 13 Moonchild (1:24); 14 The Auryn (2:20); 15 Happy Flight (1:21) (K. Doldinger).

Review: Originally, this German-made fantasy film was entirely scored by Klaus Doldinger (Das Boot) and released in that country with only his music. However, when the film was acquired by Warner Brothers for the U.S., the studio brought in music pop producer Giorgio Moroder to create a "hip" main title song, sung by pop artist Limahl. Moroder eventually went on further to write four additional synthesized underscore themes that are interpolated with Doldinger's orchestral work. Surprisingly, this mix holds up in part because Moroder doesn't ignore the ambience set by Doldinger. Both artists draw on the film's wonderful sense of childhood adventure and the things they fear. Moroder's new theme for the "Swamp of Sadness" isn't all that different from Doldinger's "Theme of Sadness," though the former draws on a less than original classical motif to accomplish his task. The only real distinction between each composer's style is the lack of acoustical instruments on Moroder's cues. Both have their music collected into two suites on the U.S. soundtrack album, though I still prefer listening to the German album with Doldinger's entire original score. It has a somewhat more mature quality that appeals to my aging sensibilities.

The NeverEnding Story II: The Next Chapter

1990, Warner Bros.; from the movie The NeverEnding Story II: The Next Chapter, Neue Medien und Elektronikvertrieb, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Robert Folk; Songs: Giorgio Moroder; Orchestrations: Robert Folk, Randy Miller; Music Editor: Doug Lackey; Members of the Symphony Orchestra of the Bavarian Broadcasting Corporation, Bavarian State Orchestra, Orchestra of the Bavarian State Opera, Choir of the Bavarian State Opera, and Grosses Rundfunkorchester Berlin, conduted by Robert Folk; Album Producer: Giorgio Moroder; Engineers: Alan Snelling, Brian Masterson.

Selections: 1 Searching For Fantasia (2:19); 2 Dreams We Dream (G. Moroder/ T. Whitlock)(4:23) Joe Milner; 3 Heaven's Just A Heartbeat (G. Moroder/T. Whitlock)(4:10) Joe Milner; 4 The NeverEnding Story (G. Moroder/K. Forsey) (3:29) Joe Milner; 5 Dreams We Dream (G. Moroder/T. Whitlock)(4:27); 6 Bastian's Dream (2:05); 7 Falkor's Quest (2:33); 8 Flight Of The Dragon (3:32); 9 Silver Mountains (1:29); 10 Morning In Fantasia (1:08); 11 The Childlike Empress (2:15); 12 The Giants' Attack (2:11); 13 Silver Lake (2:54); 14 Xayide's Castle (1:26); 15 Atreyu's Return To The Great Plains (3:10); 16 Bastian's Lost Memories (1:03); 17 Silver City (2:05); 18 The NeverEnding Story (G. Moroder/K. Forsey)(reprise)(:54).

Review: Robert Folk has created a grand, sweeping orchestral and choral score for the second installment in this series that manages to match the tone set by Klaus Doldinger on the first film ("Searching for Fantasia"). He also manages to show a musical side he was rarely able to express during the years he scored comedy films like the Police Academy series. "Morning in Fantasia" is a particularly exciting cue with its intense brass orchestration, while "The Childlike Empress" shows Folk's tender side. As with the first film, the album also features songs by Georgio Moroder.

New Jersey Drive

1995, Tommy Boy Records; from the movie New Jersey Drive, Gramercy Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Volume 2 Song Producers: Roc Raida & Knobody, Evil Dee & Mr. Walt, Naughty By Nature & Al Mal, DJ Premier, KRS-One, Organized Konfusion, Funkmaster Flex; Album Executive Producers: Nick Gomez, Monica Lynch.

Selections: 1 Funky Piano (W. Brown)(5:14) E. Bros; 2 Headz Ain't Ready (B. Powell/J. McNair/S. Price/J. Bush/D. Yates/T. Williams/K. Blake/G. Evans)(5:19) Black Moon, Smif 'n' Wessun; 3 Connections (K. Gist/A. Criss/V. Brown)(3:11) Naughty By Nature; 4 Nobody Beats The Biz (B. Markie)(5:05) Biz Markie; 5 Invasion (K.J. Davis/C. Martin)(3:11) Jeru The Damaja; 6 Own Destiny (M. Lion/K. Parker/N.Pigford/E. Paris)(4:37) Mad Lion; 7 You Won't Go Far (O. Credle/T. Jamerson/L. Baskerville)(3:43) O.C., Organized Konfusion; 8 Flip Squad's In Da House (B. Collins/G. Clinton/W. Morrison/G. Jacobs)(4:08) Flip Squad Allstars, Flex, Big Kap.

Review: An album and an EP filled with funk-influenced hip-hop. Both East and West coast are represented here, with top names, like Biz Markie and Naughty By Nature and cutting edgers such as Flip Squad Allstars, Flex, and Big Kap. Volume one, also available, includes producer Sean "Puffy" Combs' group Total, whose "Can't You See" samples James Brown's "The Payback" and features a guest shot by the late Notorious B.I.G.

Night and the City

1992, Hollywood Records; from the movie Night and the City, 20th Century-Fox, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Song Producers: Freddie Mercury, Mike Moran, David Richards, Gardner Cole, James Newton Howard, Dennis Matkosky; Engineers: Brian Malouf, Robert Schaper, Michael Mason.

Selections: 1 The Great Pretender (B. Ram)(3:26) Freddie Mercury; 2 Cool Jerk (D. Storball)(2:32) The Capitols; 3 Money (That's What I Want)(B. Gordy/J. Bradford)(4:12) Jr. Walker and The All Stars; 4 You Really Got A Hold On Me (W. Robinson)(2:43) Smokey Robinson and The Miracles; 5 Wooly Bully (S. Samudio)(2:14) Sam The Sham and The Pharaohs; 6 Love Doesn't Matter (G. Cole/J. Newton Howard)(4:02) Rodney Saulsberry; 7 Deep Water (D. Brown/D. Matkosky)(3:47) Bill Champlin; 8 Forgiveness (D. Matkosky)(3:43) Lynn Davis; 9 Never Gonna Stop (G. Cole/J. Newton Howard)(3:42) Gardner Cole; 10 The Boxing Gym (1:31).

Review: At 33 minutes, this is a pretty chintzy outing, though a blast of '60s frat party smashes—the Capitols' "Cool Jerk," Smokey Robinson & the Miracles' "You Really Got a Hold on Me," Sam the Sham & the Pharaohs "Wooly Bully" and Jr. Walker & the All-Star's version of "Money (That's What I Want)"—is hard to beat. However, Bill Champlin warbles "Deep Water" to bring us back to reality.

Night Breed

1990, MCA Records; from the movie Night Breed, 20th Century-Fox, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek, Shirley Walker; Music Editors: Sally Boldt, Bob Badami; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker; Featured Vocalists: Members of the L.A. Master Chorale; Album Producers: Danny Elfman, Steve Bartek; Engineers: Shawn Murphy, Bobby Fernandez.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (2:40); 2 Dream (1:03); 3 Carnival Underground (3:23); 4 Into Midian (2:31); 5 Meat For The Beast (2:10); 6 Resurrection Suite (3:37); 7 Boone Transforms (:56); 8 The Initiation (2:50); 9 Scalping Time (1:54); 10 Rachel's Oratory (1:04); 11 Party In The Past (:51); 12 Poor Babette (1:41); 13 Uh-Oh... Decker! (1:39); 14 Then Don't Say It! (1:28); 15 Boone Gets A Taste (2:44); 16 Breed Love (1:02); 17 Mayhem In Midian (1:43); 18 Baphomet's Chamber (2:01); 19 Farewell (:59); 20 Second Chance (1:34); 21 End Credits (4:33); 22 Country Skin (4:15) Michael Stanton.

Review: One of the scores written during the time when Danny Elfman took on Batman and a number of other similarly-themed projects (Darkman, Dick Tracy, et al), Nightbreed offers a traditionally dissonant, percussive score that is distinctly Elfman. The composer, working again with orchestrator Steve Bartek and conductor Shirley Walker, employs a large chorus to go along with a primal-sounding percussion section and symphony orchestra, and the results are in keeping with Elfman's eclectic, offbeat musical sensibilities, though, for some reason, this score holds up better as a cohesive soundtrack album than many of his other efforts from the same period. The music is frequently expansive in scope, with some soaring, lyrical passages offering hope to the proceedings—a contrast that is further illustrated by its surprisingly poignant final notes. If you don't own many Elfman scores and want a good representation of his early film music, Nightbreed is as solid and satisfying as you can get.

Night Crossing

1987, Intrada Records; from the movie Night Crossing, Buena Vista Pictures, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:48); 2 All In Vain (3:24); 3 The Picnic (4:04); 4 Plans (5:06); 5 Success (3:43); 6 First Flight (9:45); 7 The Patches (2:50); 8 Tomorrow We Go (1:03); 9 No Time To Wait (5:36); 10 Final Flight (6:16); 11 In The West (3:34).

Review: Goldsmith wrote a thunderous score for this early Disney effort at live-action drama, about a family that escapes from behind the Iron Curtain in a balloon. The opening theme recalls Capricorn One with its pounding, jagged percussion lines and wailing brass motif to represent the threat of the Wall and its East German troops, while a soaring, lyrical melody underscores the bonding of the family and their attempts to escape, climaxing in an exultant, celebrational climactic cue. It's almost too large-scale an effort for this rather personal story, but it does make for a spectacular album with a heavy, almost gothic sound and a constant undercurrent of rumbling percussion.

Night Digger

1994, Label X; from the movie The Night Digger, 1971.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; Orchestra conducted by Bernard Herrmann; Recording Engineer: Bob Auger; CD Producer: John Steven Lasher; CD Engineer: Don Bartley.

Selections: 1 Scene One (6:04); 2 Scene Two (3:42); 3 Scene Three (6:40); 4 Scene Four (4:20); 5 Scene Five (2:46); 6 Scene Six (8:17); 7 Scene Seven (6:32).

Review: One of Bernard Herrmann's last scores is also one of his most tender and haunting. The 1971 film was directed by Alastair Reid and written for the screen by Roald Dahl, a curious psychological thriller about a handyman (who murders in his off-hours) who comes to stay with two country women. The score is largely for strings, with solo instruments of a viola d'amore and harmonica representing the two main characters (the handyman plays harmonica on-screen as well). Between Herrmann's usual, idiosyncratic mastery of unresolved sequences, here fragile and reflective a la the "Walking Distance" episode of The Twilight Zone, and the timbres of the solo instruments, it's stunningly evocative and nostalgic. Even the more frenetic passages lack the shock violence of Psycho, instead resonating with sadness and disquiet. The album is arranged into a seven-scene "Scenario Macabre for Orchestra."

The Night of the Generals

1990, Intrada Records; from the movie The Night of the Generals, Columbia Pictures, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The New Philharmonia Orchestra, conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: Neely Plumb; CD Producer: Douglass Fake.

Selections: 1 March From The Night Of The Generals (2:22); 2 Love Theme From The Night Of The Generals (2:25); 3 In The Museum (2:10); 4 On The Terrace At Versailles (2:26); 5 On The Bridge (1:52); 6 Exit Maxim's (2:04); 7 Tanz At The Tavern (1:55); 8 Lieutenant General Tanz (1:23); 9 Love Theme (reprise)(2:25); 10 War And Madness (1:55); 11 Drive Around Paris (2:16); 12 Tanz Comes Back (2:05); 13 Arrest (2:04); 14 The Night Of The Generals (12:46).

Review: In the 1960s, Maurice Jarre scored several films with a World War II theme, notably Is Paris Burning?, perhaps his greatest achievement in this vein, The Damned, Behold a Pale Horse, The Train, and this attractively designed score for a film directed by Anatole Litvak. Based on a best-selling novel by Hans Helmut Kirst, The Night of the Generals started as a standard murder mystery, involving the death of a prostitute, and led to an inquiry into the depraved mores of a trio of Nazi generals in occupied Warsaw. Characteristic of the style he used at the time, broadly florid and musically inventive, Jarre essentially devised two sets of cues. The first, a series of dark marches, played by the brass and percussion instruments, depict the sturm-und-drang of the German army, in often savage and bitter tones that have nothing glorious in them. The second, a very attractive, recognizable "Love Theme," returns frequently throughout the recording to portray the moods and feelings of some of the actors in this drama of passion, though the lilt in it often belies the sadness that permeates it. The CD, marred by a significant amount of hiss on some of the tracks, includes an extended suite of the principal themes, making this release one of the most important in the Jarre canon.

Night of the Running Man

1995, Super Tracks Music Group; from the movie Night of the Running Man, Trimark Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Franke; The Berlin Symphonic Orchestra, conducted by Alan Wagner; Album Producer: Richard E. Roth; Engineer: Richard E. Roth.

Selections: 1 American World Pictures Logo (:16); 2 Opening Credits (3:25); 3 Taxi Ride (2:59); 4 Killer Love (2:07); 5 Neck Break/Total Cash (1:44); 6 Trailer Break In (3:19); 7 Train Chase/Hoover Dam (3:15); 8 Couple Argument (2:03); 9 Airport Escape (4:34); 10 Mills House (1:39); 11 Torture (4:15); 12 Hospital Escape (2:22); 13 Continental Chase, parts 1 & 2 (3:55); 14 Love Scene (1:48); 15 Killer In The House (2:16); 16 Back To Vegas (3:02); 17 Surprise/Girl Beating/End Fight (7:28); 18 Explosion/The End (3:14); 19 Natasha's Theme (2:08).

Review: Night of the Running Man is a well-written and performed film score by Christopher Franke. It plays at times very much like his work on the "Babylon 5" TV series and could almost be interchangeable were it not for the occasional use of contemporary guitar and percussion. Franke once more combines his own synth work with the Berlin Symphonic Film Orchestra, though the acoustical instruments are heavily overshadowed by the electronics. The finale cue, "Natasha's Theme," is a lovely piano solo.

The Nightmare Before Christmas

1993, Walt Disney Records; from the movie The Nightmare Before Christmas, Touchstone Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Lyrics: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek, Mark McKenzie; Music Editor: Bob Badami; Orchestra conducted by Chris Boardman, J.A.C. Redford; Album Producers: Danny Elfman, Bob Badami, Richard Kraft; Engineers: Bill Jackson (vocals), Bobby Fernandez and Shawn Murphy (songs), Shawn Murphy (score); Assistant Engineers: Sharon Rice, Bill Easytone, Mike Piersante, Andy Bass.

Selections: 1 Overture (1:47); 2 Opening (:58); 3 This Is Halloween (3:16) Citizens of Halloween; 4 Jack's Lament (3:14) Danny Elfman; 5 Doctor Finklestein/In The Forest (2:37); 6 What's This? (3:05) Danny Elfman; 7 Town Meeting Song (2:57) Danny Elfman; 8 Jack And Sally Montage (5:17); 9 Jack's Obsession (2:46) Danny Elfman; 10 Kidnap The Sandy Claws (3:03) Paul Reubens, Catherine O'Hara, Danny Elfman; 11 Making Christmas (3:58) Danny Elfman, Citizens of Halloween; 12 Nabbed (3:04); 13 Oogie Boogie's Song (3:17) Ken Page, Ed Ivory; 14 Sally's Song (1:48) Catherine O'Hara; 15 Christmas Eve Montage (4:44); 16 Poor Jack (2:31) Danny Elfman; 17 To The Rescue (3:38); 18 Finale/Reprise (2:45) Danny Elfman, Catherine O'Hara, Citizens of Halloween; 19 Closing (1:26); 20 End Title (1:13).

Review: Though Danny Elfman is known mostly for his instrumental scores, he deftly brought vocals into the mix for Tim Burton's bent musical about Halloween hijacking Christmas. Elfman, the former lead singer of Oingo Boingo, does some of the singing himself but also gets wonderful performances from Paul Reubens (aka Pee Wee Herman) and Catherine O'Hara. The ensemble pieces, such as "Town Hall Meeting," are a hoot, and the instrumental selections, orchestrated by Boingo guitarist Steve Bartek, retain Elfman's playfully skewed approach to mood pieces.

A Nightmare on Elm Street 3

1987, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie A Nightmare on Elm Street 3: Dream Warriors, New Line Cinema, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Angelo Badalamenti; Orchestrations: Angelo Badalamenti, Joe Turrin, Glen Daum; Album Producer: Angelo Badalamenti; Engineers: John Mahoney, Ray Niznik.

Selections: 1 Opening (1:50); 2 Puppet Walk (3:18); 3 Save The Children (1:25); 4 Taryn's Deepest Fear (3:05); 5 Deceptive Romance (1:45); 6 Snake Attack (1:56); 7 Magic Butterfly (1:20); 8 The Embrace (:42); 9 Quiet Room/Wheelchair/Icy Bones (2:41); 10 Rumbling Room (1:15); 11 Dreamspace (:46); 12 The Dreame House (1:50); 13 Is Freddy Gone?/Trouble Starting/Prime Time TV/Icy Window (4:32); 14 Grave Walk (1:11); 15 Nursery Theme (1:55); 16 Light's Out (1:00).

Review: Taking on the Nightmare on Elm Street franchise, Angelo Badalamenti served up a score that is appropriately ominous and scary, for this third foray into the unspeakable activities of Freddy Krueger. Starring Heather Langenkamp, reprising the role she created in the first film in the series, Dream Warriors (as this third installment is subtitled) exhibits its usual share of scary moments and hoots (depending on one's state of mind), with Badalamenti dutifully adding his own musical comments to the screen proceedings. As is often the case in films such as this, the score is so intimately integrated in and reflective of the action that it proves largely uninteresting once it is removed from the visuals. Despite Badalamenti's valiant efforts, his cues, with a few rare exceptions, mean very little when programmed for one's listening enjoyment.

Nine Months

1995, Milan Records; from the movie Nine Months, 20th Century-Fox, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer, Nick Glennie-Smith; Orchestrations: Bruce Fowler, Ladd McIntosh, Suzette Moriarty; Music Editor: Adam Smalley; Orchestra conducted by Nick Glennie-Smith; Featured Performer: Jim Kanter (clarinet); Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Jay Rifkin; Engineers: Jay Rifkin, Alan Meyerson.

Selections: 1 The Time Of Your Life (S. Van Zandt)(5:56) Little Steven; 2 Let's Get It On (M. Gaye/E. Townsend)(3:58) Marvin Gaye; 3 Turn Back The Hands Of Time (B. Thompson/J. Daniels)(2:38) Tyrone Davis; 4 Baby, Baby (4:00); 5 It's A Boy (9:17); 6 Voodoo Woman (3:54); 7 Baby's Room (4:13); 8 From Russia... (N. Glennie-Smith)(:59); 9 We Can Work It Out (5:04); 10 Open Your Eyes (4:32).

Review: With his boyish grin and cute looks, Hugh Grant seems the perfect match for a frantic father-to-be in this mildly amusing comedy in which he portrays a child psychiatrist and confirmed bachelor whose girlfriend becomes pregnant. Starting off, with a pretty little tune well in keeping with the light moods in the film ("Baby, Baby"), Hans Zimmer built an attractive score that transcends its modest origins and actually makes a very positive impression. The cues stay firmly on the romantic side of this comedy, with melodies that catch one's attention and keep it. The tired-sounding pop vocals at the beginning of the album seem to have been selected for something altogether different and detract from more than they complement Zimmer's score. Fortunately, they can be programmed out.

1990, Bay Cities; from the movie 1941, Columbia Pictures, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Music Editor: Ken Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: John Neal; CD Producer: Nick Redman; Engineer: Daniel Hersch .

Selections: 1 The March From 1941 (4:06); 2 The Invasion (8:17); 3 The Sentries (3:28); 4 Riot At The U.S.O. (1:16); 5 To Hollywood And Glory (3:12); 6 Swing, Swing, Swing (4:03); 7 The Battle Of Hollywood (5:37); 8 The Ferris Wheel Sequence (1:28); 9 Finale (6:14).

Review: John Williams' rollicking score echoes the frequently amusing antics of a group of World War II misfits, led by John Belushi, attempting to ward off a suspected invasion of California by the Japanese in this unlikely story concocted by Steven Spielberg. With much of the broad action involving an odd assortment of manic soldiers, overpatriotic homeowners, nostalgic officers, and some Hollywood characters with more than screen glory on their mind, Williams had a wide spectrum to explore, and he did so in a spirited fashion, in a grandiloquent score spearheaded by a "March" worth alone the price of admission. Two major cues, "The Invasion" and "The Battle of Hollywood," expand on the main theme, and enable the composer to write some ear-catching motifs that make for great listening. Also adding an exhilarating uplift is "Swing, Swing, Swing," that captures the period of the big band era, while providing a cue that's wonderfully foot-stomping. A great score, unfortunately truncated for this release which replicates the original LP but fails to include a great deal more composed for the occasion.

Nixon

1995, Hollywood Records; from the movie Nixon, Hollywood Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Orchestrations: John Neufeld; Music Editor: Ken Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Featured Musician: Tim Morisson (first trumpet, The Boston Pops Orchestra); Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineer: Sue McLean.

Selections: 1 The 1960s: The Turbulent Years (5:04); 2 Main Title... The White House Gate (4:17); 3 Growing Up In Whittier (2:42); 4 The Ellsberg Break-In and Watergate (2:43); 5 Love Field: Dallas, November 1963 (4:51); 6 Losing A Brother (3:18); 7 The Battle Hymn Of The Republic (W. Steffe/J. Ward Howe)(1:03); 8 Making A Comeback (2:20); 9 Track 2 and The Bay Of Pigs (4:47); 10 The Miami Convention, 1968 (3:19); 11 The Meeting With Mao (3:09); 12 "I Am That Sacrifice" (4:49); 13 The Farewell Scene (5:01).

Review: This account of the life and times of Richard M. Nixon, strikingly portrayed by Anthony Hopkins, and the scandal that eventually brought him down benefitted tremendously from the serious score created for the occasion by John Williams. Having to deal here with a much more serious subject than all the grander-than-life epic sagas that are his mainstay, Williams thoughtfully concentrated on writing themes that have great dramatic impact, reasonably commenting on the story itself and its many political and personal implications. This does not mean that his score is dry or uninspiring, far from it – in fact, it is a solidly written piece of instrumental music, profoundly affecting and frequently compelling. There is a certain grandeur to the themes developed, in which the main characteristics are the absence of real urgency and pervading dark tones, even in the most strident moments. This, incidentally, was touted at the time of its release as the first interactive CD soundtrack, though the results leave a lot to be desired. Williams' score, however, strikes a totally positive note.

No Escape

1994, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie No Escape, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Graeme Revell; Orchestrations: Tim Simonec, Graeme Revell; Music Editors: Dick Bernstein, Philip Tallman; Orchestra conducted by Tim Simonec; Featured Musician: Philip Tallman (12-string guitar); Album Producer: Graeme Revell; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 No Escape: Main Titles (1:58); 2 Helicopter To Absolom (2:13); 3 Robbins Captured By The Outsiders (1:52); 4 Ralph: Director Of Aquatic Activities (:48); 5 The Father (1:55); 6 The Insider Camp (1:34); 7 Wet Dreams (2:05); 8 I Love Those Boots (1:47); 9 Banishment (1:32); 10 On The Ramparts/Outsiders Attack (3:24); 11 Battle With Marek (1:26); 12 The Funeral Pyre (1:31); 13 Robbins Returns To The Outsiders' Camp (1:30); 14 Casey Tortured (3:35); 15 Robbins Kills Casey (1:19); 16 Redemption And New Hope (2:16); 17 Marek's Death (1:39); 18 The Traitor Unmasked (1:38); 19 The Trap Is Set and Freedom (3:46).

Review: Lavishly orchestrated Graeme Revell score makes dazzling use of the ambient sounds and ethnic music he recorded during several expeditions to out-of-the-way places like Papua-New Guinea. In the film, Ray Liotta is sent to prison on an island where criminals have divided into two groups. The civilized ones live inside a protected camp, safe from the homicidal "Outsiders" who live in the forest. Revell uses his odd sampled sounds to make these "Outsiders" more barbaric, like unthinking animals ("Robbins Captured By the Outsiders"). Other highlights include Philip Tallman's terrific blue grass 12-string guitar solo on "I Love Those Boots."

No Man's Land

1987, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie No Man's Land, Orion Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Steven Scott Smalley; Album Producer: Basil Poledouris; Engineers: Joel Moss, Garth Richardson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:00); 2 P.C.H. (1:02); 3 First Score (2:16); 4 Lone Score (1:21); 5 Love Theme (1:39); 6 Chase (5:29); 7 Porsche Power (:38); 8 Drive My Car? (2:13); 9 Ann Buttons (1:15); 10 Payoff (3:28); 11 Showtime (4:19); 12 End Credits (3:02).

Review: Basil Poledouris' loud and uninspired score for this modern thriller about an undercover cop (Charlie Sheen), the thief he is trying to bring in, and his involvement with the thief's sister, is not very worthy of the man who scored the RoboCop films or, better yet, the exhilarating Conan epics. To be totally effective, synthesizer music must exhibit some signs of intelligent life, but when it means so very little as it does here ("First Score," "Payoff"), one can only dismiss it and move on to the next CD.

No Sun in Venice

1975, Atlantic Records; from the movie No Sun in Venice, Kingsley International Pictures, 1957.

Album Notes: Music: John Lewis; Featured Musicians: The Modern Jazz Quartet: John Lewis (piano), Milt Jackson (vibraharp), Percy Heath (bass), Connie Kay (drums); Album Producer: Nesuhi Ertegun.

Selections: 1 The Golden Striker (3:39); 2 One Never Knows (9:20); 3 The Rose Truc (4:55); 4 Cortege (7:24); 5 Venice (4:26); 6 Three Windows (6:43).

Review: The elegant, soigne music of John Lewis, as performed by the Modern Jazz Quartet, is a key ingredient in Vadim's flavorful 1957 film set in present-day Venice, about three young people and an older Baron whose influence dominates their lives during the short period they spend in the fabled Italian city. The cool, classicist lines in Lewis' compositions, set off by the striking contribution of vibraharpist Milt Jackson, supported by Connie Kay on drums and Percy Heath on bass, have long been admired by jazz fans everywhere, and this score, a rare foray by the MJQ in film music, seems the perfect complement to the story. Since the creation of the score, one theme, "The Golden Striker," has become a standard in the MJQ canon, and two others, "One Never Knows" (the actual translation of the French film title Sait-on jamais) and "Three Windows" are regular staples in the group's repertoire. A classy effort, if there ever was one.

No Way Out

1987, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie No Way Out, Orion Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Featured Musicians: Michael Boddicker, Ian Underwood, Ralph Grierson (keyboards), Nyle Steiner, Judd Miller (E.V.I.), Michael Fisher (percussion); Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: 1 No Way Out (5:46); 2 National Security (2:47); 3 Cover-Up (5:38); 4 In The Pentagon (3:24); 5 We Can Interface (5:40); 6 Susan (6:06).

Review: A pertinent modern-day remake of the classic 1948 film noir The Big Clock, No Way Out stars Kevin Costner as a liaison officer at the Pentagon, reporting to Gene Hackman, who witnesses his boss in the act of killing a girl with whom he had a love affair. Reflecting the taut atmosphere of this crime drama, Maurice Jarre wrote a synthesized score that's intelligently crafted and listenable, even as it effectively supports the screen action. Relying on the solid instrumental techniques of a trio of seasoned musicians (Michael Boddicker, Ian Underwood and Ralph Grierson, with whom Jarre has also worked on other scores), and the percussion effects of Michael Fisher, Jarre has devised cues that create an atmosphere of relentless tension, presented here in six long selections that support and develop the many twists in the film (in which Costner is instructed by Hackman, who knows there was a witness to his crime, to find out the identity of that witness). Even the reprogramming does not make for an always compelling listening experience, but individual reactions to this type of music can vary wildly, and Jarre, at least, is a composer who remains always more interesting than most.

Noble House

1988, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Noble House, De Laurentiis Entertainment Group, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Paul Chihara; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Paul Chihara; Featured Musician: Ray Warleigh (saxophone); Album Producers: Paul Chihara, Brian Gascoigne; Engineer: Richard Lewzey.

Selections: 1 Main Title (Noble House Theme)(1:58); 2 Stormy Night (2:30); 3 Taipan In Love (3:53); 4 Jon Chen's Plot (1:56); 5 Love Boat To Macao (3:04); 6 Four-Finger Wu (2:01); 7 Dunross (1:30); 8 The Curse (2:19); 9 The Day After (4:00); 10 Opium Drop (2:05); 11 Linc's Death (1:50); 12 Coin Joined (2:25); 13 Finale (4:14).

Review: Appropriately epic and grandiose, the "Main Title" seems to signal the start of what may be an important score. But even though Paul Chihara does not always sustain the character he so effectively projected in this opening cue, much of his music is eminently entertaining and atmospheric. The broad romantic themes are developed by the strings in a style that recalls Victor Young or Percy Faith, occasionally enshrining the bluesy playing of a lone saxophone, or contrasting selections that give a prominent role to synthesizers. The story itself, based on the novel by James Clavell and set in Southeast Asia, might have suggested some cues with a more ethnic approach, but the tone here is squarely on sweeping conventional tunes that are attractively shaped and played.

Nobody's Fool

1994, Milan Records; from the movie Nobody's Fool, Paramount Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Howard Shore; Orchestrations: Howard Shore; Music Editor: Suzana Peric; The London Philharmonic Orchestra and The London Metropolitan Orchestra, conducted by Howard Shore; Album Producer: Howard Shore; Engineer: John Kurlander.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:47); 2 Fool's Triple (1:10); 3 You Are A Man Mong Men (:54); 4 Will (1:33); 5 Bowdin Street (1:30); 6 We'd Be Like Bonnie And Clyde (1:18); 7 Hattie Escapes (1:47); 8 Tip Top Construction (1:37); 9 Will At The Wheel (1:14); 10 Sully (3:01); 11 The Stopwatch (1:29); 12 Thanksgiving (3:18); 13 Miss Beryl (1:28); 14 Rub Quits (2:23); 15 The Ultimate Escape, Escapes (3:16); 16 You Are My Best Friend (2:46); 17 Toby's Theme (3:11); 18 The Wooden Leg (1:23); 19 Trifecta Ticket (:58); 20 Would You Like A Cup Of Tea? (2:56).

Review: A sensitive portrayal by Paul Newman, as a man alone approaching the twilight of his years, sets the tone for this bittersweet on-the-edge screen story, that resulted in an effectively low-key and lovely score from Howard Shore. With a keen ear for melodic material that makes a musical statement while reflecting the moods of the film itself, Shore built a series of strikingly beautiful cues, with various solo instruments—a harp, a clarinet, a flute—riding over gorgeous, long orchestral lines to paint a canvas that's very attractive and unusually pleasant to the ear.

Norma Jean and Marilyn

1996, Intrada Records; from the movie Norma Jean and Marilyn, HBO Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Young; Orchestrations: Pete Anthony, Christopher Young; Music Editors: Carl Zittrer, Eduardo Ponsdomenech; Orchestra conducted by Pete Anthony; Album Producer: Christopher Young; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Norma Jean And Marilyn (2:08); 2 Blond Akk Over (2:36); 3 Multiple Parents (3:17); 4 My Best Friends (2:44); 5 The Public Eye (3:50); 6 The Seven Year Itch (2:00); 7 Nude Confessions (2:15); 8 Rescue Me (2:23); 9 Gladys (3:11); 10 Our Angel (2:01); 11 Too Young (3:14); 12 Marilyn (3:13).

Review: The idea of having two different actresses portray Norman Jean Baker and Marilyn Monroe, one the obverse image of the other, is only one of several interesting things about this film Christopher Young tried to express in his effusive score. The challenges were many. Behind the glamour in the life of Marilyn is her darker private side and the demons that haunted her, two opposite aspects of her personality which the composer translated into a single motif with a simultaneously ascending and descending figure, played by the piano, harp, and vibes. In addition, the musical moods needed to conform with a 1950s reality, an evocation Young captured in a theme for soprano sax and trumpet over string harmonies. It all adds up to a very compelling score, warm and nostalgic, melodic with an occasional sharp edge to it, and above all profoundly attractive.

North

1994, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie North, Columbia Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Arrangements: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian, Larry Blank, Brad Dechter, Mark McKenzie; Music Editor: Scott Stambler; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producers: Marc Shaiman, Nick Vidar; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title: If I Were A Rich Man (J. Bock/S. Harnick)(2:59); 2 A Very Successful Life (1:23) Elijah Wood; 3 The Secret Spot (2:43); 4 North Goes To Court (3:10); 5 Let's Get Crackin' (:40); 6 Texas (Theme from Dallas)(J. Immel)(:48); 7 Bonanza (J. Livingston/R. Evans/R. Reiner/M. Shaiman/A. Zweibel)(1:03) Reba McIntyre, Dan Aykroyd; 8 North Looks West (2:17); 9 Hawaii: Hawaiian War Chant (J. Noble/Leleiohaku)/Tiny Bubbles (L. Pober)/My Little Grass Shack (J. Noble/B. Cogswell/T. Harrison)/Vlue Hawaii (R. Rainger/L. Robin)/Aloha Oe (Queen Liliuokalani)(3:21); 10 North Heads North (1:02); 11 Alaska: Winter Wonderland (F. Bernard/D. Smith)(2:00); 12 Winchell's Master Plan (1:07); 13 The World Traveler: Amazing Grace (J. Newton)/Can-Can (J. Offenbach)(1:35); 14 Bedford: Father Knows Best (D. Ferris/I. Friedman)(1:53); 15 Homesick (1:13); 16 Winchell, Lies And Videotape (1:52); 17 New York City: Sobre las olas (Rosas)(5:29); 18 North Figures It Out (2:28); 19 Race To The Finish (2:17); 20 Reunion (3:41).

Review: The whimsical tale of an 11-year-old whose search for the ideal parents has international repercussions, this pleasantly diverting comedy directed by Rob Reiner translated itself into an eclectic soundtrack album in which Marc Shaiman's music looks into different cultures and ethnic forms of expression to emphasize some of the broader aspects of the story. Freely borrowing themes from various well-known sources, like "Dallas," "Bonanza," and "Father Knows Best" or familiar standards, like "Winter Wonderland" and "Amazing Grace," the cues are pleasant without being maudlin, and reflect in a positive way the film's light and entertaining moods.

North By Northwest

North By Northwest

1996, Rhino Records; from the movie North By Northwest, M-G-M, 1959.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; Orchestrations: Bernard Herrmann; Arrangements: Bernard Herrmann; The M-G-M Studio Orchestra, conducted by Bernard Herrmann; CD Producers: Marilee Bradford, Bradley Flanagan; Engineer: Ted Hall.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:14); 2 The Streets (1:03); 3 It's A Most Unusual Day (J. McHugh/H. Adamson)(1:08); 4 Kidnapped (2:15); 5 The Door (:42); 6 Cheers (:41); 7 The Wild Ride (2:49); 8 Car Crash (:21); 9 The Return (:25); 10 Two Dollars (:47); 11 Rosalie (C. Porter)(1:32); 12 In The Still Of The Night

> "In the academic world, writing in Hollywood still has a little stigma to it. But the fact that you can't take film music out on the concert stage and stand on its own is not derogatory. It speaks to its function, which is to be part of a tapestry."

Review: Rhino's expanded edition of Bernard Herrmann's score for Alfred Hitchcock's North By Northwest (among the composers most intriguing and romantic for a Hitchcock film) is a shining example of everything a well-restored CD soundtrack should be. It's all here, including original music, expanded cues, outtakes, detailed and informative liner notes. Having the ability to listen to this music as Herrmann originally scored it, for the uncut, unedited film, is an absolute thrill, and a glimpse into history itself.

Although the film itself was released with a monophonic soundtrack, the original scoring sessions were recorded in stereo, and are presented as such here. While the music tracks were left virtually untouched in storage since 1959, some deterioration of the original tapes have occurred, and the listener may note some minor flaws during the program. Overall, however, the sonics are excellent.

A pared down "Suite for North By Northwest" (18 minutes) is also available on a Milan CD, Alfred Hitchcock Film Music, which features Herrmann conducting the National Philharmonic Orchestra. While excellent as a "taste," the complete soundtrack is preferable by far.

A London CD, Psycho: Great Hitchcock Movie Thrillers contains only a three-minute cue from the score, and hardly bears mention.

Charles L. Granata

North By Northwest

1980, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie North By Northwest, M-G-M, 1959.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; Orchestrations and Arrangements: Bernard Herrmann; The London Studio Orchestra, conducted by Laurie Johnson; Album Producer: Laurie Johnson; Engineers: John Goldsmith, Geoffrey Barton.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:11); 2 Abducting George Kaplan (1:56); 3 The Elevator (1:23); 4 Murder At The U.N. (3:14); 5 Romance On The Train (4:21); 6 Crash Of The Cropduster (2:04); 7 The Auction and The Airport (2:08); 8 Duo (Love Theme)(reprise)(1:26); 9 Cafeteria Shooting (2:11); 10 Stalking Vandamm's House (4:21); 11 The Match Box (1:48); 12 Mount Rushmore/Finale (8:31).

Review: This re-recording, conducted by Laurie Johnson, for many years the only one available of Herrmann's score, features better sonics and some cues that apparently didn't make it on the original. However, it also has much less music, and altogether can only be considered as a complement to the Rhino definitive album.

Nostradamus

1994, London Records; from the movie Nostradamus, Orion Classics, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Barrington Pheloung; Orchestrations: Barrington Pheloung; The London Metropolitan Orchestra, conducted by Barrington Pheloung; Featured Musician: Tom Finucane (lute); Featured Vocalists: Sarah Eaton (soprano), Andrew Gant (tenor), Katherine Willis (soprano), Edward Caswell (bass), Guy Protheroe (tenor); The New London Consort, Philip Pickett, director; The English Chamber Choir, Guy Protheroe, director; The Choir Of Selwyn College, Cambridge, Andrew Gant, director; Engineers: Dave Hunt, John Taylor; Assistant Engineers: Andrew Taylor, Toby Wood.

Selections: 1 The World Is Breaking (2:55); 2 Love Theme (4:21) Sarah Eaton, Andrew Gant; 3 Kyrie I (1:07); 4 Christe (1:40); 5 Kyrie II (from Missa Pange Lingua)(J. Des Prez)(1:06); 6 The Inquisition (2:23); 7 The Family History (1:41); 8 Et quand je suis couche (anon.)(:31); 9 Vray Dieu d'amour (A. Brumel)(1:09); 10 Black Rain (1:29); 11 Agnus Dei I (1:42); 12 Agnus Dei II (2:19); 13 Agnus Dei III (from Missa Pange Lingua)(J. des Prez)(3:24); 14 Love Theme (reprise)(1:17); 15 I Have Seen Paradise (4:33); 16 Basse Danse (T. Susato)(1:54); 17 Gaillarde (T. Susato)(:51); 18 The Plague (2:38); 19 L'amour de moy (anon.)(2:12) Katherine Willis, Andrew Gant, Edward Caswell; 20 The Passion (3:05); 21 Danse du Roy (T. Susato)(1:07); 22 Saltarello (:39); 23 Mille regrets (J. des Prez/T. Susato)(1:50); 24 The Monastery (2:10) Guy Protheroe; 25 Allegez moy (J. des Prez)(2:10); 26 A New Trust (:57); 27 Mille regretz (J. des Prez/L. de Narvaes)(2:51); 28 Love/The Showering Of Christ (1:46); 29 The Wedding/The Burning Of The Books (5:20); 30 Absalon fili mi (J. des Prez)(4:42); 31 Danger/Inspiration/Paradise (1:55); 32 Sed quando sub movenda erit ignorantia/Main Theme (7:07).

Review: The mysterious personality of Nostradamus, the Renaissance philosopher and scientist (1503-1566) whose deliberately nonconformist attitude irritated the religious and medical authorities of his time and whose prophecies have haunted mankind for their alleged accuracy and relevance to modern history, may have seemed a fascinating yet unusual subject for a screen epic. But the broader canvas of 16th-century life in Europe, with its ills, medical as well as political and religious (the devastating plagues, the Inquisition), provides the solid background against which the known facts in his life found an illustration. Holding it all together is Barrington Phenoung's diligently scholarly score, extensively quoting from Josquin des Prez, in which musical instruments from the period conferred the proper tone and colors, and effectively blended with modern orchestral textures. This soundtrack album manages to evoke the film and its central character, and makes for a rather unusual but ultimately eloquent and satisfying listening experience.

Not Without My Daughter

1991, Intrada Records; from the movie Not Without My Daughter, M-G-M/UA, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Music Editor: Ken Hall; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Alan Snelling.

Selections: 1 The Lake (2:37); 2 No Job (3:15); 3 Threats (1:30); 4 Trapped (2:46); 5 School's Out (1:09); 6 Night Stories (1:59); 7 Don't Leave (3:30); 8 Dry Spell (5:52); 9 The Promise (1:59); 10 First Break (4:37); 11 Home Again (5:44).

Review: For this intimate and rather jingoistic study of an American woman's escape from an abusive marriage in Iran, Jerry Goldsmith wrote a surprisingly low-key score. Like the film, the score somewhat predictably and manipulatively balances a tender Americana theme of strings and solo piano against increasingly oppressive and violent Middle Eastern effects. Its highlight is a lengthy sequence illustrating the woman's escape through desert territory at night. Atmospheric, blending both electronic and acoustic textures in a minimalistic technique, the cue works as an update of Goldsmith's experimental work on Planet of the Apes, but it belongs in a better score and film. Even Goldsmith has admitted this score didn't warrant an album release.

Jeff Bond

Nothing But Trouble Woof

1991, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Nothing But Trouble, Warner Bros., 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Orchestra conducted by Michael Kamen; Song Producers: Marty Paich, Greg Jacobs, Madonna & Shep Pettibone, Bob Crewe, Ron Nevison, Bruce Gowdi & Peter Aykroyd, Barry Beckett; Album Executive Producers: Michael Ostin, Gary LeMel.

Selections: 1 The Good Life (J. Readon/S. Distel)(3:13) Ray Charles; 2 Same Song (G. Jacobs/R. Brooks/T. Shakur)(6:32) Digital Underground; 3 Get Over (Madonna/S. Bray)(5:06) Nick Scotti; 4 Big Girls Don't Cry (B. Crewe/B. Gaudio)(2:25) Frankie Valli & The Four Seasons; 5 Tie The Knot (G. Jacobs) (3:17) Digital Underground; 6 Bonestripper (J. Blades/T. Shaw/T. Nugent) (4:35) Damn Yankees; 7 Atlantic City (Is A Party Town)(P. Aykroyd)(3:40) Elwood Blues Revue; 8 La Chanka (P. Aykroyd/J.P. Beledo)(3:19) Bertila Damas; 9 I Mean I Love You (H. Williams, Jr.)(2:59) Hank Williams Jr.; 10 Valkenvania Suite (M. Kamen)(4:21).

Review: The music in this film may have been attributed to Michael Kamen, but like the comedy tag affixed to this sordidly mindless effort, it proves a misnomer, at least in this soundtrack album where the composer is represented by one selection, "Valkenvania Suite." The bulk of the album, as is so often the case, consists of pop selections that can be found in various other compilations and that have been hastily put together here, simply because brief snippets of these songs could be heard behind the screen action. If that's what you're after, by all means go and buy this album. Otherwise, forget about it.

Now and Then

Now and Then

1995, Columbia Records; from the movie Now and Then, New Line Cinema, 1995.

Album Notes: Soundtrack Album Coordinator: Michelle Belcher; Engineer: David Mitson.

Selections: 1 Sugar, Sugar (J. Barry/A. Kim)(2:45) The Archies; 2 Knock Three Times (I. Levine/L. Brown)(2:54) Tony Orlando & Dawn; 3 I Want You Back (F. Perren/A. Mizell/B. Gordy/D. Lussier)(2:53) Jackson 5; 4 Signed, Sealed, Delivered I'm Yours (S. Wright/L. Garrett/L. Hardaway/S. Wonder)(2:39) Stevie Wonder; 5 Band Of Gold (E. Wayne/R. Dunbar)(2:53) Freda Payne; 6 Daydream Believer (J. Stewart)(2:49) The Monkees; 7 No Matter What (P. Ham) (2:59) Badfinger; 8 Hitchin' A Ride (M. Murray/P. Callander)(2:55) Vanity Fare; 9 All Right Now (A. Fraser/P. Rodgers)(5:29) Free; 10 I'm Gonna Make You Love Me (J. Ross/K. Gamble/J. Williams)(3:06) Diana Ross & The Supremes, The Temptations; 11 I'll Be There (H. Davis/B. Gordy/B. West/W. Hutch) (3:56) Jackson 5; 12 Now And Then (S. Hoffs/C. Caffey/J. Wiedlin)(5:34) Susanna Hoffs.

Now and Then

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Now and Then, New Line Cinema, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Cliff Eidelman; Orchestrations: Cliff Eidelman, Gregory Smith; Music Editor: Bill Abbott; Orchestra conducted by Cliff Eidelman; Album Producer: Cliff Eidelman; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:05); 2 Remembrance (1:57); 3 Secret Meeting (2:11); 4 On The Swing (1:26); 5 It's My Mom (2:32); 6 Spirits Are Here (2:17); 7 Sam's Dad Leaves (1:56); 8 It's A Girl (1:48); 9 Roberta Fakes Death (1:26); 10 Best Friends For Life (3:07); 11 Pete Saves Sam (2:29); 12 The Pact (3:10); 13 No More Seances (1:44); 14 Rest In Peace Johnny (4:22).

Review: The affecting story of four 12-year-olds, their joys, their disappointments, and the adventures they shared over a summer in 1970, Now and Then exudes warmth and pathos, and most of all paints the image of a friendship that transcends everyday problems to give its four main characters the memories they'd recall with fondness in later years.

Anchoring the film in its specific time period, several '70s pop tunes by the Monkees, Diana Ross and the Supremes, Jackson Five, and other performers provide the appropriate musical background. The first album brings these songs together in a compilation that seems better than most, even if the same selections can be found elsewhere.

The second album focuses on the fine instrumental themes developed by Cliff Eidelman that seem omnipresent, yet subtly understated. Conjuring up moods that are bathed in rose-tinted nostalgia similar to those in the film narrative, Eidelman's score comes to the forefront with great sensitivity and charm in this wonderful album. Some selections ("Remembrance," "It's a Girl," "Best Friends for Life") particularly tug at the right heartstrings, but the whole effort is quite memorable and enjoyable.

The Nun's Story

1991, Stanyan Records; from the movie The Nun's Story, Warner Bros., 1959.

Album Notes: Music: Franz Waxman; Orchestra conducted by Franz Waxman; CD Producer: Rod McKuen; Engineer: Steve Hoffman; Assistant Engineer: Kevin Gray.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Gaby And Her Father (4:45); 2 Leaving (1:23); 3 Gaby Enters The Convent (3:00); 4 Goodbye (4:09); 5 New Home (1:34); 6 First Day/Mother Superior (2:42); 7 Sister Luke (1:15); 8 I Accuse Myself (1:08); 9 Haircutting/Gran Coro (3:47); 10 Penance (1:42); 11 Angel Gabriel (2:53); 12 Departure and The Congo (2:58); 13 European Hospital (3:34); 14 Bad Accident (1:56); 15 Killing Of Aurelie (1:44); 16 Sister Luke Bids Farewell (1:20); 17 Return To Belgium (:56); 18 Letter From Dr. Fortunati/ Convent Life/War (4:12); 19 The Underground (1:07); 20 News Of Father's Death (2:54); 21 Leaving The Convent (:51); 22 Finale (3:13).

Review: In one of her finest portrayals, Audrey Hepburn gave a luminous performance in this unconventional story, based on the book by Kathryn C. Hulme, of a young Belgian woman who decides to abandon the comforts and pleasures of her privileged world for a life of austerity and contemplation as a nun, only to discover that life in a convent is no less challenging and confusing. For composer Franz Waxman, the story meant dealing with various sets of musical themes, from ecclesiastical ones to reflect the apparent calm and serenity of the religious life, to Congolese rhythms evocative of the African setting of some of the scenes, to 12-tone composition to illustrate a scene that takes place in an insane asylum. Superbly evocative and compelling, the score earned the composer an Oscar nomination, though he lost to Miklos Rozsa's Ben-Hur. This first reissue on CD returns to the catalogue an album that was for many years a prized collectors' item, with selections that were previously unavailable. The transfer from the three-channel 35mm optical film reveals some dryness, a significant amount of hiss, and some distortion that could have been easily corrected, despite a disclaimer to the contrary.

Obsession

1989, Masters Film Music; from the movie Obsession, Columbia Pictures, 1976.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; The National Philahrmonic Orchestra, conducted by Bernard Herrmann; CD Producer: Robert Townson.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Valse Lente/Kidnap (5:55); 2 Newsboy/The Tape/The Ferry (4:55); 3 The Tomb/Sandra (8:03); 4 The Church/Court's Confession/Bryn Mawr (9:25); 5 New Orleans Wedding/Court: The Morning After (4:27); 6 The Plane/Court And LaSalle's Struggle/Airport (5:56).

Review: Bernard Herrmann returned to familiar grounds to the suspense film in which he had illustrated himself so vividly, with this stylish score for the film directed by Brian de Palma, a thinly disguised remake and tribute to Alfred Hitchcock's Vertigo. Like that film, Obsession deals with the anguish of a man (Cliff Robertson), still haunted by the kidnapping and apparent death of his wife 16 years before, who encounters a woman (Genevieve Bujold) who bears an uncanny resemblance to her during a trip abroad. Elaborating on musical devices he had already utilized in Vertigo, Herrmann wrote a sensational score, filled with powerful themes, ominously underlined by an organ, or a harp, sometimes with abrupt choral flourishes, in eerie evocations of a mystery that refuses to reveal itself. Shortly before his death, the composer assembled for this album the various cues in six mini-suites that present a stronger and more coherent vision of his music. The score marked another important milestone in the career of the composer. This recording, a limited edition release well worth looking for, eloquently shows why.

Octopussy

1983, A&M Records; from the movie Octopussy, MGM/UA, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Lyrics: Tim Rice; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: John Barry.

Selections: 1 Main Title: All Time High (3:04) Rita Coolidge; 2 Bond Look-Alike (2:59); 3 009 Gets The Knife and Gobinda Attacks (3:06); 4 That's My Little Octopussy (3:14); 5 Arrival At The Island Of Octopussy (3:23); 6 Bond At The Monsoon Palace (3:03); 7 Bond Meets Octopussy (3:37); 8 Yo-Yo Fight and Death Of Vijay (3:45); 9 The Chase Bomb Theme (1:56); 10 End Title: The Palace Fight (4:33); 11 All Time High (3:05) Rita Coolidge.

Review: While this soundtrack occasionally fails to rise to the high levels John Barry reached in some of his best efforts for the James Bond films, it is still a most attractive one, with the composer's signature themes used to best effect to illustrate yet another highly implausible story in which Bond confronts his usual share of villains (a suave trader in art forgeries, played by Louis Jourdan, a Russian general bent on exploding an atomic device, some murderous circus performers) and beauties (including Maud Adams, the "Octopussy" of the title). Spearheaded by the vaguely nostalgic "All Time High," performed by Rita Coolidge, and reprised as an instrumental "That's My Little Octopussy," the cues unfold as predictably as the story itself, with more highs than lows, as befit an action film that relies on the charisma and personal charm of its main character. It's an indispensable addition to any Barry or Bond collection, and besides it's most enjoyable.

Odds Against Tomorrow

Odds Against Tomorrow

1991, Sony Music Special Products; from the movie Odds Against Tomorrow, United Artists, 1959.

Album Notes: Music: John Lewis; Featured Musicians: The Modern Jazz Quartet: John Lewis (piano), Milt Jackson (vibraharp), Percy Heath (bass), Connie Kay (drums); Album Producer: John Lewis; CD Engineer: Ken Robertson.

Selections: 1 Prelude To Odds Against Tomorrow (1:44); 2 A Cool Wind Is Blowing (1:20); 3 Five Figure People Crossing Paths (1:40); 4 How To Frame Pigeons (1:04); 5 Morning Trip To Melton (3:09); 6 Looking At The Caper (2:01); 7 Johnny Ingram's Possessions (1:08); 8 The Carousel Incident (1:44); 9 Skating In Central Park (3:29); 10 No Happiness For Slater (3:56); 11 Main Theme: Odds Against Tomorrow (3:24); 12 Games (2:17); 13 Social Call (3:53); 14 The Impractical Man (3:00); 15 Advance On Melton (1:58); 16 Waiting Around The River (3:51); 17 Distractions (1:25); 18 The Caper Failure (1:23); 19 Postlude (:45).

Odds Against Tomorrow

1990, Blue Note Records; from the movie Odds Against Tomorrow, United Artists, 1959.

Album Notes: Music: John Lewis; Featured Musicians: The Modern Jazz Quartet: John Lewis (piano), Milt Jackson (vibraharp), Percy Heath (bass), Connie Kay (drums); Album Producer: Jack Lewis; Engineer: Dick Olmsted; CD Producer: Michael Cuscuna; Engineer: Malcolm Addey.

Selections: 1 Skating In Central Park (6:07); 2 No Happiness For Slater (5:18); 3 A Social Call (4:45); 4 Cue #9 (5:00); 5 A Cold Wind Is Blowing (7:29); 6 Odds Against Tomorrow (3:33).

Review: In another unusual foray into film music, John Lewis scored this taut crime drama in which Harry Belafonte, Robert Ryan and Ed Begley are unlikely partners in a bank robbery, with the unusual casting eliciting added comments about racist attitudes. Characteristic of Lewis' subtly understated music, performed on screen as in these albums by The Modern Jazz Quartet, the moods are squarely on jazz, with the fanciful interplay between Lewis on piano and Milt Jackson on vibraharp at the center of the group's tight performance, with Connie Kay and Percy Heath providing the essential rhythm foundation and occasional inspired solos. The first album is the actual soundtrack to the film, with the selections reflecting the shorter playing time usually asked for by a given scene, but with a greater abundance of themes not found elsewhere.

The second album is a rerecording of some of the most important themes from the score (including the ackowledged highlights, "Skating in Central Park," "No Happiness for Slater" and "A Cold Wind is Blowing"), considerably expanded and with a greater amount of improvisation in the playing. A richer sound quality is also a prime consideration here, as opposed to the thinner-sounding soundtrack album. Both, however, are deserving of the highest consideration.

Of Mice and Men

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Of Mice and Men, M-G-M, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Orchestrations: Ken Kugler; Music Editor: Tom Carlson; Orchestra conducted by Ken Kugler; Featured Soloists: Rich Ruttenburg (piano), Peter Manau (guitar); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineer: Stephen Krause.

Selections: 1 The Train (1:38); 2 Red Dress (2:59); 3 Soledad (1:15); 4 Guys Like Us (2:01); 5 The Bunkhouse (:56); 6 After Supper (:44); 7 The Puppy (:46); 8 Buckin' Barley (2:20); 9 Candy's Loss (:57); 10 Flight (1:06); 11 The Dream (1:29); 12 The Hope (1:09); 13 The Fight (2:14); 14 Comfort (:53); 15 The Ranch (:48); 16 Sundown (:38); 17 Curly's Wife (1:19); 18 Pigeons (:38); 19 Discovery (1:21); 20 River Run (3:13); 21 George And Lennie (2:03); 22 Of Mice And Men (End Titles)(3:33).

Review: Based on John Steinbeck's story about two itinerant workers, George, a quiet optimist with great sensitivity, and Lennie, endowed with unusual strength and the simple mind of a child, who roam the California countryside in search of job opportunities, this remake of the classic 1939 film elicited a score with folk-like simplicity from Mark Isham, writing in a remarkably low-key style. With an abundance of cues for strings and woodwinds, the music is often appropriately reflective and atmospheric, only occasionally departing from its quiet, lyrical moods to underline a specific situation ("The Bunkhouse," "Buckin' Barley," "Comfort," "The Ranch").

Ultimately, the blend of both elements in the writing combine to create music that is hauntingly striking, and evocative of the drama on the screen and its multifaceted aspects. For the record, the original film was scored by Aaron Copland, and while Mark Isham's music may not achieve the kind of perennial appeal Copland's score has exerted since it was written, it is still a pretty eloquent statement from this very talented composer.

Off Limits

1988, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Off Limits, 20th Century-Fox, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Featured Musicians: James Newton Howard (keyboards/synth), Jeff Porcaro, Joe Porcaro, Emil Richards, Michael Mason (percussion), Michael Landau, Basil Fung (guitar), Robby Weaver (synclavier programming); Album Producer: James Newton Howard; Engineer: John Vigran.

Selections: 1 Questioning Maurice (1:05); 2 The War Zone (2:11); 3 Nicole's Theme (2:15); 4 Chase (:59); 5 Following Col. Armstrong (2:45); 6 Spotting Nicole (1:06); 7 Love Theme (1:37); 8 Body Bombing (1:44); 9 Final Chase (3:24); 10 Getting A Look (1:12); 11 Arrest (:57); 12 Car Bombing (2:24); 13 Nam Is Dead (:52); 14 Bombing (2:45); 15 Sgt. Flowers (1:37); 16 Sapper Chase (2:08); 17 The Viet Cong Post (2:58); 18 Killer (1:39); 19 Love Theme (reprise)(1:37).

Review: James Newton Howard's atmospheric synthesizer score for this suspense thriller starring Willem Dafoe and Gregory Hines, has its moments, but might have proved more effective on the screen than in the living room. While there is diversity in some of the cues, the grist of the music often gets lost in cues that fail to catch one's interest or end up sounding too repetitious after a while.

An Officer and a Gentleman

1982, Island Records; from the movie An Officer and a Gentleman, Paramount Pictures, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Jack Nitzsche, Buffy Sainte-Marie; Song Producers: Stewart Levine, Van Morrison, Bill Ham, Keith

Olsen, Jerry Kennedy, Lee Ritenour, Jimmy Iovine, Mark Knopfler.

Selections: 1 Main Title (J. Nitzsche/B. Sainte-Marie)(1:41); 2 Up Where We Belong (W. Jennings/J. Nitzsche/B. Sainte-Marie)(3:55) Joe Cocker, Jennifer Warnes; 3 Hungry For Your Love (V. Morrison)(3:40) Van Morrison; 4 Tush (B. Gibbons/D. Hill/F. Beard)(2:15) ZZ Top; 5 Treat Me Right (P. Benatar/D. Lubahn)(3:15) Pat Benatar; 6 Be Real (D. Sahm)(2:35) The Sir Douglas Quintet; 7 Up Where We Belong (W. Jennings/J. Nitzsche/B. Sainte-Marie)(3:55) Joe Cocker, Jennifer Warnes; 8 Love Theme (J. Nitzsche/B. Sainte-Marie/L. Ritenour)(5:19) Lee Ritenour; 9 Tunnel Of Love (M. Knopfler)(8:13) Dire Straits; 10 The Morning After Love Theme (J. Nitzsche/B. Sainte-Marie)(3:09).

Review: This one launched a monster hit with the Joe Cocker/Jennifer Warnes' duet "Up Where We Belong"—soft, lush, schmaltzy, ech. That song was elevator music before it was released. Some decent rockers help redeem the set, though, such as ZZ Top's "Tush," Dire Straits' epic "Tunnel of Love" and the Sir Douglas Quintet's "Be Real." But unless you need to hear more aural wall paper from the likes of Jack Nitzsche and Lee Ritenour, you can find all those on far better albums.

An early pop soundtrack, this collection of songs is notable for the stars who perform them, a factor which explains its popularity. Of course, the success of this album was no doubt also tied to that of the film, about the agonizing training period candidates to the Naval Aviation Officer School must undergo in the hands of a relentless drill instructor. However, the songs selected and the caliber of the performers had something to do with it, as did the fact that "Up Where We Belong," written by Waylon Jennings, Buffy Sainte-Marie and Jack Nitzsche, won the Oscar for Best Original Song. More than 15 years later, it still holds its own, and in fact shows how far superior it is to some of the drivel that was created in its wake.

Old Gringo

1989, GNP Crescendo Records; from the movie Old Gringo, Columbia Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Lee Holdridge; Orchestrations: Ira Hearshen; Music Editor: Tom Carlson; Orchestra conducted by Lee Holdridge; Featured Musicians: Ray Kramer (cello), Malcolm McNab (trumpet), Louise Ditullio, Earle Dunler, Gary Gray, Tom Boyd, Barbara Northcutt, Michael O'Donovan (woodwind), Dennis Budimir, George Doering, Marcos Loya (guitars); Album Producers: Lee Holdridge, Ford A. Thaxton; Engineer: Bobby Fernandez.

Selections: 1 Prologue (Main Title)(2:33); 2 Ride To The Hacienda (4:08); 3 The Battle (Conflict)(3:12); 4 Harriet's Theme (5:45); 5 Bitter's Last Ride (2:51); 6 The Mirrors (3:02); 7 Nighttime (2:49); 8 The Bell Tower (1:17); 9 The Sigh (5:42); 10 The Battle (Resolution)(2:09); 11 Bitter's Destiny (3:18); 12 Finale (4:58).

Review: Old Gringo, starring Gregory Peck, Jane Fonda and Jimmy Smits, is an old-fashioned epic tale of passion and power that elicited an old-fashioned score from composer Lee Holdridge. Set against the backdrop of the Mexican Revolution, the narrative details the complex love story between a 40-something American spinster (Fonda), and a dashing Mexican general in Pancho Villa's army (Smits), with Gregory Peck, portraying Ambrose Bierce, the cynical, brilliant 71-year-old journalist on a quest for adventure. With a meaty storyline and colorful landscapes to ignite his creative expression, Holdridge wrote a score for large orchestra that brims with excitement, solidly anchored by three major themes for the three main characters. The glorious theme he created for Harriet, notably, is simply magnificent.

The Old Man and the Sea

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Old Man and the Sea, Warner Bros., 1958.

Album Notes: Music: Dimitri Tiomkin; Orchestra conducted by Dimitri Tiomkin; CD Producers: Tom Null, Richard Kraft; Engineer: Michele Stone.

Selections: 1 The Old Man And The Sea (2:39); 2 Cojimar Harbor And The Old Man (3:24); 3 The Boy (1:15); 4 Fisherman's Cantina (2:42); 5 The Old Man Loved The Boy (1:58); 6 The Fisherman's Lament (1:57); 7 And The Old Man Rowed Out To The Ocean (1:40); 8 The Old Man Catches His Bait (2:34); 9 Sunset And Red Clouds (2:17); 10 I Am Your Dream (2:42); 11 A Small Bird Came Toward The Skiff (3:20); 12 In The Tavern At Casa Blanca (2:17); 13 Just Before It Was Dark (2:41); 14 The Duel With The Fish (4:44); 15 The Shark Fight (1:53); 16 The Lost Fight (1:50); 17 Cubana (1:09); 18 Finale (1:46).

Review: Dimitri Tiomkin left behind the bombast of his western and epic music when he created this Academy Award-winning score for the film, based on the novel by Ernest Hemingway, about an old fisherman, portrayed by Spencer Tracy in a splendidly low-key performance, whose sole ambition in life is to catch a big fish. With the exception of a couple of cues, with a strong tropical flavor ("Fisherman's Cantina," "In The Tavern At Casa Blanca"), the score centers on the fisherman's determination to succeed, his lonely fight with the huge fish he finally nabs, and with the predator shark attracted by his prey. Subtly expressive and magnificently sketched (the lovely "I Am Your Dream" is probably one of the most attractive tunes ever composed by Tiomkin), the score won an Academy Award.

Olivier Olivier/ Europa Europa

Album Notes: Music: Zbigniew Preisner.

Selections: OLIVIER OLIVIER: 1 Main Title (1:47); 2 Main Title (Version 2)(2:41); 3 Affection And Love (:48); 4 At The Cafe (:55); 5 Elizabeth Faints (1:15); 6 Policemen In The Hallway (2:10); 7 Main Credits (3:13); 8 Olivier (1:27); 9 After The Chimney (1:38); 10 Olivier Chases Nadine (1:21); 11 Main Title (Version 3)(2:29); 12 Olivier With His Sister (1:23); 13 After The Party (1:36); 14 After The Kiss (1:22); 15 Main Title (Version 4)(2:29); 16 Marcel's Trumpet (:54); 17 End Credits (2:29);

EUROPA EUROPA: 18 Exodus (:39); 19 Attack From The Air (:39); 20 Battle (1:36); 21 The Truck Leaves (:48); 22 Checking The I.D. Papers (:54); 23 The Germans (:37); 24 In The Woods (:39); 25 Near The Fire (1:50); 26 Intensity (:40); 27 The Youngsters Leave (1:20); 28 The Boats Leave (:32); 29 Bombing The Factory (:27); 30 Intensity (:53); 31 Troubles (:35); 32 Hitler Stalin (1:16).

Review: Two films, one set in contemporary France, the other in war-torn Poland, both directed by Agnieszka Holland, received vibrant scores from Zbigniew Preisner. In the first, filled with ambiguities and innuendos that belie the simplicity of its storyline, a provincial French couple welcomes a young Parisian street prostitute whom they believe to be their long-lost son. In the second, based on a a true story, a young Jewish boy tries to convince the German soldiers who have arrested him that he is a gentile. Using a determinatedly low-key approach to both stories, Preisner crafted scores that are eloquently flavorful and sparse, with only a hint of predictability—faint accordion in the first, a little Jewish theme in the second—to underline the film's respective backgrounds.

The Omen

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Omen, 20th Century-Fox, 1976.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Lionel Newman; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 Ave Satani (2:32); 2 The New Ambassador (2:33); 3 Killer Storm (2:52); 4 A Sad Message (1:42); 5 The Demise Of Mrs. Baylock (2:52); 6 Don't Let Him (2:48); 7 The Piper Dreams (J. Goldsmith/C. Bayer Sager) (2:39) Carol Heather; 8 The Fall (3:42); 9 Safari Park (2:04); 10 The Dog's Attack (5:50); 11 The Homecoming (2:43); 12 The Altar (2:00).

Review: Goldsmith's only Oscar-winning score has become one of the most influential works in the film music canon and probably started the trend for using Carl Orff's "O Fortuna" in every movie trailer with its spine-chilling use of a Latin-chanting chorus and Stravinsky-like, aggressive string passages to underscore the exploitative 1976 Richard Donner film about an evil little tike who's the son of Satan. Although Goldsmith scored later sequels with a fuller, more expansive sound, the original effort is almost a chamber score that lends an intimate, personal feel to the devilish proceedings. The dirge-like opening and chaotic frenzy of cues like "Killer Storm" and "Mrs. Blalock" are undeniably frightening, but just as disturbing is the low-key choral murmuring that opens the "Dogs Attack" piece, one of the grimmest horror cues Goldsmith ever produced. There's also a surprisingly lyrical, piano-voiced love theme that threads through many of the quieter pieces.

On Deadly Ground

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie On Deadly Ground, Warner Bros., 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Music Editor: Curtis Roush; Orchestra conducted by Basil Poledouris; Featured Vocalists: Qaunaq Mikkigak, Timangiak Petaulassie (Inuit throat singing); Album Producer: Basil Poledouris; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (2:20); 2 Aegis Flameout (1:44); 3 Forrest Found (1:36); 4 The Journey (7:57); 5 Forrest Decides/ Horse Chase (3:55); 6 Jennings Goes Down (4:47); 7 The Warning/End Credits (7:19).

Review: Steven Seagal, an unlikely martial arts expert with a mission, roams the Alaskan range in this environmentally-minded saga in which he confronts an oil prospector unmoved by the pristine beauty of the landscape but moved by the huge profits he might make with his rigs. Far-fetched as the story might have been, it prompted Basil Poledouris to write a superb score in which big orchestral textures and synthesizer sounds, in a rare happy confluence of two styles that seldom agree, effectively blend to paint a broad musical panorama. Adding a touch of authenticity to the musical proceedings, Inuit throat singers provide a suggestive local color.

On Her Majesty's Secret Service

1988, EMI-Manhattan Records; from the movie On Her Majesty's Secret Service, United Artists, 1969.

Selections: 1 We Have All The Time In The World (3:16) Louis Armstrong; 2 This Never Happened To The Other Fella (4:28); 3 Try (3:28); 4 Ski Chase (2:55); 5 Do You Know How Christmas Trees Are Grown? (3:22) Nina; 6 Main Theme: On Her Majesty's Secret Service (2:37); 7 Journey To Blofeld's Hideaway (3:29); 8 We Have All The Time In The World (3:00); 9 Over And Out (2:42); 10 Battle At Piz Gloria (4:04); 11 We Have All The Time In The World/James Bond Theme (4:34).

Review: Even though Secret Agent 007 is portrayed by a newcomer (George Lazenby, who hardly made the grade when compared with Sean Connery, despite his own personal charm), very little else is changed in this by-the-numbers exciting tale of derring-do, primarily set in the Swiss Alps. John Barry's score, also one of his best for the series, matches the break-neck pace of the action, and pauses long enough to also indulge in a significant love theme and in a tongue-in-cheek comment about the previous owner of the title role. One jarring note in the otherwise excellent album is the dispensable "Do You Know How Christmas Trees Are Grown?," but Louis Armstrong's rendition of the nostalgia-tinged "We Have All the Time in the World" is a great classic.

Once Around

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Once Around, Universal Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Billy May, John Neufeld; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Big Band On Ice (4:38); 2 The Apology (4:16); 3 Fly Me To The Moon (B. Howard)(2:29) Danny Aiello; 4 Emperor Waltz (J. Strauss)(5:32) The Vienna Opera Orchestra; 5 The Arrival (2:08); 6 Sulu Kule (Karsllama)(G. Abdo)(3:35) George Abdo & The Flames Of Araby Orchestra; 7 Fly Me To The Moon (instrumental version)(B. Howard)(1:16); 8 Glory Of Love (B. Hill)(1:34) Danny Aiello; 9 A Passage Of Time (8:42).

Review: James Horner, who has always shown a particular fondness for big bands, was right in his element for this score in which he worked with the great Billy May, writing a number, "Big Band on Ice," that brightens up the whole album. The film, a romantic comedy-drama about the family problems facing a 30-something spinster when she meets an unrefined condo salesman and makes plans to get married, results in cues that are appropriately evocative. Since much of the action centered around the woman's life with her family and the usual rituals involved, many of the selections in this soundtrack album are source music ranging from the stately "The Emperor Waltz" to an oriental fantasy. Danny Aiello, who also appears in the film as the pater familias, effectively handles two vocals, including "Fly Me to the Moon," reprised as an instrumental.

Once Upon a Forest

1993, Fox Records; from the animated feature Once Upon a Forest, 20th Century-Fox, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: John Neufeld; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; The London Symphony Orchestra and The New London Children's Choir, conducted by James Horner; Featured Soloists: Mike Taylor, Tony Herrigan, The Andrae Crouch Singers; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Once Upon A Time With Me (W. Jennings/J. Horner)(5:56) Florence Warner Jones, The New London Children's Choir; 2 The Forest (9:11); 3 Cornelius' Nature Lesson (3:41); 4 The Accident (4:24); 5 Bedside Vigil (2:15); 6 Please Wake Up (W. Jennings/M. Tavera/K. Ward/M. Young/J. Horner) (2:36) Michael Crawford; 7 The Journey Begins (8:08); 8 He's Back (A. Crouch/S. Crouch/J. Horner)(2:00) Ben Vereen & The Andrae Crouch Singers; 9 Flying (4:49); 10 Escaping From The Yellow Dragons/The Meadow (6:36); 11 Flying Home To Michelle (6:32); 12 The Children/Maybe One Day..., Maybe One Day (4:41); 13 Once Upon A Time With Me/End Credits (W. Jennings/J. Horner) (5:56) Florence Warner Jones, The New London Children's Choir.

Review: Interestingly this soundtrack album invites comparisons with Ferngully... The Last Rain Forest, if only because it is also an animated feature with an ecological message to it. But where Alan Silvestri scored the first with an abundance of synthesized sounds, James Horner brings to his music the superlative expression of the London Symphony Orchestra, and themes that are grandly sweeping and profusely florid. As is often the case with his cues, often reconstructed for the soundtrack album, there is a huge amount of music here, notably "The Forest," "The Journey Begins," "Escaping from the Yellow Dragons/The Meadow," and "Flying Home to Michelle," which all have plenty of time to make a strong impression.

Also as usual with Horner, the themes are truly beautiful, romantic and melodic, and always broad to the extreme. They match the animated action in which the usual contingent of cuddly characters—Abigail, a mouse, Edgar, a mole, Russell, a hedgehog, and Michelle, a badger—are exposed to the dangers of life outside the forest. When Michelle gets sick, her wise old uncle, Cornelius, directs the other three to go find a rare herb, which they eventually do after having met a gospel group led by a perky preacher, and barely escaped the "yellow dragons," the bulldozers at a construction site. It may be conventional stuff, but Horner pulls all the stops and delivers a score that underlines these events in the story with much delight.

Once Upon a Time in America

1985, Mercury Records; from the movie Once Upon a Time in America, Hapax Int'l Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra conducted by Ennio Morricone; Featured Artists: Gheorghe Zamfir (Pan flute), Edda Dell'Orso (vocals); Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineer: Sergio Marcotulli; Assistant Engineer: Alessandro Marcotulli.

Selections: 1 Once Upon A Time In America (2:14); 2 Poverty (3:38); 3 Deborah's Theme (4:25) Edda Dell' Orso; 4 Childhood Memories (3:24); 5 Amapola (5:22); 6 Friends (1:36); 7 Prohibition Dirge (4:21); 8 Cockey's Song (4:21) Edda Dell' Orso; 9 Amapola, part 2 (3:09); 10 Childhood Poverty (1:45); 11 Photographic Memories (1:03); 12 Friends (1:24); 13 Friendship And Love (4:16) Edda Dell' Orso; 14 Speakeasy (2:23); 15 Deborah's Theme/Amapola (6:13).

Review: A story of the world of gangsters in the United States spread over several decades, Once Upon a Time in America may be viewed as Sergio Leone's companion film to his Once Upon a Time in the West. Whereas the popular "spaghetti western" explores a time and place that are significant in this country's development the conquest of the West, Once Upon a Time in America is equally relevant in its exploration of another time and place, life in the Eastern big cities during the Prohibition and after, that also shaped the country as we know it today. In it, Leone used the rivalries that existed between various criminal groups over their claim to certain territories, to focus on an aging New York Mafia boss (Robert De Niro), eager to avenge the death of his girlfriend 35 years earlier, during the Prohibition era, at the hands of members of a rival gang.

Once again bringing his own sensitivity to illustrate Leone's vision, Ennio Morricone wrote a vibrant score, marked by themes that are in turns romantic and exuberant, in a display of unusually strong musical ideas that match in invention and impact the ones he had conceived for the earlier Once Upon a Time in the West. From early jazz tunes to evocative nostalgia-limned songs, he painted a broad, colorful canvas that is irresistibly alive and convincing.

Once Upon a Time in the West

1988, RCA Records; from the movie Once Upon a Time in the West, Paramount Pictures, 1972.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra Unione Musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Featured Soloist: Franco De Gemini (harmonica), Alessandro Alessandroni (whistler), I Cantori Moderni di Alessandroni (chorus), Edda Dell'Orso (vocal); Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; CD Producer: Chick Crumpacker; Engineer: Dick Baxter.

Selections: 1 Once Upon A Time In The West (3:43); 2 As A Judgement (3:05); 3 Farewell To Cheyenne (2:37); 4 The Transgression (4:40); 5 The First Tavern (1:38); 6 The Second Tavern (1:31); 7 Man With A Harmonica (3:28); 8 A Dimly Lit Room (5:06); 9 Bad Orchestra (2:22); 10 The Man (1:00); 11 Jill's America (2:45); 12 Death Rattle (1:42); 13 Finale (4:10).

Review: Even though he had already scored several magnificent westerns that called attention to his unique brand of creativity (The Good, the Bad and the Ugly comes to mind), Ennio Morricone reached the pinnacle of his art with this sensational effort for the sprawling saga filmed by Sergio Leone. Central to the popularity of the score is the haunting "Man with a Harmonica," which is heard throughout the film as a theme for a lonely avenger portrayed by Charles Bronson. The poignancy in the theme captures the moods of the narrative, a tale of greed and revenge, in which Bronson's "man-with-no-name" confronts Henry Fonda and Jason Robards, two heavies intent on taking control of a small community in a deserted area of the wild West, in anticipation of the windfall that will come their way once the railroad comes through the town. Also making a strong comment on the action, "Farewell to Cheyenne" and "Jill's America" stand out in the rich and flavorful score.

One Against the Wind

1993, Intrada Records; from the movie One Against the Wind, Republic Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Lee Holdridge; Orchestrations: Lee Holdridge, Ira Hearshen; Orchestra conducted by Lee Holdridge; Album Producer: Lee Holdridge; Engineer: Rick Riccio.

Selections: 1 Wartime (Prologue and Main Theme)(2:56); 2 Mary Helps James (5:01); 3 Escape (2:37); 4 Simple Acts Of Courage (5:33); 5 Mary's Trial (2:03); 6 Captured And Wounded (4:38); 7 Mary In Danger (2:01); 8 Leaving Mary Behind (3:19); 9 Reunion and Finale (2:22); 10 End Credits (Main Theme)(1:14).

Review: Based on the real life story of a British countess living in Paris during World War II and her heroic efforts to help downed Allied fliers escape arrest, One Against the Wind suggested to composer Lee Holdridge a score that swells up with broad romantic moods, reflective of the countess' character, and martial cues to dangers presented by the German occupant. As he explains it in his notes, the score is pretty much presented as "a tone poem spread across the events and moments of the film," with the two colliding motives, a tense descending "wartime" action theme played by the brass section, and a rising hymn-like theme, played by the strings, outlining the various elements in the narrative. An unusually strong and descriptive score.

One Fine Day

1996, Columbia Records; from the movie One Fine Day, 20th Century-Fox, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, James Newton Howard; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Song Producers: David Sancious, Peter Asher, Marc Tanner, Shawn Colvin, Matthew Wilder, Van Morrison, John Porter, Danny Bennett, Tracey Freeman; Album Executive Producers: Michael Hoffman, Peter Afterman, Glen Brunman.

Selections: 1 One Fine Day (G. Goffin/C. King)(2:45) Natalie Merchant; 2 The Boy From New York City (J. Taylor/G. Davis)(3:01) The Ad Libs; 3 For The First Time (J. Newton Howard/A.D. Rich/J. Friedman)(4:29) Kenny Loggins; 4 Mama Said (L. Dixon/W. Denson)(2:09) The Shirelles; 5 Someone Like You (V. Morrison)(4:11) Shawn Colvin; 6 Love's Funny That Way (T. Arena/D. Tyson/D. McTaggart)(4:37) Tina Arena; 7 Have I Told You Lately? (V. Morrison)(4:20) Van Morrison; 8 The Glory Of Love (W. Hill)(2:59) Keb' Mo'; 9 What A Diff'rence A Day Made (M. Grever/S. Adams)(2:28) Tony Bennett; 10 Isn't It Romantic (R. Rodgers/L. Hart)(3:02) Ella Fitzgerald; 11 This Guy's In Love With You (B. Bacharach/H. David)(3:48) Harry Connick Jr.; 12 Just Like You (K. Moore/J.L. Parker)(3:27) Keb' Mo'; 13 One Fine Day (G. Goffin/C. King) (2:10) The Chiffons; 14 Suite from One Fine Day (8:55).

Review: The Chiffons' original rendition of the title track is near-perfection, so it didn't need anyone messing around with it. Unfortunately, Natalie Merchant tries her hand and delivers something that misses its predecessors' vigor and innocence. A bunch of other tepid love songs – new and old – by Kenny Loggins, Tina Arena and Harry Connick, Jr., round out the set, though the rootsy Keb' Mo' acquits himself well on two selections.

Nine minutes of James Newton Howard's music is all you get in this "soundtrack" album, in which the remainder is spent on an odd assortment of song performances ranging from excellent ("For the First Time," "Have I Told You Lately," "What a Diff'rence a Day Made," "Isn't It Romantic") to mediocre ("Love's Funny That Way," "The Glory of Love," "This Guy's in Love with You," "Just Like You"). It's your money...

All-Star Orchestra, conducted by Michael Kamen; Album Producers: Michael Kamen, Stephen P. McLaughlin, Christopher S. Brooks; Engineer: Stephen P. McLaughlin.

Selections: 1 Cruella De Vil (M. Levin)(4:07) Dr. John; 2 One Hundred And One Dalmatians (Main Title)/Good Morning, Pongo/Walking The Dogs (3:56); 3 The House Of De Vil (Cruella's Catwalk)/Love At First Sight/ Roger Goes Swimming (6:55); 4 Daisy, Daisy (Anita Goes Swimming)(2:03); 5 The Wedding (Cup Of Marriage)/Horace And Jasper/Skinner (7:04); 6 Going To Have A Puppy/I Adore Puppies (2:40); 7 Birth (15 Puppies)/The Heist (7:18); 8 Kipper The Die Hard Dog (1:27); 9 Woof On The Roof (3:26); 10 Rescue (2:09); 11 Kipper Finds The Puppies (5:18); 12 Pup, Pup, Pup, Pup, Puppies (4:17); 13 Reunion In The Barn (5:19); 14 Puppies In The Mist (1:59); 15 Home – One Big Happy Family (3:45).

Review: Dr. John's delightfully wicked rendition of the song "Cruella De Vil" sets the tone for this inspired live-action remake of the Disney animated feature, with Michael Kamen taking his cue from the storyline to deliver a score that's right on the button. While one might have wondered whatever prompted the powers-that-be at Disney to remake one of their most successful films, one can't dispute the fact that they were right in hiring Kamen to write the score. His music is constantly innovative and amusing, appropriately matching the grander-than-life elements in the film, while adding the right touch to its more down-to-earth aspects. Particularly welcome here is the sentimental "Going to Have A Puppy" with its sarcastic downside "I Adore Puppies," and the heroic "Rescue," brimming with great action tonalities. The entire score is a total joy.

> "We all look up to him. He invigorated the idea that the orchestra is the way to go when making film scores. He emphasizes the tonal possibilities, the excitement of a hundred people playing music."

Only the Lonely

1991, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Only the Lonely, 20th Century-Fox, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestra conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Only The Lonely (R. Orbison/J. Melson)(2:27) Roy Orbison; 2 Rose (6:12); 3 Guilt (2:57); 4 Teresa (3:20); 5 Ladder Proposal (11:15); 6 It Couldn't Be Better (4:25); 7 Someone Like You (V. Morrison)(4:05) Van Morrison.

Review: An amusing romantic comedy, Only the Lonely paints the picture of a bachelor cop, essentially a portly nice guy, still living with his domineering Irish mother in an unassuming working-class neighborhood in Chicago. Acutely observed and frequently transcending the limited parameters of the genre, the film provided Maurice Jarre with a broad range of characters and situations to write a pleasantly colorful score. In one long, expansive moment ("Ladder Proposal"), the composer was able to pack all the best elements in the film to write a piece that echoes the feelings of the main character, played by John Candy, after he meets and falls in love with a timid funeral parlor cosmetician. The two pop vocals, Roy Orbison's "Only the Lonely," and Van Morrison's "Someone Like You," neatly bookend the score for what amounts to a flavorful musical package.

Only You

1994, Columbia Records; from the movie Only You, TriStar Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Rachel Portman; Music Editor: Bill Abbott; Orchestra conducted by David Snell; Featured Soloist: Christopher Warren Green (violin); Album Producer: Rachel Portman; Engineer: Dick Lewzey.

Selections: 1 Only You (And You Alone) (B. Ram/A. Rand) (3:13) Louis Armstrong; 2 Written In The Stars (1:16); 3 Some Enchanted Evening (R. Rodgers/O. Hammerstein II) (3:02) Ezio Pinza; 4 I'm Coming With You (2:22); 5 Venice (1:51); 6 O Sole Mio (E. Di Capua/G. Capurro/A. Mazzucchi) (3:10) Quartetto Gelato, Peter De Sotto; 7 Libiamo ne' lieti calici (G. Verdi) (2:58) Agnes Baltsa, Jose Carreras; 8 Lost In Tuscany (2:29); 9 Arriving At Damon's Restaurant (1:40); 10 Running After Damon (:58); 11 Gypsy Blessing (3:21); 12 Positano (1:46); 13 Quartet In B Flat Major, Rondo (J.S. Bach) (4:54) Quartetto Gelato; 14 Do You Love Him? (3:16); 15 Theme From "Only You" (3:35); 16 Once In A Lifetime (M. Bolton/D. Warren/W. Afanasieff) (5:56) Michael Bolton.

Review: Rachel Portman's cues are often lost in this soundtrack album in which the top pop selections often seem to command more attention. But as usual, the composer eventually impresses with the high quality levels of her compositions, though many of the selections are shamefully too short. One of the most interesting film composers to hit her stride in recent years, Portman often writes in a romantic, expansive style that seems particularly suited to this well-heeled romantic comedy about a couple (Marisa Tomei and Robert Downey Jr.) who meet and eventually fall in love against the exotic background provided by Venice, Rome, the fields of Tuscany and the Amalfi coast. Particularly enjoyable here are the cues marked "I'm Coming with You," "Arriving at Damon's Restaurant," and the short but expressive "Running After Damon," which pretty much define what the score is all about.

Operation Dumbo Drop

1995, Hollywood Records; from the movie Operation Dumbo Drop, Walt Disney Films, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: David Newman; Orchestrations: David Newman, Xandy Janko, Randy Miller, Scott Smalley, William

Selections: 1 Opening (1:55); 2 (Your Love Keeps Lifting Me) Higher And Higher (C. Smith/G. Jackson/R. Miner)(2:57) Jackie Wilson; 3 Botat And Lihn (2:57); 4 You'se A Son Of A Gun (A. Story/L. Brown/G. Gordy)(2:28) Marvin Gaye; 5 Elephant Temple/Lihn's Flashback (6:00); 6 Hang On Sloopy (W. Ferrell/ B. Russell)(3:53) The McCoys; 7 Operation Dumbo Drop (8:23); 8 Think (T. White/A. Franklin)(2:15) Aretha Franklin; 9 Farewell (3:40); 10 When I See An Elephant Fly (N. Washington/O. Wallace)(1:54) Cliff Edwards, Jim Carmichael, The Hall-Johnson Choir.

Review: Here is another case where the pop selections seem to intrude on the development of the original score, written by none other than the excellent David Newman. Apparently based on a real-life incident involving American Green Berets in Vietnam, some local mountain villagers with an exacting ritual, a pachyderm which must be hauled over 200 miles of enemy jungle territory, and a cute 12-year-old orphan boy in need of some love and understanding, the film makes extensive use of period pop tunes, faithfully compiled here to the detriment of Newman's score. The composer's cues, using some anachronistic synthesizer sounds, appropriate ethnic flutes, and the orchestral textures of the Sinfonia of London, create an atmosphere that also seems quite remote from the tone of the film itself, with long, expansive romantic themes that are exquisite but hardly the kind you might expect to hear in a comedy.

Oscar

1991, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Oscar, Touchstone Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Patrick Russ, Emilie A. Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: Elmer Bernstein.

Selections: 1 Largo al Factotum (G. Rossini)(from The Barber of Seville) (4:42) Earle Patriarco; 2 Grifting (5:43); 3 Lisa Dreams (3:46); 4 Tea And Romance (4:29); 5 Revelations (5:27); 6 Cops And Real Crooks (concluding with Finucci Piano Boogie)(5:45) Ralph Grierson; 7 Sweet Georgia Brown (B. Bernie/ K. Casey/ M. Pinkard) (2:54) Bing Crosby; 8 Rockin' In Rhythm (E.K. Ellington/I. Mills/H. Carney)(3:21) Duke Ellington and his Orchestra; 9 Tea For Two (V. Youmans/I. Caesar)(3:21) Fred Waring and His Pennsylvanians; 10 Plain Dirt (C. Stanton)(2:38) McKinney's Cotton Pickers.

Review: Sylvester Stallone seems an unlikely foil for a comedy set in 1931, though he played a former hitman intent on reforming and setting a good example for his children. Using as a basic source of inspiration Rossini's "Barber of Seville," Elmer Bernstein crafted an amusing score that has many merits even if it is not exactly earth-shaking. In longer-than-usual cues, in which his ideas have time to find an expression, he delivers music that remains frequently innovative and catchy ("Lisa Dreams"), and representative of the screen action ("Cops and Real Crooks"). Providing a different spin of their own, several pop selections give the album an early '30s feel.

Othello

Othello

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Othello, Castle Hill, 1952.

Album Notes: Music: Angelo-Francesco Lavagnino, Alberto Bargeris; Music Reconstruction: Michael Pendowski; Members of The Chicago Symphony Orchestra; The Chicago Lyric Opera Chorus, conducted by Bob Bowker; Album Producers: Michael Pendowski, Michael Dawson; Engineer: Bob Bennett.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Chant (4:06); 2 There Was Once In Venice A Moor (1:06); 3 The Wrath Of Brabantio/Iago's Theme/ "An Hour To Spend With Thee" (4:12); 4 The Turks Retreat (1:52); 5 The Proclamation/Deceiving Rodrigo (3:39); 6 The Celebration and Antagonism Of Cassio (3:23); 7 "My Reputation, Iago, My Reputation" (1:59); 8 The Seed Of Doubt (3:03); 9 The Handkerchief (1:37); 10 Othello Eavesdrops (5:41); 11 "Let Me See Your Eyes" (:55); 12 "Who Is Thy Lord" (2:04); 13 The Murder Of Rodrigo (The Public Thermae)(5:56); 14 "Put Out The Light, Then Put Out The Light" (2:18); 15 The Deceiver Is Revealed/The Death Of Othello (2:27).

Othello

1995, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Othello, Columbia Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Charlie Mole; Orchestrations: Nick Ingman, John Bell; Orchestra conducted by Nick Ingman; Featured

Soloists: John Themis (oud, guitar, flutes, solo voice), Paul Clarvis (African percussion), Keith Thomson (ethnic flutes, oboes, shawm), Nick Curtis (Moorish wailing); Album Producer: Charlie Mole; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:12); 2 The Garden (1:22); 3 The Arrival (3:37); 4 Torch Dance (2:39); 5 Revelry (4:16); 6 The Fight (4:24); 7 Divinity Of Hell (3:37); 8 Flashback (3:08); 9 The Beach (1:01); 10 The Fit (2:14); 11 Behind Bars (2:06); 12 The Turret (2:03); 13 Go! (2:16); 14 The Prayer (1:52); 15 The Well (1:11); 16 The Willow Song (2:05); 17 It Is The Cause (3:30); 18 Desdemona's Death (3:39); 19 Iago's Stabbing (1:35); 20 Burial (3:44); 21 End Credits (4:33).

Review: One subject, two versions, two very different scores. The first, for the 1952 film directed and starring Orson Welles, was written by Francesco-Angelo Lavagnino, one of the most respected and proficient Italian composers of the 1950s. Dark and frequently disturbing, but also a very adventurous score in its expression, it involves a wide range of musical effects (North African sonorities, Elizabethan melodies, brass flourishes, medieval tunes, dissonant choral accents) that combine together, collide and mix to paint a brooding, multi-faceted diorama, representative of the action and the background against which it happens. Painstakingly restored, it is performed here in a new recording by members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and the Chicago Lyric Opera, in a magnificent display that reveals its many telling aspects.

Surprisingly written along more traditional lines, Charlie Mole's music, heard in the version starring Laurence Fishburn and Kenneth Branagh, also makes use of ethnic instruments, primarily North African, for a score which is equally somber but eventually more one-dimensional in its expression. Unlike the cues written by Lavagnino, Mole's score also seems to be less melodically inclined, with floating lines weaving in and out of rhythmic patterns that may prove more effective on screen than on a strictly audio basis.

Out of Africa

1986, MCA Records; from the movie Out of Africa, Universal Pictures, 1985.

Selections: 1 Main Title (I Had A Farm In Africa)(3:07); 2 I'm Better At Hello (Karen's Theme I)(1:15); 3 Have You Got A Story For Me? (1:12); 4 Concerto For Clarinet And Orchestra In A (K. 622)(W.A. Mozart)(2:46) Jack Brymer, The Academy of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, Neville Marriner; 5 Safari (2:40); 6 Karen's Journey/ Siyawe (African Traditional)(4:46); 7 Flying Over Africa (3:22); 8 I Had A Compass From Denys (Karen's Theme II)(2:27); 9 Alone In The Farm (1:55); 10 Let The Rest Of The World Go By (E.R. Ball/J. Keirn Brennan)(3:12); 11 If I Know A Song Of Africa (Karen's Theme III)(2:11); 12 End Title (You Are Karen)(4:03).

Review: John Barry won a well-deserved Academy Award for this remarkable score, which gave its specific romantic flavor to this tale based on the true-life experiences of writer Isak Dinesen in Kenya in the days before World War I. Though married at the time, Dinesen got involved with a charming, boyish aviator, in a relationship that did not last, even though she became available, because of his independent nature. Sometimes more a travelogue than a romantic drama, the film is marked by its many breathtaking views of unspoiled African landscapes, lovingly captured in gorgeous scenes, in which Barry's music serves as a necessary complement to the image. "Flying over Africa" is one of the score's choicest moments. For the most part eschewing the ethnic rhythms that had marked his other African epic Born Free, Barry delivered a series of strikingly original romantic themes that masterfully capture the moods and feels of the film. A Japanese release of this soundtrack album, incidentally, contains an extra selection not in the American release.

Out To Sea

1997, Milan Records; from the movie Out To Sea, 20th Century-Fox, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: David Newman; Orchestrations: David Newman, Xandy Janko, Daniel Hamuy, Brad Dechter; Synthesizer Programming: Marty Frasu; Orchestra conducted by David Newman; Ballroom Music Arrangements: Chris Boardman; Ballroom Music conducted by Chris Boardman; Ballroom Music Producer: Chris Boardman; Engineers: Bones Howe, Bobby Fernandez, Bruce Botnick, Marty Frasu.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (D. Newman)(1:08); 2 You're Our Guest (C. Boardman/R.N. Jacobs)(:44) Brent Spiner; 3 Cheek To Cheek (I. Berlin)(2:44) Brent Spiner; 4 Celebration (R. Bell/C. Smith/G. Brown/J. Taylor/R. Mickens/E. Toon/D. Thomas/R. Bell/E. Deodato)(3:10); 5 First Kiss/Charlie And Liz (D. Newman)(2:23); 6 Canadian Sunset (N. Gimbel/E. Heywood)(3:00); 7 Oye Como Va (T. Puente)(3:22) Brent Spiner; 8 Mambo #5 (D.P. Prado)(2:05); 9 Proposal (D. Newman)(1:54); 10 Jumpin' At The Woodside (C. Basie)(4:17); 11 Sway (P.B. Ruiz/N. Gimbel)(2:36) Brent Spiner; 12 Nurse Collins (D. Newman) (1:34); 13 Sea Cruise (H.P. Smith)(1:50); 14 More (R. Ortolani/N. Oliviero/M. Ciocciolini/N. Newell)(2:27) Bobby Darin; 15 Finale (D. Newman)(7:04).

Review: If you've ever felt like taking a cruise in the Caribbean, but couldn't afford to get seasick, then this album might do the trick and help you dream that you're actually on one of those luxury liners. Several of the tracks ("Cheek to Cheek," "Celebration," "Canadian Sunset," "Mambo #5," "Jumpin' at the Woodside," "Sea Cruise," etc.) are performed in sophisticated lounge/cruise ship style, with Brent Spiner providing an occasional vocal that's right on target—unobtrusive, upfront and handsomely bland. For added pleasure, they've dusted off Bobby Darin's rendition of "More," from the film Mondo Cane. And David Newman has thrown in some cues from his instrumental score, creating a different set of moods, equally welcome. The film, by the way, stars grumpy old actors Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau, in yet another innocuous comedy-by-the-numbers, as mismatched brothers-in-law who wind up aboard a luxury ship as... dance hosts, who think nothing of meeting (and fleecing) the wealthy women on the cruise. As long as they keep that music playing, welcome aboard!

Outbreak

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Outbreak, Warner Bros., 1995.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (3:19); 2 Motaba River Valley (1:00); 3 Final Authorization (2:34); 4 White Flags (1:44); 5 Casey Rips His Suit (2:20); 6 Finding The Ship (1:42); 7 Casey Goes Down (2:04); 8 Robbie's Bedside (2:38); 9 Jimbo Gets Sick (1:43); 10 Cedar Creek Exodus (1:07); 11 A Little Resistance (2:48); 12 They're Coming (7:14).

Review: A suitably dramatic orchestral score with electronic effects, James Newton Howard's music for Outbreak sounds fittingly ominous and ballsy at the right places, though it eventually seems dry-bone and wrenching despite the many flourishes meant to embellish this tale about a rare disease imported from Africa and running rampant in a middle-American town. The impression is that the score, eloquent as it may be (and it is, just listen to "They're Coming"!), takes too long to build some kind of momentum.

Outland/Capricorn One

1993, GNP/Crescendo; from the movies Outland, Warner Bros., 1978; and Capricorn One, Warner Bros., 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; The National Philharmonic Orchestra of London, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith.

Selections: OUTLAND: 1 The Mine (3:52); 2 Early Arrival (4:09); 3 The Message (2:07); 4 The Air Lock (4:42); 5 Hot Water (4:49); 6 The Hunted (5:14); 7 Spiders (2:29); 8 The Rec Room (3:23); 9 The Hostage (4:18); 10 Final Message (3:27);

CAPRICORN ONE: 11 Main Title (2:47); 12 Bedtime Story (3:01); 13 Docking (2:55); 14 No Water (2:26); 15 The Message (4:33); 16 Break Out (3:13); 17 Kay's Theme (3:17); 18 The Station (3:30); 19 The Snake (3:37); 20 The Long Climb (3:53); 21 The Letter (2:52); 22 The Celebration (3:04).

Review: Two of Goldsmith's finest action scores are well represented on this lengthy album, which showcases the percussive, elaborately-developed style of writing that dominated the composer's work until the mid-'80s. The 1981 Outland is a gritty and extremely dark outer space effort featuring a throbbing suspense motif of woodwinds and low strings, some delicately-textured electronics and crushing, monolithic action cues that hammer home the horror of dying in the emptiness of space. There's a spectacular cue for a foot chase in "Hot Water" and a surprisingly lyrical, romantic finale. Capricorn One is a landmark action score sporting a remarkably driving, jagged title march emphasizing harsh, militaristic brass and percussion. Insidiously subtle suspense cues alternate with arid desert portraits featuring a lonely solo trumpet figure and several spectacular action cues, notably the virtuoso "Breakout" which climaxes in a wild section of whirling horn and trumpet glissandos. They don't write 'em like this anymore.

Pacific Heights

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Pacific Heights, Morgan Creek Films, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Orchestrations: Shirley Walker, Bruce Fowler, Steve Bartek; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker; Featured Soloists: Chuck Domanico (bass), Mike Lang (piano), Walt Fowler (trumpet), Gene Cipriano (saxophone), Carmen Twilley (voice); Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Jay Rifkin; Engineer: Jay Rifkin.

Selections: 1 Part I (12:14); 2 Part II (7:26); 3 Part III (9:24); 4 Part IV (8:05).

Review: Presented on CD in four long suites, Zimmer's textural music for this psychological thriller is comprised not so much of melodies or themes but of motifs and recurring figures and phrases. Zimmer creates a complex and compelling musical world comprised of orchestra, synthesizer, and voice. Instrumentally, the score is quite varied, yet it captures a consistent mood of apprehension, of danger, of working evil. A solo saxophone evokes a somewhat sensuous eloquence to the score's apprehensiveness, while a brief melody for female voice adds a tonality of ominous jeopardy. Zimmer provides a number of warm musical moments, the pretty piano theme heard every so often brings a sense of intimacy and compassion to the otherwise suspenseful or frightening moments, but it's always the stronger, nonmelodic musical figures that predominate, just as the strange circumstances of the film constantly overwhelm the calmer moments. Zimmer's score likewise mirrors this counterpoint with notable style and flavor. The music is so varied and the orchestrations so interesting that the music is constantly listenable, always turning something new that wasn't heard before.

The Pagemaster

1994, Fox Records; from the movie The Pagemaster, 20th Century-Fox, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Don Davis, Thomas Pasatieri; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Song Producers: Keith Thomas, David Fosterl; Engineers: Bill Whittington, Dave Reitzas & Felipe Elgueta; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Dream Away (D. Warren)(4:38) Babyface, Lisa Stansfield; 2 Whatever You Imagine (C. Weil/B. Mann/J. Horner) (3:27) Wendy Moten; 3 Main Title (2:27); 4 A Stormy Ride To The Library (2:52); 5 The Library... The Pagemaster... (4:41); 6 Meeting Adventure And Fantasy (5:12); 7 Horror (3:20); 8 Dr. Jekyll And Mr. Hyde (5:05); 9 A Narrow Escape (2:01); 10 Towards The Open Sea... (7:01); 11 Pirates! (4:07); 12 Loneliness (3:11); 13 The Flying Dragon (3:10); 14 Swallowed Alive!/The Wonder In Books (7:56); 15 New Courage/The Magic Of Imagination (4:03).

Review: James Horner, who seems to have made a career out of scoring animated features (just kidding!), delivered another outstanding score for this fanciful tale about a kid whose love of video games compels him to enter a fantasy world in which he finds himself surrounded by a host of eccentric characters who teach him an invaluable lesson. Solidly crafted, and thoroughly epic in its expression, the recording benefits from the longer playing time of some of the cues, which gives the music an opportunity to make itself heard and appreciated. In another display of his talent, and feel for this type of action cues, Horner relies on the wide range of colors in the orchestral palette to paint images that are wonderfully evocative and strikingly imaginative. Even if "The Library... The Pagemaster" irresistibly evokes Paul Dukas' "The Sorcerer's Apprentice," there is a genuine feel for excitement in Horner's virile accents, a notion further confirmed in other cues like "Towards the Open Sea..." or "The Flying Dragon." In the context, the two mandatory pop vocals at the beginning seem superfluous and can easily be edited out.

The Pallbearer

1996, Miramax Records; from the movie The Pallbearer, Miramax Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Soundtrack Producers: Peter Afterman, Mitchell Leib, Jeffrey Kimball.

Selections: 1 Love Is A Beautiful Thing (S. Swinsky)(5:27) Al Green; 2 You Got It In Your Soulness (L. McCann)(7:35) Les McCann, Eddie Harris; 3 Sambolero (L. Bonfa)(2:09) Stan Getz, Luis Bonfa; 4 Papa Loves Mambo (A. Hoffman/D. Manning/B. Reichner)(2:41) Perry Como; 5 Cantaloupe Island (H. Hancock)(5:28) Herbie Hancock; 6 Move On Up (C. Mayfield)(8:53) Curtis Mayfield; 7 Super Freak (R. James/A. Miller)(3:26) Rick James; 8 Listen Here (E. Harris)(7:39) Eddie Harris; 9 Viva Tirado, Part 1 (G. Wilson)(4:44) El Chicano; 10 Bill's Dead/Milk Montage (S. Copeland)(4:00) Stewart Copeland; 11 I Surrender Dear (H. Barris/G. Clifford)(3:42) Django Reinhardt; 12 Ruth Shows Up (S. Copeland)(1:42) Stewart Copeland; 13 Follow (J. Merrick)(6:20) Richie Havens.

Review: Barely six minutes of Stewart Copeland's underscore for this comedy made it onto the album, packed instead with an eclectic collection of party songs by artists such as Al Green ("Love Is a Beautiful Thing"), Perry Como ("Papa Loves Mambo") and Rick James ("Super Freak"). The score samples are fairly undistinguished synth cues with little impact, as is the song selection.

The Paper

1994, Reprise Records; from the movie The Paper, Universal Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Newman; Orchestrations: Jack Hayes; Music Editors: Tom Kramer, James Flamberg; Orchestra conducted by Randy Newman; Featured Musicians: Malcolm McNab (trumpet), Ralph Grierson (piano); Album Producer: Frank Wolf; Engineer: Frank Wolf.

Selections: 1 Opening (1:14); 2 Clocks (3:11); 3 Henry Goes To Work (1:55); 4 The Sun (:47); 5 Bernie Calls Deanne (2:11); 6 Busting The Guys (1:14); 7 Marty And Henry (1:15); 8 The Newsroom: 7:00 p.m. (2:51); 9 More Clocks (1:45); 10 Henry Leaves With McDougal (1:10); 11 Bernie Finds Deanne (1:07); 12 Bernie (1:55); 13 Stop The Presses (:55); 14 Henry's Fired (1:01); 15 Marty (:42); 16 Marty's In Trouble (1:55); 17 To The Hospital (:41); 18 Little Polenta Is Born (2:27); 19 A New Day: 7:00 a.m. (5:01); 20 Make Up Your Mind (3:14) Randy Newman.

Review: Life in a big city daily paper and the various conflicting personalities that animate it, exacerbated in this story by the fate of two black kids unjustly accused of a crime they have not committed, is the main focus in this affectionate look at the press. Tension as well as the dreaded deadline finds its expression in Randy Newman's score in cues with a tick-tocking feel, while the personal relations between the various members of the staff elicit themes with a more romantic approach. Though at times compelling, the score ultimately doesn't appeal as much as it should, the result of some selections being much too short and seemingly unfulfilled. Newman's vocal on "Make Up Your Mind" is a throwaway at best.

Papillon

1988, Silva Screen/U.K.; from the movie Papillon, Allied Artists, 1974.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith.

Selections: 1 Theme From "Papillon" (2:15); 2 The Camp (2:57); 3 Reunion (4:33); 4 New Friend (2:02); 5 Freedom (3:53); 6 Gift From The Sea (6:42); 7 Antonio's Death (2:25); 8 Cruel Sea (1:26); 9 Hospital (3:46); 10 Survival (5:20).

Review: Containing one of Goldsmith's best themes, for accordion over harpsichord and orchestra, Papillon is a compelling score. Lushly orchestrated, Goldsmith musically depicts the cruelty of the Devil's Island penitentiary and its tangled jungles in such a way that much of his score might be considered a tone poem—a rather brutal one, at that—for the monstrously savage island prison. There is a brutal theme for the island itself. In a more symbolic sense, it's actually a theme for imprisonment, an echoed series of nine notes for reeds, ascending and then dropping off, which in its unresolved melody perfectly captures the claustrophobic sense of entrapment felt by Henri Charriere, the hero of the film, played by Dustin Hoffman. Rising above it, though, is the brilliant main theme, a beautiful melodic rhythm embodying Charriere's courage and spirit in his relentless pursuit of freedom. Arthur Morton's orchestrations are brilliant, taking the score into ever-new environments, keeping it fresh and constantly interesting, even in its dissonant moments. The score also contains one of Goldsmith's best love themes ("Gift from the Sea").

Paradise Road

1997, Sony Classical; from the movie Paradise Road, For Searchlight Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Ross Edwards; The Tall Poppies Orchestra, conducted by David Stanhope; Featured Performers: Vrouwenkoor Malle Babbe Women's Choir of Haarlem, Holland, Leny van Schaik, conductor; Vocal Arrangements: Margaret Dryburgh, Norah Chambers; Album Producers: The Malle Babbe Choir; Engineers: Christo Curtis (score), Lex van Diepen (choir).

Selections: 1 Guard Falls (bamboo flute)(:21); 2 Largo from Symphony No. 9, "New World" (A. Dvorak)(5:24) Malle Babbe Women's Choir; 3 Andante Cantabile from String Quartet (P.I. Tchaikovsky)(6:40) Malle Babbe Women's Choir; 4 Minuet in G (L. Van Beethoven)(2:54) Malle Babbe Women's Choir; 5 Snake Brings List (:35); 6 Prelude No. 20, "Funeral March" (F. Chopin)(1:36) Malle Babbe Women's Choir; 7 Miss Drummond Dies (1:40); 8 Jesu, Joy Of Man's Desiring (J.S. Bach)(2:23) Malle Babbe Women's Choir; 9 Handkerchief Dance, Country Gardens (P. Grainger)(2:59) Malle Babbe Women's Choir; 10 Wings Choral (:37); 11 Faery Song, from The Immortal Hour (R. Boughton)(2:52) Malle Babbe Women's Choir; 12 Auld Lang Syne (trad.)(3:39) Malle Babbe Women's Choir; 13 Mrs. O'Riordan Dies (1:09); 14 To A Wild Rose (E. MacDowell) (1:48) Malle Babbe Women's Choir; 15 The Captives' Hymn (M. Dryburgh)(4:51) Malle Babbe Women's Choir; 16 Wing's Death (1:48); 17 Bolero (M. Ravel) (2:46) Malle Babbe Women's Choir; 18 Londonderry Air ("Danny Boy")(trad.) (4:45) Malle Babbe Women's Choir.

Review: This has to be one of the loveliest and most unusual soundtrack albums available. Surprisingly, however, it is not Ross Edwards' somewhat perfunctory cues (reduced to a minimum here) that appeal the most, but the Malle Babbe Women's Choir's ethereal performances of classical selections, all the more effective for the calm and peaceful impression they exude. Standouts in this collection include the largo from Dvorak's "New World" Symphony, better known as the spiritual "Going Home"; the traditional Londonderry Air, also known as "Danny Boy"; and Bach's breathtakingly beautiful "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring." But the whole album is a priceless gem that you'll want to hear over and over again, particularly when a moment of rest is what you need most in the world.

Parenthood

1989, Reprise Records; from the movie Parenthood, Universal Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Newman; Orchestrations: Jack Hayes; Music Editor: Dan Carlin, Sr.; Album Producers: Lenny Waronker, Randy Newman; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Introduction/I Love To See You Smile (3:24); 2 Kevin's Graduation (2:37); 3 Helen And Julie (:56); 4 Kevin's Party (Cowboy Gil)(3:22); 5 Gary's In Trouble (2:50); 6 Father And Son (2:30); 7 Drag Race/Todd And Julie (2:30); 8 Kevin Comes Through (1:32); 9 Karen And Gil/Montage (4:51); 10 End Title (I Love To See You Smile)(3:39).

Review: Spearheaded by the Academy Award-nominated song "I Love to See You Smile," this affectionate look at the foibles and trials of parenthood finds a winning musical expression in Randy Newman's score, in which even the short-lived "Helen and Julie" seems appropriately sentimental and relevant. Other delightful moments in the score include the south-of-the-border/hoedown feel in "Kevin's Party," and the lilt in "Drag Race/Todd and Julie." In fact, everything about this soundtrack album would be just right, were it not for the fact that its total playing time is less than 29 minutes. The rating reflects one's utter disgust and disappointment.

Paris, Texas

1985, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Paris, Texas, 20th Century-Fox, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Ry Cooder; Featured Musicians: Ry Cooder, Jim Dickinson, David Lindley; Album Producer: Ry Cooder; Engineers: Allen Sides, Mark Ettel.

Selections: 1 Paris, Texas (2:56); 2 Brothers (2:06); 3 Nothing Out There (1:30); 4 Cancion Mixteca (trad.)(4:17) Harry Dean Stanton; 5 No Safety Zone (1:55); 6 Houston In Two Seconds (2:00); 7 She's Leaving The Bank (R. Cooder/ J. Dickinson)(5:56); 8 On The Couch (1:28); 9 I Knew These People (8:38) Harry Dean Stanton, Nastassja Kinski; 10 Dark Was The Night (W. Johnson) (2:50).

Review: A wrenching contemporary drama, about a drifter looking for his ex-wife and finding her working in a strip joint, Paris, Texas elicited an evocative Tex-Mex score from Ry Cooder, writing in an idiom in which he feels most comfortable and creative. Essentially a series of cues for acoustic guitars (played by Cooder, Jim Dickinson and David Lindley), the score is striking in its simplicity, effectively conveying the moods of the characters in the story. A long 8:38 minute segment, "I Knew These People," finds stars Harry Dean Stanton and Nastassja Kinski in a reading of the most poignant scene, with Cooder's music playing underneath, with the track itself, unfortunately marred by heavy hiss, evoking the stark atmosphere that permeates the whole film.

Pascali's Island

1988, Virgin Records; from the movie Pascali's Island, Avenue Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Loek Dikker; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra of Flanders, conducted by Huub Kerstens; Featured Soloists: Koen de Gans (kaval), Marten Scheffer (bouzouki); Album Producer: Loek Dikker; Engineer: Ernest Scheerder.

Selections: 1 Pascali's Theme (Pritouritze Planinata) (trad.) (4:38); 2 The Pasha's Castle (1:46); 3 Nisi By Night (1:38); 4 Jealous Pursuit (3:04); 5 Izzet Effendi (2:18); 6 Pascali's Passion (2:52); 7 Nightmares (3:15); 8 The Sultan's Spy (3:00); 9 Fear Of Greeks (2:22); 10 The Deal Complete (:45); 11 Mysterious Englishman (:34); 12 Discovery (2:42); 13 Growing Despair (2:16); 14 Under Cover Of Night (3:53); 15 Lydia's Death (1:08); 16 Pascali's Grief (6:33).

Review: Loek Dikker's score for Pascali' s Island, a film set on the Aegean, oozes with sounds that evoke the sunny Mediterranean islands and some of the tension in this story of a small-time secret agent, forever lost on a Greek island occupied by the Turks, whose universe is shattered by the arrival of a handsome archeologist and antique-plunderer. With the support of a bouzouki and a kaval, the composer fashioned a score that all at once captures the moods in the narrative and gives them a voice of their own, with a restraint that speaks eloquently for his creativity, while conjuring up images of the setting in which the action takes place. It's a low-key effort, nicely shaded, and handsomely executed.

A Passage to India

1989, Capitol Records; from the movie A Passage to India, Columbia Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Maurice Jarre.

Selections: 1 A Passage To India (1:52); 2 The Marabar Caves (3:06); 3 Bombay March (2:34); 4 The Temple (5:20); 5 Frangipani (3:00); 6 Chandrapore (4:46); 7 Adela (4:25); 8 Expectations (3:07); 9 Bicycle Ride (3:27); 10 Climbing To The Caves (3:59); 11 Kashmir (2:19); 12 Back To England (2:30).

Review: The strong creative relationship between filmmaker David Lean and composer Maurice Jarre, which had already manifested itself in Lawrence of Arabia and Ryan's Daughter, reached a new high with this film, set in India in the late 1920s, about a well-heeled young British woman, who cannot abide by the haughty attitudes of her compatriots, and who pays dearly for her spirit of independence. Jarre, at his florid best, came up with many memorable themes that capture the gist of the action and the specific time and place in which it occurred, with this effort rewarded by an Academy Award. Standout among the many selections is the jaunty "Bicycle Ride," another exhilarating tune in the Jarre canon.

Passenger 57

Selections: 1 Looking Good (Cutter's Theme)(3:49); 2 Lisa (5:55) Alexis England; 3 Cruisin' (5:31); 4 Rane To Plane (2:06); 5 Fight (1:27); 6 Skyjack (5:41); 7 What Is The Plan? (1:36); 8 Just Lookin' Good (Cutter's Theme) (1:30); 9 Big Fall (2:36); 10 Motorcycles (:54); 11 Have A Nice Flight (1:42); 12 Just Cruisin' (2:34); 13 Ferris Wheel (2:30); 14 Let Me Tell Him (2:57); 15 Tracking Rane (1:12); 16 Chaos On The Tarmac (4:37); 17 Anything Wet (1:37); 18 Flight Fight (4:00).

Review: A taut, gripping airborne drama, about a terrorist hijacking a plane and the cop who succeeds in overcoming him, Passenger 57 is notable for the fact that its score was written by jazz artist Stanley Clarke, who called upon many of his peers in the business – George Duke, Bobby Lyle, Paul Jackson, Jr., and Gerald Albright, among them – to come and share in the fun. There is little that's surprising or innovative about the music, just some jazz fusion themes that are pleasantly attractive, combined with standard action cues ("Skyjack," "Big Fall," "Chaos on the Tarmac") that mean less musically but fill a function.

Pastime

1991, Bay Cities Records; from the movie Pastime, Miramax Films, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Lee Holdridge; Orchestrations: Ira Hearshen, Lee Holdridge; Orchestra conducted by Lee Holdridge; Featured Musicians: Randy Waldman (piano), George Doering (guitar), Earl Dumier (oboe, English horn), Sheridon Strokes (flute), Charles Boito, Gary Herbig (clarinet), Jack Sheldon (trumpet); Album Producers: Lee Holdridge, Robin B. Armstrong; Engineer: Jim Bailey.

Selections: 1 Main Title: Swing Low Sweet Chariot/Main Theme (2:46) Jubilant Sykes; 2 The Game Of His Life (2:10); 3 Roy Dean's Solitude (1:48); 4 Kansas City (J. Lieber/M. Stoller)(3:00) Wilbert Harrison; 5 Roy Dean Misses The Pitch (3:03); 6 Teaching Tyrone (:59); 7 Sleepwalk (A. Farina/D. Wolf/J. Santo)(2:22) George Doering; 8 Montage Of Moments: Good Gum/Stan Musial Story/After The Fight (2:17); 9 Late Night Radio (1:34); 10 Roy Dean's Finale Decision (1:38); 11 Tyrone's Farewell (4:23); 12 Inez Says Goodbye (1:48); 13 Tyrone's Great Game/This One's For Roy Dean (2:28); 14 End Title: Swing Low Sweet Chariot/Main Theme (reprise)(3:45).

Review: The story of "a major miracle in the minor league," Pastime is set in central California in 1957, and deals with two outcasts, a 41-year-old reliever on a minor league club whose only title to glory is that he played ever so briefly in the big league, and a vastly talented young black pitcher with few opportunities to be noticed. For this little, unheralded masterpiece, Holdridge wrote a score that echoes the sentiments flowing between the two main characters and those around them, and, on a much broader scope, the strong emotions and aspirations the game elicits. Deeply felt and lyrical, it is diversified and eloquent, a strongly etched piece of music with many attractive facets.

Pat Garrett & Billy the Kid

1973, Columbia Records; from the movie Pat Garrett & Billy the Kid, M-G-M, 1973.

Selections: 1 Main Title Theme (Billy)(6:06); 2 Cantina Theme (Workin' For The Law)(2:57); 3 Billy 1 (3:55); 4 Bunkhouse Theme (2:16); 5 River Theme (1:29); 6 Turkey Chase (3:34); 7 Knockin' On Heaven's Door (2:33); 8 Final Theme (5:23); 9 Billy 4 (5:03); 10 Billy 7 (2:08).

Review: Bob Dylan, who gave a very uneven performance in the film, turned in an unexpectedly proficient score for this retelling of the struggle between former saddle buddies, sheriff Pat Garrett (James Coburn) and outlaw Billy The Kid (Kris Kristofferson), directed by Sam Peckinpah, who publicly disowned the initial version. While unlikely to give nightmares to composers better versed in the genre than he is, Dylan manages to evoke the folksy feel of the western, and contributes at least one memorable theme in "Knockin' on Heaven's Door."

Patriot Games

1992, RCA Records; from the movie Patriot Games, Paramount Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: John Neufeld, Conrad Pope; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:58); 2 Attempt On The Royals (3:45); 3 Harry's Game (P. Brennan)(2:31) Clannad; 4 The Hit (8:08); 5 Putting The Pieces Together (2:14); 6 Highland's Execution (2:26); 7 Assault On Ryan's House (11:00); 8 Electronic Battlefield (3:21); 9 Boat Chase (4:30); 10 Closing Credits (4:11).

Review: Harrison Ford stars in this explosive, action-packed thriller, based on Tom Clancy's best-seller, as a former CIA analyst vacationing in England, who becomes the target of an Irish killer when he unwillingly gets caught in the middle of a terrorist attack and saves a member of the royal family. With a preponderance of synthesizer sounds and Irish sonorities limning his score, James Horner sketches potent musical images that help underline the action on the screen, often in dark, somber tones that sound threatening and ominous, and are punctuated by heavy drumming as if to signal the inevitability of the most dramatic aspects in the story. Clannad's evocative performance in "Harry's Game" is a bit of a relief, even as it anchors the score more deeply in its Irish background.

The Pawnbroker/ The Deadly Affair

1996, Verve Records; from the movies The Pawnbroker, 1965, and The Deadly Affair, Columbia Pictures, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: Quincy Jones; Featured Musicians: Freddie Hubbard (trumpet), J.J. Johnson (trombone), Anthony Ortega (soprano sax), Oliver Nelson (alto sax, tenor sax), Jerry Dodgion (alto sax), Don Elliot (vibraphone), Bobby Scott (piano), Kenny Burrell (guitar), Tommy Williams (bass), Elvin Jones (drums), Ed Shaughnessy (percussion); Album Producers: Quincy Jones, Creed Taylor; Engineer: Rudy Van Gelder; CD Producer: Michael Lang; Engineer: Gary N. Mayo.

Selections: THE PAWNBROKER: 1 Theme From The Pawnbroker (Q. Jones/J. Lawrence)(3:09) Marc Allen; 2 Main Title (3:43); 3 Harlem Drive (1:56); 4 The Naked Truth (4:10); 5 Otez's Night Off (5:01); 6 Theme From The Pawnbroker (4:07); 7 How Come You People (2:50); 8 Rack 'Em Up (2:40); 9 Death Scene (5:01); 10 End Title (3:07); 11 Theme From The Pawnbroker (2:34) Sarah Vaughan;

THE DEADLY AFFAIR: 12 Who Needs Forever? (Q. Jones/H. Greenfield) (3:07) Astrud Gilberto; 13 Dieter's First Mistake (4:53); 14 Main Theme (2:11); 15 Postcard Signed "S"/Mendel Tails Elsa/Tickets To "S" (5:40); 16 Main Theme (version No. 2)(3:06); 17 Don't Fly It's Foggy (1:13); 18 Blondie Tails (1:18); 19 Main Theme (version No. 3)(2:07); 20 Ridiculous Scene (1:49); 21 Body On Elevator (:58); 22 Bobb's At Gunpoint (:56); 23 End Title (1:45).

Review: In the early days of his career, when he was more interested in writing solid "mood music" and big band jazz themes than the vapid rap songs in which he so often indulges these days, Quincy Jones scored several films that were particularly memorable. Both The Pawnbroker and The Deadly Affair belong to that category. With its blend of urgent string melodies and effective jazz tracks, the score for The Pawnbroker seems the adequate musical comment for this study of a Jewish man, portrayed by Rod Steiger, who survived the indignities of Nazi camps, only to find another form of discrimination in Harlem where he operates a pawnshop. Featuring such stalwarts as Freddie Hubbard, J.J. Johnson, Oliver Nelson, Kenny Burrell, and Elvin Jones, the music is strongly anchored in the modern jazz sounds that prevailed at the time the film was made. The moods in the film receive an additional boost with the inclusion of the track "How Come You People," that mixes excerpts of dialogue with Jones' music.

Based on a novel by John Le Carre, The Deadly Affair deals with a British intelligence officer, played by James Mason in one of his most compelling screen portrayals, trying to solve the mystery surrounding the suicide of a diplomat. The cues Quincy Jones wrote for the film denote the influence of the bossa nova sounds that were heard at the time. But even when he gives in to fleeting trends, Jones always writes material that is far superior to what others do, a point made again with this exquisitely flavored score, reminiscent in some ways of the music Michel Legrand used to write during the same period.

Pee-Wee's Big Adventure/ Back to School 🦴🦴🦴🦴🦴

1988, Varese-Sarabande; from the movies Pee-Wee's Big Adventure, Warner Bros., 1985; and Back to School, Orion Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by John Coleman; Album Producer: Tom Null; Engineer: Mike Ross; Second Engineer: Dave Knight.

Selections: PEE-WEE'S BIG ADVENTURE: 1 Overture/The Big Race (3:08); 2 Breakfast Machine (2:37); 3 Park Ride (1:15); 4 Stolen Bike (1:44); 5 Hitchhike (:57); 6 Dinosaur Dream (:49); 7 Simone's Theme (1:36); 8 Clown Dream (1:59); 9 Studio Chase (1:25); 10 The Drive-In (2:02); 11 Finale (3:13);

BACK TO SCHOOL: 12 Overture (2:13); 13 "Do Not Go Gently..." (1:08); 14 The Brawl (:52); 15 Action Medley (1:30); 16 Classroom Secretary (1:01); 17 Triple Lindy (2:04); 18 Love Suite (2:29); 19 Study Montage (2:01).

Review: Whether it was Paul Reubens' quirky personality as the childlike Pee-Wee Herman, or the subject of the film itself, Danny Elfman hit a particularly fertile vein when he scored Pee-Wee's Big Adventure. In a style that is at once jaunty and mischieviously impish, with broad echoes of Kurt Weill's sardonic tones to round it off, the music is a brilliant display of Elfman's creativity and his inventive, always surprising way with melodic lines and odd instrumentations. It matters little that the film is also a showcase for Pee-Wee's fantasies about his bicycle, stolen by a heavy who gets his comeuppance at the right time. Both the music and the image melded into a whole that is descriptive and totally enjoyable. Without the image, the music is even more vibrant and mesmerizing.

Back to School is another inane little comedy, starring moon-faced Rodney Dangerfield as the father of a college-age kid who decides to go back to school and finish his studies, the attempt resulting in utter chaos. Once again, Elfman's bright inventions match the tone of the broad antics, in a more muscular style than in Pee-Wee's Big Adventure, but with equally satisfying results. The often manic, eccentric cues assembled in this album are completely exhilarating.

Peggy Sue Got Married 🦴🦴

1986, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Peggy Sue Got Married, Tri-Star Pictures, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: Paul R. Gurian; Engineer: Daniel Hersch.

DANNY ELFMAN

Composer Danny Elfman has scored over fifteen films, created numerous television themes, and until 1990 was writing songs and performing with the rock band Oingo Boingo. Elfman composed his first score in 1980 for his brother Richard's cult film Forbidden Zone. Actor Paul Reubens (a.k.a. Pee-wee Herman) saw the film and was interested in acquiring a non-traditional composer for his project Pee-wee's Big Adventure, which was released in 1985.This became Elfman's first full orchestral score.

Pee-wee's Big Adventure marked Elfman's first collaboration with director Tim Burton, with whom he has enjoyed a strong partnership. Their second film together was 1988's Beetlejuice, which is often cited as Elfman's best work. In 1989, Elfman and Burton collaborated on Batman, one of the most commercially successful movies of all time. The score earned the composer a Grammy nomination for best score and the prized statuette, for best instrumental, in 1990. The composer's next film with Burton, 1990's Edward Scissorhands, produced a score that deftly evoked Burton's fairy-tale imagery.

Besides his ventures with Burton, Elfman has composed for a wide range of directors and genres. Some of his other projects have been scoring the soundtracks for the 1988 box-office hit comedy Midnight Run and the 1990 film Dick Tracy. Elfman also composed the scores for two horror films, Clive Barker's Nightbreed and Sam Raimi's Darkman, which brought him back to the genre he loves the most. In addition to soundtracks, Elfman has composed several television themes for successful shows like Fox-TV's extremely popular animated "The Simpsons" and HBO's highly acclaimed "Tales from the Crypt." And it's been reported that the prolific Elfman is branching out again, this time into screenwriting and directing.

Selections: 1 Peggy Sue's Homecoming (3:28); 2 Charlie's Unplayed Guitar (2:24); 3 Did We Break Up? (2:39); 4 Charlie, I Had The Strangest Experience (5:48); 5 Peggy Sue Got Married (B. Holly)(1:50) Buddy Holly; 6 I Wonder Why (R. Weeks/A. Anderson)(2:22) Dion & The Belmonts; 7 He Don't Love You (C. Mayfield/C. Carter/J. Butler)(3:12) Nicolas Cage, Pride & Joy; 8 Teenager In Love (D. Pomus/M. Shuman)(2:37) Dion & The Belmonts; 9 You Belong To Me (C. Price/P.W. King/R. Stewart)(2:36) The Marshall Crenshaw Band.

Review: An unfortunately very short 26:56 minute album, that adds insult to injury by presenting four instrumental cues clocking in at a scant 14 minutes, Peggy Sue Got Married found composer John Barry in one of his expansive moods, and writing music that was beautifully stated and melodically attractive. The film, a time warp fantasy that enables a forlorn housewife to return to her teenage years and attempt to correct the mistakes she had made at the time, is nothing more than a charming little tale, but Barry's cues find rich, evocative accents ("Charlie's Unplayed Guitar") to make it seem much more important than it is. The pop selections that complement the album also play a role in setting the tone of the period (the 1950s) which Peggy Sue revisits, but it is sad to realize that even they are being treated in a rather shabby way in this album.

The Pelican Brief

1993, Giant Records; from the movie The Pelican Brief, Warner Bros., 1993.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Don Davis, Tom Pasatieri; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Featured Musicians: Michael Fisher, Ralph Grierson, James Horner, Randy Kerber, Ian Underwood; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:33); 2 The Pelican Brief (3:50); 3 Researching The Brief (1:32); 4 Hotel Chase (4:00); 5 The Killing (3:16); 6 Bourbon Street (4:05); 7 Planting The Bomb (4:16); 8 Chasing Gray (3:15); 9 Darby's Emotions (3:37); 10 Darby's Theme (3:55); 11 Morgan's Final Testament (1:48); 12 Garage Chase (5:01); 13 Airport Goodbye (11:08).

Review: Opening with a truly haunting motif, James Horner's suspense score for this Julia Roberts-Denzel Washington thriller is perhaps the most satisfying music yet composed for a John Grisham big-screen potboiler. While Horner's dramatic underscore is fairly predictable, with big piano and orchestra crescendos comprising the tension in the music (along with a recurring percussion motif ripped off from John Williams's JFK), the most substantial and satisfying material comes from Horner's swelling romantic theme for Roberts' heroine, heard most clearly in an arrangement written expressly for the album. The composer finishes off the score with a lengthy, eloquent, horn-laden finale ("Airport Goodbye") that's in keeping with some of the more impassioned music to come from him in recent times (think Apollo 13 and Field of Dreams). The end result is a thriller score that's clearly a step above most generic genre efforts, with enough lyrical passages to bring listeners back for subsequent listenings.

The People Under the Stairs

1991, Bay Cities Records; from the movie The People Under the Stairs, Universal Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Graeme Revell, Don Peake; Music Editor: Dick Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Tim Simonec; Score Producers: Graeme Revell, Don Peake; Album Producer: Nick Redman; Engineer: Daniel Hersch.

Selections: 1 Suite Part One (G. Revell)(13:41); 2 Suite Part Two (G. Revell)(15:14); 3 The People Under The Stairs Suite (D. Peake)(25:05).

Review: Considering two composers worked on this score, the album is surprisingly bland. Don Peake (who composed the majority of the "Knight Rider" TV scores) received main credit while Graeme Revell (an early effort) received additional music credit at the film's end. Equal time is given to each composer, though their music has been massed together into overlong suites. Revell utilizes an orchestra and vainly attempts to create several unusual, though unremarkable, sound clusters. On the other hand, Peake tries to establish a darker tone through the use of synthesizers, but ultimately, the entire presentation has a less than musical feel. It's almost a collection of sound effects that spends so much time on attempting to create minimalistic motifs that it never truly defines itself. A pretty forgettable experience that leaves you feeling as if 50 minutes of your life has just disappeared.

Review: Never known for creating anything that could be confused with an "average" film score, Thomas Newman mixes his odd musical compositions this go around with a variety of bluegrass tunes (the 12-second "Eggsplat" fades into the more standard "Kentucky, 1952" for example). However, most of the album is taken up with a variety of songs to depict the passage of 35 years from the film's start to finish. These songs include the McCoys' "Hang on Sloopy," "I'm You're Boogy Man" by K.C. and the Sunshine Band, and there are even several excerpts from classical compositions by Antonin Dvorak. All of these are interpolated throughout the album, which does well to capture the manic air of Flynt's life. If you find Newman's avant-garde style of film scoring more palatable in small doses (many of the cues are extremely short, too), then this presentation will work for you.

A Perfect World

1993, Reprise Records; from the movie A Perfect World, Warner Bros., 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Clint Eastwood, Lennie Niehaus; Orchestra conducted by Lennie Niehaus; Album Executive Producers: Steven Baker, Gregg Geller, Michael Ostin, Lenny Waronker; Engineer: Lee Herschberg.

Selections: 1 Ida Red (B. Wills)(2:52) Bob Wills And His Texas Playboys; 2 Blue Blue Day (D. Gibson)(1:54) Don Gibson; 3 Guess Things Happen That Way (J. Clement)(1:50) Johnny Cash; 4 Sea Of Heartbreak (H. David/P. Hampton) (2:32) Don Gibson; 5 Don't Worry (M. Robbins)(3:10) Marty Robbins; 6 Abilene (J. Loudemilk/L. Brown/B. Gibson)(2:12) George Hamilton IV; 7 Please Help Me, I'm Falling (In Love With You)(D. Robertson/H. Blair)(2:22) Hank Locklin; 8 Dark Moon (N. Miller)(2:31) Chris Isaak; 9 Catch A Falling Star (P. Vance/L. Pockriss)(2:30) Perry Como; 10 The Little White Cloud That Cried (J. Ray)(2:20) Chris Isaak; 11 Night Life (W. Nelson/W. Breeland/P. Buskirk)(2:27) Rusty Draper; 12 Big Fran's Baby (C. Eastwood)(2:28); 13 End Credits: Big Fran's Baby (C. Eastwood)/Butch's Theme/Phillip's Theme (L. Niehaus)(5:19).

Review: Country soundtracks can be tough. Too often they're watered down by producers afraid that the real thing won't win over the masses. But with favorites from Bob Wills & His Texas Playboys and Don Gibson, A Perfect World thumbs its nose at the idea of playing it safe. Johnny Cash, Marty Robbins and Hank Locklin are also represented here, while country-influenced rocker Chris Isaak provides a modern touch with his "Dark Moon."

Pet Sematary

1989, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Pet Sematary, Paramount Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Elliot Goldenthal; The Orchestra of St. Luke's, conducted by Steven Mercurio; Synthesizer Programming: Matthias Gohl; Featured Soloists: Elliot Goldenthal, Matthias Gohl (piano); Featured Vocalists: The Zarathustra Boys Chorus; Album Producer: Elliot Goldenthal; Engineer: Phil Bulla.

Selections: 1 The Pet Sematary (3:02) The Zarathustra Boys Chorus; 2 Dead Recollection (1:20); 3 Hope And Ordeal (1:23); 4 Adieu Gage (1:22); 5 Rachel Against Time (:51); 6 The Return Game (Jud And Gage) (3:43); 7 Moving Day Waltz (:31); 8 The Warning Tour (1:42); 9 Death Do Us Part (Rachel Hugs Louis) (:54); 10 Nine Lives Minus Seven (:15); 11 Up In Flames (Flashback) (1:39) The Zarathustra Boys Chorus; 12 Bitter Loss (Flashback) (1:51) The Zarathustra Boys Chorus; 13 Rachel's Dirty Secret (:23); 14 Return Game Attack (1:55); 15 Rachel's Blow Out (:22); 16 I Brought You Something Mommie (:35); 17 The Return Game II (Louis And Gage) (2:53); 18 Gentle Exhuming (1:03); 19 To The Micmac Grounds (2:46); 20 Chorale (:30); 21 Kite And Truck (1:22); 22 Immolation (1:38) The Zarathustra Boys Chorus.

Review: Elliot Goldenthal, who has since graduated to bigger and better projects, made quite an impression with his score for this horror movie based on a novel by Stephen King. While some cues ("Dead Recollection") were evidently written as underscoring for some of the screen action and fail to attract on their own merits, most of the score is cleverly constructed and is quite evocative. Several selections feature the Zarathustra Boys Chorus, a group that lives up to its appealling name and limns the themes with its otherwordly vocal contribution. Pointing the way to Goldenthal's future in the film music world, "Moving Day Waltz," "Rachel's Dirty Secret," "Kite and Truck," while somewhat too short, reveal the composer's talent for attractive, catchy melodies.

The Phantom

1996, Milan Records; from the movie The Phantom, Paramount Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: David Newman; Orchestrations: David Newman, Xandy Janko, Steven Scott Smalley, Randy Miller, Conrad Pope, Jeff Atmajian, Brad Dechter; Music Editors: Tom Villano, George A. Martin; The London Metropolitan Orchestra, conducted by David Newman; Featured Artists: Tony Hinnigan, Mike Taylor (Pan pipes); Album Producer: David Newman; Engineer: Robert Fernandez; Assistant Engineers: Toby Wood, Caroline Daniel, Don Mack.

Selections: 1 For Those Who Came In Late (1:21); 2 The Tomb (2:57); 3 The Phantom (5:40); 4 Anything's Possible (1:33); 5 The Rescue (4:33); 6 The Escape (5:45); 7 Must Be The Humidity (2:06); 8 Diana Must Leave/New York (1:00); 9 Ray Gets The Point (1:23); 10 The Museum (2:40); 11 Flying To The Island (6:09); 12 Quill Is Destroyed (2:28); 13 Escaping The Island (8:48).

Review: Composer David Newman weaves an effective blend of current scoring trends (marked by extensive, rapid-fire percussion and smooth romanticism) and the heyday of action serials with this nicely flowing work that will probably stand the test of time better than the middling movie for which it was written. Newman's five-note motif for "The Phantom" is ingeniously malleable, functioning both as an imposing fanfare, a crisp action motif and a warm melody for the benevolent qualities of Billy Zane's bemused hero. There's also a beautiful love theme for piano and orchestra, and both themes collude fluidly in the movingly ambivalent finale. The heroic material tends to saw away a bit too much, but overall this is an enjoyable, if not exactly indelible, adventure score.

Phenomenon

1996, Reprise Records; from the movie Phenomenon, Touchstone Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Thomas Newman; Song Producers: Babyface, Trevor Horn, Don Was, Taj Mahal, Peter Gabriel, David Lord, Gloria Jones, Pamela Sawyer, Justin Niebank, Tommy Couch, James Stroud, Wolf Stephenson, Audie Ashworth, J.J. Cale; Engineers: Brad Gilderman, Stephen Fitzmaurice, Rik Pekkonen, Robbie Robertson, Tom Winslow.

Selections: 1 Change The World (T. Sims)(3:57) Eric Clapton; 2 Dance With Life (The Brilliant Light)(B. Taupin/M. Page)(6:15) Bryan Ferry; 3 Crazy Love (V. Morrison)(4:31) Aaron Neville, Robbie Robertson; 4 Corinna (T. Mahal/J. Davis)(3:01) Taj Mahal; 5 Have A Little Faith In Me (J. Hinn)(4:25) Jewel; 6 I Have The Touch (P. Gabriel)(5:28) Peter Gabriel; 7 Piece Of Clay (P. Sawyer/G. Jones)(5:11) Marvin Gaye; 8 Para Donde Vas (J. Cabral/R. Hodges)(3:18) The Iguanas; 9 Misty Blue (B. Montgomery)(3:40) Dorothy Moore; 10 A Thing Going On (J.J. Cale)(2:38) J.J. Cale; 11 The Orchard (T. Newman)(2:33).

Review: "Change the World," the unlikely collaboration between rock icon Eric Clapton and r&b hitmaker Babyface, is a Grammy winning smash and a stick-to-your-ears tune even if you tried hard not to like it. The rest of the soundtrack is a bit more interesting, with Taj Mahal's "Corrina," Aaron Neville's gorgeous rendition of "Crazy Love" and refreshingly obscure selections from Bryan Ferry ("Dance With Life (The Brilliant Light)"), Peter Gabriel ("I Have the Touch") and Marvin Gaye ("Piece of Clay"). A sleeper that deserves thorough investigation.

Philadelphia

1993, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Philadelphia, Tri-Star Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Howard Shore; Orchestrations: Howard Shore; Music Editor: Suzana Peric; Orchestra conducted by Howard Shore; Album Producer: Howard Shore; Engineer: John Kurlander.

Selections: 1 Senior Associate Andrew Beckett (1:30); 2 Minor Catastrophe (3:14); 3 Birth (2:20); 4 Non temer amato bene (from "Idomeneo")(W.A. Mozart)(4:05) Lucia Popp; 5 I Have A Case (4:02); 6 The Missing Document (4:42); 7 The Essence Of Discrimination (4:58); 8 Going Home (3:30); 9 The Trial (3:27); 10 Ebben? Ne andro lontana (from "La Wally") (A. Catalani) (4:48) Maria Callas; 11 Trying To Survive (5:54); 12 La mamma morta (from "Andrea Chenier")(U. Giordano) (4:48) Maria

Callas; 13 An Excellent Lawyer (2:43); 14 Calculated Risks (2:31); 15 The Verdict (2:46); 16 I'm Ready (1:20).

Review: An extraordinary movie like Philadelphia needed a brilliant score, and Howard Shore rose to the challenge with great flair. His cues capture the intensity and emotion in the movie with thorough accuracy, enhancing the action, and at the same time setting aside enough flavor to provide attractive listening with this soundtrack album. Oftentimes understated and not overly dramatic, the music retains a great deal of expression, and proves extremely compelling. Operatic excerpts add a certain luster to the recording, though they are by no means essential to one's enjoyment of Shore's music.

The Philadelphia Experiment/Mother Lode

1991, Prometheus Records/Belgium; from the movies The Philadelphia Experiment, New World Pictures, 1984; and Mother Lode, Agamemnon Films, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Ken Wannberg; The Philadelphia Experiment: Orchestrations: Albert Woodbury; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Ken Wannberg; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson; Album Producer: Alan E. Smith.

Selections: THE PHILADELPHIA EXPERIMENT: 1 Main Theme (3:06); 2 The Experiment Begins/Time Slip (5:49); 3 The "Eldridge" Remains (2:04); 4 David Confronts His Past (2:04); 5 The Vortex Sucks/David's Escape (4:38); 6 A Tender Moment (1:29); 7 The Doctor Reflects (2:29); 8 The Chase (1:32); 9 Fugitives In Love (2:31); 10 Storming The Compound (2:00); 11 David's Father (2:18); 12 David's Decision/Fate Of The Vortex (6:53); 13 David's Choice/End Title (5:32);

MOTHER LODE: 14 Magee's Theme (2:20); 15 The Plane Crash (2:10); 16 Underwater Search (4:00); 17 The Flight (5:06); 18 The Mine (3:05); 19 Magee's Cabin/The Trap (2:36); 20 The Lovers Argue (1:43); 21 Goodmanson's Gold (1:09); 22 The Price Of Greed (6:14); 23 Magee's Lament (:58); 24 Finale and End Title (3:16).

Review: The Philadelphia Experiment has always been one of my favorite films, especially because of its score by Ken Wannberg. Two Navy sailors, participating in a World War II experiment to make ships radar invisible, are hurled into the future (1984) where the same scientists are now attempting to recreate the experiment, which will threaten the survival of the entire world. A modest budgeted film, Wannberg gave the story an ambience of epic scope, while keeping it all personal by focusing on the main character, David (Michael Pare), through a simple 2-note motif. This is accomplished by keeping the score mainly acoustical, only employing minimal electronic effects to represent the experiment, not a central element to the story, just its catalyst. Wannberg doesn't even overplay the romantic element. "Fugitives in Love" finds David, and his present day companion Allison, desperately longing for each other, but haunted by their uncertain future. That skepticism permeates the entire score, adding a tense desperation to the proceedings. The CD also features music from Mother Lode, a 1982 gold rush adventure starring Charlton Heston and Kim Basinger. Surprisingly, the best cue in that film, the wistfully romantic "The Flight," was cut from the final version! When I interviewed Ken Wannberg for Soundtrack! magazine several years ago, I was surprised to discover that he never wanted to actively pursue a career in film scoring. He has been extremely content juggling his work as Hollywood's preeminent music editor, occasionally taking a compositional assignment that interested him. How many other films could have benefited from his talent and instincts?

The Piano

1993, Virgin Records; from the movie The Piano, CIBY 2000, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Nyman; Orchestrations: Michael Nyman; Members of the Philharmonic Orchestra of Munich, conducted by Michael Nyman; Featured Musicians: John Harle, David Roach (soprano/alto sax), Andrew Findon (tenor/baritone sax, flute), Michael Nyman (piano); Album Producer: Michael Nyman; Engineers: Michael J. Dutton, Malcolm Luker.

Selections: 1 To The Edge Of The Earth (4:06); 2 Big My Secret (2:51); 3 A Wild And Distant Shore (5:50); 4 The Heart Asks Pleasure First (1:33); 5 Here To There (1:02); 6 The Promise (4:14); 7 A Bed Of Ferns (:46); 8 The Fling (1:28); 9 The Scent Of Love (4:16); 10 Deep Into The Forest (2:58); 11 The Mood That Passes Through You (1:13); 12 Lost And Found (2:24); 13 The Embrace (2:36); 14 Little Impulse (2:11); 15 The Sacrifice (2:46); 16 I Clipped Your Wing (4:34); 17 The Wounded (2:26); 18 All Imperfect Things (4:03); 19 Dreams Of A Journey (5:30).

Review: Michael Nyman rose to fame with his New Age-style score for the Jane Campion drama starring Holly Hunter, Sam Neill and Harvey Keitel. As an album, though, one can hear the deficiencies in Nyman's score, which basically shifts between delicate piano solos (think Yanni or John Tesh) and less assured, almost static orchestral writing, making you want to see the sumptuous visuals in Campion's movie to understand just how the score works in the film. Nyman's orchestral music, on the other hand, just doesn't offer enough substance or diversity to work on its own terms, though fervent admirers of the picture will be quick to point out how memorable some of the piano themes are in relation to much of today's typical film music. They may have a point, though that still doesn't mean that the album is an essential one to have in your library.

Andy Dursin

Picnic

1988, MCA Records; from the movie Picnic, Columbia Pictures, 1958.

Album Notes: Music: George Duning; The Columbia Pictures Orchestra, conducted by Morris Stoloff.

Selections: 1 Love Theme (2:34); 2 Hal's Theme (1:54); 3 The Owens Family (4:11); 4 Flo And Madge (4:25); 5 Hal's Boots (2:13); 6 Moonglow (W. Hudson/E. De Lange/I. Mills) And Love Theme (G. Duning)(3:45); 7 It's A Blue World (B. Wright/C. Forrest)/Torn Shirt, part 1 (4:58); 8 Torn Shirt, part 2/Hal's Turmoil (6:32); 9 Rosemary Pleads/Rosemary Alone (2:10); 10 Culmination/Hal's Escape (5:52); 11 That Owens Girl/Millie (1:31); 12 You Love Me/Madge Decides (5:40).

Review: Duning's score is essentially a series of cues that are serviceable and work particularly well within the dramatic context of the film. As a listening experience, however, the sometimes atonal music (faithful to the adventurous nature of film music in the mid- to late-1950s), doesn't always make a favorable impression, and is not always easy to listen to. The soundtrack, however, features an extraordinary classic in "Moonglow and Love Theme," which illustrates one of the crucial scenes in the film and which remains the highlight of this album.

Picture Bride

1995, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Picture Bride, Miramax Films, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Adler; Orchestrations: Mark Adler; Orchestra conducted by Mark Adler; Music Editor: Joanie Diener; Featured Musicians: Jim Walker (bamboo flutes), Peter Maunu (guitars); Album Producer: Mark Adler; Engineers: Dennis Sands; Assistant Engineer: Tom Hardisty.

Selections: 1 Haiku (1:24); 2 Picture Bride (1:51); 3 Carriage Ride (1:18); 4 A New Home (1:20); 5 Field Work (1:58); 6 The Bath (1:39); 7 Older Than My Father (:43); 8 Kana And Riyo (2:15); 9 Riyo's Resolve (1:59); 10 Miss Peiper (2:05); 11 Kana And The Wind (:47); 12 Riyo's Disappointment (:49); 13 Yayoi's Farewell (1:30) Tamlyn Tomita; 14 Matsuji's Valentino (3:42); 15 The Fire (4:22); 16 Banana Leaves (:54); 17 Cane Fields (1:15); 18 Riyo Runs (1:39); 19 Riyo's Vision And Return (2:46); 20 Riyo And Matsuji (1:42); 21 Ceremony (2:05); 22 Only The Wind (:37).

Review: The story of a 16-year-old Japanese girl, Riyo, who leaves behind a troubled past and ventures to Hawaii as a picture bride in 1918, Picture Bride elicited a strikingly beautiful score from Mark Adler, who succeeded in conveying the hardships, sorrow and unexpected joys in the lives of Japanese laborers caught in a daily struggle for survival, respect and their eventual independence. With the bamboo flutes creating haunting images that often transcend the ethnicity in the action, Adler wrote a score that teems with gorgeous melodies, as precious and lovely as a porcelain doll, soothing and striking in their calm beauty. The unassuming "Miss Peiper" is a case in point, but almost everyone of the 22 selections in this CD is an illuminating joy, one's enduring pleasure throughout being only marred by the briefness of some of the tracks.

Pink Cadillac

1988, Warner Bros.; from the movie Pink Cadillac, Warner Bros., 1988.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Steve Gibson, Hank Williams, Barry Beckett, Jim Ed Norman, Robby Adcock, Kyle Lehning, Southern Pacific, Josh Leo, Larry Michael, Billy Hill, Bryan Adams, Scott Ferguson, Robben Ford; Album Producer: Jim Ed Norman; Engineer: Denny Purcell.

Selections: 1 Never Givin' Up On Love (M. Smotherman)(3:48) Michael Martin Murphy; 2 There's A Tear In My Beer (H. Williams)(2:48) Hank Williams Jr., Hank Williams Sr.; 3 If It Wasn't For The Heartache (C. Waters/K. Brooks)(2:38) Jill Hollier; 4 Card Carryin' Fool (B. Hill/T. Bays) (2:24) Randy Travis; 5 Any Way The Wind Blows (J. McFee/A. Pessis)(3:36) Southern Pacific; 6 Reno Bound (J. McFee/A. Pessis)(3:07) Southern Pacific; 7 Beneath The Texas Moon (J.C. Crowley/J.W. Routh)(3:45) J.C. Crowley; 8 Rollin' Dice (D. Robbins/J. Scott Sherrill/B. DiPiero)(3:24) Billy Hill; 9 Drive All Night (B. Adams)(3:00) Dion; 10 Born Under A Bad Sign (B.T. Jones/W. Bell)(3:41) Robben Ford.

Review: A solid country-flavored soundtrack compilation, for a film starring Clint Eastwood as a bounty hunter, chasing bill dodgers in his pink Cadillac, with Bernadette Peters, wife of one of his preys, as his travelling companion. Some excellent frontliners are on board, including Michael Martin Murphey, Randy Travis, J.C. Crowley, Billy Hill, and Dion, whose rockin' "Drive All Night" is a joy. Hank Williams, Jr. even duets with his father on "There's a Tear in My Beer," in another display of technical fancy.

The Pink Panther

1989, RCA Records; from the film The Pink Panther, United Artists, 1963.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestra conducted by Henry Mancini; Album Producer: Joe Reisman; Engineer: Jim Malloy; CD Producer: Chick Crumpacker; Engineer: Dick Baxter.

Selections: 1 The Pink Panther Theme (2:37); 2 It Had Better Be Tonight (1:46); 3 Royal Blue (3:11); 4 Champagne And Quail (2:45); 5 The Village Inn (2:36); 6 The Tiber Twist (2:50); 7 It Had Better Be Tonight (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(1:57); 8 Cortina (1:55); 9 The Lonely Princess (2:28); 10 Something For Sellers (2:49); 11 Piano And Strings (2:38); 12 Shades Of Sennett (1:26).

Review: Even if he only had written one score, for this romp in which, for the first time, bumbling Inspector Jacques Clouseau of the French Surete gained full-fledged status as a film celebrity, Henry Mancini would rightfully belong in the pantheon of great screen composers. Though he was frequently dismissed as too lightweight, compared to some of his most prestigious peers, Mancini was a master at defining the parameters of comedy music and exploiting the themes for all their delicious worth. Brightly introduced by the celebrated theme, the score evidences all the positive assets usually found in Mancini's scores – tunes with a catchy lilt, themes with a pop sensitivity that immediately set a scene or situation, memorable musical moments that invite repeated listening and never overstay their welcome. All of these and more can be found here in a score that brims with delightful little quirks, amusing tidbits that prove charming, and at least one other great pop tune in "It Had Better Be Tonight."

Pirates

1986, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Pirates, Cannon Films, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Philippe Sarde; The Orchestre de Paris, conducted by Bill Byers; Album Producers: Philippe Sarde, Bill Byers; Engineer: William Flageollet.

Selections: 1 Pirates! (2:49); 2 Dead Man's Nag (3:34); 3 Pirates Aboard! (3:26); 4 Pirates Sneak Into Maracaibo (1:20); 5 Captain Red – Galleon Master (3:51); 6 Death Of A Captain (2:25); 7 Captain Red Gains The Throne While The Frog Loses Dolores (6:06); 8 Two Hungry Pirates, Adrift (3:16); 9 Spanish Recapture The Neptune (2:19); 10 Captain Red's Jailbreak (2:34); 11 Red, The Frog, And The Throne/Boomako And The Snake (2:19); 12 Mutiny (3:43); 13 Pirates Pursue The Neptune (2:07); 14 Captain Red, The Frog, And The Shark (1:08); 15 Dolores (Love Theme)(6:30); 16 Setting Sail For New Adventures (2:36); 17 Don Alfonso Escapes (4:30); 18 Rescued-Yet-Captured (4:47).

Review: This opulent score is actually much better than the film directed by Roman Polanski, which could not be saved by all of Walter Matthau's snarling and posturing as a dangerous high sea shark in the days when piracy was at its height. Sarde's score, magnificently played by the venerable Orchestre de Paris, cannot compare, of course, with Korngold's The Sea Hawk, probably the best of its kind, but on its own terms, it exudes an appeal in which romance and bravura happily mix to create a most colorful sonic imagery.

Planes, Trains and Automobiles

1987, MCA Records; from the movie Planes, Trains and Automobiles, Paramount Pictures, 1987.

Selections: 1 I Can Take Anything (Love Theme)(3:46) E.T.A., Steve Martin, John Candy; 2 Ba-Na-Na-Bam-Boo (2:58) Westworld; 3 I'll Show You Something Special (3:28) Balaam & The Angel; 4 Modigliani (Lost In Your Eyes)(3:53) Book Of Love; 5 Power To Believe (5:13) The Dream Academy; 6 Six Days On The Road (3:06) Steve Earle & The Dukes; 7 Gonna Move (3:32) Dave Edmunds; 8 Back In Baby's Arms (2:02) Emmylou Harris; 9 Red River Rock (3:26) Silicon Teens; 10 Wheels (3:08) Stars Of Heaven.

Review: Reflecting the contrasting aspects of this film, about a businessman trying to go home for the Thanksgiving holidays, and forced to travel across the country with a salesman who has wrecked his rental car and destroyed his bags, this soundtrack album is divided into two parts, a "town" compilation and a "country" one. In the first, rockers Westworld and Balaam and the Angel try to keep up with Book of Love and The Dream Academy, whose contributions are engaging. On the country side, there is no mistaking the immediate appeal of Dave Edmunds and Emmylou Harris, though Silicon Teens and Stars of Heaven trail behind. "I Can Take Anything," the so-called "Love Theme" from the film, features Steve Martin and John Candy, who star in it.

Planet of the Apes

1992, Intrada Records; from the movie Planet of the Apes, 20th Century-Fox, 1968.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Vinnie Vernon.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:13); 2 The Revelation (1:34); 3 The Clothes Snatchers (2:38); 4 The Hunt (5:10); 5 New Identity (2:04); 6 The Forbidden Zone (3:06); 7 The Search (4:56); 8 The Cave (1:19); 9 A Bid For Freedom (1:21); 10 A New Mate (1:05); 11 No Escape (5:17).

Review: Goldsmith's classic landmark science fiction score is a masterpiece of avant garde modernism that still hasn't been properly presented on CD, although this Intrada release offers improved sound and remedies at least one inexcusable omission of the original Project 3 album by adding the stupendous action cue "The Hunt," which to this day probably stands as the finest marriage of film imagery and music the composer ever produced. It's four minutes of relentless, Stravinskyesque orchestral assault dominated by the unforgettable use of a ram's horn to herald the film's first shot of intelligent apes on horseback. The rest of the score is primarily atmospheric, creating a strange alien world with echoed percussion effects, the unearthly moan of a bass slide whistle and a tide-like, metallic rush of air. The album's sequencing is non-chronological, climaxing with the brilliant staccato piano playing of "No Escape." This is as far from current film scoring sensibilities as you're likely to get, but no self-respecting fan of the medium should be without it.

The Player

1992, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Player, New Line Cinema, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Thomas Newman; Orchestrations: Thomas Pasatieri; Music Editor: Bill Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Thomas Newman; Featured Musicians: Thomas Newman (piano, electronics), Rick Cox (also sax, prepared guitar), George Budd (sample electronics), Jeff Elmassian (winds), Michael Fisher (percussion, Harvey Mason (drums), Ralph Grierson (piano, electronics), Buell Neidlinger (upright bass); Album Producers: Thomas Newman, John Vigran, Bill Bernstein; Engineer: John Vigran.

Selections: 1 Funeral Shark (1:02); 2 St. James (1:02); 3 Six Inches Of Dirty Water (1:41); 4 Main Title (1:45); 5 Rose's Cafe (A. Nicholls) (1:39) Akio Ushikubo; 6 Icy Theme (2:30); 7 That's All He Wrote (2:48); 8 Schechter Bros. (1:23); 9 Sex (3:16); 10 Desert Drive (1:15); 11 Tema para Jobim (G. Mulligan/J. Nascimento) (1:23) Joyce and Milton Nascimento; 12 The Graduate Pt. 2 (2:20); 13 Lineup (1:16); 14 Good Dog's Water (2:39); 15 Detective DeLongpre (1:11); 16 Silent Night (trad.) (:28) Jack Lemmon; 17 Opening 3 (1:05); 18 Griffin's Plan/ Let's Begin Again (R. Altman/R. Ecton) (:51) Brian Tochi; 19 The Player (3:06).

Review: It's rare today that a composer gets a chance to define the sound of a genre. Thomas Newman did it on Robert Altman's The Player, musically codifying the quirky-Hollywood-insider-murder-mystery (note the similarities with the later Get Shorty, scored by John Lurie). Tim Robbins stars as a cold-hearted, smug studio executive stalked by a disgruntled writer. He kills the wrong writer, then falls for the murdered wrong writer's mysterious artist girlfriend (Greta Scacchi), until finally Altman brings it together in a sarcastic, anti-twist ending. Newman's score features modal piano loops and unusually bright themes set on a background of minimalist repetition and simplicity—as well as countless, strange samples, from chainsaws to bass harmonics to improvised saxophones.

On album the score pushes its fragmented, strange-upon-noir approach even further by seguing in and out of several disparate cocktail-lounge source cues, to give a sense of the different, superficial worlds within the picture. It also includes one of the most original approaches to a sex scene—all percussion. Newman's music is as distinct as a rich cup of coffee, set in a form interwoven with the film (see it!)—a minor masterpiece of irony.

Poetic Justice

1993, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Poetic Justice, Columbia Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Dallas Austin, Tim & Bob, Warren G., Babyface, L.A. Reid, Daryl Simmons, Tim Thomas & Ted Bishop, Raphael Wiggins & Derek Allen, Pete Phillips, Darryl Swann, Naughty By Nature, Kevin Dean, Dr. Dre, 2Pac Shakur & Warren Griffin III, Sly Dunbar & Robbie Shakespeare, Nice & Smooth, Henry Crosby, Stanley Clarke; Soundtrack Executive Producer: John Singleton; Engineer: Carlton Batts.

Selections: 1 Get It Up (Prince)(4:26) TLC; 2 Indo Smoke (R. Trawick/W. Griffin III)(5:24) Mista Grimm; 3 Well Alright (Babyface)(4:00) Babyface; 4 Camm Me A Mack (T. Thomas/T. Bishop/U. LaSean Williams/C. Walker)(5:04) Cultural Revolution; 8 Poor Mann's Poetry (A. Chriss/V. Brown/K. Gist)(3:00) Naughty By Nature; 9 I've Been Waiting (T. Robinson/T. Geter/K. Dean)(4:21) Terri & Monica; 10 Niggas Don't Give A Fuck (C. Broadus/D. Arnaud/R. Brown)(4:41) Dogg Pound; 11 Definition Of A Thug Nigga (T. Shakur/W. Griffin III)(4:11) 2Pac; 12 I Wanna Be Your Man (J. Tayler/E. Bonner/S. Dunbar/R. Shakespeare/L. Willis)(3:55) Chaka Demus, Pliers; 13 Cash In My Hands (D. Barnes/G. Mays)(3:53) Nice & Smooth; 14 Never Dreamed You'd Leave In Summer (S. Wonder/S. Wright)(2:55) Stevie Wonder; 15 Justice's Groove (S. Clarke)(4:35) Stanley Clarke.

Review: There is something for everyone in this compilation album, it seems, some good, and some bad. Dealing with the negatives first, only those with a strong tolerance for rap and its dry expressions will enjoy the selections by Pete Rock & C.L. Smooth, Nice & Smooth, Dogg Pound, and 2Pac, among others, whose contributions here echo the intense urban street sounds in this film set in South Central, which involves a young black woman (Janet Jackson), growing up with nothing but disappointments, but finding solace in the poetry she writes, and the hardworking young man (Tupac Shakur), a struggling musician, who enters her life. On the positive side, however, are "listenable" songs by Stevie Wonder, Babyface, Tony! Toni! Tone!, and Terri & Monica, which make a different kind of statement, and prove much more endearing. One track from Stanley Clarke's instrumental score, makes one wish more of his music had been included.

Point of No Return

1993, Milan Records; from the movie Point of No Return, Warner Bros., 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer, Nick Glennie-Smith; Arrangements: Hans Zimmer; Featured Musician: Bob Daspit (guitar); Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Jay Rifkin; Engineer: Jay Rifkin.

Selections: 1 Hate (7:26); 2 Happy Birthday, Maggie (5:36); 3 Wedding Bells (8:06); 4 Hells Kitchen (5:08); 5 Here Comes The Sun (G. Harrison)(3:35) Nina Simone; 6 I Want A Little Sugar In My Bowl (N. Simone)(2:31) Nina Simone; 7 Feeling Good (L. Bricusse/A. Newley)(2:53) Nina Simone; 8 Wild Is The Wind (D. Tiomkin/N. Washington)(6:57) Nina Simone; 9 Black Is The Color Of My True Love's Hair (trad.)(3:26) Nina Simone.

Review: An almost interminable bombardment of overdone musical tracks composed by Hans Zimmer, Point of No Return is one of those way over-the-top scores that hits you over the head with its melodramatic indulgences. Here, Zimmer offers us his usual bag of tricks – gigantic-sounding synths, blaring orchestra, sampled electronic sounds – and it's simply too much to take, being obnoxious, excessive, and grating all at the same time. So much so, in fact, that Zimmer's music tends to overwhelm the action in John Badham's tedious remake of La Femme Nikita, with Bridget Fonda in the lead role. Milan's album also includes a number of Nina Simone songs, prominently featured in the movie and a lot easier to take than any second of Zimmer's score.

Poltergeist

Poltergeist

1997, Rhino Records; from the movie Poltergeist, M-G-M, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; CD Producer: Nick Redman; Engineer: Dan Hersch.

Selections: 1 The Star Spangled Banner (F. Scott Key) (1:30); 2 The Calling/ The Neighborhood (Main Title) (4:07); 3 The Tree (outtake) (2:26); 4 The Clown/ They're Here/Broken Glass (outtake)/The Hole (outtake)/TV People (5:12); 5 Twisted Abduction (6:56); 6 Contacting The Other Side (5:10); 7 The Light (2:05); 8 Night Visitor/No Complaints (9:07); 9 It Knows What Scares You (7:37); 10 Rebirth (8:23); 11 Night Of The Beast (3:51); 12 Escape From Suburbia (7:10); 13 Carol Anne's Theme (End Title) (4:19).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's superlative ghost story music is captured in its entirety in this beautifully-produced CD which features the complete score sequenced in chronological order, from the opening source music of "The Star-Spangled Banner" to the nightmarish orchestral violence of the "Escape from Suburbia" finale. The original LP featured only the highlights of the score, but this release put together by film music archeologist Nick Redman restores some of Goldsmith's most fascinating compositions, including the malevolent woodwind motif for a frightening toy clown and the disturbing, rumbling underscoring that musically characterizes the unseen concepts of "The Other Side" and "The Beast," which Goldsmith almost single-handedly brings to life in the film. The blend of rhapsodic impressionism, elaborate dissonance, and spine-tingling beauty makes this one of Goldsmith's most varied and spectacular works, a marvel of complexity and effectiveness.

Poltergeist 2

1993, Intrada Records; from the movie Poltergeist 2: The Other Side, M-G-M, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith.

Selections: 1 The Power (7:48); 2 The Gift (1:58); 3 Where Are You? (2:10); 4 Late Call (3:28); 5 They're Back (3:39); 6 The Butterflies (:51); 7 Dental Problems (2:19); 8 The Plan (3:17); 9 The Smoke (4:45); 10 The Worm/Vomit Creature (8:07); 11 Back To Cuesta Verde (3:16); 12 Reaching Out (8:31); 13 Carol Anne's Theme (3:05).

Review: Goldsmith's follow-up to his Oscar-nominated score, Poltergeist 2 can't measure up to the original, although the composer's approach is laudably innovative, discarding all but a few motifs and themes from his original score and composing an entirely new work that plays off the film's opposing forces of Native American mysticism (illustrated in an unusual title theme based on an electronic melody representing a Native American Shaman and a Coplandesque horn motif for the man's supernatural disciplines) and mis-applied Christian values (depicted by a hauntingly distorted hymnal tune). Where the original score is almost completely acoustic, Poltergeist 2 revels in its sizzling electronic effects which sometimes threaten to overwhelm the orchestra. There are also abundant choral effects, from the moaning cries of the damned that accompany the twisted hymn to the guttural, devilish chants that greet the apparitions that return to torment the child Carol Anne.

Portrait of a Lady

1996, London Records; from the movie Portrait of a Lady, Propaganda Films, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Wojciech Kilar; Orchestrations: Wojciech Kilar; Orchestra conducted by Stepan Konicek, Nic Raine; Featured Soloists: Jean-Yves Thibaudet (piano), The Brindisi Quartet; Album Producer: Mike Woolcock, Brian Lock; Engineers: John Timperley, Jonathan Stokes, Graham Meek; Assistant Engineers: Martin Astle, Michael Hradisky, Jan Holzner.

Selections: 1 Prologue: My Life Before Me (4:08); 2 The Portrait Of A Lady (5:49); 3 Flowers Of Firenze (4:00); 4 Twilight Cellos (3:05); 5 A Certain Light (6:48); 6 Cypresses (2:06); 7 Impromptu in G Flat (F. Schubert)(6:47) Jean-Yves Thibaudet; 8 Impromptu in A Flat (F. Schubert) (7:05)Jean-Yves Thibaudet; 9 String Quartet in D minor "Death And The Maiden" (F. Schubert)(8:22) Brindisi Quartet; 10 Epilogue: The Portait Of A Lady (5:12); 11 Phantasms Of Love (4:00); 12 The Kiss (2:05); 13 Love Remains (3:06); 14 End Credits (5:05).

Review: This incredibly beautiful score, quietly mesmerizing and strikingly evocative, paints a vivid picture that combines colorful musical strokes with concentrated artistry. The score, written for Jane Campion's much-anticipated follow-up to her Academy Award-winning The Piano, summons the atmosphere that permeates the film, a rousing period melodrama, based on Henry James' 1881 novel set in England and Italy, about a headstrong young American woman who challenges the confines of her would-be sheltered destiny. Echoing the moods in the film, in which moments of darkness and light, wisdom and innocence are deftly contrasted, Wojciech Kilar's music is laid out in specific romantic terms that are expressive and extremely attractive. Two selections by Franz Schubert add the right period touch to the music, even though Kilar's score is strong enough to evoke the late 1800s without them.

The Postman/Il Postino

1994, Hollywood Records; from the movie The Postman (Il postino), Miramax Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Luis Bacalov; Orchestrations: Luis Bacalov; Orchestra Sinfonietta di Roma, conducted by Luis Bacalov; Featured Musicians: Luis Bacalov (piano), Hector Ulises Passarella (bandoneon), Riccardo Pellegrino (violin, mandolin); Poems: Pablo Neruda; Album Producer: Jeffrey Kimball; Engineer: Joseph Magee.

Selections: POETRY & MUSIC SUITE: 1 Theme (1:53); 2 Morning (Love Sonnet XXVII)(:53) Sting; 3 Poetry (1:40) Miranda Richardson; 4 Leaning Into The Afternoons (1:36) Wesley Snipes; 5 Poor Fellows (1:29) Julia Roberts; 6 Ode To The Sea (1:36) Ralph Fiennes; 7 Fable Of The Mermaid And The Drunk (2:09) Ethan Hawke; 8 Ode To A Beautiful Nude (2:30) Rufus Sewell; 9 I Like For You To Be Still (1:33) Glenn Close; 10 Walking Around (3:08) Samuel L. Jackson; 11 Tonight I Can Write (2:45) Andy Garcia; 12 Adonic Angela (1:21) Willem Dafoe; 13 If You Forget Me (2:01) Madonna; 14 Integrations (1:33) Vincent Perez; 15 And Now You're Mine (Love Sonnet LXXXI)(3:05) Andy Garcia, Julia Roberts;

MUSIC: 16 The Postman (Titles) (2:40); 17 Bicycle (2:25); 18 Madreselva (3:13) Carlos Gardel; 19 The Postman Lullaby (:49); 20 Beatrice (4:04); 21 Metaphors (2:02); 22 Loved By Women (3:27); 23 The Postman (Trio version)(2:33); 24 Sounds Of The Island (2:28); 25 The Postman's Dreams (3:19); 26 Pablito (:41); 27 Milonga Del Poeta (1:13); 28 Madreselva (instrumental)(2:17); 29 The Postman Poet (3:20); 30 The Postman (harpsichord and string version)(:44); 31 The Postman (guitar and bandoneon version)(3:09).

Review: Evidencing a lyrical sensitivity seldom found in contemporary scores, Luis Bacalov's Academy Award-winning score for Il postino is agreeably infectious and flavorful, and draws much of its appeal from the inclusion of some unusual, yet typically expected instruments like the bandoneon and mandolins. The music displays a definite Mediterranean attitude that matches the moods in this memorable little tale about a postman on an isolated island who finds new reasons to like his job when he befriends the exiled poet Pablo Neruda, who introduces him to the wonderfully imaginative world of poesy. The various cues composed by Bacalov subtly underline the moods and situations in the film, with catchy motifs that are endearing and attractively drawn. Dressing up the music and giving it a slightly different spin, an occasional jazzy tune ("Loved by Women") and a pop recording ("Madreselva," performed by the great tango performer Carlos Gardel) provide a pleasant change of pace. The main theme, reprised on several occasions in different musical formats, proves noticeably catchy.

Because of its success, and Oscar win no doubt, the American release of this soundtrack also features several poems by Neruda, read by a wide—and odd—assortment of well-known performers, including Sting, Wesley Snipes, Julia Roberts, Ralph Fiennes, Glenn Close, Willem Dafoe and Madonna. The first time around, it is interesting to hear these texts, but unless one feels otherwise inclined, repeated playing tends to become somewhat tiresome. The Italian soundtrack album, on the CAM label, only contains the score.

Powder

1995, Hollywood Records; from the movie Powder, Hollywood Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Theme From Powder (4:32); 2 Spoon Trick And The Trestle (2:17); 3 Nightmare In The Forest (5:10); 4 First Kiss (2:25); 5 Steven And The Snow (8:26); 6 Freakshow (4:42); 7 Wanna See A Trick? (4:01); 8 Everywhere (3:54).

Review: The Disney Studio had a firestorm of controversy on its hands when Powder writer-director Victor Salva's past history of child molestation filtered into the news media, resulting in an outcry from enraged protesters about how the company could let such an individual make a movie. Well, he did, and regardless of his personal background, Powder is an unwatchable mess, a syrupy concoction about individuality and "being true to yourself" that makes for unbearable, heavy-handed viewing—a fact further accentuated by a thoroughly pedestrian, equally by-the-numbers score from Jerry Goldsmith that's all too indicative of the composer's lifeless film scores of the '90s. The music is routine, slow, and offers no surprises, with a main title theme meant to illicit emotion that instead reminds you of other, more memorable works written by both other composers and Goldsmith himself, who has done a far better job elsewhere.

Predator 2

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Predator 2, 20th Century-Fox, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Orchestrations: James B. Campbell; Music Editor: Kenneth Karman; The Skywalker Symphony Orchestra conducted by Alan Silvestri; Album Producer: Alan Silvestri; Engineer: Dennis Sands; Assistant Engineers: M.T. Silvia, Tony Eckert.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:42); 2 First Carnage (2:35); 3 Tunnel Chase (5:10); 4 Truly Dead (4:58); 5 Danny Gets It (3:19); 6 Rest In Pieces (1:33); 7 El Scorpio (2:41); 8 This Is History (6:26); 9 Swinging Rude Boys (2:38); 10 Dem Bones (4:27); 11 End Title (8:45).

Review: From the jungles of South America to the jungles of 21st century East L.A., Alan Silvestri powers up the themes from his earlier score and energizes them with his interpretation of a futuristic urban beat. The roller coaster nature of Silvestri's orchestrations are done justice here by the wide sonic range of digital technology. Besides the mesmerizing percussion, he also incorporates a variety of unusual sounds, including voices in "Rest in Pieces." Most notable is the nine-minute "End Title," an exhilarating update of the original main title that kicks into high gear just three minutes in and doesn't let up.

Review: Steve Prefontaine's runs to glory during the late '60s and early '70s provide the parameters for this soundtrack, which features a handful of classic tracks from the era. Some of it is stuff you don't readily hear on soundtracks, too—Jimi Hendrix' "Crosstown Traffic," for instance, or Rufus' "Once You Get Started" and Lynyrd Skynyrd's "Tuesday's Gone." Of particular note is "If 60's Were 90's" by Beautiful People, a British instrumental group that builds its intriguing compositions around samples of Hendrix music.

Presumed Innocent

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Presumed Innocent, Warner Bros., 1990.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Music Editor: Ken Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Presumed Innocent (4:10); 2 Remembering Carolyn (2:17); 3 Family Life (1:30); 4 Love Scene (4:06); 5 The B File (3:28); 6 The Bedroom Scene (4:20); 7 Carolyn's Office (3:24); 8 "Leon Talks" (1:59); 9 Rusty Accused (2:07); 10 Case Dismissed (1:53); 11 The Boat Scene (2:15); 12 The Basement Scene (2:55); 13 Barbara's Confession (5:17); 14 End Credits (4:03).

Review: In the world of suspense-genre scores, Presumed Innocent is competent and certainly above-average. In terms of its place in the John Williams canon of movie music, however, it ranks fairly low on the ladder. For this Alan J.Pakula adaptation of Scott Turow's bestselling novel, Williams composed a haunting theme for piano and orchestra, with unsettiling strings building to a memorable crescendo. The theme is memorable in itself, but the rest of the score involves a lot of somber, low-key underscore cues that more or less work strictly in accordance with the action on-screen. While that doesn't mean that Williams didn't do his job admirably here, it does mean that, unlike a lot of the composer's works, there isn't much here to grab onto by itself, leaving the album recommended mostly for Williams aficionados, who will most likely be disappointed by the rather ordinary tone of much of the music.

Pret-A-Porter

1994, Columbia Records; from the movie Pret-A-Porter, Miramax Films, 1994.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Salaam Remi, Sly Dunbar, Cheryl James, M People, Jimmy Jam & Terry Lewis, Don Was & The Glimmer Twins, T Bone Burnett, Stephen Street, Eric Mouquet & Michel Sanchez, The Brand New Heavies, Dave Morales, T.T.D., Flood, Brian Eno & The Edge; Album Music Superviror: Allan Nicholls.

Selections: 1 Here Comes The Hotstepper (Heartical Mix)(I. Kamoze/S. Gibbs/ J. Kenner/A. Domino/A. Konley/K. Nix)(4:08) Ini Kamoze; 2 My Girl Josephine (A. D'Arby)(3:42) Terence Trent D'Arby; 14 Lemon (Perfecto mix)(Bono/U2)(8:56) U2.

Review: This set does a nice job of catching the aural end of the fashion show industry well—high energy with big, thumping and phat bass lines to drive the models down the runway. Ina Kamoze's "Here Comes the Hotstepper" provides a nice kick-off to a propulsive batch of songs, highlighted by Terence

Trent D'Arby's "Supermodel Sandwich," a "perfecto mix" of U2's "Lemon," Sam Phillips' cheeky remake of "These Boots are Made for Walkin'" and M People's "Natural Thing." In this context, however, rockers such as the Rolling Stones ("Jump on Top of Me") and the Cranberries ("Pretty") seem to be included only for name value.

Review: So '80s—even if it was released at the turn of the decade. Selling more than three million copies, this is a powerhouse pop singles vehicle, shooting Roxette's "It Must Have Been Love," Go West's "King of Wishful Thinking" and the Roy Orbison title track into the upper reaches of the charts. But with the exception of the latter, already a classic by the time the film came out, when was the last time you heard these songs on the radio. And shame on David Bowie for his absolutely unnecessary "Fame 90."

Review: Once in a while you hear a film score that just isn't crying out to be a soundtrack album. Primal Fear, which has a capable but unmemorable score by James Newton Howard, is clearly one of those cases. Thriller scores are typically a tough genre for composers, since the music is usually restrained, building up mystery and suspense to climaxes that will then (generally) contain a great deal of music. But even then, the story is supposed to be the star, not the composer or sound editor. In Primal Fear, Howard tries his best by underscoring the picture in one of three manners—quiet, brooding orchestral accompaniment, more powerful dramatic cues, and pulsating, synth-accompanied tracks modeled after the composer's own score for The Fugitive. That said, however, Howard is more or less restricted by the confines of the genre here, and is never able to open up any new avenues in his music for listeners to take hold of. The music works perfectly in the film, but it just isn't fit for soundtrack album consumption.

Prince of Darkness

1987, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Prince of Darkness, Universal Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: John Carpenter; Album Producer: Alan Howarth.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles (4:14); 2 Team Assembly (4:33); 3 Darkness Begins (2:54); 4 A Message From The Future (5:30); 5 Hell Breaks Loose (4:53); 6 Mirror Image (6:46); 7 The Devil Awakens (8:57); 8 Through The Mirror (5:50).

Review: With *Prince of Darkness,*a horror film which attempted to prove that the Evil One is nothing more than a green, slimy slug, John Carpenter struck a particularly malevolent note. Though hardly the terrifying picture he might have envisioned, it is made more frightening by the director's unique electronic concoction, an amalgam of ominous, low sounds that presaged the horror soon to materialize itself. With a chorus of disembodied voices adding an otherwordly touch, the score did enhance the moods on the screen, but loses some of its effectiveness and proves somewhat less appealling or enjoyable when heard in one's home environment.

Lewis)(4:14) Barbra Streisand, Kirk Whalum, Johnny Mandel; 24 Places That Belong To You (J. Newton Howard/A. & M. Bergman)(3:39) Barbra Streisand.

Review: Listeners who enjoy romantic, melodic film scores ought to eat up James Newton Howard's lovely music for the 1991 Barbra Streisand adaptation of Pat Conroy's bestselling novel. Howard grounds his score in a pleasing main theme for piano and strings that's richly evocative of the main characters, a theme that is later used for "Places That Belong to You," a Streisand vocal with lyrics by Alan and Marilyn Bergman. The song was not used in the movie but rather recorded expressly for the album, which also features a Streisand performance of the standard "For All We Know." The majority of the album, though, belongs to Howard's score, which is able to walk over musical ground previously traveled by composers like Marvin Hamlisch, but without becoming overly sentimental or melodramatic. The music is highly enjoyable by itself and even non-Streisand fans should appreciate Howard's superb score.

The Princess Bride

1987, Warner Bros.; from the movie The Princess Bride, 20th Century-Fox, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Knopfler; Arrangements: Mark Knopfler; Performed by Mark Knopfler and Guy Fletcher; Album Producer: Mark Knopfler; Engineers: Bill Schnee, Marc De Sisto.

Selections: 1 Once Upon A Time... Storybook Love (4:00); 2 I Will Never Love Again (3:05); 3 Florin Dance (1:33); 4 Morning Ride (1:37); 5 The Friends' Song (3:03); 6 The Cliffs Of Insanity (3:18); 7 The Swordfight (2:44); 8 Guide My Sword (5:12); 9 The Fireswamp And The Rodents Of Unusual Size (4:47); 10 Revenge (3:51); 11 A Happy Ending (1:53); 12 Storybook Love (W. DeVIle)(4:24) Willy DeVille.

Review: Here's a strange example of a composer with a rock music background (Mark Knopfler is a member of the band Dire Straits) being hired for a fantasy film on the strength of his pop music and then being asked to produce something akin to a straight adventure score. Knopfler's delicate love theme of guitar and strings (also nicely performed by the composer as a song) works perfectly in the film and makes for enjoyable, mellow listening in album form. Unfortunately, the movie also called for mock-serious action and suspense music of a more conventional nature, and Knopfler provided a mostly electronic, percussive low-key underscore. It serves the film well because its ramshackle, bleating textures fit right in with the deliberately low-tech feel of Rob Reiner's movie, but it bears no relationship to the love theme and doesn't function well enough on its own as music to make the rest of the album much fun to hear.

Princess Caraboo

1994, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Princess Caraboo, Tri-Star Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Richard Hartley; Orchestrations: John Bell, Richard Hartley; Music Editor: Jupiter Sen; The Munich

Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Richard Hartley; Album Producer: Richard Hartley; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 Destiny (2:36); 2 Girl From Javasu (1:40); 3 Farewell Princess (1:03); 4 On The Cupola (1:03); 5 One Of Our Finest Frocks (1:37); 6 Portrait Of A Princess (2:07); 7 Minuet in D (L. Boccherini)(1:31); 8 Sweet, Green Land (2:42); 9 The Dress Maker (1:36); 10 A Good Story (1:54); 11 Sweet Dreams, My Dear (1:16); 12 Black Teeth In The Family (2:03); 13 Caraboo Buku (1:02); 14 Love Dance At Knole (2:03); 15 A Princess From Far Away (3:03); 16 End Credits (3:22).

Review: An endearing score by Richard Hartley is the foundation for this comic satire about 19th-century English aristocracy, in which a well-meaning family takes in a mysterious young girl, believing her to be a Princess from some exotic country. In keeping with the tone of the film, Hartley created a score that has a dream-like, fairy tale quality. There are pompous English waltzes to be sure, but it's the magical influence the "Princess" has over the family that drives the music.

The Professional

1994, TriStar Records; from the movie The Professional, Columbia Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Eric Serra; Orchestrations: Eric Serra; Orchestra conducted by John Altman; Featured Musicians: Andy Findon (Chinese bamboo flutes), Keith Thompson (Indian shawm, soprano schalmei, soprano dulcian), Juan Jose Mosalini Jr. (Bandoneon), Rene Marc Bini (piano), Eric Serra (guitar, bass, keyboards, timpani, percussion, computer programming); Album Producer: Eric Serra; Engineers: Isabelle Martin, Serge Devesvre.

Selections: 1 Noon (4:02); 2 Cute Name (3:29); 3 Ballad For Mathilda (2:15); 4 What's Happening Out There? (3:05); 5 A Bird In New York (1:21); 6 She Is Dead (1:32); 7 Fatman (5:16); 8 Leon The Cleaner (1:50); 9 Can I Have A Word With You? (1:14); 10 The Game Is Over (1:37); 11 Feel The Breath (3:18); 12 Room 4602 (1:18); 13 Very Special Delivery (2:41); 14 When Leon Does His Best (2:11); 15 Back On The Crime Scene (2:34); 16 Birds Of Storm (1:37); 17 Tony The IBM (1:57); 18 How Do You Know It's Love? (1:29); 19 The Fight (Part 1: The Swat Squad)(2:30); 20 The Fight (Part 2: Bring Me Everyone)(4:34); 21 The Fight (Part 3: The Big Weapon)(3:03); 22 The Fight (Part 4: One Is Alive)(3:15); 23 Two Ways Out (3:11).

Review: Luc Besson's first English language film is this sentimental tale of a hitman (Jean Reno) who befriends an orphaned girl (Natalie "Jailbait" Portman) in her run from a crooked cop (Gary "Over the Top" Oldman). Lolita-ish sexual tension, underworld suspense and bloodshed ensue, but thanks to Eric Serra, with a moody eerieness and melody. Serra, a French rock star who scores all of Besson's films, comes from a textural, keyboard-and-live-overdubs school, like Vangelis. Much of his music is created in the electronic domain, performed by the composer himself. The resulting Professional score incorporates slow pop loops, distinctly Serra samples, an ethnically Arabic cast for New York (its buildings reminded the composer of the Egyptian pyramids), sensitive guitar and violin solos, and larger orchestral forces than usual for Serra. In the movie, it's pretty good; on the album, its wallpaper aesthetic slows it down, and it goes on too long. It also suffers for the same reason the film does. It's at once full of low-key, isn't-this-subtle portent, but is practically screaming, isn't the relationship between the hit man and little girl oddly sexual? Still, Serra's score is to be admired for its progressive (for film) blend of genres and point of view.

The Professionals

1992, Silva Treasury; from the movie The Professionals, Columbia Pictures, 1967.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestrations: Leo Arnaud; Orchestra conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producers: Neely Plumb, Carol Rice; Engineer: John Norman; CD Producers: James Fitzpatrick, Ford A. Thaxton, David Stoner.

Selections: 1 Proposition For The Professionals/Main Title (3:43); 2 Start Of The Quest (1:56); 3 Dolworth's Word (2:29); 4 Hacienda Intrigue (3:28); 5 Rigging The Pass (2:20); 6 Train And Raza (2:37); 7 Hacienda Happenings (2:25); 8 Chiquita's Dance (1:58); 9 Hacienda Ole (2:09); 10 The Escape and Storm (3:05); 11 Maria and Intrepid Dolworth (3:49); 12 Desert Sun and Ehrengard's Collapse (2:41); 13 Chiquita's Demise (2:25); 14 The Road Back/End Title (2:49).

Review: A flavorful western set in Mexico in 1917, The Professionals elicited a vibrantly exciting score from Maurice Jarre, filled with dynamic cues reflective of the fast-paced action and warm south-of-the-border accents evocative of the various locales in which it takes place. The story of four soldiers of fortune who are recruited by an American oil tycoon to rescue his beautiful wife, held for ransom by a notorious Mexican bandito, the film found in Jarre a sympathetic composer whose music helps set the various moods of adventure, heroism, violence and lust in the narrative. There is plenty of good, solid music to be heard here, with repeated listening helping discover previously unnoticed little details that make the whole experience all the more enjoyable. Even though the CD was assembled from vinyl source transfers, the result of the original master tapes having been lost, there is little noticeable loss in the sound quality and no surface noise to speak of.

Promised Land

1987, Private Music Records; from the movie Promised Land, Vestron Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Featured Musicians: James Newton Howard (keyboards and synthesizer programming), Robby Weaver (synclavier programming), Dean Parks (guitar), David Grisman (mandolin), Michael Fisher (percussion), Neil Stubenhaus (bass); Album Producer: James Newton Howard; Engineer: Ross Pallone.

Selections: 1 Plymouth Waltz (4:07); 2 Winter Scene (4:16); 3 Promised Land Suite (6:13); 4 O Magnum Mysterium (6:25) The King's College Choir, Philip Ledger; 5 Main Titles (1:54); 6 Danny And His Dad (2:03); 7 The Hot Springs (1:44); 8 Circle K Shooting (4:06); 9 Ice Skating (1:44); 10 Telephone Call (1:14); 11 Bev Cuts Danny's Hair (1:35); 12 Leaving Knolls (1:19); $13^{3}/_{4}$ #1 (1:19); 13 Dreams And Promises (J. Street)(5:03).

Review: The wonderful folk accents in James Newton Howard add the right touch to this acoustic-and-synthesizer elegiac score for a contemporary drama set in a small Western community, about two former high-school friends who get back together several years later, only to realize that the plans they had made way back then didn't materialize. The delightful "Plymouth Waltz," which opens the album, sets the tone for the rest of the score, in which the many highlights include the gorgeous "Winter Scene," "The Hot Springs," "Ice Skating," and the quietly eloquent "Bev Cuts Danny's Hair." Contributing a different, albeit equally enjoyable note to the music, "O Magnum Mysterium," in a performance by the King's College Choir, and "Dreams and Promises," written by Janey Street, are also evocative of the film's moods.

The Proprietor

1996, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie The Proprietor, Merchant Ivory/Warner Bros. Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Richard Robbins; Orchestrations: Geoffrey Alexander; Orchestra conducted by Harry Rabinowitz; Album Producer: Geoffrey Alexander; Engineers: Bill Sommerville-Large, Kirsty Whalley.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles (2:12); 2 The Art Gallery (3:56); 3 Je m'appelle France (2:39); 4 Adrienne's Dream (4:34); 5 Memories Of Maxim's (3:33); 6 To Leave? To Stay? (1:57); 7 Father And Son (2:29); 8 Coming Home (5:36); 9 Patrice And Virginia At The Chateau (2:56); 10 Ostrogoth's Tango (2:04); 11 If I Didn't Care (J. Lawrence)(2:44); 12 Call Me French (1:40); 13 The Auction (2:44); 14 What Did He Say? (2:26); 15 The Ghost Of Fan Fan (3:06); 16 The Letter (2:14); 17 End Credits (3:09); 18 Will The Circle Be Unbroken (C. Gabriel)(4:49).

Review: A sensitive study of an aging woman whose childhood memories are rekindled when the apartment where she spent her youth is put up for sale, The Proprietor found composer Richard Robbins striking a very emotional chord in a score with great pathos. Robbins, whose eclectism has manifested itself in many films with varied exotic locales, pulls no surprises here, grounding his music in themes that are pleasantly evocative and lightly romantic. The story, about a French writer who cannot reconcile the fact that her mother was sent to a concentration camp during the war, translates itself into a series of cues in which the strong flavor of nostalgia is a predominant motif, even when the moods tend to be light and elegant, as in "Memories of Maxim's" and "Ostrogoth's Tango." Throughout, there is an abundance of lovely themes—"Patrice and Virginia at the Chateau," "The Ghost of Fan Fan"—which contribute to making this a very attractive and pleasant soundtrack album. On a purely technical note, a puzzling thing about this recording is the fact that it is in mono.

Prospero's Books

1991, London Records; from the movie Prospero's Books, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Nyman; The Michael Nyman Band, conducted by Michael Nyman; Musicians: Michael Nyman (piano), Alexander Balanescu, Jonathan Carney, Elisabeth Perry, Clare Connors (violin), Kate Musker (viola), Tony Hinnigan, Justin Pearson (cello), Paul Morgan, Tim Amhurst, Lynda Houghton (double bass), Martin Elliott (bass guitar), David Rix (clarinets), John Harle, David Roach, Jamie Talbot (soprano/alto sax), Andrew Findon (tenor/baritone sax, flute), Graham Ashton (trumpet), Richard Clews, Marjorie Dunn (horn), Nigel Barr, Steve Saunders (trombone); Featured Vocalists: Sarah Leonard, Marie Angel, Ute Lemper, Deborah Conway; Album Producer: David Cunningham; Engineer: Michael J. Dutton.

Selections: PROSPERO'S BOOKS: 1 Full Fathom Five(1:58); 2 Prospero's Curse (2:38); 3 While You Here Do Snoring Lie (1:06); 4 Prospero's Magic (5:11); 5 Miranda (3:54); 6 Twelve Years Since (2:45); 7 Come Unto These Yellow Sands (3:44); 8 History Of Sycorax (3:25); 9 Come And Go (1:16); 10 Cornfield (6:26); 11 Where The Bee Sucks (4:48); 12 Caliban's Pit (2:56); 13 Reconciliation (2:31); 14 The Masque (12:12).

Review: An intellectually challenging and erotically charged screen adaptation of Shakespeare's "The Tempest," Prospero's Books elicited a vigorous score from Michael Nyman, with brassy accents, eerie vocals for "boy soprano voice" (performed by Sarah Leonard), and an abundance of melodic themes that underline some of the most telling moments in the film. While retaining the minimalist approach that is part of his stylistic invention, the cues are diversified enough to attract the attention. Undaunted by the task of writing a florid score for a play set on an "isle full of noises," Nyman devised several tricks that challenge the listener, while helping propel the action on the screen, like speeding up the music of "Miranda," to give it a calliope sound, or suddenly throwing in a call of trumpet, like in "Come Unto These Yellow Sands," to enhance a theme. It is an intelligent, rewarding effort that will constantly surprise and keep the listener off balance.

An extrapolation, The Masque is a richly elaborated composition, central to the concept of Prospero's Books, but different from it, that brings together three vocalists with a different tradition, Marie Angel, Ute Lemper, and Deborah Conway. Once again, Nyman's work is full of unexpected details that prove compelling and thoroughly effective in a purely musical context, though, because of the demands it imposes on the listener, the recording will not be to everyone's taste.

Providence

1980, DRG Records; from the movie Providence, 1980.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; CD Producer: Van John Sfiridis.

Selections: 1 Twilight Waltz (3:43); 2 Main Title (2:04); 3 Leaves (2:23); 4 Chase (2:45); 5 Arrival At The House (1:53); 6 Sonia And The Holy Shroud (:57); 7 Twilight Waltz (piano)(3:43); 8 Providence (2:03); 9 Disenchantment (2:40); 10 Kevin And Sonia (1:36); 11 The Dead City (2:58); 12 Helen (2:54); 13 The Public Garden (1:54); 14 The Street (:59); 15 Finale (2:01).

Review: French director Alain Resnais' stylish story, about an imaginative novelist who may or may not be dying, his rapports with other members in his family, and his rambling dissertations about his new book, made Providence a vivid picture, tremendously enhanced by John Gielgud's sensational portrayal as the writer. Resnais, whose admiration for American filmmakers of the 1940s was enormous, enlisted Miklos Rozsa to write the score, with the composer creating a profoundly compelling series of cues which give the film extra dimension and energy. Anchored by a central theme ("Twilight Waltz," heard in two versions, one instrumental, the other in a piano solo), the score contains several moments that are solidly etched, with striking string embellishments that recall some of Rozsa's most powerful efforts. Unfortunately, the recording itself is not all that it should be, with noticeable studio noises, which could not be corrected, bad splicing and some hiss, which could have.

Psycho

Psycho

1989, Unicorn-Kanchana Records; from the movie Psycho, Universal Pictures, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Bernard Herrmann; Album Producer: Christopher Palmer; Engineer: Bob Auger.

Selections: 1 Prelude (2:07); 2 The City/Marion/Marion and Sam (4:36); 3 Temptation (3:08); 4 Flight/The Patrol Car/The Car Lot/The Package/The Rainstorm (8:47); 5 Hotel Room/The Window/The Parlour (4:04); 6 The Madhouse (2:13); 7 The Peephole (3:10); 8 The Bathroom/The Murder/The Body (2:03); 9 The Office/The Curtain/The Water/The Car/The Swamp (6:40); 10 The Search/The Shadow/Phone Booth (2:25); 11 The Porch/The Stairs/The Knife (4:34); 12 The Search/The First Floor/Cabin 10/Cabin 1 (6:09); 13 The Hill/The Bedroom/The Toys/The Cellar/Discovery (5:25); 14 Finale (1:49).

Review: The familiar, shrieking cello strains of "The Murder," from the shower scene in Alfred Hitchcock's Psycho, comprise what is probably the single most famous theme from any thriller. Carefully orchestrated by Herrmann, Psycho marked a rather radical technical departure for the composer, who opted to use only strings for this score, feeling this best complemented the stark, black and white image of the film. Critics initially scoffed at Herrmann's rationale, but a study of the music reveals the genius of his approach. While a certain amount of tonal color is lost with the elimination of woodwinds, brass and percussion, the composer was forced to utilize the entire breadth of the strings, and develop a completely new palette of hues and gradations derived from the single "color" within the section. The resulting music, mostly individual "motifs" suited for particular scenes, is all at once subtle, terrifying, and completely effective at drawing the listener into the film, to experience the disturbing mix of sensitivity and tension that Hitchcock so masterfully created.

While no true soundtrack of the music recorded for the film exists, the most complete recording of Psycho is available on a Unicorn CD, simply titled Music for Psycho. This superior recording features Herrmann conducting the National Philharmonic Orchestra, and contains 39 musical cues—nearly one hour of music. Who could argue with the perspective of the composer interpreting his own music? The playing is beautiful, and the recording fine.

Charles L. Granata

Psycho II

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Psycho II, Universal Pictures, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith.

Selections: 1 The Murder (B. Herrmann)(:57); 2 Main Title (1:37); 3 Don't Take Me (4:48); 4 Mother's Room (4:01); 5 It's Not Your Mother (5:11); 6 New Furniture (2:04); 7 The Cellar (4:02); 8 Blood Bath (3:37); 9 End Title (4:13).

Review: Goldsmith took on the thankless task of following up Bernard Herrmann's classic Psycho score for this sequel, but he wisely produced an entirely original work that bears no comparison to Herrmann's unforgettable efforts. Goldsmith's eerie title music of keyboard, piano, strings and woodwinds emphasize the haunted innocence of Norman Bates, while later suspense cues create tension with dissonant string chords, unusual synthesized effects and percussion as Goldsmith depicts the gradual breakdown of Norman's mind. Slashing, knife-like wind effects and howling horns and strings underscore most of the violent sequences, climaxing in the lengthy "It's Not Your Mother" cue with its characteristic low-end piano performance.

The Public Eye

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Public Eye, Universal Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Orchestrations: Ken Kugler; Music Editor: Tom Carlson; Orchestra conducted by Ken Kugler; Featured Musicians: Jim Walker (flutes), Chuck Domanico (bass), Kurt Wortman (snare drum), Rich Ruttenberg (piano), Mark Isham (electronics); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineer: Stephen Krause.

Selections: 1 The Public Eye (3:24); 2 Nightime Developments (1:09); 3 The Meat Market (1:26); 4 Flying Home (S. Robin/B. Goodman/L. Hampton)(3:01) Oren Waters; 5 An Artist Once (1:27); 6 The Bureau At Night (1:55); 7 Pictures In The Dark (3:44); 8 Topsy (E. Durham/E. Battle)(2:21); 9 The Great Bernzini (1:18); 10 Many Questions? (3:27); 11 Cafe Society Blues (S. Rogers)(3:54); 12 Portrait Of An Artist (2:32); 13 Waiting, Then Calling (3:25); 14 Undecided (S. Robin/C. Shavers)(4:35); 15 Waiting, Then Hiding (1:57); 16 You Would Have Been Surprised (1:22); 17 The Massacre (1:29); 18 The Kiss (1:22); 19 The Public Eye (End Credits)(5:21).

Review: Mark Isham replaced an original score by Jerry Goldsmith for this rather unusual 1940s melodrama starring Joe Pesci and Barbara Hershey. Isham, who has dabbled in both acclaimed jazz and new age albums off the screen, chose not to concentrate on the obvious musical preferences of the period (though there are new vocal performances of standards like "Undecided"), and instead wrote a heavy atmospheric, electronic-laden score that basically serves strictly as a musical undercurrent to the dramatic proceedings in Howard Franklin's film. What all this means is that the music is not that interesting apart from its source, and might have been more melodic, and dramatic, had Isham scored the picture from more of a jazz or swing standpoint. As it is, there's not much here to listen to.

Pulp Fiction

1994, MCA Records; from the movie Pulp Fiction, Miramax Films, 1994.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Jim Monsour, Kool & The Gang, Willie Mitchell, Bob Irwin, Ricky Nelson, Ozzie Nelson & Jimmy Haskell, Jerry Wexler, Tom Dowd & Arif Mardin, Bob Keene, Urge Overkill & Kramer, Bruce Brody & Maria McKee, Bill Wenzell, Jerry Kennedy; Album Executive Producers: Quentin Tarantino, Lawrence Bender, Karyn Rachtman.

Selections: 1 Pumpkin And Honey Bunny/Misirlou (F. Wise/M. Leeds/S.K. Russell/N. Roubanis) (2:27) Dick Dale & His Del-Tones; 2 Royale With Cheese (1:42); 3 Jungle Boogie (R. Bell/C. Smith/G. McKee) (4:55) Maria McKee; 12 Bring Out The Gimp/ Comanche (The Revels) (2:10) The Revels; 13 Flowers On The Wall (L. DeWitt) (2:23) The Statler Brothers; 14 Personality Goes

A Long Way (1:00); 15 Surf Rider (B. Bogle/N. Edwards/D. Wilson) (3:18) The Lively Ones; 16 Ezekiel 25:17 (:51).

Review: Quentin Tarantino's attention to detail always includes the music for his films, and this is his crowning achievement. Dick Dale's firey surf classic "Misirlou" is as responsible for the movie's flavor as any aspect of Tarantino's script, while Urge Overkill's remake of Neil Diamond's "Girl, You'll Be a Woman Soon" is brilliantly reverent. There are plenty of satisfying oldies – Chuck Berry's "You Never Can Tell," Al Green's "Let's Stay Together," Dusty Springfield's "Son of a Preacher Man" – all laced between snippets of dialogue from the film. Masterful.

A Pure Formality

1994, Sony Classical; from the movie A Pure Formality, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra Unione Musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Featured Soloist: Franco Tamponi (violin); Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineer: Franco Patrignani; Assistant Engineer: Donato Salone.

Selections: 1 Breathlessly (2:59); 2 Remembering (E. & A. Morricone/G. Tornatore/P. Quignard)(4:09) Gerard Depardieu; 3 The Palace Of Nine Frontiers (3:25); 4 The Bum (3:38); 5 A Troublesome Clue (2:10); 6 Waiting For The Police Inspector (1:07); 7 In Search Of Onoff (2:42); 8 An Old Diary (2:51); 9 Photos (1:17); 10 Mosaic (1:06); 11 Leonardo da Vinci (3:09); 12 Contradictions (2:17); 13 The Trap and The Mouse (1:24); 14 Escape From Onoff (1:33); 15 Bloodstains (2:36); 16 After The Nightmare (1:02); 17 A Mere Memory Lapse (1:58); 18 Repressed Memories (1:55); 19 Revelation (1:42); 20 A Night In February (2:11); 21 To Obliterate The Past (E. & A. Morricone/G. Tornatore/P. Quignard)(4:10) Gerard Depardieu.

Review: In a style that's frequently more abstract than some of his most popular works, Ennio Morricone fashioned a fascinating, dense score for this drama, directed by Giuseppe Tornatore, essentially an intellectual two-character tour-de-force about a crime suspect, who says he is a famous author currently suffering from a writer's block, and the calm, insinuating police inspector who interrogates him, and seems to know by heart everything the author has written. Matching the various mood shifts on the screen, as well as creating an increasingly disturbing atmosphere of its own, Morricone's score brings together a variety of slow cues, some featuring persistently enervating little noises, others shrieking strings and bells, that prove quite unsettling, yet frighteningly compelling. Gerard Depardieu (sounding like Marcello Mastroianni) performs two songs, "Ricordare" and "Effacer le passe," that add nothing to nor detract anything from his talent as an actor. Hardly the kind of CD you'll put on at any given moment, but one that will play well under the right circumstances for the right audience.

Purple Rain

1984, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Purple Rain, Warner Bros. Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Prince; Album Producers: Prince & The Revolution; Engineers: Peggy Mac, David Leonard.

Selections: 1 Let's Go Crazy (4:39); 2 Take Me With U (3:54) Prince & Apollonia; 3 The Beautiful Ones (5:15); 4 Computer Blue (3:59); 5 Darling Nikki (4:15); 6 When Doves Cry (5:52); 7 I Would Die 4 U (2:51); 8 Baby I'm A Star (4:20); 9 Purple Rain (8:45).

Review: Prince (later to be known as the "artist-formerly-known-as-Prince) revealed another, unsuspected side of his vast talent when he wrote and appeared in the semi-autobiographical Purple Rain, in which he portrays a misunderstood youngster who finds solace in his music. Surrounded by members of his "rock family," and co-starring Apollonia Kotero, his girlfriend at the time, the film is essentially a showcase for Prince's songs, a blend of striking and sensuous numbers, many of them propelled by a percolating rhythm that is in marked contrast with the central character's gloomy existence. The songs, assembled in this album, offer little that Prince fans don't already know and like about him. Others, who may be discovering it for the first time, will enjoy the joy and exuberance that pervade many of the selections, and will revel in the film's unquestionable hits, "Let's Go Crazy," "Darling Nikki," "When Doves Cry," and "Purple Rain."

Quartet

1994, Angel Records; from the movie Quartet, Merchant Ivory Productions, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Richard Robbins; Orchestrations: Luther Henderson; Featured Musicians: Allen Jackson (bass), Rudy Collins (drums), Benny Powell (trombone), Jerome Richardson (tenor sax, clarinet), Marshall Royal (alto sax, clarinet), J. Leonard Oxley (pianist, conductor), Al Arons (trumpet).

Selections: 1 Opening Title Music (2:59); 2 Five-O-Nine (2:51) Armelia McQueen; 3 Blues For H.J. (2:47); 4 Black King Foxtrot (3:01); 5 Full Time Lover (3:07) Armelia McQueen; 6 In The Country/Arabesque Valsante (M. Levitsky)(2:17); 7 Pars (1:08) Isabelle Adjani; 8 Au bal musette (2:31); 9 Five-O-Nine (2:43); 10

Full Time Lover (2:59); 11 Maggie's Trot (2:46); 12 Quartet Tango (1:57); 13 End Title Music/Arabesque Valsante (M. Levitsky) (1:59).

Review: Set in Paris in the 1920s, Quartet evokes a time and place where artists, particularly American ones, had found a second home, in a world Ernest Hemingway described as "a moveable feast." The moods were light, active, stimulating, marked by the new syncopated accents of jazz which, already, struck a more responsive note there than it did at home. The period, brilliantly recreated in the film, inspired Richard Robbins to create a score with a strong jazz flavor, performed by a distinguished group of instrumentalists – Allen Jackson, Benny Powell, Jerome Richardson, Marshall Royal – in Luther Henderson's feel-right arrangements. Tremendously exhilarating, the album needs no pre-sequencing to be enjoyed and lends itself to excellent straight programming. Armelia McQueen adds some flavorful vocals to the mix, as does Isabelle Adjani as a woman stranded in Paris when her husband, an art dealer, is sent to prison. She becomes a passive participant in a menage a trois, when she accepts a couple's invitation to stay with them.

The Quest

1996, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Quest, Universal Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Music Editor: David Bondelevitch; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineer: Elton Ahi.

Selections: 1 Opening/The Dream (1:52); 2 Chris Beats Germany (3:27); 3 Old New York (1:20); 4 Invitation (2:34); 5 Khan Kills Phang (3:47); 6 Flashback (1:49); 7 To The City Of Battle (3:46); 8 Drums On The Beach (3:12); 9 Smile Please (1:28); 10 The Greatest Fighters (3:11); 11 Sentenced to Death (3:53); 12 Brazil Accompaniment (2:52); 13 Monkey Boy And Snake Eyes (1:09); 14 The Wire (1:05); 15 American Theme (2:18); 16 Finale/Fulfillment Of The Quest (2:50).

Review: Randy Edelman's always friendly fusion of acoustic and electronic instruments brings an epic quality to Jean-Claude Van Damme's directorial debut. Set during the early part of this century, Van Damme plays a pickpocket on the run from the law who becomes a contestant in a world-class fighting tournament in Asia. The score alternates between lavish orchestrations for the period ("Old New York"), some humorous string passages ("Smile Please"), and the kind of hard hitting percussion Edelman first established in Dragon: The Bruce Lee Story for the fight sequences ("Chris Beats Germany").

Quest for Fire

1982, RCA Records; from the movie Quest for Fire, 20th Century-Fox, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Philippe Sarde; The London Symphony Orchestra, The London Philharmonic Orchestra, The Ambrosian Singers, The Percussion Ensemble of Strasbourg, conducted by Philippe Sarde; Featured Musicians: Syrinx (pan flute), Michel Sanvoisin (bass flute); Album Producers: Philippe Sarde, Michel Larmand; Engineer: William Flageollet.

Selections: 1 Creation Of Fire (1:46); 2 Wagabous (1:56); 3 Cave Attack (4:14); 4 The Last Ander (3:05); 5 Saber-Teeth Lions (6:30); 6 The Small Blue Female (1:15); 7 Kzamns (3:36); 8 Quest For Fire (Love Theme)(5:00); 9 The Village Of Painted People (2:50); 10 Mammoths (2:17); 11 Naoh's Distress (2:09); 12 The Birth Of Love (3:39); 13 The Bear Fight (4:50); 14 The Beginning Of Future (1:32).

Review: One of the most unique films of the '80s, Jean-Jacques Annaud's Quest for Fire took on the daunting task of trying to realistically depict the prehistoric world, and succeeded brilliantly. One reason for the film's success is the excellent score by Philippe Sarde. Given that the film has no dialogue whatsoever, it fell to Sarde's music to serve as one of the film's primary communicative tools. As a result of its assertive role, Sarde's music is highly listenable on disc. There are some derivative moments ("Creation of Fire" owes heavily to Penderecki), but overall this is an impressive work of much originality. Expansive and brooding, it evokes the primitive, austere and brutal world of pre-history. The orchestration is large and full, and the performance superb, featuring the London Symphony, London Philharmonic, Ambrosian Singers and Les Percussions de Strasbourg, conducted by Peter Knight (who also orchestrated). "Village of the Painted People" is scored exclusively for percussion and one of the most interesting tracks, while Sarde's love theme is rapturous and full. Recorded at Abbey Road Studios, the sound quality is particularly excellent. A wonderfully epic and other-worldly score, Quest for Fire is one of Philippe Sarde's most brilliant efforts.

The Quick and the Dead

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Quick and the Dead, Tri-Star Films, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Orchestrations: William Ross; Music Editor: Kenneth Karman; Orchestra conducted by Alan Silvestri; Album Producer: Alan Silvestri; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Redemption (3:25); 2 Gunfight Montage (1:41); 3 Couldn't Tell Us Apart (1:17); 4 John Herod (1:22); 5 Ellen's First Round (1:10); 6 Lady's The Winner (:47); 7 Dinner Tonight (2:11); 8 Cort's Story (1:02); 9 Ellen vs. Dred (1:10); 10 Kid vs. Herod (4:17); 11 I Don't Wanna Die (2:00); 12 The Big Day (2:27); 13 Ellen Returns (3:54); 14 The Law's Come Back To Town (:49); 15 The Quick And The Dead (End Credits)(3:30).

Review: Alan Silvestri goes Ennio Morricone in this amiable enough pastiche of western movie music cliches. Since the movie—the unsuccessful Sam Raimi western with Sharon Stone—is somewhat of a take-off on the classic Eastwood pictures (with Stone as "The Woman with No Name"), it figures that Silvestri's score would be modeled on the Leone soundtracks to a point. After hearing the high-pitched, The Good, the Bad and the Ugly-based motif, we know that's exactly what we're going to get, as Silvestri has written an enjoyable conglomeration that represents both his often percussive-driven style and the obvious influence from Italian westerns. While the music isn't original or inventive enough to work on its own terms, on the level of parody, the score succeeds admirably.

Review: One of John Ford's most memorable films, The Quiet Man stars John Wayne as an unlikely romantic leading man (after years of playing a rugged cowboy or a no-nonsense GI), an Irish American who returns to the land of his ancestors, buys the country home where he was born, and takes an immediate shine to a local girl, who is not insensitive either (Maureen O'Hara, resplendent in a role that seemed tailor-made), immediately irking her brother, a bully landowner who also wanted to buy the cottage. Told in a slow, affecting style that is part of its endearing charm, the film ends in a sensational showdown between the two men, a brawl to end all brawls. The score for the film was composed by Victor Young, who, at Ford's request, made use of many Irish folk tunes to give his music the right coloring. At the time the film came out, excerpts from his score were released on an LP on the Decca label, and they can be found coupled with Samson and Delilah (q.v.), another score by Young, on a primitive-sounding mono CD from Varese-Sarabande.

This new CD, recorded by the Dublin Screen Orchestra conducted by Kenneth Alwyn, brings Young's music into the digital era in a recording that brims with excitement and includes many cues previously unavailable. An uncommonly florid score, The Quiet Man enabled Young to tap into a rich lode of folk material, including "The Isle of Innisfree" and "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen," and develop these tunes into breathtaking themes that are strongly evocative and beautiful. The resulting album is a joy from beginning to end, and strongly recommended.

Quigley Down Under

1990, Intrada Records; from the movie Quigley Down Under, M-G-M, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie, Mark McKenzie; Music Editor: Tom Villano; Orchestra conducted by Basil Poledouris; Album Producer: Basil Poledouris; Engineer: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:17; 2 The Fight (4:57); 3 Native Montage (2:11); 4 Marston's Murderers (3:31); 5 Cora's Story (3:18); 6 The Fire (2:57); 7 The Gift (5:25); 8 The Attack (2:49); 9 The Capture (2:44); 10 Freedom (3:34); 11 Matthew Quigley (5:22).

Review: Basil Poledouris, of Conan fame, brought his rich sense of barbarian melody to this Simon Wincer film about a sharpshooter (Tom Selleck) who travels to Australia in the 1860s to work for a wealthy, evil land baron (Alan Rickman), and soon joins the side of the aborigines. Poledouris tips his hat to the western genre and American lead with an expansive and rhythmic, symphonic scope, characterizing the Australian setting not with any specific folk elements (no didgeridoos), but as a wide-open place of adventure and danger. Quigley's theme is a lilting, energetic piece with a mostly pentatonic clarinet melody over enthusiastic orchestra and banjo—think of Selleck's ear-to-ear, mustached smile—and this whimsical tune seems to characterize both the main character and his not-in-Kansas-anymore location. A love theme brings a tender, reflective contrast. Fans of Poledouris's big themes from Conan, RoboCop, Flesh + Blood, and Lonesome Dove will find more to love here.

The Quiller Memorandum

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Quiller Memorandum, 20th Century-Fox, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Lyrics: Mack David; Orchestrations: John Barry; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: John Barry.

Selections: 1 Main Theme: Wednesday's Child (2:10); 2 Quiller Caught/The Fight (2:48); 3 The Barrel Organ (2:39); 4 Oktober/Walk From The River (3:45); 5 Downtown (T. Hatch)(2:20); 6 Main Title Theme (2:03); 7 Wednesday's Child (2:35) Matt Monroe; 8 The Love Scene/The Old House (3:49); 9 Autobahn March (2:43); 10 He Knows The Way Out (2:16); 11 Night Walk In Berlin (3:03); 12 Quiller And The Bomb (2:33); 13 Have You Heard Of A Man Called Jones?/End Title (1:53).

Review: In the days when John Barry used to have fun, he scored many films that were distinguished by the imaginative themes he created and in which he smartly captured the exciting pace of the narrative. In one such example, The Quiller Memorandum, he wrote a score that has endured, matching the evocative tones in this spy thriller set in contemporary Germany, in which George Segal plays a charmingly engaging undercover British agent sent to West Berlin to infiltrate a group of neo-Nazis. While a saxophone rendition of the pop song "Downtown" sounds somewhat dispensable, the suggestive cues, in which a cymbalum provides an effective, colorful aura, reflect the unfolding action scene and the loneliness of the agent who knows he cannot even rely on his own people to help him if he gets caught. Matt Monro's delivery of "Wednesday's Child," is appropriately atmospheric.

Quiz Show

1994, Hollywood Records; from the movie Quiz Show, Hollywood Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Orchestrations: Ken Kugler, Dell Hake; Jazz Arrangements: Mark Isham, Ken Kugler, Kim Scharmberg; Orchestra conducted by Ken Kugler; Featured Musicians: David Goldblatt (piano), John Clayton (bass), Ed Shaughnessy (drums), Dennis Budimir (guitar), Rick Baptiste, Conte Candoli, Charles Davis, Charles Findley, Mark Isham (trumpet), Nicholas Lane, John Lane, Bruce Paulson, Charles Loper (trombone), Marshall Royal, Steven Tavaglione, Peter Christlieb, Bob Sheppard, Jack Nimitz (saxophone), Dale Anderson (marimba), Larry Bunker (vibraphone), Kurt Wortman (percussion); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineer: Stephen Krause.

Selections: 1 Moritat (K. Weill/B. Brecht)(4:44) Lyle Lovett; 2 The World's Smartest Man (5:22); 3 The Oversight Blues (10:39); 4 The Underdog (4:24); 5 Your Secret's Safe With Me (3:12); 6 Hunting In Your Underwear (3:52); 7 On The Shoulders Of Life (1:24); 8 Books And Learning (1:24); 9 A Chance Is What I'm Giving You (1:50); 10 The Committee Calls (2:14); 11 The Word Is Bluffing (1:14); 12 Television On Trial (3:06); 13 Everything Has Its Price (4:18).

Review: Lyle Lovett's slow-paced and slyly sardonic rendition of "Moritat," the song of Mack the Knife, seems a perfect way to get into this soundtrack album to the story of the quiz show scandal that rocked television in the late 1950s. The song, however, is the low point in a brilliant jazz score fashioned by Mark Isham, that prominently features some great soloists, including Conte Candoli, the legendary West Coast trumpet player. While some cues in the score are relatively short, two, "The World's Smartest Man" and "The Oversight Blues," are generously long and explicit, and make a powerful contribution to the album itself. The diversity in the score, with some cues written for big band, some for a quartet, and others for solo instruments, makes listening to it all the more enjoyable, with the moods projected occasionally interrupted by flavorful bits of underscoring ("Books and Learning," "Television on Trial") that provide still another different orchestral color to the proceedings.

Quo Vadis

1985, London Records; from the movie Quo Vadis, M-G-M, 1951.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Miklos Rozsa.

Selections: 1 Prelude (2:12); 2 Marcus And Lygia (3:59); 3 Fertility Hymn (1:24); 4 The Burning Of Rome (3:42); 5 Petronius' Banquet/Meditation and Death (4:30); 6 Ave Caesar (4:50); 7 Chariot Chase (3:06); 8 Assyrian Dance (1:56); 9 Aftermath (Death Of Peter, Death Of Poppaea, Nero's Suicide) (5:07); 10 Hail Galba (1:57); 11 Finale (4:37); 12 Epilogue (2:56).

Review: The first Roman epic scored by Miklos Rozsa, Quo Vadis contains in embryo form all the concepts and ideas the composer would expand on in later efforts like Ben-Hur and King of Kings—heavily ornamented brass flourishes, liturgical hymns, strongly etched love themes, exciting action cues. Combining reconstructed sounds from Greek origin to replace the non-existent Roman music, and early Judaic themes with his own European idiom, Rozsa wrote a remarkably "authentic" set of cues that became a blueprint for films with a similar background. Though played under the action on the screen and necessarily overlooked, the music soars when appreciated on its own terms and mesmerizes the listener with its vibrancy and barely contained excitement. Cues like "The Burning of Rome," "Chariot Chase," and "Hail Galba," among others, stand out in a score that is extraordinarily rich and rewarding. While the original soundtrack album, which consisted of dramatic highlights and was in mono sound in the original LP issue, awaits reissue on compact disc (possibly without the dialogues, but with the full score in stereo if the multitrack tapes still exist), this rerecording, with the composer conducting one of England's two great orchestras, stands as the only authoritative album available.

Radio Days

1987, Novus/RCA Records; from the movie Radio Days, Orion Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Michael Brooks; Engineers: Dennis Ferrante, Edward Rich.

Selections: 1 In The Mood (3:31) Glenn Miller and His Orchestra; 2 I Double Dare You (2:42) Larry Clinton and His Orchestra; 3 Opus No. 1 (2:55) Tommy Dorsey and His Orchestra; 4 Frenesi (3:02) Artie Shaw and His Orchestra; 5 The Donkey Serenade (3:20) Allan Jones; 6 Body And Soul (3:28) Benny Goodman Trio; 7 You And I (2:44) Tommy Dorsey and His Orchestra; 8 I Remember Pearl Harbor (2:26) Swing & Sway With Sammy Kaye; 9 That Old Feeling (2:42) Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians; 10 (There'll Be Blue Birds Over) The White Cliffs Of Dover (2:53) Glenn Miller and His Orchestra; 11 Goodbye (3:23) Benny Goodman and His Orchestra; 12 I'm Getting Sentimental Over You (3:38) Tommy Dorsey and His Orchestra; 13 Lullaby Of Broadway (2:27) Richard Himber and His Ritz-Carlton Orchestra; 14 American Patrol (3:20) Glenn Miller and His Orchestra; 15 Take The "A" Train (2:56) Duke Ellington and His Orchestra; 16 One, Two, Three, Kick (3:18) Xavier Cugat and His Waldorf-Astoria Orchestra.

Review: A great big band album that beautifully captures the feel and moods that permeate Woody Allen's fond memories of the time when radio reigned supreme, Radio Days is a genuine treat for anyone with love for the music or the era. With not a single misstep in the track selection and performances by some of the greatest bands around at the time (Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey, Duke Ellington, Benny Goodman, Sammy Kaye, Artie Shaw, among others), this is simply a wonderful recording, only slightly marred by the sound quality which is not always up to par. However, many of these tracks have since been remastered and appear elsewhere in much improved sound.

Radio Flyer

1992, Giant Records; from the movie Radio Flyer, Columbia Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Orchestrations: Shirley Walker, Bruce Fowler; Music Editor: Laura Perlman; Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker; Featured Musicians: Richard Harvey (Pan pipes), Nick Glenne-Smith (piano), Tommy Morgan (harmonica), Jim Kanter (clarinet); Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Jay Rifkin; Engineer: Jay Rifkin.

Selections: 1 Radio Flyer Part 1: Building The Flyer/On The Road To Geronimo/Lost Secrets and Fascination (9:58); 2 Radio Flyer Part 2: Expeditioning/Mix The Potion/Four Discoveries (7:00); 3 Radio Flyer Part 3: Sampson And Shane/Fisher's Legend/The Big Idea (13:37); 4 The Name Game (L. Chase/S. Elliston)(3:00) Shirley Ellis.

Review: If you make a movie about child abuse, you'd best not portray the subject as a glossy children's fantasy—the mistake that Richard Donner made when directing this expensive bomb, one of the biggest money losers of the early 1990s. Hans Zimmer's completely uneven score features all of his usual ingredients (the large symphony orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker, plenty of synthesizers as well as chorus), and can either be irritating to the point where you think your brain is about to explode (as in the sappy kid's chorus sections), or so uplifting and downright melodramatic that you have to admire the score for keeping such a straight face while going absurdly over-the-top. Whatever your opinion of this score, you must admit that the composer tried his hardest to entertain. The out-of-print album has become something of a staple in record store cut-out bins, (mis)leading some to believe that the CD will be valuable one day, even if it is only loosely connected to the movie itself, that's about the only hope for a profit this project will ever make.

Radioland Murders

1994, MCA Records; from the movie Radioland Murders, Universal Pictures, 1994.

Selections: 1 Love Is On The Air Tonight (2:03); 2 Welcome To Radioland (3:43); 3 WBN Logo/Applebaum Shorts (:44); 4 A Guy What Takes His Time (3:08); 5 Back In The Saddle Again (G. Autry/R. Whiteley)(1:54) Tracy Byrd; 6 Gene's Pork And Beans (:58); 7 I'll Be Glad When You're Dead (You Rascal You)(C. Davenport)(2:11); 8 Suspect Roundup/Spy Story (3:39); 9 That Old Black Magic (H. Arlen/J. Mercer)(1:36) Billy Barty; 10 Crazy People (2:06); 11 Java Jive (1:26); 12 In The Mood (A. Razaf/J. Garland)(3:16); 13 Interrogation Opera: Grand Inquisitor's Aria (from Don Carlo)(G. Verdi)/Queen Of The Night's Aria (from The Magic Flute)(W.A. Mozart)(2:47); 14 King's Washing Machines/WBN Logo (1:15); 15 That Old Feeling (S. Fain/L. Brown)(3:13) Rosemary Clooney; 16 I Miss You So (2:51) The Voltage Brothers; 17 Hudson Automobiles/Darabont's BBQ Sauce (1:25); 18 Tico Tico/Don't Let Your Love Go Wrong/WBN Logo (4:06); 19 What'll I Do (I. Berlin)(2:44) Joey Lawrence; 20 Gork, Son Of Fire (2:26); 21 The Killer Is... (4:36); 22 Death On The Radio Tower (5:05); 23 And The Angels Sing (Z. Elman/J. Mercer)(1:59); 24 End Titles (And The Angels Sing)(4:41).

Review: Radioland Murders is another big band era recording with a twist. While it quotes performances by artists from the radio era, this wonderfully evocative album draws its strength from the cues, written in the style of the period by Joel McNeely, including the whimsical, and accurately correct, "WBN logo" heard throughout in different versions. McNeely, making a much noticed contribution with this catchy score to a film that has its eccentric moments, captured the flavor of radio's golden age and provided sly comments of his own to this amusing mystery set in a Chicago radio station where someone is murdering the company employees one by one. The potential suspects (or victims)—an odd sound effects man, a sultry singer, a slick announcer and the station owner—all find their comeuppance, with each turn in the convoluted story eliciting a wry musical expression.

A Rage in Harlem

1991, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie A Rage in Harlem, Miramax Films, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Christopher Palmer; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: Cynthia Millar; Engineer: Brian Masterson.

Selections: 1 A Rage In Harlem (2:05); 2 Imabelle (1:44); 3 Seduction (3:34); 4 Jackson (2:34); 5 New Toy Love (3:39); 6 Easy Money (3:32); 7 Morning At Jackson's (2:35); 8 Jackson And Goldie (3:03); 9 Tender Words (1:43); 10 Major Chase (2:57); 11 Gus (2:37); 12 Big Kathy Killed (4:24); 13 Fight (2:06); 14 Pop Slim (1:33); 15 Aftermath (:28); 16 Happy Train (2:51).

Review: Elmer Bernstein found great success utilizing jazz when composing his scores for films like The Man with the Golden Arm and Love with the Proper Stranger, and A Rage in Harlem, Bill Duke's 1991 adaptation of the Chester Himes novel, represents a return trip to earlier times for the composer. Unfortunately, there's just something rather stagnant about this score, which features cues with appropriate jazz-ensemble focused orchestrations but also the tendency to just coast along with by-the-numbers melodies. There's nothing infectious or particularly buoyant about the music here, and that lack of energy sadly makes this score far inferior to Bernstein's predecessing jazz efforts, and a rather large disappointment overall.

Raggedy Man

1981, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Raggedy Man, Universal Pictures, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:53); 2 Henry And Harry (5:11); 3 Number Please (4:34); 4 The Kite (4:40); 5 Runaways (6:28); 6 Mexican Tune (2:57); 7 End Of Calvin (3:54); 8 End Title (2:09).

Review: One of a handful of "limited edition" releases sold by Varese Sarabande Records in 1991, this is, in actuality, only an average Jerry Goldsmith score. Written in the same vein as scores like Elmer Bernstein's To Kill a Mockingbird and other poignant, character-driven works by Goldsmith (i.e. The Flim-Flam Man), Raggedy Man boasts a deliberately paced score for flute, harmonica and orchestra, creating a pleasant small-town feel that is sustained throughout the album—with the notable exception of some dissonant material thrown in at the end to coincide with the movie's rather odd left turn into climactic melodrama. The score is engaging but ultimately unremarkable, and went unreleased at the time of the film's 1981 theatrical playdates when the movie failed in theaters. While the concept of Varese's "CD Club" was initially mouth-watering to fans of movie music, it's a shame that a number of other scores held in high regard by listeners, like John Williams' Heartbeeps, Elmer Bernstein's Slipstream, Bill Conti's Victory, never received the red-carpet treatment that this serviceable—particularly considering Goldsmith standards—but rather pedestrian score did.

The Raggedy Rawney

1988, Silva Screen Records; from the movie The Raggedy Rawney, Hand Made Films, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Featured Musician: Michael Kamen (Kurzweil 250, oboe); Songs: John Tams; Album Producer: Michael Kamen; Engineer: Stephen McLaughlin.

Selections: 1 The Tribe (4:21); 2 You Should See Nellie Pass Water (:49) Bob Hoskins ; 3 Caravans (4:49); 4 The Horse Race (2:51); 5 Farmyard (:45); 6 Rolling Home (J. Tams)(1:32) John Tams; 7 Jessie And Tom (4:35); 8 Daisy Chain (1:46); 9 Wedding Dress (1:19); 10 Bullroarer/Band Of Lace (J. Tams) (2:47); 11 Peanock Polka (Darky's Polka)(J. Tams)(1:25); 12 Simon Drowned (2:55); 13 Funeral Lament (M. Bell)(2:33) Maggie Bell; 14 Prayer (2:04); 15 The Officer (1:47); 16 The Children (2:44); 17 The Raggedy Rawney (1:09).

Review: This plaintive score is a far cry from Die Hard and Lethal Weapon, but it's intriguing in its simplicity. Kamen composed and performed the score primarily on an oboe and a Kurzweil synthesizer, with some Irish music and songs provided by John Tams. This is not a terribly melodic score. The music is primarily atmospheric, full of woodwindish synths, eerie, straining chords, and strident zimbalom notes from the Kurzweil. The score's ambiance is very subdued and slow-moving, its orchestration sparse and plain. As a result, it's a difficult score to grasp at times.

Raiders of the Lost Ark

1995, DCC Compact Classics; from the movie Raiders of the Lost Ark, Paramount Pictures, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Orchestrations: Herbert W. Spencer; The London Symphony Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson; CD Producer: Nick Redman; Engineer: Steve Hoffman.

Selections: 1 The Raiders March (2:50); 2 Main Title: South America, 1936 (4:10); 3 In The Idol's Temple (5:26); 4 Flight From Peru (2:20); 5 Journey To Nepal (2:11); 6 The Medallion (2:55); 7 To Cairo (1:29); 8 The Basket Game (5:04); 9 The Map Room: Dawn (3:52); 10 Reunion and The Dig Begins (4:10); 11 The Well Of The Souls (5:28); 12 Airplane Fight (4:37); 13 Desert Chase (8:15); 14 Marion's Theme (2:08); 15 The German Sub/To The Nazi Hideout (4:32); 16 Ark Trek (1:33); 17 The Miracle Of The Ark (6:05); 18 The Warehouse (:56); 19 End Credits (5:20).

Review: This beautifully-produced restoration of Williams' classic adventure score assembles the lion's share of the score (78 minutes) with superior sound quality. Produced at the height of Williams' epic period (between Superman and The Empire Strikes Back), Raiders is a rip-snorting action ride that begins early on after a moody, low-key opening as intrepid archeologist Indiana Jones enters a booby-trapped cave in the jungles of Peru. Williams' scoring of the escape from the cavern is a showcase of frenzied, virtuoso orchestral effects beautifully capped by the energetic pizzicato of "Escape from Peru" with its engaging introduction of the brassy, infectious Indiana Jones fanfare. There are action highlights to spare, including the film's indelible truck chase (restored from the sliced-and-diced original album presentation) and some furious accompaniment to a deadly fistfight beneath the propellers of a flying wing, as well as the spectral, mysterious underscoring of scenes involving the search for the Ark of the Covenant, including a beautiful Middle Eastern-sounding woodwind theme and the eerie, imposing passages played under the discovery and excavation of the Ark's resting place ("The Map Room: Dawn" and "The Well of Souls"). Like Williams' Star Wars, Raiders has a freshness that's somewhat lacking in his more calculated efforts on the second and third films in the series.

Rain Man

1989, Capitol Records; from the movie Rain Man, United Artists Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Featured Artists: The Belle Stars, Johnny Clegg and Savuca, The Delta Rhythm Boys, Etta James, Ian Gilland and Roger Glover, Bananarama, Rob Wasserman with Aaron Neville, Lou Christie; Producers: Brian Tench, Hilton Rosenthal, Tony Romeo; Album Producer: Allan Mason.

Selections: 1 Iko Iko (Hawkins/Jones/Hawkins/Jones/Johnson/Jones/Thomas) (2:54) The Belle Stars; 2 Scatterlings Of Africa (J. Clegg)(4:06) Johnny Clegg and Savuca; 3 Dry Bones (p.d.)(2:55) The Delta Rhythm Boys; 4 At Last (H. Warren/M. Gordon)(3:01) Etta James; 5 Lonely Avenue (D. Pomus)(3:10) Ian Gillan, Roger Glover; 6 Nathan Jones (L.Caston/K. Wakefield)(5:12) Bananarama; 7 Leaving Wallbrook/On The Road (H. Zimmer)(2:54); 8 Las Vegas/End Credits (H. Zimmer)(8:22); 9 Stardust (H. Carmichael/M. Parrish)(4:36) Rob Wasserman, Aaron Neville; 10 Beyond The Blue Horizon (L. Robin/R. Whiting) (3:45) Lou Christie.

Review: If only because of the line-up of performers who appear on it (Johnny Clegg and Savuca, The Delta Rhythm Boys, Bananarama, Lou Christie, Aaron Neville, etc.), this soundtrack album would be worth having. But the musical selections are also quite strong, with several standards sprinkled along the way, and songs that are generally quite enjoyable. In all this display of inventive tunes and interpretations, Hans Zimmer's lonely two cues hardly make a dent, though the composer seems to have perfectly caught the spirit of this story about two brothers with diametrically opposed lifestyles, one an autistic genius, capable of having complex thoughts and being mentally limited all at once, the other a selfish luxury car salesman whose only motivation is to make money fast. The two selections here detail the cross-country trip made by the brothers, Raymond and Charlie, after Charlie discovers that their dead father has left all his money to his sibling, a trip that will result in a better understanding of themselves and the bonds that tie them together. Zimmer's music, in keeping with the tone of the story, is forceful and extremely evocative.

The Rainbow

1989, Silva Screen Records; from the movie The Rainbow, Vestron Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Carl Davis; Orchestrations: Nic Raine; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Carl Davis; Featured Musicians: The Hartford Motors Concert Brass, conducted by Dr. Keith Wilkinson; Album Producer: Nic Raine; Engineer: Allan Snelling.

Selections: 1 Prelude and Opening Titles (4:13); 2 Walking Home (1:03); 3 The Swingboats (1:37); 4 Ursula And Winifred (2:40); 5 Seduction/The Lettuce Patch (3:17); 6 Exam Results (2:02); 7 School Assembly (Playmates) (I. Hampden) (1:22); 8 Mr. Harby (3:34); 9 The Wedding: The British Grenadiers Fanfare (trad.)/The Lancers(trad.)/Poor Wandering One (A. Sullivan/W. Gilbert) (4:58) The Hartford Motors Concert Brass; 10 Moonlight Lovers (2:42); 11 Military Two-Step (1:26); 12 The Waterfall (3:27); 13 Cottage Idyll (2:57); 14 Pursuit Through The Forest (4:14); 15 Ursula's Dream (1:37); 16 The Rainbow End Titles (2:47); 17 Opening Titles (alt. version) (2:43); 18 Moonlight Lovers (alt. version) (2:14); 19 The Rainbow End Titles (alt. version) (2:45).

Review: Thanks to his world tours, where he conducts live his scores to classic silent films like Napoleon, Ben-Hur and others, Carl Davis seems destined to be less likely remembered as the composer of contemporary film scores. The Rainbow is typically bombastic and overtly romantic for its period setting. Davis plays the seduction and sexual education of a young schoolteacher to the hilt with his broad musical strokes. Like most collections of his work, this album has a distinct feel of a classical concert piece, and that makes it a delightful listen, devoid of any experience with the film. The score's flow is carefully divided by Ida Hampton's "School Assembly," and a suite of traditional military and Gilbert & Sullivan music for "The Wedding" sequence. Davis has also included three alternate variations of cues that were changed at the request of director Ken Russell. "Moonlight Loves," for example, was toned down from its original version (track 18) when Russell expressed to the composer that something simpler (track 10) was needed for the film.

Raintree County

1989, Preamble Records; from the movie Raintree County, M-G-M, 1957.

Album Notes: Music: Johnny Green; The M-G-M Studio Symphony Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Johnny Green; Album Producers: Johnny Green, Jesse Kaye; Engineer: William Steinkamp; CD Producer: John Lasher; Engineer Robert Vosgien.

Selections: CD 1: 1 Overture (3:35); 2 Prologue (Song Of Raintree County) (J. Green/P.F. Webster)(2:46); 3 Nell And Johnny's Graduation Gifts (3:46); 4 Johnny's Search For The Raintree (3:44); 5 Flash Perkins' Theme (2:27); 6 Johnny And Susanna's First Meeting (4:23); 7 July Picnic (6:01); 8 Johnny's Farewell To Nell/River Wedding Night (7:24); 9 Burned-Out Mansion/ Susanna's Obsession/Lament For Henrietta (5:19); 10 Carriage Ride (:51); 11 Return To Raintree County (4:05).

CD 2: 1 Susanna's Madness/War Begins (6:39); 2 Flash Joins Up/Little Jeemie Is Born/Nell Returns (5:03); 3 Susanna's Secret/Susanna And Jeemie Disappear/ Johnny Leaves For The Front/Finale, Act One (6:17); 4 Prologue, Act Two (3:00); 5 Battle Montage/Atlanta Destroyed (3:02); 6 Johnny And Flash At Fairweather/Jeemie Is Found/The Ambush/Flash Dies (5:13); 7 Johnny's Escape/ War's End/Reunion With Susanna/ Lincoln's Funeral Train (5:33); 8 Susanna's Tragic Decision and Her Death/Nell, Johnny And Jeemie Together/Finale (8:13).

Review: Though he spent more than 10 years at M-G-M, where he was General Music Director and Executive in Charge of Music, and he scored many important films during that time, Johnny Green is not often thought of as a great composer in the same league with his more visible peers from that era. The one film for which he is best remembered, however, is a lavish Civil War drama, Raintree County, based on a novel by Ross Lockridge, which the studio wanted to be a follow-up of sorts to the blockbuster Gone with the Wind. Filmed at great expense, using the newly developed 65mm process, and with a brilliant cast that included Elizabeth Taylor, Montgomery Clift and Eva Marie Saint, the film captures the passion and drama in the novel, set against the broad rich canvas of the Lincoln presidency and the turmoil between the North and the South. It may not be Gone with the Wind redux, but it is big, epic, and memorable. So is Green's score, which was perfectly adapted to the needs of the story, though it does not mark the film indelibly the way Max Steiner's score marks Gone with the Wind, nor does its main theme, the evocative "Song of Raintree County," ever hope to become another "Tara Theme." Still, quite professional in its approach and accurately reflecting the sweeping action on-screen, Raintree County remains an important score, magnificently serviced by this complete 2-CD release.

Raising Arizona/ Blood Simple

1985, Varese-Sarabande; from the movies Raising Arizona and Blood Simple, Circle Films, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Carter Burwell; Featured Musicians: Raising Arizona: Carter Burwell (synthesizers, samples), Ben Freed (banjo), John Crowder (yodeling), Mieszyslaw Litwinski (whistling, guitar), Geoffrey Gordon, Skip LaPlante (percussion), Alan Drogin, Steven Swartz, Don Peyton (ukuleles); Blood Simple: Carter Burwell (keyboards), Stanley Adler (bass guitar), Stephen Bray, Stanton Miranda (percussion); Album Producer: Carter Burwell; Engineers: Sebastian Niessen, Rod Hui.

Selections: RAISING ARIZONA: 1 Introduction: A Hole In The Ground (:32); 2 Way Out There (Main Title)(1:18); 3 He Was Horrible (1:24); 4 Just Business (1:13); 5 The Letter (2:24); 6 Hail Lenny (2:12); 7 Raising Ukuleles (3:30); 8 Dream Of The Future (2:25); 9 Shopping Arizona (2:45); 10 Return To The Nursery (:37);

BLOOD SIMPLE: 11 Crash And Burn (2:26); 12 Blood Simple (3:30); 13 Chain Gang (4:50); 14 The March (2:30); 15 Monkey Chant (1:02); 16 The Shooting (3:23); 17 Blood Simpler (1:19).

Review: The schizophrenic score for Raising Arizona has a problem deciding just what it wants to be, and that's what creates its charm. From the blue grass banjo opening, it morphs into a strange series of style changes, yodeling in the main title and eerie synth cues that stress danger. One track, "Just Business," is a mix of odd vocals and the rattling, perhaps, of garbage can lids. "Hail Lenny" seems to have been inspired by Ennnio Morricone's "Spaghetti Western" scores and, oh yeah, there's a couple of real melodies, too, like "Dreaming of the Future." Perhaps what makes this score so intriguing is that it never sits in one place long enough to wear out its welcome, just like the Coen Brothers' movie did, changing tone at the most bizarre moments. Also included on the album is Burwell's first score for the Coens, Blood Simple, a restrained synth score that contrasts nicely with Arizona's dementia, and provides a solid base for the murder mystery's dark film noir aura.

Raising Cain

1992, Milan Records; from the movie Raising Cain, Universal Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Pino Donaggio; Orchestrations: Pino Donaggio, Natale Massara; Electronic Sound Creations/Computer Performances: Paolo Steffan; The Unione Musicisti di Roma, conducted by Natale Massara; Album Producer: Pino Donaggio; Engineer: Sergio Marcotulli.

Selections: 1 Raising Cain (2:00); 2 Tricking Karen (1:50); 3 Cain Takes Over (4:47); 4 Love Memories (3:12); 5 A Blow On The Head (4:17); 6 Jenny And Carter Talk (1:22); 7 Jenny's Return (2:39); 8 The Clock (2:25); 9 Father Against Cain (2:25); 10 The Sinking (1:36); 11 Dr. Walheim Hypnotizes Carter (5:10); 12 The Gift Giver (2:22); 13 Following Margo (2:00); 14 Shadows Of The Past (2:42); 15 Jenny Tries To Save Amy (1:44); 16 Flying Babies (3:38); 17 Carter's Return (1:21); 18 The Plan (3:15); 19 Love Wins (3:22).

Review: Pino Donaggio reteamed with Brian DePalma for the first time in eight years with this shamless hodge-podge score for one of the director's most unsatisfying ventures into Hitchcock territory. A music-box motive is joined by yearning strings in search of a resolution in Donaggio's score, which sounds like Michel Legrand's Summer of '42 one moment and Bernard Herrmann's Psycho the next. Still, if you're a thriller fan and can get past the stylistic "influences," you'll probably get a kick out of Donaggio's score, which offers up a sexy sax during the film's love theme (is there any other instrument than conveys passion better than the saxophone?) with plenty of energy to spare. There's nothing here you haven't heard before, but that—at least somewhat—seems to be the point.

Rambling Rose

1991, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Rambling Rose, Seven Arts-New Line Cinema, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: Cynthia Millar; Engineer: Brian Masterson.

Selections: 1 "Hello, I'm Rose" (5:23); 2 The Family Meets Rose (2:18); 3 Father's "Reverse Insomnia" (:55); 4 Orphans (1:41); 5 Revelation (3:14); 6 Love (1:59); 7 Dixie (Rose On The Town) (:42) Louis Armstrong and The Dukes of Dixieland; 8 "That Scruffy Looking Man" (3:06); 9 "Let The Crazy Creature Out" (2:26); 10 Fever (1:36); 11 Safe Home (1:01); 12 "Hired, Mired And Fired" (1:26); 13 Compassion (2:46); 14 Rose And Buddy (4:25); 15 Goodbyes (2:46); 16 "So Long Rose" (2:57); 17 Dixie (3:44) Louis Armstrong and The Dukes of Dixieland; 18 If I Could Be With You One Hour Tonight (H. Creamer/J. Johnson) (2:56) Ruth Etting.

Review: Throughout his career, Elmer Bernstein has written some seriously attractive scores, but none that have matched the serene beauty of this wonderful effort for a film starring Robert Duvall and Laura Dern. A flavorful story of an oversexed young woman, working as a maid in a small Georgia town in the mid-'30s and the effect she has on her employer and his family, the amusingly provocative tale prompted Bernstein to write a score, beautifully understated and brimming with delightful folksy little touches, which play an important role in giving the film the right atmosphere and makes for a very enjoyable listening experience. In his notes for this album, Bernstein remarks that when he first saw the film as a work in progress, after he had been asked to write the music for it, "I felt [a] particular sense of excitement." The excitement translated itself into a remarkably distinctive score!

Rambo

Rambo: First Blood Part II

1987, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Rambo: First Blood Part II, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producers: Jerry Goldsmith, Bruce Botnick; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:08); 2 Preparation (1:12); 3 The Jump (3:12); 4 The Snake (1:43); 5 Stories (3:23); 6 The Cage (3:48); 7 Betrayed (4:20); 8 Escape From Torture (3:30); 9 Ambush (2:38); 10 Revenge (6:12); 11 Bowed Down (1:02); 12 Pilot Over (1:48); 13 Home Flight (2:56); 14 Day By Day (2:06); 15 Peace In Our Life (F. Stallone/P. Schless/J. Goldsmith) (3:12).

Review: Goldsmith hit his stride with this second Rambo film, the epitome of Reagan-era jingoistic action, which he scored with a nimble, adventurous work that is diametrically opposed to the dark, heavy sound of the original First Blood. The score launches with a surprisingly beautiful oriental theme that gives way to a new Americana theme for the Rambo character, although Goldsmith's familiar Rambo fanfare punctuates most of the film's triumphant action moments. It's almost non-stop chases and fights, alternating with sneaky suspense cues, but Goldsmith makes this surprisingly emotional, keying in on Sylvester Stallone's wounded characterization of the hypermuscled hero. The mix of strong melodic material and heavy-duty action rhythms makes this a score that should appeal to both longtime Goldsmith fans and younger listeners used to the composer's more romantic scores of the '90s.

Rambo III

1989, Intrada; from the movie Rambo III, Carolco Entertainment, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton, Nancy Beach; The Hungarian State Opera Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Mike Rossi; CD Producer: Douglass Fake.

Selections: 1 Another Time (3:58); 2 Preparations (6:21); 3 The Money (:52); 4 I'm Not Used To It (1:00); 5 Pesha War (1:12); 6

Afghanistan (2:38); 7 Questions (3:37); 8 Then I'll Die (3:34); 9 The Game (2:25); 10 Flaming Village (4:07); 11 The Aftermath (2:44); 12 Night Entry (3:58); 13 Under And Over (2:55); 14 Night Fight (6:50); 15 First Aid (2:46); 16 The Long Climb (3:25); 17 Going Down (1:52); 18 The Cave (3:31); 19 The Boot (1:53); 20 You Did It John (1:08); 21 The Show Down (1:26); 22 Final Battle (4:50); 23 I'll Stay (9:00).

Review: This Goldsmith trip to the Rambo well is probably the most lyrical score ever written for a film of this type, mixing smooth ethnic and electronic rhythms, coiling, propulsive action cues and some graceful, almost nocturne-like interludes. This lengthy, 70-minute CD features plenty of action highlights, from the ritualistic beat of "The Game" to the elaborate "Fire Fight" with its escalating series of frenzied string variations over pulsing flutes and woodwinds, and "The Boot" which builds a simple rhythmic motif into a monolithic tutti orchestral statement. The opening cue is built almost entirely from percussion, with some rhythm elements that could have come from a Doors song, while more subdued cues like "Then I'll Die" and "Peshawar" create beautifully evocative ethnic rhythms. Since Goldsmith's score was heavily sliced and diced in the film, this is the only way to hear it as he originally intended, including the composer's original end credits, which were replaced with pop songs in the movie.

Rampage

1987, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Rampage, DEG Films, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra Unione Musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineer: Sergio Marcotulli.

Selections: 1 Rampage (4:15); 2 Son (:45); 3 Findings (1:21); 4 Over To The Jury (1:35); 5 Run, Run, Run (2:33); 6 Since Childhood (3:20); 7 Magma (2:16); 8 Rampage (3:59); 9 Gruesome Discovery (2:56); 10 Carillon (2:08); 11 District Attorney (1:40); 12 Mother (1:57); 13 Recollections (3:40).

Review: In another step away from the style he used for his most popular efforts, Ennio Morricone created a disturbing score, full of threatening sounds and angular themes, for this crime drama about a serial killer on the loose with a bent for satanic practices. Characteristic of Morricone's approach for this type of film, the cues are profuse elaboration for strings, with layers upon layers of textures creating an ominous sound, occasionally accented by a solo violin, or an otherwordly chorus performing in counterpoint. Breaking with the moods created, "Since Childhood" brings a different evocation, with its gentle crystalline bells over an attractive, melancholy-tinged melody, in a theme reprised with more forcefulness in "Carillon" in which it achieves a different, more dangerous effect. A strangely evocative score that will appeal to a limited audience, but is well worth discovering.

Ransom

1996, Hollywood Records; from the movie Ransom, Touchstone Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: James Horner, Don Davis, David Slonaker; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistants Engineers: Sabdy Bass, Marc Gebauer, David Marquette, Jay Selvester, Kirsten Smith.

Selections: 1 The Kidnapping (4:35); 2 Delivering The Ransom (12:04); 3 The Quarry (4:22); 4 A Two Million Dollar Bounty (4:24); 5 Parallel Stories (2:35); 6 A Fatal Mistake (4:52); 7 A Dark Reunion (3:08); 8 The Payoff/End Credits (12:22); 9 Rats (B. Corgan)(3:07) Bill Corgan; 10 Worms (B. Corgan)(4:17) Bill Corgan; 11 Spiders (B. Corgan) (3:34) Bill Corgan; 12 Lizards (B. Corgan)(3:11) Bill Corgan; 13 Worms, Part 2 (B. Corgan)(4:40) Bill Corgan; 14 Squirrels With Tails (B. Corgan)(5:20) Bill Corgan.

Review: This oft-times subdued effort by James Horner was actually a replacement score for a work by another composer. Since Horner relies on his usual bag of musical tricks (i.e. the beating xylophone, the flurry of percussion), this could easily be mistaken for outtakes from his last effort for director Ron Howard, Apollo 13. Sadly, at no point does anything unique or interesting come out and, in the end, there's nothing here that feels as if its worth listening to. Even the "End Title" is just okay. Billy Corgan, a member of the rock group The Smashing Pumpkins, also composed a portion of the score, six mind-numbing tracks of techno-rock music played in the film by the kidnappers. These tracks were obviously created to eliminate any empathy for them by torturing the audience. Corgan definitely shows the potential for a second career scoring horror films.

Ransom/The Chairman

1991, Silva Screen Records; from the movies Ransom (The Terrorists), British Lion Films, 1975; and The Chairman, 20th Century-Fox, 1969.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Ransom:The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson; The Chairman: Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: John Neal; CD Producers: Ford A. Thaxton, David Stoner, James Fitzpatrick; Engineer: Steve Fisk.

Selections: RANSOM: 1 Queen's Messenger (2:38); 2 Mission Aborted (5:04); 3 No Alternative (2:22); 4 Sky Chaser (5:37); 5 Course Of Action (2:36); 6 Peeping Tom (2:36); 7 End Title (2:36);

THE CHAIRMAN: 8 Main Title (2:23); 9 Goodbye For Now (1:45); 10 The Fence (1:45); 11 The Tour (2:37); 12 Soong Chu (2:17); 13 Fire Fight (3:20); 14 The World Only Lovers See (Love Theme)(2:25) Jerry Goldsmith (piano solo); 15 The Red Guard (3:15); 16 Hathaway's Farewell (2:45); 17 A Late Visitor(2:44); 18 Escape (3:02); 19 Finale/End Title (3:13).

Review: Silva Screen rescued two important Jerry Goldsmith scores at once with this lengthy CD, but lack of access to the original studio tapes means that this is essentially a recording of an LP and some commercially-available cassettes, resulting in the kind of sound quality that will make audiophiles cringe. For those who just want to hear the music, however, this is an exciting album, with Goldsmith's bombastic, European-flavored Ransom score making heavy use of a declamatory four-note horn theme, which surges through chase and suspense cues over low-end piano and harpsichord. "Sky Chaser" expands a soaring romantic theme through shimmering orchestral textures, even taking it through a jazz-influenced riff. The Chairman showcases Goldsmith's striking skill at adapting Oriental melodies and orchestral effects, from its haunting shaikiku theme plays over rice and snare drums until it's eventually taken up by the entire orchestra, to some amazingly nimble, agitated action cues like "The Fence" and "Firefight." The intense suspense and action cues alternate with some gorgeously soothing atmospheric cues.

Rapid Fire

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Rapid Fire, 20th Century-Fox, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Young; Orchestrations: Christopher Young; Music Editor: Tom Milano; Synthesizers/ Electronic Percussion: Mark Zimoski, Daniel Licht; Album Producer: Christopher Young.

Selections: 1 Rapid Fire (3:04); 2 Da-Daiko (1:28); 3 Be Or Not (1:56); 4 Witness To A Murder (3:37); 5 Together Alone (2:51); 6 Mousetrap (2:54); 7 Good Humor (1:58); 8 Glory Trail (3:10); 9 Fed Funk Muck (3:54); 10 Slim Princess (1:11); 11 Free Fire (4:14); 12 Say (2:58); 13 Kix (1:50); 14 Kaper Kut (5:40); 15 Wish You Wish (1:34).

Review: When a college student, who is also a karate champion, witnesses a mob murder, what do you get? An expert score by Christopher Young! The 1992 movie suggested a deft blend of electronic sounds and percussive effects that emphasize the screen action, while giving it a greater focus. The explicit cues detail the action with great force and consistency, providing an extra dramatic edge that strikes a responsive note in the recording as well. In the midst of all the action, a tender moment ("Together Alone") provides an unexpected change of pace.

The Rapture

1991, Polydor Records; from the movie The Rapture, New Line Cinema, 1991.

Selections: 1 Hymn No. 27 (Opening Theme)(3:45); 2 Wave (A.C. Jobim)(2:51) Antonio Carlos Jobim; 3 Ruler Of My Heart (N. Neville)(2:36) Irma Thomas; 4 Now I Lay Down (1:39); 5 Directly From My Heart To You (R. Penniman)(2:44) Little Richard; 6 Six Years Later (1:31); 7 Aguas de Marco (A.C. Jobim)(3:04) Elis Regina; 8 Writhe And Wither (1:30); 9 Alarm (1:31); 10 Well Enough (S. Wilk/J. Christensen)(3:31) Julie Christensen; 11 I'll Be Your Mirror (L. Reed)(2:14) The Velvet Underground; 12 Grace Disengaged (1:39); 13 Shallow Grave (2:16); 14 In Jail (3:30); 15 Next Diaspora (2:10); 16 Cheap Sleep (1:31); 17 Astronaut Anthem (M. Monk)(4:57) Meredith Monk

Review: The Rapture is a downright strange score written for the story of a disillusioned young woman (Mimi Rogers) drawn into a super-Fundamentalist religious cult. Thomas Newman has had a profound influence on dramatic scoring in the 1990s and this early score features many of the techniques that have become the sound of seriousness—eerie wails and dissonant strings over transcendent drones, so that it seems to be flying apart just as it is ground to the earth. Percussion samples prove unsettling, repeating loops of ticks and tacks unnaturally sped up. A piano is introduced, lightly playing two delicate chords of ambiguous harmony. This is music where the timbres and the melodies are intertwined. The whole thing hits with a deeply ambiguous, distorted meaning. Continuing another trend of the '90s, the album includes several songs of varied genres, from Little Richard's "Directly from My Heart to You" to Meredith Monk and Vocal Ensemble's choral hymnal "Astronaut Anthem."

Review: It took no less than eight composers to create this vapid, vaguely pretentious musical hodgepodge for a film starring Arnold Schwarzenegger. A series of electronic noises, punctuated by a rhythm track, with amplified guitars playing some undistinguished tunes, it might have been effective behind the screen action, where it went by without being noticed, but it doesn't cut it as musical background sans the visuals. It's predictable, it's empty, it's annoying! In short, it's the kind of album that gives film music a bad name.

The Razor's Edge

1992, Preamble Records; from the movie The Razor's Edge, Columbia Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Jack Nitzsche; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Stanley Black; Featured Musician: Bruno Hoffman (glass harmonica); Album Producer: Jack Nitzsche; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: ORCHESTRAL SUITE: 1 Main Title (2:25); 2 Night Picnic (1:04); 3 Trenches (2:00); 4 Fireworks/World War I (1:35); 5 Motorcycle/Climbing The Stairs (1:54); 6 Maturin's Funeral (1:57); 7 Larry Leaves The Monastery (:46); 8 Opium Den (3:18); 9 Piedmont Hit (1:21); 10 Piedmont's Death (1:00); 11 End Title/End Credits (4:02);

LARRY'S JOURNEY: 12 Arrival In India (2:26); 13 The Monastery (1:20); 14 Larry's Journey (3:25); 15 Can't Stop Dancing (P. Murray) (3:25); 16 A Toda Vela (F. Frank/A. Ladriere)(3:21); 17 Organ Grinder (1:36).

Review: Early in his career, Bill Murray starred in this bizarre remake, based on W. Somerset Maugham's novel, about a "dreamer of beautiful dreams" who delays his marriage to a wealthy and proper society girl, so that he can "find himself" among the Lost Generation in bohemian Paris of the early 1920s. Murray's performance notwithstanding, the film called for and received an eloquent musical score from Jack Nitzsche, whose own sensitivity found ample fodder in its subject matter. Beautifully expressive, with longing romantic cues that expand on the storyline and flesh it out considerably, the score (presented here in the "Orchestral Suite") is particularly striking and one of the best efforts from this often unheralded composer. "Larry's Journey," which consists of source music is also interesting as an adjunct to Nitzsche's score.

The Re-Animator/ Bride of the Re-Animator

1991, Silva Screen Records; from the movies The Re-Animator, 1987, and Bride of the Re-Animator, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Richard Band; Orchestrations: Richard Band; The Rome Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Richard Band; Album Producer: Richard Band; Engineer: Nick Vidar.

Selections: THE RE-ANIMATOR: 1 Prologue Parts 1 & 2/Main Title (4:09); 2 Halsey Grabs Meg (1:07); 3 Halsey Alive/First Corpse To Be Reanimated/Corpses Reanimated (5:11); 4 Searching

The Morgue For A Body/Waiting For A Reaction/ Meg And Dr. Hill/Body And Soul/The Cat Experiment/Halsey Lobotomized/ "Where's The Cat?" (11:31); 5 "Parts, Whole Parts"/End Sequence: The Corpses Run Amok! (7:08); 6 Meg Reanimated/ End Title (3:52);

BRIDE OF THE RE-ANIMATOR: 7 Prologue: Hill Head/Main Title (3:44); 8 Building The Bride (3:36); 9 West And Dan In The Furnace Room To Get The Body (2:06); 10 Driving To The House (:42); 11 Dr. Hill Goes Batty/The Bride Lives! (3:50); 12 The Body Parts Room/West Steals The Feet (2:51); 13 The Bat Sequence (1:42); 14 "Well, We Could" (4:11); 15 Sex Scene (1:13); 16 West Cons Dans (3:12); 17 West Cons Dan (Again!)(3:30); 18 End Sequence: West Looks For Hill's Head/ The Bride Revealed/West's Justification/Dan Rejects The Bride/The Dead Heads Attack (9:07); 19 The Freak Show/The End Of Herbert West (Until "Re-Animator 3") (4:06).

Review: Richard Band shamelessly makes a play on Bernard Herrmann's score for Psycho, an adaption that adds to the manic quality of this perversely funny horror series. Few critics though failed to make the connection Band was implying between the sexually repressed Norman Bates and the obsessed re-animator, Dr. Herbert West. Much of his music concentrates on showing off the horror element, a move that substantially emphasizes the black humor. For this project, Band was able to go to Italy and score the entire film with The Rome Philharmonic Orchestra, with this portion of the CD affording a rare look at what he can do when the budget allows him to work with a full-scale symphonic orchestra. Remarkably, little seemed lost when Band had to score the sequel with synthesizers five years later. In fact, the playing of the Psycho-inspired theme on all synthesizers gives the impression more than ever that West is just a sniveling ratboy. A genuinely funny goof on the whole genre.

Rebecca

1991, Marco Polo Records; from the movie Rebecca, Selznick International, 1940.

Album Notes: Music: Franz Waxman; The Czecho-Slovak Radio Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Adriano; Featured Soloist: Viktor Simcisko, violin; Album Producers: Karol Kopernick, Hubert Geschwandtner.

Selections: 1 Selznick International Trademark (A. Newman)/ Foreword/ Opening Scene (4:30); 2 Hotel Lobby (waltz)(3:44); 3 Terrace Scene/Tennis Montage I/Tennis Montage II (7:51); 4 Proposal Scene/Marriage/Arrival At Manderley (5:14); 5 Entrance Hall/Mrs. Danvers (3:57); 6 Morning Room (2:45); 7 Beatrice (1:04); 8 Bridge Sequence/Walk To The Beach/The Boathouse/Coming Back From The Boathouse (7:14); 9 The New Dress (1:18); 10 Rebecca's Room/The New Mrs. De Winter (8:18); 11 Sketching Scene (2:24); 12 Manderley Ball (3:23); 13 After The Ball/The Rockets/At Dawn (6:57); 14 Confession Scene/Telephone Rings (6:45); 15 Fireplace Tableau/The Fire/ Epilogue (5:25).

Review: In the profuse history of Hollywood film music, which has been marked by so many superlative scores, Franz Waxman's music for Rebecca will always stand out as a milestone and one of the best scores ever composed for the screen. Based on the Gothic novel by Daphne du Maurier, the film, starring Joan Fontaine and Laurence Olivier, directed by Alfred Hitchcock, exudes an impenetrable aura of mystery and suspense, coupled with romantic undertones and youthful flights of fancy that soften the drama, yet ultimately give it a sharper edge by contrast. All these elements eventually find their way into the composer's expression, in a score that teems with sweeping themes, richly expressive and sophisticated. This superb new recording, in widespread digital sound, features the Czecho-Slovak Radio Symphony Orchestra conducted by Adriano in a flawless performance that brings out all the nuances in the music and details some of the salient moments in the score. It is a worthy addition to any collection that invites repeated listening.

Red Dawn

1989, Intrada Records; from the movie Red Dawn, United Artists, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie, Jack Smalley, Scott Smalley; Orchestra conducted by Basil Poledouris; Album Producers: Basil Poledouris, Douglass Fake; Engineers: Aaron Rochin, Hank Cicalo; Assistant Engineer: Stanley Carr.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:38); 2 The Invasion (5:18); 3 The Drive-In (6:20); 4 Let It Turn (1:10); 5 Wolverines (2:05); 6 Flowers (3:04); 7 The Eulogy (2:51); 8 Robert's End (3:50); 9 Death And Freedom/End Title (6:35).

Review: Intrada's debut collector's LP is an excellent choice, preserving Basil Poledouris' confident symphonic adventure score for John Milius' communist invasion movie. The nine cues appearing on the CD are fairly long ones, totaling about 35 minutes of music (short by CD standards, but sufficient). Two themes dominate the score, the "Red Dawn Theme," a deep, throbbing motif which signifies the invasion, and the "Wolverine Theme," a heroic, three-note melody which denotes the teenage guerrillas who struggle against the Communist invaders. These themes are very nicely integrated into Poledouris' rhythmic and tonal action cues, merging Americana and militaristic sensibilities into a cohesive score that bristles with dynamic range and vigor.

Red Heat

1988, Virgin Records; from the movie Red Heat, Carolco International, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Music Editor: Nany Fogarty; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Featured Soloists: Michael Boddicker, Brandon Fields, James Horner, Kazu Matsui, Tim May, Steven Schaeffer, Neil Stubenhaus, Ian Underwood; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:00); 2 Russian Streets (1:35); 3 Cleanhead Bust (4:16); 4 Victor Escapes (2:53); 5 Tailing Kat/ The Set Up (7:55); 6 Hospital Chase (4:30); 7 The Hotel (6:21); 8 Bus Station (9:34); 10 End Credit (4:04).

Review: James Horner worked with director Walter Hill a number of times over the years, from the raucous comedy of 48 Hrs. through his rejected score for Streets of Fire (which was ultimately replaced with music by Ry Cooder). Red Heat, Hill's engaging 1988 action picture, gets a definite boost from the film's twist on the old cop-buddy formula—while we still have a stereotypical, chain-smoking Chicago police officer (Jim Belushi), this time he's paired with a Russian cop (the one and only Arnold Schwarzenegger) tracking a drug dealer from his homeland. This affords Horner the opportunity to write bold Russian chorus music to complement the traditional action film suspense cues, and the combination results in a competent score that seems to have later been part of the inspiration behind Basil Poledouris' similar-sounding approach for The Hunt for Red October.

Red King, White Knight

1991, Intrada Records; from the movie Red King, White Knight, Cital Entertainment/Zenith Productions, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: John Scott; Orchestrations: John Scott; Orchestra conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineer: Adrian Kerridge.

Selections: 1 The KGB Faction (4:36); 2 The Assassin Is Clancy (4:18); 3 Bad Memories (1:15); 4 Clancy Prepares (1:23); 5 Memories Of A Past Love (1:02); 6 The Cemetery (2:33); 7 Airport Killing (4:19); 8 Music Box (1:54); 9 A Clancy Execution (2:32); 10 Idyll And Nightmare (3:26); 11 Cemetery Preparations (6:48); 12 Killer In A Crowd (2:01); 13 Laying The Wreath (3:29); 14 Clancy Strikes (3:58); 15 Aftermath and Epilogue (3:28).

Review: This nicely old-fashioned spy movie score by John Scott is reminiscent of a lot of those 1960s cold war films in which composers always portrayed the Russians with blatant ethnic motifs. As with all of Scott's work, the arrangements are full-bodied, but the overall tone is surprisingly darker and more forceful ("Airport Killing" for example) than his usual efforts, thanks in part to his uncharacteristic use of shrill brass effects. Scott, for the most part, often writes with that larger-than-life quality typical of 1940s film scoring, but here he attacks the material as never before. While scoring the music for the film, which follows the attempts of an American agent to stop the assassination of Soviet Premier Gorbachev, Scott was recording in Budapest when Hungary opened its boarders to East Germans on the eve of the fall of Communism.

Red Scorpion

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Red Scorpion, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Jay Chattaway; Orchestrations: Joseph Smith; Music Editor: Jack Tillar; Featured Musicians: Steve Croes, Pete Levin (electronic music), Judd Miller (African flute); Album Producer: Jay Chattaway; Engineer: Dan Hahn.

Selections: 1 Gift Of Sandals (1:21); 2 Desert Struggle (2:47); 3 Nik's Decision (1:20); 4 The Battle (3:09); 5 Porto Silva (3:37); 6 Attack On Mbaja (3:21); 7 Aftermath (:53); 8 Pins And Needles (2:45); 9 Dewey's Rescue (1:53); 10 Farewell Sundata (2:20); 11 Escape From The Compound (2:33); 12 Torch Song (1:19); 13 Oath Of Allegiance (1:57); 14 Village Of Death (3:47); 15 Farewell To Arms (1:19); 16 Nik Takes Charge (:56); 17 Victory Celebration (:46).

Review: Jay Chattaway produced an entertaining orchestral work for this standard Dolph Ludgren action yarn. Peppered with some intriguing synthesizer overlays and African flute solos, as in "Farewell Sundata," it captures the eerie mood of the desert locale and the battles between the Soviets and local tribes. Chattaway's action cues, like "The Battle" and "Attack on Mbaja," have some notably dynamic percussion work. This was the score that led to his selection as a regular composer on Star Trek: The Next Generation.

The Reivers

1995, Sony/Legacy; from the movie The Reivers, Cinema Center Films, 1969.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: Thomas Z. Shepard; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Chris Herles.

Selections: 1 Main Title/First Instruction/The Winton Flyer (5:11); 2 Family Funeral/Lucuius' First Drive (2:30); 3 The Road To Memphis (1:42); 4 Corrie's Entrance/The Picture (2:10); 5 Reflections (1:36); 6 The Sheriff Departs/The Bad News/Ned's Secret (4:09); 7 Memphis (1:21); 8 Ned's Trade (2:02); 9 The People Protest (1:05); 10 Prayers At Bedtime (2:40); 11 Lucius Runs To Corrie/Back Home (3:33); 12 Finale (4:15).

Review: John Williams' original score for The Reivers is what attracted Stephen Spielberg's attention to the composer, and one listen to this soundtrack recording will demonstrate exactly what endeared Williams to Spielberg and why their future collaborations worked so well.

This music is fun! In a thoroughly playful and lighthearted way, Williams proves his uncanny ability to set the stage for nearly any film setting—in this case, William Faulkner's novel about a boy's coming of age in turn-of-the-century Mississippi. The music so perfectly complements the complex thematic content of the film, it's as if the book and screenplay were written to accompany the music!

While shades of the future "Williams' sound" make cameo appearances throughout the score, we can also discern the influence of Aaron Copland (arguably the quintessential composer of American music), and orchestrator Robert Russell Bennett on Williams' work.

The Remains of the Day

1993, Angel Records; from the movie The Remains of the Day, Columbia Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Richard Robbins; Orchestrations: Robert Stewart; Orchestra conducted by Harry Rabinowitz; Engineers: Bill Sommerville-Large, Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles/ Darlington Hall (7:27); 2 The Keyhole And The Chinaman (4:14); 3 Tradition And Order (1:51); 4 The Conference Begins (1:33); 5 Sei Mir Gegrusst (F. Schubert/ F. Ruckert) (4:13) Ann Murray, Graham Johnson; 6 The Cooks In The Kitchen (1:34); 7 Sir Geoffrey Wren And Stevens, Sr. (2:41); 8 You Mean A Great Deal To This House (2:21); 9 Loss And Separation (6:19); 10 Blue Moon (R. Rodgers/L. Hart) (4:57); 11 Sentimental Love Story/Appeasement/In The Rain (5:22); 12 A Portrait Returns/Darlington Hall/End Credits (6:54).

Review: The quiet, elegant beauty of Richard Robbins' score is as strongly evocative of this Merchant Ivory production as the calm distinction of its central character, a perfect English butler, whose mistaken sense of duty for the owner of Darlington Hall over many years has cost him the love of an attractive young housekeeper, and any other trace of personal life. Tradition and strict adherence to the rules of propriety are elements that pervade Robbins' score ("Tradition and Order," "The Cooks in the Kitchen"), while the butler's realization, 30 years later, that his life has passed and he has little to show for it, is starkly evoked in "Sentimental Love Story/Appeasement/ In the Rain," in which his emotional journey takes him back to today's realities. Robbins' strongly suggestive score is striking in its sober account, yet profoundly revealing of the deep, emotional currents that motivate the film's central character.

Renaissance Man

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Renaissance Man, Touchstone Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Additional Music: Nick Glennie-Smith, John Van Tongeren, Bruce Fowler; Orchestrations: Bruce Fowler, Nick Glennie-Smith; Featured Soloist: Malcolm McNab (trumpet); Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Jay Rifkin; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Welcome To The Army (3:55); 2 Letter From Home (4:25); 3 Serving Your Country (4:11); 4 To Thine Own Self... (4:36); 5 Stay With Me (2:11); 6 Victory Starts Here (7:28); 7 Benitez Does Henry (2:32); 8 Everyone Is A Hero (4:26); 9 Marky Mark—"To Be Or Not To Be" (2:44).

Review: A bittersweet comedy about a civilian unemployed advertising executive who gets a job training new Army recruits, Renaissance Man enabled composer Hans Zimmer to tap into two very dissimilar, opposed sources—the no-nonsense, straightforward military background, which translated itself into brassy marches, with occasional flights of fancy; and the laissez-faire of the advertising man, played by Danny DeVito, who has a total disregard for Army regulations, which resulted in leisurely sedate cues. The two combine effectively, sometimes within the same cue, to create a diversified score that often has a sharp edge to it, with some melodic themes mingling with more abrasive tunes.

Rent-A-Cop

1987, Intrada Records; from the movie Rent-A-Cop, Kings Road Entertainment, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; The Hungarian State Opera Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producers: Jerry Goldsmith, Douglass Fake; Engineer: Alan Snelling.

Selections: 1 Rent-a-Cop (2:20); 2 The Bust (6:00); 3 Lonely Cop (1:35); 4 Russian Roulette (1:39); 5 The Station (2:49); 6 Worth A Lot (2:32); 7 Lights Out (2:15); 8 This Is The Guy (3:53); 9 They Need Me (1:45); 10 The Room (3:12); 11 Lake Forest (2:10); 12 Jump (4:34).

Review: You'd think the pairing of Burt Reynolds and Liza Minnelli would have made for box office dynamite, but this '80s time capsule from the waning moments of Reynolds' career was a disaster for all concerned, and composer Jerry Goldsmith didn't fare much better. His title theme features a bluesy, bittersweet trumpet solo, but the tune quickly escalates into some kind of pop anthem that's as far from Chinatown as Goldsmith is likely to get. The trumpet theme actually grows on you, but the rest of the album consists of some distinctly unmemorable, ticking electronic suspense cues that aren't likely to please either fans of the composer's earlier work or devotees of Harold Faltermeyer.

The Rescuers Down Under

1990, Walt Disney Records; from the animated feature The Rescuers Down Under, Walt Disney Films, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Orchestrations: Don Nemitz, Mark McKenzie; Music Editor: Kathleen Bennett; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Broughton; Album Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineers: Robert Fernandez, Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:35); 2 Answering Faloo's Call (1:29); 3 Cody's Flight (6:01); 4 Message Montage (A. Robbins/C. Connors)(2:46); 5 At The Restaurant (3:04); 6 Wilbur Takes Off (1:25); 7 McLeach Threatens Cody (1:17); 8 The Landing (1:59); 9 Bernard Almost Proposes (1:33); 10 Escape Attempt (1:28); 11 Frank's Out! (3:21); 12 Cody Finds The Eggs (1:31); 13 Bernard The Hero (3:35); 14 End Credits (3:36).

Review: The further adventures of Bernard and Bianca and their friend Cody, inspired Bruce Broughton to write a whimsical, inspired score which easily transcends its animated feature origin to provide an entertaining musical concept. Cleverly conceived to match the development of the story—in which Bernard, the world's bravest mouse, and Miss Bianca, answering a request for help from their friend Cody deep in the heart of Australia's vast and unpredictable outback, to save a magnificent eagle from a ruthless poacher, find themselves thrown in more difficulties than they had anticipated—Broughton's music pulls all the stops, from heroic to romantic, from soulful to romantic, in a vivid display that proves most satisfying. Of course, it's cartoon music, but of the better kind, and even adults will enjoy the tremendously exciting accents the composer conjures up along the way.

Restoration

1995, Milan Records; from the movie Restoration, Miramax Films, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard, Henry Purcell; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, Geoff Alexander, Frank Bennett, Don Nemitz, James Newton Howard; Music Editors: Jim Weidman, Robin Clarke, Bob Hathaway; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane, Rick Wentowrth, Robert Zeigler; Album Producers: Michael Mason, Shawn Murphy; Engineers: Shawn Murphy, Geoff Foster, Paul Hulme.

Selections: 1 If Love's A Sweet Passion (1:31); 2 Main Titles (2:57); 3 Frost Dance in C (1:34); 4 A Night With Lulu (1:21); 5 Minuet in G (:53); 6 Here The Deities Approve (2:28); 7 A Creature Of The New Age (1:09); 8 Overture in D (2:25); 9 The Wedding (1:39); 10 Hornpipe in D Minor (1:26); 11 Arrival In Bidnold (1:08); 12 The Cabinet Of Curiosities (2:54); 13 The Land Of Mar (1:11); 14 The Lie (1:19); 15 A New Ground in E Minor (:52); 16 Merivel Woos Celia (2:26); 17 Katharine Sleeps (3:23); 18 Taking Bidnold Back (1:35); 19 Muzette 1 in A Minor (M. Marais) (2:56) Laurence Dreyfus, Jakob Lindberg ; 20 The Right Knowledge (2:06); 21 The Plague (2:09); 22 Katharine's Death (4:37); 23 Night Sweats (3:03); 24 Hospital (2:54); 25 Doctor Merivel (1:50); 26 Listening To Celia's Heart (1:39); 27 The Fire (3:18); 28 Allegro from Sinfonia (Act II) (1:19); 29 Your Child I Believe (1:13); 30 Newcastle (trad.) (:38); 31 2nd Overture in D (1:27).

Review: James Newton Howard has scored all sorts of movies, from sci-fi adventures to romantic comedies, and he's done an admirable job no matter what time frame or galaxy he's working in. Restoration is his first "period" score, coming for a movie set in 1600s England, and the results are somewhat hard to gauge—the music works fine in the movie, but it is hard to fully review Howard's original work, which is more or less an adaptation of or modeling on classical works by composers of the period, including Henry Purcell and Marin Marais. The album never really finds its own voice, which leaves it most recommended for fans of the movie, who will be able to recall moments from the film through the music contained herein.

Return of the Jedi

1997, RCA Records; from the movie Return of the Jedi, 20th Century-Fox, 1983/1997.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Orchestrations: Herbert W. Spencer; The London Symphony Orchestra conducted by

John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams; Engineers: Eric Tomlinson, Jonathan Allen; CD Engineer: Dan Hersch.

Selections: CD 1: 1 20th Century-Fox Fanfare (A. Newman) (:22); 2 Main Title/Approaching The Death Star/Tatooine Rendezvous (9:21); 3 The Droids Are Captured (1:17); 4 Bounty For A Wookie (2:50); 5 Han Solo Returns (4:01); 6 Luke Confronts Jabba/Den Of The Rancor/Sarlacc Sentence (8:51); 7 The Pit Of Carkoon/Sail Barge Assault (6:02); 8 The Emperor Arrives/The Death Of Yoda/ Obi-Wan's Revelation (10:58); 9 Alliance Assembly (2:13); 10 Shuttle Tydirium Approaches Endor (4:09); 11 Speeder Bike Chase/Land Of The Ewoks (9:38); 12 The Levitation/Threepio's Bedtime Story (2:46); 13 Jabba's Baroque Recital (3:09); 14 Jedi Rocks (J. Hey)(2:42); 15 Sail Barge Assault (alternate)(5:04).

CD 2: 1 Parade Of The Ewoks (3:28); 2 Luke And Leia (4:46); 3 Brother And Sister/Father And Son/The Fleet Enters Hyperspace/Heroic Ewok (10:40); 4 Emperor's Throne Room (3:26); 5 The Battle Of Endor I: Into The Trap/Forest Ambush/ Scout Walker Scramble/Prime Weapon Fires (11:50); 6 The Lightsaber/The Ewok Battle (4:31); 7 The Battle Of Endor II: Leia Is Wounded/The Duel Begins/ Overtaking The Bunker/ The Dark Side Beckons/The Emperor's Death (10:03); 8 The Battle Of Endor III: Superstructure Chase/Darth Vader's Death/The Main Reactor (6:04); 9 Leia's News/Light Of The Force (3:24); 10 Victory Celebration/End Title (8:34); 11 Ewok Feast/Part Of The Tribe (4:02); 12 The Forest Battle (concert suite)(4:05).

Review: The score for the final film in the original Star Wars trilogy is as redundant and uninspired as the movie itself, resurrecting numerous stretches of scoring from Star Wars and The Empire Strikes Back while providing little in the way of memorable new themes (unless you have a hankering to hum Jabba the Hutt's rattling tuba melody). However, Nick Redman and Michael Mattesino have done a masterful job of reassembling the knotted original elements of Jedi's score, which was extensively edited in the movie (sometimes tracking actual cues from the earlier films into scenes for which John Williams had written new music). Most of the sequences involving Luke Skywalker's struggle with the evil Galactic Emperor, the gathering forces of the Rebel starfleet and the countdown to the movie's gigantic space battle are genuinely gripping, with an unearthly male choir underscoring the Emperor's scenes (culminating in the hair-raising, spectral "The Dark Side Beckons") and some involving militaristic themes and pulsing, brassy rebel fleet music. But much of the score is weighted down by leaden, meandering dialogue underscoring and the lightweight silliness of the Ewok music that sabotages the drama of much of the movie's final showdown between the Rebels and the Empire. Williams is too good a composer for Jedi to be a complete drag, but it's by far the weakest of the three Star Wars scores.

Return to Snowy River Part II

1988, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Return to Snowy River, Walt Disney Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Rowland; Orchestrations: Bruce Rowland; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Rowland; Album Producer: Bruce Rowland; Engineer: Ross Cockle.

Selections: 1 A Long Way From Home (3:02); 2 The Man From Snowy River II (3:20); 3 By The Fireside (2:13); 4 Eureka Creek (1:15); 5 Back To The Mountains (3:05); 6 Skill At Arms (2:29); 7 Jessica's Sonata #2 (2:00); 8 Pageant At Harrison's (1:25); 9 Gathered To The Fray (1:24); 10 Alone In The Mountains (2:29); 11 Farewell To And Old Friend "Now Do We Fight Them!" (10:29); 12 You Should Be Free (1:35); 13 Closing Credits (4:19).

Review: This sequel to The Man From Snowy River (q.v.) compelled Bruce Rowland to revisit his earlier score and expand on it in terms that remain attractive and thoroughly enjoyable. With the opening selection, "A Long Way from Home," a lovely theme for flute and two harmonic guitars over a synth texture, setting the tone, the music boldly unfolds with bright, exhilarating cues, smoothly executed, and bluesy themes, representative of more personally intense emotions. A long track, "Farewell to an Old Friend," brings together the heroic and the pathos in an amazing symphonic display that's all western and all fun.

Revenge

1990, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Revenge, Columbia Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Jack Nitzsche; Featured Performers: Bradford Ellis, Tommy Tedesco (acoustic guitar); Album Producer: Michael Hoenig; Engineer: Pamela Neal.

Selections: 1 Love Theme (4:38); 2 Friendship (1:27); 3 Miryea (3:24); 4 Betrayal (2:01); 5 Jeep Ride (1:24); 6 On The Beach (3:07); 7 Illicit Love (3:21); 8 Tibey's Revenge (3:35); 9 Whorehouse And Healing (4:10); 10 Dead Texan (2:37); 11 Confrontation (3:35); 12 Miryea's Death (5:17).

Review: Jack Nitzsche composed this pleasing synth score for the 1990 Kevin Costner action yarn. It starts off well with a tender "Love Theme" and the acoustic guitar solos by Tommy Tedesco. Some ethnic percussion added to the subsequent tracks give the score a delightful Spanish flavor, representative of the film's Mexican locale.

Revenge of the Pink Panther 🦴🦴🦴🦴🦴

1988, EMI-Manhattan; from the film Revenge of the Pink Panther, United Artists, 1978.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestra conducted by Henry Mancini; Featured Soloists: Tony Coe (saxophone), Henry Mancini, Leslie Pearson (piano), Sidney Sax (violin); Album Producer: Joe Reisman; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 The Pink Panther Theme (Main Title)(4:41); 2 Simone (4:33); 3 Give Me Some Mo'! (3:00); 4 Thar She Blows! (2:55); 5 Balls' Caprice (2:36); 6 Move 'Em Out! (H. Mancini/L. Bricusse)(3:27) Loni Satton; 7 A Touch Of Red (5:14); 8 After The Shower (3:43); 9 Hong Kong Fireworks (3:23); 10 Almond Eyes (3:15); 11 The Pink Panther Theme (reprise)(1:02); 12 Thank Heaven For Little Girls (F. Loewe/A.J. Lerner) (2:32) Inspector Clouseau (Peter Sellers) and the Surete Brass Band.

Review: Some ten years after the success of The Pink Panther, and its sequel A Shot in the Dark, director Blake Edwards returned to the rich lode he had mined, and between 1975 and 1978 filmed three more comedies around the central character of Chief Inspector Jacques Clouseau of the French Surete (portrayed in ineffable manner by Peter Sellers), The Return of the Pink Panther (1975), The Pink Panther Strikes Again (1976), and The Revenge of the Pink Panther (1978), all three with an appropriately delirious score by Henry Mancini. While the soundtrack albums to the first two are still awaiting release on compact disc in this country (Return came out in Japan), Revenge is available and it is every bit as enjoyable as one might remember it was. A murky tale involving Dyan Cannon as the very private secretary to a ship magnate and dope smuggler, who gets ditched by her boss and teams up with Clouseau to bring his downfall, the film is merely an excuse for Peter Sellers to broaden his antics as Clouseau, notably disguised as a would-be Mafia don and as an old tar with a wooden leg lost in the fog. As usual, Mancini was right on the button writing a score that brims with mordantly amusing themes, including "Hong Kong Fireworks," an inspired moment of lunacy in the film. Another gem in the album finds Peter Sellers warbling "Thank Heaven for Little Girls" from Gigi, in a send-up to end all send-ups.

Rich in Love 🦴🦴🦴🦴🦴

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Rich in Love, M-G-M, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Georges Delerue; Music Editor: Jeff Carson; Orchestra conducted by Georges Delerue; Album Producer: Georges Delerue; Engineer: Robert Fernandez.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:25); 2 We Have To Find Her (1:29); 3 Hello Mother (1:44); 4 Put The Best Face On It (1:14); 5 Stop Thinking About Her (3:52); 6 Good To Have You Home (:48); 7 Lulu's Exit/The Kiss (1:14); 8 Warren Waits/Sunset (2:10); 9 Time To Move On (2:19); 10 Of Course You Can (1:30); 11 Lucille And Wayne Make Love (1:01); 12 Let's Take A Walk (2:56); 13 I Got Her Pregnant (2:03); 14 Lucille And Bill (1:24); 15 Escape On Mower (:45); 16 Leaving The House (2:01).

Review: Georges Delerue was at his most romantically eloquent when he wrote this attractive score (his last) in which the graceful moods are expressed by a variety of solo instruments (flute, guitar,clarinet, oboe, violin, etc.). "It is as though Georges was writing a good-bye for each of his friends," notes Robert Townson in the text he prepared for this CD. And, indeed, each cue sounds like a delicate little concerto. Adding poignancy to the proceedings is the fact that the themes Delerue wrote are so exquisite. A dramatic comedy rooted in a Southern background, involving a couple, their two daughters, and the daughters' various boyfriends, the story suggested a series of lovely cues that actually don't need the screen action to attract the listener.

Richard III 🦴🦴🦴🦴½

1996, London Records; from the movie Richard III, United Artists, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Trevor Jones; Orchestrations: Geoffrey Alexander, Trevor Jones, Julian Kershaw; Orchestra conducted by David Snell; Featured Soloist: Phil Todd (sax, flute); Album Producer: Trevor Jones; Engineer: Kirsty Whalley, Paul Golding; Assistant Engineers: Toby Wood, Eric Jordan, James Manning.

Selections: 1 The Invasion (1:37); 2 Come Love With Me (film version)(T. Jones/C. Henderson/J. Young/S. Lewis)(1:49) Al Jolson; 32 Come Live With Me (location version)(T. Jones/C. Marlowe)(5:18) Stacey Kent, The Vile Bodies.

Review: It may seem incongruous to find a recording of Al Jolson's "I'm Sitting on Top of the World" in the soundtrack of a film based on William Shakespeare's Richard III, but that's not the only odd thing about this unusual quirky production set in the 1930s, which starts (on the album, at least) in a volley of gunfire, immediately followed by a big band number. Of course, as is sometimes the case in filmizations of well-known stage works, most of the music plays under the action to such extent that isolating it becomes difficult and redundant. Trevor Jones went around the difficulty by creating flavorful big band numbers which make their own statement, and punctuate the action, while anchoring it in the time period in which it is set. Some of the cues are introduced by excerpts from the dialogue, but these are not intrusive, and actually help appreciate the changes that have occurred in the concept of the film and, as a direct result, the flavor Jones chose to give his score. It all comes together as a vibrant display of a celebrated drama, with musical accompaniment that enhances the action and gives it the support it richly deserves.

Richie Rich

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Richie Rich, Warner Bros., 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Orchestrations: William Ross; Music Editor: Ken Karman; Orchestra conducted by Alan Silvestri; Album Producer: Alan Silvestri; Engineer: Dennis S. Sands.

Selections: 1 I Have A Son (5:30); 2 Surprise Guests (1:35); 3 Chief Executive Kid (3:30); 4 Access Terminated (2:10); 5 Something's Missing (1:40); 6 Cliffhangers (4:31); 7 Sandlotters Attack (4:30); 8 Bomb Surprise (2:02); 9 Bean Saves The Team (3:09); 10 Richest Kid In The World (1:23).

Review: Though a mindless little comedy starring Macaulay Culkin and John Larroquette, Richie Rich received a major score from Alan Silvestri, whose natural verve and exuberance obviously found a rich source of inspiration in this tired story about an obnoxious rich boy (guess who!), whose idleness leads him to more mischiefs than he has millions in the bank. Unfazed by the tale's obvious trappings, Silvestri served up a score that's quite enjoyable, with funny jerky little cues that spell out the story without spilling the beans. It may not be Beethoven's Ninth, but neither is the film Gone with the Wind, and all things considered this joyous score is much better than one might have expected.

The Right Stuff/ North and South

1986, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movies The Right Stuff, Warner Bros., 1983; and North and South, Warner Bros., 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Bill Conti; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Bill Conti; Album Producer: Bill Conti; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: THE RIGHT STUFF: 1 Breaking The Sound Barrier (4:45); 2 Almost Ready (1:25); 3 The Training (1:16); 4 Glenn's Flight (5:19); 5 Yeager's Triumph (5:09);

NORTH AND SOUTH: 6 Main Title (3:45); 7 Southern Life (1:38); 8 Love In The Chapel (4:04); 9 A Close Call (2:00); 10 Returning Home (2:13); 11 Last Embrace (2:57); 12 Final Meeting (2:28).

Review: Bill Conti won an Oscar for his great score for The Right Stuff, the outstanding 1983 Philip Kaufman filming of Tom Wolfe's bestselling book about the early days of Chuck Yeager and NASA, yet his original music was never released as a soundtrack album. Conti was given the opportunity to produce a concert suite with the London Symphony Orchestra in 1985, and the results were released on this tremendously well-recorded album, which couples a 16-minute suite from The Right Stuff with a slightly longer suite from the composer's score for North and South, the mega-successful TV mini-series. Conti's music is magnificent in each case. For The Right Stuff, he wrote a triumphant score that was modeled after "The Planets' at certain points, yet contains enough of his stirring, invigorating style to mark it as distinctly the work of its composer. North and South, meanwhile, is a beautifully flowing melodic score, with a gorgeous main theme comprising the heart of the musical material. Together, they make for a fantastic album in which the only flaw is that it doesn't go on longer than it does.

Rio Conchos

1989, Intrada Records; from the movie Rio Conchos, 1964.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick; Assistant Engineer: Chris Brown.

Selections: 1 The Agony And The Ecstasy Prologue: Rome/ Florence/The Crucifix/The Stone Giants/The Agony Of Creation (12:37); 2 Rio Conchos (2:26); 3 Where's The Water (1:55); 4 Bandit's Ho (6:58); 5 The River (2:04); 6 River Crossing (4:22); 7 The Aftermath (2:06); 8 Wall Of Fire (2:21); 9 Lonely Indian (3:24); 10 Chief Bloodshirt (2:27); 11 The Corral (2:45); 12 The Intruder (6:00); 13 Special Delivery (6:12).

Review: Rerecorded with the London Symphony Orchestra for this revitalization of his landmark 1964 Western score, Jerry Goldsmith's Rio Conchos is exciting, stimulating, and highly romantic. The principal theme is a rhythmic violin melody over guitar and tambourine, given a poignant turn by oboe midway through. The guitar, tambourine, and other percussion gives the score an agreeable rhythm and a down-to-earth feel, while the soaring melodies and complex action writing drives the characters and their confrontations. Like Elmer Bernstein in his own Western scores, Goldsmith develops a signature style which would later be recalled in films like Rio Lobo and Bandolero!. Added to the score's 45 minutes is a 12.5 minute "Prologue" from Goldsmith's triumphant music for the long-lost prelude to The Agony and the Ecstasy, which becomes a powerful tone poem about the sculptor Michelangelo, expressive and lofty, emphasizing strings, harp, and French horn. Intrada's fine production qualities abound in this important soundtrack restoration.

Rio Grande

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Rio Grande, Republic Pictures, 1950.

Album Notes: Music: Victor Young; Orchestra conducted by Victor Young; CD Producer: Robert Townson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:17); 2 Return From Patrol (1:53); 3 Soldiers Fight (1:46); 4 I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen (trad.)(2:34) The Sons Of The Pioneers, Ken Curtis; 5 Dispossessed (:55); 6 Cattle Call (T. Owens)(1:11) The Sons Of The Pioneers; 7 Aha, San Atone (D. Evans)(:45) Ben Johnson, Harry Carey Jr., Claude Jarman Jr.; 8 Reunion (2:34); 9 Indian Raid/ Escape (5:03); 10 Erie Canal (trad.)(:31) The Sons Of The Pioneers; 11 Laundresses' Row (:56); 12 Yellow Stripes (S. Jones)(:54) The Sons Of The Pioneers; 13 My Gal Is Purple (S. Jones)(1:32) The Sons Of The Pioneers; 14 Down By The Glen Side (trad.)(2:08) The Sons Of The Pioneers, Ken Curtis; 15 Footsore Cavalry (S. Jones)(:48) The Sons Of The Pioneers; 16 Meeting At The Rio Grande (1:18); 17 Confederate Dollars And Yankee Gold (1:45); 18 Departure For Fort Bliss (The Girl I Left Behind)(:54); 19 Tyree Meets The Wagon Train/Indian Attack (6:34); 20 Call Your Volunteers (:42); 21 Nighttime Approach/ Rescuing The Children (6:52); 22 Coming Home (1:34); 23 Dixie (End Title)(1:03).

Review: Even though it was recorded in 1950, and plays in a rather grainy mono sound, there is no denying the immense power and sweep of this excellent western score by Victor Young. While the screenplay provided the composer with a stock contingent of action scenes (solidly expressed in cues like "Indian Raid/ Escape," or "Tyree Meets the Wagon Train/ Indian Attack"), it also gave him an unusually broader canvas to work on with its story about two strong-willed and very private souls, Lt. Col. Yorke, and his wife, Kathleen, who have been separated for 16 years, after they found themselves on opposite sides during the Civil War, and are unexpectedly reunited again in an isolated outpost in the West. This situation suggested to Young a richer and more musically diversified score, with many cues built around the traditional folk song "I'll Take You Home, Kathleen," a biting comment on the couple's current relationship, since Yorke destroyed his wife's Southern estate during the war. Adding an extra musical element, several vocals by The Sons of the Pioneers give the score some western authenticity.

Rising Sun

1993, Fox Records; from the movie Rising Sun, 20th Century-Fox, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Toru Takemitsu; Tokyo Concert Orchestra conducted by Hiroyuki Iwaki; Album Producer: Toru Takemitsu; Engineer: Shanji Hori.

Selections: 1 Taiko Drum Opening (:44) Seiichi Tanaka & The San Francisco Taiko Dojo; 2 Don't Fence Me In (C. Porter)(1:43); 3 Drive To Connor's Loft (1:57); 4 Web Meets Connor (:50); 5 Eddie Revealed On Disc (2:34); 6 Chase (1:04); 7 So Eddie Witnessed The Murder (2:06); 8 Yakuza Pursuit (1:01); 9 Medley (3:04); 10 Single Petal Of A Rose (E.K. Ellington)(2:06); 11 Web's Confession (2:45); 12 Eddie's Showdown (6:10); 13 Mystery Figure Revealed (2:49); 14 Senator Morton Gets Faxed (1:59); 15 Tsunami (S. Tanaka)(8:06) Seiichi Tanaka & The San Francisco Taiko Dojo.

Review: Rising Sun is a 1993 Philip Kaufman film from the controversial Michael Crichton book. Sean Connery and Wesley Snipes star as detectives investigating a murder at a Japanese firm in Los Angeles and the film mixes suspense and culture—shock characterization with silliness and boredom. The filmmakers did have the conviction to hire famed Japanese modernist Toru Takemitsu for his first and only Hollywood score. Takemitsu, who had composed for numerous Japanese pictures such as Ran for Akira Kurosawa, fashioned an intriguing sound world of orchestra and traditional Japanese instruments. The score overall is textural and only fleetingly melodic, but provides a real sense of disquiet and tension to the film's complicated flashback structure and themes of cultural infiltration. One of the most discernible motives, for ascending saxophone, blends dissonant, post-tonal textures with an almost Gershwin-esque Americana theme—western culture swallowed up by the rest of the world and not the other way around. The CD is a fascinating listen for the post-tonally schooled—it also includes a traditional taiko drum performance—but is not for the traditionally minded, and is probably only second-rate Takemitsu. Reportedly the filmmakers made a veritable stir-fry of the cues in the dubbing process and Takemitsu cursed American filmmaking until his untimely death in 1996.

The River

1984, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The River, Universal Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Featured Musicians: Jim Walker (flute), Warren Luening (trumpet), Tommy Tedesco (guitar); Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Dan Wallen.

Selections: 1 The River (4:30); 2 Growing Up (2:52); 3 The Pony Ride (3:17); 4 Love Theme (4:54); 5 The Ancestral Home (4:32); 6 Rain Clouds Gather (3:07); 7 From Farm To Factory (2:44); 8 Back From Town (3:40); 9 Tractor Scene (2:18); 10 A Family Meeting (2:39); 11 Young Friends Farewell (2:39).

Review: Tapping a musical vein he has seldom fully explored, John Williams wrote a score rooted in Americana for The River, made by Mark Rydell, the director with whom he had previously worked on The Reivers. In this story of a couple of farmers (portrayed by Mel Gibson and Sissy Spacek) uncompromisingly attached to their land and determined to stay on it despite a speculator willing to buy it and a disastrous flood that threatens to engulf all they have, Williams found the elements for a thoughtful and rewarding score, nominated for an Academy Award, in which little pleasures ("The Pony Ride"), downhome feelings ("Tractor Scene"), and seemingly insurmountable pains ("Rain Clouds Gather") elicit a lyrical and immensely touching response.

A River Runs Through It

1992, Milan Records; from the movie A River Runs Through It, Columbia Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Orchestrations: Ken Kugler, Kim Scharnberg, Dell Hake; Music Editor: Allan Rosen; Orchestra conducted by Ken Kugler; Featured Musicians: Sid Page (violin), Louise Di Tullio (flute), Rich Ruttenberg (piano), Dorothy Remsen (harp), Katie Kirkpatrick (harp), John Isham (Uilleann pipes); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineers: Stephen Krause; Assistant Engineers: Sue McLean, Mark Eshelman, Greg Dennen, Robert Loftus, Gil Morales, Bill Talbott.

Selections: 1 A River Runs Through It (2:22); 2 Casting Presbyterian Style (1:29); 3 A Land Filled With Wonder (1:32); 4 Down The Alley (With You)(2:20); 5 A Summer Of Lumber And Fishing (1:44); 6 Shooting The Chutes (1:52); 7 Three Fisherman (1:55); 8 A Trip To The Unknown (2:28); 9 Four-Count Reason (2:27); 10 The Sheik Of Araby (H. Smith/T. Snyder/F. Wheeler)(1:56); 11 Bye Bye Blackbird (M. Dixon/R. Henderson)(1:57) Prudence Johnson; 12 Je ne sais quoi (:56); 13 Swing Me High, Swing Me Low (2:29); 14 A Place Remembered (:54); 15 A Remark Was Passed (2:23); 16 Rugged Cross (trad.)(2:50); 17 Muskrat Ramble (R. Gilbert/E. Ory) (1:58); 18 Rawhide (:58); 19 The Wild Ride (2:27); 20 Early Departure (:50); 21 The Splendor In The Grass (1:10); 22 Jessie And Norman (2:59); 23 Lolo's (1:15); 24 The High Road (1:01); 25 Yes, Quite A Day (1:05); 26 A Fine Fisherman And The Big Blackfoot River (1:41); 27 The Moment That Could Not Last (1:23); 28 Too Deep For Tears (:46); 29 Without Complete Understanding (1:21); 30 In The Half-Light Of The Canyon (2:46); 31 Haunted By Waters/A River Runs Through It (reprise)(4:18).

Review: Mark Isham's flowing, low-key, poetic score for Robert Redford's character-driven drama is genteel and relaxing enough. Replacing a score initially composed by Elmer Bernstein, Isham's music does a superlative job not overstating the emotions of Redford's film, working to gently push our heartstrings instead of melodramatically tugging them like so many other Hollywood film scores do. The only problem is that the music may be too subtle for its own good. The score lacks a degree of distinction contained in the best scores for films of this type, with a main theme that is, if anything, a bit too restrained. Nevertheless, the music paints yet another picture of Isham, whose versatile talents have been utilized in composing often successful film scores for any kind of genre film.

The River Wild

1994, RCA Records; from the movie The River Wild, Universal Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton, Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 The Water Is Wide (trad.)(3:10) Cowboy Junkies; 2 Gale's Theme (Main Title)(2:24); 3 Big Water (2:51); 4 Wade Goes Under (3:18); 5 Tom Hangs On (3:21); 6 Vision Quest (2:57); 7 Little Niagara (2:40); 8 Same Old Story (2:12); 9 Vacation's Over (9:51); 10 Family Reunion (End Title)(5:47).

Review: Goldsmith stepped in to replace Maurice Jarre's work on this Meryl Streep action thriller, utilizing the same folk tune, "The River Is Wide" as an affecting title theme that weaves its way through several exultant, fast-paced river rafting sequences before giving way to a halting, heavy orchestral rhythm that gradually overwhelms the score. Goldsmith effectively characterized the film's raging river currents with swelling, tremuloso chords from the string section and a "splashing" synthetic percussion effect. The final cue, "The Vacation's Over," develops the primary action material in impressive fashion over the course of nine minutes as the entire orchestra chops away at Goldmith's percussive motifs. Is it ingeniously cohesive or just repetitious?

The Road to Wellville

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Road to Wellville, Columbia Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Rachel Portman; Orchestra conducted by David Snell; Album Producers: Rachel Portman, Alan Parker; Engineer: Dick Lewzey.

Selections: 1 Ladies' Laughing Exercise (:22); 2 Intro (2:44); 3 Treatments (1:36); 4 Life Is Death Postponed (2:23); 5 Where The Spirits Soar (J. Parker) (:52); 6 The Battle Creek San (1:07); 7 Canzonetta (F. Mendelssohn)(1:33); 8 Badger's Picnic (:52); 9 Fire At The San (1:16); 10 Daddy (1:13); 11 A Chewing Song (J. Hayden/T. Metz)(:37); 12 The San Waltz (1:54); 13 Handhabung Therapeutik (1:14); 14 Charles (:39); 15 Waltz Of The Flowers (P.I. Tchaikovsky)(2:01); 16 Der Lindenbaum (F. Schubert)(:17); 17 Eleanor (:49); 18 Stairs (1:01); 19 Where The Spirits Soar (J. Parker)(1:11); 20 Endymion (1:15); 21 History Is About To Be Eaten (:56); 22 Rigoletto (G. Verdi)(1:15); 23 Wellville (3:03); 24 Where The Spirits Soar (J. Parker)(1:16).

Review: One of today's brightest young composers, Rachel Portman took a direct cue from the amusing storyline behind this somewhat eccentric little film and concocted a cheerful score that's a whole lot of fun. Set at the turn of the century, The Road to Wellville concerned itself with the evidently odd Kellogg health sanitarium, where "patients" could get rid of all kinds of real or imaginary ailments by following a therapeutic regimen that involved the consumption of strange medicinal remedies and the use of even stranger contraptions. Matching the tone of the film and cleverly blending bits of dialogue to set-off the selections, Portman's score delights in cues that, on the surface, seem quite demure, but are in fact wickedly funny and delicious in their expression. Adding an eccentric note of their own, some classical selections, played in a way their composers would certainly never have imagined, fit very neatly in the whole musical package.

The Road Warrior

1982, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Road Warrior, Warner Bros., 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Brian May; Orchestra conducted by Brian May; Album Producer: Tom Null; Engineer: Danny Hersch.

Selections: 1 Montage/Main Title (4:53); 2 Confrontation (2:32); 3 Marauder's Massacre (3:14); 4 Max Enters Compound (4:09); 5 Gyro Saves Max (3:55); 6 Break Out (3:26); 7 Finale And Largo (5:06); 8 End Title (3:20); 9 SFX Suite: (a) Boomerang Attack, (b) Gyro Flight/The Big Rig Starts, (c) Breakout/The Refinery Explodes/Reprise (4:37).

Review: There have been lots of kinetic action films since George Miller's The Road Warrior, but this is the masterpiece that kicked them off, a seminal piece of modern post-apocalyptic sci-fi. Brian May's music is the sound of Mad Max, thrashing and sinister—Herrmann on high-octane as the rogue Max scavenges for petrol, bike and car gangs rape and pillage, and a lone community tries to survive. Ultimately it is Max who saves them but ends up even worse off, and the score, unlike its Mad Max (1979) predecessor, features a tragic, romantic/symphonic side in addition to its propulsive action base. May invests his music with a considerable personality of orchestration and gestures (too bad the recording, made in Australia, is so muddled) which successfully link the suspenseful moments with the flat-out, 120mph chases. Not far from the disorienting, dissonant textures of the first Mad Max, with a hopeful eye on the symphonic sweep of Maurice Jarre's music for the third film, Beyond Thunderdome, and left to rot with a tankerful of sand in the Australian wasteland is this, the late Brian May's most famous score.

1995, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Rob Roy, M-G-M, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Carter Burwell; Orchestrations: Sonny Kompanek; Music Editor: Adam Smalley; Orchestra conducted by Carter Burwell, Sonny Kompanek; Featured Musicians: Davy Spillane (Uillean pipes and low whistles), Maire Breatnach (fiddle), Tommy Hayes (bodhran), Ronan Brown (penny whistle), Miriam Stockley (voice); Album Producer: Carter Burwell; Engineer: Michael Farrow; Assistant Engineers: Geoff Foster, Rob Kirwan.

Selections: 1 Overture: (a) Rob Roy (2:17), (b) The Rieving Party (2:23); 2 Home From The Hills (2:45); 3 Hard Earth (2:08) Karen Matheson; 4 Procession For The Ill-Used (1:38); 5 Blood Sport (1:15); 6 The Gaelic Reels (1:06) Capercaillie; 7 Ailein Duinn (2:36) Karen Matheson; 8 The Last Peaceful Night (1:50); 9 Troops In The Mist (1:14); 10 Honor Inflamed (3:19); 11 The Dispossessed: (a) The Cave (:56), (b) Hard Home On The Moor (1:06); 12 The Blunt Reels (2:10) Capercaillie; 13 Highland Justice: (a) Call Of The Claymore (1:24), (b) Assize Of The Gregorach (1:33); 14 A Standing Stone, A Silk Purse (3:34); 15 Theid mi Dhachaig (I'll Go Home)(1:19); 16 Rannoch Moor Suite: (a) Scorched Earth (1:11), (b) Rannoch Moor Retreat (1:45), (c) The Mists (2:28), (d) Rob Come To Hand (:40); 17 Morag's Lament (:50) Karen Matheson; 18 Born By Rapids (2:24); 19 Love And Death Suite: (a) My Beloved (1:59), (b) A Matter Of Honor (1:19), (c) Cunningham's End (:48); 20 Robert And Mary (3:14).

Review: In 1995 we had Braveheart, Dragonheart, and Rob Roy. Who says there isn't enough imitation in Hollywood? Carter Burwell had the opportunity at scoring Rob Roy, the first and least successful of the three big-screen Highlands epics, featuring good performances but draggy pacing and indifferent direction. Burwell's music, combined with the sweeping cinematography, is enough to make the movie easy to watch, but on its own, it's all too clear to spot the flaws in the soundtrack album—namely, it's redundant to a fault. The main theme just repeats itself over and over again, and while it's beautiful the first time you hear it, you won't be feeling the same way by the time you reach the end of the soundtrack, which also contains vocals by Karen Matheson and Gaelic group Capercaillie.

The Robe

1993, Fox Records; from the movie The Robe, 20th Century-Fox, 1953.

Album Notes: Music: Alfred Newman; The 20th Century-Fox Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Alfred Newman; CD Producer: Nick Redman; Engineers: Mike McDonald, Dan Hersch.

Selections: 1 20th Century-Fox Fanfare (:13); 2 Prelude/Main Title (1:25); 3 The Slave Market (Diana)(2:34); 4 Caligula's Arrival (1:03); 5 Caligula's Departure (1:06); 6 The Map Of Jerusalem (5:02); 7 Palm Sunday (2:14); 8 The Carriage Of The Cross (2:01); 9 Marcellus Returns To Capri (2:04); 10 Attempted Suicide (1:51); 11 Tiberius' Palace (1:43); 12 The Market Place (4:52); 13 Elegy (4:30); 14 Marcellus' Redemption (chorus only) (2:25); 15 Justus' Death (11:45); 16 Hymn For The Dead (1:06); 17 In His Service (1:46); 18 The Catacombs (5:00); 19 Room In The Catacombs (:36); 20 Hope (1:29); 21 Demetrius' Rescue (parts 1 & 2)(3:16); 22 Gallio's House (2:18); 23 Peter Heals Demetrius (3:03); 24 Marcellus' Farewell (1:22); 25 Interior Dungeon (2:54); 26 Finale/Hallelujah (2:00).

Review: One of the first big screen epics of the 1950s with a Biblical theme, The Robe is distinguished by the fact that it is the first film to use the anamorphic CinemaScope process and the first which introduced multi-track stereophonic sound in many roadshow theatres. An inspirational story, based on Lloyd C. Douglas' best-seller, the film recounts the conversion of a Roman tribune (Richard Burton), when he realizes that the Man crucified on the Golgotha, and whose garment he had inherited, might have been the Son of God. Playing a decisive role in this conversion are his Greek slave, Demetrius, played by Victor Mature, already a Christian; his childhood sweetheart, Diana (Jean Simmons), ward of Emperor Tiberius, also an early convert; and crazed Prince Regent Caligula (Jay Robinson in a scene-stealing portrayal), who eventually sent him and Diana to their deaths. Availing themselves of the letterbox gimmick, already a strong attraction in itself, the makers of the film spared no expense to turn The Robe into a spectacular presentation. Huge crowds involving thousands of extras competed with impressive circus scenes, gigantic sets and breathtaking races (charging directly at the cameras) to mesmerize audiences who had seldom been treated to such a display on such a large screen scale.

Enhancing the performance is Alfred Newman's superlative score, a deeply felt assortment of grandeur and bravura mixed with more intimate expressions of love and religious respect. Interestingly, even though it had been recorded in stereo, the score was initially released on record in mono only (the recording industry catching up with the innovations in film sound techniques some four years later). This release on compact disc marks the first time the score, which includes many cues available for the first time, is heard in stereo, the way it was initially recorded, and it sounds mighty impressive, particularly to those who have grown up with the original mono version. In later years, Newman's achievements would be somewhat overshadowed by his own contributions to other films, and by Miklos Rozsa's compositions for similar Roman spectacles like Ben-Hur or King of Kings. The fact remains that The Robe is an exceptional score.

Robin Hood

1991, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Robin Hood, 20th Century-Fox, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Geoffrey Burgon; Orchestrations: Geoffrey Burgon; Orchestra conducted by Geoffrey Burgon; Album Producer: Geoffrey Burgon; Engineer: Alan Snelling.

Selections: 1 Main Titles/Hunting The Poacher (5:16); 2 Robin Meets Marian/ Fight On The Battlements (6:59); 3 Robin Traps Folcanet (3:11); 4 The Outlaw's Band (3:13); 5 Rob And Will/ Robbing The Taxes (5:32); 6 Marian To The Rescue (3:45); 7 Robin And Marian Reach Safety (1:11); 8 Prince John (3:13); 9 Attack On The Castle/The Death Of Folcanet (3:12); 10 The Wedding/End Titles (2:32).

Review: The story—real or imaginary—of Robin Hood and His Merry Men has inspired many screen adaptations, starting with an early silent film starring Douglas Fairbanks, all the way to a (eeech!) politically-correct television series currently underway as these lines are being written. Likewise, each version resulted in new musical takes from composers inspired by the tale, and perhaps secretly hoping to emulate Erich-Wolfgang Korngold's trend-setting score for the Errol Flynn version, The Adventures of Robin Hood, the definite model against which all others have to measure up.

Starring Patrick Bergin as the legendary outlaw and Uma Thurman as Maid Marian, this remake offers little that is new and is steadfast in its conventional narrative. Equally safe in its expression is Geoffrey Burgon's score, appropriately heroic and romantic, as the multi-tiered action dictated, but ultimately more descriptive than melodic, with a lot of kettle drumming punctuating the themes spelled out by the woodwind and brass instruments. It sounds grand and epic, but a trifle dull.

Robin Hood: Men in Tights

1993, Milan Records; from the movie Robin Hood: Men in Tights, TriStar Films, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Hummie Mann; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, Frank Bennett, Don Nemitz; Music Editor: Chris Ledesma; Album Producer: David Franco; Engineer: Joe Gaswirt.

Selections: 1 Marian (H. Mann/M. Brooks)(3:36) Cathy Dennis, Lance Ellington; 2 Main Title (3:04); 3 Sherwood Forest Rap #1 (H. Mann/M. Brooks) (1:10) Kevin Dorsey, The Merry Men Singers; 4 Escape From Kahlil Prison (:58); 5 Robin's Pledge/ The Great Voyage (1:05); 6 Stick Fight With Little John (1:47); 7 Prince John's Party/Robin's Entrance (1:29); 8 The Great Hall Fight (3:14); 9 Men In Tights (M. Brooks)(1:24) The Merry Men Singers; 10 The Witch In The Tower (1:39); 11 Villager's Training Sequence (1:32); 12 The Night Is Young (B. Rose/I. Kahal/D. Suesse)(1:48) Arthur Rubin, The Merry Men Singers; 13 Romantic Marian (:49); 14 Royal Country Fayre/The Abbott's March (1:31); 15 Villagers To The Rescue (2:19); 16 The Wedding (:39); 17 Marian (M. Boorks/H. Mann)(1:37) Debbie James; 18 Sherwood Forest Rap #2 (M. Brooks/H. Mann)(:23) Kevin Dorsey, The Merry Men.

Review: There is no way one could mistake this often hilarious sendup of the Robin Hood legend with the real thing. After having merrily mistreated westerns, horror films, and space epics, it somehow made sense than funny man Mel Brooks would set his sight on swashbucklers. And which story better to spoof than Robin Hood, the swashbuckler par excellence. Naysayers might frown at the mere idea that the hero of so many medieval deeds might be reduced to a cartoon character, but as Brooks not so subtly hints, "the legend had it coming..." Matching the verve in the film, Hummie Mann wrote a score with its tongue firmly in cheek that brims with good melodic material. If at times, the music sounds appropriately medieval, with occasional forays into bombastic posturing or romantic sidesteps, funny ideas (like using an epic version of "Row, row the boat" in "Escape from Kahlil Prison," or indulging in not one but two rap songs, performed by Robin's Merry Men Singers) leave little doubt about Mel Brooks' intentions. Ultimately, the film might not have been as successful as some of the director's earlier sendups. But this score is a gas.

Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves

1991, Morgan Creek Records; from the movie Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves, Warner Bros., 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Orchestrations: Michael Kamen, Jack Hayes, William Ross, Don Davis, Bruce Babcock, Albert Olson, Pat Russ, Brad Warnaar, Lolita Ritmanis, Mark Watters, Elliot Kaplin, Jonathan Sacks, Richard Davis, Harvey Cohen, Beth Lee, Chris Boardman; Music Editors: Christopher Brooks, Eric Reasoner; The Greater Los Angeles Orchestra, conducted by Michael Kamen; Album Producers: Michael Kamen, Stephen P. McLaughlin, Christopher S. Brooks; Engineer: Bobby Fernandez.

Selections: 1 Overture and A Prisoner Of The Crusades (8:28); 2 Sir Guy Of Gisborn and The Escape To Sherwood (7:28); 3 Little John And The Band In The Forest (4:53); 4 The Sheriff And His Witch (6:03); 5 Maid Marian (2:58); 6 Training—Robin Hood, Prince Of Thieves (5:15); 7 Marian At The Waterfall (5:34); 8 The Abduction and The Final Battle At The Gallows (9:54); 9 (Everything I Do) I Do It For You (B. Adams/R.J. Lange/M. Kamen)(6:38) Bryan Adams; 10 Wild Times (M. Kamen/J. Lynne)(3:13) Jeff Lynne.

Review: Pretty much all anybody remembers about this movie and soundtrack album is the Bryan Adams ballad "Anything I Do (I'd Do It For You)," which has certainly transcended the bloated Kevin Costner version of the Robin Hood myth it originates from. Adams wrote the mega-successful song with R.J. "Mutt" Lange and Michael Kamen, who also composed—with a number of orchestrators due to a massive shortage of time—the film's original score. Unfortunately, despite a magnificent opening theme and a rousing climax, Kamen's score rarely comes close to Korngoldian heights. Too much of the score listlessly punctuates the action on-screen, never really finding any central focus aside from the main fanfare, and certainly underwhelms during the romantic passages, with a low-key tinkering of the song motive barely qualifying as being anything more than functional to the proceedings. Kamen delivered a far more effective score in a similar vein for The Three Musketeers remake just a short time later.

RoboCop 3

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie RoboCop 3, Orion Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Music Editor: Tom Villano; Orchestra conducted by Basil Poledouris; Synthesizers: Michael Boddicker; Album Producer: Basil Poledouris; Engineers: Tim Boyle.

Selections: 1 Main Title/The Resistance (2:35); 2 Robo Saves Lewis (3:56); 3 Resistance Base (1:36); 4 Otomo Underground (1:49); 5 Murphy's Memories (4:36); 6 Robo Fights Otomo (4:27); 7 Nikko And Murphy (1:53); 8 Death Of Lewis (3:46); 9 Sayonara, McDaggit (3:38).

Review: Like Spielberg's Jaws, Paul Verhoven's excellent, original Robocop has been sullied by two gratuitous sequels that diluted the brilliant high concept of the first film. Basil

Poledouris' original Robocop score features a bombastic, near-satirical heroic theme for the Robocop character that only needs some booming lyrics to push it right over the top. But the rest of his score perfectly captures the affecting, emotional resonance that is at the heart of the film's stealth appeal. Despite, or perhaps because of his eviscerated humanity, Robocop is a rare action hero you could actually care about. Poledouris movingly scored the character's death and his haunting attempts to rediscover his identity, and rousingly underscored action scenes in which the character, wittingly or unwittingly, lashed out at the villains who'd robbed him of his humanity, in cues like "Rock Shop" and "Showdown."

Leonard Rosenman's score to the Irvin Kirshner-directed follow-up is marked by the composer's unmistakable modernistic style, but while Rosenman's score is far more intellectually sophisticated it doesn't capture the emotional punch of Poledouris' original.

By the time Robocop 3 rolled around the character had been completely juvenilized (as well as portrayed by another, less-effective actor), and Poledouris' score is a by-the-numbers affair that resurrects the material, but not the passion of the original.

The Rock

1996, Hollywood Records; from the movie The Rock, Hollywood Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Nick Glennie-Smith, Hans Zimmer, Harry Gregson-Williams; Orchestrations: Bruce Fowler, Suzette Moriarty, Ladd McIntosh, Walt Fowler, Dennis Dreith; Music Editors: Bob Badami, John Finklea; Orchestra conducted by Nick Glennie-Smith, Bruce Fowler, Don Harper; Featured Musicians: Bob Daspit, Michael Thomson, Michael Stevens (guitars); Album Producers: Nick Glennie-Smith, Hans Zimmer, Harry Gregson-Williams; Engineers: Alan Meyerson, Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Hummell Gets The Rockets (6:25); 2 Rock House Jail (10:12); 3 Jade (2:01); 4 In The Tunnels (8:40); 5 Mason's Walk/First Launch (9:34); 6 Rocket Away (14:25); 7 Fort Walton/Kansas (1:37); 8 The Chase (7:35).

Review: The music for Michael Bay's hyperventilating team-up of Nicholas Cage and Sean Connery typifies the action film scoring sensibility cultivated by mega-producer Jerry Bruckheimer: tons of percussion, both acoustic and synthesized, streaming bursts of synthetic chords, pulsating rhythms, and wailing electric guitars, all custom-designed not so much to engage the viewers within the movie's storyline as to convince them that they're watching the "coolest" piece of cinematic merchandise currently available and are thus incredibly cool themselves. Some of the rhythms are infectious, but the overall approach here is indistinguishable from that obtained in most beer commercials of the '80s. It's all part of the headache-inducing overkill that values adrenaline (if not pure testosterone) above anything else, and while scores like this may provide the same thrill ride as the films to which they're attached, the thrill is a transitory one that is going to date these efforts brutally.

Rockers

1979, Mango Records; from the movie Rockers, Island Pictures, 1979.

Album Notes: Album Compiled by Chris Blackwell; Executive Producers: Theodore Bafakoulos, Avrom Robin; Engineers: Godwin Logie & Groucho.

Selections: 1 We 'A' Rockers (T. Lewis/B. Harvey) (3:24) Inner Circle; 2 Money Worries (H. Wilson) (3:22) The Maytones; 3 Police And Thieves (J. Murvin/L. Perry) (3:53) Junior Murvin; 4 Book Of Rules (B. Llewellyn/H. Johnson) (3:28) The Heptones; 5 Stepping Razor (P. Tosh) (3:16) Peter Tosh; 6 Tenement Yard (J. Miller/R. Lewis) (2:35) Jacob Miller; 7 Fade Away (E. Smith) (3:05) Junior Byles; 8 Rockers (N. Livingstone) (5:37) Bunny Wailer; 9 Slave Master (G. Isaacs) (2:28) Gregory Isaacs; 10 Dread Lion (L. Perry) (3:11) Scratch & The Upsetters; 11 Graduation In Zion (F. Dowding) (2:47) Kiddus I; 12 Jah No Dead (W. Rodney) (2:12) Burning Spear; 13 Satta Masagana (L. Manning/D. Manning/B. Collins) (3:32) Third World; 14 Natty Take Over (J. Hines/M. Roper) (3:07) Justin Hines & The Dominoes.

Review: The wonderful soundtrack to The Harder They Come kind of ruined it for most reggae film music, but this still deserves propers as a fine collection of both artists and tunes. Many of the giants of contemporary reggae are here—Peter Tosh, Bunny Wailer, Burning Spear, Third World. But "Rockers" also provides an opportunity to hear some lesser-known talents such as Inner Circle, Kiddus I and Junior Murvin.

The Rocketeer

1991, Hollywood Records; from the movie The Rocketeer, Walt Disney Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: John Neufeld, Elliot Kaplan, Billy May, Conrad Pope; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Takeoff (4:30); 2 The Flying Circus (6:30); 3 Jenny (5:10); 4 Begin The Beguine (C. Porter)(3:36) Melora Hardin; 5 Neville Sinclair's House (7:20); 6 Jenny's Rescue (3:20); 7 Rendezvous At Griffith Park Observatory (8:10); 8 When Your Lover Has Gone (E.A. Swan)(3:25) Melora Hardin; 9 The Zeppelin (8:00); 10 Rocketeer To The Rescue/End Title (6:30).

Review: James Horner's enthusiastic score is much better than this tepid actioner about the comic strip hero that inspired it. With the music firmly planted into the film's period, the 1930s, the composer has integrated some original big band numbers to his cues, writing a score that often bounces and throbs, and provides the listener with an enjoyable ride (or flight, as it were). The addition of two vocals (including Cole Porter's nifty Begin the Beguine) performed in breathless fashion by Melora Hardin, further conjure up the era and prove equally pleasurable.

Rocky III

1995, EMI-America Records; from the movie Rocky III, United Artists, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Bill Conti; Orchestrations: Bill Conti; Orchestra conducted by Bill Conti; Album Producer: Bill Conti; Engineers: Danny Wallin, Tom Steel, Bill Benton, Bill Fresh.

Selections: 1 Eye Of The Tiger (3:54) Survivor; 2 Take You Back (Tough Gym)(1:49) Frank Stallone; 3 Pushin' (3:12) Frank Stallone; 4 Reflections (3:22); 5 Mickey (4:41); 6 Take You Back (3:40) Frank Stallone; 7 Decision (2:06); 8 Gonna Fly Now (2:51) DeEtta Little, Nelson Pigford; 9 Adrian (1:42); 10 Conquest (4:42).

Review: Few film scores have reached the level of popularity in American culture as Bill Conti's Oscar-winning, instantly recognizable themes for the Rocky series. The original 1976 soundtrack contained the chart-topping hit "Gonna Fly Now," which continues to this day to be performed at all sorts of sporting events and other functions as a fanfare for hard work, determination, and fulfilling one's dreams. The vocal, performed by DeEtta Little and Nelson Pigford, was written by the composer, and remains permanently instilled in the minds of anyone who has seen the movie or heard the music. Along with the street-sounding harmonies of Valentine's "Take You Back," the rest of Conti's score is similarly energetic, propulsive, and filled with emotion, a trait that would come to mark many of the composer's works.

For Rocky II, the stylistic influence shifts from the often gritty, raw sound of the original film to a more disco-oriented approach, which doesn't benefit a children's chorus version of "Gonna Fly Now" (heard in a different version in the film), though Conti did compose a completely orchestral cue ("Conquest") and other impressive new material that is not as dated, and just as thematically strong as anything in the original film.

In Rocky III, the big new addition is another hugely popular song, Survivor's "Eye of the Tiger," which is contained on what's basically a compilation album with three new Conti cues, several Frank Stallone vocals, and tracks taken from the preceding Rocky soundtracks. Seeing that there are a number of Rocky compilations available, your best bet is to pick up one of those CDs and either or both of Conti's first two efforts in the series, which contain some of the most memorable film music ever written.

Review: There couldn't be two soundtracks more different than these to illustrate what is essentially the same story. Rota's approach to the Franco Zeffirelli film is pretty much straight forward and academic, with the music used to subtly underscore the emotions in the Shakespearean drama. Adding more impact to the proceedings, the soundtrack also features the dialogues and sound effects for most important scenes, giving an overall sonic impression that pretty much reflects the film itself.

In contrast, Romeo + Juliet is a contemporary take-off on the story, a sort of what kind of music would Romeo and Juliet listen to if they had lived today? Some of it works very well and has a definite appeal; some of the tracks, however, sound redundant and ill-chosen, at least for a straight listening experience.

And in case you might wonder what other treatment the story might have led to, see also West Side Story, possibly the most successful adaptation of Shakespeare's drama, set against the background of modern-day New York City.

Romeo Is Bleeding

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Music Editor: Tom Carlson; Synthesizer Programming: Jeff Rona, Mark Isham; Featured Musicians: Mark Isham (trumpet, flugelhorn, electronics), David Goldblatt (piano), Chuck Domanico (acoustic bass), Kurt Wortman (drums); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineer: Stephen Krause.

Selections: 1 Romeo Is Bleeding (6:20); 2 Bird Alone (A. Lincoln)(8:30) Abbey Lincoln; 3 Romeo Is Moving (:56); 4 Romeo And Juliette (4:20); 5 Nightmare On Maple Street (3:24); 6 I Know Better Now (A.J. Croce)(3:11) A.J. Croce; 7 Romeo Is Searching (3:40); 8 Romeo And Natalie (4:40); 9 Mona (2:06); 10 Take Two Toes (2:04); 11 Back Seat Driving (2:55); 12 Mona Lends A Helping Hand (3:54); 13 Dance Of Death (2:30); 14 Empty Chambers/Romeo Is Dreaming (6:50); 15 Romeo Alone (4:20).

Review: Mark Isham's strongly-accented jazz score comes across full force in this recording in which the cues have time to make their impression, away from the screen action. The film, a comic book account of a tinted New York police officer who gets involved with a Russian mafiosa and pays dearly for it, needed a forceful musical statement to give it the right flavor. Isham created a series of cues that capture the essence of the story, and add to it with great skill, in cues that display the right amount of the type of jazz one usually associates with this kind of drama. As a result, the album is highly enjoyable on its own terms, and is further enhanced by a couple of well chosen vocals, including a sensational rendition of "Bird Alone," performed by Abbey Lincoln.

Romy and Michele's High School Reunion

1997, Hollywood Records; from the movie Romy and Michele's High School Reunion, Touchstone Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Album Producers: Mitchell Leib, Judy Kemper.

Selections: 1 Our Lips Are Sealed (J. Wiedlin/T. Hall) (2:46) The Go-Go's; 2 Venus (R. Van Leeuwen) (3:40) Bananarama; 3 (There's) Always Something There To Remind Me (B. Bacharach/H. David) (3:41) Naked Eyes; 4 Dance Hall Days (J. Hues/N. Feldman/D. Costin) (3:58) Wang Chung; 5 Turning Japanese (D. Fenton) (3:45) The Vapors; 6 Blood And Roses (P. Di Nizio) (3:36) The Smithereens; 7 Karma Chameleon (G. O'Dowd/J. Moss/M. Craig/R. Hay/P. Pickett) (4:13) Culture Club; 8 I Want Candy (B. Feldman/G. Goldstein/R. Gottehrer/B. Berns) (2:47) Bow Wow Wow; 9 Everybody Wants To Rule The World (R. Orzabal/I. Stanley/C. Hughes) (4:12) Tears For Fears; 10 Heaven Is A Place On Earth (R. Nowels/E. Shipley) (4:12) Belinda Carlisle; 11 We Got The Beat (C. Caffey) (2:30) The Go-Go's.

Review: A winning, if somewhat insignificant, comedy about two attractive dimwits on their way to a high school reunion, who decide to try and impress their former schoolmates by pretending that they have become rich and successful, Romy and Michele's High School Reunion boasts a sparkling soundtrack consisting of popular songs by The Go-Go's, Wang Chung, Culture Club, Bow Wow Wow, and The Smithereens, among others. There is little that's exceptional about this compilation, just a good collection that happens to work well in the context of the film and for one's listening pleasure.

Selections: 1 O mio babbino caro (G. Puccini)(2:29) Kiri Te Kanawa; 2 The Pensione Bertollini (1:22); 3 Lucy, Charlotte And Miss Lavish See The City (1:55); 4 In The Piazza Signoria (3:57); 5 The Embankment (2:24); 6 Phaeton And Persephone (:54); 7 Chi il bel sogno di Doretta (G. Review: In much the same way that Elvira Madigan was defined by Mozart's Piano Concerto in C, Puccini's "O mio babbino caro" gave A Room with a View a definite cachet, and permeated this sensitive romantic comedy of manners, set in 1907 and based on E.M. Forster's classic novel, about a young English couple who meet in Italy and, despite their social differences, and the Victorian convictions of their elders, dare to be true to their feeling and each other. The Italian and English settings, and the turn-of-the-century time frame provided the pegs for Richard Robbins' score, a collection of sprightly musical tunes that depict the various incidents in the screenplay, augmenting the action with their subtle melodic contributions, and making an otherwise arresting statement. Overflowing with great romantic themes, occasionally sprinkled with the witty addition of a mandolin or a lovely call of bells, the score unfolds with magic splendor, revealing its many charms in cues that are programmed to be equally effective on their own.

Brown/W. Timm/V. Zeman/J. Vejvoda)(4:37).

Review: The first hour of this Peter Yates' film starring Peter Falk and D.B. Sweeney is filled with cliches, playing out very much like a theatrical sitcom. For whatever reason, the movie surprisingly turns itself around in the second half into a genuinely affecting, poignant family drama with terrific performances by the two leads. Elmer Bernstein scored the picture, but despite some fine moments, his music doesn't lend itself easily to working as a soundtrack album. Many of the cues are very short (most are under a minute, in fact), which doesn't allow for the composer to develop thematic material. The music is perfect in the movie, but this is unfortunately one of those cases where the album format doesn't add much to the film score.

The Rosary Murders

1986, Cinedisc Records; from the movie The Rosary Murders, New Line Cinema, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Bobby Laurel, Don Sebesky; The London Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Don Sebesky; Album Producers: Bobby Laurel, Don Sebesky; Engineer: Pat Sheedy.

Selections: 1 In Your Eyes (Main Theme) (B. Laurel/D. Leahy) (3:10); 2 Jogging (1:52); 3 Phone Company (2:30); 4 The Marble Orchard (3:36); 5 Second Story Priest (2:21); 6 Pull Yourself Together (2:30); 7 Scratch Father Steel (1:13); 8 Sister Blabbermouth(2:26); 9 Confessional Call (1:18); 10 Father Koesler And Pat Take A Walk (:59); 11 Find The Obituary (2:16); 12 Sister Ann's Last Bath(1:54); 13 Jeanette (B. Laurel) (2:34) Bobby Laurel; 14 Read The Letter (1:31); 15 Hearing The Good Stuff (2:44); 16 Sister Ann's Death (2:10); 17 Mr. Javison Meets Father Nabors (4:56); 18 I'm The One (2:21); 19 Flowers For Pat (:38).

Review: Nancy Wood's strained rendition of the main title, "In Your Eyes," in a style that desperately tries not to evoke Barbra Streisand, is hardly conducive to open up to this album. Fortunately, Don Sebesky's score is forcefully interesting and compelling, and attracts the attention with its skillfull display of cues outlining some of the most intense moments in this flavorful thriller, about a killer in Detroit, with a grudge against representatives of the Catholic Church, who is hunted down by a priest turned sleuth. As befits the genre, the various cues actually belie the tension, focusing instead on the more subliminous threatening aspects of the murder mystery. A chorus in the background occasionally provides sounds that evoke the more religious aspects of the story.

Review: Proof that John Williams can write memorable music for virtually any kind of film is fully evident in Rosewood, John Singleton's mostly fictitious dramatization of the real-life tragedy that was heavily criticized by some for its traditional western story elements. There's nothing formulaic in any regard, however, about Williams' complex, haunting score, which finds dissonant guitar-and-piano motives combined with elegiac string writing, creating a powerful collection of cues whose contrasting uplift is found in a pair of spirituals ("Look Down, Lord," "Light My Way"), also written by the composer. The country-flavored instrumentation recalls Williams' past successes on The Missouri Breaks and even The Reivers, though this score has a strong dramatic tone all its own, characterized by standout work from guitarist Dean Parks and harmonica soloist Tommy Morgan. A different kind of score from a composer who continues to surprise us all with his sense of dramatic film scoring, one that consistently translates into great stand-alone music in the process.

Roxanne

1987, Cinedisc Records; from the movie Roxanne, Columbia Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Smeaton; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: 1 Roxanne (Main Title)(2:03); 2 Starry Sky (3:34); 3 Just Honest/We Did It (3:41); 4 Roxanne's Theme (2:28); 5 Game, Set, Match (2:14); 6 The Panache (P. Melnick)(3:43); 7

Roxanne's Eyes (3:13); 8 The Blue Danube Waltz (J. Strauss)(10:54); 9 Written In The Wind (J. Curiale)(3:23); 10 Roxanne (End Title)(4:07).

Review: It might have made sense to turn Edmond Rostand's stageplay about Cyrano de Bergerac into a modern-day fantasy, starring Steve Martin as the long-nosed fellow, hopelessly in love with Roxanne, played by the delightful Daryl Hannah. The problem is that Cyrano's dilemma about his proboscis in this tepid adaptation could have been fixed in no time with plastic surgery, thereby spoiling the film from its much needed novel approach.

But Bruce Smeaton's clever, if at times slightly hackneyed score not only fit the bill handsomely, it also made for pleasant if unobtrusive background musical enjoyment, smartly captured in this soundtrack album.

Ruby

1992, Intrada Records; from the movie Ruby, PolyGram/Triump, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: John Scott; Orchestrations: John Scott; Music Editor: Steve Livingston; Orchestra conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineer: Toby Foster.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:31); 2 Ruby Meets Candy (3:07); 3 Telephone Trixie (1:47); 4 The Hanging (2:46); 5 Cuba (1:02); 6 The Camera (4:48); 7 Never Go Back (1:15); 8 Later Hank (1:24); 9 Confidence (1:11); 10 JFK Arrival In Vegas (1:40); 11 A Ride With Maxwell (1:09); 12 Just Do Your Duty (2:08); 13 Presidential Suite (1:56); 14 Thanks For Everything (1:05); 15 Some Expert Advice (2:28); 16 Candy's Back (2:07); 17 Pre-Assassination (3:34); 18 Ruby Kills Oswald (3:59); 19 Candy And Ruby (2:35); 20 End Titles (4:48).

Review: For this Jack Ruby docudrama, John Scott contrasts a small jazz ensemble with a lovely symphonic melody which captures a contradictory innocence that belies the message of the film. His main theme is grandly symphonic, almost majestic, its sense of joy and innocence becomes a counterpoint to the darker, conspiratorial tonality of the film. As it develops, the main theme is often overwhelmed by the dark jazz figures, as Scott musically delineated the innocence of Jack Ruby as it is tantalized, tempted and finally overwhelmed by the thrust of irreversible circumstances into which he allows himself to become immersed. With its mixture of jazz and symphonic orchestral colorations, and its brilliant contrast of melody with rhythm, innocence with evil, control with irrevocable destiny, Ruby is one of Scott's best scores.

Rudy

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Rudy, Tri-Star Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage, Arthur Morton; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:35); 2 A Start (2:27); 3 Waiting (2:35); 4 Back On The Field (2:07); 5 To Notre Dame (6:55); 6 Tryouts (4:27); 7 The Key (3:55); 8 Take Us Out (1:51); 9 The Plaque (2:36); 10 The Final Game (6:16).

Review: This extremely popular Goldsmith effort for the true story of a lad who dreams of playing football at Notre Dame works as a more acoustic follow-up to his Oscar-nominated Hoosiers score, full of rah-rah inspiration that also conjures up memories of Goldsmith's Patton. The score opens with a beautiful, plaintive tune based on an old Irish ballad, richly played by the orchestra, while later cues develop a delicate piano motif until some hard-charging inspirational music heralds Rudy's participation in team practices and eventually in a real game. You can't help but get caught up in the optimism and warmth of this score, but at the same time there's a repetitiveness, a sameness in the tempos and a lack of Goldsmith's complex development that may be off-putting to fans of the composer's earlier, more hard-edged style.

Runaway

1987, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Runaway, Tri-Star Pictures, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Synthesizer Programming: Joel Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:44); 2 Crazed Robot (3:08); 3 She Went Home (1:37); 4 Alley Flight (2:06); 5 Shootin' Up The Ritz (3:24); 6 The Bullet (3:06); 7 Sushi Switch (3:18); 8 Lockons (4:06); 9 Psychic Reading (1:09); 10 Ground Floor (1:03); 11 40th Floor (1:24); 12 Over The Edge (3:07); 13 Luther Dies (1:12); 14 Resolution (5:32).

Review: Goldsmith's first all-electronic score is an abrasive, metallic effort for Michael Crichton's silly near-future thriller about a kind of SWAT team for malfunctioning robots. Much of the music achieves an almost acoustic quality as Goldsmith, with the assistance of son Joel, blends layers of synthetic textures and repeating electronic figures. Particularly effective is a barbaric moment of solo percussion in the suspenseful (and idiotically named) "Sushi Switch." And Goldsmith brings the same rhythmic intensity to the cacophonous chase cues "Alley Flight" and "Lockons" that he does to his orchestral scores. But the constant presence of pounding drum machines and the harsh overall sound is bound to be off-putting to fans of the composer's earlier works. Still, this difficult-to-find album has some collector's value.

Runaway Train

1986, Milan Records; from the movie Runaway Train, Cannon Films; 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Trevor Jones; Featured Musicians: Dave Lawson, Brian Gascoigne, Simon Lloyd (keyboards), Ray Russell (guitar), Harold Fisher (drums), Paul Hirsh (shakuhachi), Catherine Bott (solo vocalist); Album Producers: Trevor Jones, Jack Fishman; Engineer: Paul Hume.

Selections: 1 Jailbreak! (2:00); 2 Moving On (3:43); 3 Destination Unknown (2:20); 4 Clear The Tracks (4:05); 5 Reflections (2:59); 6 Runaway (4:43); 7 Prison Memories (A. Masters)/The Yellow Rose Of Texas (D. George)(3:03) The Jamborees; 8 Collision Course (2:18); 9 Past, Present—Future? (2:23); 10 Red For Danger (3:07); 11 Gloria in D (2nd movement)(A. Vivaldi)(6:48) The USSR Academic Russian Choir, The Moscow Conservatory Students' Orchestra, Alexsander Sveshnikov; 12 End Of The Line (3:57).

Review: Andrei Konchalovsky' gripping rail drama, starring Jon Voight, Eric Roberts and Rebecca de Mornay, and based on a screenplay by Akira Kurosawa, elicited a taut score from composer Trevor Jones, solidly rooted in contemporary sounds. Following a prison escape, two convicts find themselves unwilling passengers on board an out-of-control train in the Alaskan wild in this fast-paced film, as exciting as it is well-sketched. Jones's score subtly underlines the action without overstretching the point, in cues that are particularly effective on the screen and are equally well defined on a purely audio level. In a striking counterpoint, Vivaldi's "Gloria in D" provides a welcome change of pace that doesn't detract from the main motifs, yet adds to the overall flavor of the score.

The Running Man

1987, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Running Man, Tri-Star Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Harold Faltermeyer; Album Producer: Harold Faltermeyer; Engineer: Brian Reeves.

Selections: 1 Intro/Bakersfield (2:00); 2 Main Title/Fight Escape (3:46); 3 Buzzsaw/Richard's Fight (1:50); 4 Captain Freedom's Workout (2:31); 5 Mick's Broadcast/Attack (5:03); 6 Valkyrie (2:38); 7 Buzzsaw Attack (2:08); 8 Medical Checkup (2:24); 9 Fireball Intro (1:19); 10 Buzzsaw/Dynamo Attack (1:49); 11 Massacre Highlights (1:07); 12 Sub-Zero Intro (2:02); 13 Sub-Zero (4:22); 14 Fireball Chase (2:02); 15 Spare Dynamo (2:20); 16 Weiss Discovers Dish/Amber's Launch (2:26); 17 Revolution/End Credits (1:58).

Review: This likable enough synthesized action score by Harold Faltermeyer has its moments, but suffers mainly from the fact that many of the themes are never fully developed. Several of the more satisfying tracks are the themes for the "Running Man" TV show's gladiators. "Captain Freedom's Workout" is one of the few that rises above the din of squealing guitar rifts and drum machines Faltermeyer relies on and it's great for that step aerobic workout, too! However, when Faltermeyer gets down to one of his more interesting cue, "Mick's Broadcast/ Attack," he just leaves us hanging by stopping the music cold after an engaging five-minute buildup. That may work great for the film, but not on an album. The first two cues, "Intro/ Bakersfield" and "Main Title/ Fight Escape" do not appear in the final film as heard on the album.

The Russia House

1990, MCA Records; from the movie The Russia House, M-G-M, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Featured Artists: Branford Marsalis (saxophone), Michael Lang (piano), John Patitucci (bass); Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Katya (3:57); 2 Introductions (3:12); 3 The Conversation (4:13); 4 Training (2:01); 5 Katya And Barley (2:32); 6 First Name, Yakov (2:53); 7 Bon Voyage (2:11); 8 The Meeting (3:59); 9 I'm With You/What Is This Thing Called Love (C. Porter) (2:39) Branford Marsalis, Billy Childs, Tony Dumas, Ralph Penland; 10 Alone In The World (J. Goldsmith/A. & M. Bergman) (4:09) Patti Austin; 11 The Gift (2:34); 12 Full Marks (2:27); 13 Barley's Love (3:24); 14 My Only Country (4:34); 15 Crossing Over (4:13); 16 The Deal (4:09); 17 The Family Arrives (7:38).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith took the unusual approach of writing a jazz-textured score for this film about espionage filmed in the former Soviet Union, adapting a love theme he originally wrote for the movie Alien Nation and building some flowing, low-key bass and piano rhythms to underscore the film's suspense scenes. This is also notable as Goldsmith's lone experiment with long album form, with a generous hour of music from his score. But as Goldsmith himself has noted, there's too much music here, in this case because the style he adopted for the picture emphasizes repetition, with only the improvisation of Wynton Marsalis and some other jazz performers to break up the monotony. Nevertheless, the very congruence of style here makes for an unusually smooth, coherent listening experience, entirely lacking in harsh dissonances or violent moments, each piece flowing seamlessly into the next. This may be more appealing to fans of jazz fusion or new age music than Goldsmith fans.

Ryan's Daughter

1991, Sony Music Special Products; from the movie Ryan's Daughter's, M-G-M, 1970.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestra conducted by Maurice Jarre.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:33); 2 Overture (4:01); 3 The Major (2:33); 4 You Don't Want Me Then (2:53); 5 Michael's Theme (3:11); 6 Ride Through The Woods (2:46); 7 Obsession (2:04); 8 The Shakes (based On Michael's Theme) (2:09); 9 Rosy On The Beach (1:41); 10 Song Of The Irish Rebels (2:08); 11 Rosy And The Schoolmaster (2:42); 12 Michael Shows Randolph His Strange Treasure (3:05); 13 Rosy's Theme (2:05);

THE TRAIN (M. JARRE): 14 Main Title (2:05); 15 Papa Boule On The Move (2:43);

GRAND PRIX (M. JARRE): 16 Overture (4:36); 17 Scott & Pat/Sarti & Louise (2:10); 18 The Zan Voort Race (5:20).

Review: The creative relationship between director David Lean and composer Maurice Jarre found another fertile ground in this intimate love story, set in Ireland in 1916, at a time when Europe was ravaged by "the war to end all wars" and Ireland itself was about to know an equally devastating uprising against the British. Starring Sarah Miles, as the young, romantic Rosy Ryan, Robert Mitchum as the stiff schoolmaster she marries, and Christopher Jones as the handsome officer with whom she has an affair, Ryan's Daughter gave Maurice Jarre the elements he needed to write an overwhelmingly romantic score, teeming with cues that detail the action and brightly comment on it. Spearheaded by the sweeping main theme that recurs throughout the score, the music also makes allowances for other themes that project different moods, like the brassy march for "The Major," or the liltingly jaunty "Rosy on the Beach." Overflowing with attractive musical ideas, Ryan's Daughter is an excellent score that spells its many charms in this CD reissue, augmented with selections from two other Jarre scores, for The Train and Grand Prix.

Sabrina

1996, A&M Records; from the movie Sabrina, Paramount Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Music Editor: Ken Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Featured Musician: Dick Nash (trombone); Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Theme From Sabrina (4:30); 2 Moonlight (J. Williams/A. & M. Bergman)(5:20) Sting; 3 Linus' New Life (2:45); 4 Growing Up In Paris (3:02); 5 (In The) Moonlight (2:59); 6 Sabrina Remembers /La Vie en Rose (Louiguy/E. Mandel)/Call Me Irresponsible (S. Cahn/ J. Van Heusen)/Stella By Starlight (V. Young/N. Washington)(10:53); 10 Sabrina And Linus Date (2:40); 11 How Can I Remember (J. Williams/A. & M. Bergman) (2:50) Michael Dees; 12 Sabrina's Return To Paris (2:22); 13 Theme From Sabrina (reprise)(5:23).

Review: This ill-advised remake of the charming 1954 Billy Wilder romantic comedy was a total disaster at the box office, despite the presence of Harrison Ford and Julia Ormond in the roles originally created by Humphrey Bogart and Audrey Hepburn. One of its most positive elements, however, is the delicately overblown score John Williams wrote for it. Introduced by the "Theme From Sabrina," essentially a romantic mini-concerto for piano and orchestra, the score reveals great ingenuity and feel for its subject, with the recurring "Moonlight" motif playing an important role in the cues. In one instance ("Sabrina Remembers/ La vie en rose"), Williams lets a theme meld into a well-known song that sets the decor better than anything he himself might have written, and in a long medley ("The Party Sequence") even takes several standards around which to build his cue. It's an interesting, flavorful way to present source material, and much more effective than having a cover version which might break the moods set by the instrumental cues. The only letdown in this otherwise very attractive score is Sting's vocal rendition of "Moonlight," only because the singer tries too hard to sound romantic.

Sahara

1992, Intrada Records; from the movie Sahara, Cannon Films, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra conducted by Ennio Morricone; Album Producer: Douglass Fake; Engineers: Douglass Fake, Joe Tarantino.

Selections: 1 Theme From Sahara (4:17); 2 The Party (a) Charleston, (b) Ragtime Dance (5:09) The Pasadena Roof Orchestra; 3

Father's Death (1:58); 4 Arabia (3:04); 5 On Your Marks... (1:04); 6 Get Set... Go (1:49); 7 Armour Car (3:31); 8 Oasis (3:20); 9 Desert Music (4:38); 10 Waterfall Kiss (1:52); 11 Panther Chase (3:27); 12 More Desert Music (2:20); 13 Car Trouble (:37); 14 More Car Trouble (:29); 15 Battle I (8:40); 16 Rasoul (2:40); 17 Battle II (3:05); 18 Battle III (4:42); 19 End Titles (4:16); 20 Sahara (3:09) Cathy Cole, Ennio Morricone and His Orchestra.

Review: On various occasions, Morricone scored films that had a Saharian motif to them (Secret of the Sahara, Prince of the Desert, etc.), something which inspired him to renew himself and find new ways to celebrate the poesy and mystery of the desert. If he did indulge his interest in exotic music when he wrote the music for this film ("Arabia," "Oasis," "Desert Music," "More Desert Music"), the story also gave him many other opportunities to let his imagination run wild. Set in 1928, the film stars Brooke Shields as Dale Packard, determined to win the Sahara International Car Rally, despite the fact that only men are allowed to enter the race. In the course of the action, she faces many dangers ("Panther Chase," "Car Trouble"), and is abducted by a wandering Tuareg leader whom she is forced to marry, but she still wins the race at the end. The various difficulties encountered by the young woman led to vibrantly detailed cues that constitute the bulk of the score. Mining another rich musical vein, Morricone created ceremonial music with a pseudo-British brass flair, for the beginning and end of the race, and he combined a variety of North African instruments and sonoroties to his music to depict the exotic locales in which the story took place. Dominating the whole, he wrote for Dale a lovely romantic theme, which recurs throughout the score and contrasts with the rapid-fire action in the other cues. In the Morricone body of work, Sahara may not be as well known as some of his most memorable creations, but it is a very unusual, compelling score that deserves to be discovered.

Review: Featuring tracks by established performers, and lesser-known acts, this compilation tries desperately to be slick and now. But somehow, the flavor that was so specific to the early films and television series, respectively starring George Sanders and Roger Moore as Leslie Chasteris' title character, seems hopelessly lost in this hodgepodge, which tries to claim some legitimacy by using the familiar motif in "The Saint Theme," updated to satisfy today's musical taste. As pop compilations go, this one—with new songs by David Bowie, Everything But The Girl, and Duran Duran among its better moments—is not all that bad. But what has it got to do with The Saint?

The Saint

1997, Angel Records; from the movie The Saint, Paramount Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Graeme Revell; Orchestrations: John Bell, Nick Ingman, Graeme Revell; Music Editor: Joe E. Rand; The London Metropolitan Orchestra, conducted by Allan Wilson, David Snell; Album Producer: Graeme Revell; Engineer: Chris Dibble.

Selections: 1 Main Title (6:25); 2 Break-In (3:46); 3 Shelley Monument (2:16); 4 Searching Apartment (3:38); 5 Love Theme (2:55); 6 The River Chase (3:16); 7 The Tunnels (2:36); 8 Race To Embassy (2:22); 9 Tempelhof (2:41); 10 Love Theme (2nd version)(2:54); 11 Kremlin Riot/Karpov's Room (4:40); 12 Red Square (3:09); 13 The Fight (5:40); 14 Love Theme Finale (5:27).

Review: Indicative of the increasing respect film music seems to be getting in some circles, this soundtrack album was released on the classical label, Angel Records, which, with Sony Classical and London Records, seems intent on making this kind of music the modern day equivalent of classical music. No one should complain about that. Which doesn't mean that Graeme Revell's music should be confused with the works of the great classic composers. In fact, the score for The Saint is too often bathed in cliches to really compel the listener. There are some genuinely attractive moments in it (the "Love Theme," heard in three different versions), but the overall effect seems to be more along the lines of listless synth lines mingled with lush orchestral textures, and an occasional electronic rhythm track added to it, no doubt to signify increased screen action. What is mostly lacking here are genuine melodic themes, as if the music were essentially meant to be a wall of orchestral sounds, a problem all too frequent these days when melodic ideas don't seem to matter as much as noise.

The Saint of Fort Washington

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Saint of Fort Washington, Warner Bros., 1993.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: James Newton Howard; Music Editors: Jim Weidman, David Olson; Orchestra conducted by Marty Paich; Featured Musicians: Chuck Findley (trumpet); Album Producers: James Newton Howard, Michael Mason; Engineer: Robert Schaper; Assistant Engineer: Charlie Paakkari.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (4:42); 2 Sewing Money (4:46); 3 Rosario (4:40); 4 The Rainstorm (3:11); 5 Matthew Takes A Picture (3:21); 6 Back To The Shelter (2:32); 7 Matthew's Casket (2:22); 8 End Titles (4:25).

Review: The moving story of a homeless Vietnam vet and the street kid he takes under his wing, The Saint of Fort Washington elicited a soberly eloquent score from James Newton Howard, evidently inspired by its subject. Overall, the moods projected are remarkably low-key and attractive, with a synth melody and an occasional piano theme detailing specific scenes in the narrative, and tugging at the proper heartstrings.

Samson and Delilah/ The Quiet Man

1994, Varese Sarabande; from the movies Samson and Delilah, Paramount Pictures, 1949; and The Quiet Man, Republic Picture, 1952.

Album Notes: Music: Victor Young; The Paramount Symphony Orchestra (Samson and Delilah), and The Victor Young Orchestra (The Quiet Man), conducted by Victor Young; CD Producer: Robert Townson.

Selections: SAMSON AND DELILAH: 1 Suite: Samson's Call/ Miriam And The Dance Dragon/The Valley Of Zorah/The Feather Dance/Delilah's Remorse/The Feast Dance/ Bacchanale/Delilah's Harp/Samson And Delilah (23:22);

THE QUIET MAN: 2 Danaher's House (2:19); 3 My Mother (2:45); 4 The Big Fight (2:40); 5 Forlorn (Mary Kate's Lament)(3:05); 6 I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen (T. Westendorf)(2:47); 7 St. Patrick's Day (2:26).

Review: Victor Mature is a beefy Samson and Hedy Lamarr a beguiling Delilah, in Cecil B. DeMille's impressive retelling of the Biblical tale about the strongman and his fall from grace when he succumbs to the siren's charms, and she shears his long hair, source of his strength, in the unkindest cut of all. Spearheaded by a lovely main theme, the score Victor Young wrote for the film displays the appropriate contrasting elements of passion and action, in this oft-told story of love and betrayal. The exotic accents in some of the themes aim to evoke, in typical Hollywood style, the time and locale of the narrative, which means that the effects are predictable but quite suggestive. Presented as a long suite, with the themes evolving in and out of the orchestral texture, the music is all at once reassuring in its conventional approach and very exciting.

Also very attractive in its own depiction of an unusual love story set in Ireland, The Quiet Man enabled Young to compose a score that beautifully conveys the various moments in the action with melodies that are serenely fetching and vibrant. A recent rerecording, conducted by Kenneth Alwyn (q.v.), is much more complete and sonically superior to the selections offered here, but these are the original soundtrack cues, conducted by the composer, and as such they have an importance one can hardly ignore.

The Sandpiper

1996, Verve Records; from the movie The Sandpiper, M-G-M, 1965.

Album Notes: Music: Johnny Mandel; Orchestrations: Johnny Mandel; Orchestra conducted by Robert Armbruster; Album Producer: Quincy Jones; CD Producer: Michael Lang; Engineer: Steven Fallone.

Selections: 1 The Shadow Of Your Smile (J. Mandel/P.F. Webster)(1:54); 2 Main Title (4:15); 3 Desire (2:27); 4 Seduction (5:00); 5 San Simeon (4:14); 6 Weekend Montage (4:28); 7 Baby Sandpiper (3:51); 8 Art Gallery (5:35); 9 End Title (2:36); 10 Bird Bath (2:14); 11 Weekend Montage (unedited version) (4:59).

Review: The enormous popular success of "The Shadow of Your Smile," an Academy Award winner in 1966, should not becloud the overall appeal of the score written by Johnny Mandel. The song, performed here by a characterless chorus, is in fact one of the least remarkable tracks in the recording (one recalls the much more vibrant renditions by seasoned vocalists like Tony Bennett, Johnny Mathis, Frank Sinatra or Jerry Vale, among the more than 100 cover versions it elicited). Weaving itself in and out of the cues in this album, the theme permeates the whole score with its deftly nostalgic strains, a haunting refrain that captures the poignancy in this failed love affair between two opposite characters, she (played by Elizabeth Taylor) a free-wheeling spirit, he (portrayed by Richard Burton) a staid Episcopal minister, as well as the loneliness of the Big Sur location where the story unfolds. The familiarity of the tune is one of the most engaging elements in the score, with this album guaranteed to be a real discovery for those unfamiliar with it.

The Santa Clause

1994, Milan Records; from the movie The Santa Clause, Walt Disney Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Convertino; Orchestrations: John Neufeld, Conrad Pope, Bobby Muzingo; Music Editor: Kenn Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producer: Michael Convertino; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Let's Go (1:03); 2 Believing Is Seeing (3:24); 3 The Sash Completes The Ensemble (1:04); 4 Flight (:46); 5 Weightless (1:33); 6 Away To The Window (2:11); 7 The Bells Of Christmas (L. McKennitt)(2:21) Loreena McKennitt; 8 Listen (3:05); 9 Goodnight, Goodnight... Don't Forget The Fire Extinguisher (1:08); 10 Visitation (2:19); 11 Rose Suchak Ladder (1:29); 12 The List (1:24); 13 Elves With Attitude (:50); 14 Someone In Wrapping (1:31); 15 Near Capture (:46); 16 Comfort And Joy (2:10); 17 Not Over Any Oceans (1:50); 18 Christmas Will Return (J. Webb)(4:05) Brenda Russell, Howard Hewett.

Review: Anyone who enjoys Christmas-themed soundtracks will definitely want to give a listen to Michael Convertino's immensely appealing score from The Santa Clause, the Tim Allen blockbuster comedy of 1994. The music can best be described as magical, with a quirky, offbeat approach perfectly suiting this yuletide comedy, which also boasts soaring orchestral passages and strong melodic themes. Convertino worked with a number of John Williams' collaborators here (conductor Artie Kane, orchestrator John Neufeld), and the results are just as warmly inviting as Williams' memorable music from the Home Alone pictures. The soundtrack also contains a vocal performance by Canadian singer Loreena McKennitt ("The Bells of Christmas") and an original Jimmy Webb song, "Christmas Will Return," making the album ideal for perennial holiday listening.

Satchmo the Great

1993, Legacy Records; from the movie Satchmo the Great, 1955.

Album Notes: Featured Musicians: Louis Armstrong (trumpet), Trummy Young (trombone), Edmond Hall (clarinet), Billy Kyle (piano), Arvell Shaw (bass), Barrett Deems (drums); Album Producer: George Avakian; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Kevin Boutote.

Selections: 1 Introduction (:25) Edward R. Murrow; 2 When It's Sleepy Time Down South (L. Rene/O. Rene/C. Muse)(3:44); 3 (Back Home Again) In Indiana (B. MacDonald/J. Hanley)(4:49); 4 Paris Interview (6:22) Edward R. Murrow; 5 Flee As A Bird To The Mountain (M.S. Dana/G.F. Root)/Oh, Didn't He Ramble (W.C. Handy/B. Cole/J.R. Johnson)(4:33); 6 Mack The Knife (K. Weill/B. Brecht/M. Blitzstein)(4:11); 7 Mahogany Hall Stomp (S. Williams)(5:02); 8 All For You, Louis (Sly Mongoose)(R. Belasco)(2:51); 9 (What Did I Do To Be So) Black And Blue (A. Razaf/T. Waller/H. Brooks)(4:11); 10 St. Louis Blues (Concerto Grosso)(12:31) Louis Armstrong, Lewisohn Stadium Symphony Orchestra, Leonard Bernstein.

Review: "Hannibal crossed the Alps in 218 B.C. with 37 elephants and 12,000 horses. Louis Armstrong crossed the Alps in the mid-20th century with one trumpet and five musicians." So begins fabled CBS newsman Edward R. Murrow's commentary at the opening of this disc, the soundtrack from the first feature film to focus on one individual jazz musician's international tour. Bear in mind that this took place in 1955 and 1956, a time when modern jazz did not necessarily have the widespread appeal and audience that it enjoys today. But Satchmo the Great is a unique and important collaboration, especially for its time. Where else could you find the acknowledged Ambassador of Jazz (Armstrong), and the brilliant conductor Leonard Bernstein grooving together? Their 12-minute "St. Louis Blues (Concerto Grosso)" was recorded for the Guggenheim Concert at New York's Lewisohn Stadium, for the CBS News presentation See It Now, and is a fitting finale for this album). What about "All For You, Louis (Sly Mongoose)"—recorded with African musicians at the Accra Airport in upon Louis' arrival? Both live and studio performances are interwoven with commentary and interviews of Armstrong by Murrow, and the album as a whole (even without the video images) is a fascinating documentation of the trumpeter completely at ease, in his element, performing for live audiences. Included among the 10 numbers are two Armstrong classics: "When It's Sleepy Time Down South," and "Mack The Knife." Newly remastered, the superior sonics truly belie the age of the original recordings.

Saturday Night Fever

1995, Polydor Records; from the movie Saturday Night Fever, 1977.

Album Notes: Music: David Shire; Songs (unless otherwise indicated): Barry Gibb, Maurice Gibb, Robin Gibb; CD Producer: Bill Oakes.

Selections: 1 Stayin' Alive (4:44) Bee Gees; 2 How Deep Is Your Love (4:03) Bee Gees; 3 Night Fever (3:31) Bee Gees; 4 More Than A Woman (3:16) Bee Gees; 5 If I Can't Have You (2:58) Yvonne Elliman; 6 A Fifth Of Beethoven (W. Murphy)(3:02) Walter Murphy; 7 More Than A Woman (3:16) Tavares; 8 Manhattan Skyline (D. Shire)(4:43); 9 Calypso Breakdown (W. Eaton) (7:49) Ralph McDonald; 10 Night On Disco Mountain (D. Shire)(5:12); 11 Open Sesame (R. Bell/R. Bell/G. Brown/D. Thomas/C. Smith)(3:59) Kool and The Gang; 12 Jive Talkin' (3:43) Bee Gees; 13 You Should Be Dancing (4:13) Bee Gees; 14 Boogie Shoes (H. Casey/R. Finch)(2:16) K.C. & The Sunshine Band; 15 Salsation (D. Shire)(3:50); 16 K-Jee (C. Hearndon/H. Fuqua)(4:13) M.F.S.B.; 17 Disco Inferno (L. Green/R. Kersey)(10:50) The Trammps.

Review: More than 25 million copies later, there's almost nothing left to say. If someone wants to know what disco was all about, you just hand them this album, a polyester suit and let them soak in the enduring smashes by the Bee Gees, Yvonne Elliman, the Trammps, K.C. & the Sunshine Band, even Walter Murphy's insipid "A Fifth of Beethoven" is here. But regardless of your feelings about disco, gold chains, mirror balls and falsettos, this package is a trendsetter. Where previous soundtrack albums are usually good for one hit single, Fever ushered in the era of the multi-hit collection, and pop soundtracks were never the same after that.

The Scarlet Letter

1995, Epic Soundtrax/Sony Music; from the movie The Scarlet Letter, Hollywood Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; The English Chamber Orchestra, conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: John Barry; Engineer: John Kurklander.

Selections: 1 Main Title (P. Buffett)/The Arrival/Search For Home (6:17); 2 Hester Rides To Town (1:05); 3 The Bird/The Swimmer (P. Buffett)(3:08); 4 A Very Exhilarating Read (2:11); 5 I'm Not The Man I Seem (2:41); 6 Agnus Dei (based on Samuel Barber's Adagio for Strings)(10:51) The Robert Shaw Festival Singers; 7 I Can See What Others Cannot (1:04); 8 Love Scene (6:45); 9 Are You With Child (2:06); 10 A Small Act Of Contrition (2:25); 11 The Birth (2:06); 12 I Baptize This Child/Pearl (2:02); 13 She Will Not Speak (3:24); 14 Dr. Rodger Prynne (1:41); 15 Hester Walks Through Town (1:51); 16 Poor Fatherless Child (2:08); 17 An Attempt At Rape (3:01); 18 The Savages Have Killed Him (1:51); 19 The Round-Up (1:54); 20 I Am The Father Of Her Child (2:16); 21 The Indians Attack (2:48); 22 The Letter Has Served A Purpose (2:36); 23 End Title (4:14).

Review: It might be suicidal to one's critical reputation to say that you actually enjoyed Demi Moore and Roland Joffe's reworking of Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter, so I'm only going to admit that I found the picture not nearly as disastrous as many others did. The movie boasts a number of positive attributes, including Alex Thomson's fine cinematography and a typically lush score by John Barry, who creates a deliberately paced musical sound that's a close relative to Somewhere in Time and all those other romantic soundtracks the composer is famous for. Thus, there's nothing here you haven't heard before, but it still works thanks to Barry's soothing orchestrations. Curiously, Barry was the third composer on the project, following Elmer Bernstein and Ennio Morricone. While Bernstein's music was recorded but ultimately rejected, Morricone was thrown off the project after he handed the producers a demo tape that was actually not original music but rather a pastiche of scores he had composed for various Italian projects!

Scent of a Woman

1992, MCA Records; from the movie Scent of a Woman, Universal Pictures, 1992.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:59); 2 A Tour Of Pleasures (:50); 3 Tract House Ginch (1:05); 4 45 In 25 (3:24); 5 Balloons (:54); 6 Cigars Part Two (2:31); 7 Por una cabeza (C. Gardel)(2:15) The Tango Project; 8 Long Gray Line (1:02); 9 The Oakroom (:35); 10 Park Avenue (4:30); 11 Witnesses (1:21); 12 Beyond Danger (2:45); 13 La Violetera (J. Padilla)(3:35) The Tango Project; 14

Other Plans (2:09); 15 Assembly (2:04); 16 Fleurs de rocaille (2:50); 17 End Title (2:36).

Review: A brilliant tour-de-force by Al Pacino, as a blind ex-officer cared for over a Thanksgiving weekend by a college student, is one of the highlights in this modest comedy in which the youngster, deftly played by Chris O'Donnell, accompanies the cane-wielding, cantankerous sightless soldier on a spree to New York City, forging along the way solid affective ties with him. Based on a 1974 Italian film, scored by Armando Trovaioli, which received scant distribution in the U.S., Scent of a Woman (the title refers to the blind man's uncanny ability to identify an attractive woman just by sniffling the aura around her) exuded great charm and sensitivity, further enhanced by Thomas Newman's appealingly varied and low-key approach to his music. Two dance numbers, performed by the Tango Project, enliven the proceedings, casting a different, albeit equally enjoyable note into the mix.

Schindler's List

1993, MCA Records; from the movie Schindler's List, Universal Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Music Editor: Ken Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Featured Soloist: Itzhak Perlman (violin), Giora Feidman (clarinet); Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineers: Andrew Bass, Greg Denon.

Selections: 1 Theme From Schindler's List (4:14); 2 Jewish Town (Krakow Ghetto, Winter '41)(4:38); 3 Immolation (With Our Lives, We Give Life) (4:43); 4 Remembrance (4:19); 5 Schindler's Workforce (10:36); 6 OYF'N Pripetshok (M. Warschafsky) and Nacht Aktion (3:51) Li-Ron Herzeliya Children's Choir, Ronit Shapira; 7 I Could Have Done More (5:52); 8 Auschwitz-Birkenau (3:41); 9 Stolen Memories (4:17); 10 Making The List (5:06); 11 Give Me Your Names (4:56); 12 Yeroushalaim Chel Zahav (Jerusalem Of Gold)(N. Shemer)(2:14) Ramat Gan Chamber Choir, Hana Tzur; 13 Remembrances (with Itzhak Perlman)(5:16); 14 Theme From Schindler's List (reprise) (3:57).

Review: John Williams went along with Steven Spielberg's directorial approach on Schindler's List and refused to compose overly melodramatic moments in his Oscar-winning score for the 1993 movie. Working with violinist supreme Itzhak Perlman, Williams composed an elegiac, poignant score that is mournful and sad, tragic yet uplifting, perfectly establishing the emotional tone of Spielberg's Holocaust drama and gently underscoring the heroic actions of the title protagonist. The music is surprisingly low-key for a Williams score from a Spielberg picture, lacking the full-blooded orchestral finales of E.T. and Empire of the Sun, for example, and is—if anything—restrained perhaps a bit too much at the conclusion. Yet it is consistent with the manner in which Williams scored character pieces like The Accidental Tourist and Stanley & Iris, making for subtle and sublime film music composition.

School Ties

1992, Giant Records; from the movie School Ties, Paramount Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Music Editor: Dan Carlin, Sr.; Orchestra conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 School Ties (2:06); 2 Smokey Joe's Cafe (J. Leiber/M. Stoller)(2:45) The Robins; 3 David (16:03); 4 Ain't That A Shame (D. Bartholomew/A. Domino)(2:32) Fats Domino; 5 School Moments (6:26); 6 Let Me Go Lover (J.L. Carson/K.G. Twomey/F. Wise/B. Weisman)(2:21) Patti Page; 7 The Last Word (6:38).

Review: Maurice Jarre's pretty and adventurous melody gives a sense of grandness and size to this localized prep school drama. The use of bells characterizes the film's setting, while the main theme suggests the free spirits of the characters. The heart of the score is found in "David," a 16-minute cue (longest of the CD's four score-only cues) that varies greatly in tempo and becomes a compelling tone-poem for the character, occasionally introspective and vulnerable, elsewhere bold and confident. In addition to the CD's 31 minutes of score, there are three source-cue pop songs which don't really need to be here, but they can easily be bypassed to afford maximum attention to Jarre's symphonic work. A good score nicely preserved on disc.

The Sea Hawk

1988, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Sea Hawk, Warner Bros., 1940.

Album Notes: Music: Erich-Wolfgang Korngold; The Utah Symphony Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Varujian Kojian; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineers: Jeff Ostler, David Bytheway.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:55); 2 The Spanish Galleass/Galley Slaves/The "Albatross" (4:00); 3 The Captain's Table (1:44); 4 Dona Maria And Captain Thorpe/Elizabeth Throne Room (6:25); 5 Thorpe's Pet Monkey (7:03); 6 Map Of Panama (1:45); 7 The Chess Game (2:57); 8 Coach To Dover (2:21); 9 Farewell/

Panama (1:45); 10 Jungle March and Battle (3:32); 11 Return To The "Albatross" (3:05); 12 Condemned To The Galley/Dona Maria's Song (E.W. Korngold/H. Koch) (1:42) Carol Wetzel; 13 Queen Elizabeth/ Maria's Anguish (2:12); 14 Escape From The Galley/Fight On Deck/"Strike For The Shores Of Dover" (E.W. Korngold/ H. Koch/J. Scholl)(4:21); 15 Reunion (3:41); 16 Thorpe Confronts Wolfingham/ The Duel (2:38); 17 Fanfare and Finale (1:26) Utah Symphony Chorus, Ed Thompson.

Review: In the absence of an actual soundtrack album, which probably wouldn't sound too great given the recording techniques that prevailed at the time the film was made, this sensational rerecording, supervised by the composer's son, is more than a valid substitute. As was the case with The Adventures of Robin Hood (q.v.), the Utah Symphony and Varujian Kojian have approached Korngold's music with fervor and dedication, and a lot of enthusiasm that can easily be felt in the crackling performance. Possibly the only drawbacks might be the vocal and choral sections, which do not have the film's definite aura, but even that should not detract anyone from listening to and enjoying to the hilt this superlative soundtrack recreation.

The Sea Wolf

1993, Bay Cities Records; from the movie The Sea Wolf, Turner Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Charles Bernstein; Music Editor: Bruce Niznik; Album Producer: Charles Bernstein; Engineer: Daniel Hersch.

Selections: 1 Main Titles: Shipwreck and Rescue (3:33); 2 Man Overboard! (2:23); 3 Flaxen And Hump (1:48); 4 Down The Mast (2:33); 5 Captain Breaks Johnson (3:12); 6 Attempted Rape and Fight (4:15); 7 All Boats Away! (1:04); 8 Murder On Deck (1:50); 9 Who Did It? (1:39); 10 Mutiny (1:01); 11 Hump's Diary (1:30); 12 The Captain's Madness (1:59); 13 Hump's Seasick Discovery (2:40); 14 Life Aboard The Ghost (1:52); 15 The Meaning Of Dignity (1:18); 16 Adrift In The Night (3:42); 17 Hump And Flaxen's Escape (1:50); 18 The Ghost Sinks: Final Confrontation (3:33); 19 Ending Credits (1:41).

Review: A seafaring drama, starring Charles Bronson, as Captain Wolf Larsen, a tortured man bent on loneliness and self-destruction, and Christopher Reeve, as Humphrey Van Weyden, a socialite and involuntary seaman under Larsen's command, The Sea Wolf resulted in an often dark score by Charles Bernstein, reflective of the many somber aspects in the story. The relentless, oppressive moods in the music are occasionally relieved by a more romantic theme, describing Flaxen Brewster (Mary Catherine Stewart), an attractive young woman, whose presence on board "The Ghost," Larsen's ship, triggers some of the conflicts in the narrative. With a predominance of percussive effects and broody synth lines, the music establishes moods and atmosphere that might have been what the action on the screen called for, but otherwise prove banal and not conducive to repeated listening.

Searching for Bobby Fischer

1993, Big Screen Records; from the movie Searching for Bobby Fischer, Paramount Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: James Horner, Thomas Pasatieri; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Featured Musicians: James Horner, Ralph Grierson, Randy Kerber, Jim Thatcher, Ian Underwood; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:03); 2 Early Victories (3:30); 3 Contempt (2:40); 4 The Castle (2:04); 5 Josh vs. Dad (3:18); 6 Josh's First Lesson (2:38); 7 Trip To Chicago (3:24); 8 Washington Square (2:45); 9 Start Your Clock/Master Class Points (4:06); 10 Josh And Vinnie (3:31); 11 The Nationals (3:25); 12 Final Tournament (7:55); 13 Epilogue/End Credits (7:10).

Review: James Horner is often criticized for quoting both classical works and his own previous soundtracks at times, but despite these often uneven attributes in his compositions, he usually produces soundtracks that are nevertheless entertaining and invite repeated listening. Such is the case once again with his music from Searching for Bobby Fischer, the 1993 film by Steven Zaillian about the life of Josh Waitzkin, a real-life chess wiz who shot to fame at the age of seven. Sure, Horner's music sounds like Field of Dreams, Sneakers, and a few of his other scores, but as a pastiche, it's certainly an enjoyable one, with pleasant melodies and elegant orchestrations making this as easy to listen to as it is to identify the sections you'll recall from other sources.

The Secret Garden

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Secret Garden, Warner Bros., 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Zbigniew Preisner; Music Editor: Curt Sobel; The Sinfonia Varsovia, conducted by Wojciech Michniewski; The Boys Choir of The Cracovian Philharmonic, Stanislaw Kravceyski, dir.; Boy Soloist: Tomasz Borik; Album Producer: Zbigniew Preisner; Engineer: Rafal Paczkowski.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:33); 2 Leaving The Docks (1:27); 3 Mary Downstairs (2:05); 4 First Time Outside (1:24); 5 Skipping Rope (:53); 6 Entering The Garden (:59); 7 Walking Through The Garden (1:52); 8 Mary And Robin Together (:49); 9 Shows Dickon Garden (1:05); 10 Awakening Of Spring (1:48); 11 Craven Leaves (2:35); 12 Taking Colin To The Garden (1:10); 13 Colin Opens His Eyes (2:00); 14 Colin Tries Standing (:51); 15 Colin Loves Mary (:55); 16 Craven's Return (2:16); 17 Looking At Photos (:42); 18 Craven To The Garden (:35); 19 Colin Senses Craven (1:32); 20 Happily Ever After (2:25).

Review: Often agreeable, but overall disappointing presentation of Zbigniew Preisner's score. The album starts off in a very scattershot manner with cues frequently averaging a minute and a half, or less. It fails to generate any emotional response early on because the music is over before any emotional mood can develop. That's a real shame because the score does have its moments. "Craven Leaves," "Walking Through the Garden," and "Awakening of Spring" show some real possibilities. The pacing does improve in the later half, but by then it may have lost you.

The Secret of N.I.M.H.

1982, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the animated feature The Secret of N.I.M.H., United Artists, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; The National Philharmonic Orchestra and The Ambrosian Singers, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:14); 2 The Tractor (2:59); 3 The Sentry Reel/Story Of NIMH (6:04); 4 Step Inside My House (4:41); 5 The House Raising (4:33); 6 Moving Day (7:56); 7 No Thanks (2:02); 8 Allergic Reaction/Athletic Type (2:40); 9 Flying Dreams (Lullaby)(J. Goldsmith/P. Williams)(3:17) Sally Stevens; 10 Escape From NIMH/In Disguise (4:59); 11 Flying High/End Title (2:41); 12 Flying Dreams (J. Goldsmith/P. Williams)(3:25) Paul Williams.

Review: When you think of soundtracks from animated children's films, usually musicals or pop songs are the first things to enter into your mind—music like Alan Menken's mega-successful Disney efforts or songs like "Somewhere Out There" from An American Tail. Animated features with serious, classically-themed film scores are few and far between, but Jerry Goldsmith was given the rare chance at making a substantial contribution to Don Bluth's The Secret of NIMH, the 1982 theatrical feature which has since become a kids' staple on video and cable TV. Goldsmith faced the challenges of scoring for often incomplete animation and came up with one of his finest scores of the 1980s, with strongly thematic passages punctuated by thrilling cues that sound more like an action film score than they do befitting a children's soundtrack. Even the movie's original song, "Flying Dreams," co-written and performed by Paul Williams, is memorable and quite lovely, perfectly putting the cap on a superior effort by Goldsmith all around.

Selena

1997, Angel Records; from the movie Selena, Warner Bros., 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Dave Grusin; Music Editor: Robert Garrett; Orchestra conducted by Dave Grusin; Album Producer: Dave Grusin; Engineers: John Richards, Don Murray.

Selections: 1 Main Title: Selena (1:41); 2 Kids And Chickens (2:42); 3 South Texas Jive Cats (2:40); 4 Selena's Dream/Mi corazon (2:25); 5 Theme From "A Summer Place" (M. Steiner/M. Discant)(2:42) Gary Lemel; 6 Leaving Our Home (1:32); 7 Selena Theme (4:05) Dave Grusin; 8 Cumbia: "La manzana" (R. Vela/S. James/B. Moore)(2:36); 9 "Salinas" y los Low Riders (1:45); 10 Chris And Selena (2:47); 11 Small Talk And Salsa (3:22); 12 Dreams Of The People (1:46); 13 Leap Of Faith (3:42); 14 Don't Quit Music/Betrayal (1:46); 15 Final Dream (2:53); 16 Como la flor... For Selena (A.B. Quintanilla III/P. Astudillo)(4:06) Dave Grusin; 17 End Credits (3:10).

Review: This explosive real-life drama about the Tex-Mex performer murdered by one of her fans pretty much dictated Dave Grusin's approach to the music he wrote: with characteristic flair, he devised for many of the cues enjoyably bouncy tunes rooted in the fusion jazz in which he excels ("Kids and Chickens," "South Texas Jive Cats," "Salinas y los Low Riders"), keeping for the more romantic aspects in the story ("Selena's Dream," "Dreams of the People," "Don't Quit Music/Betrayal") a florid instrumental style that proves very ingratiating. The simply-stated "Selena Theme" and "Como la flor... for Selena," two gorgeously expressive piano pieces, also stand out, as do a couple of entertaining numbers denoting south-of-the-border influence ("Cumbia: La Manzana"). The only questionable selection in this otherwise highly entertaining score album is the inclusion of "Theme from 'A Summer Place'," sung by Gary Lemel, which seems an odd choice in the musical context.

> "I find writing songs for an assignment relatively easy... Compared to scoring a picture, in terms of time, it's one-fiftieth as hard. And that's being conservative."

Sense and Sensibility

1995, Sony Classical; from the movie Sense and Sensibility, Columbia Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Patrick Doyle; Orchestrations: Lawrence Ashmore; Music Editor: Roy Prendergast; Orchestra conducted by Robert Ziegler; Artists: Jane Eaglen (soprano), Tony Hymas (piano), Jonathan Snowdon (flutes), Richard Morgan (oboes), Robert Hill (clarinet); Album Producers: Patrick Doyle, Maggie Rodford; Engineer: Paul Hulme; Assistant Engineers: Ben Georgiades, John Bailey, Steve Orchard.

Selections: 1 Weep You No More Sad Fountains (3:05); 2 A Particular Sum (1:15); 3 My Father's Favorite (5:27); 4 Preying Penniless Woman (1:32); 5 Devonshire (1:04); 6 Not A Bean For Miles (1:57); 7 All The Better For Her (1:17); 8 Felicity (1:22); 9 Patience (1:42); 10 Grant Me An Interview (1:05); 11 All The Delights Of The Season (1:14); 12 Steam Engine (1:19); 13 Willoughby (1:39); 14 Miss Grey (2:21); 15 Excellent Notion (1:39); 16 Leaving London (2:12); 17 Combe Magna (2:59); 18 To Die For Love (2:55); 19 There Is Nothing Lost (:59); 20 Throw The Coins (3:08); 21 The Dreame (2:30).

Review: Jane Austen's understanding of the dual aspects in anyone's life (so well defined in the title of this film adapted from her first novel) found a remarkable echo in Patrick Doyle's gloriously literate and lovingly understated score. At times properly rambunctious, at other times deliciously gracile, the cues offer a carefully wrought depiction of this classic comedy-drama about three young girls (and their mother) in 18th century England suddenly left destitute by the death of their father, whose considerable estate is inherited by a son from a previous marriage and his insufferable wife. Some selections, like "Willoughby," strike for their charming simplicity, while the profuse style in others ("My Father's Favorite") proves equally endearing. Two vocals by Jane Eaglen bookend this delightful album, both exuding a lovely lilt mixed with a sense of melancholy, superbly reflective of the film's dual moods.

Serial Mom

1994, MCA Records; from the movie Serial Mom, Sony Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Basil Poledouris; Featured Performers: Kathleen Turner, Matthew Lillard, Patricia Dunnock, Mink Stole, Beau James, Patricia Hearst; Album Producers: L-7, Brett Gurewitz, Barry Manilow, Ron Dante, Basil Poledouris.

Selections: 1 Gas Chamber (L-7/J. Waters)(4:02) L-7; 2 Daybreak (B. Manilow/A. Anderson)(3:08) Barry Manilow; 3 Main Title (Mom's Suburban Dream)(4:49); 4 Morning Suite (I'll Get You Pussyface!)(2:06); 5 It's Been A Crazy Day, Hasn't It? (3:24); 6 Flea Market Suite (Stood Up And Skewered) (7:02); 7 The Sterner Payback (5:40); 8 Buckle Up, Scotty! (2:37); 9 Courtroom Suite (In Memory Of A Fashion Victim)(3:02); 10 I'm Coming Home! (3:20).

Review: Kathleen Turner had one of her most enjoyable screen roles as a mother with a killer instinct, in this cheerful comedy by John Waters. Adding spice to this devilishly amusing story about a perfect housewife and mother who reveals another side to her personality when she starts murdering her annoying neighbors, Basil Poledouris wrote a delightfully perverse little score that moves from a serene opening to a series of increasingly frantic cues, all of them detailing with glee the lady's misdeeds, in a style Bernard Herrmann would not have disowned. Some of the cues are set off by brief excerpts from the dialogue, further enhancing their impact. A neglected minor masterpiece, Serial Mom is wryly entertaining. This soundtrack album is equally rewarding, though you might want to skip the screechy "Gas Chamber" song, performed (if that is the word) by L-7.

Set It Off

1997, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Set It Off, New Line Cinema, 1997.

Selections: 1 Up Against The Wind (C. Young/D. Goldsmith) (3:28) Lori Perri; 2 Set It Off (4:08); 3 Hell Blowin Hard (2:18); 4

Buttercrunch (2:20); 5 Rota Rooter (4:01); 6 Four-One (1:55); 7 Squeezebox (1:39); 8 Balboa Blood (2:14); 9 Toupee Souffle (2:23); 10 Q. For A Day (2:58); 11 Flame On Fire (2:07); 12 Up Against The Wind (reprise) (C. Young/D. Goldsmith) (4:28) Lori Perri.

Review: Outstanding black urban score by Christopher Young that shows he's not out of fresh and innovative ideas. He's taken all he's learned from his past efforts and assembled some powerful orchestrations, particularly the use of some imaginative vocal arrangements that incorporate the sound of breathing as well as traditional "scats." The album also includes a lovely ballad, "Up Against the Wind," co-written by Young. Remarkable effort from a white boy from the Jersey shore.

Se7en

1995, TVT Records; from the movie Se7en, New Line Cinema, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Howard Shore; Orchestra conducted by Howard Shore; Producer: Howard Shore; Engineer: John Kurlander.

Selections: 1 In The Beginning (D. Cochran/K. Twomley/B. Weisman/F. Wise) (2:22) The Statler Brothers; 2 Guilty (Gravity Kills)(4:06) Gravity Kills; 3 Trouble Man (M. Gaye)(3:50) Marvin Gaye; 4 Speaking Of Happiness (J. Radcliffe/B. Scott) (2:33) Gloria Lynne; 5 Suite No. 3 in D Major, BWV 1068 (J.S. Bach) (3:40) Stuttgarter Kammerorchester, Karl Muchinger; 6 Love Plus One (N. Heyward)(3:37) Haircut 100; 7 I Cover The Waterfront (J. Green/E. Heyman)(3:21) Billie Holiday; 8 Now's The Time (C. Parker)(4:17) Charlie Parker; 9 Straight, No Chaser (T. Monk)(9:38) Thelonious Monk; 10 Portrait Of John Doe (4:57); 10 Suite From Seven (14:49).

Review: It opens with the Statler Brothers' "In the Beginning" and slams immediately to Gravity Kills' pulverizing "Guilty" before shifting back to Marvin Gaye's "Trouble Man." An arresting opening salvo that's supported by pieces of Bach and performances by blues queen Billie Holiday and jazz masters Charlie Parker and Thelonious Monk. For listeners who thrive on variety.

The Seventh Sign

1988, Cinedisc Records; from the movie The Seventh Sign, Tri-Star Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Jack Nitzsche; Album Producer: Michael Hoenig; Engineer: Pamela Neal.

Selections: 1 Opening/Fish/Desert/Wrath/First Seal (4:44); 2 The Nightmare (2:01); 3 David's Apartment and The Story Of "The Gulf" (3:15); 4 Abby Follows David To The Synagogue (4:01); 5 A World In Trouble (2:41); 6 Parchment 2/29 (2:48); 7 The Stabbing (2:25); 8 Attempted Suicide And Light (4:07); 9 Lucci Revealed (3:22); 10 The Last Martyr (2:06); 11 The Walk To The Gas Chamber (5:38); 12 Birth (1:11); 13 Abby's Death (3:12); 14 End Credits (3:57).

Review: A horror film with pseudo-Biblical overtones, The Seventh Sign stars Demi Moore as a pregnant woman confronted by the possibility that her unborn child might be the final sign announced in the Apocalypse. Using a disembodied chorus and electronic sounds, Jack Nitzsche fashioned a score that's richly evocative and appropriately ominous, though its real importance might have been better appreciated in the theatre, as a support to the screen action.

The 7th Voyage of Sinbad

1980, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The 7th Voyage of Sinbad, Columbia Pictures, 1958.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; Orchestra conducted by Bernard Herrmann; CD Producer: Tom Null; Engineer: Danny Hersch.

Selections: 1 Overture/Bagdad (3:50); 2 Sultan's Feast/The Vase/Cobra Dance (2:33); 3 The Cyclops (3:36); 4 Night Magic/ Tiny Princess/Street Music (3:34); 5 The Flight/Battle With The Cyclops (3:16); 6 The Roc/The Nest (4:10); 7 The Dragon (2:13); 8 Transformation (2:01); 9 The Skeleton/ The Duel With The Skeleton/The Sword (2:54); 10 The Death Of The Cyclops/ The Crossbow/The Death of The Dragon (3:20); 11 Finale (2:19).

Review: In the 1950s and '60s, Bernard Herrmann specialized in fantasy films, scoring several for special effects ace Ray Harryhausen, beginning with this rousing adventure which features a sprightly title theme and a number of evocative cues for Harryhausen's parade of animated mythical creatures. Highlights include rumbling, ominous low brass and percussion tones for a Cyclops and a dragon, a dazzling repeated brass fanfare for a gigantic two-headed bird ("The Roc"), and an audacious battle cue for Sinbad's fight with a walking skeleton, scored almost entirely for xylophone. The threatening brass chords for the Cyclops often recall Herrmann's work on The Day the Earth Stood Still, while the composer's pastiche Middle Easternisms vividly conjure up the Arabia of childhood stories. This hard-to-find CD features a masterly recording and performance, although this score is so strident and aggressive in its orchestral effects and repeated textures that it may drive crazy anyone but the most ardent Herrmann fans.

1989, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie sex, lies, and videotape, Miramax Films, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Cliff Martinez, Mark Mangini; Album Producers: Cliff Martinez, Mark Mangini; Engineer: Larry Blake.

Selections: 1 Garbage (M. Mangini)(:37); 2 Look Like A Tablecloth (4:01); 3 Take My Shirt Off (2:06); 4 Are You Comfortable (2:18); 5 Here We Go (2:16); 6 What Other Men...? (2:55); 7 Sniff The Jacket (3:25); 8 You've Got A Problem (7:04); 9 I'm Gonna Drawl (4:37).

Review: Sexy and totally unabashed about its subject, sex, lies, and videotape took a close-up look at four people, and what motivates them erotically. If the film is beautifully nuanced and unusually imaginative, the same cannot be said of Cliff Martinez's uneven score which often meanders into vapid synth lines without expression, punctuated at times by an electronic rhythm track, possibly to try and give them more meaning. One cannot but wonder what a more inspired composer (Patrick Doyle or Christopher Young, for instance) might have done with the same subject.

The Shadow

1994, Arista Records; from the movie The Shadow, Universal Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton, Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 The Shadow Knows... 1994 (:08) Alec Baldwin; 2 Original Sin (Theme From "The Shadow")(J. Steinman)(6:27) Taylor Dayne; 3 The Poppy Fields (Main Title)(3:16); 4 Some Kind Of Mystery (D. Warren)(3:48) Sinoa; 5 The Sanctum (3:33); 6 Who Are You? (4:02); 7 Chest Pains (3:26); 8 The Knife (3:05); 9 The Hotel (5:53); 10 The Tank (4:08); 11 Frontal Lobotomy (2:28); 12 Original Sin (Theme From "The Shadow")(J. Steinman)(5:02) Taylor Dayne; 13 The Shadow Radio Show 1937: Who Knows What Lurks in the Hearts of Men? (:29) Orson Welles.

Review: Skip the obligatory dialog and rock tracks (the first four and the last two) and enjoy Goldsmith's splendid heroic adventure score for this campy pulp-era superhero saga. His main theme is a rhythmic, ascending figure for brass over horns, reeds, and thundering percussion, with a weaving surge of violins underneath; it sounds ominously and resolutely, and lends an effective air of mystery (the strings) and power (the horns) to the shadowy crime-fighter. The various action cues are less effective, a collection of percussion hits, strings mysteriosos, and wind furtiveness, often in need of the powerful main theme to bring the score to life. A great moment is achieved with the appearance of the "invisible" hotel, phrases of the main theme intone upwards with electronic whale-like moans and tangy synth twangs in a very evocative and compelling six-minute cue. With little more than 26 minutes of score on the CD, though, there aren't enough great moments like that, even with such a likable theme at hand.

Shadow Conspiracy

1996, Intrada Records; from the movie Shadow Conspiracy, Hollywood Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; The Sinfonia Of London, conducted by Bruce Broughton; Album Produced by Bruce Broughton; Engineers: Paul Hulme, Armin Steiner, Joe Tarantino.

Selections: 1 The Hit (3:50); 2 To The White House (Main Title)(1:38); 3 The Oval Office (2:43); 4 Georgetown Pursuit (6:23); 5 Touched By Evil (3:08); 6 Frank Is Dead (:59); 7 A Secured Line (:43); 8 Hitter On The Roof (5:32); 9 White House Chaos (14:12); 10 Tracking Amanda (2:32); 11 The Conspirators (2:18); 12 Final Details (3:15); 13 Attempted Assassination/End Credits (10:10).

Review: Bruce Broughton first collaborated with filmmaker George P. Cosmatos on the hit western Tombstone, and was later reunited with the Rambo director for the box-office dud The Shadow Conspiracy, which is one of a number of 1997 films revolving around White House conspiracies and/or assassinations (a select group that also included Clint Eastwood's modestly successful Absolute Power and the Wesley Snipes' turkey Murder at 1600). Broughton's score is a brooding, at-times thundering brassy outing featuring solid work from the Sinfonia of London. In short, if you like large-scale suspense scores, you could do far worse than to give this a listen. The main theme is, in fact, written in the same vein as Tombstone, so if you liked that score, it goes without saying that you ought to enjoy this one as well.

Shadow of the Wolf

1993, Milan Records; from the movie Shadow of the Wolf, Vision International/ Malofilm Distribution, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Music Editor: Dan Carlin, Sr.; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Maurice Jarre; Featured Musicians: Maurice Jarre, Ralph Grierson, Rick Marvin (synthesizers), Judd Miller, Nyle Steiner, Mick Fisher (E.V.I.); Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Agaguk (10:55); 2 The White Wolf (5:09); 3 Igiyook (6:03); 4 Henderson (5:19); 5 To The Top Of The World (8:43); 6 The Shaman Hawk (7:33); 7 Always And Forever (M. Jarre/N. Carsen)(English version)(2:33) Nathalie Carsen; 8 Always And Forever (L'amour eternel)(M. Jarre/N. Carsen)(French version)(2:55) Nathalie Carsen.

Review: I often get the feeling that we should be hearing more film scores composed by Maurice Jarre than we do. This is, after all, the same man who wrote the music for Lawrence of Arabia and Dr. Zhivago, and whenever he scores a movie these days, the results are impressive and certainly far superior to the generic material that comprises most modern soundtracks. That certainly holds true on Shadow of the Wolf, which features an operatic, symphonic score performed by the stellar-sounding Royal Philharmonic Orchestra. The music, written for the rather bland 1993 adaptation of the bestselling Canadian novel "Agaguk," has the same epic feel that marks many of the composer's best works, and its often melodic quality ought to remind listeners that, for evocative orchestral scores with a larger-than-life feel, few do it better than Maurice Jarre.

Shadowlands

1993, EMI/Angel Records; from the film Shadowlands, Savoy Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: George Fenton; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by George Fenton; The Choir of Magdalen College, Oxford, directed by Grayston Ives; Album Producer: George Fenton; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 Veni Sancte Spiritus: Front Titles (2:19) Daniel Cochlin; 2 The Golden Valley (1:58); 3 Quartet in D "The Randolph" (1:49) Michael Davis, Janice Graham, Paul Silverthorne, Rod McGrath; 4 The Wardrobe (2:39); 5 "The Plot Thickens" (2:33); 6 The Lake (3:14); 7 O Little Town Of Bethlehem (trad.)(2:12); 8 Once In Royal David's City (1:37) Daniel Cochlin; 9 The Friendship (2:09); 10 The Wedding (2:43); 11 Summer Is Icumen In (13th century anon.)(1:38); 12 The Drive To The Hotel (1:31); 13 The Golden Valley, part two (1:58); 14 Mr. C.S. Lewis (1:42) Nicholas Rodwell; 15 Joy Goes Home (2:33); 16 "I'll Be Here Too" (1:56); 17 The Silence (1:54); 18 "As A Boy And As A Man" (3:26) Daren Geraghty; 19 Sanctis Solemniis (2:03); 20 Joy And Douglas (1:41); 21 Shadowlands (End Credits)(3:35).

Review: George Fenton proves once again to be one of the finest film composers around, with his graceful and classy music for Shadowlands. The film is based on the life of Christian author and professor C.S. Lewis, and his painful attempts to reconcile his wife's protracted death by cancer with his faith. Obviously in such a story the pitfalls for a composer are many, with the risk of becoming melodramatic ever-present. Fenton however delivers a score of impeccable class and refinement, yet accessibility, performed to perfection by the London Symphony Orchestra and the Choir of Magdalen College. The music owes largely to the English tradition, Fenton providing a number of impressive choral cues (evoking the Oxford setting) and a lyrically English pastoral tone for the love story. The result is a beautiful and deeply moving score, with the kind of depth which eludes most other composers these days.

Fuqua)(4:04) Chris Isaak.

Review: This often hilarious soundtrack compilation was put together for a zany film purporting to document what happened over a wild weekend in 1963, when a new dance craze, the shag, "started the party that caused the uproar that led to the weekend of the century." The songs, written in imitation of the sounds that could be heard on radio at the time, are amusing for the most part, and beat-driven, but two emerge in particular—"Ready to Go Steady," performed by The Charmettes in a dead-on spoof of The Supremes, complete with bells, "oohs," and saxophone break; and k.d. lang's excellent reading of "Our Day Will Come," worth alone the price of this entertaining album.

The Shawshank Redemption

1994, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie The Shawshank Redemption, Columbia Pictures, 1994.

Selections: 1 May (:33); 2 Shawshank Prison (Stoic Theme)(1:53); 3 New Fish (1:50); 4 Rock Hammer (1:51); 5 An Inch Of His Life (2:48); 6 If I Didn't Care (J. Lawrence)(3:03) The Inkspots; 7 Brooks Was Here (5:06); 8 His Judgement Cometh (2:00); 9 Suds On The Roof (1:36); 10 Workfield (1:10); 11 Shawshank Redemption (4:26); 12 Lovesick Blues (C. Friend/I. Mills)(2:42) Hank Williams; 13 Elmo Blatch (1:08); 14 Sisters (1:18); 15 Zihuatanejo (4:43); 16 Duettino—Sull 'aria (from The Marriage Of Figaro)(W.A. Mozart)(3:32) The Deutsche Oper Berlin, Karl Bohn; 17 Lovely Raquel (1:55); 18 And That Right Soon (1:08); 19 Compass And Guns (3:53); 20 So Was Red (2:44); 21 End Title (4:05).

Review: Thomas Newman has been typecast into scoring movies that are good. One of them is The Shawshank Redemption, Frank Darabont's 1994 prison saga based on a story by Stephen King. Tim Robbins and Morgan Freeman share the ennui of a lifetime in jail until their eventual—well, you can guess. It's a somber tale which Newman handles perfectly, with folk-oriented fiddle music, a sensitive theme for piano, and delicate orchestral/metallic samples which express the passage of time. Even the big moments have a restraint—this is a prison movie whose climactic jailbreak is told in flashback—but the subtlety never comes at the expense of musical coherence. Newman taps into different modes and altered scales which gives his melodic writing a lot of zing. He also continues a tradition of Americana in the original spirit of Copland, without sounding like Copland. Overall, it's a triumph of pitch over volume. The album includes a lot of imperceptible plinking (and a few source cues) which does make it less satisfying as separated listening.

She's Out of Control

1989, MCA Records; from the movie She's Out of Control, Weintraub Entertainment, 1989.

Selections: 1 Where's The Fire (M. Keefner/D. Green/D. Abravanel) (3:49) Troy Hinton; 2 You Should Be Loving Me (L. Golden/T. Faragher) (3:43) Brenda K. Starr; 3 Concentration (P. Thornalley) (3:47) Phil Tornalley; 4 The Loneliest Heart (M. Jeffries/J. Logan) (3:47) Boys Club; 5 Hunger Of Love (H. Faltermeyer/K. Forsey) (4:41) Harold Faltermeyer; 6 KHEY-FM Radio Sweeper (J. Ladd) (:12) Jim Ladd; 7 Winning Side (D. Elfman) (3:56) Oingo Boingo; 8 Daddy's Little Girl (B. Wilson/A. Morgan/E. Landy) (3:13) Brian Wilson; 9 Venus (E. Marshall) (2:20) Frankie Avalon; 10 You Really Got Me (R. Davies) (2:12) The Kinks; 11 Feel The Shake (M. Finn/F. Rod) (4:10) Jetboy.

Review: Tony Danza treads on Michael J. Fox territory in this light comedy about the plight of a single father with a teenage daughter who begins to assert her sexuality. Uncertain about what he is supposed to do, he follows her every opportunity he has to ensure that she keeps her virginity. Punctuating the screen action, the soundtrack offers a mixture of rock songs, some oldies and some newies, which make up this strange but enjoyable album. On the new side are songs by Troy Hinton, Brenda K. Starr, Boys Club, and Phil Thornalley. On the old side are selections by Brian Wilson, Frankie Avalon, and The Kinks. Somewhere in between, Oingo Boingo (bless them!) deliver "Winning Side," which is a refreshing change from all the synth drums in the tracks that precede, and paves the way for the golden oldies.

She's the One

1996, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie She's the One, 20th Century-Fox, 1996.

Album Notes: Songs (unless otherwise indicated): Tom Petty and The Heartbreakers; Album Producers: Rick Rubin, Tom Petty, Mike Campbell; Engineers: Jim Scott, Sylvia Massey.

Selections: 1 Walls (Circus)(4:25); 2 Grew Up Fast (5:10); 3 Zero From Outer Space (3:08); 4 Climb That Hill (T. Petty/M. Campbell)(3:58); 5 Change The Locks (L. Williams)(4:57); 6 Angel Dream (No. 4)(2:27); 7 Hope Your Never (3:03); 8 Asshole (B. Campbell)(3:12); 9 Supernatural Radio (5:22); 10 California (2:40); 11 Hope On Board (1:18); 12 Walls (No. 3)(3:04); 13 Angel Dream (No. 2)(2:27); 14 Hung Up And Overdue (5:49); 15 Airport (:58).

Review: Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers deliver a lively set of great rock songs for this fetching romantic comedy that doesn't take the beaten path to seduce its audiences with its story about two brothers, a cab driver and a Wall Street stockbroker, and the women in their life. The songs by Petty, which include the hit "Walls," make few demands on the intellect but beg to be heard again once the album is over. What their relationship with the movie might be is definitely not hinted at in the lyrics, but when the songs are solid and well defined, who's to complain?

The Sheltering Sky

1990, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie The Sheltering Sky, Warner Bros., 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Ryuichi Sakamoto; Orchestrations: John Altman, David Arch; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by John Altman, David Arch; Music Editor: Diane Eaton; Album Producer: Ryuichi Sakamoto; Engineer: Matt Howe; Assistant Engineers: Spence May, Jamie Cullum, Chris Ludwinski.

Selections: 1 The Sacred Koran (:40) Ibrahim Canakkaleli, Fevzi Misir, Yusuf Gebzeli, Aziz Bahriyeli; 2 The Sheltering Sky Theme (5:19); 3 Belly (1:27); 4 Port's Composition (1:23); 5 On The Bed (Dream)(1:37); 6 Loneliness (1:30); 7 On The Hill (6:10); 8 Kyoto (1:04); 9 Cemetery (1:25); 10 Dying (3:30); 11 Market (1:42); 12 Grand Hotel (2:06); 13 The Sheltering Sky Theme (piano version)(4:16); 14 Je chante (C. Trenet)(2:44) Charles Trenet; 15 Midnight Sun (L. Hampton/S. Burke/J. Mercer)(3:14) Lionel Hampton; 16 Fever Ride (R. Horowitz)(3:50) Richard Horowitz; 17 Chant avec cithare (trad.) (:44); 18 Marnia's Tent (R. Horowitz)(3:02) Richard Horowitz; 19 Goulou Limma (5:47) Chaba Zahouania; 20 Happy Bus Ride (1:41) Zarzis; 21 Night Train (R. Horowitz)(1:57) Richard Horowitz.

Review: Based on Paul Bowles' 1949 novel, The Sheltering Sky took a clinical look at an American couple, married for 10 years, travelling through Morocco, Algeria, Niger, and other exotic locales in the days following World War II, whose relationship is unraveling. Reflecting the emotional journey of the two characters, and the slow disintegration of their love story, Ryuichi Sakamoto wrote a rich, profusely emotive score, in which some of the pauses seem more revelatory than the musical accents. While a faint vocal in the background sometimes serves as an exotic counterpoint to the main themes ("On the Hill"), the local colors are provided by other selections, some composed by Richard Horowitz ("Marnia's Tent"), some featuring traditional musical groups from Burundi, Tunisia and other North African countries. The main theme, reprised on the piano, is particularly striking.

Shine

1996, Philips Classics; from the movie Shine, Fine Line Features, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: David Hirschfelder; Arrangements: David Hirschfelder, Ricky Edwards; Orchestra conducted by Ricky Edwards; Featured Artists: David Helfgott, Ricky Edwards, David Hirschfelder (piano), Mary Doumany (harp), Geoffrey Payne (trumpet), Jeffrey Crellin (oboe), Geoffrey Lancaster (harpsichord), Gerald Keuneman (cello); Album Producer: David Hirschfelder; Engineers: Michael Letho, Robin Gray, David Williams, Adam Rhodes.

Selections: 1 With The Help Of God, Shine (3:19); 2 The Polonaise (F. Chopin) (1:20); 3 Did He Win? (:43); 4 Will You Teach Me? (2:33); 5 Scales To America (2:29); 6 Scenes From Childhood: "Almost Too Serious" (R. Schumann) (1:32) Wilhelm Kempff; 7 These People Are A Disgrace (1:15); 8 Raindrop Prelude (F. Chopin) (:42); 9 Your Father Your Family (2:34) Noah Taylor; 10 Tell Me A Story, Katharine (2:03); 11 Back Stage (1:16); 12 Punished For The Rest Of Your Life (1:02); 13 Moments Of Genius (:46); 14 La Campalesson (F. Liszt) (:49); 15 Letters To Katharine (1:27); 16 1st Movement Cadenza From The Rach. 3 (S. Rachmaninoff) (2:37); 17 Night Practice (S. Rachmaninoff)/Parcel From Katharine (1:19); 18 As If There Was No Tomorrow (1:44); 19 The Rach. 3 (S. Rachmaninoff) (4:17); 20 Complicato In Israel (1:56); 21 Raindrop Reprise (F. Chopin) (1:44); 22 Bath To Daisy Beryl (1:30); 23 Gloria (A. Vivaldi) (2:26); 24 Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 (F. Liszt) (3:39); 25 Prelude In C # Minor (S. Rachmaninoff) (2:17); 26 Flight Of The Bumble Bee (N. Rimsky-Korsakov) (1:08); 27 Rach. 3 Reborn (S. Rachmaninoff) (1:13); 28 Goodnight Daddy (2:03); 29 A Loud Bit Of Ludwig's 9th (L. Van Beethoven) (:41); 30 Sospiro (F. Liszt) (2:45); 31 What's The Matter, David/Appassionata (L. Van Beethoven) (1:12); 32 La Campanella (F. Liszt) (1:02); 33 Familiar Faces/Rach. 3 Encore (S. Rachmaninoff) (1:35); 34 Nulla In Mundo Pax Sincera (A. Vivaldi) (4:38) Jane Edwards.

Review: The true, inspirational story of iconoclastic Australian concert pianist David Helfgott, who overcame severe debilitation and bouts of madness, caused in his youth by his father's total control and eventual rejection, Shine chronicles the artist's slow descent into the eccentric behavior that saw him spend 15 years of his life in a psychiatric hospital, unable to communicate except through his brilliant interpretations of complex works by Liszt, Rachmaninoff, and other classical composers. Helfgott himself is heard in this soundtrack album, in which he interprets some of the pieces that helped him regain some control of his life, as well as new works written by David Hirschfelder, who composed the original score, well in keeping with the overall tone of the whole film. Given its classical approach, this soundtrack album will obviously attract primarily listeners with a natural bent for this kind of music. Others, however, should discover in it pieces they might have heard in other situations, as well as instrumental cues that are enjoyably descriptive and reflective of a story that transcends musical genres.

Shining Through

1992, RCA Records; from the movie Shining Through, 20th Century-Fox, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Kamen; Orchestrations: Michael Kamen, Jonathan Sacks, Albert Olson, Danny Troob, Sonny Kompanek, Homer Denison, Nick Ingram, Arnold Black; Music Editor: Joseph S. DeBeasi; The Alma Mater Symphony Orchestra of New York, conducted by Michael Kamen; Album Producers: Michael Kamen, Stephen McLaughlin, Christopher Brooks; Engineer: Stephen McLaughlin.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (2:02); 2 My Cousin Sophie (2:50); 3 Airport Goodbyes (1:54); 4 Enter Berlin (3:44); 5 The Boathouse (5:01); 6 Kinderstrasse (4:59); 7 Escape To Margrete (3:44); 8 Gestapo Search (4:11); 9 Exit Berlin (5:25); 10 The Swiss Border (3:26); 11 End Credits (2:18); 12 I'll Be Seeing You (S. Fain/I. Kahal)(3:25) Deirdre Harrison.

Review: Michael Douglas and Melanie Griffith star in this unlikely story of a woman with a Jewish background, in World War II Berlin, posing as a governess to a German officer, the better to help American forces fight the Nazis. Listening to Michael Kamen's "Main Titles," in this soundtrack album, one might have a feeling that the score would have some kind of sustained excitement to it. But with a few exceptions ("The Boathouse," "Exit Berlin"), the cues are expressionless orchestral swatches that probably served the narrative very well in the theatre, but don't add up to much in one's living room. The inclusion of "I'll Be Seeing You," performed by Deirdre Harrison, while perfectly pleasant, is equally baffling in the overall musical context.

Shipwrecked

1991, Walt Disney Records; from the movie Shipwrecked, Walt Disney Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Patrick Doyle; Orchestrations: Lawrence Ashmore, Fiachra Trench; Engineer: Chris Dibble.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles (1:39); 2 Death Of Howell (1:02); 3 Homecoming (:59); 4 The Sheriff's Arrival (1:11); 5 Off To The Sea (2:02); 6 Scrubbing The Deck (2:22); 7 The Flora Departs (:50); 8 Captain Madsen Is Poisoned (1:54); 9 Hakon Finds Mary (1:12); 10 Mary Is Rescued (1:39); 11 Exploring The Island (1:20); 12 Dreaming Of Home (1:06); 13 Hakon Survives A Fall (1:27); 14 Treasure Is Found (1:06); 15 Building The Traps (1:51); 16 Hakon Builds His Boat (1:56); 17 Pirates Discovered (1:34); 18 The Chase (1:59); 19 Home To Norway (3:35); 20 End Titles, Part I (2:39); 21 End Titles, Part II (3:29).

Review: Patrick Doyle, who seldom misses a beat, does a bang-up job in this high seas adventure score for a film released by Disney, the story of a young boy's test of strength and courage at the hands of evil pirates. Portraying in rich details the various events facing Hakon, the young Norwegian boy who, to avoid being sent to a home, embarks on a ship, Doyle used broad swatches of tonal colors to paint the myriad adventures that await him, from exploring a deserted South Pacific island, to discovering a treasure, and befriending a young girl, Mary, like him alone in the world. The cues, muscular and exhilarating, are wonderfully melodic and descriptive, making this joyous soundtrack album a delight to listen to.

Shogun Mayeda

1991, Intrada Records; from the movie Shogun Mayeda, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: John Scott; Orchestrations: John Scott; Music Editor: Richard Allen; The Hungarian State Opera Orchestra, conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineers: Keith Grant, John Richards.

Selections: 1 Main Title: Shogun Mayeda (2:34); 2 Battle Of Sekigahara (3:55); 3 Inner Strength (1:33); 4 Yorimune's Court (:57); 5 Attack On Yorimune (2:05); 6 Mayeda's Grief (1:49); 7 Vasco, Servant Of The Devil (2:15); 8 Set Sail: Storm At Sea (8:15); 9 Memories Of The Lost Ones: Arrival (3:27); 10 Courts Of Spain (4:29); 11 Duel With Don Pedro (1:49); 12 The Kings Protector (2:22); 13 Leaving Spain (3:14); 14 Bath-Time On Board (2:08); 15 Pirate Attack (5:07); 16 Prisoners In Morocco (4:24); 17 Checkmate (2:33); 18 Cecilia Declares Her Love (4:12); 19 Fight To The Death (4:12); 20 Leaving Morocco (2:27); 21 On To New Adventures (4:18).

Review: An epic film about Japanese Samurais who journey to Spain to acquire guns, Shogun Mayeda proved underwhelming, but John Scott's score makes for an exciting and adventurous soundtrack. Given his vast knowledge of Japanese music and culture, Scott was ideally suited to this assignment. At 66:46 (21 tracks) there is perhaps more music than the album needs, but much of it is very good – large and epic, in which Scott blends the Hungarian State Opera Orchestra with a small group of Japanese instruments. (As is his usual practice, Scott also orchestrated the score himself). The main theme is attractively majestic and brassy, and appears within numerous guises and enough variety that it stays fresh throughout. "Battle of Sekigahara" is a pensive, atmospheric cue, somewhat reminiscent of Scott's William The Conqueror, but invested with an exotic Japanese flavor. The various battle scenes, sea journey, and love story elements give Scott much to play-off, and the result is a rich and colorful epic score. One's only dismay is that the music was not written for a more deserving film.

The Shooting Party/ Birds and Planes

1991, JOS Records; from the movie The Shooting Party, European Classics, 1984, and the documentary Birds and Planes, 1964.

Album Notes: Music: John Scott; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineers: Richard Lewzey (The Shooting Party), Adrian Kerridge (Birds and Planes).

Selections: THE SHOOTING PARTY: 1 Main Title (3:12); 2 The First Day (1:45); 3 The Letter (1:11); 4 Dinner At Nettleby (2:16); 5 Lionel And Olivia (2:39); 6 Thou Shalt Not Kill (3:06); 7 Luncheon By The Lake (2:08); 8 Ideals (1:51); 9 Signs In The Fire (:43); 10 The Poacher (1:32); 11 In Search Of Elfrida Beetle (1:27); 12 The Philosopher (1:08); 13 Spanish Dance (2:36); 14 Nettleby Polka (1:33); 15 The Finale Day (:56); 16 The Competition (2:08); 17 The Consequences (2:58); 18 Epilogue (4:29);

BIRDS AND PLANES: 19 The Awakening Of The Birds And Planes (3:21); 20 Take Off (1:01); 21 In Flight (5:46); 22 Condor And Glider (2:15); 23 End Of The Day (1:52).

Review: A film dealing with England's rural aristocracy on the eve of World War I, The Shooting Party is a beautiful evocation of the English countryside. Performed by the Royal Philharmonic, the score opens with a majestic trumpet fanfare, its bright sound evoking a misty morning sunrise. A pastoral flavor pervades the score, which is some of Scott's most particularly "English" sounding work ever. The "Epilogue" however ends the score in a somber tone, reprising the opening fanfare, counterpointed with a contorted variation on "The Last Outpost" (the British military funeral call), portending the ruin war is soon to bring upon the characters.

A pitfall of soundtrack albums is that film scores can have awkward moments on disc, due to their programmatic requirements. The Shooting Party however is somewhat unique in that it plays with a near-perfect fluidity from cue to cue (track changes are in fact rarely noticed). Also included on this CD is Scott's music for a 1964 Hugh Hudson documentary Birds and Planes. Featuring piano, string quartet and four basses, the score is largely atonal, yet ethereal, and shows off Scott's inventive gift for scoring for a smaller chamber ensemble.

The Shootist/Big Jake/ Cahill United States Marshall

1986, Varese-Sarabande; from the movies The Shootist, Paramount Pictures, 1976; Big Jake, 20th Century-Fox, 1971; and Cahill, United States Marshall, Columbia Pictures, 1973.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; The Utah Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: Jeff Ostler.

Selections: THE SHOOTIST: 1 Main Title (3:16); 2 Ride (2:36); 3 In The Fire (2:57); 4 Epilogue (3:32);

CAHILL, UNITED STATES MARSHALL: 5 Nectie Party (4:22); 6 Nocturne (4:18);

BIG JAKE: 7 Riders (2:37); 8 Reunion (2:11); 9 All Jake (3:40); 10 Buzzards (3:34); 11 Going Home/Finale (2:15).

Review: Elmer Bernstein, whose western scores rank among the best and most descriptive ever written, conducted the Utah Symphony in this remarkable musical tribute to John Wayne, the quintessential movie cowboy, consisting of selections from the scores he composed for three of Wayne's last films. Neatly balancing the focus of each score between his signature staccato riding themes, and lovely romantic tunes, sometimes flavored with a south-of-the-border flair, Bernstein demonstrates again the reasons that have made him such a master in a genre that has known many exponents: his music throbs with color and excitement, painting vast landscapes against which the broad action can unfold with all the desired fire and passion. The orchestra milks the cues for all their worth, expressing the sweep and movement in them with evident delight.

A Show of Force

1990, Colossal Records; from the movie A Show of Force, Paramount Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Georges Delerue; Music Editor: Daniel Allen Carlin; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Georges Delerue; Album Producer: Georges Delerue; Engineer: Alan Snelling.

Selections: 1 Prologue (2:37); 2 Main Title (2:32); 3 The Hearing (1:04); 4 Flashback (2:40); 5 Kate To Cerro Marravilla (1:03); 6 Testimony (2:05); 7 Show Of Force (3:38); 8 Final Flashback (2:16); 9 Kate Argues With Dad (1:33); 10 Danse macabre (1:58); 11 Courtroom Photographs (1:38); 12 Remembrance (2:40); 13 The Hearings Begin (1:23); 14 Kate Watches Fireworks (1:20); 15 Forensic Science (1:19); 16 End Title (3:39).

Review: A passionate courtroom drama starring Amy Irving and Robert Duvall on opposite sides of a political murder investigation and trial in Brazil, A Show of Force inspired Georges Delerue to write a particularly strong score, in which the strains of samba are among the most ingratiating elements that combine to make it such a delightful audio experience. Delerue, a master melodist, wasted little time in idle textures, preferring instead to rely on solid, attractive tunes that meant something. And while his cues in this album are typically short, they all exude a definite musical flavor that is most endearing. Individual instruments (a harmonica, a guitar, a bandoneon) are used frequently throughout the score to paint vivid pictures that attract for the lovely musical images they evoke. It all adds up to a score that has great flair when appreciated on its own merits.

Showgirls

1995, Interscope Records; from the movie Showgirls, United Artists, 1995.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Warne Livesey, David Bowie, Brian Eno, Roli Mosiman, Siouxsie & The Banshees, Buzz McCoy, Tim O'Heir, Matthew Wilder, Youth, David A. Stewart, Freaks Of Desire, Toni Halliday, Alan Moulder; Engineers: Alan Moulder, Dave Richards, Roli Mosiman, Roger Bechirian, Tim O'Heir, Paul Palmer, Dave Wray, Chris Potter, Olle Romo, Tristin Norwell, Frank Filipetti, Nick Wollange; Album Producers: Robin Glenn, Alan Marshall; Engineer: Stephen Marcussen.

Selections: 1 Animal (K. McMahon)(4:08) Prick; 2 I'm Afraid Of Americans (D. Bowie/B. Eno)(5:12) David Bowie; 3 Kissing The Sun (F. Treichler)(4:31) The Young Gods; 4 New Skin (S. Sioux)(5:36) Siouxsie & The Banshees; 5 Wasted Time (3:56) My Life With The Thrill Kill Kult; 6 Emergency's About To End (R. Zabrecky)(2:38) Possum Dixon; 7 You Can Do It (G. Tefani/ E. Stefani/ T. Dumont/T. Kanal)(4:14) No Doubt; 8 Purely Sexuel (X. Dphrepaulezz)(4:01) Xavier; 9 Hollywood Babylon (Killing Joke)(6:44) Killing Joke; 10 Beast Inside (Thomas/ Campbell/Wilson)(5:43) Freaks Of Desire; 11 Helen's Face (T. Halliday/A. Moulder)(4:55) Scylla; 12 Somebody New (2:37) My Life With The Thrill Kill Kult; 13 Goddess (D.A. Stewart)(3:27) David A. Stewart; 14 Walk Into The Wind (D.A. Stewart/T. Hall)(5:37) Andrew Carver.

Review: When sex bombs at the box office, you know something's wrong, but that's exactly what happened with Showgirls, Paul Verhoeven's semi-nude Las Vegas extravaganza that hardly caused a ripple when it opened (and closed) in a matter of days. Listening to this sorry soundtrack compilation, one is almost tempted to dismiss it as quickly as the critics dismissed the film, if it were not for the fact that a couple of tracks feature some usually reliable favorites, Davie Bowie and Siouxsie & The Banshees. But if you can listen to the first track in its entirety, then welcome to this CD! After all, every kind of taste can be found in nature! That cover design, though, with its sinuous half-nude model, is attractive. That's about the only thing that is.

Shy People

1987, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Shy People, Cannon Films, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Tangerine Dream; Album Producers: Edgar Froese, Christoph Franke, Paul Haslinger; Engineers: Edgar Froese, Christoph Franke, Paul Haslinger.

Selections: 1 Shy People (lyrics: E. Froese)(8:02) Jacquie Virgil; 2 Joe's Place (2:12); 3 The Harbor (lyrics: P. Haslinger/C. Franke)(4:06) Diamond Ross; 4 Nightfall (4:09); 5 Dancing On A White Moon (lyrics: E. Froese)(3:06) Jacquie Virgil; 6 Civilized Illusions (3:54); 7 Swamp Voices (3:15); 8 Transparent Days (3:05); 9 Shy People (5:04).

Review: Shy People, a film about a middle-class New York woman and her teenage daughter and the surprising journey they make to far-away, foreign Louisiana, was flavored by a remarkably effective score by Tangerine Dream with vocals. The inviting moods in the score not only enhance the story but sound downright attractive when heard in a different environment. The lyrical beauty of "Dancing on a White Moon" and "Transparent Days," particularly, demonstrates the electronic trio's unusual diversity.

The Silence of the Lambs

1991, MCA Records; from the movie The Silence of the Lambs, Orion Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Howard Shore; Orchestrations: Homer Denison; Music Editor: Suzana Peric; The Munich Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Howard Shore; Album Producer: Howard Shore; Engineer: Alan Snelling.

Selections: 1 Main Title (5:04); 2 The Asylum (3:53); 3 Clarice (3:03); 4 Return To The Asylum (2:35); 5 The Abduction (3:01); 6 Quid Pro Quo (4:41); 7 Lecter In Memphis (5:41); 8 Lambs Screaming (5:34); 9 Lecter Escapes (5:06); 10 Belvedere, Ohio (3:32); 11 The Moth (2:20); 12 The Cellar (7:02); 13 Finale (4:50).

Review: By virtue of the nature of the film's plot, the music composed by Howard Shore for Silence of the Lambs is dark, brooding, and ominous. While it makes for fine underscoring for the film, it suffers somewhat outside the context of the movie, becoming a bit more tedious with repeated listening. Disturbing to this listener are some very noticeable edits in the first minute or so of the opening track, the "Main Title." Wasn't the producer listening when they edited and mastered the album? As with a number of other recent film scores, this one's better off heard as you view the film.

Silent Fall

1994, Morgan Creek Records; from the movie Silent Fall, Warner Bros. Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Stewart Copeland; String Arrangements: Michael Andreas; Music Editor: Michael Dittrick; Producer: Jeff Seitz; Engineers: Jeff Seitz, Joseph Magee.

Selections: 1 The First Clue (:19); 2 Sylvie's Charm (3:23); 3 A Cheerful Moment (3:18); 4 Lunch Madness (:37); 5 Our Parents' House (4:01); 6 Kitchen Cognition (1:55); 7 Bruce's Theme (1:51); 8 Smell Of Ghost (1:57); 9 Drama On Ice (6:19); 10 The Scene Of The Crime (1:49); 11 The Little Boy's Knife (:52); 12 Jake's Office Test (2:01); 13 Roof Top (1:24); 14 You're Quitting Again (2:18); 15 Main Title (5:04); 16 Healing (4:04) Wynonna & Michael English.

Review: An interesting thriller involving an autistic child, who witnesses the murder of his parents, and the psychiatrist who attempts to break the incoherent wall of silence that will lead to resolving the crime, Silent Fall found in Stewart Copeland a composer with a great deal of empathy for the film and its subject matter. The cues he wrote, many of them performed by an acoustic guitar, coupled with a clarinet or dueting with a piano over an orchestral texture ("Our Parents' House,"

STEPHEN SONDHEIM

Broadway composer and lyricist Stephen Sondheim is known for redefining the concept of American musicals. Considered one of the masterpieces of American theater, West Side Story established Sondheim as a prominent Broadway lyricist at the age of twenty-seven. He followed the show with the successful Gypsy in 1959. While 1962 marked the success of the burlesque comedy A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, Sondheim was composer and lyricist for plays with varying degrees of acceptance over the next decades. Offbeat and experimental productions such as Anyone Can Whistle, Do I Hear a Waltz?, Company, Follies, A Little Night Music, and Merrily We Roll Along brought Sondheim an intellectual cult following.

A lyricist and composer who has been known to find inspiration in unlikely sources, Sondheim based his 1984 musical Sunday in the Park With George on pointillist art. Portraying painter George Seurat and the characters from Seurat's neo-impressionist work "A Sunday Afternoon on the Island of La Grand Jatte," the unusual musical was a commercial success as well as a 1985 Pulitzer Prize winner.

Born March 22, 1930, in New York City, Sondheim grew up in the affluent atmosphere of Central Park West in Manhattan. Sondheim found a close friend in a boy his age named Jamie Hammerstein, son of lyricist Oscar Hammerstein II, who became a surrogate father to the adolescent Sondheim, and his musical mentor in the years that followed.

Dubbed "Broadway's brightest hope," Sondheim has won numerous citations, including Grammy awards, Tony awards, and New York Drama Critics awards for best musical. Not always praised, but generally acknowledged for expanding the limits of the American musical, Sondheim alternately irritates and moves his audiences with songs and subject matter.

"Kitchen Cognition"), are very endearing and evocative. Others, using the full complement of the orchestra, also paint vivid images that seem more specifically adapted to the screen action, but still make a favorable impression. "Healing," performed by Wynonna and Michael English, is an appropriately fitting coda to the score.

Silverado

1992, Intrada Records; from the movie Silverado, Columbia Pictures, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Orchestrations: Chris Boardman, Don Nemitz; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Broughton; Album Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:47); 2 To Turley (2:43); 3 The Getaway/Riding As One (4:21); 4 Ezra's Death (1:53); 5 The McKendrick Attack (1:38); 6 Augie Is Taken (2:36); 7 On To Silverado (6:26); 8 This Oughta Do (4:51); 9 Augie's Rescue (6:36); 10 Slick, Then McKendrick (4:03); 11 Goodbye, Cobb (2:06); 12 End Credits (We'll Be Back)(4:22).

Review: A big, brassy western score in the tradition laid down by his predecessors in the field is what Bruce Broughton created for this western in which every gesture is grand and exhilaratingly overstated. With good guys (drifters Kevin Kline, Scott Glenn and Kevin Costner) and bad guys (Brian Dennehy, delightful as a corrupt sheriff, and Jeff Goldblum) facing it off in a powerful showdown, everything in the film evokes the grandeur the West never was, with Broughton's score emphasizing every twist in the narrative with surprisingly effective cues that are greatly enjoyable. In his brief comments about the score, the composer talks about "the power, strength and energy" he found in the screenplay and tried to convey in his music. He succeeded admirably.
